Unity Requires Coordination

In the Olympic games just past records continued to fall and one was led to wonder, "Is there any limit to man's endurance?" Commentators were often heard to say, "The winner showed great coordination and concentration." In other words, the secret of success seemed to be better utilization of strength or a "putting it all together."

Jesus recognized that success in the race of life and the completion of the course set out for His church would also call for concentration and coordination. He knew that a lack of unity on the part of His followers would breach the divine-human relationship so necessary in winning souls for Him. In other words, He also had you and me in mind when in His fervent prayer to the Father He said, "And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them; that they may be one even as we are one." John 17:22. This experience in its fullness came to the early church ten days after the ascension of our Lord and the record simply says, "They were all with one accord in one place." Acts 2:1.

The oneness, the unity, the coordination of "the body" on that occasion accounted for the victory enjoyed by the early church. It is important for us to note that divine power was withheld until human unity was achieved. In this a human role must be played, and while unity could not have been achieved without the Spirit of God, the absence of that greater power and unity in the church today lends credence to the need for the exercise of human will and effort.

It is to help us achieve that necessary spirit of unity, that necessary concentration and coordination of effort in the Lake Union, that your executive committee has called Elder Don Gray as ministerial director and coordinator of soul winning. He has accepted the challenge and will lend his total strength and background of experience to help us move all of our good departments and programs into a more perfect unity of effort and utilization of funds. Your local conference administrators are in total support of these plans.

This column will not permit more at this time, but watch for a fuller explanation of plans and a fuller introduction of Elder and Mrs. Gray to the union family. For now may I simply add, Unity requires coordination!

Mahmud, right, stands by the empty water taps as workers from the Tell dream of washing up.

One Day at a Time

by Joyce Rochat

At the Heshbon dig there are some things in large supply—sand, heat, camels. Sometimes even excitement. Other things, like money and water, are alarmingly scarce and about equal in value. When either one or the other runs out, the morale graph dips. But the Lord takes care of us, one day at a time.

Water runs out daily and we joke around a lot about being dirty. One of my friends pointed out that her lack of a shower was more my problem than hers. But yesterday it ceased to be a joke. Water got so low we began to wonder about the drinking and cooking supply.

That is why Mahmud came back early from the Tell, which is the Arabic name for the mound where the digging is going on. Mahmud is the senior representative of the Department of Antiquities. In his official capacity he inspects the property upon which people want to build, and if he thinks there might be ancient relics buried on the site, he has to refuse permission to build there. This makes him unpopular with some disappointed people. To us, however, he is pure gold; he is today's camp hero.

Because he knows the Fire Chief who is in charge of water distribution, Mahmud went into town to talk to him about getting some water out to the camp before the group came in. "There are about a hundred people out there," he explained, "and digging is very dirty work."

The Chief refused to give us any more water, however. We had had our quota, he said, and he was disgusted with the amount of water these Americans consume. Mahmud exhausted all the official and unofficial arguments but the Chief remained unmoved. Mahmud switched to a more intimate appeal. "We've been friends for a long time," he told the Chief. "I would appreciate it if you could do this for me as a personal favor."

The Chief refused to be moved by that either, though he likes and respects Mahmud. "But these Americans use more water than they can possibly need. One American uses more water in a day than one of us uses in a week. They have to drink so much, and wash themselves and their clothes all the time and brush their teeth every time they eat. Nobody needs all that water. They must learn to live like everyone else while they are here with us in this country."

Mahmud could see there was no use in pursuing his argument any further. The Chief was obviously determined and his word was final law where the water supply was concerned. He dropped the subject. "O.K., let's just forget it. We won't ruin our friendship arguing over a little thing like water. How've you been lately?"

They chatted for a while about this and that and finally, Mahmud said, "You know we haven't had a game of backgammon for a long time. I miss it."

The Chief's eyes lighted up. He missed the game, too. "You'd like to play now?"

Mahmud thought it over. "Yes," he said finally. "I would like to play. But on one condition.

"What condition?" The Chief sounded suspicious.

"Well, if I lose or if we tie, you don't have to give us any water. If I win, you give us water now so that when the people come in from the Tell they will be able to wash."

