Review and Herald

This year marks the 125th anniversary of the church paper, The Advent Review and Sabbath Herald. To commemorate the anniversary a gold seal has been produced which is being used on Review and publishing house correspondence. Congratulatory messages have been received from many world figures, including the following from U.S. President Gerald Ford:

"For one hundred and twenty-five years, the Review and Herald has faithfully served the members of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in America. It is a great pleasure for me to pay tribute to all those who have had a part in its successful publication and to commend those who continue to build on its tradition in our time.

"Its many interesting articles have carried the message of compassion and Christian brotherhood far and wide across our own country, and indeed throughout the world.

"I welcome this opportunity to express my greetings to both its staff and readers."

The Review and Herald was first published in Paris, Maine, in November 1850. This was 11 years before the first local conference was organized—Michigan—and 13 years before the General Conference was organized.

The purpose of the paper, as its name suggests, was to review the Advent experience of 1843-1844 and to herald the Sabbath doctrine. Throughout its 125-year life the Review and Herald has endeavored to unify the Advent family by its presentations on doctrine and by its news of the activities of the church in all parts of the world. It is the church's one unbroken record of all notable events throughout Seventh-day Adventist history.

Early circulation of the magazine was 1,000 or 2,000 copies. Present circulation of the weekly edition in English is more than 100,000 copies.

The magazine now appears in six editions including issues in Spanish. Study is being given to publication in other languages.

The Review originally published the proceedings of the General Conference Sessions, which at first were held annually. Later separate General Conference Bulletins were issued to cover the sessions. But in 1905 and from 1926 until the present the Review has served as the official minutes for the General Conference Session, the special issues being supplied to all subscribers free. This year the Review and Herald will publish the daily Bulletins in Vienna, Austria, for distribution among delegates, and then will publish them in Washington, D.C., for regular subscribers. Church members who wish to receive the General Conference Bulletins may do so by subscribing now to the weekly Review and Herald. The regular annual subscription price is $12.95. Orders may be placed through the Adventist Book Centers on the perpetual plan for $10.50.

COVER

An Adventure in Faith starts for you with your contribution on April 26, 1975, to the offering. The adventure continues as a person is won to Christ through your gift to promote evangelism. Don't deny someone the privilege of knowing Christ—give liberally to an adventure you'll never regret.

CHRISTIAN BROADCASTER REQUIRED TO HIRE NON-CHRISTIANS

In a dispute between a religious broadcasting corporation and the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), the U.S. Supreme Court unanimously refused to decide whether the company has a constitutional right to employ only persons who hold to certain religious beliefs.

The practical effect of the High Court's action in King's Garden, Inc. v. FCC was to let stand a lower court ruling that the FCC can require religious broadcasting companies to hire individuals without discriminating on religious grounds.

King's Garden owns and operates two radio stations in Edmonds, Washington. In appealing to the Supreme Court, the corporation argued that religious organizations have the legal right to hire only persons of particular religious persuasion. The argument was based on a 1972 congressional action exempting religious groups from provisions contained in the Civil Rights Act of 1964 related to employment policies.

King's Garden, Inc., also challenged the FCC's authority to require religious organizations to hire persons unsympathetic with their views, claiming that such action violates the free exercise of religion clause of the First Amendment.

The FCC maintained that the only relevant question in the case was whether it was exercising its "public interest responsibility" by requiring all broadcasters to employ personnel without regard to their religion.

The federal agency further argued that its authority comes not from the 1964 Civil Rights Act, but from the Communications Act of 1934, under which it has always operated.

Responding to the stations' charge that its action violated the Free Exercise Clause, the FCC said, "To argue that this evaluation procedure may result in excessive entanglement of church and state ignores the fact that (King's Garden's) relationship with the FCC arises not from its status as a church but from its status as a federally regulated broadcast licensee which also happens to be a religious organization."

The FCC's brief before the Supreme Court did acknowledge that its policy allows religious broadcasting companies to discriminate on religious grounds in the employment of key personnel, including persons who are heard on the air or seen on the television screen.

The case originally arose in 1971 when a man who applied for employment at one of the King's Garden stations was turned down on religious grounds. The applicant then took his complaint to the FCC.

