Waldorf Church Dedicated

An overflow crowd of members, friends, and visitors added joy and enthusiasm to the weekend dedication services of the Waldorf, Maryland, church July 22 and 23—an event the members had labored long and diligently to bring about.

The dedication address was given by Elder George Woodruff, Chesapeake Conference president. The pastor, Elder C. M. Bee, and former pastors, Elders James Brown and Keith Hassinger, also participated. James Dent, county commissioner, spoke in commendation of the church. Robert Cary, local elder, gave the history.

At a special Friday night consecration service, Elder Bruce Hinckley, a former pastor, spoke and Elder Howard Bankes, also a former pastor, had a special prayer for the church and its work in this area. At Sabbath school the lesson was taught by Elder H. D. Morgan, another former pastor who lives in Pittsburgh. Elder Gene Cherry, conference communication and stewardship director, preached at the worship hour.

A feature of the church plant is the versatile youth hall, which has recently been completely redecorated. It is a separate building and once served as the sanctuary while the church was being built.

The Waldorf church is situated on a large area on Berry Highway just west of downtown. An appropriate sign easily identifies the church to the large number of people who pass by daily. Special care is given to the appearance of the church and grounds so that it may properly represent the message of salvation through Jesus Christ.

Bee, although technically retired, has led the Waldorf congregation to the completion of the building program and the church dedication. Center right, The burning of the mortgage was a symbol of a debt-free church to be dedicated to the Lord. Elders Dale Beaulieu, C. M. Bee, and Bruce Hinckley took their task seriously. Bottom left, Robert Cary gave a history of the struggles of the congregation to build a church. Center left, Elder George Woodruff gave the dedicatory address.

The John Palmers Honored On Sixtieth Anniversary

During a recent Sabbath service, Pastor Terry Dodge presented Mr. and Mrs. John A. Palmer a potted fern in honor of their sixtieth wedding anniversary. The Palmers attend the Martinsburg, West Virginia, church regularly. Mr. Palmer still maintains his truck garden of strawberries, raspberries, and vegetables, while Mrs. Palmer keeps the house and does the canning. Their home was blessed with five children. May God continue to give them good health and may He grant them their wish of living to see Him come.

Jewish Group Forms to Win Jews, as Well as Gentiles

"The Patuxent and Prince Frederick churches were blessed as they listened to an interdenominational Christian Jewish group called B'Nai Yeshua, or The Psalms of David, sing praises to their Lord, Jesus Christ," stated Pastor Richard Duke.

For many months, the ministry of B'Nai Yeshua, with Mike Evans, has sought the face of God concerning a new outreach. This gave rise to a new music-and-drama group called The Psalms of David. The group is composed of youth from various backgrounds. Their aim is to present the reality of the risen Messiah to the Jew first, and also to the Gentile.

They present the good news that Jewish people can believe in Yeshua Ha'Mashiach (Jesus the Messiah) as their Saviour and still retain their Jewish identity. And they present to Gentile congregations the vision and need for Jewish evangelism in a way that will appeal to Jewish people.

At all times these young people seek to reach all, both Jew and Gentile, who lack a knowledge of Jesus the Messiah.

The Psalms of David will appear on television, in convention centers, rallies, colleges, and churches across the nation. In the cities of our land, they present the Messiah in the medium of street drama. In gatherings, the group presents a program of Jewish orientation. The group also performs short plays showing a "Jewish" Messiah. The music is predominantly Hebraic in flavor. The lyrics are in both Hebrew and English. The Psalms of David glorify Yeshua as did the ancient psalmists of Israel.

WASHINGTON ADVENTIST HOSPITAL

Social Security Officials Hosted for Orientation

Officials of the Federal Social Security program's Baltimore headquarters met June 20 and 21 at Washington Adventist Hospital for a two-day orientation to learn, as one official said, "how a real hospital is run."

The officials, many of whom operate parts of the Federal Medicare program, wanted to get a better background for their work with hospitals throughout the country.

The program, coordinated by WAH's Mack Rucker, assistant administrator, and Melinda Howes, public relations officer, included meetings with finance officers, physicians, nurses, department heads, educators, and others. A special feature was a three-hour tour of the WAH facility.

The officials expressed appreciation of the program and had special praise for the WAH facility, its staff, and its operation.

