"Suffer little children . . . to come unto me"

Volume XLVII, No. 8, April 20, 1978 Oshawa, Ontario

Of Such Is the Kingdom of Heaven

by Malcolm Graham, Associate Director of Education, Canadian Union Conference

"Verily I say unto you, except ye be converted and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven." (Matt. 18:3) This was Jesus' reply to the disciples, the church leaders of the day, when they asked, "Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?" Christ continued, "Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven. And whosoever shall receive one such little child in my name receiveth me. But whoso shall offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea."

Are children important? Jesus thinks so. Even though some may wish to condemn the irresponsible, perverted, degenerate generation of children today, bemoaning the destruction of society, morality, and all decent things, Jesus did not have a condemning word to say in regards to the children.

Christ's speeches make good sense. I completely accept the promise that the redeemed who enter the kingdom of heaven will have the characteristics, attitudes and behavior of little children. "Except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven." (Matt. 5:20).

Jesus saves. He saves those who have the characteristics of little children. He saves those who are loving and who have no room in their heart for envy, jealousy, bitterness or hate. He saves those who are open, frank and sincere; who have no room for deviousness, hidden motives, or pretense. Christ saves the soft and sympathetic heart—the heart of a child that can be touched by the needs of others and who will share what God has given to them. The Master saves those who are leadable, teachable, trainable; those who can forget the past and who can walk straight toward the kingdom of heaven. He saves those who are dependent on Him; those who cry for help, who have no merit, goodness, ability or accomplishment which recommends them to the Father.

Little children are dependent upon God for their salvation. They also depend on their homes, schools and churches for understanding, sympathy, guidance, leadership, association and activity. They depend on the attitudes of the home and the school for the development of their own attitudes. Such development can best be accomplished in an S.D.A. church school where God's presence is invited each day and where His blessing can be expected. As in the days of Samuel the prophet, church schools serve the homes and churches of the S.D.A. community as barriers against the wide-spreading corruption that threatens to envelop the entire world.

Children need identity. They need to know who they are and where they belong. Church schools help to establish the child's identity as a member of the family of God. A child needs a healthy self-concept or self-image and a feeling of worth. Children may be tied by inseparable cords to the family, school and church as they develop, in church school, the self-concept of a needed, appreciated, contributing member of God's great family. Practical involvement in a church school program reinforces, in the lives of the children, the goals, objectives, ideals, beliefs and practises of the church. Church schools are indeed ordained of God to help fulfill the crying need for Elijah to turn the hearts of the fathers to the needs of the children today.

As parents and as a church we have a work to "train up a child in the way he should go." We also have a promise—a promise of hope for today, "And all thy children shall be taught of the Lord; and great shall be the peace of thy children." (Isa. 54:13) "For I will contend with him that contendeth with thee, and I will save thy children." (Isa. 49:25) What a promise!

The Teacher

The Adventist teacher is many things. He is as much on duty playing volley ball as he is showing you how to plant a garden or solve a difficult math problem, or counseling a youth or eating lunch together.

No one else can be so serious and yet so kind. He knows how to be stern and sympathetic. He has the jobs of being teacher, judge and lawgiver, but these are enhanced by his fairness, nobility and dignity. Teacher can provide more fun than a barrel of monkeys, better discipline than a general. He knows how firmness mixed with love earns honor and respect from every student.

He represents all that is just and kind and good. He is like a father to each student in the classroom. He can make you feel like working your heart out with the words, "You're doing fine, keep it up!"

Redemption Through Christ in Education

by Clarence Goertzen, Director of Education
British Columbia Conference

The theme of Education Year, "Redemption Through Christ in Education", need not end with the year 1978, for we read that, "In the highest sense the work of education and the work of redemption are one. . . ." Education p. 30. Teachers in the British Columbia Conference unite with teachers in our schools across Canada in an effort to make their teaching more Christ-centred. The principal and teachers of a Junior Academy in British Columbia formulated specific spiritual objectives for each subject such as:

Language Arts

1. To help students be discerning in their selection of reading material and media communications.
2. To use Language as a means of communicating the gospel to others.

Mathematics

1. To develop a sense of the order of the universe through a study of Mathematics, and as a result of this to glimpse the majesty of the creator and His love for His creatures.

2. To develop a sense of accountability which will culminate in strict honesty.

Social Studies

1. To recognize the focal points of history in the first and second Advents of Christ. . .
2. To develop a sense of responsibility and appreciation of Adventist missions.

