COVER

The 1978 Listen Magazine Crusade is from February 25 to March 25. Read about Listen's community outreach in the stories on pages 4 and 5.

"The Lord shall make thee the head, and not the tail; and thou shalt be above only, and thou shalt not be beneath; if that thou hearken unto the commandments of the Lord . . . to do them." Deuteronomy 28:13. God's aspirations for His people are reiterated in Deuteronomy 7:6. "God hath chosen thee to be a special people . . . above all people that are upon the face of the earth."

This intended superiority of the people of God is commented upon by Ellen White:

". . . when the law of God is . . . exemplified in the life, even the world will recognize the superiority of those who love and fear and serve God above every other people on the earth. . . . To the people of God today . . . belong the words . . . 'Thou art . . . a special people . . . above all people . . . a spectacle unto the world.'"

The author hastens to add, however, that this superiority is not inherent in man but is found only in "presenting the perfection of His character in humanity."—Testimonies for the Church, vol. 6, pp. 12 and 13.

Again Mrs. White writes, "God has a distinct people, a church on earth second to none, but superior to all . . ."—Testimonies to Ministers and Gospel Workers, p. 58. No greater message has ever been committed to mortals for "we have the greatest truth and hope that were ever given to our world, and the greatest faith; . . ."—Christian Service, p. 226.

Daniel and his friends had an intelligence and wisdom "ten times better" than others. So it should be today. "The Lord desires His people . . . to show a superiority in intellect, in understanding, in skill and knowledge."—Christ's Object Lessons, p. 358. "God . . . designs that His servants shall possess more intelligence . . . than the worldling."—Christ's Object Lessons, p. 333.

Adventist education will remain superior just so long as we remember that "the work of education and the work of redemption are one."—Education, p. 30. And that "The Holy Scriptures . . . should be given the highest place in education."—Education, p. 17. Forgetting this counsel, "many youth who have gone through . . . college," would be "only educated dunces."—Testimonies for the Church, vol. 3, p. 159.

Our Laodicean condition is deplorable, but let us remember: "God loves His people who keep His commandments, and reproves them, not because they are the worst, but because they are the best people in the world."—Testimonies for the Church, vol. 1, p. 569. But there is nothing good in man. Our superiority is only found in the reflection of the character of Christ.

Louis E. Ford

THE HEART OF THE LAKE UNION

He Works for the Lord

by Fred Williams

Louis E. Ford is a name known and loved among Adventists throughout the regional conferences. For almost threescore years he has worked in various capacities in denominational work.

Born in Vincennes, Indiana, and raised on a farm in Emerson, Indiana, Elder Ford spent his junior and senior years at Beechwood Academy in Boggsstown, Indiana.

After graduating in 1918 he went to St. Louis and worked in a government shell-making plant, then returned to Emerson to work in the post office.

Then he decided to go to Indianapolis where he worked in a drugstore, and took auto mechanics and a pharmaceutical course at night.

G. J. Lamson, who had been the principal at Beechwood Academy when Elder Ford attended there, had accepted the position of chaplain at Hinsdale Sanitarium. Elder Lamson sent Elder Ford a letter and application for work at Hinsdale, but Elder Ford was doing so well in Indianapolis that he ignored both the letter and the application.

Two months later he received a letter from his mother and another application for Hinsdale. She also quoted the text, "For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?" Matthew 16:26.

To please his mother and ease his conscience, he mailed the application blank to Hinsdale, but didn't think it would be accepted. To his surprise they wanted him to come immediately, and on March 15, 1919, Elder Ford began his duties at Hinsdale Sanitarium, which included driving a truck, picking up supplies from Chicago, working in the store and later, night engineer in the power plant.

In August 1920 Elder Ford started nurses' training while working eight hours a day. After graduation he took a course at the University of Illinois, and also attended night school in LaGrange, Illinois, taking accounting and commercial law.

On November 15, 1936, Elder Ford went to Riverside Sanitarium in Nashville, Tennessee, to assist in the many duties required in starting the sanitarium. He did all the electrical wiring and plumbing in the seven buildings that were remodeled.

In November 1938 Elder Ford became acting business manager of Riverside Sanitarium, and the following March at the board meeting he was voted business manager of the sanitarium.

While at Riverside he went to the University of Chicago for four summers and took extensive courses in hospital administrative work.