The Chief laughed. "Back to that, eh?" But he wanted a game of backgammon. "We will play three sets. You will give me a handicap, O.K.? Then I will accept your terms."

Mahmud agreed to that. "I'll give you a handicap of two points to start with. But I warn you. I am going to win."

"We'll see about it," the Chief said.

In the first set, Mahmud won two points and, with the two points he had given the Chief, the score was even. He won the next set and the score was then 4-2 in Mahmud's favor.

"One more set," the Chief said. "I want a chance to catch up." So they played again and Mahmud won two more points. Mahmud had six points; the Chief's score still stood at the two handicap points that Mahmud had given him to start with. Mahmud had won and that day we again had water.

And so we go on, knowing that somehow each day our needs will be supplied—though perhaps not abundantly. Each day we seem to have just enough water to get us through. Each day the budget seems to stretch enough to cover another 24 hours. Each night when "Dr. Larry" faces a mountain of problems, he knows that somehow, tomorrow, a few more of them will be solved. But we need you. When you talk to the Lord in the morning, think of us. When you turn on the endless flow from your water taps, ask Him to raise the waterline in the Heshbon cruse.

HEALTH EDUCATOR JOINS HINSDALE HOSPITAL STAFF

Roger N. Trubey

A new health educator has joined the staff of the health education department of Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital.

Roger N. Trubey, Dr.H.Sc., will be program coordinator for one or two health education community programs offered by the department which include Five-day Plan to Stop Smoking, Heartbeat, vegetarian cookery, stress management, weight management, and others. He will be working with other department staff in developing new community programs and improvements of existing ones.

Dr. Trubey's duties will also include speaking assignments for community and civic organizations. In addition to his responsibilities in the health education department, Trubey will be spending about half his time directing the patient education program at the Hinsdale Family Medicine Center, the three-year residency program for family practice physicians. "I will be organizing and developing a preventive care unit in the center for health education and counseling of patients," says Trubey.

Patients will be referred to Trubey by residents of the center for preventive care consultation in a wide variety of areas. Trubey refers to himself as an associate to the physician. "Most physicians don't have time to give patients preventive care counseling.

"We've come from acute diseases in the 1900s such as whooping cough to lifestyle, chronic-type disease of today such as heart disease, hypertension, and obesity," says Dr. Trubey. "Yet most of today's diseases are preventable if persons will alter their lifestyle habits.

"Prevention exists all the way from complete health to stages just prior to death," continues Dr. Trubey. "People don't really know how to live." He points out that the "good life" most people refer to is a life of ease which includes the old adage, "Eat, drink and be merry."

"But this isn't the most enjoyable life," states Dr. Trubey. "People enjoy life more when they are eating properly, exercise regularly, and watch their stress level."

Much of Trubey's counseling will stress the importance of these lifestyle changes. A reading room with health education materials for adults and children is presently being set up in the Hinsdale Family Medicine Center. Future plans call for a health module which will include preventive care films and displays.

Trubey's concern for helping people live right prompted him to follow up his college education with a master's degree in public health and a doctor of health science degree from Loma Linda University in California. He received both these degrees in June of this year.

The Donnellson, Illinois, Church was organized on March 13 with 22 charter members.

DONNELLSON CHURCH ORGANIZED

A dream came true in the lives of the Donnellson area members on Sabbath, March 13, when 22 charter members organized the Donnellson SDA Church.

Elder John L. Hayward, Illinois Conference president, was the morning speaker, bringing a very challenging and inspiring appeal to complete the Lord's work on earth. Following a fellowship lunch, the main business of organization was conducted. Elder Philip R. Colburn, local pastor, then led the congregation in the sacred ceremony of the Lord's Supper. It was a rewarding way to end a rich spiritual day.

The 22 members of this new church seek to share with the many cities around them the blessed hope within their hearts.

MARION CHURCH IS OPENED DEBT FREE

Sabbath, July 3, was a happy day for the 71 members of the Marion Church as they dedicated their new church building debt free.

