Frank Jones Assumes New Post at General Conference

For the past six years Elder Frank Jones has served the Lake Union Conference with distinction. On February 1 he will begin a new appointment as assistant treasurer of the General Conference. While this means a considerable loss to the Lake Union family, we are pleased that the world field will benefit.

In his capacity as Lake Union secretary, Elder Jones has been responsible for the orderly flow of church business within the union conference and the scheduling of programs. In addition he has continued to give strong emphasis as director of the Sabbath School department. Together with Elder Murrill he was instrumental in developing a new personnel system which is now implemented in most of our conferences and institutions. In this the Lake Union has set the pace for all other unions in North America.

Elder Jones has not only sponsored programs for improving church management but has constantly sought to improve his own skills. In June of 1975 he earned a Master of Arts degree in religion from Andrews University.

Elder Jones will be greatly missed in the Lake Union, but I am sure the constituents are pleased for the contribution he and his wife, Dorothy, will make in the worldwide effort of the church.

A television ministry is expensive. Dollars are eaten up by production expense and time costs at a staggering rate. On a dollars-and-cents basis, a television ministry would be prohibitive, and no one would attempt it. Except for one thing. People who would never attend a church or an evangelistic meeting, and who would never hear the good news of a coming Saviour, can be reached by the television screen in their homes. There is no medium that communicates more quickly and persuasively than television.

Yet, if the reason for going to the expense of a television ministry is to reach these vast millions who would otherwise not hear, then it is essential that the format utilized be sufficiently appealing so that they will watch. Otherwise, the money is wasted.

Faith for Today has been given the specific commission by the church to communicate the gospel to the unchurched of our land through the television medium—a commission to reach a potential audience of 26 million viewing homes with the message of Christ. It is an awesome challenge. The unchurched are those who pose the most difficulty for evangelism. They do not think in religious categories. Words and methods that ring true and persuasive to church people sound foreign to them. Nothing is taken for granted.

In attempting to meet the challenge of reaching the unchurched, Faith for Today has employed the same method Jesus used—telling stories. The true-to-life parable format allows the good news to be clothed in the “language of the people.” It allows common human problems to be solved through access to spiritual resources—and all this on display in the homes of those who know little of God’s power to bring peace and happiness! Families in crisis can see how God can create love and understanding. Men and women shaken by tragedy can see how others broke through to healing of the soul in situations similar to theirs. God can be presented as the Source of hope and life. And it can be accepted by the unchurched man or woman because he sees it without prejudice in a context similar to the television programs he is accustomed to watching. One viewer wrote, for example, “I am not a religious person at all, but when I watched your show, I felt relaxed and at ease. When the program was over, it made me feel like wanting to watch more. Not being a Christian I do not attend church at all, but now I would like to get to know Jesus better.”

For more than 26 years Pastor and Mrs. W. A. Fagal have given leadership to the Faith for Today television ministry. Many changes and developments have been implemented during those years, adjusting the specific character of the program to the changing needs of its audience. But always the goals of high spiritual impact and efficient operation have remained central. God has led, and the Faith for Today staff has followed.

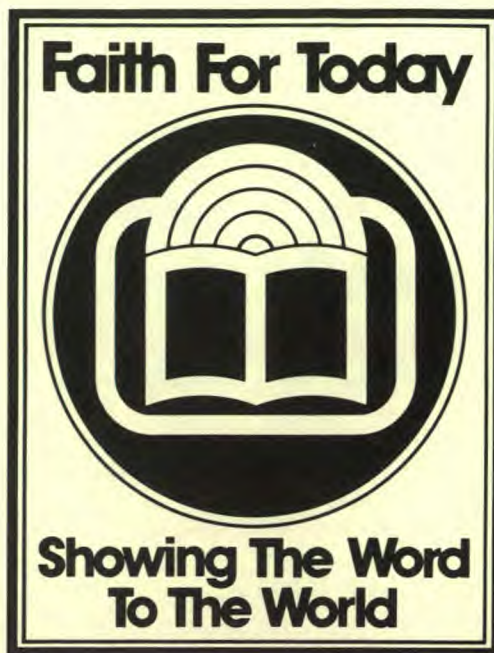

The reaping ministry of Faith for Today has expanded in pace with the broadening appeal of the program. New and attractive study materials have been prepared, like the colorful Living Faith Bible study series and the Today’s Life magazine on contemporary applications of Daniel and Revelation. Response has been exceptional to this modern, up-to-date literature.