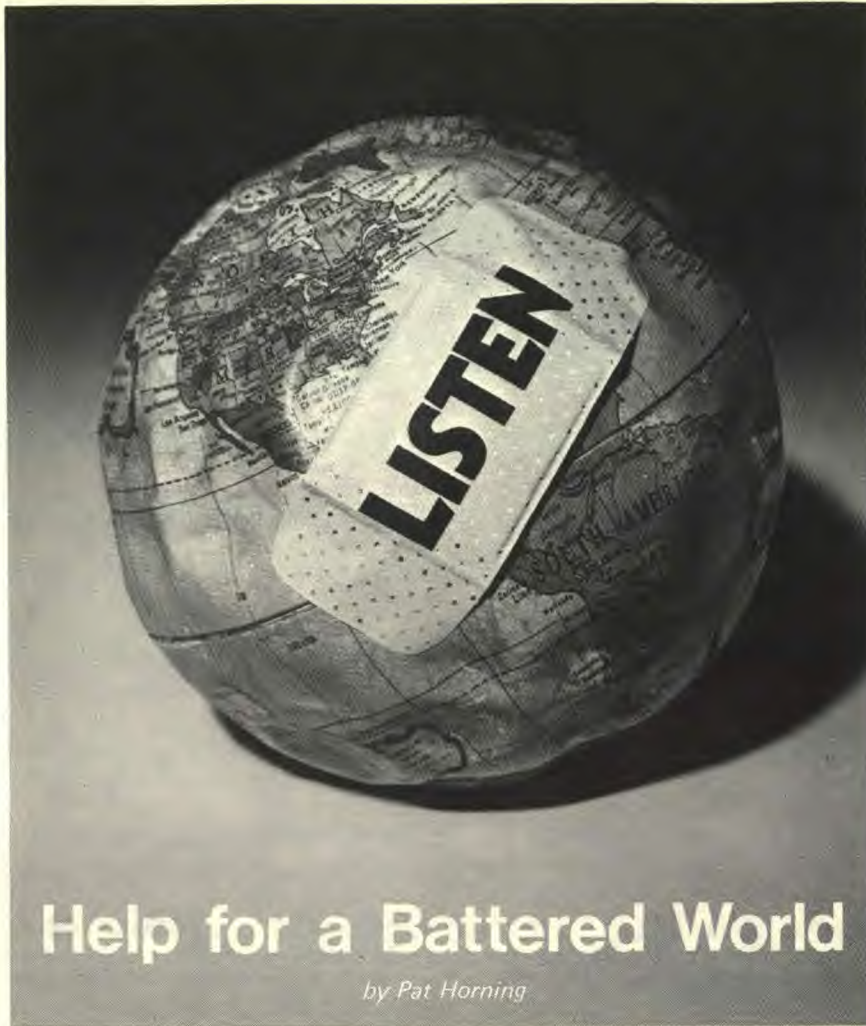

In February 1944 he accepted a call to Oakwood College as business manager. During his eight years there, a girl's dormitory, a library, a new office building and a sewage disposal plant were built.

When the first regional conference was organized in 1945, Elder Ford was invited to be the first secretary-treasurer. But he declined in order to remain at Oakwood College to help young people find their place in life.

On May 1, 1952, Elder Ford went to the South Central Conference as secretary-treasurer. In 1966 he retired; but being too active to sit still, he accepted an invitation to come to the Lake Region Conference in 1967 to assist in the treasury department.

Elder Ford has made a great contribution to this church organization. Scores of young people have attributed their success to Louis E. Ford, better known to those who are closest to him as "Doc" Ford. He has two hobbies—overhauling old cars and raising registered Tennessee walking horses.

Doc and his wife, Edna, are temporarily living with friends in Vandalia, Illinois. Soon they will move to their new home in Cassopolis, Michigan.

Help for a Battered World

by Pat Horning

Battered spouses. Abused children. They're stealing headlines these days. We gasp at the torture thousands of Americans inflict upon their own families every day.

But too many of the media reports detail only superficial aspects of the problem. They quote statistics and show graphic photographs of bruised and bleeding adults and children. Maybe they give a hotline number to call.

Yet they neglect to pinpoint the culprits that are causing people to ruin themselves, their spouses, their children.

Listen magazine unmask the facade of sophistication that the tobacco and liquor industries spend billions of dollars building.

It reveals tobacco, alcohol and drugs as villains in burgeoning crime rates; premature deaths from such diseases as emphysema, lung cancer, and cirrhosis; highway fatalities, and irrational beatings and slayings.

Yet in the face of overwhelming tragedy, Christians are not without hope—or help. Here are examples of how Listen magazine is helping different kinds of people.

