Michigan Church Celebrates Centennial

On Sabbath afternoon, December 6, a "memories" program was held in the Burlington Church which will be 100 years old this year. It is one of the oldest Adventist churches in Michigan.

Participants in the program were dressed in authentic period costumes, pioneer hymns were sung, and a history of the church was given by Mrs. Cora West, a long-time member of the congregation.

Elder J. H. Waggoner, an Adventist pioneer, was a pastor in Indiana who felt a strong call to evangelism. He obtained a large tent, and with the help of Elder Joseph Bates pitched the tent between Burlington and Union City. Here they held a series of meetings emphasizing the need to keep God's seventh-day Sabbath. This was in 1856 and about fifty persons accepted the message.

Not too long before this the people had been stirred by the falling of the stars and felt the judgment day was near. This is believed to have helped many to become Adventists, but since they believed that Christ might soon come, they were in no hurry to build a church, choosing instead to meet in private homes.

However, in 1861 they formed a church and became one of the 13 churches to organize into the Michigan Conference.

Elder Waggoner moved from Indiana to pastor the newly formed congregation. One of his converts, a carpenter by the name of J. Sanders, owned a quarter section of timber land and gave the minister lumber and helped him build a home.

Later, in 1876, Sanders provided lumber and supervised the erection of the present Burlington Church building. This was dedicated on December 31, 1876. Students from Battle Creek College, the forerunner of Andrews University, attended the dedication service to hear Uriah Smith preach on the subject of the United States in prophecy. They returned to Battle Creek in their two-horse sleigh just as the bells were ringing in the new year.

Elder Waggoner left Burlington for various church positions in California and Switzerland where he died. His wife moved back to the community and she and their children were buried in the little cemetery across from the church.

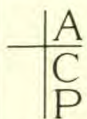

As time went on members died, moved away, or lost their "first love." As a result, the church almost faded away.

Giving Is A Reflex Of Love

Reclaim Our Youth!

A little more than two years ago the staff of Insight, the church youth magazine, and the General Conference Youth Department met to discuss a growing concern for youth disillusioned with the church. It was realized that dealing with former-member youth is a special ministry requiring much love and care. Thus Operation Come Back was brought into existence.

Operation Come Back was officially launched last year. Since then it has been met with increasing support and enthusiasm, with a number of former members reclaimed.

The plan is simple and is designed to keep church youth active in witnessing to former-member youth through the aid of Insight magazine. With the aid of the pastor, the Youth Council compiles a list of names of former-member youth who will be sent a one-year subscription of Insight. A special Operation Come Back subscription price of $11.25 is charged in most unions on a one-third basis by the individual church, the local conference, and the union conference.

After such a young person has received one or two issues of Insight, church youth then visit him, using Insight articles as discussion prompters. From there the potential is unlimited! Church love and acceptance, along with involvement with church youth, can do much to win back former members.

Every church needs to be concerned with its former members—especially the youth. If you have not heard about this plan in your church and desire more information, contact your local conference youth director or write: Insight, 6856 Eastern Ave., NW, Washington, DC 20012.

Insight can be a powerful witnessing tool in the hands of our youth. MV Week of Prayer, March 6 to 13, is a good time to launch Operation Come Back in a special outreach to reclaim former youth church members.

works because you care.

More than 100 workers, 58 of them students from Andrews University, left the wintry blasts of North America for the sunny south of Mexico. Two weeks later the town of Huatabampo had a new Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Maranatha Goes to Mexico

by Norm and Carol Wangard

The sunny atmosphere and warm temperatures of Mexico were the setting for the building of a church in Huatabampo. More than 100 workers from Andrews University, Laurelwood Academy, and Upper Columbia Academy participated in this most recent Maranatha project. The Maranatha Flights trip was coordinated by John Ross, Andrews University Student Association president, and was headed by John Freeman, founder of Maranatha.

On December 17, the start of the Christmas holiday vacation, 58 students left Berrien Springs, Michigan, in bitterly cold weather with snow driven about by high winds. Boarding Andrews' bus, which was to be their home for the next two days and two nights, the students endured the rigors of almost continuous travel. Cool temperatures prevailed during the trip due to the bus' faulty heater.