Fine Arts

1. To use beauty in attracting others to a knowledge of the Saviour.

Health

1. To teach the student his responsibility in keeping his body in good health as the temple of the Holy Ghost.

Work Experience Education

1. To engender in the student a set of values which will help protect him from the indolence and permissiveness of modern society.
2. To promote the development of mind and character essential in the plan of redemption.

Similar goals were listed for the other subjects such as Science, Physical Education, etc.

As teachers plan their lessons with such objectives clearly in mind, angels of God will draw near, and the Holy Spirit will be present in the classroom to make the work of education and the work of redemption truly one.

Manual Training In Our Church Schools

by George L. Schafer,
Asst. Director of Education, British Columbia

Most church schools in British Columbia Conference are laying plans and moving forward to provide manual training for their students. It is encouraging to see one school after another move into line by accepting the inspired counsel to provide some form of practical training. Work experiences in areas such as agriculture, woodwork, mechanics, cooking, sewing, household duties, etc., are being provided in different schools.

A successful program for the training of the "hand" is generally the result of careful planning by both teachers and school board members. Its implementation is generally more difficult than the conventional textbook structured type of teaching. However, there is abundant evidence already, that successful work experiences for the students are invaluable. As the young people have success while working with their hands there is a carryover of enthusiasm into mental and spiritual development.

Both parents and teachers have commented favorably regarding the benefits realized when the training of the head, heart and hand are in harmony. Christ-like qualities often become more evident in the lives of the young people. May God be praised for the counsel He has so graciously given to us regarding training our youth for service in this world and for the world to come. Let us determine to support the implementation of this counsel by giving our vocal and physical support to work programs being instituted in our church schools. God will abundantly bless our youth as we move forward in faith and make provision for the harmonious development of their mental, spiritual and physical dimensions.

Let the Children Be Taught:

by R. K. Lehmann,
Director of Education,
Maritime Conference

Our favorite author has written, "Let the children be taught that as they open their minds to pure, loving thoughts, and do loving and helpful deeds, they are clothing themselves with His beautiful garment of character. This apparel will make them beautiful and beloved here, and will hereafter be their title of admission to the palace of the King. His promise is: 'They shall walk with Me in white: for they are worthy.' Rev. 3:4" Education p. 249. The growth of the church school program in the Maritime Conference over the last few years is an indication that Maritimers are putting their treasures where their hearts are—or is it the other way around? Whichever way you look at it, prayers, tears and sacrifice have mingled freely in such small centres as Harvey, St. George and Perth-Andover in New Brunswick; Digby and

New Glasgow in Nova Scotia; and Cross-roads on Prince Edward Island. Our four older, established schools, not sacrificing any less, round out the complement of ten.

Again we read "Let their minds be directed to the suffering they might relieve." Ibid p. 248. Several schools have incorporated into their curriculum regular visits to the Senior Citizens homes in their community. "Help them to see that by every dollar squandered in display, the spender is deprived of means for. . .feeding. . .clothing. . .comforting. . ." Ibid p. 248. Students and teachers, in some cases working with the church, have raised thousands of dollars for school equipment, operation and building programs for their own education. "At the same time the young should be taught to recognize the lesson of nature, 'He hath made everything beautiful in its time.' Eccl. 3:11." Ibid p. 248. It may well be that Maritime schools have more plants, cactii, canaries, budgies, finches, rabbits, guinea pigs, gold fish, etc., than their public counterparts all put together. Why not use God's "other book" to advantage in building character?

If character is the one possession to be carried out of this world and, "A person's character is judged by his style of dress; a refined taste, and a cultivated mind, will be revealed in the choice of simple and appropriate attire." Ibid p. 248. Hence school uniforms have been pioneered and have received a certain warm spot in the hearts of our people.

The Maritime Seventh-day Adventist cannot afford to miss life's glorious opportunities. Minds shall not be dwarfed—health shall not be ruined—happiness shall not be wrecked, because we have failed to provide for the temporal and eternal welfare of our youth. We do labor under certain difficulites—(One of our churches has experienced an "Exodus" to various "lands of promise" over the last two years—80 people have moved and school enrolment has dropped from 28 to 7. The remnant "staying by the stuff", however, plan and build in faith that can only be rewarded of God.)—but we do labor—trusting the promises of Is. 43:2 ". . .they (the waters) shall not overflow thee" and Is. 49:25 ". . .I will save thy children."

