It's Your Turn!

"The publication of the Lake Union Herald is for the purpose of filling a long-felt need of a medium of communication between the conferences and laborers of the Lake Union Conference; to aid in unifying the work in all lines of Christian endeavor; and to keep the members of the churches throughout the Union informed as to advance methods of conducting missionary work. We feel confident of the interest of the people of this conference in the different lines of work to be represented in the Herald, and that they will welcome the news of its publication."—Lake Union Herald, Vol. I, No. 1, November 4, 1908.

The purpose for which the Lake Union Herald came into existence is still the reason for its publication.

Editors have come and gone.

Style and format have changed.

But the purpose of the Herald remains the same. The editorial staff prays often that this weekly journal that visits your home will prove to greatly bless you and your family.

We are so very anxious to make the Lake Union Herald as practical for you as possible.

Back to that first Herald editorial.

"We are anxious to make the paper a success in every way, that it may fulfill the mission for which it has been brought into existence. To do this we need the assistance of all our workers and church members throughout the various conferences; and we earnestly invite your cooperation."

A readership survey has recently been completed among a random sampling of our subscriber list. The results of the survey will be published in a future Lake Union Herald.

And we covet your suggestions as well. Please take just a few moments to complete the suggestion sheet on page 12 of this week's Herald and mail it to us soon.

The communication in the Lake Union Herald is generally all one way—from us to you.

Now, it's your turn!

The Editor

S.A. officers, yearbook staff members, school newspaper editors, photographers, leaders in campus religious activities—they were all there, working, learning, preparing to lead their campuses to know Jesus better.

To Lead Is...

The Lake Union youth and education departments held a Leadership Seminar for all academy leaders at Camp Au Sable September 30 to October 3, 1976. Elder Jake Duran, Bible teacher at Newbury Park Academy, challenged us on leadership with the topics—

- To Lead is to Know
- To Lead is to Follow
- To Lead is to Love
- To Lead is to Decide

This meeting challenged our youth leaders to gain the confidence and support of the young people in our academies trusting that their leadership will help in the finishing of the work of God.

It takes a lot to follow Jesus—a lot of courage, a lot of study, a lot of joy. Jake Duran, right, challenged youth leaders to decide for Christ. Dr. R. G. Thomas, above, presented devotional thoughts each morning.

Restored Relationships in the Christian Family

by John and Millie Youngberg

What fun times has your family had lately?" asked the leader of a family life seminar. Family groups huddled and expressions of glee and enthusiasm came from various quarters. In one corner, however, there was a glum silence. The 14-year-old son, 12- and 8-year-old daughters couldn't think of anything. Mother did recall one time when they had gone to the beach for a picnic lunch. A few days later the oldest son told his work superintendent that he could not remember having had any fun in his childhood with the family.

How can families enjoy each other more? What are some secrets of warm relationships and family togetherness? Love is the glue that binds husbands and wives and families together. Sin is the crowbar which separates. What causes discord in families? Ellen G. White tells us that "the cause of division and discord in families and in the church is separation from Christ. To come near to Christ is to come near to one another."—Adventist Home, page 179.

The Secret of Growing Relationships

Someone remarked to us the other day that he had never known anyone to leave the church or to leave his or her spouse who had a growing relationship with Christ. How true this is! Although it sounds simplistic to say it, the only way to maintain a growing relationship in marriage or in the family is by having a growing relationship with Christ. Other means may help temporarily, but only the love of God can unite homes for time and eternity. To try harder to love one's family is like trying to draw water out of a dry cistern. Love is a gift that comes from God (1 John 4:7, 8). This love is manifest in the sacrifice of Christ (v. 9). When we perceive this love (1 John 3:16), it will be shed abroad in our hearts (Rom. 5:5), to our families, and to all those around us. Thus the Elijah message will be lived as love turns "the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers" (Mal. 4:6).

