New President for Lake Region Conference

Elder Charles Joseph, pastor of Trinity Temple Church, Newark, New Jersey, of the Allegheny East Conference, was elected president of the Lake Region Conference by the Conference Executive Committee on July 14, 1977. He fills the vacancy created by the recent death of Elder Jesse R. Wagner.

Elder Joseph, who has been a successful pastor-evangelist in the South Central and Allegheny East conferences for a number of years, brings a wealth of experience to his new post. The beautiful Hillcrest Church in Nashville, Tennessee, was built during his pastorate.

Joseph is a graduate of Oakwood College. He also earned a Master of Arts degree in systematic theology at Andrews University. During his pastorate in Nashville, he studied at Vanderbilt University and received a doctor's degree in church administration and ethics.

Elder Joseph is married to the former Vivian Holland of Indianapolis, Indiana. She is an alumna of Oakwood College and Vanderbilt University. From Vanderbilt she received a Master of Science degree in speech pathology.

The Josephs have three children. They are Cheryl, 13; Carla, 9, and Charles Jr., 7.

MRS. WHITE AND HER

WOULD-BE SOLDIER BOY

THE HEART OF THE LAKE UNION

"Willie! Willie! Come see something you won't believe. But be quiet, or you'll spoil everything." Curious, Willie White followed his brother Edson to the fence that divided their home from the race track. Edson boosted Willie over the fence. There, as Edson had predicted, was a sight he truly couldn't believe.

The fife and drum corps was marching around the track, and 14-year-old Henry was marching right along with them, beating his noisy drum and fifeing his loudest. But what Henry didn't know was that the Army commander had silenced his drummers and fifers. The whole corps was marching exclusively to the music of Henry's whistle and the beat of his drum.

The White home had been a quiet peaceful place on Wood Street in Battle Creek. But now the forest of Manchester's Woods that had promised quiet retirement had given way to a race track, and even the small prayer grove on the White property had been cut down to make room for more garden.

Henry spent hours watching the new recruits drill on the race track. He memorized the different drum rolls and knew every command in marching and in camp life. He dreamed of enlisting as a drummer boy in the Army. Since the soldiers obey the drum rolls, I could be like a leader in the Army, thought Henry.

One day the three brothers, Henry, 12-year-old Edson and 7-year-old Willie were parading smartly up and down the field. Willie was trying in vain to keep step. He protested. "Henry, we have to have a drum if we want to look like soldiers."

Henry agreed. Two round cheese boxes, one sheepskin, some paint, and two whittled drum sticks later, the boys had their drum. For the boys these war activities were great fun, certainly a lot more exciting than working at the Review and Herald press.

But their parents did not share their feelings. James White, a noncombatant and a leader in helping to keep young Adventist men out of the war, finally ordered the boys to put the drum away. To James White the drum was a symbol of war. He thought of the thousands of dead and of the sorrow of a suffering nation.

James and Ellen were deeply concerned about their boys, especially when Henry announced to his brothers, "I'm going to run away from home. . . . I'm going to enlist as a drummer boy in the Army."

Ellen White had seen the horrors of war in vision. She knew that an Adventist enlisting in the Army would have a hard time. "In the Army they cannot obey the truth and at the same time obey the requirements of their officers. There would be a continual violation of conscience. Worldly men are governed by worldly principles. But God's people cannot be governed by these motives."

One night after worship James announced, "Boys, we are going on a trip."

"Who will be in charge of us this time, Father?" asked Willie. His parents had been away so much that he expected some dedicated Adventist woman would "mother" him and his brothers.

"Who will be in charge of you?" his father asked. "Your mother and I, for all three of you are going right along with us!"

The boys learned that they would be going to New England. While their parents went on shorter trips, they would stay with their old friends, the Howlands, at Topsham, Maine.

In the excitement of the trip, the Army parade ground seemed strangely dull. In nearly every home the Whites visited, the boys were lined up to sing gospel hymns. They did not realize it at the time, but this was an attempt by their parents to bind their hearts to Jesus and help them to forget the songs of war that had filled their hearts at Battle Creek.

Henry's parents' attempts were not in vain. During the boys' stay in Maine, Henry was stricken with pneumonia. When he knew he was about to die, he said, "I would appeal to all my young friends to not let the pleasures of the world eclipse the loveliness of Christ."

Though the cannons boomed miles away, Ellen White heard them only in vision. Though her sorrow was deep after her son died, God's praises were on her lips, for he would be eternally alive.

What's Happening in Chicago?

by David L. Gray, Correspondent

Last summer one of the large evangelistic projects ever undertaken by Seventh-day Adventists was begun in the city of Chicago. It was called Project: Steps to Christ.

Hundreds of laymen from churches throughout the Chicagoland area stuffed more than 1,044,000 Steps to Christ packets which were then mailed to practically every home in Chicago. Soon hundreds of letters began pouring in to the Illinois Conference office expressing appreciation and requesting additional material and helps.

"Steps to Christ has to be one of the best books I have ever read. Please send me The Desire of Ages and notify me of classes in my area."

