PREACH for Preachers

In the book, Early Writings, Ellen White said, "I saw that God has honest children among the nominal Adventists and the fallen churches, and before the plagues shall be poured out, ministers and people will be called out from these churches, and will gladly receive the truth. Satan knows this; . . ."— p. 261.

And again, "Ministers and the world's wise men are to be tested by the light of present truth. The third angel's message is to be set before them judiciously, in its true dignity."—Evangelism, p. 563.

"We have a work to do for the ministers of other churches. . . . God wants them to have a part in His special work for this time."—Testimonies for the Church, vol. 6, pp. 77 and 78.

At a recent social occasion I met a former Presbyterian minister who is now studying at Andrews University's Theological Seminary, preparing for a place in the Adventist ministry. He was radiantly enthusiastic and thankful for his newly found faith. Should we be surprised? Does not God keep His promises?

Would you like to have a part in fulfilling Heaven's commission for witnessing to this special group of people? Here is what you can do:

Give a liberal gift on Sabbath, March 4, for the offering which will be received in your church in support of PREACH; then join in praying for the ministers in your community. They have already received a free subscription to Ministry magazine, our journal for ministers. Later they will be invited to join our ministers in a day of fellowship and study.

A total of 42,500 non-Adventist clergymen living within the borders of the Lake Union are now receiving Ministry magazine! The cost of supporting this project in the Lake Union is $127,500. Please join us as we take another big step with God in the finishing of His work.

PREACH Launched in the Lake Union

Compiled by Don Gray

Beginning in January this year, 42,500 ministers of other churches in the Lake Union Conference began to receive Ministry magazine—this will continue on a bimonthly basis for the next two years.

This is the first concerted effort ever made in this territory to reach every clergyman who is not a Seventh-day Adventist with a periodical that will let them know what Seventh-day Adventists really believe and teach.

A total of 285,000 copies of Ministry will flow off the giant Web press of the Review and Herald Publishing Association at the rate of 32,000 an hour or 533 per minute.

And this is not a one-time operation, but will be repeated every other month during a full two-year period. This is PREACH—a Program to Reach Every Active Clergyman at Home.

The PREACH program began in September 1975 when for two years alternate issues of Ministry were sent to 25,000 clergymen in the Columbia Union. The response was so encouraging that it has now been enlarged to include the great majority of clergymen in North America.

It is appropriate that the launching of this vastly expanded outreach of Ministry occurs on the 50th anniversary of its publication.

Since the original issue of January 1928, the magazine has been in a state of constant change for the better. The January 1978 edition is another step forward. With the direction of J. R. Spangler, editor, and his staff, the magazine has been redesigned, utilizing the consultation service of America's foremost experts in layout and graphics.

The January issue was sent out with a special eye-catching wrapper with a personal invitation to look inside.

The content is so varied that it is believed every minister, regardless of religious background, will find material that will not only be of interest, but helpful to his ministry.

In addition to the regular articles of a theological nature supporting Seventh-day Adventist doctrines and those relating to the practical aspects of a pastor's work, there are features relating to biblical archaeology, the Bible and science, and a special health section.

There is also a department for ministers' wives, ably conducted by Kay Dower, wife of N. R. Dower, secretary of the General Conference ministerial association.

Most readers will agree that we have been negligent in not seeking a closer fellowship with ministers of other faiths. The pilot project in the Columbia Union Conference has demonstrated a ready response to such overtures.

As a part of the continuing relationship with the readers of this journal, the Ministry staff has cooperated with the local conferences of the Columbia Union in presenting all-day Bible seminars. Here also the response has been very encouraging, and it is hoped that in the future similar seminars will be conducted in all areas where the Ministry goes.

We invite the membership of the church to pray with us for the success of this venture. We would also appeal to ministers and laymen alike to form closer friendships with ministers of other faiths so that they may have a more positive understanding of our beliefs and concern for their welfare.

If there are laymen who want to subscribe to Ministry for themselves, they may do so through their local Adventist Book Center.

Although directed specifically toward the ministers, lay leaders of the church, particularly the elders who often serve in place of the pastor, will find it very useful.

Don Gray is the ministerial secretary for the Lake Union Conference.

PREACH Follow-up Seminar

Sixty-six clergymen of other faiths joined 65 Adventist pastors from the Ohio Conference, and other workers, including the three Ministry editors, for a session that lasted from ten in the morning until five in the afternoon.