Hints on Bettering Family Relationships

Just because love is a gift from God, doesn't mean that there is nothing family members have to do. Love is a plant of heavenly origin which must be cultivated (Messages to Young People, pages 450, 459). Some hints that have been found useful to parents are:

1. Take time to do some fun things with the children.

Mom was washing clothes and the kitchen was piled high with dirty dishes. Just then the screen door opened and the children came running in. "Mom, let's fly the kites! The wind is just right!" "Oh, no," Mom thought, "I already have too much to do and now they want me to fly the kites!" But Mom didn't say a word about her feelings. The dishes and washing could wait. She dried her hands on the dish towel, went outside, and flew the kites. Years later someone asked those children now grown tall what some of their fond memories of childhood were. "Do you remember," one began, "the time when we went out with Mom and flew the kites?" The dishes meant nothing after the passing of the years, but the loving act of a mother who joined in the fun would never be erased from the hearts of her children.

2. Use evenings at home as family prime time.

We are told that the work of the day should not be continued on into the evening. A togetherness spirit can be fostered as children and parents enjoy a portion of the evening—reading together by the fireplace, playing an occasional game, or just chatting about the events of the day. Small children delight in having Dad read to them while tucked into bed and enjoy having him give them a special back rub. Tremendous communication transpires. The noncommunicative teens will even break down and express themselves while working on homework when parents are near to help with the hard task at hand. The evening's prime time may be a key factor in forming positive attitudes in the whole family.

"Picture a large circle, from the edges of which are many lines all running to the center. The nearer the lines approach the center, the nearer they are to one another. Thus it is in the Christian life. The closer we come to Christ, the nearer we shall be to one another."—Adventist Home, page 179.

3. Surprises add spice to life.

We yawned sleepily as we drove out into the countryside at 5 A.M. to see a spectacle which wouldn't be repeated in our lifetimes—Mars, Venus, Mercury, Saturn and Jupiter all visible at one time. It was a spur of the moment decision of the night before, and we will all long remember the bright planets looking down on us while the sleepy world was still tucked in bed.

Other surprises that might spark the family togetherness spirit could be: a. Notes of appreciation in lunch boxes or briefcases, b. a date with the wife for a special night out, c. welcome home banners for those returning home from an extended absence, d. a special bouquet of flowers delivered by the florist or just a rose to say, "I love you," e. an "unbirthday party" for one person in the family letting him know he is special with a few banners written on newsprint and his favorite food served in his honor.

4. Plan for relationship.

Good family times don't always "just happen." Interesting family workshops don't usually come by accident. We must plan for relationship! In industry, business and education, successful people plan and schedule sometimes years in advance. It may take 20 minutes to plan an interesting family worship, but the results will well repay the investment. This planning also includes decision-making regarding social activities. In one home the children, Dad and Mom took turns in choosing the activities for this night such as a corn roast on the beach, playing miniature golf, music appreciation night, or chasing lightning bugs as they walked in the woods. Of course there were certain guidelines about kinds of places to go, cost, and distance. One father makes plans to take his two teen-age sons out separately to a good restaurant for a buffet dinner once every three months. There the two of them talk heart to heart about the things which are most important to that teen-ager. Planning is also necessary for family vacations, and the whole family can participate in this. The Master said, "Come apart and rest awhile." Our families deserve this break in the year's activities. Besides the rest received, they feel the bond of fellowship strengthen and their love for each other deepen.

Love to be Unconditional

"Son, there is nothing you can ever do which can make me stop loving you." This statement illustrates unconditional love. Even if the son should get mixed up in the drug culture, disgrace the family name, or wander into a far country, this father will still love his son. His love is similar to that of the father in the story of the prodigal son. Certainly when the son returned he would be expected to follow certain guidelines of the home, but the father would love him all the way down to the gutter and back again. That's the kind of love God the Father has for us. It knows no limits. He loves even though the sinner may reject and rebuff Him. What an example for fathers and mothers!