"I enjoyed reading your complimentary book called Steps to Christ. It has given me precious insights as to how much I really need Jesus in my life and what Jesus can do for me if I totally submit myself to Him. I was wondering if possibly you could send me two of these books for my family and friends? I'm sure this will help them a great deal and could mean a change in their lives."

More than 8,850 books, 2,300 Voice of Prophecy Bible correspondence courses and 1,750 requests for classes were sent in.

How to deal with all of these thousands of requests was the second step in this exciting Project: Steps to Christ. Working with Jim Barclay, originator of the project, Don Gray, ministerial secretary of the Lakeland Union Conference, and Robert Ammons, lay activities director and ministerial secretary of the Illinois Conference, began to plan the follow-up classes which had been advertised.

These classes were designed to be like a pastor's Bible class. Using the Bible lessons "The Bible Answers," the teacher discusses with the students the lessons that they studied at home during the week. These classes were designed to study the subject of Jesus Christ—who He was, what He did and what He taught—and healthful living were then offered to the hundreds of people who had requested classes in their community. Also invited were those acquainted with the Voice of Prophecy, Faith for Today, It Is Written, These Times, Message and the Home Health Education Service.

On February 28 at the Sheraton

"The Great Grain Robbery" being shown here, is part of the healthful living aspect of the classes.

Towers Hotel in Oak Lawn, Illinois, the first classes were begun with Elder Hampton White of the Beverly Hills Church in Chicago and Elder Gray as the instructors. Meeting at 10 A.M., 1:30 P.M. and 7 P.M., each class was identical. This gave the people an opportunity to attend a class at their convenience. Thirty people attended those first classes. Other classes were then planned, but due to the extremely cold Chicago winter it was decided to postpone them until spring.

A total of 21 classes with 250 people attending were then started in eight different locations throughout the city of Chicago at the end of May. Meeting in various halls, churches and auditoriums, people from all walks of life came and studied the Bible together in a subject-by-subject method. As an added attraction a health film such as "The Great Grain Robbery," "Sunlight," "Bubble of Air," et cetera, was also shown. The response to these films was good, and in this way the students are shown the importance of health in God's plan for them.

To aid the students in their understanding of the Bible various additional helps are given to them after studying a certain subject. Planet in Rebellion, Hammers in the Fire, Destination Life, Truth Stranger Than Fiction, and the special edition of These Times magazine on the Sabbath have been used as supplementary material.

Now more than halfway through the studies, many of the students are asking questions about where they can find a church that keeps the Sabbath, a church that follows Christ all the way. Some have already asked for baptism, and several are now attending Adventist churches in Chicago.

A Chicago businessman ponders a question in a Bible class at the Fine Arts Building on Michigan Avenue in the heart of Chicago's Loop.

Yet this is not all there is to the Project: Steps to Christ. More than 150 Bible studies have been started in people's homes in Chicago by the 10 students from Walla Walla College, College Place, Washington, who worked in Chicago this summer. (See the Lake Union Herald, August 2, 1977.) Using Steps to Christ as an entering wedge they found that there are hundreds who received the book last summer and fall and are familiar with it. If they were not acquainted with the book or did not recall receiving one, the students left a copy with them. Laymen from the North Shore and Spanish North churches in Chicago and the West Central Church in Oak Park, Illinois, worked with the students in giving these Bible studies.

More classes are being planned for this fall because some people were unable to meet with the classes this summer.

Project: Steps to Christ has been a venture in faith, and as a pilot program many things have been learned that will be of use in future evangelistic outreach. But the Spirit of God has led and many souls have found Christ as their Saviour.

Plans are now being made so that this project can be expanded to other areas of Illinois, especially the dark counties and cities. Jacksonville, Illinois, has been selected as the next target area and soon the message of Christ's love will be spread in that dark community.

Milwaukee's

by Dorothy Deer

Walk up the stairs of the Milwaukee Central Church and stand in awe as you look at the beautiful red brick structure in which 375 Milwaukee Seventh-day Adventists worship.

The huge three-story mansion greets you with a sense of immensity, yet warmth, as you walk through its doors into the foyer. There are detailed carvings on the banisters and designs at the top of the high walls. Retained in its original spaciousness, the foyer reaches to the second level allowing a wide and open area. Two chandeliers light the foyer.

Stairs lead to a platform where visitors are greeted. Steps to the right lead to the pastor's study and side entrances to the front of the sanctuary and the rostrum. Light comes through leaded glass windows in the sanctuary.

The opaque dogwood design in the windows was reproduced in other areas when the building was transformed into a church.

The high-peaked ceiling of the sanctuary was achieved by removing the ceiling of the second level which primarily contained bedrooms and bathrooms. The third level had been the ballroom.

A small elevator moved traffic from the basement to the third floor, and this elevator is still in use today by church members who find it difficult to negotiate the stairs.

The Milwaukee congregation purchased the mansion for only $20,000 in 1942.

In 1912 J. Hoyt Smith had this home built for $300,000 as a gift of love for his bride. He spared nothing to make the mansion as beautiful and unusual as possible to please the one he loved. Mrs. Hoyt lived longer than her husband but spent the last part of her life in total blindness. However, she continued to maintain the huge mansion until her death. When none of the heirs desired to keep the mansion it was placed on the market in 1942. A home of this immensity simply was not in demand at that time.

