"And God said, 'Let the earth burst forth with every sort of grass and seed-bearing plant, . . .'" Genesis 1:11, The Living Bible, Paraphrased. The first in a series of articles about Creation written to correspond with the Sabbath School lessons this quarter by Harold G. Coffin, Ph.D., begins on page 4. Photo by Robert Moon.

It was absolutely silent. Not so much because the security men demanded it, but more because of the grandeur of the room.

Awe inspiring. Beautiful beyond description. Dignified. Magnificent.

Four huge marble columns graced each of the four walls. Gold scallops, offset by the soft blue ceiling, gleamed brilliantly.

The stillness was interrupted by the entry of the marshal and clerk—each dressed in long black tails. The silence ended as the marshal chanted, "Yea, yea, yea . . ." as the white-haired Chief Justice led the procession of the black-robed justices as they entered and sat in their high-backed leather chairs at the handcarved dark wood bench.

The Supreme Court of the United States of America was officially in session.

I sat silent last March 30 in those magnificent chambers, listening while the seventh-day Sabbath was discussed in the Hardison vs. T.W.A. landmark case.

As the oral arguments proceeded, it became increasingly clear that the majority of the justices were not at all sympathetic with the conscientious convictions of Larry G. Hardison, a member of the World Wide Church of God.

Mr. Hardison had lost his job at Trans World Airlines because of his refusal to work on the Sabbath. His case, through Equal Employment Opportunity Commission litigation, had reached the highest court of America.

On June 16, 1977, the decision of the justices was given. Indeed they had no sympathy for Mr. Hardison's conscience as they ruled seven to two against his Sabbath convictions.

It is true that there were, and still are, many profound legal issues involved in this case. But it was crystal clear as I sat there and listened that the peaceful existence of citizens and their work is far more important in the eyes of justice than is the conscience of the individual.

Sabbath keepers will face greater and greater challenges to their conscience as time goes on.

Perhaps you remember these words, "It will be declared that men are offending God by the violation of the Sunday sabbath; that this sin has brought calamities which will not cease until Sunday observance shall be strictly enforced; and that those who present the claims of the fourth commandment, thus destroying reverence for Sunday, are troublers of the people, preventing their restoration to divine favor and temporal prosperity."—The Great Controversy, p. 590.

"Troublers of the people." Peaceful coexistence, you see, is felt by the world to be of more importance than are the rights of conscience.

Prophecy—its predictions in the past and its rapid fulfillment today—makes it too clear to miss the point. NOW is the time to witness to the leaders of our community, state and nation with the truths of conscience.

And this month especially, remember that Liberty magazine witnesses. The rights of the individual conscience under the greatness of the American constitution is Liberty's theme.

THE HEART OF THE LAKE UNION

Volunteer Shepherds

by Ray Minner

If a concensus were taken to settle upon the ultimate example of someone ideally suited to fill a need, Glenn and June Bowen would certainly have to be considered among the finalists.

Sitting by their fireplace on Greenfield Drive in Berrien Springs, an observer can almost reach out and touch the love and concern that this extraordinary couple bring to their work.

After a career in the Adventist ministry, including 20 years as an Army chaplain, Glenn Bowen came to Andrews in 1973 to obtain a master's degree. He and June hadn't really chosen Andrews at first, two or three other universities had seemed to offer greater possibilities in his field—counseling.

But as one circumstance after another unfolded, the Lord seemed to be drawing them to Andrews.

After Glenn's graduation in 1975, they began to search for a ministry. "I never thought we would settle here," says Glenn. "We never wanted to live in an Adventist center."

But it wasn't long before a need was apparent. In all of their contacts with seminary and graduate school students—especially those with families—the Bowens had seen that there was no one with the time to really look after them. They needed someone to actively share their concerns.

Having moved 30 times in their 35 years together, the Bowens feel a sense of oneness with families who are suddenly uprooted to come to a strange environment—often without even the elements essential to housekeeping.

Ray Minner is the public information officer at Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Michigan.