Typical of the reaction at the meeting itself was the statement of one clergyman who, in expressing his appreciation for the program, added, "I never realized before that Adventists fully believe in the teaching of righteousness by faith."

Raoul Dederen of the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary, set the tone for the day with his presentation on the basic underlying issues behind the current evangelical dispute on the inspiration of the Bible.

A lively discussion followed, skillfully moderated by Donald Reynolds.

Other major presentations during the day included Herald Habenicht's pointed lecture on the clergyman and his health, and Stuart Nevin's slide presentation on "Fossils, Sedimentary Rocks, and Noah's Flood."

A spirited discussion led by Robert H. Brown of the Geoscience Research Institute followed.

Oliver Jacques and Winton H. Beaven of the Kettering Medical Center and Kettering College of Medical Arts welcomed the clergymen and presented a vignette of the purpose and mission of the Kettering Center.

We are firmly convinced that in this pilot seminar a positive impact was made on a majority of the non-Adventist ministers who attended. We made friends with these men as we talked with them.

There was a freedom throughout the entire session that we think was an evidence of the blessing of God. One of our ministers who traveled a long distance with two of his non-Adventist clergyman friends reported that on their return trip he had "the best time in his life" talking with them.

Communication, openness and frankness are absolutely essential among people who have many common goals and responsibilities, and we believe that these seminars are one important way of bringing this openness about.

Nearly all the non-Adventist clergymen who attended the seminar were favorably impressed with the Adventist approach, and their response might be summed up in the words of a Lutheran pastor who wrote the editors a few days after the seminar:

"Dear Christian Friends: The seminar at Kettering was most meaningful and worthwhile for me. I thank you for the kind invitation and hospitality. I must say it was an unusual experience to share so much in a seminar sponsored by another denomination. It has made me appreciate His church even more."

This article is condensed from Ministry magazine, vol. 50, no. 6, June, 1977, pp. 22 and 23.

Over-the-Counter Medication and the Common Cold

by Elton Stecker, M.D.

The average adult in America will catch three to six colds a year;

children will catch six to twelve. With colds a universal problem, nearly everyone must decide how to treat them.

Elton Stecker, M.D., is assistant director of the Hinsdale Family Practice Residency Program, Hinsdale Hospital, Hinsdale, Illinois.

Drug companies spend thousands of dollars convincing the cold sufferer that their product is best. Questions that must be raised are:

Should you use these products?
How safe are they?
How effective are they?

The ingredients of cold medications fall into one of the following categories.

Antihistamines are drugs which, in sufficient doses, diminish the flow of nasal secretions in the early stages of a cold. These drugs frequently cause drowsiness.

Decongestants are medicines which constrict blood vessels in the lining of the nose. This decreases swelling and thereby opens up the airway through the nose.

However, the blood vessels in the nose have no unique sensitivity to the effect of these drugs. Oral doses large enough to decrease nasal congestion also constrict blood vessels throughout the body, which results in high blood pressure.

Some forms of these drugs, available as nose drops or sprays, have a localized effect on the mucous membranes lining the nose.

Some of these preparations irritate the delicate tissues, and extended use causes congestion after they are discontinued, often referred to as a "rebound phenomenon."

Analgesics include drugs which reduce headaches or sinus pain. Aspirin may cause gastric irritation or bleeding.

Antitussives are compounds which inhibit a cough. An expectorant, which helps to thin the secretions of the lungs, is frequently combined with these cough suppressants.

A cough is a protective measure which expels secretions from the lung. If these secretions are not expelled they may cause congestion and possible bacterial infection or pneumonia.

Other medications include atropine and belladonna, alkaloid medications that are occasionally added to diminish nasal secretions, much as do antihistamines.

Caffeine is sometimes added to counteract the sedative effect of antihistamines, but the amounts exert little medicinal effect. Antacids in cold preparations counteract gastric irritation from aspirin.

Ascorbic acid, or vitamin C, seems to have no effect on cold symptoms. It does exert a placebo effect on individuals who believe it to be beneficial.

More drugs could be added to the list; however, most cold preparations contain combinations of the above.

The benefits and risks from these medicines are summarized in the chart below.

In addition to the side effects mentioned, many individuals take cold preparations along with medications for other problems, thereby risking the possibility of other potentially serious side effects due to drug interactions.

The course of action you pursue is your decision, but from the medical standpoint it seems logical to avoid possible harmful side effects.