One mother caught herself saying, "Johnny, don't do that or God won't love you." Heresy! Maybe people play games with love, but God never does. His love is everlasting. This doesn't mean that parents should be indulgent or not enforce just authority in home government. But parental affection will not be turned on or turned off to achieve desired ends.

Who Takes the Initiative in Restoring Relationships?

The Elijah message does two things: 1. It turns the hearts of the parents to their children. 2. In response, the hearts of the children are turned toward their parents. From an early age children need to be taught to do loving deeds of helpfulness for others. A self-centered child is an unhappy child. But the primary initiative for restoring relationships belongs to father and mother. This is especially true in the teen-age period. Parents are to be first to turn their hearts to their children. By the tenderness of repentance and confession they have the privilege of winning back estranged hearts and bringing the blessings of God upon their household.

Family Altar Suggestions

- 1. Learning a new song once a month. Then give rewards to those learning it.
- 2. Memorize texts or chapter as a family.
- 3. Read a continuous story.
- 4. Have a child prepare worship once a week.
- 5. Paraphrase texts that mean much to family members and set goals for application.
- 6. Have family council once a week after a short worship to discuss projects, goals and routines.
- 7. Have sex education for worship.
- 8. Give appreciation notes to family members once a month.
- 9. Dialog on how to improve certain character traits.
- 10. Have worship with some invalid friend of the family.
- 11. Have conversational prayers with all members praying several times.
- 12. Discuss how to pray and what to pray for.
- 13. Claim promises with prayer requests.
- 14. Keep record of answered prayers.
- 15. Have family prayer list.
- 16. Keep in sight of all (on refrigerator) special prayer requests for the day.
- 17. Thank God for answered prayer before prayer is answered.
- 18. Explain reason for praying in Jesus' name.
- 19. Prepare a Thankful List with each family member contributing.
- 20. Sing prayers.
- 21. Read the Bible through.
- 22. Everyone silently read a portion of scripture, then family dialog on meaning and application.
- 23. Encourage sending "dart" prayer through day for family members.
- 24. Kneel facing each other like an altar.
- 25. Practice presence of Christ in worship.
- 26. Ask for forgiveness for specific mistakes of the day.
- 27. Go out in nature for worship.
- 28. Use nature items for spiritual nature objects.
- 29. Play a Bible game.
- 30. Put a Bible puzzle together.
- 31. Have invocation inviting God's presence during worship.
- 32. Have worship in different family member bedrooms.
- 33. Hold hands during prayer while in circle.
- 34. Have each person pray for the person to their right.
- 35. All touch the head of one person the family is praying for.
- 36. Have light fasting during crucial family decision time.
- 37. Special birthday worships—telling the story of birth circumstances and goals set on birthday.
- 38. Dedicating new babies to God during worship.
- 39. Candlelight or fireplace worship on Friday nights.
- 40. Setting an extra plate at the Christmas table and inviting the Heavenly Guest to worship with the family.
- 41. Use sing-a-long records for worship.
- 42. Have doctrine quizzes.
- 43. Play 20 questions on Bible characters.
- 44. Read Bible Story Books.
- 45. Pantomime Bible stories or dramatize them.
- 46. Use flannel story boards.
- 47. Use paper strategies involving all family members.
- 48. Worship celebrations—like when finishing the eighth grade.
- 49. Use silent prayers occasionally.
- 50. Use a text as a prayer, such as "Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart. . ."
- 51. Each day of the week concentrate on a certain prayer project.
- 52. Assign different family members to be in charge of worship on particular days.
- 53. Study Proverbs for a month. Each day read one chapter silently and then all share something which was especially meaningful.
- 54. Start evening worship with members of the family telling the nicest thing that happened to them that day.

Epidemic Influenza

by Herald A. Habenicht, M.D.

Swine flu has become a household word since President Ford announced on March 24 of this year that the federal government would mount a campaign to immunize the entire United States population. The Congress quickly voted an emergency appropriation of $135 million to underwrite the program.