The speaker for the service was Elder John Hayward, president of the Illinois Conference. Three members also joined the church by baptism and profession of faith during this special service: Carla Herren, Mrs. Robert Kelton, and Mrs. David Overstreet.

The Marion Church was dedicated debt free July 3.

The new building which was constructed by the members of the congregation in just 11 months is located on old Illinois 13 west of Marion.

The 34-year-old congregation outgrew the old church built in 1950, and the congregation began planning to build a new church in 1974.

The members bought two acres of land on which to build the new church in April 1975. Construction on the new church began in August 1975.

Church members, under the direction of Pastor John Martin, contributed all the labor for the building and raised more than $77,000 for the construction.

In addition to the sanctuary, the new building has eight classrooms, a pastor's study, a baptistry, and a fellowship hall. In the sanctuary dark walnut woodwork is accented by dark green carpeting.

The first meeting of Seventh-day Adventists in Marion was held in 1938. In 1942 the church was organized with 18 charter members.

LETTERS OF CONCERN PROVE SUCCESSFUL

After an absence of more than 40 years, Lawrence Martin attended Sabbath services on Valentine's Day of this year. He responded to a personal letter sent by Mrs. Anda Ladsen, a participant in the letter-writing campaign of the Beverly Hills lay activities department.

The church laity began in December 1975 to send letters of concern to former Adventists and missing members. Names were submitted by friends, relatives, and Pastor Hampton White. Lawrence Martin attended church a week after receiving his letter and said, "It came when I really needed encouragement."

Impressed with the congregation and the message, Mr. Martin began worshiping regularly at Beverly Hills with his niece, Mrs. Mary Austin. Mrs. Austin is active in the letter-writing endeavor.

After completing Bible studies, Lawrence Martin was baptized on June 5, 1976. He told church members that the letter sent by Mrs. Ladsen was "the key to my life."

Elder G. W. Morgan, left, and Elder Ralph Combes, Frankfort district pastor, discuss the importance of the decisions of those who indicated their desire to be baptized and become a part of God's remnant church.

MORGAN LEADS OUT IN EVANGELISTIC SERIES

The many dimensions of leadership were exhibited by Elder G. W. Morgan, Indiana Conference president, during the recent evangelistic series of meetings held in Frankfort, Indiana. The often repeated challenge to the church comes from Matthew 28:19, "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations."

Leadership is more effective when it is accomplished by precept and example rather than strictly directives. This is the philosophy Elder Morgan holds. Basically he was saying to the pastors in Indiana, "Do as I do, not as I say."

The leadership qualities of cooperation and teamwork were exemplified in three areas of the series of evangelistic meetings conducted. The splendid cooperation, assistance, and support given by the members of the Frankfort Church was greatly appreciated. The team spirit and the close cooperation of Elder Morgan and Elder Ralph Combes as they launched the campaign aided in the success of the meetings. The most important member of the team was Mrs. Iona Morgan, who was available to help out in any way possible as the meetings progressed. The church members and guests alike enjoyed the opportunity of getting better acquainted with Mrs. Morgan.

Putting it all together many individuals made their decision for Christ and to become a part of His remnant church. Whether it's in the north, the south, the east, or the west, the same human efforts coupled with the divine will bring success to God's people and to God's church here in Indiana.

CAPITOL AVENUE HONORS SENIOR CITIZENS

The Capitol Avenue Sabbath School of Indianapolis recently honored the senior citizens with a special program and lunch after church.

Experiences were relayed by tape from some of the shut-in members and everyone was awakened to a new awareness of the talents and needs of our senior members.

The program included special mission reports and music provided by senior members. The entire church membership marched and congratulated these "pillars of faith" on this day of honor.

EDUCATION DAY AT BURNS AVENUE

Adventist schools received the hearty verbal support of one of our school system's most successful examples during Education Day services at Burns Avenue Church in Detroit.

Dr. Frank Hale, dean of graduate studies at Ohio State University and former president of Oakwood College in Huntsville, Alabama, addressed a full house on May 22.

Students of the Clinton F. Warren Junior Academy in Detroit took charge of portions of the service, under the direction of Bernice Ford, assistant principal. Theme for the day was "Keepers of the Flame."