Marguerite Strong, one of the few church members who saw the mansion prior to remodeling, said, "We had looked and looked for a church building. For many years we rented church on 5th and Meinecke. The English-speaking members met in the morning and the German members in the afternoon. . . . When we found this building, we were also fortunate to find the architect who had designed and built the original home for Mr. Smith. His son had taken over his architectural business, and the blueprints were still in his office. This made it so much easier to coordinate the changes."

Each room of the mansion was decorated with wood imported from a different country: India, Africa, Italy, Russia and others.

Walls in the Fireside Chapel are of Italian walnut. The fireplace in this room was constructed and designed in Italy of Italian marble, and three workmen came from Italy to install the beautiful structure. The Fireside Chapel is currently used by Spanish-speaking members on Sabbath and for the church's Wednesday prayer meetings.

The library features a delicate floral design on the upper walls, which was hand-tooled on elephant hide. The ceiling is of silverleaf and is surrounded with a blue floral border. The youth use this room for Sabbath School. One class meets in the sun porch, adjacent to the library. This room is filled with plants, and members find it a pleasant room in which to meet and visit. The windows are of quartz glass installed in the original home and are conducive to good plant growth.

The dining room is now used by the junior Sabbath School division. Its main feature is the intricate pillars which repeat the same design as that in the stairway banisters. There are small chandeliers along the walls.

The small rooms behind the rostrum of the sanctuary were once servants' quarters. Now the rooms are used for the nursery, choir room and pastor's study.

The primary division meets in what was once the game room, the kindergarten meets in the drying room with one class moving into the wine cellar for the lesson study, and the cradle roll meets in the laundry room.

The walls of the laundry room and the 1,500-square-foot garage are of white glazed brick. The garage provided indoor space for washing and maintaining vehicles. It was also the home of the first electric car in the city. The recharging plug-in box is still on the wall in its original condition.

The garage is now called Fellowship Hall; it is a reception room that can easily seat 90 to 100 people at tables, with a kitchen area at one end.

The original kitchen areas of the building house the bookstore and treasurer's office and are used for storing supplies and vegetarian food. A walk-in safe in the original butler's pantry is used today as the church safe.

On the third floor servants' quarters have been converted into a comfortable apartment for use by the church caretaker.

Members enjoy walking out onto the church porch to view Lake Michigan. The porch railing and pillars are also designed in detail. Here one can see that all of the walls are 18 inches thick. The building contains close to 25,000 square feet of floor space.

Directly across the street from the church are three lovely old mansions. One, called the Villa Terrace, has been converted into an art museum. The church has used its facilities on occasion, most recently for the initial meeting of a Revelation Seminar.

Halvard B. Thomsen, pastor of the church, said of the Revelation Seminar conducted earlier this year, "Of the 90 individuals who attended the initial session, 60 were nonmembers. It wasn't long before many visited the church on Sabbath, and 18 have been attending regularly. Eight of these have already been baptized.

"Perhaps the most significant work currently in progress is the effort of the church in spawning the Spanish work this summer," explained Elder Thomsen. "The Spanish sector of our church has grown, and from July through September an Argentine student from Andrews University, Julio Peverini, will conduct old-fashioned tent meetings in the Spanish community."

Then he added, "The conference has been optimistic. They have already called Pastor Cesar Puesan to come here to develop a Spanish church in Milwaukee."

The church-mansion, once conceived as a gift of love, is once again recognized as a memorial of love, a revelation of the love of Christ. The 375 church members utilize this memorial of Christ's love to share their faith in the community.

FROM SABBATH TO SUNDAY

A Historical Investigation of the Rise of Sunday Observance
in Early Christianity

SAMUELE BACCHIOCCHI

THE PONTIFICAL GREGORIAN
UNIVERSITY PRESS
ROME 1977

by Samuele Bacchiocchi, Ph.D.

Last week as I saw my book From Sabbath to Sunday rolling off the press of the Pontifical Gregorian University in Rome, my heart overflowed with gratitude to God for making a long cherished dream come true.

The story behind a book is sometimes as interesting as the book itself. I started dreaming about writing this book 21 years ago, during the summer of 1956. At that time I was a guest of my uncle and aunt while selling Christian literature in the towns of the Adriatic Riviera in Italy. Being devout Catholics, my relatives made a concerted effort to bring me back to the fold. To accomplish this they enlisted the help of Father Gabriel, the local parish priest.

I vividly remember how Father Gabriel spent three evenings showing me biblical and historical data allegedly proving that Sunday had legitimately replaced the Sabbath. Unable at that time to refute some of the arguments, I realized the necessity of undertaking a thorough investigation of the change from Sabbath to Sunday observance in early Christianity. Thus I started dreaming that someday with God's help I would research and write a book on this vital question.