PRESIDENT OF ZAIRE THREATENS CATHOLIC CHURCHES

Zaire's president has threatened to close down all Roman Catholic churches in the country. Government controlled Kinshasa Radio said President Mobutu Sese Seko charged that the Catholic Church has "continually opposed official policy decisions by the government." Recently the President outlawed the teaching of religion in the country's schools and universities. Catholics in Zaire number some 9.6 million out of a total estimated population of 23.8 million.

AIRLINE RELIGIOUS DISCRIMINATION

The Civil Rights Law with its 1972 religious amendment has brought the United States Government directly into the matter of religious discrimination. Today it is illegal for an employer to discriminate against an employee for keeping the Sabbath or for refusing to join or support a labor union unless the employer can prove that it would cause an undue hardship to his business. The mere inconvenience of revising the schedule is not considered undue hardship.

The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, the government agency charged with enforcing the law, has requested that the General Conference supply information concerning religious discrimination by airlines operating in the United States. They need the name and address of any Seventh-day Adventist who has been refused employment or dismissed from an airline because of keeping the Sabbath since 1965.

If you know of such a person, please send the information to the General Conference Religious Liberty Department immediately. Be sure to give the name of the airline involved.

THESE TIMES CONTINUES TO SET THE PACE

These Times received three gold and six silver awards at the annual Nashville Art Directors Show held January 31. This marks the second consecutive year that the magazine has been recognized by the Nashville Art Directors Club.

These Times received two gold and one silver award in the category of editorial photography, both a gold and silver award in editorial illustration, two silver awards in editorial design, and a silver award in both the advertising photography and direct mail categories.

Are You

Every member in the Lake Union Conference has a chance to participate in the greatest Adventure in Faith the Seventh-day Adventist Church has provided its people. April 26, 1975, is the date churches all across the world will receive gifts from our people to support worldwide evangelism. Adventure in Faith is a worldwide spiritual and financial thrust of the Seventh-day Adventist Church. Not just another financial offering, it is rather a vigorous, coordinated spiritual endeavor.

As we look upon our world so much in need of a saving message of salvation, the question is, How long must the world wait to hear a voice of hope? World population is rapidly increasing and the stability of nations is breaking down. The money of most nations is fast losing value. Time is running out. We must get involved as a total church to meet the challenge just ahead of us.

Adventure in Faith is an individual participation with God in a spiritual and financial endeavor—not a spiritual and financial endeavor that is bigger than our own ability, but involvement in something so much larger than self that when it is accomplished we will know that God did it through us. This offering gives us a chance to break out of the usual and ordinary into a daily living faith experience with Jesus Christ. The servant of the Lord asked us to consider this: "Let none indulge the thought that we have attempted too much. No, no; we have attempted too little. The work which we are now doing ought to have been done years ago. Our plans must enlarge, our operations must be extended. What is needed now is a church whose individual members shall be awake and active to do all that is possible for them to accomplish."—Historical Sketches, p. 294.

Each conference, worldwide, has developed its own special Adventure in Faith spiritual plans to meet an unusual challenge in its territory. These plans call upon everyone in the church to go beyond the regular and ordinary, in order to greatly expand God's work and penetrate whole new frontiers with this last day message. A basic purpose of this worldwide spiritual thrust is to enter new areas with the gospel, or begin a new and stronger work in areas previously entered. In some conferences this will include unentered cities, towns, counties, or sections of large cities. Other challenges include developing new methods to reach the masses as well as segments of the population not yet reached.

We invite every member in the great Lake Union territory to join your administrators, departmental secretaries, pastors, and other conference workers in contributing a week's income to this great soul-winning endeavor. When was the last time you really took an Adventure in Faith such as you have a chance to take April 26, 1975?

NEWS NOTES

• A non-smokers' banquet sponsored by the hospital and the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking was held March 2 at the Sheraton Oak Brook. Featured speaker for the occasion was J. Wayne McFarland, M.D., associate secretary of the health department at the General Conference and co-originator of the Five-Day Plan.

• Chuck Snyder has accepted an administrative assignment following successful completion of an 18-month management internship program by the hospital. His new role, effective the first week of March, is as assistant to administration. He reports to the hospital administrator, carrying out assignments related to projects and problems of the hospital.

