Abide With Us

"Abide with us, for it is toward evening and the day is far spent."

Abide with us. The early dawn has tinted
Life's morning sky with shades of glory light.
Its pictured scenes in beauty spread before us.
Be thou our guide, — we trust not mortal sight.

Abide with us. Ah! soon will fade the morning,
The noonday heat too soon beat on our way,
Our pathway lead o'er deserts, waste and dreary.
Refresh our souls, O Living Rock, we pray.

Abide with us. When darkening storm-clouds gather
And angry tempests break upon the soul,
Grant then Thy peace. O Master, safely hide us,
Beneath Thy wing, — within Thy safe control.

Abide with us. Ere fall the deeper shadows,
And faltering footsteps seek at last their home,
Light with Thy light the night of death before us,
With radiance, gild the portals of the tomb.

Abide with us. We need Thy sacred presence,
Thy hand to guide us and thy power to save,
Thy voice alone to calm our restless spirits,
Thy glory, light the pathway to the grave.

Guide till at last, the pilgrim journey ended,
We stand triumphant on the other shore,
Robed in thy life, we dwell within thy presence,
And Thou with us, abide forevermore.

M. M. HARE.

Marriage With Unbelievers

Much has been written on the subject of unscriptural marriages between the children of God and the children of the world, yet the practice is still in evidence among us. Counsels that have been given in the past relative to this matter have doubtless saved many of our young people from entering upon a life of marital unhappiness and disappointment, and it is to be hoped that this article may be the means of helping some of the tempted ones who are in danger of going astray in this particular.

The grandest institution on earth is a Christian home in which parents and children are united in the fear of the Lord and the love of his truth. The home is designed by our Heavenly Father to be a citadel of righteousness in the land of the enemy, in which the daily sacrifices of prayer and praise shall ascend to heaven, and from which heavenly influences shall emanate to reach and save the lost. But no young Sabbath-keeper who joins in wedlock with an unbeliever or misbeliever can hope for the happiness of such a home. It will be a house divided against itself—and divided on a most vital point—religion. Upon whatever other question husband and wife may disagree it should never be on the question of religion if they hope for a happy married life.

From the very earliest times the Lord pointed out to his people the dangers of marriage with unbelievers. It was when the sons of God (the godly) intermingled in marriage with the daughters of men (the ungodly) that the last barriers against evil were broken down and the earth became ripe for the flood. When Israel was called out of Egypt to become God's peculiar and chosen people, the following command was given: "Neither shalt thou make marriages with them; thy daughter thou shalt not give unto his son, nor his daughter shalt thou take unto thy son. For they will turn away thy son from following me, that they may serve other gods: so will the anger of the Lord be kindled against you, and destroy thee suddenly." Deut. 7:3, 4. After the return from Babylon this counsel was repeated, "Now therefore give not your daughters unto their sons, neither take their daughters unto your sons. Ezra 9:12." Such a stir was created in Israel at this time over the matter of marriage with unbelievers that it resulted in the complete dissolution of all such alliances. Altogether too many in selecting their life partner give the matter only the consideration that influenced Samson,— "She pleaseth me well,"—and seem to care little how much God may be pleased or displeased with the choice.

Under the gospel dispensation the attitude of the Lord on the question of mixed marriages is unchanged. "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers; for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness? 2 Cor. 6:14. "The wife is bound by the law as long as her husband liveth; but if her husband be dead, she is at liberty to be married to whom she will; only in the Lord." 1 Cor. 7:39. Experience has demonstrated the wisdom of these regulations concerning marriage. A large proportion of those who disregard them sooner or later disobey other commandments and ultimately drift out of the truth. Let those who contemplate uniting in marriage with an unbeliever reflect on what is before them when the time of trouble breaks upon us and those who keep the commandments are compelled to flee to the "munitions of rocks." How will it be then with the wife who has deliberately chosen to unite herself with an unbelieving husband? In most cases she will find herself in the plight of Lot's daughters, who likewise married unbelievers and could not leave Sodom when the warning came, but went down in the ruin of that wicked city.

Occasionally a Sabbath-keeping girl succeeds in winning her unbelieving companion to the truth after her marriage with him. Other young people seeing this conclude that they may be equally successful, and thus the wrong example of one leads others into evil. The instances where unbelieving husbands are won to the truth after their marriage with a Sabbath-keeping young lady are extremely rare—too rare to risk disobeying the plain command of God in order to accomplish it. In many cases the young man will promise faithfully to keep the Sabbath if only the young lady will consent to marry him. The writer has known instances where the man has even "laid off" a few Saturdays to make the deception more complete only to return to work the Sabbath following the marriage. See to it that the one of your choice is a Christian, well settled in his attachment to the truth, and take no chances with either your present happiness or your hope of eternal life.