Three out of ten inmates entering Ohio prisons say drinking is directly related to the crime for which they were convicted, according to findings of a recent study at Ohio State University. And while these people are serving their time, Listen goes behind bars to help change their lives.

A prison chaplain endorses the work the magazine accomplishes:

"Since Listen is not first of all a religious magazine, it does not represent a threat to those hostile or indifferent to traditional religion. Yet at the same time Listen does promote a healthy, positive way of life and as such shares important religious values. I feel it's a great magazine for our guys to guide them back from a negative and destructive lifestyle."

A prisoner tells his own story: "I'm writing this letter from my prison cell. While under the influence of alcohol, downers and speed, I took a person's life. I was sentenced to life imprisonment without mercy, which means I'll never be eligible for parole.

"I was 22 years old when all of this happened. It was my first arrest, but that doesn't make any difference; a person's life was taken, and now I must pay with mine.

"I want you to know how I appreciate Listen. I don't know who took out the subscription for me, but I hope some day I'll be able to thank them."

Older people are reached, too. An elderly caller from across the nation talked with Listen's editor by phone one busy autumn afternoon. "That article in your September issue describes me exactly. It has convinced me that I need professional help. Where can I get it?" Editor Francis Soper referred the distraught man to the chaplain's office of a nearby Adventist hospital.

Adults appreciate what the magazine is doing for the teenagers who receive it. A junior-high school principal writes: "I want to thank you for making copies of Listen available to our schools. We have been getting maximum use of these materials in several areas of our curriculum.

"This is one of the few magazines dealing with this vital message that the students will read voluntarily; the message is not presented in a 'preachy' manner. I sincerely hope that all the local sponsors will continue to make it possible for our children to receive these valuable teaching materials."

A teenager from the Middle West scribbled her appreciation on a sheet of paper torn from her notebook:

"I really hated the article in your July issue called 'My Family's too Busy for Me' because it is so true. I wish everyone could read this article so they would wake up to the problems kids get into when they don't really understand why adults are taking pills all the time. Thanks a lot for printing this short article."

Listen can't solve all the problems of a battered world, of course, but it can provide a dozen friendly, helpful visits a year. And it can help prevent other families from experiencing that grief.

Community Crusade Against Drugs

by Shirley Burton

Art Linkletter is the new honorary chairman of the national Community Crusade Against Drugs (C.C.A.D.).

C.C.A.D. is a narcotics-education program designed to reach every student in America, according to Bruce Wickwire, national director of the program in Washington, D.C.

Centered in Listen magazine, the C.C.A.D. approach also provides printed and taped teaching guides and aids for teachers, classroom and assembly speakers, and films on drug abuse. The entire narcotics education package is offered without charge to all schools—as funds are available.

Each month Listen features interviews with famous personalities who tell why they don't smoke, drink, or experiment with drugs.

Recent covers have featured musicians of the Osmond family and Johnny Cash, swimmer John Naber, Globetrotter Meadowlark Lemmon, golfer Johnny Miller, and Olympic Medalist Sheila Young—all pointing to ways of "better living."

Long an educator against drug abuse, Mr. Linkletter cited the forthrightness of Listen magazine and his love for young people as reasons for accepting the post.

Shirley Burton is communication director of the Pacific Union Conference.

"Listen," Mr. Linkletter explains, "is a tool for educating in the vital areas of personal habits and health, with a program aimed at curbing the ever-growing social problems revolving around drug and alcohol abuse.

"Its emphasis is upon establishing values through current, accurate and quality information in a vigorous, positive, educational approach," he continues.

"With at least 70 percent of this nation's teens in school using alcohol, which is believed to be a major factor in both juvenile delinquency and auto fatalities, I see C.C.A.D. as a moderate voice in these immoderate times. It is a positive, professional program of education and community service," Mr. Linkletter says.

It not only dramatizes the dangers in drug misuse but also offers suggestions for getting the most out of sports and all of life's activities.

Sponsored by the Home Health Education Service, C.C.A.D. aims to provide the service without charge to each school across the country.

Already being used largely in Orange County, California, Listen will cooperate with Loma Linda University School of Health in a scientific study to determine the effects of this magazine reading on county students. The year's research was begun last month.

Because of a presentation by former

United States Senator Frank Moss, Listen magazine is considered in the Congressional Record by the Commissioner of Education as the only one of its type approved for use in most public school curricula.

Endorsements for the C.C.A.D. health education in drug misuse have come from public and school officials.

"The menace of drug addiction once confined to America's ghettos, is now every father's fear, every mother's mania, and every child's crisis," President Jimmy Carter says.

