The Divine Incentive— Love

"Let all that you do be done in love." 1 Corinthians 16:14, RSV.

Department stores these days are a flurry of action. Cash registers are singing the kind of tune that pleases those who with human motives promote human wares. Many who cannot afford to buy seem driven by some lower compulsion to obtain, by whatever means, a "thing" that will hopefully impress. Too often one finds himself calculating that which is given or received by some monetary measurement. It is very human but also very sad.

If we can just look a little higher and learn to cherish the so-called little things—the company of family and friends, the loving gestures, the kindly spoken words, how much happier we would be. To seek out and serve those who are downhearted or downtrodden. To be reminded that it was our lowered state that prompted God nearly 2,000 years ago to love so much that He sent His Son to Bethlehem and to us.

The ultimate fulfillment of their love will soon spring eternal for those who respond to God's gift and relate to their fellowmen through the divine incentive—love.

The Christmas Learner

by Barry Casey

Let us imagine a story about giving—and receiving. We will place it during the Christmas season so there will be no mistaking what it is about. In it we will have a young man, still a boy really, who has learned a great deal about giving, but little about receiving. He has learned that it is better to give than to receive. He has learned that giving is good because it shows that one is unselfish. When people find out how unselfish he is they will be touched by his generosity and will give him more. The idea, he believes, is to cast your bread upon the waters in the general direction of those who can return it and, sure enough, it will be returned. Giving is a sure way of getting.

The trick is to keep your left hand from knowing what your right hand is up to. That way your giving will be genuine on the right and ignorant of evil on the left. And the cardinal rule, above all else, primary and second to none, is to give with a cheerful heart. Being at least outwardly cheerful may take some of the sting out of giving away something you really want to keep.

Now let us imagine him dressed in a thin corduroy jacket and worn jeans. His breath comes in short, quick gasps. Now and then he puffs a grey cloud of steam into the air. He walks the bridge back and forth across the frozen river, listening to the throaty Austrian voices, and stomping his feet to keep warm. He leans far over the railing of the bridge trying to imagine what it would be like to suddenly sink beneath that green ice. He is remembering everything he experiences because he knows it is a rare and precious thing to be out of one's element. And he certainly is. He doesn't know the language; he has only a few cents to his name, and he is very hungry.

Nevertheless, he smiles as he studies the faces of the people hurrying along the streets. Even though he cannot talk with them, he feels he is of their families. Part of the great, marvelous family of man. He knows that he generally grows quite cynical about this time of year and that already he is overdue, but feeling a part of the family of man has slowed the cynicism to a weak drop or two.

Hunger and cold, however, are not assuaged by warm feelings about humanity. He makes his way upstream against the crowds of people until he comes to a pastry shop. He stands gazing at the bread and gaily frosted cakes until he feels like the little orphan boy on Christmas Eve outside the toy store.

A wave of hot, thick, sweet-smelling air rolls over him as he enters. The little handful of Austrian coins he has will buy two rolls. And no more. He counts the change again and rechecks the price. No doubt about it this time. This is lunch, supper and probably breakfast too.

He lays the coins out carefully on the counter and is embarrassed by the motherly gaze of the woman waiting on him. She studies him for a moment and then bends down to get the rolls. Two rolls, he thinks. Very small bites should make them last a long time.

Outside he reaches into the bag and suddenly jerks his hand out disbelievingly. In the bag are four rolls and a slice of cheese. He steals a glance back through the window. The woman behind the counter glances at him, her hands busy, and smiles broadly. And he smiles too.

Now let us imagine him that night, swaying sleepily in the compartment of a train on its way to Switzerland. He is wondering how cold it was the night the baby Jesus lay in the rough trough there in the stable. He wonders if God cheerfully gave His Son to the earth. Thinking of this holy picture triggers a flood of Christmas images in his mind. For a moment cynicism flickers like the tongue of a snake in his spirit. Then he thinks of giving—and receiving—and forgets to be cynical. Giving is good. Receiving is good. If giving blesses both the giver and the givee, then receiving must bless the receiver and the receiver. Here he shakes himself fully awake and corrects his grammar.