Led in by flag bearers Stephen Harris and Henry McCaleb, students costumed for the occasion began the salute to parents and other supporters.

Vicky Hill as Statue of Liberty and Dwayne Shade as Uncle Sam, shared the platform with sign bearers Karen Lowery and Reginald Dent. After prayer by Lake Region Conference President J. R. Wagner and comments by Pastor T. M. Kelly, Mrs. Ford read a Memorial to Our Pioneers. All the grades at Warren School contributed musically.

Thanks were given to the parents by Anne Broughton, Linda DeLoach, Marion Horton, Delores Taylor, Shirley Tatum, Alice McReynolds, and Diane Watts. Ollie Jefferson, school board chairman, read the scripture. Janet Watkins sang "Bless This House."

The following day, May 23, the youngsters put on an International Expo at the school. The whole program was a demonstration of the agility of their God-given bodies with demanding gymnastic feats.

The children were costumed for the occasion in a setting requiring the viewer to pretend he was taking a flight around the world. Grades one and two took on a yodeling routine of Switzerland; grades three and four modeled a wide variety of African clothing; grades five and six exercised in the Russian tradition; grades seven and eight used flashing lights clicked off and on in rhythm to give a striking sound and light performance. Grade nine took up the rhythmic limbo of Jamaica.

An assortment of specialty gymnastic, tumbling, and contortionist routines held the crowd in amazement. The children showed they were proudest of Harvey Burnett who has the agility of a pretzel. To the tune of Chiapenaca, the kindergarteners "went" Mexican. For the grand finale, grades K through nine sang "This is My Country."

During the program, City Councilman Reverend Nicholas Hood presented Luddington News with an award citation for its leadership and support of educational institutions. Luddington has provided Warren School with magazines and other printed materials.

NEW PRINCIPAL VISITS SCHOOL PROGRAM

On Thursday, May 20, 1976, the Milwaukee Sharon Elementary School students highlighted their 1975-76 school closing program with the presentation of an illustrative Bicentennial play.

The students, directed by Toni Gardner and staff, dramatized several events and characters associated with our country's history. The events and characters were beautifully portrayed by action and costume.

One special feature of the program was the introduction of the new principal, Donald Monroe. Monroe, a former resident of Huntsville, Alabama, has taught at Oakwood College and in the Huntsville public school system for 11 years. The pastor, Elder Benjamin P. Browne, and the Milwaukee Sharon Church family warmly welcome Mr. and Mrs. Donald Monroe and children to the area.

ELDERS JONES AND PEARSON VISIT CAPITOL AVENUE

Recently Elder Ted Jones of the Southern Publishing Association and Message magazine and Elder Walter Pearson of Allegheny West Conference were special guests at Capitol Avenue Church in Indianapolis.

Pearson lived and worked in Indianapolis before he began his ministry. He was welcomed home as he delivered a spirit-filled, practical message of power on Sabbath morning.

In the afternoon Jones related exciting experiences of his years in mission service and also what the Message magazine plans for the future. He played the trumpet and conducted an inspiring vesper service.

NEWS NOTES

- Elder Ben Boggess of the Burlington Church was one of three special speakers at that town's annual homecoming featuring a Bicentennial religious service. Special vocal and instrumental musical selections were also furnished by church members. Other Adventists participated in additional programs during the town's special celebration and Mrs. Cora West, a long-time resident, was asked to write a poem featuring the community's history.

- Eleven juniors and earliteens of the Grand Rapids Central Church were joined by two primary children and a number of adults in a bike-a-thon for Investment. In spite of strong winds and 80 degree weather the group was successful. Scot Schilstra, one of the primary youngsters, completed 14 of the 22 miles.

- Three couples of the Grand Rapids Central Church recently celebrated marriages of at least 50 years. Emil and Gladys Friedli and Henry and Ruth Afton celebrated 60 years of married life while Harold and Crystal Strelman marked their 50th anniversary.

- The Holly congregation has sold their 52-year-old church building and are currently meeting in the church school gymnasium. Adventists of Holly own a piece of property just north of Academy Road where they will build a new church. They plan to meet in the gym until the new church building is ready.