"The Home Health Education Service is to be commended for its efforts in educating the American people about the dangers of harmful drugs. Stopping the pusher is not enough—the users and potential users must be made aware of the harmful effects of drugs.

"I wholeheartedly endorse the program of the Home Health Education Service, and I hope you will lend whatever assistance you can to help them in their fight against drug abuse," he concluded.

Michigan Governor William G. Milliken and San Diego, California, Mayor Pete Wilson are among those who join the President in his support. Superintendents, principals and teachers across the nation have lauded the materials supplied by H.H.E.S. from private donations.

Dan Schoun, right, and Fred Burghardt, Andrews' student missionaries in Japan.

DAN SCHOUN— STUDENT MISSIONARY IN JAPAN

FED-16 was the code number. Translated, that cryptic message meant a call for a student missionary to teach at the Japan English Language School. Dan Schoun accepted that call and is now an English instructor in Osaka, Japan.

Several things motivated this 20-year-old physics major to decide to take a year off from his college education to become a student missionary.

Relatives had served overseas. Friends had returned from their year away from home and told of the agony and ecstasy of being student missionaries. Lastly, Dan's personal philosophy led him to the final decision to spend a year involved in the student missionary program.

In his application Dan wrote, "I believe there is a multitude of things that God could teach me about my life on this earth while I am a student missionary. This is an opportunity for me to strengthen my relationship with Jesus and learn to depend more upon Divine power and less on my own strength."

According to letters and tapes being sent home, Dan is learning a lot in a variety of areas. A native of Michigan, he is enjoying his introduction to the sights and sounds of the Japanese culture.

As he puts it, "It's different here, but I love it!"

One of the first things to which Dan had to adjust was the low doorways—or at least they were low for Dan, who is just a little more than 6 feet 3 inches tall. Since most of the people in Japan are considerably shorter than Dan, he is a real oddity.

For instance, seated in a subway train which he rides to school each day, it's difficult for his fellow passengers to size up his long form.

Although his blond hair and blue eyes betray him as a foreigner he still hears "oh's and ah's" behind him when he leaves his seat.

Shopping, as Dan puts it, "is a blast." His limited knowledge of Japanese adds excitement to his adventures whether it's buying a new shirt or fresh produce from small country stands.

Food at any new place is strange at first, but Dan, who does his own cooking, is relishing this. The American-turned-Japanese chef has made what he claims are some very delicious meals for himself.

One night his menu included sweet potatoes, rice, fried eggplant, and a salad of red cabbage, carrots, cucumbers and lettuce.

Dan's schedule at the Japan English Language School is a busy one—his is not a 40-hour week. He is in the classroom 24 hours per week—20 hours of intensive English, an accelerated and more comprehensive course, and a four-hour course to Japanese businessmen who want to improve their language skills.

But this doesn't include the Bible study classes he holds on the weekends or in the evenings. Dan and his roommate, Fred Burghardt, also a student missionary from Andrews teaching at the Osaka school, conduct Bible studies on Friday evenings. These meetings prove to be quite challenging to both the participants and the student missionaries.

Some people who attend have a working knowledge of the Bible or perhaps are even baptized members of the Adventist Church, while others are attending for the first time.

Some speak fluent English; others very little. This means, of course, that the student missionaries have to gauge their English vocabulary accordingly.

Before one such study Dan wrote, "Tonight I have a Bible class that usually has about 12 to 15 students but I invited more so I don't know how many to expect. I also have not decided what subject to talk about yet. Always in the past I have left that up to the Holy Spirit to decide and lead me, and after every study someone will come to one of us and say that that was just what they needed or were wondering about, or in some way meant a lot to them."

When Dan returns to Andrews he'll be a year behind most of his former classmates, but he considers this year in Japan as a student missionary very valuable. So valuable, in fact, that he said, "I think everybody should have this chance."

AWARDS BANQUET AT HINSDALE

HINSDALE—Hinsdale Hospital employees who recently received service awards collectively represented 1,270 years of service to the hospital. George Schlosser, attorney from Oak Brook, Illinois, and member of the civic advisory board, addressed the 160 people in attendance at the awards banquet. Irwin Hansen, president of the hospital, and Durward Wildman, vice president for personnel, presented the awards. Top honors, for 35 years of service, went to Vesta Bishop, R.N., shown receiving her award from Mr. Hansen.