After much thought and prayer, Glenn approached the pastoral staff of Pioneer Memorial Church to present his concept of a ministry to these people. It didn't take the church long to grant him official status—chaplain to the seminary and graduate students.

The Bowens won't reveal how many incoming students they have helped to establish themselves, or how many times they have come to the aid of a foreign student distressed and bewildered by a brand-new culture.

Nor will they tell how many times they've served as confidants for lonely and discouraged students with financial or marital problems.

But we can say that they attempt to get acquainted with every newly arrived student family, learn the names of their children, and just let them know that someone cares.

"We keep a log" says Glenn, "but it's a top-secret document." They prefer to work quietly, without fanfare—and without pay.

The Graduate Guild Exchange, a sharing center begun several years ago by Hedwig Jemison, provides another outlet for the Bowens as they assist exchange manager Sue Sthalekar.

Dozens of items from baby strollers to canning equipment and used sewing machines are made available to students who might otherwise have to buy them in retail stores—or do without.

A visitor to the Bowens' home comes away with the strong feeling that nothing is done for show, nothing to impress. It's done because there is a need.

As Glenn will tell you just before you drive away, "The whole idea is to get the students to begin caring for each other."

The God Above All Gods

by Harold G. Coffin, Ph.D.

Everyone who walks into a skyscraper, crosses a magnificent bridge, or boards a great jetliner marvels at the architectural and engineering genius that has produced these structures.

No one would be so foolish as to deny the existence of architects, engineers, draftsmen and workmen behind these productions. Yet most of us have never met any of these individuals and may not have observed the process of construction.

At the other extreme we look at the delicately balanced mechanism of a watch, the transistorized wonder of a computer or the marvel that permits the entire Bible to be reproduced in the space of a postage stamp.

Although these are small items, again no one insists that these products are not the work of intelligent mind and hand.

By what strange process of reasoning then, is it permissible, or even considered intellectual, to pick a fresh fragrant rose from the garden and claim for it only the fortuitous outcome of unguided evolution?

By what odd twisting of common sense is it possible to conclude that a big whale or a small fly developed without the intelligent planning of a designer?

The mother dog knows how to take care of her newborn young. She removes the membrane and she bites off the umbilical cord. The puppy would not live if she did not do this. How could the dog kind have survived if this ability came about slowly through the gradual and uncertain process of survival of the fittest?

Some birds migrate across great stretches of ocean to land on a small speck of island. The parent birds may precede the young ones; thus the youthful birds must make their first trip unaccompanied by the adults and without any previous experience.

A slight error in direction would result in their floundering in the far reaches of the ocean. There is no opportunity for trial and error here; chance could not have played a part.

The behavior as well as the creatures themselves clearly reveals the working of a Master Designer. That we can not see or have never met this Designer should not give us excuse for denying His existence.

A great edifice requires an architect, a watch means a watchmaker; even so a rose, a dog and a bird require a creator.

But how is it possible to learn more about this Creator? Did He create man only to be a passing spark in the vastness of space and time? Is it important to know about and to become acquainted with Him?

At the end of the Bible in the Book of Revelation, three angels give messages of great import; messages that bear fearful warning to those who reject them.

These appear in chapter 14, verses 6 to 12. As I look at the context I am impressed that the instructions and warnings in these three messages are meant for this day.

The message of the first angel is found in verse six: "And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people, Saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come: and worship him that made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters."

This message was studied carefully in the 1840's and its importance was recognized. At that time there was a great deal of agitation concerning judgment.

Most people believed in God and in Creation. The part of the first angel's message that called for the worship of God the Creator was not an issue with them.

But that is not true today. Thus the message of the first angel is for the people of today not only a message of judgment but of worship of the Creator—"...and worship him that made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters." It is a call to men to turn from evolution to Creation and to the God of Creation.

Conditions all over the world cause men to fear and to wonder how much longer this earth can exist. Scientists, statesmen and theologians all warn of impending disaster.

But God is not going to allow the world to come to an end until men have had an opportunity to learn of Him as Creator again. Men everywhere have been blinded by the theory of evolution and have lost sight of the great truth of God the Creator.