As I handled the first copy of my book From Sabbath to Sunday that came off the press, I realized that my dream had come true beyond all my expectations. When I was a teenager, it was unthinkable that a Seventh-day Adventist would ever be accepted in a Vatican University in Rome, without first recanting his faith. How could I have ever imagined that one day I would be privileged to conduct my doctoral research on the controversial question of the origin of Sunday observance right at the Pontifical Gregorian University, the alma mater of popes, cardinals and bishops? In fact, my admission represented a break in a long-standing tradition, since I was the first non-Catholic ever accepted as a regular student at the Gregoriana in over 425 years of her history.

Even when I was admitted it never occurred to me that I would receive a gold and silver medal for attaining academic distinction and that my research would eventually be published with the Roman Catholic imprimatur (approval). And it was unthinkable that the book would be prefaced by a distinguished Jesuit scholar, Father Vincenzo Monachino, chairman of the church history department at the Pontifical Gregorian University and director of the dissertation. His comments are most complimentary: "It is a work that recommends itself because of its rich content, the rigorous scientific method, and the vast horizon with which it has been conceived and executed."

The book examines first the meaning and observance of the Sabbath in New Testament times and second, the historical genesis of Sunday observance. Following the order of redemptive history, the investigation begins with the Messianic function of the Sabbath in the Old Testament and proceeds to consider how the Sabbath found fulfillment in the redemptive mission of Christ. By examining the Sabbath material of the gospels it is shown how Jesus made the Sabbath the fitting symbol of His redemption: The day to commemorate the divine blessings of salvation especially by expressing kindness and mercy toward others.

Contrary to the thesis advocated by many scholars, the research shows that the adoption of Sunday in place of the Sabbath did not occur in the primitive church of Jerusalem by virtue of apostolic authority, but approximately a century later in the Church of Rome due to an interplay of Jewish, pagan and Christian factors. The fact that Sunday became the day of rest and worship not by biblical apostolic authority, but rather as a result of political, social, pagan and Christian factors, makes it virtually impossible to construct a valid theology of Sunday. The study closes therefore urging that to solve the pressing problem of the widespread profanation of the Lord's Day and to revitalize both its rest and worship content, it is necessary to rediscover and restore those permanent values of the Sabbath commandment which are relevant to Christians today.

To purchase a copy of From Sabbath to Sunday send your order to Dr. Samuele Bacchiocchi, 230 Lis Lane, Berrien Springs, Michigan 49103. Enclose a check for $8.50 ($ for the book plus $.50 for postage). The book is also available at the Michigan Adventist Book Center

STUDENT LABOR ALIVE AND WELL AT ANDREWS

About 62 percent of Andrews University's 3,186 students found employment on campus during the 1976-77 school year, according to Esther Hare, Andrews' financial aid officer.

A total of 866,215 man-hours were logged by the students working in campus industries, food service, dormitories, academic departments, custodial and plant services and other work departments.

The school with the highest percentage of its students employed was the College of Arts and Sciences, 80 percent of whose students found work on campus.

Fifty-seven percent of the Andrews Academy student body was employed at the university.

ANDREWS GRADUATES 219 AT SUMMER COMMENCEMENT

Commencement exercises were held Sunday, August 4, for the 219 summer graduates of Andrews' four schools. The College of Arts and Sciences and College of Technology graduated a combined total of 90, while 92 students received degrees from the School of Graduate Studies and 37 from the Theological Seminary.

Willis J. Hackett, vice president of the General Conference, was awarded an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree for his 38 years of service to the Seventh-day Adventist Church in positions of responsibility. He currently serves as chairman of Andrews' board of trustees.

Alice Smith, associate director of the General Conference department of health, was given an honorary Doctor of Science degree in recognition of her contributions to the fields of nursing and public health. Miss Smith was the commencement speaker.

An honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree was given to Dr. John Valantiejus, a physician from New Buffalo, Michigan. "Dr. Val" is widely known for his humanitarian efforts on behalf of the people of Haiti. In recent years he has been largely responsible for sending tons of medical supplies and equipment to that Caribbean country.

Addressing the graduates at their Friday evening consecration service was Dr. Neville O. Matthews, president of Canadian Union College. Charles Keymer, president of the Michigan Conference, delivered the baccalaureate sermon Sabbath morning.

FOOD SERVICE GRADUATES ENJOY HIGH RATE OF SUCCESS

Graduates of Andrews University's course in quantity food preparation have found no difficulty in finding employment, says Stephen Young, director of the occupational education program.

Of the 30 students who have completed the one-year course over the past five years, all have been placed in food service jobs according to Young. The program equips its graduates with entry-level skills in large-scale meal preparation, qualifying them for positions in academies, hospitals, nursing homes, and even restaurants and fast-food outlets.

Food service has become this country's fourth largest industry, says Young, and for those who are willing to go where the jobs are, unemployment should be no problem.

The course is taught by Ruth Roberts, instructor in dietetics at the university.

NINE STUDENTS FOLLOW DIVINE PLAN

"The Lord has instituted a plan whereby many of the students in our schools can learn practical lessons needful to success in afterlife."—Colporteur Ministry, p. 30.

This summer nine students from Andrews University, Broadview Academy and several elementary schools are working in the Chicagoland area selling magazines under the leadership of Eugene Torres, assistant publishing director for Spanish-speaking people. These students represent several foreign countries and are serving as missionaries in the greater Chicago area.