- Six students of the Jackson Church School painted their classroom red, white, and blue as a Bicentennial project. In addition they painted an American flag on one wall.

- A 3 C's—coronary, cancer and CVA (stroke)—screening test was conducted recently for Fenton, Linden, and Holly Adventists. A follow-up program for the 103 who participated was then held. Ruth Dennis, R.N., M.P.H., directed the program assisted by Dr. Gerald Buchanan of Holly. The program served as a pilot for a risk evaluation screening for the general public this fall.

- To celebrate Michigan Week and the Bicentennial, Elder Neal Sherwin of the Vassar Church presented the local library with a set of the books especially selected for this purpose by the conference Bicentennial committee.

- June Brown, a member of the St. Johns Church, who was fired in 1973 for refusing to work on Saturday, has been ordered reinstated in her nursing home job in Alma by the Michigan Civil Rights Commission.

NEW COMMUNITY SERVICES CENTER OPENED

Escanaba's new Community Services Center was officially opened on Sunday, June 13, as part of the Upper Peninsula annual weekend camp meeting.

In a special eight-column-wide feature story about the opening, the local Daily Press reported that "it has been a busy year" for local Adventists who worked to remodel the building as well as prepare clothing for disaster relief shipments and area needs.

Since the building for the center was acquired in November 1974, more than $25,000 has been put into the project plus many hours of donated labor.

Escanaba's Mayor Robert N. Bink cut the ribbon to open the new service to the community. The center adjoins the lot on which the church is located.

MICHIGAN MAN ORDAINED

A former Michigan man was ordained May 28 during the Georgia-Cumberland camp meeting. Gustav H. Scheuneman, shown here with Conference President Desmond Cummings, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Scheuneman of Grand Ledge. Elder Scheuneman and his wife, the former Shereen Finlayson, are both graduates of Grand Ledge Academy and Andrews University. He is currently the pastor of the Duluth, Georgia, Church.

PAW PAW TO BUILD NEW CHURCH

June 6 was a high day for Paw Paw Adventists as they gathered for ground-breaking services for their new $175,000 church. The land, plus a sum of money, was given by Neil Mullins, M.D., and is located in "a beautiful spot among pine trees" just outside of Paw Paw and on the road to Lawton. Taking part in the special program were: Joseph Moravetz; Elder Charles Keymer, Michigan Conference president; the local pastor, Duane Miller; Elder Gordon Carle, conference treasurer; and Ken Tozer. The present church membership is too large for the current building. As much of the work as is possible will be done as volunteer help by the membership. Paw Paw Adventists would welcome assistance by others, and those interested can learn of working needs and times by calling Elder Miller at (616) 668-2991. (Photo by the Paw Paw Courier-Leader.)

CONFERENCE OFFICE CHANGES

A number of replacements in conference departments have been made within recent weeks. These include the naming of Elder LaRue Cook as an assistant in the trust services department.

Cook moved to the conference office from Battle Creek where he served as principal of Battle Creek Academy, full-time treasurer for the Tabernacle, and most recently as associate pastor of the Tabernacle.

Three new office secretaries have also joined the staff at the conference office. Karen Petroit of Ann Arbor, a business graduate of Andrews University, and Gwen Lewis of Charlotte have joined the staff of the Trust Services.

Picking up duties as an office secretary for the Sabbath School department is Shirley Hutchins, who has held a number of key secretarial positions in America and overseas with the Far Eastern and Trans-Africa Divisions. She is also the sister to Elder Kenneth Hutchins, the conference educational director.

Greg Antidel has moved from Camp Au Sable to be the maintenance supervisor for the conference office.

Pastoral changes in the field include the calling of Caleb Rosado, youth coordinator of the Upper Columbia Conference, to be the associate pastor for the Berrien Springs Church.

Conrad Gill, who has been serving as Bible teacher at Andrews Academy, has been asked to join the Campus Ministries staff of the Pioneer Memorial Church.

William Brown, who has been pastoring the Mount Pleasant and Clare churches, is moving to serve the Upper Peninsula congregations at Sault Ste. Marie and Newberry. He replaces Dan Ipes who has been named pastor for the Three Rivers Church.

