How to Increase Income and Reduce Taxes

At tax reporting time we are once again reminded of the large amount of income which ends up in the hands of the tax collector. This may be a good time to consider making a gift to the church which will pay an income to you or another for life. You could have more spendable income, the pleasure of making a substantial gift to a worthwhile cause, and the added advantage of reducing income taxes and estate taxes.

Taxable estates are those which exceed $60,000 for a single taxpayer and $120,000 for a married couple.

Life income gifts which have income tax benefits are irrevocable charitable trusts, charitable gift annuities, and pooled life income contracts.

The method of determining income will help you to understand some of the peculiar features of these gift vehicles. For instance, the gift annuity income is based on the age of the annuitant at the time the gift is made.

The pooled life income contract pays the earnings of the fund with all capital gains reinvested, while unitrusts provide for a preselected percentage to be paid each year based on the valuation of the trust assets on an annual valuation date. The annuity trust pays a fixed dollar amount for a given number of years or for life.

Each of the above gift methods will provide the donor with a liberal income. Booklets are available which describe the various features of the plans in more detail. One or more of these plans could be useful in planning your estate.

For additional information on gifts that pay income, write for our free booklet, Security Without Worry.

The Heart of the Lake Union

by Emmett K. Vande Vere
Illustration by Nadine Dower

(Our vignette this week is an interlude, a bow to springtime.)
Before us lies the 1876 diary of George R. Avery, a student in Battle Creek College from Locke, Michigan. Avery became friendly with Professor Goodloe H. Bell and occasionally helped the overworked man in his garden. And sometimes Avery brought pals with him.
June 1, 1876: "After school Arthur Daniells and I worked in Prof. Bells garden planting beans, pumpkin seeds, etc." Daniells was from Iowa. June 12: "After school Will G(regory), Leroy Nicola, Arthur Daniells and I took a plunge bath and had a pretty good time down in the old Kalamazoo." And as final examinations neared, this appeared, June 14: "We (Arthur Daniells and I) were over in the (old) fair ground to study before school time." Thus in the spring one might have heard shouts and banter as these college men sported in the river or the murmur of voices as they sauntered in the grassy West End.

Also before us is the diary of Halver Halverson, a student from Litchfield, Minnesota. On April 1, 1881, Halver jotted: "April fools day (;) some ffools today too. Nettie fastened my napkin to the table cloth with pins, and Willie Spicer told me of the bug on my shoulder. Mr. Wall was labeled April Fools day at School." Not surprisingly Willie Spicer (often called Spillie Wicer by his comrades) was in the fun for he was brimful of banter and friendliness.

There they are, those college youngbloods, Daniells and Spicer, who, seasoned in the ministry and leadership in Australia and India, were to serve as presidents of the SDA denomination from 1901 to 1930. Daniells was to stand like granite for orthodoxy and sound financing in a struggle with Dr. J. H. Kellogg over "pantheism" and control of the Battle Creek Sanitarium.

Spicer, who defied the notion that scarcely any good thing could come out of Battle Creek, continued to push the large missions expansion abroad that Olsen and Daniells had begun. What a morale builder he was! It seemed every member loved him; they thronged him at church doors and campgrounds. He had inspiring words for everyone, especially the awkward boys on the fringe.

So for years the denomination was much under the aegis of Battle Creek College trained people. In 1913, for instance, while importuning Review readers concerning educational matters, Daniells mused: "It is more than a third of a century since the writer left Battle Creek College, and the blessings of those student days seem of greater value with each passing year. Among fellow students of those days were O. A. Olsen, E. H. Gates, O. A. Johnson, I. J. Hankins, L. T. Nicola, L. A. Smith, D. W. Reavis, Mrs. G. W. Caviness, and others who have given their whole lives to this cause. . . . Who of all these would speak lightly of dear old Battle Creek College? or consent to have all it did for them blotted out?" No one, of course, for Battle Creek College, even its pranks, had become a legend.

"How remarkable! What an amazing thing the Lord has done." (Matthew 21:42, The Living Bible)

Year after year graduate students at Andrews University receive needed help from the Biennial Offering in North American churches. President Richard Hammill asks you to respond liberally.

ANDREWS UNIVERSITY AND THE WORLD CHURCH

by Opal H. Young

Andrews University has played an important role through the years in promoting Seventh-day Adventist higher education. Educated men and women have gone from its campus to the uttermost parts of the world and have provided the personnel for denominational work in its many facets.