THANK-YOU LETTER RECEIVED

HINSDALE—The Hinsdale Community Services Center was the recipient of food items contributed by employees of Hinsdale Hospital at Christmastime, and of a portion of the funds collected on the traditional money tree at the annual holiday luncheon.

The hospital recently received the following letter from the executive director of the community services center.

"Dear Employees of the Hinsdale 'San':

"Thank you on behalf of the many families in unfortunate circumstances in our area who benefited from your kindness, and on behalf of our board of directors, for your contribution of hundreds of cans of food and $243. Some of the donated food was distributed to families at Christmas time; the rest will keep our emergency community food pantry stocked for many months to come.

"We wish that you could have seen firsthand some of the gratitude that was conveyed to us after we presented the food and gift certificates. One young mother wrote to thank us... 'Christmas was looking pretty grim,' she said, and when she received our gift in the mail, 'it was like a miracle. In fact, it was a miracle.'

"Many of you help us help others in countless ways throughout the year, and it reaffirms for me the fact that 'the San' is indeed a special hospital: The people who work there make it special because they care so much about others."

LEARNING CAN BE FUN

Realizing that learning can be fun, Ed Dickerson, principal and teacher of grades seven to ten at the Waukegan Junior Academy in Gurnee, felt that the large, empty room downstairs in the school should be put to some learning use.

After counseling with the local school board, Mr. Dickerson and some of his students worked about two weeks drawing, taping and painting a large outline map of the continental United States which measures 40 by 21 feet.

Used not only by the upper grades but by all the students, various forms of games are played which help the children learn the states' names, capitals, nicknames, flowers, trees, birds, et cetera.

Mr. Dickerson says, "It's been fun and the children have learned a lot about the various states. We've even had parents who wanted to come in and learn their states!"

Directed by Elder Dan Schiffbauer, 40 people were enrolled for the 10 classes. Each class consisted of six parts: Adventist Heritage, Spotlight on Inspiration, a quiz about the volume assigned, a story about Ellen White and the delivery of the Testimonies, Discovery—testimonies from the class, and answers to questions about the Spirit of Prophecy.

Those who attended said they received a new insight into the Spirit of Prophecy, and that the study helped their Christian experience.

DOES INVESTMENT WORK?

Recently I had the privilege of attending Investment Sabbath in the Anderson Church. The Investment leader, Pat Westbrook, had set a goal of $2,000, which was $400 more than any previous year's attainment in Anderson.

Several members shared their experiences in testing the Lord's promises about Investment.

Roger Lee, a businessman with farming as a hobby, decided to invest five percent of his soybean crop for the Lord.

As the weeks passed the rains failed to come and the small plants wilted. In

FIVE JOIN DECATUR CHURCH

William and Lola Challans and Betty Cookson were baptized December 10, 1977, by Elder Eugene Taylor at the Decatur Church.

Mrs. Cookson first became interested in the Adventist message mid-season he decided to invest 10 percent for the Lord. At harvesttime he had a third more soybeans per acre than ever before.

Carol Allred had a nagging physical ailment that wouldn't go away. She thought, Why not invest the money spent on doctor bills for the Lord?

She was able to give 50 cents a week to Investment in place of any money being spent on doctor bills. And she has improved physically since her plan began.

Ron Elliott decided he would invest on the basis of overtime work. Prior to his decision he worked little overtime. After his unique Investment project began he had 100 hours of overtime by the end of the year.

Ron Brigner has a business doing lab work for dentists. After his decision to give the Lord a portion of each new contract, the number of his new contracts doubled.

Larry Lawson decided to save pennies. His year's savings amounted to $70.

Does Investment work? Just ask any of these people. They are excited about investing for the Lord.

The experience of the Anderson Church can be repeated in your church in December this year as you report on your year's blessings through Investment.

How much did the Anderson church members raise? Not $2,000, but $3,000!

COMMITTEE OF 500

Elder H. R. Trout of Riverside, California, spoke at the first meeting of the "Committee of 500" in Indiana at Laughner's Cafeteria on January 23.

He shared experiences of 10 years in a similar program in the Georgia-Cumberland Conference, and suggested goals, concepts and accomplishments for lay involvement.

Fifty-four responded to a Dutch-treat dinner to discuss layman involvement, financially and otherwise, in an organization to help finish God's work in Indiana.

"So far 17 people have committed themselves to the program in 1978," declared Kurt McKinley, preplanning committee chairman.

"We are living in a special period of this earth's history. A great work must be done in a very short time, and every Christian is to act a part in sustaining this work. God is calling for men who will consecrate themselves to the work of soulsaving."—Testimonies for the Church, vol. 9, p. 125.