Elder S. A. LaRosa, who has been pastoring the Mendon, Sturgis, and Three Rivers churches, has accepted a call to pastor the Pearl River, New York, Church.

Jerry Jablonski of Houghton and L'Anse will become, right after camp meeting, the new assistant pastor of the Lansing Church. Jim Hopkins, who has been filling in for the summer, will take Jablonski's Upper Peninsula churches.

MELASHENKO TO OPEN
CRUSADE IN JACKSON

Joe Melashenko

Voice of Prophecy Evangelist Joe Melashenko will open a three-week Bible crusade in Jackson.

The nightly meetings begin Saturday, October 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the Bible Prophecy Auditorium located at 1101 W. Franklin (corner of Bower). The opening night's topic is "Russia's Race for Time."

Coordinator of the crusade is Pastor Ola D. Robinson, 1121 Herbert J. Street, Jackson, Michigan 49202. Friends and relatives may receive a special crusade invitation if their names and addresses are immediately sent to him.

As this crusade begins in Jackson, please pray for God's Holy Spirit to guide the efforts so that many persons may be won for Christ.

THE BEST

"The best!" This is the expression which many people use when they see the Michigan Conference parade float. This year's winning design features "Religious Liberty, Our American Heritage." So far the float has been or is yet to be scheduled for a total of 13 parades in various parts of the state. Many have expressed appreciation for its spiritual message and a number of requests have been received asking for the float to appear in additional parades this summer.

WITNESSING AND BAPTISM
SABBATH AFTERNOON HIGHLIGHT

A witnessing program and a baptism service were among the numerous features of interest during the recently held Upper Peninsula camp meeting.

A number of youth teams visited Escanaba's downtown park Sabbath afternoon to witness to the people there. Groups of youth as well as adults also went house-to-house Sunday morning in a similar program. Good contacts were reported and many enrollments in Bible courses were obtained.

Art and Lynn Pavlot were baptized by Elder Paul Howell.

The witnessing highlight, however, was the Sabbath afternoon baptismal service. Phillip Bova had been an orthodox Jew who had studied to be a cantor. He became interested in Jesus Christ, then had an opportunity to talk about his feelings with Dave Kellogg, an Escanaba Adventist. Dave admitted that he "didn't have time to give Bible studies" to Phillip, but he did anyway, and as a result was able to present his Hebrew convert to the congregation.

Deanne Danford had met Adventists as a girl in Cadillac. She enjoyed her few visits to the church finding the people "nice and friendly." Now living in the Escanaba area Deanne recently met another Adventist and commented favorably upon the childhood experiences. The church member, Marlene Rawls, called Elder Paul Howell at 11:30 that evening to tell him about this contact. Although Howell had no name or address for Deanne, the former literature evangelist knew how to tract down leads and within 24 hours had found his party and began a contact which led to Deanne's decision to serve Christ fully.

Among others who joined the church that day were Art and Lynn Pavlot who found it hard not to witness to others. Joyce Webber, a former Catholic, had just graduated from high school "and was presented with every award but one for football," related Elder Jerry Crow. Joyce was the class valedictorian and is planning on attending Andrews University this coming school year.

The final baptism was that of a young brother and sister now of Kalkaska but who had learned to know and love Elder Crow when he was pastor of the Lake Orion-Oxford Church. Sherri and Jim Schultz wanted to be baptized by him and so attended the weekend meetings at Escanaba for that purpose.

and was installed in the belfry of the newly built Adventist Church which is the oldest church and tallest building in St. Charles today.

As the bell is rung each Sabbath morning, it can be heard in the homes of the 2,046 area residents and is a reminder of the freedom for which the forefathers fought . . . the freedom of worship.

THESE TIMES INTERESTS BAPTIZED

Helen Thomson, center, a Seventh-day Adventist of Fairmont, West Virginia, has been sending These Times for the past 12 years to the Charles Walfords of Port Huron, shown with her in the picture. During May of last year while visiting Port Huron, she expressed her desire to worship with the local Adventist congregation. Mrs. Walford helped Mrs. Thomson locate the church and attended services with her. That fall when evangelistic meetings were held, the Walfords attended a few of the lectures. They became acquainted with the pastor, Elder Olav Labianca, and agreed to receive Bible studies from him. As a result of these various contacts Charles and Vivian Walford were baptized at Port Huron June 12.