But today, Andrews is faced with an even larger challenge. With the growth of Adventist institutions and of populations around the world, varied cultures are finding a need to adjust the promotion of the Adventist faith to their particular way of life.

What kind of education can the denomination provide to prepare these indigenous groups to be leaders of their own people?

Andrews University is endeavoring to meet this new challenge and responsibility. The multi-ethnic flavor of Andrews' campus accounts for about half of the students enrolled in the School of Graduate Studies alone with others in the undergraduate colleges of the university and in the Theological Seminary. These students go back to their own people to share their new skills and enlarged vision.

The administration by the SDA denomination of the about 4,000 elementary schools, 300 academies, and 75 colleges around the world is in itself a tremendous and complex task. It involves principals, business managers, department chairmen, college administrators, and directors of education on the conference, union, and division levels.

Among the students pursuing the doctoral program in educational administration—one of the most recently initiated programs at the university—are representatives from all these administrative levels. These students have come from Asia, from Australia, from Africa, as well as from the Americas.

"It would appear from the number of acceptances that Andrews University is meeting a need of the world church," said Dr. Thomas S. Geraty, chairman of the Department of Education.

Enrollment in the two graduate divisions of A.U. has grown rapidly in recent years as added expertise, knowledge, and skills are called for in almost all phases of church employment and development around the world. Andrews is striving to keep abreast of these needs.

For example, one student enrolled in the new doctoral program in educational administration says: "It isn't reasonable to expect to learn how to administer education taught in a secular university. It is because of this orientation that I chose Andrews University." Many more students would like to be, and need to be, at Andrews for advanced study in church roles if they could find it possible.

It can be possible through the Biennial Offering for Andrews. The offering is scheduled this year for April 17 and will be taken up in all the churches across North America.

It is an offering that will continue to multiply returns on the investment, for students completing their work at Andrews give in return added skills and benefits to the denomination and expertise and learning programmed to prepare people to hasten the finishing of the work of spreading the gospel to all the world.

For some students the results of this offering will mean the difference between staying in school or leaving school. Every bit of the offering goes to scholarship aid for graduate students. In order to stretch it as far as possible, this year we have cut off all the "trimmings" like special envelopes, inserts to pass out prior to the offering, etc. This saves much money in printing and mailing costs. We hope that even without these "advertising pays" gimmicks that when the offering is taken April 17, we, the people in the pews, will respond to this invitation to give with a heart and a planned offering.

The Biennial Offering is our big chance to make April 17 a day for helping graduate students stay in school and making it possible for more to enter. It spells growth and stability and extension of the church. What we do on April 17 can make the difference!

Students from all parts of the world come for training to Andrews University.

SNORRASONS VISIT SECRET PAL 6,000 MILES FROM HOME

On their recent visit to the United States, Erling and Jeanette Snorrason paid a surprise holiday visit to their secret pal, Mrs. Anna Bjork, their 100-year-old friend. She lives in the Fairhaven Christian Retirement Home in Rockford, Illinois.

The Snorrasons were teachers at the Rockford Seventh-day Adventist School from 1970 to 1973. During that time students and teachers selected secret pals from Fairhaven Christian Home to befriend. The Snorrasons have kept in touch with their pal since they moved to Iceland, where they now teach at a Seventh-day Adventist academy.

On arriving, Mrs. Snorrason presented Mrs. Bjork with a Bicentennial plate depicting Independence Hall. The plate also commemorated Mrs. Bjork's own centennial.

Another highlight of their trip was the dedication of their daughter, Rhonda, by Pastor John Ford in the Rockford Church.

Good news! We have in March reached our $170,000 financial objective. We are now actively engaged in the planning of the proclamation of the gospel message to the first million homes this year.

Let us examine for just a moment where we have come from and where we are going financially. It has taken three years to reach the financial objective for the first million homes. As we begin the money chart for the second million homes, let us pray that we will increase our allocation of giving to proclaim the gospel so that those people living in the second million homes will not have to wait so long to receive the privilege of the wonderful gospel message.

Remember this! You vote with your offering envelope. Paving parking lots, erecting buildings, and other such things are nice to do, but they are not proclaiming the gospel. What priority are you giving to proclaiming the gospel directly to the people? Your answer will either hasten or delay the second coming. How are you going to vote in 1976?