I believe that there will be a revival of this great belief in Creation. We see some evidence about us that men are again turning their thoughts to Creation and to the God of Creation.

Agitation for including Creation in public school instruction has appeared in several states. Creation groups have sprung up on several university campuses. An increasing supply of creationist books and literature is becoming available.

Many young people around the country are dissatisfied with evolution as an explanation for origins and destiny. It is time for the great truths about the origin of this earth and life on it to be brought again to the forefront and attention of the people.

If we understand correctly the message of the first angel, this will happen in these last days of world history.

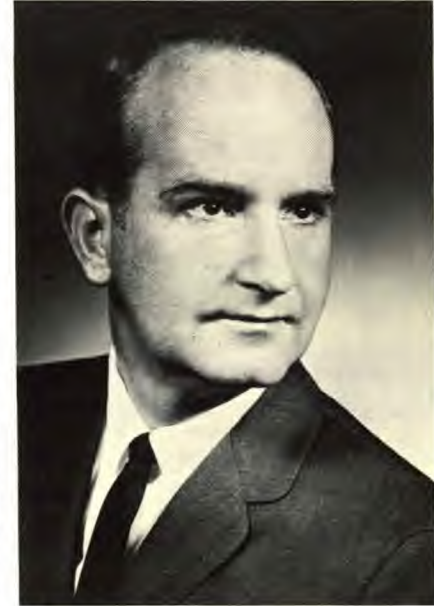

Recently at a television studio where a discussion of Creation and evolution had just taken place, a young technician made the following thoughtful and perceptive remark. After listening to the discussion from backstage he quietly turned to his companion and said, "I have a feeling that this was a microcosm of something much larger that we all will be involved in."

The truthfulness of this statement will be more apparent as time goes on, for all men must make a decision either to accept God as Creator and Redeemer, or to reject Him.

A blessing is promised in Revelation 1:3 for those who read and "keep those things which are written therein." This means that the blessing will come to those who worship God who made heaven and earth, the sea and the fountains of waters, thus acknowledging Him as the great God above all gods.

"Thou, even thou, art Lord alone; thou hast made heaven, the heavens of heavens, with all their host, the earth, and all things that are therein, the seas, and all that are therein, and thou preservest them all; and the host of heaven worshippeth thee." Nehemiah 9:6.

19TH CENTURY REVIEW AND HERALDS PRESENTED TO ELLEN G. WHITE RESEARCH CENTER

The front pages from 75 issues of the Review and Herald printed from 1896 to 1899 have been donated to the Ellen G. White Research Center at Andrews University by Hugh Smith of Berrien Springs.

The pages are from Reviews which were mailed to Smith's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Carter, from the Review's publishing house in Battle Creek to their home in Denver, Colorado. Many of the pages still bear the Review's original mailing label.

The pages were saved by Smith's grandmother, because they contained the weekly column that was written for the Review by Ellen G. White during that period.

MID-AMERICAN'S CO-FOUNDER HONORED

MID-AMERICAN—Harold Howard, co-founder of Mid-American Health

Services, was recognized for his nearly 30 years of service to the organization at a dinner in his honor recently.

Mr. Howard has served as executive vice president since Mid-American became a denominational institution in 1975. He plans to retire from active management in a few months.

Those making speeches and presentations at the dinner included Lowell Bock, Lake Union Conference president; Dr. Richard Walden, member of the Mid-American board of trustees, and Gary Whitworth, Mid-American's president.

MONEY TREE FUNDS COMMUNITY PROJECTS

HINSDALE—Traditionally Hinsdale Hospital gives employees, physicians and volunteers an opportunity to brighten the holiday season for some families in the area by decorating a money tree at the annual holiday luncheon.

This year more than $2,000 was received during the December 11 luncheon held at the Oak Brook Sheraton.

The two major recipients of the funds include a 16-year-old boy who is a quadriplegic as the result of a swimming accident last summer, and a mother who is terminally ill and solely responsible for the support of her six children.

Part of the money was also given to the Hinsdale Community Services, a community agency established to aid needy families in the Hinsdale/Clarendon Hills area, for food certificates which will be given to area residents.