He remembers one Christmas when his father, who was always away on business trips, finally had a Christmas Eve with his family. When it came time to open presents, his father suggested he look in the hall closet to find if there was anything there that could possibly be a present. He remembers opening the closet and spying on the top shelf the radio kit he had longed for since he was 10. But being 12 he had developed a certain blase attitude toward surprises. He will never forget the disappointment on his father's face when he merely murmured a cool thanks and calmly reached up to get it.

From this he puts together a conclusion. 'Tis truly blessed to give but 'tis just as blessed to graciously and genuinely receive. It is as much a gift to the giver to see the joy on the receiver's face as the gift is to the receiver.

An hour later he is sitting in the tiny waiting room of a train station high in the Alps. Through the frosted windows he can see shapes moving in the room next door and the bouncy rasp of violins and concertinas is clear. Suddenly the doors burst open and a tiny old woman marches out clutching two oranges and a large slice of cake. She comes straight over to him and holds out the food in wrinkled hands. In the way she smiles she reminds him of his grandmother. Impulsively he reaches up and kisses her. Then they are both laughing out thank-you's, he saying, "Danke, danke," and she "tank you, tank you."

Just then the doors fly open again and stay open as a large, beaming man, evidently the husband, stands there and beckons. Through the spaces on either side of his ample frame can be seen tables loaded with fruit, sandwiches, cakes and drinks. I must be in Paradise, thinks the boy, and this is the great feast of the believers. As if in some fairy tale, or parable from the Gospels, he enters, arms linked through those of his new family.

Half an hour later, pockets stuffed with fruit, pack loaded with sandwiches, and a smile on his face so big it hurts the muscles of his cheeks, he clambers aboard his train. As he turns in the doorway the entire party is standing on the platform and shouting farewells. In the background can be seen the violinist and the concertinist still grinding away. He shakes his head in glad bewilderment and waves goodbye.

And suddenly he is awake, his body swaying to the motion of the train. As he comes out of his dream the train is slowing and stopping, and he sees with a certain satisfaction, that it is a station with a tiny waiting room. Music can be heard through the frosted windows of the room next door, and as he sits there waiting, he reflects that for the God who has everything perhaps the best gift of all would be the unbounded joy of the believer for whom Christ has come into the world.

est at the rate of 5¼ percent and will at the same time be making a valuable contribution to the Lord's work. January 1, 1977, would be a very good time to make this transfer.

This program, which was started during the early part of 1975, has made good progress during 1976. Deposits thus far from members, churches and conferences amount to approximately $650,000. Deposits from members during 1976 amounted to nearly $300,000. Thus far loans have been made to 18 church and school projects. We are very grateful for the many people who are participating in this program.

Deposits in the Revolving Fund are for a specified period of time and are covered by a promissory note. However, in case of an emergency, funds may be withdrawn before the maturity of the note after a 30-day notice. Interest is paid in July and January of each year. The minimum initial deposit is $1,000.

Practically all of the funds that have come into the Revolving Fund have been loaned to various projects. Several other church projects are underway and funds will be needed in the future. Being able to obtain loans at 6½ percent interest results in a very significant savings to our churches.

Please send your deposits to the Treasurer, Lake Union Conference, Box C, Berrien Springs, MI 49103. We look forward to hearing from you during the next few weeks.

Why Not Invest in God's Work?

The year 1976 is fast drawing to a close and many people are in the process of making plans for the new year. This is a good time for all of us to review our stewardship relationship with the Lord, to ponder the way in which we are managing the material resources that God has placed in our hands.

No doubt many who are reading this article have savings in a nearby bank or in some other type of investment. Your funds are earning interest, but they are being used by people or organizations that are in no way related to the work of God.

We invite you to give serious consideration to transferring these funds to the Lake Union Revolving Fund where they will continue to earn inter-

NEWS NOTES

• Every month San employees with birthdays during that particular month are invited to a birthday luncheon in their honor. However with the increasing number of employees, the dining area used for the luncheons cannot accommodate all the employees at one time, so two luncheons are now being held each month.

• A special holiday brunch for all hospital employees is planned this year. Because it has become impossible to accommodate the increasing number of employees and their families in the cafeteria dining room, it was felt that combining the traditional Thanksgiving dinner and the hospital Christmas program would be a solution to the crowded conditions. Also the holiday brunch will allow other groups such as the volunteers, physicians and Board of Directors to attend. Good food, music and entertainment will be included in the brunch to be held December 19 at the Oak Brook Sheraton ballroom.