NEWS NOTE

• More than 150 people, most of them non-Adventists, attended the opening session of the Wa-Rite program at the South Bend Church. The weight reduction program is designed to teach the scientific principles involved in reaching and maintaining one's desired weight. It covers areas such as motivation, goals, nutrition, and exercise. Small talk groups meet each week to share progress reports. Blood pressure and weight loss are carefully monitored. Mrs. Susan Korzyniowski is the program coordinator.

SABBATH SCHOOL ACTION IN ANDERSON

The Anderson Church has an active children's division. Here the primary children present a program for their fellow classmates.

WARREN BROGLIN 1923-1975

Warren Broglin

From the time Warren Broglin was baptized into the Indianapolis North Side Church in 1949 he was an inspiring, dedicated lay leader in the church. During the past 26 years he served as an elder, deacon, Pathfinder leader, junior Sabbath School leader, Sabbath School teacher, and youth leader.

One of the greatest joys of his life was working for the youth of his church. His effectiveness with the youth was in direct proportion to his love for them. He sang with them, prayed with them, played his guitar for them, was a pal to them, talked seriously with them, studied the Bible with them, opened his home to them. He was often heard to say, "I'm so proud of the kids in our church I could pop my buttons."

Warren had a burning desire to let young people know about Jesus and His soon return. Even though he was a painter by trade he felt his main job was to share the wonderful Advent message with others. He gave Bible studies to at least ten families and four or five were converts as a result of his witness. But just how many were really touched by the life of this dedicated Christian only Heaven can reveal. For those who attended his funeral it was not difficult to notice the hundreds, including young and old alike, who responded to his love.

The Glendale Church and the Indiana Conference will greatly feel the loss of his dedicated leadership.

The South Bend High School Fife and Drum Corps were the guest performers of a Bicentennial program.

SOUTH BEND CELEBRATES BICENTENNIAL

The South Bend Junior Academy Home and School Association presented a special Bicentennial program on February 11. Guest performers for the evening were the members of the South Bend High School Bicentennial Fife and Drum Corps. The 40-member group, under the direction of Terry Dawson, is made up of high school and junior high school students from the South Bend public schools and was formed about a year ago to help South Bend celebrate the Bicentennial. The group has given 60 performances since the beginning of 1976. The Fife and Drum Corps in full dress uniform presented a colorful variety of patriotic songs and marches.

Also included in the program were two plays, "Yankee Doodle Dandy," presented by grades one through three, and "Boston Tea Party," written by Melinda Scarlett, a fifth grade academy student, and presented by grades four through six. Patriotic songs were sung by the South Bend Academy Choir, and Academy Bowl, a history quiz, was presented by grades seven through ten. Refreshments in a patriotic theme completed the Bicentennial evening.

SENIOR CHOIR HOLDS ANNUAL BLACK HISTORY TEA

The Independence Boulevard Church in Chicago held its annual Black History Tea on February 29. Robert Rollins coordinated the successful program.

Guest soloist was Ruth Jessup. Guest speaker was Mildred Johnson, a teacher in the public school system and a member of the Bicentennial Commission of Illinois.

She is a writer for Ebony Junior magazine and Children's Theatre. She has authored several books including You Can be Like Martin, I Will Take America, and Anthology of Black Poems all published between 1970 and 1975.

Mrs. Johnson's presentation was titled "Two Hundred Years of Black History: A Bicentennial Appreciation." She reviewed the history of the black people's struggle from Africa to the United States. She mentioned also their heritage and culture.

Red, black, and green are the colors used by Black America. The red is for the blood they shed, black is for the race from birth, and green is for the land.

Mrs. Johnson mentioned some of the contributions blacks have made to this country in the last 200 years. A number of black men and women have struggled, fought, and died for freedom of black people.

Her closing remarks reflected the sentiment of everyone present: "It is my desire that we will begin to bear each other's load, understand each other, and walk each other's road. If we do this, the USA might be a better place for every member of every race, and the next 200 years to me will be years of love and years of peace."

CLINIC CONDUCTED AT NILES CHURCH

"I choose not to smoke" were the words repeated on March 7 by 12 persons as they began their plan to stop smoking. Five nights later, 11 of them had quit smoking completely, and the one remaining had cut his smoking significantly.

The Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking was conducted at the Philadelphia Church in Niles, Michigan. Those who attended were provided with the information necessary to stick to their choice not to smoke.