A Little Child Shall Lead Them

by George Unger,
Director of Education, Ontario Conference

Have you ever had a little child as a teacher? If you have, you can empathize with me how shockingly blunt the teacher can be, and how forcefully searching the truth of the lesson presented by the unadulterated questioning mind, can also be. I still squirm as I think of a five-second lecture of a two-year-old, delivered for my benefit twelve years ago. I can still see those big brown eyes pleading in self-defense.

It was 7:00 on a Friday evening in November. The supper dishes had long been cleared away; it seemed that Mother and Father had sung at least a dozen songs and read half a dozen stories to their five- and two-year-old girls; prayer had been said in a family circle before the fireplace; little cherubs had received their good-night hugs, kisses and drinks; and finally Mom and Dad had that quiet hour they had longed for all week—an hour for meditation, fellowship and study.

The relished hour was soon interrupted by the patter of tiny feet and a little voice whispering, "I love you, Mommy".

Mommy went and tucked big brown eyes in again and repeated the usual nightly routine. She returned to her lazy-boy in front of the fire, picked up the Review and continued reading the article that she had half finished.

It wasn't long before the shuffling sound of little feet again attracted the attention of Mom and Dad. This time the request was, "Daddy, sleep with me," and Daddy happily went and lay down with Little Red for what seemed like half an hour. Finally he carefully eased himself out of bed, tiptoed out of the room, and joined his wife in front of the fireplace.

Five minutes of silence were interrupted by the patter of little feet, not only twice, three times, but many times. After an hour Daddy finally said, "This is the last time I shall tuck you in. If you get up again, I shall have to spank".

Silence reigned. Mom and Dad each pursued their reading. The fire crackled cheerily in the grate; the canaries chirped happily in their cage, and the toy poodle lay curled in a cozy ball on the carpet.

This time no patter of little feet attracted the attention of Mom and Dad; instead it was sixth sense speaking through a total silence. Both parents looked up to see little 'jamied Carrot Top standing in the doorway. For a moment neither spoke. Mother frowned; Father reluctantly considered his ultimatum. After further long moments of silence Little Red solemnly whispered, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and 'bid them not!"

This sermon has over the years rung in my ears. I have often thought of the Master preaching to the multitude, healing the sick, comforting the discouraged. His disciples assisted in His ministry, and shared in his fatigue. After days of public evangelism I can almost feel their desire to "come apart and rest awhile". I can sympathize with the disciples when they endeavoured to shield their Master from the encroachments of mothers and little children. Surely He had given enough of His time and energy to weightier matters; why bother Him with lesser ones! But the Master would not have it so. He said, "Suffer little children to come unto me". I can read many interpretations into the word "suffer". He might have implied: permit, encourage, urge. The connotation we place on the word "suffer" is not that important. The meaning is clear. Christ saw the kingdom of heaven reflected in the lives of the little ones and He wished to impress upon His disciples that they must labor for and love these little ones also. It was wrong to send them away or to relegate them to some inconspicuous back bench where their needs could never be met, and they could never grow into stalwart sons of the cross.

I'm sure His message to His disciples is still the same: "Suffer little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not". May we heed this admonition. May we, as Christ's disciples, not expend all our energies in laboring all day for the multitude, and at eventide have nothing but crumbs for those we cherish the most. Or, worse still, should we send them away hungry and disillusioned?

Church School Students Remain Loyal

by P. F. Lemon,
*Director of Education,
Quebec*

The Principal of the Montreal Seventh-day Adventist school is a firm believer in Christian education. Recently, Mrs. Greaves did a survey, in one section of the school, of students who had attended the church school covering the years since 1963-64. Of all those children, just one, as far as she knows, is no longer a church member. I am sure we can all join her in saying "Thank God for church schools".

Christian Education — a beautiful thing

by Ralph Janes,
*Director of Education,
Newfoundland Conference*

What is the most beautiful thing in all the world?

Some one has said, "A child going confidently down the road after you have shown him the way is the most beautiful sight in all the world."

The thirty teachers in Newfoundland have a unique opportunity as they guide young people down the road of life. Since the majority of their students come from non-S.D.A. backgrounds, what a tremendous privilege is theirs to portray the love of Jesus!

"The knowledge of God and of Jesus Christ expressed in character is the very highest education." Counsels to Teachers p. 37 As the Lord looks on our schools may He be able to say, "I, if I be lifted up in your schools, will draw all men unto Me."