• The hospital's annual Week of Spiritual Emphasis was held during the first week of November. Guest speaker was Don Hawley, editor of Life and Health. His keynote address for the week was "Communion with God." Three half-hour services were held each morning to accommodate employees.

• Five hundred calls in one day were recently made to the health education department's Slim Line Dial, a 24-hour recorded message which gives tips and encouragement to those trying to lose weight. The record number of calls was largely attributed to an announcement made by Chicago radio station WGN that day. One caller had phoned in to a talk show about a weight problem, and in response host Wally Phillips announced the Slim Line phone number. The hospital has three other community phone services: Smoker's Dial, Inspiration Dial and Nutrition Dial.

NEWS NOTE

• Roberta Marsmaker of the Broadview Church put her yard to good use this summer. Not only were Sabbath School and church held there a few times, but also two farewell events were held, one for Gail and Paul Pelley who left to work at the Medical Center Hospital in Punta Gorda, Florida, and another for Sarah and Eddie McHenry who left to work at the Karachi Hospital in Karachi, Pakistan, where Eddie is in charge of maintenance.

BROADVIEW ACADEMY NEWS NOTES

• Enrollment for the 1976-77 school year is the highest in the history of Broadview Academy. Two hundred and eighty-four students have registered: 82 seniors, 82 juniors, 70 sophomores and 30 freshmen.

• This fall all of the students and staff went to Little Grassy Lake Camp in southern Illinois for a five-day retreat organized by the Student Association. Spiritual emphasis was given by guest speakers Elder M. L. Nickless from Gary, Indiana, and Elder Robert Reynolds from Mount Vernon, Illinois. Time was also devoted to orientation of school rules, regulations and guidelines, special emphasis on how to study, and recreation.

• On Sunday, October 10, a parent-teacher meeting was held at Broadview for the first time. Guest speaker for the first hour of the meeting was Mercedes Dyer, professor of education in counseling and guidance at Andrews University, who spoke on the need for parents and teachers to work together. Constructive recommendations were presented by the parents attending. They requested another such meeting to be held a few weeks after the close of the first semester.

16TH BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION AT DOWNERS GROVE

As part of the 16th birthday celebration of the Downers Grove Church a Passover skit, "A Night to Remember," was performed on Friday, November 5. Also featured for the weekend was Elder Lowell Bock, president of the Lake Union Conference, who spoke on Sabbath, November 6. Coordinator for the weekend celebration was Erma Serles.

NEW FACULTY AT BROADVIEW ACADEMY

Several new faculty and staff have joined Broadview Academy this year.

Adan Alcala teaches Spanish, Bible and one mathematics course. Mr. Alcala came to Broadview from the Lake Shore Seventh-day Adventist School in Chicago. He received his bachelor's degree from Antillian College, and his master's degree from Andrews University in 1975. He and his wife, Rosa, have two children, Omar and Xiomara.

Ellen Harris is assistant dean of girls, and also teaches home economics and English. She comes to Broadview from Andrews University where she is working on her master's degree in home economics and education.

John and Phyllis Newsom have joined the Broadview staff where Mr. Newsom is director of food service. He also teaches classes in baking and food service. He graduated in 1973 from Pacific Union College with a bachelor of science degree and was food productions manager there before coming to Broadview. Newsom is an associate member of the American Dietetics Association. His wife, Phyllis, works part time as a supervisor in food service. The Newsoms have four children: a daughter, Jan, a freshman at Broadview; and Anita, Glenda and John who are in elementary school.

Leonard and Debbie Smith have joined the staff where Leonard teaches piano, organ, instruments, and directs the band. His wife, Debbie, teaches English and reading. Mr. Smith graduated from Andrews University in 1976 with a bachelor's degree in music education. Mrs. Smith will have completed all of her requirements for graduation by the end of this quarter.

Glenn Wheeler teaches voice and is director of the choral groups and instructor in drivers education. Mr. Wheeler comes from Campion Academy in Loveland, Colorado, where he was employed for nine years in the music and physical education departments. He received his master's degree from the University of Nebraska. In addition to his interest in music, he is the sponsor of the Wilderness Living Club, Ski Club and Student Association. He and his wife, Virginia, have five children: a son, Greg, a student at Pacific Union College; and four daughters, Debbie, a junior; Deserie, a sophomore, and Rochelle and Marcella who are in elementary school.