Clean Air Award Given For Stop-Smoking Activity

Washington Adventist Hospital's stop-smoking activities have been honored by the Lung Association of Mid-Maryland.

The association presented WAH with a "Clean Air Award" on June 29 at an awards luncheon.

The award commended WAH for its efforts in "improving the quality of life by working for cleaner air."

WAH physicians also have been active in promoting legislation aimed at requiring restricted smoking areas in public and health facilities.

Named for special commendation on the award were J. Donald Mashburn, M.D., longtime lecturer on the effects of smoking on health, and director of the WAH Department of Laboratories and Pathology; Joseph Mizgerd, M.D., director of the Department of Pulmonary Medicine; Alfred Munzer, M.D., associate director, Department of Pulmonary Medicine; and A. C. Marple, for 15 years the director of the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking.

The Columbia Union Conference is now engaged in a search-and-decision procedure that will recommend the future of Columbia Union College. The 64,000 members of this union and those who use the college will make the decision after input and presentation of full information at a constituency session. Thus far a number of things have happened that led to this voting procedure:

On June 2 the Columbia Union College Board and the Columbia Union Conference Executive Committee, plus some 30 persons from the community surrounding the college, met at the union office. Nearly six hours were spent in a group-dynamics procedure in which many addressed themselves to the most crucial and basic issues regarding the future of the college. The results of the day's work were then studied by a special committee. Elder Donald Reynolds, president of the Ohio Conference, chaired that committee. From this work five ad hoc committees were set up and a procedure to follow was suggested.

On June 29 the union conference committee adopted this procedure. It consists of research at various stages ending in an October 30 meeting of the Columbia Union Conference constituency. This meeting will be held in the Harrisburg Seventh-day Adventist church on Sunday, October 30, at 10:00 a.m. Each conference will select its delegation in harmony with the constitution of the Columbia Union Conference.

The first part of the search procedure involves a survey questionnaire. This ran as the center spread in the July 28 issue of the Visitor. Its results will be tabulated and made available to all committee chairmen.

Two sets of committees have been formed. The first set, consisting of five, is known as ad hoc committees. By August 12 these committees will render reports to the chairmen of the second set of committees, four in number, called option committees. These committees are dedicated to searching out various options for the college: a committee to study the development of the present site; another to study the development of a rural campus; a third to study the merging of our college with another Adventist college; and, finally, a committee to study the possibility of a specialty college such as a junior college that specializes in paramedical or vocational arts, et cetera. Reports of the option committees will be presented to the constituents at the October 30 meeting. Some 57 different individuals are involved in these committees. A central coordinating committee composed of the officers of the Columbia Union Conference and the officers of Columbia Union College is functioning now.

If you have any input for these committees or if you desire to send data to the chairmen, you may send it in care of the union office and it will be forwarded immediately.

Let us pray earnestly that the Lord's special blessing will be with the work of considering the future of our college. Columbia Union College has served this field for many years and has produced a great circle of workers throughout the world. Surely the finishing of God's work can only be enhanced as we strengthen Columbia Union College in every possible way.

Camp Meeting Was a Wonderful Feast

The members of New Jersey came to camp meeting June 24 looking and praying for a spiritual blessing, and they left July 2, praising God for the wonderful spiritual feast.

Each day was begun with Carl Coffman, from the religion department of Andrews University, guiding the campers' thoughts to better understand Christ's righteousness and the privileges and results it brings.

Joe Crews, director of Amazing Facts, held an evangelistic service each night, thrilling the group with straightforward Adventist doctrines.

James Brighton, field naturalist and lecturer, led some of the people into a better understanding of the book of nature, while Rose Stoia, dietitian from Kettering Medical Center, emphasized how to feed the body.

Camp was different this year, however. There were no large tents and only a few family tents, because all of New Jersey camp equipment was destroyed by fire. The new building, 41 cabins, and borrowed tents provided part of the housing. The storage-meeting building provided adequate places for senior and junior youth meetings. Although not completed, these buildings were appreciated by all. The primary division met in the junior camp pavilion, which had been closed in, and the cradle roll and kindergarten met in the academy's larger classrooms.

Camp meeting for 1977 ended with many Sabbath blessings. W. B. Quigley, president of Columbia Union, challenged the overflowing congregation with the need to work for people. Seven were baptized in the portable baptismal pool. The people went home inspired to serve their Lord.

Dr. Richard Neal, M.D., M.P.H., new health-temperance director, explains the health program he plans for the conference.