Faith for Today now conducts a wide program of evangelism with a staff of evangelists who hold campaigns all across the land reaping the interest created by the telecast. Churches in communities from one coast to the other are blessed by members who trace their conversion to the Faith for Today ministry.

It is important to remember that Faith for Today is the church’s ministry. It exists because of the continuing support of individual church members like you. Faith for Today is your witness on television to the secular audience of North America.

Please make your gift a generous one when the offering plate is passed to you Sabbath, February 12. Help Faith combine the method of Jesus with the medium of today’s communication and reach the secular viewer with the good news. Your support makes all the difference.

FAITH FOR TODAY RECEIVES

Letters

Faith for Today is reaching the public. In response to a September letter from Pastor Fagal asking, "Please share with us how Faith for Today has helped you or someone you know," viewers flooded F.F.T. with mailbags full of praises for Faith for Today and thanksgivings to God.

Typical of the many returns are the following letters:

"Faith for Today has brought me from a life of defeat and sin to hope for a better life. I have accepted Christ and hope to be baptized soon."

"Praise the Lord. Since I've taken Bible studies with Faith for Today, I've been drawn closer to the Lord. I thank God I found the true Sabbath, and I've learned to have more faith and love for God and my fellowman. I just love the work you are doing."

"I've watched your TV programs and enjoyed each and every one of them very much. They all have a wonderful story behind each one of them and They're all very true to our everyday life. They all bring out a very important point of our having a personal relationship with our wonderful Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. They inspire me each time I watch your programs. Keep up the good work."

"Yes, Faith for Today has helped me in many ways. I have learned more about our beloved Jesus Christ and so much about the Bible that I never knew. And I have discovered how to love one another as Jesus wants us all to do, thanks to Faith for Today."

"It really shows how the root of the problem can be reached. For many cases it sure takes great patience and longsuffering to solve the problem, but Faith for Today is always ready to supply the answers."

"I have learned a lot of things like be nice to your friends. Believe in God. Love your mom and dad. Share things with your friends."

"Even though we have been S.D.A.'s for many years, your programs are a real encouragement to us. We cannot go even one day without God's help and Faith for Today helps us realize it even more."

Faith for Today is encouraged by such letters which give testimony to the power of Christ working on the hearts and lives of men.

LIBRARY CHANGES PLANNED

The handicapped and blind as well as many others will find facilities tailored to their needs in the new addition to the James White Library now under construction.

Conveniences for the handicapped include a ramp leading up to the side doors with an elevator just inside the entrance. The elevator has an additional feature in that it is designed for use by the blind as well as sighted persons.

Each button has braille symbols along with the standard printing found on all elevators. On the side of the elevator door frame at each floor is found the floor number in braille.

Other changes will include moving the Seminary library to the main floor. Up to this point periodicals have been located on two floors, but they will be moved into the location now occupied by the Seminary library.

There will also be a separate room for all books on reserve. Instead of having to ask the desk clerks for a book, the student will have direct access to the shelves. A turnstile at the door will ensure that all books being taken from the room will be properly checked out.

Technical service, where new books are checked in and made ready for the shelves, has already moved into its new quarters.

Mary Jane Mitchell, director of the library, said she has been looking forward to the new addition for three years. Though no definite date has been set for the opening, it will probably be some time during this school year.

NEW MEDICAL CENTER VOTED BY TRUSTEES

Andrews University President Joseph G. Smoot announced that the A.U. executive board of trustees approved plans for a department of aviation at A.U., a new medical center, a self-serve gasoline station, and the finishing of the library extension, at the executive board meeting held December 1.

Smoot said the move to organize a department of aviation in the School of Technology was taken in light of the action by the executive committee of the General Conference designating Andrews University as the primary aviation training and service center for the S.D.A. Church.

Andrews already has a $1 million airport facility and offers several courses of study in aviation. Plans call for the expansion of the airplane and

DOUBLE WEDDING UNITES AFRICAN COUPLES

For two Rhodesian students at Andrews University December 15 was a happy day not only because it marked the end of exam week. It was their wedding day, and in a double wedding ceremony the friends and roommates married their long-time sweethearts from Africa.