This may be done by relying on physical methods of relief such as hot fomentation, foot baths, heating compresses, steam inhalation and increased water intake.

Next month's health feature will be entitled "Natural Remedies and the Common Cold."

MEDICATION	BENEFITS	UNDESIRABLE SIDE EFFECTS
Antihistamines	Dried nasal secretions	Possible accidents due to drowsiness; convulsions in children from overdose
Decongestants	Decreased swelling	Increased blood pressure; rebound congestion
Analgesics	Decreased discomfort from headache and sinus pain	Gastric irritation or bleeding
Antitussives	Decreased coughing	Pooling of secretions in lungs
Atropine	Dried nasal secretions	Increased heart rate; decreased tone in urinary tract; increased body temperature
Caffeine	Counteracts sedation from antihistamines	Nervous system stimulation
Vitamin C	Possible decrease in duration of cold	Increased destruction of vitamin B12; possible incidence of kidney stones; enlarged supplemental doses can cause possible decreased ability of white blood cells to fight bacteria

FESTIVAL OF FAITH

WITNESSING—A WAY OF LIFE

On Sabbath, March 11, 1978, you can participate in a unique way in our Festival of Faith to be held in Lincoln, Nebraska.

During the days of March 29 to April 1 more than one thousand young adults from our union will be giving a practical demonstration of what Jesus has done for them. They will tell of the change that has been wrought in their lives within the framework of their individual gifts.

After attending classes and workshops, delegates will be involved in community service projects, door-to-door sharing, secular campus encounter, Better Living Outreach, one-to-one witnessing, dark county witnessing, musical witnessing and more.

It's an experience never to be forgotten! An experience of fellowship, inspiration, training and witnessing! An experience that will have lasting results in our schools and local churches as the future leaders of our church return home to make witnessing a way of life!

The offering on Sabbath, March 11, is for the Festival of Faith, but it is for more than just a program. It is for our youth.

ANDREWS EMPHASIZES TEMPERANCE EDUCATION

Andrews University has announced a plan to make the university a center for temperance education.

The decision is the result of three years of study and consultation between the university's seminary and graduate school faculties and the General Conference temperance department.

"With alcohol, drugs and tobacco taking control of one society after another, and with the devastation to moral, social and cultural values, we recognize the need for a church focus that has long been neglected," said Dr. Joseph G. Smoot, university president.

Ernest H. J. Steed, General Conference temperance director who worked out the arrangements with the university, pointed out that the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking, temperance films and other educational aids have attracted a great deal of public attention. "This is because it is meeting the community's needs," he said.

"Temperance is much broader than health," said Elder Steed. "Temperance means self-control, possible only through Jesus Christ, and is therefore a fundamental spiritual ministry, bringing the rewards of life, health and character development."

The purpose of Andrews' temperance emphasis, said Dr. Smoot, is to make young people aware of what temperance can do to transform individual lives and society at large.

Dr. Smoot outlined the programs now available as an M.A. in religion with a concentration in temperance leadership, and an M.A. in education concentrating in temperance education. The seminary also offers a course, Temperance Evangelism for Pastors and Laymen.

The university hopes that overseas divisions will take advantage of the seminary course in their extension school planning.

The General Conference, by Annual Council action, has designated 1979 as Temperance Year.

The cooperative effort of the General Conference temperance department and Andrews is an advance step of mutual concern and collaboration, said Dr. Smoot.

PRESIDENT'S COUNCIL ACTS TO CUT ELECTRICAL USE

Andrews University's President's Council has adopted a set of energy-conservation measures designed to cooperate with requests from the Indiana and Michigan Electric Company to voluntarily cut back on the use of electricity by 10 percent during the coal miner's strike.

In a letter to the university faculty, Dr. Joseph G. Smoot, president, outlined a plan of curtailment including the elimination of nonessential lighting in all university buildings for the duration of the emergency.

Offices and classrooms with windows were to have all lights turned off during daylight hours. Dormitory students were asked to use no lights during the day in their rooms and only study lights at night. Residents of apartments owned by the school were also asked to curb their power usage.

"We trust these measures will be sufficient to conserve electricity until the coal strike ends," said Dr. Smoot. "In case of need, the university officers are studying other stringent measures."

The council's action came soon after an announcement by the electric utility that mandatory conservation could be introduced if coal supplies continued to dwindle.

ANDREWS OBSERVES BLACK HISTORY WEEK

Andrews University observed Black History Week February 12 to 18, with programs centered around the theme, "A Look at Black Seventh-day Adventist History."