William Davidson, dean of the College of Technology, assisted Jerry Metzger driving the bus. The 2,300-mile trip was an endurance test for both man and machine, particularly since Mr. Davidson, lacking experience driving a diesel bus, spent a good deal of time perfecting his skill double clutching and shifting the gears in a quiet, orderly manner. The sound of grinding gears was supplemented by frequent song sessions, and the music made quite an impression on a couple of hitchhikers they picked up. The destitute appearance of the couple needing a ride at one of the rest areas prompted Marvin Engelkemier to volunteer his seat on the bus. The strangers will often remember the worship and music from their Adventist traveling companions.

On Sunday, December 21, the mayor of Huatabampo laid the cornerstone for the church with other government officials in attendance. After the ceremony was over and the people had gone home, the work crew relaid the cornerstone as it had been placed in the wrong position.

Work on the church was scheduled in two shifts: 6 a.m. to noon and noon to 6 p.m. with the fellows generally working 12-hour shifts. Delays in delivery of materials complicated a smooth working schedule and required compensation for shortages. Lacking equipment, all materials were unloaded by hand. Cement blocks, irregular in dimensions compared to American standards, varied as much as one inch and challenged the mason's skill in laying them up straight and level. The work crew unloaded the blocks "bucket-brigade" style.

The girls in the crew mixed the "mud"—in Mexico it consists of lime and cement—hailed bricks, and even helped build an outhouse, which later had to be moved because it was too close to the church.

Roof trusses were made a half block from the church, the closest level area, and then carried by 30 men to the site.

The 15 days of construction saw only a few minor injuries. Bruce Thomas found that repetition had a great deal of impact in learning carpentry skills. After hitting his thumb with a hammer, he proceeded to hit it two additional times. One fellow, known only as Larry, learned that power saws can cut a finger as well as wood. Bumps and scrapes were numerous.

Bill Moody was the group's acting physician, treating everything including dysentery, from which a number of students suffered. Flies were in abundance everywhere and probably caused some of the illness.

The cooking personnel under the direction of Myra Bowman and Audrey Green would arise at 2:30 a.m. to prepare for the five o'clock breakfast. Cooked kidney beans, put in a grinder and coming out "like long worm things" and then mixed with water and red pepper, were served at most of the meals. All the Mexican meals were cooked generously in corn oil. Soy milk was the beverage served every day.

At 4:30 each morning the crew would awaken to the Spanish version of the King's Heralds. Getting out of bed in unheated rooms illuminated with a bare light bulb, they faced the reality of another day, starting with a cold shower. The academy where the students were housed was in sharp contrast to the "home" comforts of the dorms at Andrews University.

Some of the students enjoyed their first swim in the ocean during their off-work times. Others shopped in nearby Huatabampo.

One of the sponsors of the 35-member church, a local furniture supplier, was impressed with the quality of the church. The people, some of them adobe dwellers, "expected a good church, but not as beautiful as it turned out." Local people from the town of Huatabampo with a population of about 15,000, were impressed with the happy crew singing, whistling, and working in unity. Town officials were astonished that students would come so far and sacrifice their holiday vacation to work free for someone they didn't even know. It cost the students $100 each for their transportation.

One white-helmeted sidewalk superintendent would come every day to watch and offer constructive advice. No other church members were active in building the church.

The first service was conducted January 3, at the end of two weeks' work. There was standing room only. The grateful local members composed a hymn to honor God and commemorate the occasion. Overwhelmed with emotion, the members were thankful for their new church. Eusebio Silva, who speaks Spanish, was able to interpret the people's expressions to the group, and during the 2-week stay he was able to bridge the communication gap.

One would wonder why a student, considering all the obvious physical discomforts, would want to work on a project like this. But it can be summed up by the comments of one student. "The time goes fast when you have a goal to reach. The gratefulness of the people for what you've done with your hands and what you've accomplished by working for folks that couldn't do it on their own is something you can't express with words."