In February of this year an influenza outbreak occurred among recruits at Fort Dix, New Jersey. One young man died and some 500 were infected. Typing of the virus identified it as similar in some respects to the virus suspected to have caused the great 1918 epidemic (when an estimated half million excess deaths were recorded in the United States and some 22 million deaths worldwide). Since then the virus has been known to be endemic (always present) in swine but had not been known to pass from person to person since 1930 (thus the name swine flu).

Since 1933 when Smith and associates first isolated and categorized the influenza virus, much progress had been made in virus and vaccine research. We now know influenza virus exist in three types (A, B, and C) and belong to a larger family called myxovirus.

The Type A viruses are by far the most important and include swine flu, (Spanish flu of 1918), the Asian flu (1957-1958, when some 70,000 Americans died), and the Hong Kong variant (1968-1969, killing about 33,000 in this country). Only the Type A viruses are capable of abrupt antigen changes. This makes major epidemics and even pandemics (worldwide) possible because the population has little or no immunity to the new form of the virus. Minor, less threatening changes may occur every year or two but major threatening antigenic shifts seem to be occurring at about 10-year intervals.

Influenza viruses are spread by direct contact and by the airborne route. They are present in the upper respiratory tract and nasal secretions from the first to the fifth day of the disease. Older children and young adults seem to be the most susceptible and develop the most complications. Older persons with complicating diseases such as heart disease, chronic bronchitis, emphysema, diabetes, cancer or kidney disease are also at high risk. Children with asthma, cystic fibrosis, congenital or rheumatic heart disease, diabetes, immuno-deficient states, malignancies and chronic neuromuscular disorders are all considered high risk for a serious illness if infected with the influenza virus.

During an epidemic the symptoms of most infected persons are similar and easily recognized. After an incubation period of 36 to 48 hours there is a sudden onset of fever (102 to 106 degrees) frequently causing convulsions in small children. There is usually a chill, flushing of the face and headache. Often the patient will also experience pain in the back and extremities. A short, dry, hacking cough and sore throat soon progresses in severity to paroxysms almost like whooping cough. At times there is accompanying diarrhea and vomiting. If the person affected does not go immediately to bed, he will soon become prostrated and his suffering and symptoms become even more severe. The fever may break only to rise again 24 to 48 hours later.

As time and the disease progresses tingling may develop in the tongue and loss of taste occur. The eyes become red and nose bleeds are common. The pulse becomes weak and rapid and the lungs develop the roles of viral pneumonia. A cough develops different than the early dry hacking cough. It is now productive and frequently blood-streaked and mucopurulent.

The complications and at times life-threatening results include: heart failure, bacterial complications in chest, sinuses and ears, meningitis, collapsed lungs from severe coughing and intestinal hemorrhage.

Vaccination is one of our greatest hopes for preventing the sweeping epidemic that so many virologists, public health officials and other scientists are predicting.

Two types of vaccine have been prepared in the government-sponsored program.

I. MONOVALENT (swine flu alone)—known medically as Type A/New Jersey/76 (named after the state where the virus was first detected and the year of occurrence).

II. BIVALENT—The Type A/New Jersey/76 plus the Type A/Victoria/75 (the influenza we had last year).

Both of the vaccines can additionally be subdivided into split and whole virus vaccines according to their method of preparation. All of the vaccines are prepared in fertilized eggs and all are administered in the killed form of the virus.

The bivalent form is reserved for high-risk persons while the monovalent is used in the general mass inoculation programs between 18 and 60 years of age.

The following chart prepared and circulated by the Berrien County health department is helpful to determine the form of vaccine one should receive. As one can see there is no indication at present for vaccinating any healthy person under 18 years of age or anyone under 3 years of age. These recommendations may change with more field trials.

		 ◻ Not Indicated ◼ Indicated

*2 doses 1 month apart

Dr. Herald A. Habenicht is a pediatrician and allergy specialist at the Andrews University Medical Center.