Nine guest lecturers and a gospel singing group visited the campus during the observance.

Among the featured guests were:

Dr. Charles Joseph, president of the Lake Region Conference.

Dr. Stuart A. Taylor, economics consultant and former professor of economics at Harvard University.

Dr. Jessie G. Bradley, assistant superintendent of public schools for New Haven, Connecticut.

Robert Shurney of the Marshall Space Flight Center in Alabama.

Colonel Leonard Johnson, military consultant in aerospace medicine to the Surgeon General of the U.S. Air Force.

Dr. William E. Coopwood, teaching psychiatrist at Meharry Medical College.

Dr. Samuel DeShay, director of the General Conference's office of medical affairs.

Dr. Calvin Rock, president of Oakwood College.

The Blendwrights, a gospel singing group, who presented a Sabbath afternoon concert with slides and narration.

ANDREWS RECEIVES GRANT FOR CHRISTIAN WRITERS

Andrews University has been selected as one of two schools to receive a $3,000 grant to foster the development of more skilled Christian writers, according to William E. Garber, communication department chairman.

The grant comes from a $37,500 fund established by the General Conference; the Review and Herald, Pacific Press and Southern Publishing Associations, and Rex Callicott of Baton Rouge, Louisiana, a Seventh-day Adventist businessman.

The fund will be administered over a five-year period with Andrews receiving a new grant each year.

Pacific Union College also was given $3,000, and grants are also being made available to other Adventist colleges in North America.

The first funds to be received, says Mr. Garber, will be used to purchase new equipment, provide honoraria for guest speakers and set up scholarships for communication majors.

BROADVIEW ACADEMY GETS NEW BUS

Student Association officers stand proudly in front of their new school bus which was their S.A. project this year. More than $10,000 was raised by the students in a workathon and other projects for the purchase of the bus. Acquired on January 10 from the Huskie Bus Line in DeKalb for $15,000, the General Motors diesel bus will seat 41 passengers, is air conditioned and has a lavatory. According to Ron Graham, driver, the bus will be used for the choir, tumbling team and other groups. Each of the students wish to thank everyone who donated funds for this much-needed bus, and also everyone who donates to the one-percent plan for B.V.A. which helps provide continued excellent facilities at Broadview.

SPRING HOUSECLEANING AT ABC

Help us clean house!

Employees of the Adventist Book Center are getting ready for their once-a-year inventory clearance sale to be held March 19 to 31.

Not only will camp-meeting prices be in effect, but records and tapes will be 20 percent off; food, five percent off, and many other items will be below camp-meeting prices.

With mental health being stressed during 1978, the new Ellen G. White two-volume set, Mind, Character and Personality, with study guides, is being offered for $4.95.

Also the Testimonies for the Church will be on sale for $32.95 because of the large number of Testimony Countdown II series being held throughout the conference.

See you at the sale March 19 to 31. The center is open Sundays, 9 A.M. to 4 P.M.; Mondays, 8:30 A.M. to 9 P.M.; Tuesdays through Thursdays, 8:30 A.M. to 5 P.M., and Fridays, 8:30 A.M. to 12:30 P.M.

CHICAGO TASK FORCE REPORTS

Members of the North Shore Church in Chicago feel they were truly blessed this past summer when Elder Jewell Bolejak, director of lay evangelism for the Upper Columbia Conference, his wife, Betty, and 10 Walla Walla students came to Chicago where they spent 10 weeks teaching and giving Bible studies. (See the Lake Union Herald, August 23, 1977.)

Names were gathered and compiled from the Voice of Prophecy, Faith for Today and It Is Written programs, and from Project: Steps to Christ and other contacts. These provided the Chicago Task Force, as the group named themselves, with plenty of material to work with.

The Walla Walla group visited homes two-by-two as the Lord instructs us to do in Scripture, and they depended upon the Holy Spirit to lead them safely in this large, unfamiliar city.

John Belensky, interest coordinator of North Shore, has the challenging job of getting people involved in Bible studies. Many members responded enthusiastically to the invitation.

Each lay member was accompanied for the first few Bible studies by a member of the task force, then the layman was encouraged to work on his own.

More than 2,000 families were visited by the Walla Walla group during their stay with the North Shore family, and more than 300 Bible studies were begun during this 10-week period.

As of January 1978 Mr. Belensky reports the following results.