David Zima graduated from Andrews University in August of 1976 with a bachelor's degree in business administration and is serving as a business intern. Mr. Zima is the first business intern sponsored by the Illinois and Lake Union Conferences to be employed at an academy.

ADULT EDUCATION COOKING CLASS

Beryl Brewer, R.N., left, took Joseph Moser's blood pressure during the opening night of the 10-week vegetarian meals cooking class in Des Plaines. Letty Rana looks on. The course was billed as "Meals That Are Good to Your Heart" by MONACEP (Maine, Oakton, Niles Adult Continuing Education Program). Ten students paid $35 each for the class which meets once a week under the direction of Frank Hufana, health services and temperance secretary of the Des Plaines Church. Hufana states that he believes there is a great potential for this type of health service in public schools.

WESTERN ILLINOIS DORCAS WELFARE FEDERATION MEETING

The semiannual meeting of the Western Illinois Dorcas Welfare Federation was held on October 6 at the Health and Welfare Community Center in Quincy, Illinois. Margaret Slater, president of the federation, presided at the meeting. Don Nicholson, mayor of Quincy, and Charles Gruber, chief of police, were present as honored guests, and were given a tour of the center which is in a remodeled church building. Both of them expressed an appreciation for the work that the center is doing.

June Branstetter, leader of the Quincy Dorcas Welfare Society, gave the report of the center's activities which has set new records in all fields. June Jacobsen, president of the Illinois Dorcas Welfare Federation, gave an address on the need for full participation in the Dorcas work, and Hattie Scott, former president of the Lake Region Dorcas Welfare Federation, gave a demonstration of different articles that can be made by the members of the Dorcas society.

A full-course vegetarian dinner was prepared and served to the more than 100 guests under the direction of Gaylene McFarland. After the dinner a tour was conducted of the remodeled center.

GLENDALE PATHFINDER NEWS

Phillip Prime, director of the Glendale Pathfinder Club, has the club involved in many different activities. One idea was that young people should be encouraged to participate together in activities without ill feelings. With this in mind, the Glendale Club met for a softball game with the Irvington Pathfinder Club. They played on the diamond behind Indianapolis Junior Academy. The Pathfinders said they had a good time. After the game both clubs shared refreshments.

At a recent Pathfinder Club meeting the Pathfinders organized for the new school year. New officers were elected and sponsors chosen to work with the club on the upcoming activities. Duane and Dwight Bolejack will assist the boys' basketball team while Kenton Planck teaches skills to the girls' team. Ruth Helzerman will continue her work as deputy director of crafts. Renee McKinley is the first Pathfinder to become an assistant Pathfinder counselor.

On Pathfinder Day, October 9, the Pathfinder Club conducted the church service at Glendale. Special music was presented by the Pathfinder band, under the direction of Joseph Zaharako, a teacher in the Carmel schools. The day ended with a hay ride, pizza baked in a Pathfinder-built oven, and popcorn and marshmallows prepared around a fire.

The preteen unit votes for new officers with counselor Carole Prather.

The Pathfinders recently enjoyed a weekend of camping at the Pathfinder Camporee at Camp Timber Ridge. They used their newly purchased tents. There were 30 campers in addition to the counselors. Each Glendale Pathfinder who participated in the field events at Camp Timber Ridge earned a ribbon. The club members received a total of 29 ribbons in the events.

IT IS WRITTEN CHRISTMAS SPECIAL

A holiday atmosphere, special Christmas songs and stories and several surprises combine to make It Is Written's first Christmas telecast very special.

Plans call for most of the country to see the Christmas telecast on December 19 although several stations will repeat the program on Christmas Day.

Appearing with Pastor Vandeman is his wife, Nellie, and 20-year-old daughter, Connie. This will be the first time Mrs. Vandeman has ever appeared on It Is Written.

In addition to the Vandemans, Walter Arties, Marilyn Cotton and Ben Parrish will also be featured with their families. Breathtaking orchestration highlights the beautiful Christmas melodies which showcase the talented singers.

Walter Arties, currently producer of the Breath of Life television program will sing "Sweet Little Jesus Boy." He will be joined on the program by his wife, Beverly.