It is quite natural and perfectly legitimate that young people on reaching maturity should think seriously of marriage. "Marriage is honorable in all." However, altogether too many entertain an unwholesome fear that if they "let too many chances go by" they will become "old bachelors" or "old maids." The writer has had very fair opportunity for observation among our people generally, and it is his conviction that there is as small, if not a smaller proportion of unmarried persons of marriageable age among Seventh-day Adventists as among the world at large. The chances of suitable and scriptural marriage are not necessarily lessened by being a Sabbath-keeper. But all honor to the one who resolutely decides to forego marriage rather than disobey the expressed will of the Lord.

On a western camp ground a letter was read from a lady who had been a Seventh-day Adventist but who married out of the truth and later apostatized. She wrote, "Do not pray for me, I am lost. But pray and work for the young people who are walking in my tracks." If our young people refuse to "keep company" or engage in intimate correspondence with those out of the faith they will be in no danger of becoming entangled in these unholy alliances. It is a grievous sin to encourage young men of the world by these acts, as they are fully justified in interpreting them as encouragement to greater intimacy and further advances. Avoid the path that leads to sin and thus escape the sorrow and disappointment that lies at the end.

No Seventh-day Adventist minister is justified in performing a marriage ceremony for those who choose to walk contrary to the counsel of God in uniting with an unbelieving companion. What God disapproves cannot consistently be approved by his ministers. In a number of instances the writer has been compelled by conscience to refuse his services when intimate friends have called upon him to perform a mixed marriage.

In closing this article a quotation from the Spirit of Prophecy will be in place:—

"The heart yearns for human love, but this love is not strong enough, or pure enough, or precious enough, to supply the place of the love of Jesus. Only in her Saviour can the wife find wisdom, strength, and grace to meet the cares, responsibilities, and sorrows of life. She should make him her strength and her guide. Let woman give herself to Christ before giving herself to any earthly friend, and enter into no relation which shall conflict with this. Those who would find true happiness, must have the blessing of heaven upon all they possess, and all that they do. It is disobedience to God that fills so many hearts and homes with misery. My sister, unless you would have a home where the shadows are never lifted, do not unite yourself with one who is an enemy of God.

"My sister, dare you disregard these plain and positive directions? As a child of God, a subject of Christ's kingdom, the purchase of his blood, how can you connect yourself with one who does not acknowledge his claims, who is not controlled by his Spirit? The commands I have quoted are not the word of man, but of God. Though the companion of your choice were in all other respects worthy (which he is not), yet he has not accepted the truth for this time; he is an unbeliever, and you are forbidden of heaven to unite yourself with him. You cannot, without peril to your soul, disregard this divine injunction.

"I would warn you of your danger before it shall be too late. You listen to smooth, pleasant words, and are led to believe that all will be well; but you do not read the motives that prompt these fair speeches. You cannot see the depths of wickedness hidden in the heart. You cannot look behind the scenes, and discern the snares that Satan is laying for your soul. He would lead you to pursue such a course that he can obtain easy access, to aim his shafts of temptation against you. Do not give him the least advantage. While God moves upon the minds of his servants, Satan works through children of disobedience. There is no concord between Christ and Belial. The two cannot harmonize. To connect with an unbeliever is to place yourself on Satan's ground. You grieve the Spirit of God and forfeit his protection. Can you afford to have such terrible odds against you in fighting the battle of everlasting life?

"You may say, 'But I have given my promise, and how shall I now retract it?' I answer, If you have made a promise contrary to the Scriptures, by all means retract it without delay, and in humility before God repent of the infatuation that led you to make so rash a pledge. Far better take back such a promise, in the fear of God, than keep it, and thereby dishonor your Maker.