While selling magazines such as How to Stop Smoking, Venerable Disease, Listen and Viva Mejor, they have enrolled many people in Bible studies and have given away more than 15,000 pieces of free literature. As a result of their work several people have now quit smoking, and thousands have been impressed by their Christian witness.

Your prayers on their behalf are solicited. Let's make witnessing a way of life.

ADAMS FEATURED SPEAKER AT LITTLE GRASSY CAMP MEETING

Melvin Adams, director of the department of public affairs and religious liberty for the General Conference, will be the featured speaker at the 19th annual camp meeting at Little Grassy Lake S.D.A. Camp, Friday and Sabbath, September 16 and 17. The camp meeting is scheduled to run from Wednesday evening, September 14 through Sabbath, September 17.

Tents with floor and furnishings for two, including table and chairs, will cost $8. Additional cots and mattresses are 50 cents each.

Parking for private trailers with electricity is $3 per night or $10 for the entire camp meeting. Cabins for two are $12 for the newer ones and $8 for older ones. Additional cots are extra. Space is available for privately owned tents. There are also several motels near the camp in Carbondale.

Meals will be served in the cafeteria on Sabbath; arrangements should be made before sundown Friday at the locating tent.

The camp is located seven and one-half miles southeast of Carbondale. Take highway 13 east out of Carbondale for about one-half mile, turn south on the blacktop road and follow the signs toward Giant City Park. Travel about seven miles, then turn left on the first road that leads to Little Grassy Lake. The camp is one-quarter mile down this road on the right. Phone (618) 457-5756.

Those desiring reservations should write immediately to the office of the conference treasurer, Box 89, Brookfield, Illinois 60513.

THREE BAPTIZED AT HINSDALE

"IT SHALL NOT RETURN UNTO ME VOID . . ."

While living in Boone County, Kentucky, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Eggleston purchased a 1952 edition of Bible Readings for the Home. Some of the time it collected dust, and some of the time it was read. The Egglestons joined a Sunday-keeping church but were not happy because they felt it did not teach the truth, for they had read about the Sabbath in Bible Readings. One day Mr. Eggleston met a Seventh-day Adventist at work and discussed the Sabbath with him. Bible studies were given, and 25 years after they purchased the book they were baptized in Shelbyville, Indiana, by James Vetter, pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Eggleston with their copy of Bible Readings which was spared in the tornado.

There is one interesting sidelight. The devil tried to destroy the book. At the height of their interest before baptism, the Egglestons loaned the book to their daughter who lived in a mobile home. Shortly afterward a tornado destroyed the mobile home and everything else they had. Only Bible Readings and a few children's clothes were left. God has a tender regard for these printed pages of truth and saw fit to spare them, even though the devil tried to eradicate their witness against error.

This story, as told by Elder Dick Tanner and the Egglestons at camp meeting, electrified the large group present at the Sabbath afternoon meeting. God's promise that "it shall not return unto me void . . ." (Isa. 55:11) is true. He watches over all the books and magazines that we sell. Let us take courage and redouble our efforts in favor of this magnificent God-ordained plan to present the truth to the world.

NEWS NOTE

• At the August 1 conference office staff meeting, Elder Charles Keymer, conference president, reported that 244 persons were baptized during the second quarter of this year for a net gain of 111 members. Total membership of the conference as of June 30 stood at 20,651 persons.

Herbert W. Pritchard

NEW TREASURER INTRODUCED AT CAMP MEETING

Michigan's new treasurer was introduced to the conference membership at the opening service of camp meeting.

Herbert W. Pritchard, a former Michigan Adventist Book Center worker, has accepted the invitation to serve as financial officer of the conference and was able to spend a few days in Michigan at camp meeting. He is expected to assume his full duties about the first of September.

Pritchard was raised in Ohio and attended Emmanuel Missionary College. He received his B.A. degree in business in 1952, married Gertrude (Judy) Sykes of Battle Creek, and entered denominational employment as associate manager of the Michigan ABC. He left in 1956 to become manager for four years of the Texico ABC and then held the same position with the Oklahoma Conference.

In 1963 the Texico Conference called him back to serve as its secretary-treasurer, a position he held until called to the same post in Minnesota in 1967. Then he held the same position in the Chesapeake Conference from 1970 until 1973 when he became an associate director of the Risk Management Service of the General Conference Insurance Service with Michigan being part of his territory.

In reporting on Pritchard's call, Elder Charles Keymer, conference president, pointed out that the conference committee feels very fortunate in being able to obtain the leadership capabilities of a person with Pritchard's background. "We believe," Keymer said, "that he will bring real strength to the administration."

DR. WEAVER ASSISTS WITH "CLEAN ASHTRAY DAY"

Dr. Arthur Weaver, champion of stop smoking clinics in the Detroit area, joined with local and national celebrities in Nashville, Tennessee, for a recently held citywide "Clean Ashtray Day." Weaver appeared on three TV talk shows and one radio telephone talk program while a local paper wrote a feature article on him. Entertainer Johnny Cash, Tennessee Governor Ray Blanton and other notables joined this crusade sponsored by the Adventist-operated Madison Hospital. Here Weaver is shown during his interview on WTVF, Channel 5, Nashville, with State Senator Bill Boner, left, and the host of the show, Ron Keiser, center.