The beaming smiles of the brides and grooms after the ceremony revealed their joy at being reunited after a separation of more than a year. The grooms have been enrolled at Andrews since the fall of 1975, while the brides have remained in Rhodesia.

Joel Musvosvi and his bride, Angeline Mdriri, have known each other for seven years. He called the wedding "the biggest event in my life, next to accepting Christ. I think she's a terrific girl."

Zebron Ncube and his wife, Teggie Dube, were engaged for four years. He had eagerly anticipated the wedding with friends present, the companionship of marriage, and—practically speaking—he looked forward with relief to not having to cook!

Both of the brides are interested in home economics, Angeline having been a home economics teacher in an eastern Rhodesian secondary school before coming to the United States. They will each take classwork while their husbands complete requirements for the master of divinity degree.

After their arrival at Andrews on December 10, the brides received assistance in the wedding plans from Mrs. Ingrim DuPreez, who became interested in the wedding because of her son's friendship with the grooms.

The brides' attire followed the traditional "something old, something new, something borrowed, and something blue." The American-style wedding was complete with organ, soloist, and photographer. Elder Chester Damron, an Andrews campus chaplain, officiated. A reception held in the Campus Center followed the ceremony.

The couples will reside in Garland Apartments near the campus. After completing their educational programs, they will return to Rhodesia where the grooms will teach at Solusi College.

mechanic program and the establishment of a two-year associate degree.

A new hangar will be constructed, providing more room to equip and train pilots and to store parts for mission planes.

A new medical center is to be built on the land by the Garland apartments and U.S. 31. The medical center/office building complex is intended to be self-supporting.

"The rented offices will pay for the complex. The money won't come from student tuition," said David Bauer, vice president for public relations and development. "The center will be less crowded than the present facility, more accessible to the public and will offer more efficient service."

President Smoot said that construction on the library addition will be resumed shortly. The work crew had been redirected to finish the Maplewood apartments. The library is being funded by foundation gifts and General Conference capital appropriations.

The president also said that A.U. plans to update facilities and equipment for university-related industries.

Bauer said most of the profits from the industries have been going to the school and that such an update is needed if industries such as the bindery, C.W.P. and laundry are to become more effective, year-round operations.

A self-serve gasoline station for the university is now being studied with the aim to provide faculty and students with better service at reduced rates.

Other actions taken at the board meeting included the naming of Melvin Andersen as assistant to the vice president for public relations and development, and of Irma B. Lidner as associate professor emeritus of modern languages.

The board also voted to follow the university's working policy which calls for the appointment of department chairmen to a four-year tenure, after which they will come up for re-appointment. Previously department chairmen were appointed to indefinite terms.

UNIVERSITY SINGERS PLAN ACTIVITIES

The University Singers have elected officers for the 1976-77 school year. President is Vernon Andrews, graduate/education; vice president, Steve McKenzie, senior/health; secretary-treasurer, Carol Rasmussen, sophomore/communication; social chairman, Becky Stefanescu, senior/English; chaplain, Dave Brillhart, freshman/religion, and student director, Maurice Morgan, senior/music.

The conductor, Dr. Franklin Lusk, associate professor of music, said that students are selected for the Singers on the basis of audition, quality of voice and musical skills. He said there are no restrictions and anyone is welcome to audition.

Plans for trips during winter and spring quarters are still being made. Five of the Lake Union Conference academies will be visited, said Lusk. While at each academy the Singers will perform in one church for the morning worship service and in another church in the afternoon. They will present a vespers program for the academy they're visiting and follow with a secular program. Lusk said the Singers practice five times a week because they actually have to learn three repertoires—a sacred, a secular and a Christmas one.

KLIMES CO-EDITS EDUCATIONAL BOOK

A collection of trend-setting papers on educational administration was published last August by the Center for Studies and Services in Education at A.U.

This 233-page volume is entitled, Walter D. Cocking Lectures: The NCPEA Series of Prominent Papers in Educational Administration, co-edited by Dr. J. Donald Herring of the State University of New York at Oswego, and Dr. Rudolf E. Klimes, professor of education at A.U.

Walter Cocking was a leader in the development of educational administration and in the founding of the NCPEA. The lectures are intended for a readership of professors and students in educational administration.