The song composed and sung by Guadalupe Ruiz Ochoa with his guitar will remain in the memories of the 58 students from Andrews University. With the singing of "Blest Be the Tie that Binds," the group said good-bye to their Mexican friends. The evangelism in action portrayed by the Maranatha group is something the Mexican town of Huatabampo will never forget!

The students worked hard for the people of Huatabampo and were richly repaid in smiles and tears of their fellow SDA Christians.

Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital

VOLUNTEERS SPONSOR MEDIC ALERT PROGRAM

A Medic Alert program sponsored by hospital volunteers will soon begin here at Hinsdale San. Medic Alert is designed to protect individuals with any medical problem or condition that cannot be easily seen or recognized.

Employees and community members will soon be able to obtain a form located at various points around the hospital which explains the program and provides an order form for Medic Alert emblems, worn on the wrist or neck.

On the back of the emblem is engraved the medical problem, the file number of the wearer, and the telephone number of Medic Alert's central file. Doctors, police, or anyone giving aid can immediately get vital information via a collect telephone call.

Mildred Whiteside, an 11-year volunteer, is heading the Medic Alert program. "There is no other Medic Alert program being conducted in our area," says Mrs. Whiteside. "We may expand the program to other areas outside the hospital such as doctors' offices."

For a $7 tax-deductible donation an individual may fill out the application form and receive a stainless steel Medic Alert emblem. This fee is a lifetime membership.

The Medic Alert Foundation International was founded in California in 1956 and has since received endorsement by a number of allied hospital associations and the American Hospital Association. The Foundation which operates in 16 nations, covers approximately 850,000 individuals.

Typical wearers of the emblems might be those individuals with medical problems such as allergy to penicillin, diabetes, and heart conditions.

PRESIDENTIAL SPORTS AWARDS PROGRAM BEGINS

In an effort to encourage hospital employees to maintain good physical health, the personnel department is sponsoring a year-round Presidential Sports Awards Program. There are 39 sports to choose from ranging from jogging to skating.

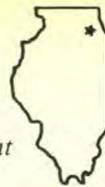

Upon completion of requirements for a designated sport, an attractive certificate, emblem, and pin are sent to the qualifier. The basic principle governing qualification in the different sports is 50 hours of participation, spread over at least 50 activity sessions, within a period of four months.

Employees who choose to participate in the program use a personal log book to record performances in a particular sport. After completing requirements for the award the personal log book is given to the personnel department and the hospital pays the $3 required fee and mails in the information so that the employee may receive the award.

Several employees have started the program and it is hoped that more will join when the weather turns warmer and outdoor sports can be started.

THE PREDICTIVE HEALTH LECTURE SERIES

The Predictive Health Lecture Series, sponsored by the Illinois Conference Department of Health Services, features outstanding guest lecturers on disease prevention. Designed to interest professionals and laymen, the series will be especially profitable to physicians, dentists, paramedics, health educators, ministers, teachers, and health directors of local churches. All interested persons are welcome. Complete typewritten transcripts of all lectures will be available to those attending.

Pediatric Disease Prevention is the theme for the first weekend in the 1976 series, February 27 to 29. All meetings will be held in the Hinsdale SDA Church.

Friday, February 27, 7:30 p.m., "New Threats and New Strategies in Family Health," Donna and Herald Habenicht, M.D.

Sabbath, February 28, 11 a.m., Elder John Hayward; 2 p.m., "How to Prevent Teenage Rebellion and Apostasy," Donna Habenicht; 3 p.m., "Prenatal Influences and How to Modify Them," Herald Habenicht;

"Sex Education—VD and Teenage Pregnancy," Donna and Herald Habenicht; 7 p.m., "Heart Disease Prevention," Charlotte Hamlin, M.P.H., and Herald Habenicht.

Sunday, February 29, 8 a.m., "Cancer and Pulmonary Disease Prevention," Herald Habenicht; 9:45 a.m., "Current Teenage Eating Patterns," Donna Meyers, M.P.H.; "3-C Experience in Children at Andrews University," Charlotte Hamlin; 11 a.m., "Adequacy of the Vegetarian Diet in Infancy and Childhood," Stoy Proctor, M.P.H.