Wisconsin Conference

Len McMillan, Correspondent

NEWS NOTE

• Registration this fall at Wisconsin Academy will be one day only—August 28!

THE WAY FESTIVAL '77

Have you ever wondered what Wisconsin youth are doing to fulfill the gospel commission? Then journey to the northwoods October 6 to 8 and experience the world of youth in action!

The focus of the three-day witnessing rally will be to contact every home in Merrill, Wisconsin. To follow-up their witnessing, Leonard McMillan, conference youth director, will hold an evangelistic series on prophecy in the Merrill S.D.A. Church.

To sharpen their "tools" Roger Bothwell, pastor of the Des Moines, Iowa, First Church, will present inspiring messages and teach a class in witnessing. Wayne Shepperd, Lake Union youth director, will share his experience on youth witnessing. Mr. and Mrs. Brad McIntyre will perform and instruct through the ministry of music.

A special program on Friday evening, October 7, will be given for youth and interested church members in the Merrill High School auditorium. On Saturday evening, October 8, the public will be invited to a multi-evangelistic outreach in the same auditorium. Roger Bothwell will witness through the spoken word. Steve Varrow will witness through magic and Brad McIntyre through music. A special film on Corrie ten Boom and other feature; attractions will conclude the night of testimony.

Wisconsin youth are urged to attend this festival in preparation for the Festival of Faith in Lincoln, Nebraska, March 1978. The cost is minimal ($25), and local churches are urged to support delegates. Contact Pastor Leonard McMillan, Youth Department, Wisconsin Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, P.O. Box 7310, Madison, Wisconsin 53707 for further information and applications.

BLIND CAMP '77

"Let me see! Let me see!" exclaimed Todd as he eagerly touched the stuffed black bear in the nature center. Unusual? No! Except Todd is blind. He and 39 other blind campers "see" the world they live in with their fingertips. The Christian Record Braille Foundation and the Seventh-day Adventist Church sponsor a camp for blind children each summer at Camp Wahdoon near Chetek, Wisconsin.

While at the camp they enjoy many challenges. Archery (with balloon targets), horseshoes (they can hear a "ringer") and waterskiing (Did you ever try it blindfolded?) are included with other regular camp activities. Each day the lake is crowded with canoes and paddleboats as campers and counselors have fun together.

An unexpected treat for the blind campers was fishing—with their bare hands! Holding a small piece of bread in their hands for bait they caught panfish so quickly it would put an angler to shame. One camper caught more than 100 in an afternoon. The fish seemed to enjoy the game as well, since the campers let them go as soon as they examined them with their hands.

Beautiful handtooled belts and intricate macrame designs are produced by their "seeing" hands. The world of nature is experienced through touch in a variety of nature classes. The schedule is full so the campers even enjoy their daily rest period. If you know of a blind person (ages 8 to 19) who would like to "see" the great outdoors next year, write to Leonard McMillan, Camp Director, Route 2, Chetek, WI 54728, or write Leonard McMillan, P.O. Box 7310, Madison, WI 53707.

SURVIVAL CAMP '77

"Boy, no one's going to say they just handed this one to us," said a wet but happy hiker on Thursday morning, June 16. The hiker, Chuck Dant of Appleton, was one of 10 participants in Wisconsin's first Survival Camp. He was referring to the survival experience which instructors Lester Merklin and Ken Wade had engineered for the campers.

Survival Camp was conducted at Camp Wahdoon, Chetek, Wisconsin, June 12 to 19, but the most memorable part for most of the campers took place June 16 and 17. An orienteering trip was scheduled on Wednesday for the purpose of learning the use of maps and compass. After Merklin and Wade took the campers to a point where over a mile of thick forest separated them from the nearest mud road, they dropped the bombshell. Campers had been expecting to spend Thursday night surviving off the land, but now they were told they could (should!) choose to spend Wednesday night out.

The campers had to immediately put to use what they had learned: Constructing crude shelters from natural materials, gathering wild food, et cetera. The next morning proved to be an excellent test for the "watertight" shelters; a steady rain started to fall. Already everyone was making mental notes about what they would do differently the next time!

Survival Camp was a new idea for Wahdoon this year. Instructors followed a plan of first preparing the mind to meet an emergency.

"Knowledge and skills are worthless without a calm, resourceful mind," explains Pastor Wade. "Our survival motto was, 'It's your mind, use it or lose it.'" Mind preparation began each morning at 7:30 with group worship followed by individual meditation and memorization of Psalm 91. Classes during the day minimized lecture and emphasized practical experience. Additional factual material was supplied in assigned textbook reading.

As the campers trudged out of the woods that damp Thursday, their spirits were buoyed by a new confidence in their ability to meet and survive a wilderness emergency. The participants left with their appetites whetted for a wilderness living experience which is being considered for next summer.

New Releases

Tell It to the World, by C. Mervyn Maxwell. Pacific Press Publishing Association, Mountain View, California. $5.95.