Precautions: Persons allergic to egg protein should not receive the vaccine except under close supervision of a physician. Persons should not receive the influenza vaccine within 15 days of receiving a live, attenuated virus vaccine such as measles. Other vaccines (e.g. DPT) should not be given at the same time as the influenza vaccine. Children should never receive the whole vaccine, either monovalent or bivalent as it will greatly accentuate the side effects.

Side Effects: As of the September 17, 1976, American Academy swine flu news release, side effects were "mild and infrequent." Low grade fever (less than 101 degrees) was occurring in about 2 percent of vaccinated children. Occasional local reactions, headache and abdominal pain were occurring 6 to 12 hours after vaccination and seldom lasting more than 24 hours. Recently reported deaths in elderly high-risk patients have been felt by the National Center for Disease Control (CDC) to be no more than the anticipated mortality for that age group.

Next week we will discuss the basic health laws that govern our bodies' natural immunity and also the natural treatment methods employable in treating persons suffering with influenza.

MARANATHA GOING TO GUATEMALA

Want the thrill of Christian service, the excitement of travel abroad, the joy of meeting new people, and the satisfaction of knowing you have been a real blessing to those in need? Join the Maranatha flight to Guatemala, sponsored by the Hinsdale Church, December 31 to January 16.

Because of the recent earthquake in Guatemala many churches were destroyed. During these two weeks 35 men, women and youth are needed to build a church in this devastated area. Building experience is helpful, but it is not necessary. There are many jobs to be done, and whether you are experienced or not, there is a job for you.

Maranatha's own plane will leave Midway Airport on December 31 and will arrive in Guatemala the same day. The cost is a tax-deductible contribution of $275, which will provide round-trip flight, food and lodging. In addition you must be a member of Maranatha Flights International, which is $7.50 for students, and $15 for adults.

There are a number of applicants, including several students from our academies, who would like to go and serve in this way. However, some of them are unable to raise the fee. If you cannot go personally, but would like to help someone else, your contribution would be welcome.

To register your attendance or contribution call: (312) 323-0182, or write: Maranatha, Hinsdale Seventh-day Adventist Church, 201 N. Oak, Hinsdale, IL 60521.

VOICE OF PROPHECY NOW ON TWO NEW STATIONS

There have been two changes in the Voice of Prophecy broadcast in Illinois. The broadcast is now on in Olney, station WLVN 740, Sundays at 9:30 A.M., and in Quincy, station WTAD 930, Sundays at 9:30 A.M. Please invite your friends to tune into these new stations.

SPRINGFIELD CHURCH SCHOOL REOPENS

The Springfield Church has reactivated its church school. It has been 12 years since our students have had the privilege of attending church school in this city.

Three years ago we moved into our new church building situated on four and one-half acres of land. This year it was felt that we should step forward in faith and open a school with modest beginnings. One of the church rooms was transformed into an attractive and functional classroom. Desks were refinished, playground and duplicating equipment were obtained, and a library was established. All labor was donated by the church members.

William Rieck, formerly a teacher at the South Suburban School, accepted the call to be the teacher. He and his wife, Vivian, a licensed practical nurse, arrived in Springfield early in the summer to organize and make plans for the school.

It is our hope that from these beginnings our school will grow and that in the future a separate school building will be erected on our grounds.

KOKOMO NEWS NOTES

• Five Kokomo graduates from Indiana Academy move ahead in quest of more knowledge: Terrance Davis and Diane Lynn Knights are attending the newly constructed Indiana Vocational Technical College (Ivy-Tech); Thomas Ousley and Alan Dickey are attending Indiana University at Kokomo; and Paula Sue Roberts has accepted the position of secretary in the X-ray department of the St. Joseph Memorial Hospital in Kokomo.