The NCPEA has now asked Dr. Klimes to work on a historical treatise of the development of the profession of educational administration.

"This is the center's first major endeavor in publishing," said Dr. Klimes, "and it has given A.U. broader exposure to the educational world."

• Because of the need for a continual supply of blood to provide quality health care for all, this month is observed across the nation as Volunteer Blood Donor Month. Exemplifying the community spirit of hospital employees, Owen Spencer, administrative assistant pathology, recently donated his 30th unit of blood, encouraging others to likewise give this gift of life.

HOLIDAY BRUNCH INVOLVES COMMUNITY PROJECTS

Approximately 2,630 employees, volunteers, junior volunteers and physicians attended the Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital holiday brunch held Sunday, December 19.

Each year those attending have an opportunity to decorate a money tree for a special community project. More than $1,000 was pinned to the tree, giving two needy families a very unexpected and welcome Christmas gift!

The true spirit of the holiday season was kept alive as employees also donated canned foods and nonperish-able food items for distribution in food baskets to other community families in need.

Awards presented to employees and volunteers honored for their outstanding service during 1976 highlighted a program where good food, music, entertainment and Santa Claus were featured. Awards given included the following: Employees of the year, Connie Houck and Merle Thacker, both of LaGrange, Illinois, and John Erickson, Hinsdale; nurses of the year, Mary Matthews, Plainfield, Illinois, LaVonne Engelkemier, Hinsdale, and Melody Durham, Clarendon Hills, Illinois; volunteer of the year, Madge Kinney, Hinsdale; junior volunteer of the year, Jennifer Ertl, Hinsdale; and supervisor of the year, Willis Graves, Hinsdale.

I. A. STUDENT BAPTIZED

Sabbath morning, November 13, 1976, Tina Edwards attended church at Glendale. She had a pleasant smile, a peaceful calmness and a beautiful story. "A year ago I attended the Glendale Church. I heard Pastor Taylor speak and I began to come regularly to hear all of his sermons. This year I'm a senior at Indiana Academy. I attended church at I. A. each week last semester. When Pastor Taylor came to the academy in October to hold meetings I talked to him about baptism. I had wanted to be baptized before, but I didn't because I never felt that I was ready. Since I've heard Pastor Taylor's sermons and studied with Pastor Keiser, I believe in the power of prayer and that all of my sins have been taken away."

BICENTENNIAL DAY HELD AT PLYMOUTH CHURCH

On November 20, members of the Plymouth Seventh-day Adventist Church gathered together for Sabbath School and church and an observance of Bicentennial Day. Members enjoyed looking at old Bibles and books dating back to 1872. Many of the men, women and children were dressed in clothes typical of the 1860's.

BOGGSTOWN CHURCH BIDS FAREWELL TO DE HARTS

Cameron DeHart, elder of the Boggs-town Church, and his wife, Virginia, Sabbath School superintendent, recently said goodbye to the members and visiting friends at a farewell held in their honor. The DeHarts are both retiring to Route 1, Carney, Michigan 49812.

Faye Smock gave a farewell speech and presented them with a large horn of plenty filled with fresh fruit.

A beautiful cake decorated with the names of the DeHarts and an open Bible saying, "Goodbye until we meet again," was presented by the Dorcas leader, Anna Mae Swinehart.

Elder James Vetter spoke at the 11 o'clock service and then everyone enjoyed a fellowship dinner.

After the dinner, Keith Strom played the guitar and sang a song which he had written especially for the DeHarts. Then everyone joined in a song session.

Sabbath ended with sundown worship and the Boggstown church members wished the DeHarts love, prayers and best wishes.

Lay activities leader, Harold Greer, right, and Dean Jewett, organizer of the Ingathering caroling program, explain the "Fair Share Club."

LENDALE INGATHERING

This year the Indianapolis Glendale Church tried a new idea for their Ingathering promotion. All of the members belonged to a missionary band headed by an elder. Each member reported to their band leader whether they planned to reach their "Fair Share Goal" through (a) Adventist source, (b) business solicitation or (c) caroling program. Harold Greer, lay activities leader, charged each one to "Fight the devil, the weather and sickness. Be a member of the Fair Share Club." Dean Jewett organized the caroling program, and Mary Perkins distributed the business territory materials.