Marilyn Cotton, a long-time singer on It Is Written who records for Chapel Records, is joined on the program by her four daughters, Patti, Jenny, Beth and Laurie, for a medley of "Away in a Manger" and "There's a Song in the Air." Marilyn's husband, Dan, also appears.

Ben Parrish, president of Memorial Bibles International and a singer on It Is Written for over three years, presents a magnificent baritone solo, a medley of "O Come, O Come, Immanuel," "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen" and "O Come, All Ye Faithful." Ben's wife, Murl, and son, Todd, will also be on the program.

Connie Vandeman, who is now attending Newbold College in England, will sing "What Child Is This?" Connie has appeared on It Is Written for several years.

Along with these lovely solos, the program opens with the entire group singing "Joy to the World" and closes with "Silent Night."

Pastor Vandeman will relate a unique Christmas story, "The Story of Roaring Camp," about a mining camp in the Old West, and the changes which take place in the lives of the men when a blue-eyed baby boy is born in the camp.

In commemoration of It Is Written's 20th anniversary a special book has been produced and will be offered especially for this program.

A collection of the most beloved works of Isaac Watts, an 18th-century poet who paraphrased the Psalms, has been gathered together in a fascinating booklet which is destined to become a collector's item. This booklet is It Is Written's Christmas gift to all viewers in appreciation for their faithful support of the telecast for the past 20 years.

Information on how to receive a copy of the booklet will be given on this special It Is Written Christmas program.

Under the Canvass Cathedral the spirit of God spoke to hearts, and decisions were made for Christ.

SUMMER EVANGELISM AROUND THE FIELD

The summer of 1976 has passed, but for more than 400 persons its memories will last a long time. They heard the Elijah message preached in their city by one of 22 pastors and laymen throughout the Lake Region Conference. By accepting Christ they have found a way out of past conflicts and doubts surrounding their religious convictions.

Pitching a tent on a corner in the inner city is not the great attraction that once provoked people to mass in numbers to listen to the messages from God's word. The preacher is more likely today to be ignored, for even those in the neighborhood pass by on the other side. Popular churches rail the Seventh-day Adventist evangelist proclaiming a new way to men, women, boys and girls who are stumbling in the darkness of religious ignorance.

Conference officers appropriate a large share of funds for summer evangelism. New tents are purchased, old tents repaired and equipment is transported. These and other things make careful budgeting a necessity.

J. R. Wagner, president, asserts that evangelism is the Members of the Maranatha Church and newly baptized ones marched into this new church home.

lifeblood of the conference and the minister. We must evangelize. That is God's mandate to His people.

From Muskegon Heights in the northwest corner of Michigan to East St. Louis on the southern tip of Illinois, small city and large metropolis, the message of salvation was proclaimed.

Emmanuel Foxworth, elder for the Altgeld Gardens Church of Chicago, assisted by Hosea Hatchett, raised a tent in that south suburb and through their efforts and the support of the church members, 31 new believers were added to the church.

Out of the Gary, Indiana, meeting, the members of the Mizpah Church, led by J. D. Parker, have established a new congregation on the west side of that city.

George Bryant of the east side of Detroit concluded his tent effort with a baptism and a police escort as members marched from the tent site to a new house of worship for the former Maranatha Church.

In Saginaw, Michigan, Willie Bradley would often join his wife in visiting the church. He was an active member in his own church. When C. R. Graham invited him to come prepared for baptism the next day, he accepted the invitation to become a member of the Ephesus Church.

Elder Herman Davis proclaimed the Word of God on the west side of Chicago.

Eugene Camp spent the past six years training for the Catholic priesthood. His goal was to be a priest and missionary doctor. Not fully convicted of the doctrines of his church, he began visiting other churches in search of truth.

The Independence Boulevard Church welcomed its new members as the right hand of fellowship was extended.

He visited the Beacon of Joy Church one Sabbath with a friend. There he was exposed to truth and after taking Bible studies, he was baptized at the end of the tent meetings conducted by John Simons. Camp stated in testimony, "My prayer is that others will be exposed to Jesus and the truth and will accept Him through the Seventh-day Adventist Church as I have done with members known and unknown praying for me."

Eugene Camp, along with 43 others, was baptized in Lake Michigan.