• Joyce Griffith, director of public relations for the hospital, has been granted accreditation by the Public Relations Society of America. Five years of public relations leadership and successful completion of oral and written examinations were required for accreditation.

• Visitors to the hospital at mealtime will notice plastic silverware and paper plates for the next few months as cafeteria remodeling begins in earnest. The tray line has also been shifted to a location inside the dining area during the height of construction. Service will continue throughout the building program without interruption or curtailment of hours.

• The hospital's health education department hosted the local chapter of the American Association of University Women at their March 10 meeting. Donna Meyer, M.P.H., health educator, spoke to the group about nutritional and economic advantages of the vegetarian diet.

SPANISH CENTRAL MEMBERS GET NEW HOME

For years the Central Spanish Church of Chicago has been trying to remodel, to build, or to buy new facilities. The present structure is old and dilapidated. It does not have adequate facilities for Sabbath School and other general use. This condition had the members in a state of depression and without much enthusiasm for the growth of the church.

About a year ago when it was announced that a large Lutheran Church was for sale, there was renewed interest and enthusiasm among the members. Now there is a whole new outlook for the future.

The newly purchased Spanish Central Church has a seating capacity for 1,100.

Just a few months ago this congregation bought the Lutheran Church for $104,000 which was considerably lower than the price asked by the church. This new church is in the same general area of the old church. The address is 913 N. Hoyne (Hoyne and Walton), Chicago.

The sanctuary has a seating capacity of 1,100 and an additional building with rooms for Sabbath School, kitchen, fellowship hall, and Pathfinders.

Elder John Robinson, pastor of the Spanish Central congregation, preaches from the pulpit of the newly purchased sanctuary.

The members are working hard to raise their portion of funds to finish paying off the note and to remodel both the sanctuary and adjoining building. The present plan is to complete the remodeling work in about four months. As the congregation transfers from the old church into the new edifice there seems to be a

YUGOSLAVIAN CHURCH SURPASSES INGATHERING GOAL

This past year is the year when it all happened. The Yugoslavian Church in Chicago reached and surpassed their Ingathering goal. With strong leadership and a determination by the members, young and old, they went out braving the elements and God blessed in a mighty way.

As the campaign progressed the solicitors increased and they became more enthusiastic about reaching their goal. Each evening upon returning from the cold, there could be seen in their faces a sense of having accomplished what they had set out to do, says Ingathering coordinator Martin Selak.

As the solicitors returned they were greeted by the ladies of the church, who had prepared fresh donuts and a warm drink.

Near the close of the campaign the youth had gathered to go out in a last great effort to reach the goal but the weather was not cooperating. At the close of the MV meeting the congregation was approached to come to the rescue of these young people and they did just that. The goal was reached and surpassed by donations and pledges.

According to Pastor Maras and Coordinator Selak, the church is laying big plans now for an evangelistic thrust to reach the heavy Yugoslavian population of Chicago.

Corrie ten Boom

Corrie ten Boom of the Dutch Reformed Church and author of the book The Hiding Place which sold over 2 million copies, was the guest speaker at the Downers Grove Church, February 8. She told of her worldwide ministry and experiences which began in a Nazi concentration camp during the war.

At 82 Corrie is still continuing her ministry, which has taken her to 61 different countries of the world, including communist countries.

The audience listened intently as she related her experiences in hiding Jewish refugees. Her most trying experiences were the times she was forced to stand in long lines in the concentration camp without clothing.

In later years Corrie had the privilege of meeting and forgiving the German guard who had been assigned the duty of guarding her. According to Corrie, it took much courage through the power of the Lord for her to shake the hand of the one who had caused the death of her sister, Betsie, but now this once persecutor had given his heart to the Lord.

This beautiful woman of God has turned an apparent loss into a real personal relationship with the Lord. She minimizes her former sufferings and as Paul of old, she is forgetting the past and thinking of the future.

Proceeds from Corrie's 11 books go to help families in Viet Nam who have members killed, missing in action, or prisoners of war.

A group of literature evangelists met for a weekend of fellowship and faith sharing in Shelbyville.