Future "Committee of 500" dinner meetings will be held in South Bend, southern Indiana and Fort Wayne. Charter members will then elect lay leadership, establish guidelines and goals and open new vistas of service in Indiana.

A MIRACLE AT MUNCIE

The Muncie Church has begun a remodeling program. Last summer the flat roof was raised, additional storage space was developed and the whole church was reroofed.

This was done with the leadership of Don English, pastor.

In July Lowell Dunston and his family came to the Muncie Church to replace Elder English, and Elder Dunston is continuing the remodeling program.

The first project was to replace the old organ. It was a small chapel size which could no longer be repaired and was inadequate for the church.

The pastor, his wife and Vivian Wake, church organist, began a search in music stores around Muncie and Anderson for a used organ.

At the same time a new organ fund was started in the church. Two organs were found which would meet the requirements—each cost $2,500. Even though the church had not raised that much money, they decided to step out in faith and purchase one of them.

But when they went to make the purchase they were informed that the organ had already been sold.

However, the dealer informed them that a Methodist Church that had just purchased a new pipe organ had tried to sell their old organ—which was identical to the one the Muncie Church had wanted to purchase from the dealer.

A visit was made to the Methodist Church to see the organ. It was what they had been looking for—and the price was $900. The church had raised $920 for an organ.

God knew the amount of money which the church could raise for another organ—and the Methodist Church had not sold theirs even though they had placed an ad in the newspaper.

A miracle? You could never convince the Muncie members that it was anything but a miracle.

Roscoe Brown spoke, and Julio Astacio interpreted in the Aurora Spanish Church.

LAY PASTOR SPEAKS IN THREE CHURCHES

Lay evangelist Roscoe G. Brown spoke, and Pastor Julio Astacio interpreted from English to Spanish at the Aurora Spanish Church in Aurora, Illinois. This was the last of three churches in which Elder Brown spoke that Sabbath.

At 9:30 A.M. he went to the Spanish West Church and then to the Spanish Northwest Church, both in Chicago. He spoke at the Aurora Church for the worship service.

Elder Brown found the Spanish church members working diligently for Christ. At all three churches laymen had been working with nonmembers, and Pastor Astacio is planning a baptism very soon.

Elder Brown urges all ministers to start training classes in lay preaching and in giving Bible studies.

We should use the great talent God has placed in the church, he said. The work cannot be finished by the pastors alone. Use your laymen!

He continued, "Christ used his 11 laymen, and 3,000 people were baptized in one day!"

Elder Brown is an elder in the Robbins Church in Robbins, Illinois.

GRAND RAPIDS STUDENTS RAISE $5,850 FOR INGATHERING

About 40 students from Grand Rapids Junior Academy raised $5,850 in the Ingathering campaign just completed. Most of the students participating were from grades five through ten.

These students raised between $100 and $200 for Ingathering.

Of that number three students raised more than $400 each, and another three raised $200 or more. Sixteen others became members of the $100 club, and second grader Byron Fredrick raised $117.

Paul Bonney, principal, started the $100 club the first year he was with the school. This year's $5,850 was a 164-percent increase over last year's $3,560. Mr. Bonney said that the after-school solicitation program didn't have to be pushed this year. "The students seemed anxious to participate," he added.

The 22 students of Grand Rapids Junior Academy raised a total of $5,850 in Ingathering.

Much of the Ingathering by the older students was done at shopping centers. Younger students Patty Williams and Dawn LaFave visited homes in the neighborhood of the school and received a $25 donation. Both girls raised more than $100.

The three students who raised $400 or more were Victor and Elvis Rodriguez, who received $455 and $429, and Steve Timm who raised $435.80.

Those who brought in $200 or more were Kathy Afton, $245.66; Thomas Rodriguez, $236, and Jay Van Dyke, $200.

The 17 students who raised $100 or more were Kim Afton, Neolia Cladera, Dyan De Young, Warren Ellis, Opal Guillen, Marilyn and Missy Holbrook, Dan Lange, Amairis and Emilys Pena, Lucy and Tommy Rodriguez, Pamela and Wally Smedberg, Byron Fredrick, Patty Williams and Dawn LaFave.

"A Quick Look at Seventh-day Adventists" folder has many uses.

'A QUICK LOOK' FOLDER USEFUL FOR WITNESSING

The 1978 edition of "A Quick Look at Seventh-day Adventists" is now available from the conference communication department.

This two-color, six-page folder is ideal for a witnessing tool in professional or business offices where clients are aware that the offices are under Adventist management.