• Pastor Merle A. Tyler Sr., a former pastor of the Kokomo District, provided the sermon, "Youth—Dilemma or Direction," on Sabbath, September 25, in honor of Pathfinder Day. Pastor Tyler sprinkled his sermon with some of the experiences he has encountered as a result of the 93-minute radio program, "ON LINE," which he broadcasts on station WAXC, Rochester, New York, each Sunday evening. A fellowship dinner followed the morning service. To complete the day's activities Lieutenant Lynn Rudolph of the Kokomo Police Narcotics Division conducted a program on the illegal and sinful use of dope and its effects.

POSTER CHILD RECEIVES GIFT FROM V.B.S.

Rodney Brown holds the handmade quilt presented to him at a Homemakers dinner. The fund-raising project was to enable Rodney to purchase a much-needed machine to be used in his medical treatments. Rodney is the National Poster Child of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. Last year he was the Indiana Poster Child. The quilt that was presented to Rodney was made by the members of the Glendale Vacation Bible School. Each block was designed by a V.B.S. member and colored with fabric crayons on a piece of paper. The designs were then ironed onto the blocks of material. Marjorie Earl and Margaret Watters, Glendale Church members, tied the quilt.

Rodney is a first-grade student at Indianapolis Junior Academy this year. His class and other guests recently celebrated his birthday at a party at Farrell's Ice Cream Shop, sponsored by the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

Rodney attends the Glendale Church with his parents, Harold and Cheryl Brown.

ADVENTIST NURSING SERVICE PROVES TO BE MORE THAN A SERVICE

Margo Mattson, daughter of Elder Henry Mattson of Pontiac, recently took a nurse aide course to become a home health aide. She hoped to earn money to go to the academy while at the same time witnessing of her Saviour's love as she cared for patients in their own homes. This is the object of the Adventist Nurse Service Agency (ANSA) of Pontiac where Margo and other missionary-minded persons receive their special training and assignments.

One day a call came for a home health aide to stay from 10 P.M. to 6 A.M. with a terminally ill lady and Margo responded. Her instructor, Edith Lawrence, a registered nurse and organizer of ANSA, went along to develop a care plan for that specific patient and to show Margo how to make her comfortable.

Before leaving that first evening Mrs. Lawrence had prayer with the patient as she teaches her aides to do. Every evening and morning thereafter Margo had prayer with the ill lady. She was also asked to read passages of faith from the Bible and promises of hope.

During the few weeks that Margo was on the job her patient became acquainted with other members of the Mattson family and appreciated Elder Mattson's talks and prayers with her.

When the patient was taken to the hospital with only a few more hours to live, one of her daughters called to say that it was the dying lady's wish for the Adventist minister to conduct the funeral service. She also had requested that his daughters participate, so Margo and her sister, Marlene, sang her favorite hymns. A large number of people were present at the service and heard Elder Mattson's remarks of hope in the resurrection at the return of Christ. Afterwards many remarked that it was the best funeral service they had heard because it did offer hope.

Another home health aide, Carol Atkinson, was able during the summer to help a lady with multiple sclerosis achieve a better diet and understand the beliefs of Adventists. This patient was especially impressed with the dedication of the young people who came from ANSA to care for them.

SPECIAL SALES TO BE HELD BY ABC BOOKMOBILE

A number of holiday book sales will be taking place during November and December using the Adventist Book Center's bookmobile. Special sales will also be conducted at the ABC's new display room in Lansing, at the Berrien Springs branch and at the newly opened Upper Peninsula branch at Escanaba.

Recently the display at the conference office in Lansing has been moved to the lower auditorium. Almost 500 square feet of extra display room has resulted, manager Doug Anderson reports. New display fixtures have also been installed making it possible to display many more books and supplies.

Each Sunday until Christmas the Berrien Springs and the Escanaba outlets will be open for the convenience of church members and friends. The Sunday hours will be from 10 A.M. until 5 P.M. These hours will also be observed at the main Lansing store on the following three Sundays: November 14 and December 12 and 19. Plan to take advantage of these extra hours of opportunity to do your holiday purchasing of books, records, health foods, et cetera.