COLPORTEURS EVANGELIZE GREENSBURG

"I appreciate what you are doing to help people study the Bible," a housewife said.

A young husband said, "I was a Christian until two years ago. I'm glad you've come to our home. Yes, I'll take the course."

These and other comments were made to the Indiana Conference literature evangelists as they made their way from door to door in Greensburg, Indiana, on Friday, February 20.

When Elder J. C. Vetter requested that the literature evangelists come to this district, Dick Tanner, publishing director, asked if some missionary work might be included in the weekend of fellowship. As a consequence, hundreds of envelopes were distributed and 40 people signed up for the Bible course immediately. Many building which because of a moisture problem refused to stick and was in bad shape.

The members of the Shelbyville Church were most kind in their treatment of the literature evangelists. Food and housing were more than adequate.

Young and old alike spent hours this fall melting the old paint, scraping and cleaning the cement blocks in preparation for the new sand and lime mixture that was applied as paint for the block. Students spent their recess time on the scaffolding, working men spent evenings, and Elder Houghton, pastor, spent hours working and encouraging the rest until the job was done and the school looks respectable again.

Francis Gardner, a retired member, donated probably the most time and braved cold and wind to see the job finished. Wives and mothers not only furnished food to the workers, but put in their time on cleaning and painting the block, all of which made it possible to refinish the school for a fraction of the cost of a professional group.

BROWNSBURG HAS A COOKING SCHOOL

The Brownsburg S.D.A. Church recently conducted a cooking school in the local junior high school.

Demonstrating the use of meatless dishes, actual food samples were served on the spot, and the preparation of the dish was demonstrated.

Lectures were given and films shown giving guidance in healthful living and balanced diets. Several authorities in the area participated, including Dr. Norman Gardner of Indianapolis, Mrs. Margaret Anderson of Indiana Academy, and Dr. Charles Goodacre of Indianapolis.

Mrs. Jo Hess took the lead in arranging this program and guiding the instruction.

This was probably the first cooking school ever conducted by Seventh-day Adventists at Brownsburg.

Mother Richards brings the Word of God and love to Jackson Prison.

SENIOR CITIZEN SPREADS GOSPEL IN PRISON

Mrs. Rose Richards gives from the heart. This blind 84-year-old "Mother," as she is so affectionately called by the inmates at Jackson Prison, visits her "boys" four times a year bearing gifts for them. These visits are made annually at Easter, Father's day, Thanksgiving, and Christmas day.

Her Christmas gifts included seven crates each of apples and oranges to be distributed among the inmates, and T-shirts, socks, and the Holy Bible for each inmate visited.

Mrs. Richards also takes along cash money which is converted into "script" to be distributed to some deserving boy to remember a loved one with a greeting card.

Many of these men are forgotten by their relatives and loved ones, so this is Mrs. Richards' unique way of spreading cheer and proclaiming the gospel of the kingdom.

A member of the City Temple Church in Detroit, she began this project seven years ago. She finances her project through the social security checks she receives. A portion of each check is put aside until she has sufficient funds. Chuck Nolen of Livonia, Michigan, a long-time friend of Mrs. Richards, purchases all the fruit for her.

This year she plans to make her second visit of the year on Mother's day instead of Father's day. Her goal is to visit at least 100 inmates taking each two T-shirts, two pairs of socks, the Holy Bible, and fruit.

She doesn't know where the money is coming from, but her faith in God is strong. She exclaims, "The Lord says, I will 'open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it.'" Malachi 3:10. She adds, "I know that the Lord has more than one window, and He is going to open those windows wide."

On November 24, 1974, Mrs. Richards was honored at the Detroit Public Library and received the Whitney Moore Young, Jr., Memorial Award, which is a bronze plaque given for outstanding humanitarian service.

This award is bestowed upon people for their creative achievement in the area of Afro-American culture, and certainly nothing could be more creative than the sensitive, caring approach of this most remarkable woman to hundreds of men forsaken by their own relatives.

Mrs. Richards, the mother of five children, came to the states in 1923 from Toronto, Canada. She is a native of the Parish of St. Elizabeth, Jamaica, West Indies.

Elder J. M. Phipps welcomes Mrs. Georgia Slater to the Lake Region Conference.