One page lists church statistics in these areas: membership, education, missions, broadcasting, good-neighbor programs, medical ministry and contributions by members.

Two additional pages discuss seven doctrinal beliefs, one page features the historical background of the church and one page features the practical aspects of Adventism.

The folder can also be used at Five-Day Plans, cooking schools, community service centers, fair booths, by our literature evangelists, and in many other ways.

If you are interested in obtaining a supply for use in your witnessing program, contact the Communication Department, Box 19009, Lansing, MI 48901.

BAY CITY CELEBRATES 88TH ANNIVERSARY

The 88th anniversary of the organization of the Bay City Church was celebrated on January 28.

The history of the Bay City Church dates back to the summer of 1889 when Frank Armstrong began conducting Sabbath School services in the home of Mrs. J. B. Stewart, and later conducted regular worship services.

In the winter of 1889 Elder D. H. Lamson arrived, and church services for the 68 people who attended were moved to a rented hall.

On February 1, 1890, a church was organized with 17 members with Elder Burrill as pastor, and the meetings were transferred to a local Lutheran church.

Elder Burrill was succeeded by Elder Basney, during whose pastorate the current house of worship was built on South Dean and dedicated in 1895. There are presently 60 members.

MISSION PILOT VISITS MANISTEE

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Wenberg and their 13-month-old daughter, Jamilyn, recently visited his parents, Pastor and Mrs. Kenneth Wenberg of Manistee.

The couple were on furlough after completing their first three-year term of mission service in eastern Peru. They are stationed at the Yarinacochoa air base in the heart of the Peruvian jungle.

Dan, a mission pilot and mechanic, maintains aircraft and flies medical mission supplies to 40 villages in the surrounding area.

Nevati, a 10-bed clinic, is located 15 hours by boat from the base, or one hour by plane. A dental facility and therapy room are also maintained there.

The church has about 100 people attending Sabbath services with Dan preaching in Spanish. Since the Indian tribes speak different dialects, an interpreter is necessary. Mrs. Wenberg is in charge of the children's meetings.

Dan often extracts teeth and stitches minor wounds. Sharlyn, his wife, assists in delivering babies.

The average temperature of the area is 95 degrees and the humidity is very high.

Although some of the Peruvians have wells, most do not, and they use water from the rivers which results in health problems.

After their plane, a Cessna 185, has undergone some modifications and overhauling, the Wenbergs will return to Peru for another three years.

GIFT OF TAPES AND TAPE RECORDERS TO HELP SHUT-INS

The Iron Mountain Church has received a memorial donation of three tape recorders and tapes for use by parishioners who are confined to their homes.

The tape recorders and cassette tapes were presented to the pastor, Joseph Story, to be placed in the lending libraries of the churches in Iron Mountain and Iron River.

The gifts were presented in memory of Mrs. John (Nellie) Gustafson who died at the age of 86 on October 1. Mrs. Gustafson was a former Mansfield Township resident and a charter member of the Crystal Falls Church, now closed.

While she was a patient in nursing homes and confined at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Friestad of Rockford, Illinois, Mrs. Gustafson had used audio equipment to hear church services and musical programs. Her family felt it would be appropriate to share that experience with other people unable to attend the services.

HEALTH RESTAURANT TO OPEN SOON IN KALAMAZOO

A health food store on Portage Street in Kalamazoo is making preparations to open a restaurant to expand its vegetarian outreach.

This new venture is being sponsored by members of Oak Haven in Pullman. The health store, Country Life, has been in operation for about six months. The restaurant portion of the 600-square-foot store is currently under construction. It is expected to open soon.

Members of Oak Haven are also conducting vegetarian-cooking classes in the area and have just finished one series at Western Michigan University. The classes also included instruction on nutrition and weight control.

GOD'S HAND IN MY LIFE, compiled by Lawrence T. Geraty. Southern Publishing Association, Nashville, Tennessee. $4.95.

In God's Hand in My Life eight scholars from the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary share their conviction that God has guided them even though at times they may have felt very much alone. No dusty theological treatise, this book vibrates with personal experiences.

From Dr. Oosterwal's gripping story of God's guidance during his university training, through Dr. Horn's narrative of his six and a half years as a P.O.W., to Dr. Vitrano's recital of his refusal to compromise his religion for a prestigious job—these accounts of Providence will help strengthen your confidence of God's hand in your life.