Elder Abner Ramos baptizes his son, Aldo, during the camp meeting session.

GM Gives Firebird for Automotive Shop

A 1977 Firebird was given to the industrial arts department of Garden State Academy by the Pontiac Division of General Motors Corporation. The Vey Motor Company, of Hackettstown, which has supplied the driver-education car to the school for more than ten years, arranged for the gift. Arthur Loignon, department head, says the car had been damaged while it was being unloaded from a car carrier. The car will be used for educational purposes in the automotive shop.

The kindergarten department was decorated to represent heaven, where the lion and the lamb will play together and no one will be harmed.

Mrs. Barbara Smith helps this set of twins with a song exercise in the kindergarten department.

Waynesboro Evangelism Wins 15, Others Coming

The Waynesboro, Virginia, church worked hard to prepare for a good series of meetings. Seventeen Bible studies were in progress when the meetings began, representing 42 people personally reached with the full gospel by both laymen and the pastor, Vel Kotter. During the year prior to the series, a cooking school, Five-Day Plan, health seminar, Vacation Bible School, and day camp were conducted by the church. An invitation was sent to each attendee, as well as to every individual in the city. Four months prior to the meetings, the ladies of the church had been invited to gather with the pastor's wife each Monday evening for prayer. Names of people receiving studies were given to each lady to pray for daily. Some of these women accompanied their husbands in giving Bible studies or in paying friendly visits to homes of interested ones. To date, 15 persons have been baptized, and others are preparing for baptism. Three of these newly baptized members are husbands of current members. The ladies of the church are convinced that united, intercessory prayer really works. Pictured above are some of those baptized. Left to right, front row: Roger Roberts, Mark Buckingham, Adrian Neeper, Wardell Hewitt, and R. B. Hewitt. Back row: Lee and Ruby Coffey, Mike Buckingham, Douglas Rice, Cassie Miller, Pastor Vel Kotter, Margaret Shaffner, William Nicely, and Edwin Taliaferro.

Andrews School 4th-Graders Study Health

Rayburn Smith, the new conference-wide associate publishing department director and leader of the student program, also came from Arkansas-Louisiana where he was a district leader. The Smiths have been in Potomac several months. His wife, Sherry, is a housewife, and daughters Jacqueline and Charmine attend C. F. Richards School in Staunton.

Publishing district leadership changes became necessary when the Valley leader, Paul Koliadko, became the publishing department director for the Mountain View Conference. Roy Washinger transferred to the Valley and was replaced in the northern Virginia district by literature evangelist Ron Johnson. Johnson has canvassed since 1972, working in Newport News, Hampton, and Manassas. Both the Johnsons are native Virginians. His wife is the former Rosa Ann White, and they have three children; Glen, age 10, Tommy 8, and Dawn 6. Ron was introduced to Adventism by a fellow worker in the shipbuilding yards in Newport News. God continues to bless his ministry and that of the total literature team in Potomac. It's a team God may be calling on you to join!

Tom Dybdahl Wins $500 Insight Grand Prize

Tom Dybdahl of Silver Spring, Maryland, wrote "Mission Story," the $500 grand prize winning story in Insight's 1977 writing contest. Dybdahl is a press aid on the congressional staff of Representative Ned Pattison, Democrat from New York.

News Notes

● Potomac evangelism is moving ahead full steam during a very hot summer. Paul Johnson is concluding a series at the Powell Valley church in southwest Virginia, and Lyle Albrecht is preaching through September 17 at the Northwood School, 919 University Boulevard, in the Washington, D.C., area, in an Andrews University Field School of Evangelism sponsored by the Takoma Park, Maryland, church.

● The number of churches with newsletters is growing. Max Hill has inaugurated the "Church Spire" at New Market, and at Silver Spring the "Dove" has become the "Newsletter" with the familiar dove flying on the masthead. The communication departments of a dozen churches are producing newsletters.

● Brazilians in the Washington metropolitan area, many of whom speak Portuguese, have been meeting on Sabbaths for several months. They are exploring the possibilities of beginning a Portuguese church. A large number of Brazilians have been attending the Sanitarium church. Elders Leo Ranzolin and M. S. Nigri from the General Conference are rallying their fellow countrymen in an effort to reach the many Brazilian people in and around the nation's capital.