One of the participants had been smoking for 50 years. "Eighteen months ago I quit alcohol, this week I quit smoking, all within two years! What an accomplishment!" Other comments were, "For the first time, I had a good motive for stopping," and "I am so happy. Thank you very much."

The sessions were conducted by Meretle H. Wilson, seminarian, and Dr. Clayton E. Whetmore, physician at Andrews University Medical Center. Assisting were Lynn Simmons, Laura Simmons, James McClain, Raymond Howard, and Frank Alford. Robert L. Douglas is the pastor.

NEWS NOTES

• Dedication services for the First Flint Church have been set for Sabbath, May 22, to coincide with a visit from Elder and Mrs. N. R. Dower of the General Conference Ministerial Association. The Dowers are scheduled to be at the Flint Church for a week of revival meetings starting May 14. Elder Dower is a former pastor of the Flint Church.

• Dr. Ralph Ruckles, who is taking a residency in a Flint hospital, is presenting a series of visual health messages between Sabbath School and the regular morning worship period. These practical health programs have been produced by Loma Linda University and are available through the conference Department of Health Services.

• The Onaway Church School held an open house for the public in February. The school was closed for two years but reopened last fall with seven children registering. The first church school was started in Onaway in 1925 as a junior academy. In May of 1946 it was destroyed by a tornado, and groundbreaking for the present building took place in the spring of 1951. Mrs. Patricia Prest, wife of the local pastor, is the teacher.

• A neighborhood Bible club, an outgrowth of Dowagiac's Vacation Bible School, is bringing to 35 non-Adventist children a growing knowledge of Jesus Christ, His life here on earth, and how He cares for us today. Most of the 7- to 13-year-old children have had only a vague concept of the Bible and its contents. Several have memorized the books of the New Testament and have earned enough points to receive a new Bible as a permanent keepsake.

• The former pastor of the Dowagiac Church, Abraham Terian, now of Andrews University, was the guest speaker at an Ash Wednesday breakfast at the local Federated Church. The Dowagiac Adventist Church was also one of eleven area churches to participate in the World Day of Prayer on March 5. A number of Adventists had parts in the evening's program at a local Methodist Church.

• The First Flint and the South Flint churches have started publishing separate local church newsletters.

• An all-day seminar on prophecy was held March 6 at the First Flint Church with a special afternoon meeting emphasizing great prophecies of the Scriptures particularly as they relate to the secret rapture and other spiritual happenings of the last days. Joining Elder E. D. Calkins, local pastor, at a special afternoon session were Elders Don Gettys of the South Flint Church and Norman Yeager of Lapeer. About 100 persons attended the 2 to 5 p.m. meeting including a dozen nonchurch members. Elder Calkins is planning on similar seminars for the future.

• A cooking school and a Five-Day Plan to Stop

Smoking are being conducted by the First Flint Church. Six Monday evening sessions of the cooking school began March 8 with about fifty persons attending. The smoking cessation clinic was scheduled for the middle of March. Dr. Ralph Ruckle and Mrs. Marlene Eichelberg are directing this overall health emphasis of the church.

• Senior citizens of the Lansing Church are getting special attention because of a new office created by the arrival of Mrs. Evelyn Ward, a new church member from Hawaii. In looking for a place where she could be of service to her church, she noticed that it was difficult for some senior members to get to services because of a lack of transportation. She also felt the need for a system to be established to assure that someone checks on these older members periodically to see how they are. Because of her special concern for the senior citizens, the Lansing Church board appointed Mrs. Ward as coordinator of this new program.

IT IS WRITTEN RETURNS TO DETROIT AREA

After being off the air for a number of months in the Detroit area, It Is Written is returning.

Last year the program was being carried by Channel 9, Windsor, until change in policy resulted in the telecast being dropped last fall. Its return to the Detroit area became possible when Faith for Today, which has been viewed in Detroit for 25 years, volunteered to make its time slot on WJBK, Channel 2, available. Beginning

Sunday, March 7, It Is Written will be aired at 10:30 a.m. instead of Faith for Today.

On each of the It Is Written telecasts, George Vandeman takes a background of current events, science, or up-to-the-minute highlights of health and adds scripture references to them to explain and point up Adventist beliefs.

Key to the success of the program, however, is the involvement of individual church members. In no other denominational program does the layman figure more prominently, Vandeman explains. "From the promotion of the telecast, through a visitation of viewers program, through actual Bible study, the layman is the key," Vandeman adds.