One man who watched It Is Written was contacted by the task force. Later he attended the Steps to Christ classes, and was a faithful attendee at the Century 21 evangelistic meetings held at the North Shore Church in October. After further Bible studies he was baptized in November 1977.

There are 26 Bible studies still being given by laymen at North Shore. Several people have delayed their studies for various reasons, but they are still being contacted by the members.

One Bible study resulted from a Voice of Prophecy correspondence course.

Joseph Joos, a layman at North Shore, asked permission to follow up all of the It Is Written interests for our area.

We are grateful to the task force for planting the seeds, and the North Shore members plan to reap the results, aided by the Holy Spirit.

It is our fervent prayer that the church will go forward in faith, winning people for the kingdom so the Lord can come soon.

NEWS NOTES

• The Camp Sagola management committee is in the process of acquiring a small piece of land with a possible swimming site adjoining the present camp property in the Upper Peninsula. Plans are also being made for the completion of the lodge and wilderness campsites.

• The Marshall Church, led by James Hoffer, has made plans for a Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking to be held in March, a cooking school in April, a Vacation Bible School during the summer, a fair booth in August and an evangelistic series in September.

• Arnold Kraner, conference evangelist, is scheduled to conduct evangelistic meetings in Jackson, March 17 through April 15.

• "If all goes as planned," Charles Danforth, pastor at Munising, writes, local church members will begin work on the building of their new church on April 1.

New Edenville Church Opens

William and Patricia Oberloier, the artists who created the stained-glass windows, point out the leaves and white flower which depict the creation of vegetation on the third day.

Opening-day services for the new $290,000 Edenville Church were held January 14 when the 240-seat sanctuary was filled with members and friends of the congregation. James Hayward, conference executive secretary, and Herb Pritchard, conference treasurer, headed the list of special guests attending the occasion. Paul Schoen is the pastor of the 73-member congregation.

The new church, which features nine stained-glass windows, is located on State Highway 30 next to the eight-grade church school.

Local members contributed funds and approximately 5,000 hours of donated labor to make their dream church come true.

The Edenville congregation was formed in 1882 after evangelistic meetings had been held during several years by such pioneer ministers as Joseph Bates, J. O. Corliss, M. E. Cornell and others.

One of the first things the 27 charter members decided to do was to build a house of worship. On July 16, 1882, only 65 days after their decision, the charming, comfortable little church was dedicated. It still stands on a side street about one-quarter of a mile from the new structure.

In the fall of 1897 a church school was begun; classes were held in the little church. In 1904 a special room was built on the back of the church where classes were held until the present school was erected in 1964.

In 1952 Michigan Conference President G. E. Hutches visited Edenville and suggested an improvement program. This challenge was accepted and included the addition of a brick front and a foyer for the church.

Within a few months a rededication service was held, commemorating 70 years of continuous weekly services.

Serious talk about a new church building began in July 1974 when a finance committee was appointed.

A kickoff fund-raising dinner was held in February 1976 and in October that year actual construction of the building began. Robert Marsh served as the chairman of the building committee.

One of the interesting features of the church is the eight stained-glass windows in the south wall of the sanctuary, and the main window, featured on the front cover of this week's Herald.

The windows were created by local artists William and Patricia Oberloier. Mrs. Oberloier has a degree in fine arts and has taught art on several educational levels.

Mr. Oberloier's natural artistic abilities and his experience as a designer and builder of machinery were helpful in cutting, fitting and leading the small pieces of colored glass to create the windows designed by his wife.

The windows feature the days of creation, and the eighth one shows the lion and the lamb lying down together in the new earth.

The Oberloiers hope that the hours of creative artistry they spent in making the windows will provide a worshipful atmosphere for the Edenville congregation.

MELVIN ADAMS SPEAKS AT RALLY

Melvin Adams, director of the religious liberty department of the General Conference, was the featured speaker at a religious liberty rally held at Milwaukee Junior Academy on January 21.

Members from many of the churches within a 150-mile radius of Milwaukee filled the auditorium to hear messages from Elder Adams. Drs. George Akers and Robert Johnston of Andrews University; R. H. Carter, Lake Union executive secretary, and E. M.

Elder Adams addressed the religious liberty rally in Milwaukee. R. H. Carter and Dr. George Akers are in the background.

Peterson, Review and Herald Publishing Association circulation manager, were also special guests.