● More than 200 campers crowded Junior Camp III at Camp Blue Ridge, July 17-24. Director Norm Middag and his associate, Jim Pleasants, are hunting ways to stretch the summer to allow for four weeks of junior camps to accommodate the ever-growing number of campers who attend Camp Blue Ridge and Hickory Cove Aquatic Camp.

● Dan Knauff, pastor of the Manassas and Warrenton churches, is saturating his district with eight-page-tabloid newsprint brochures. The first issue "The Crucifixion Story" offers a free copy of The Desire of Ages and a second brochure on the Flood. Cris Martin and Glen Emerson assisted in production and graphics in what is proving to be a unique witnessing project.

Warren Zork Joins Sligo's Pastoral Staff

The newest member of the Sligo pastoral staff is Warren Zork who has been associate pastor of the college church at Atlantic Union College since 1973. Prior service included one year teaching Bible at South Lancaster Academy, ten years as a departmental director in the Zambesi Union Mission, and eight years operating mission stations in Rhodesia. The Zorks began their ministry in the Missouri Conference. He graduated from Union College in 1951 and received his M.A. degree in religious education at Andrews in 1966. His wife, the former Shirley Ann Davis, received her B.S. degree in nursing at Union College in 1952 and is presently working on an M.A. degree in nursing education. They have four children. Douglas and Lesley are college students, Stephen teaches choir and band at Maplewood Academy in Hutchinson, Minnesota, and Mark is an academy student. The family as pictured, are, from the left: Mark; Lesley; Elder Warren Zork; his wife, Shirley; Stephen; Stephen's wife, Susan; and Douglas.

Camp Meeting Brought Large Crowds and Bountiful Blessings

Bigger-than-usual crowds and bountiful blessings marked the 1977 Potomac camp meeting.

The big tent was full for the ordination service on the opening Friday night. Mel Rees's stewardship class needed extra chairs, and nearly everyone returned from dinner for the second Sabbath afternoon services and stayed clear through the educational hour and musical concert.

Blessings are more important than crowds and they were in abundant supply. From the early-morning devotions with Paul Heubach through the nightly preaching of John Loor, God's people experienced nine days of spiritual enrichment. Good health was cared for with early-morning jogging and Dr. U. D. Register's nutrition series.

The youth were inspired by Dr. Floyd Murdoch, Gary Patterson, and Benji Leach, among others, and still found time for lots of hiking, swimming, and ball games. Youth leaders reported up to 50 percent increase in attendance in the divisions.

God's people responded liberally for evangelism. Kenneth Mittleider reported over $25,000 in cash and commitments.

Camp Meeting Witnessing Reaches More Than 2,500

More than 2,500 area homes were visited during the Potomac camp meeting. Joe Hagan (right), pastor of the Buena Vista-Covington district, organized the witnessing project. Woodbridge member Lyle Beaty (left) is shown extending an invitation to visit the big tent to Harley Cook, whose father was a self-supporting Adventist-Sabbath preacher in the early 20's. Both men were surprised when they discovered that the traveling-minister Cook family had lived for a time in the Beaty home in Front Royal some 43 years ago. Mr. Cook said, "The Seventh-day Adventist Church is the only right church today."

PAROCHIAL PREROGATIVE PREVAILS

If teachers in religious schools form labor unions, the United States government can't help them organize, says a Philadelphia federal district court judge.

The National Labor Relations Board has been trying to aid 2,300 lay teachers in Roman Catholic schools in the Philadelphia archdiocese in their efforts to unionize the teaching force. The archdiocese and several Catholic pastors filed suit to restrain the NLRB, asserting that its participation would threaten the separation of church and state and the free exercise of religion.

United States District Judge Donald W. VanArtsdalen's ruling does not bar union membership by teachers, according to William Ball, attorney for the Catholic pastors. Ball noted that there are teachers' unions in several Catholic schools, and pointed out that Judge VanArtsdalen's decision forbids only governmental meddling in the matter.

According to Attorney Ball, if the government could supervise the unionization of teachers, government would be "the arbiter of everything that takes place within a religious school, including the curriculum."

Ball called the ruling "an excellent decision from the point of view of religious liberty, over-regulation by government of voluntary efforts, and legal scholarship."