John Gratopp rings the bell each Sabbath morning in the St. Charles Church.

110-YEAR-OLD BELL RINGS WORSHIP SERVICES EACH SABBATH

John Gratopp of St. Charles, Michigan, was in his regular place on July 4 to ring the 110-year-old bell of the St. Charles Church. At 2 p.m. the bell-ringing ceremony was started by President Ford, and the St. Charles bell joined others from all over the country for that part of the Bicentennial celebration.

Gratopp rings the bell each Sabbath morning at 9:30 a.m. as members begin their worship services. He has been doing this for at least 25 years.

The bell came down the Bad River on a boat in 1862

STEVENS POINT CHURCH SCHOOL REPORTS

Ours is a new, little multigrade school in a woody location in central Wisconsin. We are temporarily housed in a small three-room apartment adjoining the custodial building of a nursing home. The building is a neat, warm, block structure nestled among birches, cottonwoods, and evergreens. The three rooms afford us the luxury of a library and quiet reading area, a kitchen-dining area which also doubles as a craft/work area, and a formal classroom. The bathtub provides an ideal place to drain snowy boots!

Much of our science has been learned firsthand while walking trails to the Wisconsin River or exploring the woods looking for various kinds of fungi; gathering colorful autumn leaves; identifying tracks in the snow; bird watching; and collecting and identifying wild flowers. We even had a monarch caterpillar who went into chrysalis stage, later emerged from its sleeping case, and allowed us time to capture it on film before taking to the sky! We planted a large variety of seeds and enjoyed eating the radishes before school closed.

Each student has had an adopted grandparent or two among the nursing home residents whom we have visited each Tuesday afternoon after school. This has resulted in a very healthy attitude of respect and appreciation on the part of both the children and the adults. The children also wrote letters of cheer to inmates of the Wisconsin Penal Institution.

We wanted to do something to celebrate the 200th birthday of our beloved country, so after experimenting with some small needlepoint squares, we decided to do a large project together. The teacher drew the design on needlepoint canvas and everyone went to work. There was a mad hustle near the end to have the finished project ready for a formal presentation to the school. (The teacher even stayed late each day stitching!) At the close of our Open House/Science Fair the children gave a short patriotic skit, and the "Spirit of '76" was presented.

BICENTENNIAL ACTIVITIES

Students of the Milwaukee Seventh-day Adventist School recently presented a Bicentennial program for the parents and members of the four area churches. Children from all grade levels took part in the program in which the central theme was "Give me your tired, your poor... I lift my lamp beside the golden door!" Performances included music by the band, songs, plays, and tributes to Abe Lincoln, the women's rights movement, and the nation's first flag.

LENA CHURCH PARTICIPATES IN BICENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

On June 20 the Lena Church participated in the local Bicentennial celebration.

The day began with a parade. A float depicting the oldest and the newest churches in Lena, both Seventh-day Adventist, won a first prize of $25 in the non-commercial division. The float was pulled by a 1929 Model A Ford truck, owned by Wayne Whiting, one of the members, and constructed by Rick Whiting and Elgin Ziesmer, two of the youth members. Construction of the church models began in April and they are now on display at the Lena Museum, the former Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Another phase of the church's participation was a tent where Smoking Sam, antiques owned by church members, and literature were displayed. The Bicentennial issue of

DROP IN ATTENDANCE LEVELS OFF

The downward trend in church attendance among young people which began in the 1960s has subsided in the 1970s. According to a national Gallup Poll study, church attendance among young people dropped from 40 per cent in 1967 to about 30 percent at the beginning of the 1970s. The figure has remained stable at 30 percent.

Forty percent of all adults attend church or synagogue in a typical week.

ACLU SUES TO BAR TEACHER AID

The American Civil Liberties Union has asked the U.S. District Court in Providence, Rhode Island, to bar two cities from assigning public school teachers in Catholic schools. Calling the practice a "flagrant violation of the First Amendment," the ACLU pointed out that the practice has been going on since 1970. The ACLU is asking the federal court to withhold state education funds from the two cities until the teachers are removed from the parochial schools.