NEW WORKERS MEET WITH CONFERENCE STAFF

The Ministerial Association of the Lake Region Conference held its first annual "get acquainted" meeting for workers new to the conference on January 29, 1975. The meeting was an extension of the workers meeting and convened in the office of the conference president.

Elder J. R. Wagner, president, and Elder J. Malcolm Phipps, ministerial secretary, led out in the activities of the day. The meeting began at 9 a.m. with an inspiring devotional conducted by Elder T. M. Kelly. After the devotional, the workers were introduced and officially welcomed to the conference.

To acquaint the workers with the various departmental functions and the special services available to the field, the departmental secretaries explained the operation of their specialized branch and gave helpful suggestions as to how the pastors can receive maximum benefit from the services offered.

After listening to two hours of informative talks the workers were invited to respond by asking questions to clear up any "gray areas" remaining concerning the best way to facilitate a smooth working relationship between the office and the district pastor. The question and answer period continued for one hour after which the meeting adjourned with prayer.

Pastors attending the meeting included Ray Alexander, Sylister Jackson, Norman Miles, Robert Tolson, and Richard Washington. Also present was Mrs. Georgia L. Slater, Bible instructor for the Burns Avenue Church in Detroit. Several workers who have recently come to the conference were in school and were, therefore, unable to attend.

MAGAZINES DONATED TO SCHOOL

Mr. Ivan Ludington, president of the Ludington News Company, recently donated two hundred paperback books to the seventh and eighth grade classroom at the Clinton F. Warren Academy. The teacher was allowed to pick out the types of books needed for the development of a reading center within the classroom.

The entire school was placed on Mr. Ludington's monthly magazine program. This means that each month each classroom receives a supply of various pre-selected magazines. Claudette Hill, a parent, was instrumental in making contact with the company president. A copy of The Great Controversy was given to Mr. Ludington to express our gratitude.

This gift has increased interest in reading in the seventh and eighth grades. The seventh and eighth grade teacher, Gilbert Cooper, is a product of our one-teacher school in Cassopolis, Michigan. He is a credit to S.D.A. education.

NEWS NOTES

- The Urandale Church has again begun publishing their monthly newsletter. They thus become another of a growing number of churches who are using this method of communication to keep their membership informed of progress and happenings within the church. Among other churches who are following this plan are Cadillac, Grand Rapids Central, Lansing, Holly, Jackson, and Owosso.

- Children in the pediatrics ward of a Lansing hospital find it easier to keep their toys and play things more available thanks to Adventist youth. Young people of Grand Ledge and Lansing made 35 gay denim toy bags and donated them to Sparrow hospital as part of their endeavors to get involved in community affairs. They are a part of a group which meets weekly in private homes for discussion and council on youth problems and community involvement.

NAACP MEETS IN EVANSVILLE

The local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) in Evansville, Indiana, invited the pastor of the Metropolitan Church to the first public meeting of 1975. Pastor Franklin Hill, III, gave the invocation. The speaker for the evening was Alfred Lewis Baker, treasurer emeritus of the NAACP organization. Mrs. Helen Alexander, treasurer for the Metropolitan Church, also serves as secretary of the local chapter. Pictured above from left are Harold Taylor, president of the local chapter NAACP, Alfred Lewis Baker, treasurer emeritus national NAACP, and Franklin S. Hill, III, pastor of the Metropolitan Church in Evansville, Indiana.

NEW SIGN AND NEW HOURS

The Berrien Springs branch of the conference Adventist Book Center has a new sign, built for them by the sign and design center of Andrews University. It uses the approved "logo" and the new terminology for Adventist retail book outlets across the States. Ted Lewis, manager of the branch, stands by the sign. He reports that new hours are being added to their schedule for the benefit of the many Adventists living in Southwestern Michigan. On Mondays and Thursdays the branch will stay open until 9 p.m. On Tuesday and Wednesdays the hours are 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. It will continue to serve the public on Sundays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and is now open on Fridays until 3 p.m.

A GOOD NEIGHBORS CLUB

A Good Neighbors Club is being used by the women of the Eau Claire and Stevensville churches to reach out into their neighborhoods to share their faith.