Another traditional activity at the hospital during the holiday season is the collection of nonperishable food items to be placed in Christmas baskets for distribution by Hinsdale Community Services.

The director of the community services expressed appreciation to the hospital for its help in meeting some genuine needs in the area.

ROBERT DALE HONORED

MID-AMERICAN—Robert Dale, Wisconsin Conference president, was honored recently for his two years of service as chairman of the board of Mid-American Health Services.

Presenting a plaque to Elder Dale was Lowell Bock, Lake Union Conference president and newly elected chairman of the Mid-American board.

A change in board chairmanship was necessitated by Mid-American's affiliation with Great Lakes Adventist Health Services. Elder Dale will continue as a board member and serve as vice chairman.

MUNCIE CENTER OPENS

Monday, November 21, was a special day for Lucy Freeman, director of the Muncie Community Services Center.

Mrs. Freeman has served her community for many years from a small house which was inadequate for the volume of services she energetically gave.

Finally a larger facility has been opened on one of the main streets of Muncie.

ANGOLA CHURCH HAPPENINGS

November was an active month for the Angola Church.

The first cooking school to be sponsored by the church was held November 1 to 3 with 20 people in attendance.

Of this number four were unacquainted with vegetarian cooking and were happy to learn how to prepare more healthful meals.

Class instructors were Susan Korzyniowski, R.N., and her husband, Bob, pastor of the Wolf Lake District.

The following week a six-night series of evangelistic meetings were held in the church. Don English, pastor in the Anderson District, was the speaker.

HUNTINGTON COVERED IN ONE DAY

On Sabbath, November 19, 11 cars carrying nearly 50 church members visited almost every home in Huntington, Indiana, to distribute literature.

A plastic bag containing information on the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking, a card offering free Bible study guides, and a tract explaining Seventh-day Adventist beliefs was delivered to 4,000 homes in only two and a half hours.

"This is the beginning of big things for the Huntington Church," said one church member.

Michael Petricko, pastor of the Fort Wayne-Huntington District, said, "As far as I know the city has never been covered this way before."

Approximately 17 literature evangelists, publishing leaders, and their families and several church members from Fort Wayne joined the pastor and Huntington Church members for this project.

CAUSE FOR REJOICING AT SHELBYVILLE

On January 15, 1977, with its snowdrifts and cold air, a warmth came to Shelbyville that had not been felt for some time.

Indiana Academy students came to Shelbyville to help distribute Steps to Christ and invitations to accept free gift Bibles and Bible study guides.

They were joined by colporteurs and members of the Glendale, South Side, Irvington, Greenfield and Columbus churches. It was a warm fellowship of believers uniting to help others get ready for the coming of the Lord.

Most of the 5,500 Steps to Christ were distributed that day. Later

NEWS NOTES

• Young people of the Stevensville and Chickaming churches have formed a joint Pathfinder club. Linda Small, the leader, reports that there are 10 members, two of whom are non-Adventists.

• A breakthrough in Ingathering for the St. Joseph area resulted when C. C. Weis, retired General Conference lay activities director, met with St. Joseph Township officials. Elder Weis was successful in reaching an amiable agreement with the city leaders who have been pushing a strict ban on all types of solicitation.

• Niles Pathfinders celebrated Thanksgiving by having a pilgrim-style celebration at Camp Au Sable's fort.

• A branch Sabbath School has been started by members of the Fairplain Church in Benton Harbor with area Adventists helping to develop a smooth-running program. About 30 church members are involved in witnessing classes to augment the work of the branch Sabbath School.

• Members of the Reed City Church are involved in a door-to-door witnessing program giving away a special printing of Steps to Christ under the name The Greatest Love.

• A recent letter from the Southern Asia Division expressed thanks for the five sacks of used Bible textbooks and Bibles donated by Michigan Conference church schools. The boys and girls in one school in that division "were thrilled" to be able to have individual Bibles to read.