Youth Repair Home of Family in Hamburg

The youth attending the Pennsylvania camp meeting decided that Christianity should be expressed in actions as well as in words. So they spent two days repairing and repainting the home of a family in Hamburg. The mayor of Hamburg, Robert J. Dalious, presented three homes from which the youth selected the home of an elderly couple, located at 238 S. 4th Street. The neighbors were impressed with the willingness of the youth to work, as were the occupants of the home. In fact, the owner attended camp meeting on Sabbath and publicly expressed his appreciation during an interview with Conference President William Loveless.

Mark and Eulita Heisey join the staff of the Reading Kenhorst and Ephrata churches, where Mark will be pastoral intern.

Mark Heisey Interns at Kenhorst and Ephrata

Mark A. Heisey, a Pennsylvania native, is the conference's newest pastor. Mark and his wife, Eulita Wyatt Heisey, are interning at the Reading Kenhorst Boulevard and Ephrata churches.

A graduate of Blue Mountain Academy, Mark finished Southern Missionary College in 1977, with a B.A. degree in theology and minors in Biblical languages and applied theology.

From 1972 to 1976 he worked for the Pennsylvania Conference as a student literature evangelist.

Mrs. Heisey is a native of Florida. She met Mark while attending Newbold College, in England. She holds a B.S. degree in elementary education from Southern Missionary College, received in 1976.

We welcome Mark home, and extend a warm greeting to his Southern wife.

GENERAL NEWS

The D. J. Russell family joins union staff.

D. J. Russell Is the New Union Treasurer

Donald J. Russell has been elected treasurer of the Columbia Union Conference. He replaces Dale Beaulieu, who has gone to Riverside, California, to be treasurer of the South-eastern California Conference in the Pacific Union.

Russell comes from the Southern New England Conference where he served as treasurer for the past ten years and as assistant treasurer for one year prior to that. From 1952-1956 he was accountant and export sales manager of ESDA Sales with offices in Washington, D.C. He worked as assistant manager of the General Conference Mission Board in New York City from 1956-1963, began his work in the Greater New York Conference in 1963 as assistant treasurer, and joined the Southern New England Conference in 1966.

He and his wife, Elsie (Reeder), have four children. Richard, 19, is a junior in college. Kathy, 17, expects to complete her academy training this school year. Gerald, 14, is an academy freshman. And Donald, Jr., 11, is a fifth-grader.

Russell plans to be in the office here in September, after Labor Day. We welcome him and his family to the challenges and joys that come with his new responsibility, and to the love and fellowship of the great Columbia Union office family.

Virginia Churches May Owe Thousands of Tax Dollars

The enforcement of a state tax law means that churches and other non-profit organizations in Virginia owe thousands of dollars in back taxes. Retroactive to 1970, the tax law stipulates that any organization or individual must voluntarily pay a 4 percent tax on any product purchased from outside Virginia. Until now, no attempt was made to collect the tax from churches and other nonprofit groups—a practice the Virginia State Sales and Use Tax Division is changing.

Amendment Offered to Strengthen Civil Rights Act

A Roman Catholic priest who serves in Congress is pressing for new legislation that would guarantee job security for those who cannot work on Saturday because of religious convictions. Representative Robert Drinan, of Massachusetts, has introduced an amendment to a 1972 provision of the Civil Rights Act that would make it more difficult for employers to discriminate on the basis of religion. The need for the stronger measure comes as a result of recent Supreme Court rulings upholding dismissals of employees who refused to work on Sabbath.

Baasch and Wood Ordained in Camp Meeting Ceremony

More than 2,000 camp meeting goers observed the ordination of Harold D. Baasch and James W. Wood, Jr., when they received the sacred rite Friday evening, June 17, at Mount Vernon, Ohio. The solemn service marked the opening of Ohio's annual Bible conference on the academy campus. Born of missionary parents in Mayaguez, Puerto Rico, Baasch spent most of his early life outside the United States. With Spanish as his second language, he felt at home in both Colombia and Mexico, where he also lived. Baasch is a graduate of Columbia Union College. He earned a Master of Divinity degree from Andrews, where he served as chief announcer and religion editor for the university's radio station WAUS-FM. He is married to the former Evonne Lindquist. Wood, a native of Binghamton, New York, received the Bachelor of Theology degree from Pacific Union College. His ministry has covered a wide area as pastor-teacher in Alaska, and literature sales director in the Central African Union and the Zaire Union. He was associate sales director in Pennsylvania before coming to his present position last November. Wood is married to the former Linda Becraft, of Santa Rosa, California. They have two children, Tamara Sue, 9, and Karen Lyn, 8.