Many faithful workers among the adults and youth joined together for a week of "Wingathering." Elder G. W. Morgan, conference president, was there and commented, "I'm interested in seeing this program bring a quick victory to the Glendale Church." Elder Harold Otis Sr., former publishing director of the Indiana Conference, and his wife, Bernice, came from Keene, Texas. "We wanted to be here to help reach the Ingathering goal."

Wednesday evening the Glendale students from the Indianapolis Junior Academy stayed after school for food and recreation. Then the teachers took the students out for an evening of Ingathering. Friday evening, the Pathfinder Club, directed by Phillip Prime, sponsored a musical Christmas program, "The Life of Christ." The proceeds from the freewill offering went to the Ingathering program.

This "Wingathering Week" was set for December 4 to 12. December 12 was designated as "Mystery Sabbath" to disclose whether the $10,000 goal was reached. "The Ingathering program," Pastor Robert Taylor stated, "gives us a glimpse of the large worldwide mission program of the Adventist Church. With a worldwide mission budget of $85 million a year, the Glendale goal of $10,000 will run the worldwide mission program for one hour."

In addition to the mission pamphlet and the Indiana insert, a Glendale insert was added to the literature distributed this year. This community service calendar listed services to be sponsored by the Glendale Church during the next quarter. Included in the upcoming services was the Marriage Enrichment Seminar beginning February 6 and continuing each Sunday evening through March 27.

In spite of rain, snow, sickness and the devil—Glendale went over their $10,000 goal. May God bless each dollar gathered and each person contacted.

SHILOH STUDENTS HEAR MARY WASHINGTON

Mary Washington, the first black female to become a Certified Public Accountant, was the chapel speaker for Shiloh Academy recently. She graduated from Northwestern University in 1939, the only black and the only female in a class of 200.

Mrs. Washington mentioned the limited opportunities for blacks during the time she graduated. She was discouraged many times. However, she persevered and after graduation, began her own firm the same year.

Many blacks had the potential of becoming C.P.A.'s but were restrained in their opportunities due to racial barriers. They had something to offer but gave up their goal because of discouragement.

In the '30's there were 25 black male C.P.A.'s out of 75,000; today there are 400 black C.P.A.'s, male and female, out of 250,000.

Today blacks are accepted in all schools and receive encouragement from all sides. They can achieve in whatever profession they choose. "To be successful," Mrs. Washington said, "one must be prepared, dedicated and willing to serve mankind. These traits will lead one to be successful in whatever field of endeavor he chooses. You must prepare yourself well for you are the ones who will carry on tomorrow."

Mrs. Washington is still actively engaged in her profession which began in 1939.

• Many parents and friends of students at Cedar Lake Academy enjoyed a special Christmas program which included a sacred Sabbath vesper concert plus an evening secular program. Among the groups participating were the Madrigal Singers, the senior trio, the 48-voice choir, a clarinet trio and the academy's 69-piece band.

The Jahrs have become interested in helping two children with their education and plan to continue to send clothing to that area.

36 MICHIGANDERS GO TO GUATEMALA

A recent Maranatha Flights trip to Guatemala included 36 persons from Michigan, seven of whom were from the Burlington Church. Ray Smith, Ida Mae Renshaw, Dorothy Griffith, her two daughters, Donna Hubbard and Janet Mulling with their husbands went to help clean up and build new churches which were needed because of destruction by the recent earthquake. The seven from Burlington represented cooks, auto mechanics, farmers and medical workers.

While in Guatemala they built forms, laid blocks, assembled, stained and varnished church pews and painted walls. Women also cooked and helped clean up. Two churches were completed and the Michiganders had the pleasure of worshiping in one before leaving.

In spite of rough roads, rain and wet sleeping bags all participants returned enthusiastic about the trip and willing to go again. They told how pleased the natives were with their churches and of the pleasure and satisfaction they felt in helping others.

Soon the Millers had her signed up for a Bible course, and when Tonya's card was processed, they asked to follow up the interest.

When summer arrived, she attended camp meeting full time with another of the Saginaw members. Last fall with her parents' consent the church sponsored Tonya to attend Adelphian Academy for her senior year.

Her plans at the present are to attend Andrews University with a nursing career as her goal. . . . and it all began with a fair booth contact.