• Fremont Church members have begun a renovation program. They are repainting the basement and they will soon begin remodeling on the main floor. Pastor Jack Nash also cares for the Shelby congregation and they are improving their community services building. They hope to see this project completed very soon.

• Frankfort Church members have been offering a copy of Steps to Christ or some other religious book to each person contacted during Ingathering visits.

• The 65th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. New of the Fairplain Church was celebrated November 20. Helping them enjoy the occasion were 26 of their children and grandchildren.

• Health and food-preparation classes were sponsored during the month of December for interested people in the Cedar Lake area. The four evening lectures were coordinated by Mrs. Floy Pangman, R.N., the local church health secretary.

• Glenna Briggs, a member of the Kalamazoo Church, operates a craft shop. She pledged to turn in all funds which exceeded her usual profits for Ingathering. As a result sales seemed to be better, and she turned in $1,226. Another Kalamazoo church member, Agnes Slack, wrote for a donation and received $540 as the result.

• The delivering of Thanksgiving baskets by the Otter Lake Pathfinder Club resulted in their adopting two "grandmothers." Club members plan to help these two elderly women throughout the year with yard work and in other practical ways.

REVELATION SEMINAR FOLLOW-UP PROVES SUCCESSFUL

The pastor was explaining a difficult part of the Book of Revelation to his Revelation Seminar class, when from the back of the room the voice of a devout Roman Catholic broke the silence. "Why aren't more preachers preaching these truths?" he asked. "Everyone ought to hear the things we've been learning here!"

A great impact in reaching the masses with our message via television is being made by the It Is Written program.

The one-day Revelation Seminar with its follow-up program is part of the reaping process which has helped to make the It Is Written ministry more effective and fruitful.

A recent article in the Lake Union Herald (issue number 42, November 8, 1977) reported on these seminars. Let me point out how the impact is widening.

At the all-day seminar all of the area pastors were introduced. The participants were informed that follow-up seminars would be conducted by these men all over the Detroit Metro area.

Many participants registered for the seminar nearest them—their appetites were whetted and they wanted the remaining 18 lessons of the series.

Secretly my husband and I harbored doubts. Would they really be committed enough to come to our church two nights a week for nine weeks?

We didn't have long to wait. The following Tuesday our church lights were on, the tables and chairs were set up and by 7:30 P.M. the room was filled to capacity. We were thrilled.

We remembered how hard we worked to get people to attend an evangelistic series only a few months before. Even the offer of a lovely large family Bible—free—wasn't enough to entice a crowd like this!

But these people paid for their Bibles and were anxious to learn everything they could as they came night after night. To our delight attendance continued to be good, right up to the closing night.

This has been one of the most exciting experiences we have ever had. How could we possibly tell you all the thrilling stories that have come out of the various seminars?

Stories of people like Ron and Fern who just six months ago had never heard of the Seventh-day Adventist Church. But as they watched It Is Written, Ron was impressed. "This man teaches like I believe!" was his reaction. Ron was not affiliated with any church because he felt that none were living by the Bible.

One day last summer two seminary students from Andrews University, in Detroit for the witnessing field school, knocked at their door. They enrolled them in the Bible study course, and when the students returned to Andrews the pastor continued to study with Ron and Fern.

Not willing to take someone else's word for it, Ron had to investigate everything for himself. So when they came to the Sabbath question, he called a Jewish rabbi, a Catholic priest, and several Protestant ministers.

Ron and Fern attended the all-day seminar, and all of the follow-up classes. They began coming to Sabbath School and church. Now they are members of the church they had never heard of six months ago.

Typical of the response to the lessons was the comment of a woman who came to my morning seminar class. She believed she had been providentially kept from becoming involved in various other religious groups.

As we studied she said thoughtfully, "You know, you can't study these lessons without feeling a sense of responsibility that you can never be the same again after learning these truths."

PATHFINDER ALUMNI GATHERING

The Midland Pathfinder Club celebrated Thanksgiving Sabbath with a Pathfinder alumni gathering.

Many present and past Pathfinders and staff members came to Midland for an entire day of activities conducted for and by Pathfinders.