The special holiday book sales will be as follows:

Nov. 7	Battle Creek Academy Gym	4-7 P.M.
Nov. 13	Muskegon Church	6-8 P.M.

100TH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATIONS

You are cordially invited to share in the 100th anniversary celebrations of the organizing of the Green Bay, Sturgeon Bay and Fish Creek churches on Sabbath, December 4, 1976. An especially warm welcome is extended to former members of these churches who have moved away.

Friday night in Green Bay Dr. Gottfried Oosterwal from Andrews University will speak at 7:30. Sabbath School study will be conducted by Elder F. R. Stephan of the Lake Union Conference staff. The worship service at 11 A.M. will be featuring Dr. Oosterwal. The Sturgeon Bay congregation will hear Elder Robert Dale, Wisconsin Conference president, during their worship hour, and the Fish Lake Church will have Elder Wesley Jaster. Those worshiping in Sturgeon Bay and Fish Creek will join the Green Bay Church for the rest of the Sabbath activities.

At 12:30 there will be a fellowship dinner. Dr. Richard W. Schwarz, head of the Andrews University history department will speak on "God's Leading in Our Past History" at 2:30 P.M. The 4:30 vesper service will be a musical program presented by the Wisconsin Academy choir.

A NEW SPIRIT

A new spirit enlightened the 115-year-old Oakland Church Sabbath, October 2, when Elton Dessain of Illinois and The Blessed Hope Singers presented Christ's love through ministry and song.

Dessain, originally from Oakland, delivered a morning message of inspiration to both the Fort Atkinson and Oakland churches followed by a brief evening storytime quoted as "memorable."

The Blessed Hope Singers of Sweetser, Indiana, then concluded the Sabbath by musically "sharing Jesus." The selection "Ten Thousand Years" was dedicated to Melvin Olsen who helped make the day of fellowship possible. However, the crowded audience appeared to feel the greatest impact of God's presence and love while the team triumphantly sang "My Tribute." A reward of tired, but satisfied smiles ended the service.

LOVE—A TRADITION OF SHARING

In 1976, a year filled with celebration and tradition, you can help with a tradition of sharing among a group of young people. Pathfinders is a worldwide youth organization dedicated to God and to our fellowmen. Every year these young people spend Halloween helping you help others. Instead of asking for candy and treats for themselves, these Christian young people want canned and packaged good, clothing, or money that they can give to the hungry and unfortunate in their community.

This nation is built on principles such as these young people are exhibiting. These principles are rooted and grounded in love, the kind of love which God Himself exhibited in the gift of His Son to save us all. In this year of celebrating what has been, won't you carry on the tradition of sharing and caring that has always been the test of brotherhood?

FACING YOURSELF IN THE BIBLE, by William J. Krutza. Baker Book House, Grand Rapids, Michigan.

The study of the personalities in the Bible can be a fascinating springboard for group discussions as well as personal enrichment. Facing Yourself in the Bible is a small paperback book with 13 chapters which reveals personality traits of the famous and not-so-famous characters of the Bible. Each chapter is presented both from the positive and negative side of the question. If a negative trait is brought to light, it is not left without biblical solution. Practical steps are given that an individual might take to correct this area of his life. At the end of each chapter an average of eight thought-provoking questions are listed for use in group discussions. They are not easy-answer questions. They are probing, stimulating, action-producing questions. After you read them, you cannot be left untouched.

Author William Krutza is director of Creative Church Communications, Wheaton, Illinois. He conducts special church conferences on prayer and on marriage relationships. He is a graduate of Northern Baptist Seminary, Oakbrook, Illinois, and is the author of more than 20 books, including the bestselling Facing the Issues.