Participants will leave the weekend series prepared to present pediatric disease prevention programs in their local churches. This will benefit the church in two dimensions.

First, it will help Adventist parents lay a good foundation for health in their children. The present 6.2 year life-span advantage should be greatly expanded if these principles of life are practiced from infancy. The SDA church can yet become the spectacle of health it was designed to be if parents improve prenatal, infant, and childhood health factors.

Second, a community service program will be provided to attract concerned parents. Some who have little regard for their own health can be motivated to life-style change for the sake of their children.

Register at once for this lecture series. Send $15 to cover registration and materials. If you wish to pre-register only, send $5; there will be a $15 charge later for the materials. Send money to Stoy Proctor, Illinois Conference, Box 89, Brookfield, IL 60513.

BROTHER LED TO CHRIST

Happiness is seeing someone baptized. Amid smiles and some tears the congregation watched 17-year-old Frank Cangelosi as he was buried in the watery grave of baptism and emerged a born-again Christian to serve his Saviour Jesus Christ.

Frank has a story to tell his friends and the whole world concerning the amazing grace of Jesus. He tells how through a long-distance telephone call from his brother, Larry, he first accepted Christ. Larry felt impressed to phone Frank, claim some Bible promises, and have prayer.

Before Frank met Christ he used to make fun of Larry and his religion. Somehow he could not understand the

Now you will find Frank witnessing at every opportunity and every Sabbath afternoon he is making Christian missionary calls. At present he is a senior at Proviso West High School in Westchester, and will enroll in one of the Adventist colleges where he will further his education.

HEALTH EVANGELISM RALLY

Reuben Hubbard of Loma Linda University, one of America's most outstanding health evangelists, invites Chicagoland church members to a Health Evangelism Rally at the West Central SDA Church, February 14, at 3 p.m., where he will preview his upcoming health evangelism series.

Students from Loma Linda University and Andrews University will join forces with Chicago laymen and ministers in this series. This is a unique opportunity to be part of a program that reaches the people who need a message for these last days.

A Bicentennial theme will challenge citizens to keep America strong by learning the secrets of physical, mental, and spiritual fitness.

I.A. CADETS—SERVING OTHERS

Wilbert Hill and Karyn Penley are volunteers in a very special program which enables them to learn Christian witnessing in a practical and realistic way.

Approximately thirty students signed up at the beginning of the school year as volunteers in the Cadets program, an extra-curricular activity under the direction of Elder Duane Ferguson, head of I.A.'s Bible department. These students offer their services to three different health facilities in the area. Those volunteering for hospital service must be 16 years of age and complete a ten-hour orientation program designed to Administrative officials in these institutions have expressed their appreciation and interest in these young people. One individual, a director of nurses, has asked if she might bring other interested persons to the school to observe the methods in which our schools are conducted.

Both Karyn and Wilbert have the desire to be in the Lord's service and through these volunteer programs, they, along with the other students, are experiencing what true Christianity is: Love expressed in service to humanity.

ESTATE GIVEN FOR IT IS WRITTEN

Mrs. LaVon H. Purdy

Estate planning involves many areas of a person's life and reaches ahead into eternal security. God had financially blessed Mrs. LaVon H. Purdy of Decatur, Indiana, and she was anxious to hasten the second coming of Christ.

"If I were to give some money to the gospel work, what would you suggest?" was a question she asked.

I shared with her the hopes of our conference administrators and staff to place the television series It Is Written on many stations in Indiana. "Please pray about this matter and on my next visit, give me your answer," I suggested.

One week later these words greeted the trust service minister. "I feel impressed to give the $25,000 for It Is Written with Elder George Vandeman." Praises to God instantly ascended! These funds would finance the station costs for three years, a length of time felt most valuable to develop interests, and $4,000 would be held in reserve for broadcasting in another location.

Mrs. Purdy is among the most active promoters of the TV series and has constant praise to the Lord for the ministry of Elder Vandeman.