Letting God Lead in the Discovery and Direction of Your Destiny

SEEING THE REAL ME, by Paul Eldridge. Review and Herald Publishing Association, Washington, D.C. $1.95.

Beginning with the prayer, "Lord, open my eyes," this book continues to guide the reader in his search for the genuine things of life: direction of living, recognition of opportunity, and an appreciation of the life of Jesus Christ, without which all search for identity is in vain.

Unique in its style and concise in its approach, Seeing the Real Me can be of great value to the Christian who seeks to find God's plan for his life.

THE BATTLE OVER GENESIS by Harold W. Clark. Review and Herald Publishing Association, Washington, D.C. $6.95.

The theory of progression of the species (evolutionism) has had an evolutionary history itself. It did not come full-blown with Darwin's Origin of the Species. And it is not the same today as it was when Darwin made his voyage on the Beagle.

What contribution did the ancient Greeks make to the theory of evolution? What effects did encounters with biblical creationism have on the evolutionary theory? Why did Darwin's ideas take the Christian world by storm? What are the problem areas today in the creationism vs. evolutionism controversy? The Battle Over Genesis, a well-documented yet highly readable book, gives a historical perspective to this key conflict.

ADVENTIST AUTHORS' BOOKS ON DISPLAY IN CAIRO

The United States Information Agency selected books by three Seventh-day Adventist authors to be included in a special display of American technical publications at the International Book Fair which was held in Cairo, Egypt, January 26 to February 6, 1978.

The authors and their works are: Raymond Bridwell, Hydroponic Gardening; Jacob R. Mittleider, More Food From Your Garden, and Edyth Young Cottrell, The Oats, Peas, Beans and Barley Cookbook.

All three books emphasize maximum utilization of natural food resources and high-yield home food production methods.

The works were included in a U.S.I.A. exhibit entitled "Showcase," featuring American books making unusual contributions in the application of technology to contemporary human needs.

All three works have already received significant recognition in the literature of food technology. They are available in book stores, libraries, or through the Adventist Book Center.

LOCAL CHURCH DECIDES NOT TO ORDAIN WOMEN

Members of one of the largest Seventh-day Adventist churches in the world have voted not to ordain women as local elders. Women pastors in the church are not ordained, but are titled "associates in pastoral care." Recently members of the Sligo Seventh-day Adventist Church in suburban Washington, D.C., voted 3 to 2 to elect and ordain women elders. But the church board had previously decided that only a two-thirds vote would effectively show that ordaining women would not be a divisive issue. Women may be ordained by a local congregation to serve as elders if the local church desires to do so, but only a few Adventist congregations in North America have begun to ordain women elders.

CONVENTION PLANNED FOR CHURCH MUSICIANS

The Second National Convention of the S.D.A. Church Musicians Guild is scheduled for July 6 to 9, 1978, on the campus of Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Michigan.

Special convention plans call for an in-depth coral study session involving all attendees in preparation for weekend services.

The worship hour will bring together the convention choir and speaker Dr. F. E. Harder of the General Conference education department in presenting the powerful and timely passage of Scripture, Revelation 12:7-12, using the unparalleled musical setting of J. S. Bach.

Sabbath afternoon's emphasis on the organ in divine worship, and a vespers communion and commitment service, together with Sunday's attractions, will provide four days of inspiration, participation and musical growth in church music leadership.

Individuals planning to attend, wishing to become members or needing information on how to start their own state chapters, should send name and mailing address to Dr. and Mrs. Bayard A. Benfield, Publicity Officers, Box 348, Okemos, MI 48864.

HOME STUDY STUDENT SETS RECORD

Thirty-one college courses successfully completed through Home Study Institute since November 17, 1975, is the record set by Audrey Willheim of Bristol, Connecticut. Moreover, Mrs. Willheim received either an A or B in every course.

"I determined that I would achieve a college degree," states Mrs. Willheim. "And once I got started, it wasn't that hard."

In conjunction with her work at H.S.I., she matriculated in the External Degree Program at Columbia Union College, Takoma Park, Maryland, where she will receive her diploma on April 29, 1978. Eventually she hopes to teach foreign languages on the high school level.

Her husband, Paul Willheim, who is a sales manager, and her two daughters, Paula, 18, and Lana, 12, have cooperated in every way to make this project possible. Mrs. Willheim organized one room of the house as her "college" and spent eight to ten hours a day there for the past two and a half years.

Though Mrs. Willheim modestly declares that "anyone could do it," Dr. D. W. Holbrook, president of H.S.I., states that "One seldom sees the kind of self-discipline and determination which has been displayed by this student."