"Many who profess to love and fear God choose to follow the bent of their own minds rather than take counsel of Infinite Wisdom. In a matter which vitally concerns the happiness and well-being of both parties, for this world and the next, reason, judgment, and the fear of God are set aside, and blind impulse, stubborn determination, is allowed to control. Men and women who are otherwise sensible and conscientious close their ears to counsel; they are deaf to the appeals and entreaties of friends and kindred and of the servants of God. The expression of a caution or warning is regarded as impertinent meddling, and the friend who is faithful enough to utter a remonstrance is treated as an enemy. All this is as Satan would have it. He weaves his spell about the soul, and it becomes bewitched, infatuated. Reason lets fall the reins of self-control upon the neck of lust, unsanctified passion bears sway, until, too late, the victim awakens to a life of misery and bondage. This is not a picture drawn by the imagination, but a recital of facts. God's sanction is not given to unions which he has expressly forbidden. For years I have been receiving letters from different persons who have formed unhappy marriages, and the revolting histories opened before me are enough to make the heart ache. It is no easy thing to decide what advice can be given to those unfortunate ones, or how their hard lot can be lightened; but their sad experience should be a warning to others." Testimonies, Vol. 5, pp 362-366.

ONTARIO

Ottawa

We are pleased to inform the MESSENGER readers that our work in this city is on the progressive side. Since the transfer of our Sunday night services from the Empire Theatre to the Conservatory of Music our meetings have been well attended. We have not only retained a good percentage of our old attendance, but in both the above named places have also secured a splendid company of new listeners. We are seeing some small results from our efforts during the winter, and these with the accessions realized by the tent effort, make a good foundation for our future work in the city. Our Sabbath services, home missionary and prayer meetings are well attended. Last Sabbath about thirty were present. The interest is at its maximum. We must not overlook the faithful efforts of Brother Hurdon who has not only assisted in the public meetings, but is also conducting regularly a goodly number of Bible studies at the homes of the people. We anticipate good results from these as well.

Financially speaking, our running expenses have been no burden whatever to the Ontario Conference. Our Sunday night and Sabbath collections have been fully adequate to meet all such, in fact we have been able to send a surplus to the treasury. We also are sending monthly a good tithing, the most of which is from the new believers. This month alone we have in about fifty dollars and also a small amount of Sabbath school funds. Brother Hurdon has realized several dollars also from his private Bible studies, and this I understand will go to missions.

On the whole we are thankful for the abundant success the Lord has given us, and all we regret is that the time will soon come when the writer will leave for another part of the province. The baptism of the new believers, however, will be performed before this, and after the coming commencing the future work in this city will be left to someone else. We desire the prayers of all for our work in the capital city.

F. W. JOHNSTON.

WE are publishing this week an original poem from the pen of Elder M. M. Hare, who left the ninth on his westward journey. He plans to visit his wife's relatives in Iowa, his brother in Minnesota, and will then go to Loma Linda, California, where his parents now reside. He may spend the summer there so as not to reach India during the heated season. A few evenings before Brother and Sister Hare left Oshawa they were entertained at the Seminary, and a very pleasant program was provided. A purse of money was presented to them with which to purchase some article that would be useful to them in India, by which they might remember the students of the Seminary and other friends in Oshawa. The kind wishes and prayers of a multitude of friends will follow Elder Hare and his family, and we trust that God will preserve them in health and strength and enable them to render acceptable service in their new and difficult field.

Armageddon

This is the striking name of the new book coming off the press in a few days. It is assured of a ready acceptance on the part of the people in general, as the newspapers have prepared their minds on the subject by frequent use of the word Armageddon in connection with the present war. Public curiosity is aroused, and the people will be glad to secure a book which throws prophetic light on this question. The Canadian edition is exactly the same as the American except that the American flag is not on the cover. The book is the same size as "World's Crisis" and sells for 25 cents in paper cover. Taken in lots of two hundred the freight will be prepaid. They will be furnished from our Oshawa office so there will be no duty to pay nor troublesome delay passing customs. Send for a sample copy and then show it about in your neighborhood and see how fast it will sell. Orders are coming in for them in large quantities and it looks as though our first Canadian edition of five thousand will melt away in a few weeks and a second edition be needed. We ought to dispose of twenty-five thousand of these important books in Eastern Canada. Fifty per cent commission is allowed to those who canvass for "Armageddon."

Dollar Day Next Sabbath

The offerings to missions have fallen badly behind this first quarter in all the conferences in this Union. Let us make next Sabbath, which is the 13th Sabbath, a dollar day as far as possible and thus help lift the standard in each church. Notice the standing of each conference for January and February as shown on the last page of this issue. We are nearly $1,000 behind as a Union. Everybody lift hard!

WANTED—A good reliable person to help care for a semi-invalid. Also to help with other duties when necessary in family of two. No hard work. Address Miss Ethel Lyng, 361 Concord Avenue, Toronto, Ont.

Study at Home

The Fireside Correspondence School will show you how. Agents wanted. Send for our "Nutshell" Calendar. Address, C. C. Lewis, Principal, Takoma Park, Washington, D. C.