What a blessing it is to know that in a number of places where meetings were held, young adults have taken up the cross of Christ. Especially was this true of the Kalamazoo meeting conducted by Robert L. Jones. Surely these young men and women will have a part to play in hastening our Lord's return.

Along with those mentioned, the following pastors proclaimed Christ through summer evangelism: Ray Alexander, Ed Avinger, Roy Bellinger, Bastian Bernard, Herman Davis, Robert Douglas, Samuel Flagg, Charles Gibson, Ricardo Graham, John Grier, Franklin Hill III, Sylister Jackson, Vern Joyner, Marshall Kelly, David McCottry, John Simons, Randolph Stafford, James Wray and Morris Wren.

There is cause for rejoicing. Yet, we double our efforts as we recognize that there are thousands within the cities of Lake Region who also must hear the call to accept the final message of salvation. Won't you join with pastors and laymen for a finished work.

BETHEL CHURCH HOLDS DEDICATORY SERVICES

On Sabbath, June 5, 1976, the Bethel Church celebrated its church dedication services with a mortgage burning.

The dedicatory services followed a week of meetings held by former pastors D. C. Batson, Samuel Flagg, Horace L. Jones, J. D. Parker and J. H. Jones.

J. R. Wagner, president of Lake Region Conference, spoke during the worship hour. Present to congratulate the church members on their achievement was the mayor of East Chicago, Robert Pastrick. Lowell L. Bock, president of the Lake Union Conference, spoke for the dedication service in the afternoon.

The East Chicago Company organized with 30 members who transferred from Mizpah Church and three who were baptized as the result of a summer tent effort.

On December 24, 1955, the East Chicago Company was organized as a church by H. W. Kibble, then president of the Lake Region Conference, and D. C. Batson, pastor. The church chose the name Bethel on January 7, 1956.

In October 1965, under the leadership of J. E. Cox, then pastor, now deceased, the members purchased their present building. The property now consists of the church building, fellowship hall and the parsonage. Through much prayer and the faithfulness of the members it is now debt free just 11 years later. To God be the glory!

HOME AND SCHOOL HOLDS SIXTH ANNUAL BANQUET

The Home and School Association of the Mizpah Church in Gary, Indiana, under the leadership of Susie Shootes, celebrated its sixth annual Candlelight and Silver Banquet on Sunday, October 24, at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago.

It was a beautiful to promote the church school as parents, faculty and friends gathered for the occasion. Guest speaker was C. E. Bradford, associate secretary of the General Conference and former president of Lake Region Conference. His topic was "Let's Build Together."

The program was interspersed with musical selections by the Hyde Park choral ensemble, Carolyn Kennedy, Mark Rucker, and the Mizpah youth choir led by James Payne and Cassanova Hudson.

Gentry G. Pope was given a digital watch for soliciting $700. Elder Bradford was presented with a plaque for his outstanding contribution to the church and the Lake Region Conference.

Among the guests present was Ernestine Jones, manager of the Glen Park High Rise for senior citizens in Gary. She paid tribute to one of Mizpah's senior members, Susie Williams. In her remarks she said, "Mrs. Williams is a dedicated Seventh-day Adventist. In the building in which she lives, there are 225 tenants. She serves as cheer secretary, news reporter and speech writer."

Reginald Barnes, education director of the conference, concluded the banquet by commending the church, school board, faculty and parents for their outstanding service.

LAY EVANGELIST SPEAKS FOR DORCAS DAY

"Out There!" was the title of the message delivered by lay evangelist Roscoe G. Brown at the Bethel Church in East Chicago, Indiana, on Dorcas Day.

Brown is active in the Dorcas community work. He serves as a member of the Adventist Men and often speaks at different churches around the conference on Dorcas Day.

Brown remarked, "Dorcas community work is important and vital. Our Dorcas workers are to continue to help the sick, poor and the needy. It is our work, our duty and our mission to go out there."

Brown is first elder of the Robbins, Illinois, Church.

NEWS NOTES

• Elder Wes Jaster recently concluded a successful series of "Discover Your Bible" meetings with the baptism of four new members at the Sheboygan Church. Another 12 people are continuing Bible studies and preparing for baptism. The baptism on November 20 was particularly special as it was the first baptismal ceremony by Rodger Ratcliffe, pastor of the Sheboygan Church.