According to Mrs. Frieda Mattson, wife of the pastor for the two churches, the church members involved are finding this type of witnessing brings "real fellowship" to themselves and their neighbors.

They meet together Mrs. Mattson says, to share homemaking tips, including how to bake better bread or sew with newer methods. They also knit, work on crafts, or become involved in similar projects. The spiritual tie-in comes with a devotional which is the opening to each of these informal get-togethers.

Members find their neighbors seem happy for the invitation to attend. They are impressed with the interest Adventists have in their own families and their Christian love for each other. Soon they ask questions about church beliefs and members find it easy to share their faith in their informal setting.

When asked how to get other clubs started, Mrs. Mattson suggests that it can be an offspring of the church's social committee or given to a person with a pleasing personality who may have a burden for this type of friendly witness.

The women of the Eau Claire and Stevensville clubs are joining together in April for a cooking school. They will meet every Sunday afternoon for four weeks with their neighbors invited to attend. The women suggest other churches try this approach. They may soon have, the women believe, their neighbors attending Sabbath school and church.

The woodcutters of Muskegon pause after work with their teacher and school principal, Wayne R. Clough.

DUEL FUEL

A "wood that warms you twice" project has brought a productive change to the normal physical education program at Muskegon's intermediate school.

For two periods each week boys from grades five through ten don their winter clothing for the cold outdoors where under the careful supervision of their teachers they cut firewood to be given to needy persons or sold to those who can pay.

The project was conceived after a church member, Frank Grosenbacker, gave a two-man crosscut saw in excellent condition to Wayne R. Clough, the principal. He took the saw to school and his ninth and tenth grade boys wanted to put it to use. The local school board gave approval for the boys to cut selected timber from the 18 acres of oak on the school's property with one half of the proceeds going to the school and the other half to projects of the boys' own choosing. Visits to relatives and friends turned up an old maul and wedges for splitting logs plus nine more crosscut saws which were reconditioned at the school.

All the wood is cut by hand and delivered in the principal's pickup. Loading and unloading is done by the boys who neatly stack the firewood where it is wanted.

Working in the woods can often mean cold hands. To counteract this a used 30-gallon drum was converted into a crude stove. Here the twigs and small branches are burned to help keep the area litter free. It is by this "stove" where the first warming is received. The second comes when needy persons respond with a heartfelt "Thank you, God bless you."

BETSY ROSS HELPS RAISE MONEY FOR FAITH FOR TODAY

Betsy Ross and her sister may have sewed the first American flag, but here they are raising money for Faith for Today and for Bible textbooks for overseas schools. This was the fifth grade project at a fundraising fair held on Sunday, February 23, and sponsored by the Andrews University Elementary School. The puppet show had ten acts in all—Squanto, Francis Scott Key, and Benjamin Franklin were all there—and admission was 25 cents. Other grades sold everything from clothes to toys, furniture, and food. A capacity crowd watched the feature film "Rascal" by Walt Disney. Principal Donald van Duinen reports that the youngsters were able to raise about $2,000.

NEW GYMNASIUM PLANNED FOR EAU CLAIRE

Robert Dale, conference president, reviews plans with Bruce Hinckley, Eau Claire pastor, and Curtis Maloney, lay pastor, for a new gymnasium to be added to the Eau Claire church school.

STOP SMOKING CLINIC HELD IN APPLETON

In preparation for an evangelistic series, Elder G. S. Dudney, conference evangelist, and Paul Conner, D.D.S., conducted a Five-day Plan to Stop Smoking at Appleton Memorial Hospital.

The hospital provided a small room capable of holding 40 regular-size chairs. The demand more than doubled expectations so smaller chairs were used to allow 56 to participate and another Five-day Plan is scheduled to serve the additional requests.

Eighty-six percent of those attending were successful. In a front page story the Appleton Post Crescent proclaimed the Five-day Plan the most successful stop-smoking program.

INVESTMENT NEVER STOPS

Each year the Primary Sabbath School class in Green Bay begins its Investment program when the previous year's program is completed. The children maintain a high degree of interest in watching fish and ducks which show their progress. Each child is given a fish or a duck as he turns in an offering. Here Jerry Cole gives Stuart Ward his Investment fish as the rest of the class watches.