your denomination to spread as much information as you can to help people find the Lord Jesus Christ." This was one of the most significant statements made by Paul "Pat" Patterson, president and general manager of WCVO (Christian Voice of Ohio) radio station, as he spoke with H. M. S. Richards, Jr., on the air for a little more than an hour on June 24. Pastor Richards was interviewed on the interview and call-in program "Everybody's Talking," at 1:30 p.m., not long after he arrived at Port Columbus with the King's Herald for the last weekend of the Ohio camp meeting in Mount Vernon. The mike was opened to the public toward the end of the program, which ran overtime because of the calls.

Pastor Richards, who is heard over WCVO Monday through Friday at 11:00-11:15 a.m. and Sundays at 10:00-10:30 a.m., was warmly greeted by Patterson and the station staff. They expressed in many ways their appreciation of his visit, the Voice of Prophecy, and how much they thought of him and his father.

During the broadcast Patterson asked Pastor Richards to explore the basic tenets of his denomination. For five minutes Pastor Richards gave a beautiful explanation of several of the primary beliefs of the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Patterson mentioned to the listeners that it was a red-letter day on their calendar because Pastor Richards would be able to personally dedicate on the air the 30,000 watt, 2,000 pound, diesel engine generator that was donated to the station by the Voice of Prophecy and his denomination. The station does not sell air time, but accepts predetermined contributions instead. The VOP broadcast is supported on WCVO by the VOP, the Ohio Conference, and the Columbus Eastwood, Grove City, Reynoldsburg, and Worthington churches.

Personal Concern Brings Help to a New Church

For many years the Long Memorial church was the only Adventist church in the Lima area. Then Elder Harold Cleveland held a series of evangelistic meetings there in 1972, resulting in a nucleus for a new Adventist church for black members—the Gospel Tabernacle.

Patricia Freeman, a member of the Long church, had been impressed to do something for the new church. When her mother passed away, Patricia offered to donate money to the struggling group, with instructions that the funds benefit God's program. This made it possible for the Gospel Tabernacle to purchase a pulpit, clergy seat, and side seats for the platform. These articles were dedicated to the memory of Patricia's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Freeman.

Later, the church members expressed need for a communion table, and Patricia once again lent a helping hand. She held a "bakeless bake sale." Members and friends gave the equivalent in money that it would cost for ingredients for a particular baked product. Enough funds were collected to purchase the communion table.

On the third Sabbath in June, the Gospel Tabernacle held its dedication service. Twelve faithful members continue to give their support. And Patricia Freeman's missionary spirit remains, making this church a matter of personal concern.

Marriage Resembles A Pair of Shears

Al Brendel, a former pastor of the Mount Vernon church, told those attending camp meeting this year that "marriage resembles a pair of shears. The couple are so joined that they cannot be separated, yet often move in opposite directions."

Pastor Brendel and his wife, Betty, who conducted the Marriage Enrichment Seminar during the encampment, also added that this shears-type marriage "always punishes anyone who comes between them."

Brendel, who left Mount Vernon 13 years ago to be head chaplain at Kettering Medical Center, said, "Marriage does not demand perfection, but it must be given priority. It should be an exciting and joyful experience. In short, a total commitment of the total person for the total life."

The classes, which met twice daily, were intended to make good marriage relationships better.

MOUNT VERNON ACADEMY

1977-1978 School Year Begins September 4

Mount Vernon Academy opens its doors for the 1977-1978 school year with registration on September 4. Classes begin September 5.

Four new staff members will join MVA. Alice Coit will assume the responsibilities of food service director. Jim Ball will become the guidance counselor and teach upper-division Bible. Ron Jensen will be teaching music and direct the band. And Russell Page will teach Spanish, Bible, and history.

Approximately 50 students have been on campus during the summer, working at the various industries to help defray the cost of their education. Sonny Vance, acting manager of City Laundry, says there are still openings for 16-year-old workers, and students who have not yet applied to attend MVA may still do so.

A full schedule is planned for the coming year, and a fine group of young people have already applied and been accepted. G. E. Smith, principal, urges all parents to seriously consider Christian education for their son or daughter.