New Releases

NEW BOOKS from Southern Publishing Association, Nashville, Tennessee.

You will look forward to stopping in at your local Adventist Book Center soon, for Southern Publishing Association has just released four new books.

Your primary age children and grandchildren will enjoy the inspiring story of divine providence and answered prayer in Jonie's Direct Line. Southern Publishing Association considers itself fortunate to publish Jo-An Ritchie's book. Mrs. Ritchie has made promotional motion pictures for the Canadian government, and her play was selected for use at the White House in the Bicentennial Christmas nativity pageant.

For more than a quarter of a century Felix Lorenz has grappled with the advice from the True Witness to the Laodicean Church. Lorenz does not take an overly negative view in The Only Hope, but emphasizes instead Christ's counsel as a positive challenge to the church today. The Only Hope draws its title from Ellen White's statement: "The only hope for the Laodiceans is a clear view of their standing before God, a knowledge of the nature of their disease."—Testimonies, Vol. 4, p. 87.

As young people mature during their college and university years, they wrestle with doubt and perplexity. How can we find meaning to life? they often ask. Who is God—if He in fact exists? How does a good God relate to a bad world? What is Christianity? What makes Christianity different from other great religions? Charles Scriven in The Demons Have Had It answers such questions without using technical theological tongue twisters. The Demons Have Had It makes fascinating and stimulating reading for the Christian who wants to reinforce his faith or for the non-Christian who wishes to gain an inside view of Christianity. Every young adult will want to read The Demons Have Had It.

What is the student missionary movement? How are student missionaries chosen? What do they do in their areas of appointment? Donna June Evans has compiled a scrapbook of letters, General Conference documents, news releases, diary entries, and committee minutes. Mosaic of Adventure makes meaningful reading to anyone who is interested in better understanding the student missionary program in the Adventist Church.

Dyresen was honored last year by the Michigan Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers for his "service and devotion to the association" and for his pioneer work in analyzing the credentials of foreign students in order to place them in American universities.

A native of Norway, Dyresen was educated at Newbold College, England, and Emmanuel Missionary College, where he received his bachelor of arts degree in English. Dyresen earned his master of arts degree in church history at the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary.

Dyresen began his career as a minister in New York City and also served in that capacity in North Dakota and Minnesota. He was a pastor-teacher at Maplewood Academy, Hutchinson, Minnesota; and principal of Indiana Academy, Cicero, Indiana, before joining the staff at Andrews in 1959.

In 1960 he came to Andrews and served for a year as chemistry department chairman before going to the Far East. He was president of Mountain View College, Philippines, and Taiwan Missionary College, before being called to Puerto Rico.

UNIVERSITY HOSTS HIGHER EDUCATION CONVENTION

The first Higher Education Convention of Seventh-day Adventists in eight years is being held at Andrews University this week. More than 800 delegates from SDA colleges and universities in North America are attending.

The eight days of meetings will include general and workshop sessions organized to discuss the academic, social, financial, and spiritual questions common to SDA college campuses. Speakers at the general sessions include Neal C. Wilson, vice president of the General Conference for the North American Division (keynote speaker); D. H. Oakes, president of Brigham Young University (to speak on church-state relations); F. E. J. Harder, executive secretary of the SDA Board of Higher Education; Felix C. Robb, director of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools; and Frank Knittel, president of Southern Missionary College, Collegedale, Tennessee.

In the workshop sessions academic departments, board chairmen, deans, and other groups will meet separately to discuss the problems that each group faces in relating a Christian philosophy of education to its area. Two sessions are devoted to panel discussions on the topics: "How to Make College Teaching God-Centered" and "How to Make Campus Activities Christ-Centered."

The convention headquarters is located in the Andrews' Campus Center, which is also the location for a number of exhibits set up by the Andrews University Library, Home Study Institute, SDA publishing houses, and other organizations.

A special program of the convention events has been prepared and may be obtained from the convention headquarters office.