SAN PERSONNEL PRESENT PROGRAM TO LIONS CLUB

Battle Creek Lions Club members were brought up to date on the latest services, activities and plans of Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital at one of their recent meetings.

Arranged by Lions Club member Wayne Griffith, D.H.Sc., director of the hospital's department of preventive care, the program featured a slide show especially prepared for the occasion by Reger Smith, communications coordinator. Accompanying the slides, which portrayed a bit of past history and progressed to present scenes throughout the hospital, was a narration by Frederick Chandler, Ph.D., therapist for the hospital's special services for substance abuse.

After the presentation time was given for the club members, who are local executives, businessmen, civic leaders, et cetera, to ask questions. The first question was asked by Dr. Griffith when he inquired how many of the group had been employed by Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital at some time in the past. "It was interesting to note," observed Dr. Griffith, "that at least 30 percent of the group raised their hands." Most of these men went away from the meeting with an entirely new mental picture of the hospital, and other Lions may have gotten the picture for the first time.

INMATES RECEIVE CHRISTMAS JOY

Inmates behind bars of Saginaw County and Flint jails received a Christmas blessing because of Adventists in those two areas.

efforts is Clarence Covill, a member of the Linden Church, a worker for the mission for the past eight years and one of their assistant chaplains. Two women and four other men have just completed the special Forgotten Man chaplaincy course which enables them to serve as "prison workers." They come from the South Flint, Holly and Fenton churches.

During the Christmas season a dozen Adventists working with Covill, dressed in old-fashioned costumes, went through the cell blocks of the Flint jail singing carols and discussing the Christmas story with the inmates. They also presented homemade cookies to 270 persons behind the prison bars.

Covill would like to see other Adventists take a closer look at this program. He believes "the Lord wants us to become more involved" in such a program. Those desiring additional information can contact him at 12015 Sharp Road, Linden, MI 48451 or by calling (313) 735-7619.

introduce students to the AYBL program. As they met the attendants at the booth they asked: "What's this all about?" "Are we really going to get started this year?" "Okay, where do I sign?"

These and other questions were answered in a two-day orientation period that was held early in the school year. Students and faculty alike awoke to the fact that the program had to do with them and their health habits. Soon more people were getting involved.

The students set two goals to reach during the year. One, full participation of the whole student body, has already been reached. There has been a willingness to help make the AYBL program a success.

The other, and most important goal according to the group's leaders, is the sharing of "our knowledge of good health and happy living" with others. Various approaches are being used to achieve this end including display booths, public programs, Five-Day Plans to Stop Smoking and other outreach programs.

One student, after helping to present a program on alcoholism to a group of elementary students, said: "After I worked with those little kids and saw how they felt and how much they cared, I would not give up the temperance program for anything."

Victory School students and their teacher, Richard Swanson, were happy with the success of the can collecting program.

VICTORY SCHOOL 'REACHING UP AND OUT'

The boys and girls of the Victory S.D.A. School of Coleman, Wisconsin, collected more than 300 food items the afternoon of October 31.

The Friday before, the students had handed out new grocery bags with a letter and the specially prepared pamphlet "Reaching Up and Out." The people were to leave their bag of food by their front door on Sunday afternoon.

This was the first time this had been done in this district, and the church members were very pleased with the response of the community. The food was used in helping to furnish food baskets for the needy at Thanksgiving time.

The cool evening ended with a Halloween party of games, a hay ride on the farm of Norbert Wery, hot cider and donuts.

This map shows the location of the new Wisconsin Conference office on U.S. 151.

New Releases

Good Morning, Lord. Praise from the Psalms, by Nelle A. Vander Ark. Baker Book House, Grand Rapids, Michigan. 1976.

The word "psalm" is synonymous with praise. What better way to greet the day than with a note of praise—for wings, for personhood, for perception, for purpose! The list of things for which to give thanks and praise is endless. Nelle Vander Ark singles out common, everyday things, usually taken for granted. Subtly but expertly she guides the reader to a new awareness of and appreciation for God's control and direction of all of life.

Praise from the Psalms is part of the Good Morning Lord Series which includes such titles as Devotionals on Favorite Texts, Devotions for Campers, Devotions for College Students, Famous Hymn Stories, Meditations for Modern Marrieds, Sixty Seconds with God, and Devotions for Shut-Ins.