Remember Mother's Day

Educating For Eternity

by Reo Ganson,
*Director of Education,
Alberta Conference*

The following counsel was written almost one hundred years ago but still presents a strong message for today — no not strong, but stronger. Moral corruption in the earth has not remained static throughout the past century but has multiplied a hundredfold, thus giving this message an even stronger application.

"The highest class of education is that which will give such knowledge and discipline as will lead to the best development of character, and will fit the soul for that life which measures with the life of God. Eternity is not to be lost out of our reckoning. The highest education is that which will teach our children and youth the science of Christianity, which will give them an experimental knowledge of God's ways, and will impart to them the lessons that Christ gave to His disciples, of the paternal character of God..."

Scholastic Excellence In Our Schools

by Jim Eiseman,
*Director of Education,
Man.-Sask. Conference*

Educationally speaking, the youth in the church schools of the Manitoba-Saskatchewan Conference are doing tremendously well on the Canadian Tests of Basic Skills. Grades 3 through 8 were given their annual CTBS tests and I feel that it is time to do a little bragging.

This should be further evidence that our church schools are educating as well as and even better than the public school system. I believe the same principles hold true for us today as they did for Daniel and his companions.

Compared to the national norms across Canada where the average is on the 50 percentile range, the church school young people of the Manitoba-

Saskatchewan Conference are well above that, 77.5%. In order to bring this average up to the 77.5% mark, some individual grades were well into the 90% level in some of the areas that were being tested.

This is further evidence that should merit strong support of our church school system. Our schools need not take second place to any other school system. The students and teachers in our schools have a right to be proud of what is being accomplished and the accomplishments that are yet to be met.

As the educational director of the Manitoba-Saskatchewan Conference, I am proud of our church schools. I just felt that all the parents and teachers of our church school youth would like to join me in a great big, "CONGRATULATIONS!" When you greet our young people, recognize them for what they have done and then wish them well. They are the future leaders of this church!

MY MOTHER

God created larks that sing,
The ocean's roar, the sun dog's ring,
A daisy's smile and mountains tall;
Created He, both great and small.

Many wonders God has wrought
And countless truths His voice has taught.
One work alone, above all other,
Stands forth in beauty—it is MOTHER.

God took the rainbow, sunset's hue,
A fragrant flower, morning dew;
And from this work of art He made,
A mother's love that cannot fade.

Now in this world of sin and death,
There stirs a God-inspired breath,
A recreation by our Brother—
Salvation cometh from no other.

God plants hope and peace and joy,
And happiness without alloy,
When boys and girls upon His knee,
Hear Jesus say, "Come unto Me."

As now I pause, my love to give,
My praise to sing, my hopes to live,
I thank my Lord, Creator, Brother,
For His dear gift, my loving MOTHER.

I know in truth, though I be small
That Christ, the child, wrapped in a shawl,
(Most precious gift that God could give)
His Mother shared, that I might live.

Of all our words the most sublime,
MOTHER stands the test of time.
I thank you on this special day,
For teaching Truth, the Light, the Way.

—Malcolm S. Graham

The Challenge

The developing countries—the so-called Third and Fourth Worlds—number more than 100. About 70 of them are comparatively new nations, having gained independence since 1950. The developing countries contain three billion of the world's four billion people.

A few statistics portray what "life" is like for these three billion:

- *From 400 to 500 million of them suffer from malnutrition.
- *The average per capita income for over a billion is about $150 a year, an amount earned by a typical American in less than a week. In some countries, per capita income is as low as $80 — $90 a year.
- *More than half have never been to school.
- *One out of five children will not live to reach the age of five.
- *Millions have no access to even the most rudimentary health services.
- *Life expectancy is 52 years compared to 71 years in the U.S.

Seventh-day Adventist World Service (SAWS) is responding to the challenge. Coordinating its efforts with the World Divisions, Unions and Conferences, SAWS seeks to aid the underprivileged in terms of their immediate needs and to develop on-going programs that will assist them in their needs and development as individuals and as communities.

Space does not permit a complete review of all SAWS activities for the year ending December 31, 1977 during which 32 countries received a total of $6,000,000 in cash and kind that included food, clothing, medicines and equipment. The North American Division received $45,404.39 to assist local Community Service efforts during such disasters as the Johnstown flood, the Kansas City flood, and the Teton Dam disaster to mention a few.