Nothing promotes the telecast quite so well as another enthusiastic viewer, reported Mike Fellows, director of public relations, who visited with Detroit area pastors to help in developing a promotional program and to answer questions raised by the pastors regarding the telecast and its follow up.

VOP CRUSADE TO BE HELD IN COLDWATER

Voice of Prophecy Evangelist Joe Melashenko will conduct a three-week Bible crusade in Coldwater this spring. Ben Boggess, local pastor, will be the coordinator.

The nightly meetings begin on Saturday, May 1, at 7:30, and will be held in the Tibbets Opera House with the opening night's topic, "Russia's Race for Time."

If you have friends or relatives in the area and wish them to receive a special crusade invitation, send their names to Elder Boggess at 400 North Fremont Road, Coldwater, Michigan 49036.

Elders Melashenko and Boggess and the entire Voice of Prophecy staff requests that you "pray for God's Holy Spirit to guide the effort" so many people may be won to Christ.

NEW ASSISTANT DIRECTOR OF PERSONNEL SERVICES AT BATTLE CREEK SAN

Dovie Knecht

Appointed assistant director of personnel services at Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital was Mrs. Dovie Knecht, an employee of the hospital for the past 13 years.

According to Vernon L. Small, hospital administrator, Mrs. Knecht will now be responsible for screening and hiring personnel below department head status as well as assuming many of the responsibilities of ongoing department functions.

When she first came to the hospital, Mrs. Knecht worked at the main desk serving later as guest relations director and credit manager. She interrupted her 13 years of service at the hospital only once when she worked at Battle Creek Academy during the 1970-71 school year. When she rejoined the hospital staff, she moved to the personnel services department.

Dishes had to be washed and dried in spite of low temperatures.

WINTER CAMPOUT FUN

Weeks of preparation for winter camping paid off recently when 44 members of Pioneer Memorial's Evergreen Pathfinder Club braved snow, howling winds, and six degree weather for a weekend campout.

On Friday afternoon, February 6, the boys and girls lined up by their bus as Pathfinder directors inspected them to make sure all were dressed warmly and prepared for this winter outing.

The campout was held in Pathfinder Valley on the Andrews University campus just west of the farm. A snow blower had made a path for the bus to go as far as it could through the snow, but the Pathfinders had to trudge the final quarter mile to the camping site. Toboggans and a tractor were used to haul equipment, supplies, and tents to the area.

Sheets of plastic covered by straw were placed on the ground before the tents were erected. Then boys and girls scattered over the hills to find dead wood which would be used for the campfires.

Each counselor had helped his unit plan the menus for the weekend and the kinds and quantity of food necessary. Nine different campfires cooked a variety of meals including pizza, camp stew, egg foo yong, hash browns, camp style cherry pies, and the inevitable pancakes.

After Friday evening vespers and an inspirational program, the group settled into their sleeping bags. They were surprised to awaken to six degree weather with some campers reporting that cans of food were frozen and boots were "almost too stiff to pull on."

Sabbath afternoon brought a special presentation by four of the biology teachers from the University, with vespers and a film in the nearby Pathfinder building completing the day. As the various Pathfinder units returned to their sleeping tents, the shining moon made the snow glisten all around them.

Pathfinders reported a "heat wave" Sunday morning as the temperature had risen to 34 degrees. The wind, which earlier had sounded like a fast moving train as it roared through the tree tops, had also died down.

Members of the Evergreen Club are looking forward to their next camping experience at Pathfinder Valley now that the "hardiness" of the group has been established.

Brad McIntyre of Appleton composes and sings his own gospel music.

BRAD MC INTYRE MAKES RECORD

Brad McIntyre of Appleton has recently recorded an album of his own music. Brad has been participating in youth rallies throughout the conference and young people love him.

He started playing the guitar in 1970, and the Lord has given him a talent for putting his faith and spiritual experiences into song.

In 1974, Brad attempted to enter the secular music field in Nashville, Tennessee. About this time he began attending a series of meetings held by Kenneth Cox, and the inspiring message of this spiritual man encouraged

Brad to study and seek a richer experience with the Lord. Realizing that his religious experience would have to take second place if he continued in the secular music field, Brad made up his mind to give up his musical career, return home, and let the Lord lead him from there. The Lord began opening up opportunities of service. As he accepted the Lord's guidance, more and more doors were opened. Pastor Bob DeForest encouraged Brad by giving him opportunities to witness in speech and song.