• On November 14 parents of children in the S.D.A. Victory School located near Oconto surprised Mr. and Mrs. Richard Swanson with a pantry shower. Gifts of fruit, vegetables and packages of produce were given to the Swansons. Mr. Swanson teaches grades one to eight at the church school.

SUMMER YOUTH TASK FORCE

The Wisconsin Conference is starting a volunteer youth task force program this summer at Camp

Wahdoon for six weeks from June 5 to July 23. The program is set up so that you can work the full six weeks or anywhere from one to five weeks.

The six weeks will be spent in building an Indian village, fort, walk bridge, nature trail and working on other camp improvements. Skills in carpentry will be greatly needed, but the primary prerequisite is a willing spirit.

Transportation to and from the camp is not provided, but room and board will be furnished along with a $10-a-week stipend.

If you have no plans for the summer, this is an excellent opportunity for you to do something constructive for the Lord. In addition, you'll enjoy the many activities offered.

If you are interested in working at Camp Wahdoon this summer with this program, please contact Leonard McMillan, Youth Director, or his secretary, Candy Cox, P. O. Box 7310, Madison, WI 53707 or phone (608) 241-5235.

WISCONSIN LAY ADVISORY MEETS

Two hundred laymen and pastors converged on the Wisconsin Academy campus on Sunday, November 21, to discuss some of the great issues that will face the conference in the near future. As they assembled in the academy auditorium they listened intently as Elder Don Gray, director of evangelism for the Lake Union, admonished laymen to take a firm hold on the details of operating the church, thereby freeing pastors for the more important activity of prayer and the ministry of the Word.

Elder Warren Dick, treasurer of the conference, presented financial details bringing the group up to date on two current projects—a new gymnasium at the academy and the new conference office.

Elder Robert Dale, president of the Wisconsin Conference, spoke of some of the latest Annual Council actions that affect the work. He then presented the two issues for which this lay advisory had been called. 1. What should be done about camp meeting in view of the fact that Camp Silver Lake in Portage is no longer adequately able to accommodate all the activities of camp meeting, and 2. What are the conference priorities in the light of Annual Council action to finish the work by 1980?

Discussion groups were assigned various rooms at the school where departmental directors led out. It was recommended that the conference administration make an in-depth study of the campground facilities to discover whether it would be more feasible to change locations entirely or buy additional land to expand the facilities at the present location. The administration will report its findings to a meeting of the conference constituency before proceeding with any definite action. It was made clear that there are no plans to sell the campgrounds at Portage and none will be made without specific instructions from the constituency.

Many recommendations were made for the advancement of God's work in spreading the gospel to the entire Wisconsin Conference territory by 1980. The laymen concluded these discussions fully convinced that great strides will soon be taken toward the finishing of the work.

NEW PRESIDENT ELECTED FOR COMMUNICATION CENTER

Newly elected as president of the Seventh-day Adventist Radio, Television and Film Center in Thousand Oaks, California, is Robert A. Frame, president of the Australasian Division.

He will replace Alvin G. Munson who is retiring December 31, after having served as president for the past five years.

FFT SEEKS DONATIONS OF NEW AND USED BIBLES

This Christmas give a gift that lasts forever. Give the gift that brings eternal life—the words of Jesus, the message from God—the Holy Bible.

The Faith for Today Bible School is in need of new and used Bibles in good, clean condition. All versions of the Bible and New Testament are desperately needed for use in distribution to Bible students who have no Bibles to study from.

An average of 10 to 15 Bibles are sent out each week, but Faith for Today is fast running out of Bibles to send.

Won't you help make Christmas and the coming year a little more special to some needy individual? Please send your Bibles to: Faith for Today, P. O. Box 1000, Thousand Oaks, CA 91360

THE CASE FOR THE QUIET SATURDAY

The evangelical magazine Christianity Today is suggesting that Saturday become the common day of rest for Americans. In its November 5 issue, Christianity Today's editors follow up an article that appeared in the magazine last spring. In the earlier article, editor Harold Lindsell proposed a national Sunday law. According to the editors, there was considerable negative mail response to this suggestion, on the basis that it would be an infringement of religious liberty for those who observe Sabbath. In modifying the original proposal to urge Saturday closings, Christianity Today believes, "Jews and other Sabbatharians would be well served." The editors take the position that there is nothing in Scripture to require Protestants and Catholics to keep Sunday rather than Saturday as a holy day. Therefore, in their words, "In the interest of the nation, churches could change their worship services from Sunday to Saturday."