Our own schools provide the association, education, and religious experience that our youth need. While we all realize that Christian education costs, can we afford not to make the investment for eternity? Our youth are worth every effort and sacrifice we can possibly make. Why not make a call today and find out how your son or daughter can be among those in the registration lines at MVA on September 4. Work opportunities are available. Call today: (614) 397-5411.

HOURLY OF PRAYER

ANSWER TO PRAYER

☐ I could not use my left hand when I wrote requesting prayer. God has heard and answered your prayers in my behalf.—New Jersey.

PRAYER REQUESTS

Florida

☐ I need divine guidance in an important decision and in my relationship with former family members.

Maryland

☐ My husband seems to be straying from the Lord and the church. Pray for him, and that I may be a loving wife, and for the children.

☐ I am writing to ask that you pray for my children and for my health.

☐ Pray for my health, for spiritual and financial blessings, and that my husband will find a better job.

☐ Please pray that my marriage will be saved and that my husband will come back to church.

New Jersey

☐ Pray that I may be forgiven of all sins, for my home life, and that I will get a good job.

Ohio

☐ I have crippling arthritis. Pray that I may be healed so I may do the Lord's work.

☐ X-rays show something on my right lung. I need your prayers that it will be nothing serious.

☐ Pray for my daughter and her family. Her husband has a bad temper. Pray that love may abide in their home.

☐ Pray that we will collect money that we loaned when it was desperately needed, for a daughter in the hospital, and for our health.

☐ My husband is away from home and ill. Pray for him, for me, and for my grandson.

☐ Pray that I may find a job suitable for me, and for my health and family problems.

Pennsylvania

☐ Pray for my husband's health, and that he will stop drinking.

☐ Pray that I will grow stronger in the Lord, be a worthy witness, and find a Christian companion.

☐ Pray that the Holy Spirit will touch my husband's life, that he will join the church, and also that I will be a stronger Christian.

☐ I need a job to support my family.

☐ I have been ill and the physicians can't determine the cause. Pray also that my husband will accept the truth.

☐ Please pray for my whole family.

☐ I need a forgiving heart, and am very sensitive and painfully shy. Pray also for a son.

☐ Pray sincerely for a cousin who is having a difficult time in her marriage and her life.

☐ I need to overcome the malice in my heart.

☐ Pray that I will get a job, and for my children.

☐ My daughter and her children are having a terrible time. They need your prayers.

Virginia

☐ Pray for my family—for their health and for their soul salvation.

☐ Pray that I will be healed and for my family that they will do right and love the Lord.

West Virginia

☐ Pray for my son who is in trouble with the law, and for his family.

PRAYER PROMISE

"Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths." Prov. 3:5, 6.

Send us your prayer promises. Address all requests for prayer to:
Hour of Prayer, 7710 Carroll Avenue, Takoma Park, Maryland 20012.

The Doors Are Open for You

On September 7 students from all over the Columbia Union will enroll at Columbia Union College. Nearly a thousand are anticipated.

On hand to greet and personally welcome the new student body will be the president of the college, Colin Standish, and the new academic dean, Fred Hauck. Dr. Hauck recently served as chairman of the biology department at Atlantic Union College, in Massachusetts. Already students and faculty at CUC are delighted with his presence and counsel.

This fall semester will give freshmen, and all returning students, the grandest opportunity—to settle in and “dig” the books, to climb the ladder of learning that leads to success in theology, nursing, medicine, respiratory therapy, nutrition, education, and many other areas of choice for a lifework.

Teachers and staff cordially await the arrival of each student. They are eager to help YOU—to assist you in your studies, your projects, and your self-growth.

Religious life can be a great plus in your experience on a Christian college campus. So as you join us at CUC for the new year, President Colin Standish welcomes Jim Frost, a theology major, who comes to CUC from Newbold College in England.

Dr. Colin Standish, president, and Dr. Fred Hauck, academic dean, are waiting for you to join them at CUC.

come expecting to find Christ on this campus. He is here. He will never let you down. As a growing Christian, you will find great meaning to life here among hundreds of young friends who are truly seeking Him, as you are. Your mind can reach up and out to God through these friends and the faculty.

In addition, your social life will be filled with exciting and rewarding experiences—to help you grow in another dimension.

Your study life can reach new heights as you press toward your goal, through excellence and persevering hard work and study.

You can play! and laugh! and run! and shout! Yes, cry and climb! You can reach for the stars—and plan, and prepare to make your mark, here at CUC, and for life.