World Church News Newsline

EAT, DRINK AND BE HEALTHY

So that the importance of diet can be better understood, the Seventh-day Adventist Church has designated 1977 as Nutrition Year. Nutrition study groups will meet in local churches on the last Wednesday night of every month. Among other things, these groups will read and discuss Ellen White's Counsels on Diet and Foods. During 1977 a new edition of the book along with a study guide will be available at your Adventist Book Center for $1.50. In addition, every issue of Life and Health will stress some aspect of proper nutrition this year (subscription only $8).

Take advantage of this chance to systematically study nutrition. Live the good life in 1977 and happily ever after!

SAWS SENDS AID TO SOUTHERN ASIA

In response to a relief request from the government of Bangladesh, Seventh-day Adventist World Service (SAWS) has sent $12,000 to the Asian nation. The money will help in feeding and resettling refugees in the border area. To relieve victims of a typhoon in southern India, SAWS and the Southern Asia Division of the church are sending $13,000.

FREE SERVICES OFFERED TO THE BLIND

"Talking Magazine" is a compilation of news items, interviews and interesting events recorded and sent to blind people on a bimonthly basis. Other services of the Christian Record Braille Foundation include a lending library and magazines in braille, large print and recorded media and a summer camp program for blind children and youth.

If you know of persons needing these free services, write Christian Record Braille Foundation, 4444 S. 52nd St., Lincoln, NE 68506.

ADULT HYPERTENSION STARTS IN CHILDHOOD

Hypertension in children is the subject of a five-year study currently underway at Loma Linda University. Objectives of the study are to determine the influence of dietary habits, psychosocial factors, exercise and physical fitness on hypertensive children.

Ten thousand children in San Bernardino public schools and Seventh-day Adventist parochial schools will be screened. Seventh-day Adventists have certain dietary and health practices which differ from the general population. Those students with the highest and lowest blood pressures will be studied in detail. Sixty parent-child pairs will be analyzed to discover hereditary and environmental influences that may lead to hypertension.

It is hoped that the study will show how eating, exercising, and other habits formed in childhood can be changed in time to avoid America's greatest killer diseases.

FLOATING BOOK STORE RETURNS TO LONDON

The largest floating "book fair" in the world has returned to London after a five-year, round-the-world trip as an interdenominational missionary ship. She is the motor vessel Logos, which set off from London in 1971 for a Christian book-selling mission to 155 ports. Now, the two-and-a-half ton vessel is berthed near Tower Bridge in the heart of London. Logos is manned by a volunteer crew of 140 from 26 different countries. During its world trip, Logos had more than two million visitors, and the crew distributed 16 million pieces of educational and religious literature.

ARCHEOLOGICAL DISCOVERY NOT KEY TO O.T.

Archeologists who uncovered the evidence of a previously unrecognized kingdom warn that it should not be hailed as the ultimate key to Old Testament history. Two Italian scholars have discovered the remains of a Semitic culture in Northern Syria that flourished more than 4,000 years ago. They spoke to scholars gathered in St. Louis for a joint meeting of the American Academy of Religion, the Society of Biblical Literature, and the American School of Oriental Research. They said some 16,000 tablets of the Kingdom of Ebla have as yet produced no data either to prove or disprove the historical truth of the Old Testament. They confirmed, however, that sections of Eblaite writings inspected so far make references to beliefs and practices very similar to those of the ancient Hebrews.

LUTHERAN GIVING FIGURES CLIMB

The Lutheran Church in America has collected more than $2 million for world hunger this year. Campaign receipts now total more than $7.7 million since the "Love Compels Action/World Hunger Appeal" was launched in 1974. Five percent of the total funds are used in domestic work and the rest goes for hunger programs in 37 countries. In other fund-raising reports from the Lutheran Church in America, benevolence figures were up 5.5 percent for the year. Designated advance gifts have also increased.

STUDENTS TO BUILD CHURCH IN MARSHALL ISLANDS

Instead of paying college tuition next quarter, several young men from Pacific Union College in California will pay their way to the Marshall Islands where they will construct a church. They won't receive any money for their time and effort. However, tent and board will be provided and the students will earn 12 hours of college credit. Two student missionaries from the college are already in the South Pacific. It was a letter from them that inspired the adventure in construction for an expedition of one faculty member and six students.