SATURDAY 'BLUE LAW' DISPUTED

Seventh-day Adventists are emphatically opposed to blue laws that would establish Saturday as a national day of rest, said W. Melvin Adams, director of public affairs and religious liberty of the General Conference. He made the assertion in response to an editorial in the November 5 issue of Christianity Today. The editorial, "Consider the Case for Quiet Saturdays," suggested that transportation and commerce be curtailed by law on Saturdays as a means of conserving energy and fostering family togetherness.

"We strongly disapprove of any attempt to legislate observance of any day of the week," said Adams. "While we believe in the benefits of observing the seventh-day Sabbath, and concur with the editors of Christianity Today that a day of rest is beneficial, Adventists do not want Saturday legislation any more than we want blue laws which encourage Sunday observance.

"Worship, in order to be pleasing to God," continued Adams, "must spring voluntarily from the individual believer. We think every person should be free to worship on the day of his or her choosing, without the interference of the state. Anything short of this is a violation of the spirit of the First Amendment and the separation of church and state so dear to this nation."

Adams pointed out that Lindsell and the editors of the magazine deserve credit for their interest in spiritual regeneration. "But using the power of civil authority is not the answer," he said.

One of the Kappa Phi Gamma women's club Thanksgiving baskets is ready to be taken to a needy family in the Berrien Springs community. This model of the Mayflower won first place in the decoration contest.

ANDREWS WOMEN GIVE THANKSGIVING BASKETS

Following a tradition of about 20 years, the Kappa Phi Gamma (K.P.G.) women's club at Andrews University shared Thanksgiving baskets with families in the Berrien Springs community.

Girls in each of the 12 wings of Lamson Hall prepared and decorated a Thanksgiving basket. Baskets came in the shape of a log cabin, Mayflower ship, lifesize Pilgrim and Indian, and even as a pet rock appropriately named Plymouth. On Monday evening, November 22, the basket decorations were judged and prizes were awarded.

A BREAK FOR TAXPAYERS

J. G. Smoot
President

It is possible for a taxpayer to elect to take credit against his Michigan state income tax for contributions made to the general fund of an institution of higher education within the state of Michigan. In addition the taxpayer retains the right to apply the full amount as a charitable deduction on his federal income tax.

What the Michigan Law Allows

The law allows a married couple to give up to $400 as a gift to Andrews University and receive a credit on their state income tax of one-half the amount of the gift (i.e., up to $200), or 20 percent of their state tax liability whichever is less.

The law allows a single individual to give up to $200 to Andrews University and receive a credit on his state income tax of one-half the amount of the gift (i.e., up to $100), or 20 percent of his state tax liability, whichever is less.

More Savings

The above is only a part of the tax savings. In addition the donor receives the customary federal deduction based on his tax bracket.

Taking the combined Michigan state tax credit and the federal tax deduction, Michigan residents can give a sizable donation to Andrews University for a nominal cash layout.

To illustrate: In most instances when filing joint tax returns you can give $400 to Andrews and it only costs you approximately $140; filing a single tax return you can give $200 and it only costs you approximately $70. (Those in a higher tax bracket will have an even greater tax advantage.)

Through this program you are giving money for Christian education, rather than to state and federal taxes.

About Your Checks

Checks should be made payable to Andrews University and mailed before December 31 in order to apply the tax credit to this year's taxes.

For further information, write to the Vice President for Development and Public Relations, Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Michigan 49104 or call (616) 471-3122.

ELDER J. J. MILLET HOLDS SERIES AT A.U.

Elder J. J. Millet, speaker for the fall Week of Spiritual Emphasis, followed his student-oriented series with a week of revival meetings for the Pioneer Memorial Church community. Attendance for the nightly meetings was 500 to 1,500. A special event came on Thursday evening when Elder H. M. S. Richards Sr. and the King's Heralds Quartet gave their first program at Andrews since 1971.

Elder Millet was kept busy during his stay on campus. "I have visited with young people day and night since I've been here," he said. "I've had students come to my camper, and I'd just pile them in. That was encouraging—that they'd come and seek me out."