The large scale relief programs just enumerated are made possible through the generosity of our people when the Famine & Disaster Relief Offering is received in churches around the world. This offering is the bread & butter of SAWS, without which it would not be possible to contact other donors, individuals, companies and international organizations such as the Agency for International Development whose gifts in grants and kind make possible an expanded ministry of mercy.

As Christians, our mandate is clear: "First, meet the temporal necessities of the needy, and relieve their physical wants and suffering, and you will find an open avenue to the heart where you may plant the good seeds of virtue and religion." Testimonies, vol. 4, p. 227.

SAWS has prepared a full report of its activities in the SAWS Reporter which is distributed in all the churches. If you have not already received a copy, you may request one from your church Lay Activities leader.

Won't you respond to the challenge? Please be liberal when the Disaster & Famine Relief Offering is received on May 13.

| | THE CHALLENGE | SAWS' RESPONSE |
|-------|---|--|
| SAHEL | Recent droughts in the Sahel Region of W. Africa that cost 100,000 lives. | An irrigation project in Chad that will provide agricultural self-sufficiency to 300 families. |
| HAITI | Severe drought and under-developed conditions. | $25,000 immediate aid for food-stuffs. SAWS has begun an on-going program that will include Food for Work projects, school-feeding and maternal-child care. The number of beneficiaries will be 60,000. |

Health Ministry — Babies Are Human Too

G. D. Strunk, Director Adventist Health Ministries

Many babies are fed too much, too often and irregularly. They characteristically have big stomachs, and big rings under their eyes. They are so tired and nervously fretful that parents are glad to put them to sleep so that they can enjoy some peace and quiet.

"But isn't that just part of being a baby?" It has come as a welcome surprise to many to learn that their babies can be sweet, alert and responsive, yet quiet and happy. What made the difference?

The warning is sounded that, "Those who eat late night suppers are digging their graves with their teeth". It is not the time of day as much as it is sleeping after eating, or eating before sleeping that is being condemned.

"The stomach, when we lie down to rest, should have its work all done, that it may enjoy rest, as well as other portions of the body. The work of digestion should not be carried on through any period of the sleeping hours." Counsels on Diet and Foods p. 175.

However, tradition has implied that babies follow a different set of rules. First we feed the baby, then we lay it down for a nap. It is true that during the first few days of infancy a baby follows an eat-and-sleep demand schedule but within a very short time the baby who is put to sleep after eating or put to sleep by eating sleeps feverishly with excessive perspiration, sleeps long with a partial drug-effect. It awakens with a stuffy nose, confused brain, and often with a frightened reaction, and a peevish disposition.

While no fixed rule can be made for every baby let me suggest the following simple solution to the problem for most babies. If breakfast is between 7:00 and 8:00 a.m., keep the baby awake until 11:00 or 11:30 a.m. The breakfast meal will have left the stomach so that the stomach is ready to rest along with the rest of the body. Lay the baby down for a sweet sleep until it awakes naturally, usually within one and a half to two hours. The child will not sleep nearly as long when sleeping on an empty stomach but will sleep much more effectively. When the infant awakens it will then be rested and refreshed, ready for its second meal. Then let the child play through the afternoon. It will have more energy, but of the quiet kind rather than being "hyper".

After a light evening meal at about 5:00 or 6:00 p.m. the child will still have energy to play and be with the family rather than being put immediately to bed. Bedtime can be much later in the evening on this schedule than when being napped on a full stomach in the afternoon.

As the child grows older it can be observed that the third meal of the day, especially if it is a heavy vegetable meal, is more tiring than reviving. Within an hour after eating the child is fatigued and irritable. A third meal is doing more harm than good. The majority of children would enjoy better health, a happier disposition and more of the right kind of energy rather than just nervous energy, and would require less sleep if they were on two meals a day. Counsels on Diet and Foods pp. 226-231.

A convenient interval that many families have chosen for our society is 6:30 for breakfast and 12:30 for dinner or 7:00 a.m. and 2:00 or 3:00 p.m. It depends on the individual's system and schedule. The big question that usually arises is, "At what age should we change to two meals a day?"

"The term properly called infancy, requires several changes as to the periods of taking food. Before birth it is receiving nourishment constantly, and the changes from this to the establishment of only two meals a day, which may, in most children, be done from the ages of one to three years, must be gradual." Review and Herald Vol. 31, No. 18, p. 284.

This young age surprises most because we are so accustomed to thinking that children must eat more frequently than adults.