Mrs. Purdy was initially prompted to do something different to hasten Jesus' return by the sudden deaths of a brother and sister only hours apart. Since making this gift, her sister Caroline Purvis, who was responsible for leading her to Christ, died.

Mrs. Purdy, now living in Fort Wayne, consented to the publication of this story in the hopes that others might consider how their estates might be used to open new areas for the "in-the-home" evangelism by TV. She appeals to others to give and help finish sharing the gospel of love to a perishing world.

Funds are needed in such areas as Indianapolis and Lafayette. Is it possible that you might have some land to sell, stocks or bonds to cash in, or cash to give? Special gifts large and small could put the It Is Written program within reach of many who are reaching out for eternal life.

INVESTMENT NETS $400

The Philadelphia Niles, Michigan, Church reported more than $400 for Investment. One class had a project that netted $91.

In January 1975, it was suggested that each member bring one cent for each meal eaten. A separate envelope and record was kept. If this was done faithfully, each person would have contributed $10.08 through the month of November.

Mrs. Myrna Baker, Investment leader, has some great plans for 1976.

CHILDREN REENACT NATIVITY

The kindergarten division of the Sabbath School presented a program on the nativity of Christ for Thirteenth Sabbath. The teachers were hopeful that this program would give the children a clear understanding of the birth of Christ. The Sabbath School also sponsored a Christmas Eve party at which time each child was given a bag of fruit and nuts.

TWO TEACHERS JOIN WARREN STAFF

The Lake Region Conference is always glad to see men, as well as women, joining the teaching profession. The Clinton F. Warren School of Detroit, Michigan, is very fortunate this year to have had two men join its staff.

Charles Augustus Miller, Jr., graduated from Oakwood College in June of 1975, with a major in elementary education and a minor in history. He teaches the seventh and eighth grades. For his students he wants to foster stronger self-images and build characters fit to serve in the cause of God.

Daniel Winslow is a 1975 graduate of Oakwood College. He majored in foreign languages and minored in physical education. Teaching a variety of subjects at Warren, Winslow wants his students to develop to the fullest degree their academic, physical, and spiritual abilities.

In presenting the history, Mrs. West recalled that when she first attended a meeting in the church "there were just seven adults and a few children in the congregation." She thinks there were four more members of the congregation but they were absent that Sabbath. As Mrs. West sat there she wondered if the sanctuary would ever be filled again.

The church building was quite large with high ceilings, three rows of seats, no classrooms, and was heated by a large stove with a metal shield around it. There was a settee and two chairs on the rostrum which were covered with horsehair matting or cloth.

Mrs. West indicated that rumor has it that Mrs. White spoke from the pulpit but of this she is not sure. But good authority says Mrs. White sat in on some of Waggoner's sermons, encouraged him, and vouched for the truth of his message.

Two members wanted a church school and worked towards that end. They thought if they could partition off one end of the building and have a furnace instead of a stove, they might use the extra room for a school.

That winter these two members cut stove wood for a neighbor keeping many nice logs as their pay. These were sawed into lumber and stacked in the rear of the church to dry. Later it was used to partition off space for a schoolroom and the ceiling was lowered. A furnace room was also built.

Although the room was not completed, when camp meeting time came, these two faithful members attended to see if they could find a teacher. They succeeded and started school with five children attending.

The following year there were eight pupils, and other Adventists began to move to the area to send their children to church school. Thus the church grew, and at one time the congregation had 26 children in it. Still there were no regular Sabbath School classrooms. Juniors met in a member's home and the primary in an old building a block away that had been cleaned and simply furnished.

The next building project was to put in a basement with space for three classrooms and restrooms. That was done in the early 1950s. Then new windows were installed, seats completely refinished, the ceiling altered, woodwork painted, and a carpet laid.

Mrs. West also recalled the time a "miracle" happened to help the church during a financial pinch. A man from Washington, D.C., came to visit and met a church member who had just finished a beautiful quilt. He asked if he could take it back with him and evidently auctioned it off for soon the church received a check for $190 from its sale.