The second printing, new and revised edition, and destined to be a best seller! The book is the story of Seventh-day Adventism. The story of the thrilling way God led us, as a people, to discover wonderful new truth about Jesus, truth that no other people on earth have discovered.

The preface says that Adventists exist to tell the world not only about the Christ of history hanging on the cross and the Christ of the future coming in the clouds but also the Christ of the most holy place doing something exquisitely great for sinners—something that no one else knows about and that we are invited to share with all of our friends and neighbors—that is to Tell It to the World.

The book is very readable and is available now at your Adventist Book Center for only $5.95.

THE MAN WITH TWO UMBRELLAS, by Marjorie Lewis Lloyd. Review and Herald Publishing Association, Washington, D.C. $1.50.

A book intended to jolt you out of complacency. With kind firmness, the author sets forth the various pitfalls encountered when the church witnesses to others.

She then describes methods of effective outreach by individuals, local churches, and the church as a whole. A must reading for you.

GOD'S NEED, by V. W. Schoen. Review and Herald Publishing Association, Washington, D.C. $3.95.

Does it surprise you that God has a great need YOU can satisfy? V. W. Schoen, the author, explains that God's need is for leaders in His church willing to sacrifice all to finish His work on earth. Find out what kind of leaders He wants and how you can best fulfill your responsibilities and improve your capabilities. A wellspring of information and inspiration for dedicated laymen and full-time church workers alike.

HERETIC AT LARGE, Wilma Ross Westphal. Review and Herald Publishing Association, Washington, D.C. $3.50.

The thrill and zest—and hard labor—of pioneer missionary work vibrates throughout Heretic at Large. It is the story of E. Max Trummer and his wife, Noema, who pushed the frontiers of the third angel's message into the highlands of Columbia. Traveling by foot or boat or more commonly by muleback, Trummer saw the work grow over a span of decades. Sometimes jailed, sometimes beaten by political and religious zealots, he persevered until a strong church program was established. This book is a message of triumphant faith.

FEED MY SHEEP (Reprint), by H. M. S. Richards. Review and Herald Publishing Association, Washington, D.C. $5.95.

This book comprises the lectures which inaugurated the H. M. S. Richards Lectureship Series, which is conducted annually at Columbia Union College. Feed My Sheep has been a much-valued manual on preaching, in pastors' studies and on college and university campuses. It is because of this steady, and indeed increasing, interest that this new edition is being published.

FROM SHOW BUSINESS TO GOD'S BUSINESS, by Virginia Vess. Review and Herald Publishing Association, Washington, D.C. $.60.

Ever dream of performing before the footlights or in a movie? Virginia did, and she made it too—even to becoming a star on the highwire. Read how after a series of amazing experiences, some of which nearly cost her life, she found a more satisfying goal. Since then she has served as dean of girls at Little Creek Academy in Tennessee for 12 years, has written radio scripts for Uncle Dan and Aunt Sue's Your Story Hour and is now living in Washington, D.C., where she works in the periodical mailing services at the Review and Herald.

CONSCIENCE, YOUR INNER VOICE, by Thomas A. Davis. Review and Herald Publishing Association, Washington, D.C. 75 cents.

How much attention should we give to conscience? Is it safe to "let your conscience be your guide"? Does an accusing conscience necessarily mean we are doing the wrong thing? Does a silent conscience necessarily mean we are doing the right thing? What is conscience? What is the function of conscience? How should the Christian relate to his conscience?

These and many other vital questions relating to the subject of conscience are answered in this important book.

CURSE OF THE CANNIBALS, by Virgil E. Robinson. Review and Herald Publishing Association. $3.50.

The dramatic biography of John Paton, a Scottish missionary to the primitive islands of the New Hebrides. His efforts to introduce the heathen natives to Christ met with times of great disappointment as well as times of great triumph. The stories of how Paton was miraculously protected and how fierce cannibals became gentle Christians makes exciting reading. You will admire this man who refused to give up in the face of hardship and courageously confronted the treachery and danger that threatened his work of spreading the gospel.

WONDROUS LOVE, Jerry Patton. Chapel Records.

Jerry Patton's voice is not only big and powerful, it is also soft and sensitive when the song and occasion need that. Singing in the King's Heralds Quartet demands a certain ensemble singing style that emphasizes balance and blend with the group.

This program of songs begins with that style in "To Thee, O Jesu" and "We Have Not Known Thee," and progresses to the solo concert style in "If With All Your Hearts" and "Alleluia." Jerry's development as a soloist has been greatly influenced by his close friend, Joseph Klein, one of the most respected vocal teachers in the West.

SCROLLS AND BONES AND TALKING STONES, by Robert E. Edwards. Review and Herald Publishing Association, Washington, D.C. $.75.

An easily readable account of how archeological discoveries confirm the Bible. The first chapter introduces the subject with an overview of the beginnings of archeology and also an account of the discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls and their impact. The remainder of the book concentrates on those aspects of archeology that are relevant to the life and experiences of Abraham—his life in Ur, migration to Haran, and then the customs and conditions of life in Canaan. This background information helps the book of Genesis to "come alive."

THE MAN WHO LOVED EVERYBODY, by Lawrence Maxwell. Pacific Press Publishing Association, Mountain View, California. $.75.