In the Sabbath School program Virginia Farnham, Midland's first Pathfinder director, told of organizing the Midland club in January 1950. It was the first one organized in Michigan.

The 11 o'clock worship service featured the Pathfinder speaking choir, and the story of Samson told by Harold Moll in the inimitable style that has made his stories favorites with the Midland Pathfinders for 20 years.

At the evening vespers service Merrill Fleming, conference Pathfinder director, displayed his shell collection and lectured on these beautiful creatures of the sea.

A fellowship meal and an evening of reminiscing followed vespers. Former Pathfinders and their families enjoyed old Pathfinder slides and movies showing highlights of the club's activities during the past 20 years.

Approximately 250 church and community youth have been Midland Pathfinders. With the exception of a few years in the mid-50's the Midland Pathfinder Club has functioned actively since its beginning.

G.L.A.'S WORKATHON HELPED AREA CHURCHES

Grand Ledge Academy held its first workathon on Sunday, November 13, with 75 percent of the student body participating.

Students obtained sponsors who promised to pay by the hour, and then they worked a 10-hour day.

Groups were assigned to the churches in the Lansing District, the elementary schools and the academy.

Some of the projects involved painting, scrubbing, waxing, disposing of trash or beautifying grounds.

More than $3,700 was earned by the students, with the funds divided among the classes and the student association for their activities.

It is hoped that the workathon can take the place of benefit programs, bake sales and other money-making plans that have previously been used to raise funds by the different classes.

It is felt that working at useful labor not only benefits those who receive the help, but also has many valuable benefits for the young people who do the work.

Among the students who participated in the project were Debbie Yanna, Sim Clements, Dee Hall and Linda Drake who worked with their teacher, Byron Chalker, in preparing garden beds and planting fall flowers.

Craig Blackerby and Mike Clements helped the Holt Church move road gravel to prepare a driveway.

Shelly Swainston, Ron Gruesbeck and Curt Cooper helped the St. Johns Church members paint and decorate their welfare center and school.

Dan Hamstra, Alyce Lawrence and Wendy Erhard painted and redecorated at the Eaton Rapids Church.

Similar work was done at the Grand Ledge, Lansing, Portland, East Lansing and Williamston churches.

INGATHERING PAYS

Ingathering frequently produces surprises and unusual rewards as Louise Drake of the Marshall Church found out—she needed a boost to get started this year and the Lord supplied her with one.

The woman who opened the door at the first house Mrs. Drake visited exclaimed happily, "Oh, I know what you are doing!"

The woman was a former Seventh-day Adventist who had just moved into the community.

After the two visited for a while they discovered that Mrs. Drake's brother had been the Sabbath School teacher for this woman when she was a regular member.

As a result of this contact it appears that a former Adventist is being reclaimed for the church.

Ingathering does pay!

ALPINE SPRINGS ACADEMY ORGANIZES NEW CHURCH

On December 3, 1977, under the leadership of Robert Dale, conference president, Alpine Springs Academy organized its company into a new church.

Warren Dick, conference treasurer, and Wesley Jaster, conference secretary, were on hand for the organizational activities.

Melvin Brass, school principal, gave a historical sketch of the school's two-year existence and outlined his dream of starting a school and a church in a dark county. That dream has now become a reality.

Elder Dale challenged the academy to have a strong church, and to continue its community outreach so it would be a growing church.

The church, with its 36 charter members, is in the La Crosse District. Ken Sutter is the pastor.

CHURCH SETTLES DISCRIMINATION CASE

Editor's Note: A news release with this title published in the Lake Union Herald, issue number 42, November 8, 1977, has been found to contain incomplete information. Following is a complete and correct review of this case.

Litigation involving the U.S. Department of Labor and the Seventh-day Adventist Church has been settled out of court.

Without conceding jurisdiction of the Labor Department or admitting any violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act, the Pacific Union Conference of the church paid $650,000 which will be distributed to teachers in the California Adventist schools.

The church further agreed to conform their pay practices to Section 6 (d) (1) of the act requiring equal pay for equal work on jobs utilizing equal skill, effort and responsibility under similar working conditions. This practice had already been in effect for more than a year before the suit was filed.