Time went on, the children grew up and left, some for academy and college, and again the church had no school. But there were some children with parents who still cared. One member, who felt the church should follow Spirit of Prophecy advice and keep our children in our own schools, worked and petitioned for this end. Soon school was started again and once more with five children. As the church helped the school, the school helped the church to grow and again new members moved in.

At present the Burlington Church has many children and has joined with Coldwater Adventists in establishing a consolidated school which is believed will not diminish with time but continue to grow and add strength to the Adventist cause in that area.

NEWS NOTE

• The April issue of Listen magazine will contain an article by Loren Bishop, a Michigan Adventist, about Spring Lake's annual "Smoke-Out Day." Bishop, a reformed "drug addict, alcoholic and five-pack-a-day smoker" has been a guest speaker four times at the Spring Lake Junior High School as a crusader against harmful habits. The Listen article tells of the annual efforts to have one day when the "entire town quits smoking and donates the money it would have spent on tobacco to the American Cancer Society." Spring Lake, with a population of about 3,000, is just to the east of Grand Haven.

MAKING HEARTS HAPPY

Twenty children helped to bring the happy sounds of Christmas to patients at the Sault Ste. Marie War Memorial Hospital. The choir was composed of youngsters from the Adventist and First Presbyterian churches of the city. They were directed by Mrs. Harold Vollick, with Pastor Dan Ipes assisting on the guitar. Mrs. Vollick, an Adventist, assists with the music in both churches.

NEW PATHFINDER CLUB FORMED

The end of 1975 saw the beginning of a new Pathfinder club in Michigan. On Sunday, December 28, a club was formed for the Escanaba and Riverside churches. Shown in the photo are ten of the twelve Escanaba members with their leaders Gerry Snowden, left, the director, and Terry Harrison, assistant director. Five of the young people from Riverside will also be meeting with the group.

ADVENTIST NURSING AGENCY ESTABLISHED

Sixteen ladies from five Oakland County churches have become the first graduates of the newly organized Adventist Nursing Service Agency (ANSA).

A special course, approved by the denomination's Department of Health, was taught by Mrs. Edith Lawrence, R.N., B.S., who operates the agency from her home in Pontiac. Elder Henry Mattson of the Pontiac Church taught the spiritual emphasis program of the course.

The sixteen graduates received the Red Cross Home Nursing certificates as well as the Home Health Aide and Home Nursing certificates from the General Conference. The 70-hour course taught the techniques of bathing patients, taking temperatures, respiration, pulse, and blood pressure, making hospital beds, hydrotherapy, and planning special diets. Each month special meetings are held to study Spirit of Prophecy guidelines, exchange experiences, and discuss mutual problems.

"ANSA is a new concept in nursing," says Mrs. Lawrence. "Our personnel will care for patients of all ages in homes, hospitals, or nursing homes, and will work on a one-to-one basis with patients."

Mrs. Lawrence also said the personnel will be classified as home health aides, companions, homemakers, and sitters working under the supervision of a registered nurse and doctors' orders. Referrals to the agency come from home care departments of area hospitals and from Adventist doctors in the Pontiac-Detroit area.

The Pontiac ANSA is patterned after similar agencies now operating in New York and Washington. It will be a self-supporting nonprofit organization and will carry out the health care programs set forth by the denomination. It is hoped that those rendering these special services will be better able to influence more souls to Christ and to a better and more healthful way of life.

A second class will be offered beginning February 22. For information concerning registration and costs, or for the services of the agency, write Mrs. Lawrence at 1545 Stirling Street, Pontiac, or phone (313) 373-0655.

on the possibility of building, buying, or leasing an appropriate place for a community service center. On April 14, it was voted to lease a former machine shop and to accept the challenge of remodeling it.

Work began immediately under the supervision of Melbourne Beebe. The pastor, his wife, and approximately 90 of the church members gave of their time and energies. Many of them worked long hours, often late into the night. Unexpected problems developed to necessitate extra labor and expense but eventually the building was ready with office space, a reception room, an assembly room, work and storage rooms, and a kitchen and laundry.