Most books on the life of Christ are so long you put off reading them. These few pages are going to tell Christ's life briefly and quickly and try to pull it all together for you. We think you will know Jesus better and love Him more when you finish reading this.

JUNGLE JOURNEY, by Bent Axel Larsen. Pacific Press Publishing Association, Mountain View, California. $3.50.

These stories are simple, instructional and inspirational—usually involving missionary Bent Axel and his wife in Peru.

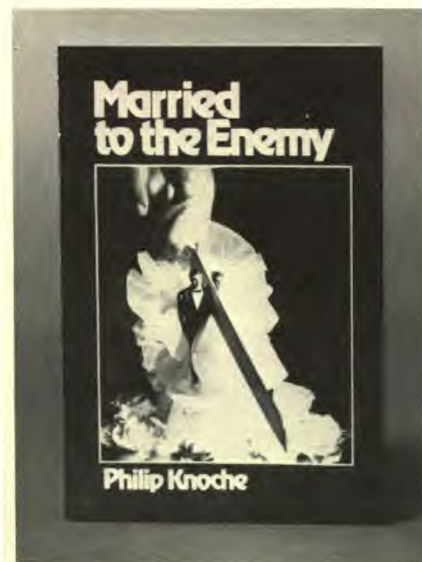

TONGUES, WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT GLOSSOLALIA, by John J. Robertson. Pacific Press Publishing Association, Mountain View, California. $.75.

This book differs from others in that it approaches the subject, "tongues," in an exegetical way, comparing scripture with scripture. It follows both logical sequence and time sequence, taking into account the circumstances for every instance in which "tongues" were used and recorded among the early believers. It is the kind of book you would want to keep ready for reference.

HAPPINESS UNDER ONE ROOF, by Reinhold R. Bietz. Pacific Press Publishing Association, Mountain View, California. $1.95.

The satisfactory marriage is not one that lacks problems but one that solves them, or at least keeps them under control. Do you want a happier home with harmony throughout? You will find in this book some tremendous "keys" for a happy home, told in a most delightful way.

MARRIED TO THE ENEMY, by Philip Knoche. Pacific Press Publishing Association, Mountain View, California. $.50.

A "how-to-do-it" book that tells how disharmony in a marriage can be turned to a good marriage.

Lake Union Conference

SCHEDULE FOR LAKE UNION COMMUNICATION SEMINAR

A Pre-Evangelistic Outreaches Communication Seminar will be held on the campus of Andrews University, August 28 to September 1, under the direction of the Lake Union communication department.

Richard N. Ostling, religion editor of Time Magazine, will be the keynote speaker.

Other featured lecturers include Dr. Winton Beaven, dean of Kettering College of Medical Arts; M. Carol Hetzell, director of the General Conference communication department; and Victor Cooper and Harold Reiner, also from the General Conference, plus many more.

This Pre-Evangelistic Outreach Communication Seminar provides the Christian communicator with the opportunity to develop new skills and to refine current skills. Seminar participants will have close, personal interplay with committed Christians who have outstanding credentials in the field of Christian communications.

Communications theory and hands-on experience will share equal time. Materials and equipment await participants' use for production of broadcasts, telecasts, photography and writing. The student—denominational worker, institutional personnel, layman—will be equipped in the skilled use of communication tools for various pre-evangelistic outreaches.

The pace, Sunday evening through Thursday, is set just fast enough for the full impact of learning. The emphasis, however, is on the joy of learning. Participants will be busy. Variety in subject matter and faculty will enrich and broaden the spectrum of experience.

General Conference, the Lake Union Conference, Andrews University and the Great Lakes Adventist Health Services communication departments have developed the seminar.

Why have a communication seminar on pre-evangelistic outreaches?

Seventh-day Adventists around the world have a growing awareness for the need to become better communicators of the Good News. In the past and currently, the channels of communicating the Good News do not carry the vitality of the gospel in a compelling manner.

According to Jere Wallack, director of the Lake Union Conference communication department, "This seminar is not an annual event, and a similar program will not be held in this area for at least another two or three years. Those interested in this practical instruction in the art of communication should plan to take advantage of this seminar now."

FEDERAL COURT DENIES N.L.R.B. ROLE IN CATHOLIC SCHOOL UNION CASE

There's an important religious liberty decision to be made soon. A federal district court has ruled that the National Labor Relations Act cannot be applied to teachers in church-related schools because it would interfere with religious freedom. The decision upholds the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Philadelphia, which has opposed involvement of the National Labor Relations Board in union efforts among lay teachers. Results of a government-ordered union election held in the archdiocese earlier this summer will continue to be secret, pending the outcome of a separate case.

STUDENT L.E.'S ATTEND TRAINING SCHOOL

The above group attended a special training school for student literature evangelists which was conducted at Andrews University, June 1 to 6, 1977, by the Lake Union publishing department. This summer 12 undergraduate credits are being offered by the College of Technology to student literature evangelists who canvass and meet certain other requirements. Three credits are also available to the graduate students. Gerhard Hasel, Rudy Klimes, Walter Douglas and Derrick Proctor of Andrews University gave valuable instruction.