SWEETHEART BANQUET HELD

"Christian sociability is altogether too little cultivated by God's people."—Testimonies, Vol. 6, p. 172. "We cannot be happy while we are wrapped up in our interest for ourselves. We should live in this world to win souls to the Saviour."—Testimonies, Vol. 4, p. 72.

With these thoughts in mind, the Green Bay Adventist Church hosted the annual Sweetheart Banquet with a large number of guests in attendance. A social function encompassing a vegetarian meal and a music program of secular and religious music, the Sweetheart Banquet is the social highlight of the year. It affords a natural and casual setting to introduce prospective members and guests to church members.

Emceed by Dick Mayhugh, the program featured church talent from Green Bay, Appleton, and Lena, and the Becker Bellringers composed of a local Lutheran minister, his wife, and three children. "Sweethearts" had an opportunity to have their picture taken before a large red heart background.

new releases

JESUS LOVES ME, John Kraus, pianist; Trudy Kraus, soprano; with the Re'Generation, from Chapel Records (S 5248).

This is an exciting recording both for its musical quality and its variety in presenting concert variations on great hymns of the Christian faith. Trudy Kraus sings "He's My Friend" and "Like a Lamb Who Needs the Shepherd." She joins the Re'Generation on "A Quiet Place," and sings several other numbers. All these accompanied by a fine concert pianist produce a most inspirational listening experience.

LIBRARY REACHES 300,000 MARK

A.U. FOOD SERVICE MAKES CHANGES

The A.U. Food Service, according to director George W. Cummings, will shortly be making a number of changes in the cafeteria's serving areas, each change designed with the customer in mind.

- Warmers will be installed over the hot serving units; each item of food will have its own infrared (white) light to maintain correct food temperature and offer greater eye appeal.
- New sneeze guards will be installed between the customer and the hot foods. They will be set higher and at an angle which will prevent accidental contamination.
- Salads will nest in a bed of crushed ice, for eye appeal.
- Walls in the serving areas will be tastefully recovered with softer, lower-value color tones that will enhance the merchandizing of wholesome food. The total effect, said Cummings, should increase the customer's desire for a well-balanced meal, and enhance his enjoyment of it.

STUDENTS SHOW INTEREST IN MISSION EMPHASIS WEEK

A poll taken this term during an assembly attended by about one thousand students indicated that some 255 A.U. students elect to become professional overseas missionaries sometime after graduation. This represented two-thirds of the students responding.

The poll also revealed that the students were far more interested in how to qualify and where they might be needed than in philosophical issues or current issues in missions.

Accordingly, missionary recruiters were well-booked during the annual Missions Emphasis Week in progress at Andrews on February 21 to 25. Robert Pierson, assistant professor of geography at A.U., was director of the program.

Pierson said he expects few immediate offers for mission service, but that students received tips on how to prepare for such service. M.D.'s speaking French will be among the first chosen, ministers among the last, he added.

M. O. Manley, president of Union College, Lincoln, Nebraska, and former missionary in India and Burma, opened the series on Friday evening. Other speakers included B. E. Seton, associate secretary of the General Conference and former missionary in Africa and Europe; and C. E. Bradford, associate secretary at the General Conference. A panel on Sabbath afternoon discussed "Foreign Mission Service Today," and a mission pageant was presented at the Sabbath vesper service.

GUIDE BOOK FOR ACADEMY FOOD SERVICES READY IN JUNE

By June this year, academies in North America will have 200 pages of advice by some of the denomination's top food service experts on how to serve better food for less money, says Clinton Wall, director of the Food Systems Consultants (F.S.C.) at Andrews University.

The pages will be bound in a looseleaf notebook entitled "Food Service Guide Book for Seventh-day Adventist Academies of North America." It is being compiled, written, and edited by the F.S.C. under the sponsorship of the General Conference department of education.

Topics discussed in the book include organization, food preparation, employment, cutting waste, sanitation, and layout, and design.

Wall says no other book on the market, incorporating the Adventist principles of health, meets the needs of an academy food service serving three meals a day.

OMISSION

Omitted from the list of persons to be honored at homecoming, May 3 was C. D. Henri, M.A., '65. Henri will be named enrollee in A.U.'s hall of fame.