NEW COMMUNITY SERVICE CENTER OPENS

Many years ago a small group of women of the Muskegon Church met to carry on the welfare work of the church in the basement of the building.

Makeshift conditions made their work difficult and the need of a special building to carry on this important Adventist outreach was felt. In 1960, a fund was started for a proper place in which to work. Cash contributions, profits from sales of quilts and other items added slowly to the fund.

Then at a board meeting early in 1975, the new church pastor, Jamile Jacobs, encouraged the formation of a special committee, chaired by Alson Pusey, to check

Elder W. M. Buckman speaks to guests at the opening ceremonies of the Community Service Center.

Official opening services and an open house were held on December 14, with the mayor, executive director of the county Council of Churches, and Elder W. M. Buckman, local conference director of community services, as guests.

Besides the routine emergency welfare relief program, the center's officers plan for special community projects to be held at the building. These will include cooking classes, first-aid classes, and five-day smoking cessation clinics.

Muskegon's new Community Service Center is the 98th center or unit in the Michigan Conference. Leading out as Center officers are Mrs. Irene Allen, director; Mrs. Marian Beebe and Mrs. Muriel Pusey as assistant directors; and Mrs. Carrie Zeck, secretary.

years in St. Joseph, runs a busy practice at the hospital as well as participating in frequent clinics in small Korean villages and on offshore islands.

Barbara, his wife, is in charge of the hospital's orphanage, which was established in 1951 during the Korean War. Presently 35 children and teenagers are cared for at the orphanage.

Soon Dr. Ringer hopes to move into the dental department of the new Seoul Adventist Hospital which is now under construction. The new facility will have 160 beds, 50 more than the present structure.

NEW CHAPLAIN FOR
SAN

Elder Lawrence R. Yeagley

A new director of the chaplaincy department of the Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital has been appointed. He is Elder Lawrence R. Yeagley, most recently pastor of the Worchester and Northboro Adventist churches in Massachusetts.

Yeagley has just completed one of four quarters of the Clinical Pastoral Education program. A graduate of Columbia Union College, he majored in religion and later took postgraduate work in education at Toledo University. He taught school for five years and for the past fourteen years has served as a pastor in Ohio and New England.

The new chaplain hopes to involve the community in a post-hospital care program, a "caring ministry." It would teach people who have been through a traumatic experience "how to come to grips with their own feelings."

Yeagley will also work closely with the hospital's department of preventive care in planning health education programs for the community.

The award was presented by Hollis Strozinsky, chief supply officer in her division. Miss Pearson is Sabbath School superintendent and lay activities leader of the Tomah Church. MINISTERS RECEIVE LAYMAN'S TRAINING

There was a new switch at the mid-winter workers meeting this year at Camp Wahdoon. The major part of the time was spent discussing the new Layman's Training Manual. The ministers practiced the "gospel presentation" and wrote out their own personal testimonies in preparation for teaching these skills to their members.

On Tuesday afternoon the workers went through the countryside for 50 miles, ringing doorbells and inviting people to study the Bible and become better acquainted with God. There were thrilling stories to tell that evening after supper as they all gathered around the fireplace to report on the day's activities.

Pastors Bruce Hinckley and Ron Dorchuck organized the visitation program and will lead their members in a follow-up program.

On the first evening of the session, the final Ingathering reports were given and a thrill went through every heart as the final total showed that more than $102,000 had been raised for God's work. That total represents miles of walking by our laymen and thousands of contacts telling the story of Seventh-day Adventists and their work. More than 100,000 Ingathering leaflets were placed in the hands of the public.

During the week, one happy afternoon was spent outside riding snowmobiles or inside throwing darts and playing ping pong. The workers enjoyed the fellowship of this workers retreat and were even heard boasting of the trek to the dining hall in 26 degrees below zero weather!

The ministers returned to their districts with renewed zeal to lead their laymen to greater exploits for God during 1976.

GREEN BAY CHILDREN FETE PASTOR AND WIFE

Jesus said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God" (Luke 18:16). Pastor Ralph Wendt puts this into practice by giving the lambs of his flock a sermonette in the form of a story before preaching to the adults each Sabbath morning.