He says of Facing Yourself in the Bible, "My love for the study of biblical personalities has led me to examine my own character and my reactions to the God who created me as a person. Like the biblical people who had life-changing encounters with God, I'm grateful for the possibilities still open to God to do His life-changing work in my life.

"These discussions could be said to have originated in some of the struggles I have faced in life. Because I have encountered the God of these biblical people, I am better equipped to face life today."

Facing Yourself in the Bible is available at Christian book stores for $1.25.

"What is she up to now?" a guinea pig wonders as Kathy Canuteson prepares to test the effect of an aspirin-like compound on its hearing.

HONORS STUDENT CONDUCTS STUDY ON HEARING IN GUINEA PIGS

Kathy Canuteson, senior communications and elementary education major, is conducting a study on the effect of an aspirin-like compound on the hearing of guinea pigs. The study is in connection with an honors research project conducted under the auspices of the communications department.

In the experimental model, all the guinea pigs were put into a Skinner box where they were taught to push a lever and receive food. Four of the animals received only food. The other four heard a sound like that heard by humans in a hearing test each time they got food.

Following an eight-hour learning period, the guinea pigs were taken from their Skinner boxes. Two from each group were injected with a high dose of sodium salicylate, similar in effect to aspirin. The others received a placebo-like injection.

Four hours later, when the compound reached its maximum effect in the body, all the animals were placed in their Skinner boxes again. This time, they received no food upon pushing the lever. However, those that heard sound during the first phase of the experiment received that stimulus without the accompanying food.

During the next 12 hours the behavior extinction pattern of both groups was compared.

Kathy and her advisors, Karen Myers and Robert Fadeley, call the project a "null hypothesis" experiment, meaning that they do not really know what results to expect. They anticipate, however, finding a measurable difference in the response of the guinea pigs injected with the aspirin compound and those not.

It has already been shown, says Kathy, that toxic doses of aspirin cause inner ear pressure and affect the hair cells of the cochlea. In studying her findings, Kathy hopes to find whether the actual hearing of the animals tested is adversely affected by a high dose of sodium salicylate.

Research is of keen interest to Kathy. She plans to pursue a career in audiology following her graduation in 1977.

SEMINARY PROFESSORS TO PRESENT PAPERS AT SOCIETY OF BIBLICAL LITERATURE

Six professors from the Andrews University S.D.A. Theological Seminary will present seven papers at the annual meeting of the Society of Biblical Literature in St. Louis, October 28 to 31. Thomas Blincoe, dean of the Seminary, reports that this is the largest group of Seminary faculty ever chosen to make presentations at a scholarly meeting.

The convention includes members of the American Academy of Religion and the American Schools of Oriental Research, as well as the Society of Biblical Literature. A thousand scholars are expected to attend the sessions.

Presenting papers will be Lawrence T. Geraty (two papers), Gerhard F. Hasel, William G. Johnsson, Robert M. Johnston, Sakae Kubo and W. L. Richards.

UPDATED ENROLLMENT FIGURES

The current enrollment of Andrews University is 2,822 which is a 6.3 percent increase over last year. The breakdown by school is as follows: College of Arts and Sciences, 1,812; School of Graduate Studies, 378; Theological Seminary, 381; College of Technology, 244 (which is a 23.2 percent increase over last year), and there are seven unclassified students.

DIETITIANS ATTEND NATIONAL CONVENTIONS

Three faculty members and three students in the Andrews University coordinated undergraduate program in general dietetics attended the 22nd Annual Meeting of the S.D.A. Dietetics Association in Stoneham, Massachusetts, October 10 to 12. Following this they participated in the national meeting of the American Dietetic Association held in Boston, October 12 to 15.

Clinton Wall, head of A.U. Food Systems Consultants and president of the S.D.A. Dietetics Association, announced the theme of the meeting as "Making Christ First." He noted: "We need to study to use the privilege of serving our patients, students, personnel, and guests in a manner pleasing to God. We should be first Christians and then professional people, showing this in our appearance and actions."