"Infants have been greatly abused by improper treatment. If it was fretful, it has generally been fed to keep it quiet when, in most cases, the very reason of its fretfulness was because of its having received too much food, made injurious by the wrong habits of the mother. More food only made the matter worse, for its stomach was already overloaded." Counsels on Diet and Foods p. 228.

"Children are also fed too frequently, which produces feverishness and suffering in various ways. The stomach should not be kept constantly at work, but should have its periods of rest. Without it children will be peevish and irritable and frequently sick." Counsels on Diet and Foods p. 229.

Every mother and father is grateful for a sweet-tempered child. Every child is grateful for the opportunity to be such. Applying these laws given to us by our Creator will give them another advantage in becoming a Daniel in these last days.

Christians Are Not Sitting on Hollow Eggs!

An ostrich in South Africa has been sitting on an egg for five years, hoping it will hatch. She does not know that the egg is hollow.

Many people say that the Christian hope in the second coming of Christ is just a hollow egg—but it isn't! It is as sure and certain as the promises of God. It is just the message our poor world needs right now.

Signs will bring a message of certainty for this uncertain age all through the new subscription year.

The Certainty of the Second Coming. The Certainty of the New Birth. The Certainty of the Prophecies. The Certainty of Creation. The Certainty of the Advent Faith. The Certainty of Life in Christ.

In this uncertain age, when so many flounder in perplexity, without a star to steer by nor an anchor to hold their troubled souls, we believe the message of hope and confidence and certainty that the Signs will bring will attract their attention and draw them to Christ.

Jesus promised to pour out His Spirit upon all flesh, and the more so as the day of His coming draws near. We are living in the times He spoke about, the days immediately before the close. Jesus is coming soon. His Spirit is being poured out. Gospel seed sown now will produce a rich harvest. Let's reach out, build up and gather in abundantly with the new, affordable Signs of The Times. Just $3.30 for a full subscription.

Let's send out twice as many this year at this new, low, affordable price.

Brother Park has a lovely family and expressed to me that his children pray for his success in the Literature Ministry. As he prepared to work on Good Friday, his family came together in prayer and asked God's special blessing upon him as he ministered to the needs of others through the printed page. God blessed Brother Park's efforts by selling over $1,000 on that day. This gave him a total of over $2,500 for the week and a grand total of over $7,000 for the month. This made Brother Park the top Literature Evangelist in sales for the month of March and qualified him to receive a new C.B. Radio.

Since winning souls is the real goal, Brother Park has been especially blessed in this area. There have been at least 15 precious souls garnered into the church because of his contacts in the Toronto area. We thank the Lord for faithful Literature Evangelists like Brother Park and we pray for his continued success as well as the many others on our faithful team of Literature Evangelists here in Ontario.

Penticton Church News

In January, the Penticton Church had a booth at Cherry Lane Mall for a week. Different members manned it from 9:00 a.m. until Mall closing time. Many pieces of literature on the evils of nicotine and on healthful nutrition were given out.

The first of the Five-Day Plans to Stop Smoking scheduled for this year was held in February at the Adventist Community Services Centre. The Centre was remodeled just for such purposes last Spring.

Mr. Wayne Shankel, the church temperance leader, and city hospital's respiratory technologist, conducted the session.

Jeiders Celebrate Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Jeider of Winfield, B.C. celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on February 19, 1978. They immigrated to Canada in 1953 from Belgrade, Yugoslavia. They lived in Falkland, B.C. for a while, and then moved on to Williams Lake, where Mr. Jeider worked for the Jacobson Bros. for nine years. They built their retirement home in the beautiful Okanagan Valley, and are faithful members of the Winfield S.D.A. Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Jeider

The Jeiders have three children: Maria (Beneduik) of Williams Lake, John of Rutland, and Bruno of Vancouver. They have four grandchildren.

To celebrate this happy occasion their three children hosted an open house for neighbors, friends and local church members, at the couples' home. Refreshments were served, and the three-tiered anniversary cake was made and beautifully decorated by their daughter, Maria.

An enjoyable time was had by all in attendance, with the Jeiders receiving many wishes for continued health and happiness, including messages from Prime Minister Trudeau, and Premier Bennett of British Columbia.

What's With B.C. Evangelism?

The most important work of the church is not the brick and mortar but the outreach of its great truths. We have a fantastically uplifting and encouraging message to bring to the people in our part of the world. People need peace, hope, courage, health, knowledge of the times and victory. We can provide this and what a joy and privilege to do so!