Love begets love, so the boys and girls in grades one, two, and three of the Green Bay Church School, under the supervision of their teacher, Mrs. Alta Mae Perkins, invited Pastor and Mrs. Wendt to share in their Christmas dinner party on December 19. Instead of drawing names to exchange gifts with one another, the children decided to use the money to buy gifts for their guests.

They have found that "it is more blessed to give than to receive" (Acts 20:35).

RICE LAKE CHURCH HELPS BURNED OUT FAMILY

As the January workers meeting came to a close and most of the ministers had gone home, one of the neighbors of Camp Wahdoon drove in bringing another neighbor whose family had been made homeless by a fire which destroyed their home. It was the privilege of the camp administration to offer one of the winterized cabins for immediate shelter for the family.

The pastor of the Rice Lake Church rallied his members who raised a sum of money to help clothe the family. The store manager cooperated by offering discounts and merchandise so that the family's needs could be met.

The members in that district have felt the blessing of sharing.

NEW DIVORCE LAW GOES INTO EFFECT IN AUSTRALIA

A new divorce law, now in effect in Australia, states that the only ground for divorce is irretrievable breakdown of a marriage after a 12-month separation. It replaces the old law, which allowed 14 grounds for divorce and permitted immediate dissolution of a marriage in cases involving drunkenness, adultery, and cruelty. Under the new Family Law, no lawyer is needed and the divorce costs nothing in uncontested cases where there is no dispute over child custody, property, or alimony. Courts will provide counseling for couples who wish to attempt to save their marriage.

60-HOUR SERMON

A Unitarian minister has set a new world record for nonstop preaching—60 hours and 31 minutes. The Reverend Robert Marshall, 55, is pastor of the Birmingham Unitarian Church in Bloomfield Hills, Michigan. Marshall's 1,120-page, double-spaced sermon was entitled "From Abraham to Augustine." He got through about 850 pages and was into the Book of Acts when he stopped. Ironically, Marshall preached 10 hours more than he had to. He thought he was trying to beat a 60-hour record cited in the Guinness Book of Records—a figure he had read in his denominational newspaper.

After he ended the marathon, a misprint was discovered: The Guinness record was only 50 hours.

CITY PUTS SCHOOL PRAYER BEFORE VOTERS

The board of education in Keene, New Hampshire, is leaving it up to the voters to decide on prayer in public schools. State law authorized the option last June, although a legal opinion suggests that the law is probably unconstitutional. The law allows local districts to let elementary school children recite the Lord's Prayer and the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

THREE LEADERSHIP INSTITUTES TO BE OFFERED AT A.U.

Three Leadership Institutes will be offered at Andrews University in 1976.

Topics and dates are: Goal-oriented Leadership, March 17 to 22; Long-range Planning, June 7 to 11; and Board Leadership, September 22 to 27.

The week-long institutes are sponsored by the School of Graduate Studies at Andrews University and will be directed by Rudolf Klimes, director of the Center for Studies and Services in Education (CSSE) at the university. This marks the second year the graduate school has offered such institutes directed at developing basic competencies in constructing leadership goals, planning long-range programs, and developing board personnel.

Proposed participants are: principals, superintendents of schools, administrators in higher education, ministers and conference officials, school board chairmen/members, church board chairmen/members, and business managers in education.

Up to two hours of graduate credit from each institute may be earned by qualified applicants in business, education, home economics, and religion programs.

"Evaluations by participants from last year's workshops were quite favorable," says Klimes. "Most persons felt the material presented helped them define their own goals in leadership."

Registration will be on the first day of each institute at the Graduate Records Office on the main floor of the Administration Building.

Inquiries about the institutes and respective fees should be directed to the Dean, School of Graduate Studies, Andrews University, Berrien Springs, MI 49104.

Some of the professions represented were: academy administration, business, counseling, dentistry, teaching, engineering, health, farm management, medical secretarial, medical technology, ministry, mortuary science, music, law enforcement, and radiology.