Robert Dale, president; Ernest Wheeler, religious liberty director, and W. Lee Grady, evangelist, represented the Wisconsin Conference at the rally.

The rally brought news and food for thought on the subject of our liberty. Many people committed themselves to a closer vigilance in guarding the liberties we hold so dear.

LAYMEN'S RALLY AT WISCONSIN ACADEMY

More than 200 laymen converged on Wisconsin Academy on January 22 to attend the largest laymen's rally ever held in Wisconsin.

Many of the people present had thrilling stories of witnessing experiences to relate. Some laymen brought people whom they had introduced to the church with them.

Don Gray, Lake Union ministerial secretary, and A. W. Bauer, Lake Union lay activities director, gave inspiration and counsel. Questions were answered concerning lay work. Materials were demonstrated and instructions given.

A total of 135 people qualified for lay Bible-workers credentials.

BOOK CENTER REPORTS ON SUNDAY HOURS

Since September 18, 1977, the Adventist Book Center has been open on Sundays from 12 noon to 5 P.M. The response, according to Douglas Gregg, ABC manager, has been gratifying.

Average sales for the 17 Sundays involved have been almost $400 compared to about half that amount last year when the ABC was open only one Sunday each month. Total Sunday sales to date are slightly more than $6,700.

Mr. Gregg says that due to the good response, he plans to continue opening each Sunday through May 21.

Beginning May 28, the ABC will be closed Sundays for the summer. Sunday hours will be resumed with a special sale September 10.

During the last week of March, says Mr. Gregg, the ABC will hold a special five-day pre-inventory clearance sale.

Books, records, Bibles and other items will be reduced to camp-meeting prices, and certain popular food items will have special prices.

The sale will begin at noon on Sunday, March 26 (Easter Sunday), and continue during regular ABC hours through Thursday, March 30 at 5 P.M.

On Friday, March 31, and Sunday, April 2, the book center will remain closed for inventory.

Last year was a good year for the book center with a gain in sales of almost $50,000. This gain is largely attributed to the new facility which has made possible a much smoother operation and more pleasant shopping conditions for customers.

It is hoped that church members in Wisconsin will feel free to invite their friends to come and see the display in the book center as a means of acquainting them with Adventist literature.

ONCE SAVED ALWAYS SAVED?
SAKAE KUBO

ONCE SAVED ALWAYS SAVED? by Sakae Kubo. Southern Publishing Association, Nashville, Tennessee. $75.

If you have been truly converted, will you never be lost? Should you stumble and sin, does that mean your conversion was not real? Does the Christian go through life confident of salvation, or should he tremble—fearful that God will reject him any moment over some trifle?

Many Christians hold the doctrine of perseverance—once saved, always saved. But what does Scripture teach about it? Can one have confidence that God accepts him?

In Once Saved Always Saved? Dr. Sakae Kubo probes the biblical perspective on salvation to find the answers to such questions.

I'M JENNY'S DADDY by Dave Schwantes. Southern Publishing Association, Nashville, Tennessee. $75.

Many books are available to prepare the expectant mother for all the problems and joys of pregnancy and new motherhood. But what about the expectant father?

Dave Schwantes, the proud father of a young daughter, explains from personal experience some of the things the future father will face—from the kind of personality changes one may notice in a pregnant wife, through baby supplies and hospital arrangements, to the transformation wrought in their lives by the arrival of the child.

I'm Jenny's Daddy is must reading for a couple considering or awaiting their first child. Dave Schwantes' gently amusing style makes it a book all readers will enjoy for its story of joyous birth and young parenthood.

Pour a glass of fresh nutrition. It's a Loma Linda lunchtime.

Kids and grownups put their bodies through some pretty tough workouts most days.

So when they all meet for lunch, pour each one a cold glass of Loma Linda Soyagen, the delicious soy beverage.

It not only quenches their thirst. It contains plenty of protein and calcium to help them through the afternoon.

Soyagen is vitamin and mineral fortified, to give you a highly nutritious food.

And Soyagen comes in three delicious flavors. Soyagen All-Purpose (now in new liquid form, too). Carob-Flavored Soyagen, with a rich, chocolate-like taste. And a special blend of Soyagen, with no cane or beet sugar added.

If you're feeling creative, substitute Soyagen All-Purpose for whole dairy milk in recipes for cookies, cake and sauces.

Whatever flavor you choose, you can be sure of one thing.

With Loma Linda Soyagen, your family is getting only the best for their bodies.