At camp meeting last summer, Brad worked with the earliten youth. On Sabbath afternoon he was invited to present a program of his music. Many people were touched by the Holy Spirit and requested recordings. As a result, Brad decided that if the Lord would open the door, he would record for Him.

At the end of September, Brad and his mother went to Nashville. They left immediately following the last meeting of the New London evangelistic series where Brad had been one of the speakers. As they arrived in Nashville the next day, Brad was exhausted and became sick with the flu. It seemed as though Satan was attempting to destroy his endeavor. The recording session was scheduled for the next morning, and Brad awoke feeling very ill. But in faith he got up and went to the studio. All during the session he felt fine, but when it was over, he again became very sick.

Back home with the recording completed, Brad asked the Lord what to do with the album. Brad felt that the Lord did not want him to work through a secular company. So Brad set up his own production called the Three Angels Publishing Company. His album is published under the Message Records label.

A commercial artist in Appleton was thrilled when he heard the testimony of the new album and was commissioned to design the cover.

This experience has taught Brad great faith. Through all the delays, the decisions, and the open doors, Brad knew he had to depend on God. Brad's faith was rewarded, and even in the delays God helped him to have the right attitude toward the music so it would not become more important than the God who inspired it. Brad truly found that if we commit our ways to the Lord and trust in Him, He will bring it to pass. (Psalm 37:5)

GOD HAS SPOKEN, by Gordon M. Hyde. Published by Southern Publishing Association, Nashville, Tennessee. 1976.

God Has Spoken, a Southern Publishing Association book, is just off the presses. It is designed to enhance the study of the second quarter Sabbath School lessons.

Dr. Gordon Hyde, director of the Biblical Research Institute of the Adventist Church, has written this book to follow chapter by chapter with each week's Sabbath School lesson. It allows for a deeper study into the matter of God's communication with man than is allowed in the brief outline of the lesson quarterly.

"Although on the surface this book may seem to deal with the obvious and the basic," writes the author, "it seeks to reaffirm the divine authority of the Bible in our time... It tries to give the positive (and hopefully simple) affirmations of the Bible and the Ellen G. White writings which provide a bulwark against that highly subjective, rationalizing, critical, and philosophical approach to Scripture which has eroded its full authority in many churches."

In a time when evangelical churches are frantically barricading themselves against "liberalism," the author's conservative viewpoint in God Has Spoken will surely reinforce the firm convictions of many readers.

God Has Spoken is available at all Adventist Book Centers for $1.95.

ANDREWS PLAYERS PRESENT THOREAU

Henry Thoreau (Tim Matacio, left) is booked by Jailer (Gregg Girard) for a night in jail for refusing to pay taxes for several years in protest of slavery. The Andrews Players under Luanne Bauer, assistant professor of communication, gave two presentations of the historical skit at Andrews. Reviewing the play for the Student Movement, Grosvenor Fattic, assistant professor of English, wrote: "As a member of the opening-night audience, I found the performance to be immensely enjoyable and a satisfying confirmation of my long-held conviction that the best entertainment Andrews ever provides is that which we produce ourselves. I hope we can look forward to more programs of this type."

ANDREWS UNIVERSITY CHORALE PERFORMS 'ELIJAH'

The Andrews University Chorale presented Part II of Mendelssohn's "Elijah," March 6, in Pioneer Memorial Church, with James Hanson directing. Soloists were Vaida Smith, soprano; Donna Bankes, alto; Don Scroggs, tenor; and Clifford Morgan, baritone.

NEW RADIO TRAINING LABORATORY AT WAUS

A new studio has been set up this year at WAUS, the Andrews University-based FM station. It will be used to train broadcasting students in the undergraduate and graduate programs.

"The studio is equipped with new instruments including turntables, cartridge playback units, tape decks, and control console," said Wayne Woodhams, station manager.

Equipment was financed by the communication department, individual donations, and WAUS. The cost of the studio without previous equipment would have been $5,000.

"It is important that broadcast students learn in a professional environment utilizing professional equipment," said James Chase, who teaches broadcasting at the university.

"The emphasis in this training program is on religious broadcasting," said Chase. Students taking the radio programs write the certification licensing examinations in Chicago and must qualify before working on the air in any radio station.