Exceptions were noted on the basis of seniority and merit systems, methods measuring earnings by quantity and quality, and any differentials based on factors unrelated to sex.

The stipulation of compliance provides that the government will pay pro rata teachers and administrative personnel in all California Adventist elementary and secondary schools and Pacific Union College for the period from September 1972 through June 1974. All monies not accepted by the teachers or due teachers not located will revert to the U.S. Treasury.

A complaint filed by the Department of Labor on September 5, 1975, alleged violation of the Fair Labor Standards Act by the church in the state of California. The complaint related primarily to a head-of-household pay arrangement which the Labor Department alleged was unfair to women who were paid less than men, and sought retroactive pay to July 1, 1972.

In their defense, the church had contended that since its schools are indispensable to and indivisible from the church's total ministry, the suit was an attempt by the government to interfere with the relationship between the church and its employees. In effect the church believed the Labor Department's action was excessive entanglement in religion, forbidden by the First Amendment.

A denominational wage committee at the world headquarters in Washington, D.C. began its own study into the remuneration of its employees when the Department of Labor first made wage scale suggestions, and a one-track pay scale was implemented on July 1, 1974. A single scale is recognized in the Adventist system of education throughout North America.

"We haven't changed our position," explains Neal C. Wilson, vice president for the church in North America. "We simply settled, and did so without having to concede jurisdiction by the Department of Labor, in order to avoid risks and further costs of litigation, and because we're already in conformity with the law anyway."

THESE TIMES WINS FOUR NEW AWARDS

These Times has won national recognition for excellence in three of the country's most prestigious competitions—The Printing Industry of America, The Society of Publication Designers, and The Associated Church Press. The latest recognition brings to 14 the number of awards received by These Times in the past year and a half. These Times staff includes Kenneth Holland, editor; Gail Hunt, art editor, and Ralph Blodgett, assistant editor.

A distinguished panel of judges chose the April 1976 issue of These Times as a winning entry among thousands of magazines in The Printing Industry of America's annual nationwide competition.

The P.I.A. competition, now in its 25th year, is dedicated to promoting the highest standards in the production and design of printed material. Entries were submitted by advertising agencies, art studios, designers, printers, publishers, sales promotion managers, advertising and public relations executives, photographers, plate makers, photoengravers, typographers and all buyers of printing.

The Society of Publication Designers, whose membership is open to individuals professionally engaged in the editorial art direction or design of publications, selected the July 1976 cover (TV—the Mind Polluter) and the same issue's inside front cover (Transcendental Meditation) to receive awards. This society admits all key publications in America, including Time, Newsweek, McCalls, Family Circle, et cetera. The two items from These Times will also be published in the society's annual yearbook.

The Associated Church Press, oldest religious press association in the Western Hemisphere, with a combined circulation of 21 million copies, chose the article, "Scooter," a man with no legs, one arm, and a constant thirst for alcohol, as its top news story of 1976.

FIRST C.R.B.F. REPRESENTATIVE IN NEW YORK CITY

Christian Record Braille Foundation, Lincoln, Nebraska, has placed its first full-time representative in New York City.

William M. Moors will pioneer a work among the blind and multidisabled blind of America's largest metropolis, according to F. G. Thomas, general manager of the foundation which has served the blind since 1899.

Moors is affiliated in New York City with Metro Ministry, an evangelistic outreach reorganized last fall to follow the Spirit of Prophecy counsel regarding the work to be done in New

World Church News

ADVENTISTS OUTLINE APPROACH TO PSYCHOLOGY

Freedom is a major quality of the human mind insofar as it retains the image of its Maker, says the Seventh-day Adventist Church. Therefore, the church has come out in opposition to practices that would lessen man's capacity for self-determination, such as manipulative indoctrination and deprogramming. That position is part of a larger statement on Seventh-day Adventist concepts of psychology adopted by the church in its Annual Council this year. In the paper, the church states that relativistic conclusions reached as a result of psychological research and study must be evaluated in the light of God's will as revealed in His Word.
