Leading People to Accept Jesus

*Don Gray
Ministerial Secretary
Lake Union Conference*

The most important work of the pastor is to lead people to accept Jesus as their Savior. Because of this concept three pastor's soul-winning seminars were held during February for one hundred pastors in the Lake Union Conference.

Attendance at these seminars was on a voluntary basis, and only those who felt their need in this area of their ministry were invited. Each man pledged that he would return to his church and start a training program for his members to help them become proficient in the art of sharing Christ with others and giving Bible studies.

Pastors from Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana attended the first two seminars held at the Good Samaritan Retreat Center in western Illinois.

A new Pastor's Soul-Winning Manual and a new Lay Bible Instructor's Manual were presented to the pastors and used as study material in these classes.

Elder and Mrs. Don Gray directed the instruction with emphasis on the great need of getting the laymen involved in helping the pastor not only to direct church activities, but to help interested people in the community learn about the glorious message that the Seventh-day Adventist church has to share with them.

Simple ways of training laymen to witness and give Bible studies were demonstrated.

The third seminar was held in Michigan at Camp Au Sable and most of the pastors who attended were Michigan workers. As in the other seminars, study was given to helping the pastor find time in his busy schedule to be able to take a day or two each week to show his laymen how to become successful lay Bible workers.

All of the ministers expressed their deep desire to see the work of God finished soon, and promised that when they went back to their churches at the end of the three-day seminar they were going to put into action the simple plans that had been discussed so that their churches could be soul-winning centers in their communities.

Some of the pastors expressed eagerness to see a definite change made in the way that they spend their time in administrative tasks instead of being able to see the work of leading people to accept Jesus go forward in their area. They asked for a special interest in our prayers so that they can do the work God has given them to do.

THE HEART OF THE LAKE UNION

Around the World in 20 Years

by Rita Waterman

Andrews University is renowned for its international flavor, and people like Terese Thonus enhance that atmosphere even more.

Teri is an American who has literally lived around the world. With her father working for an international company, every other year on the average has taken Teri and her two brothers and two sisters to a new home in such places as Holland, Japan, Spain, England, Colombia and Singapore.

In fact, by her 20th birthday, Teri had lived in the United States for only five years. She enjoys the changing scenery and feels that the experience of living in so many different places has been a real bonus to her growing-up years.

Teri speaks Spanish fluently, as well as sprinklings of German and Japanese. Her own philosophy has broadened because of her exposure to other cultures.

"It's good to realize what it's like to be in the minority. It helps you understand yourself better," she said.

Teri added that she liked having to put herself out to meet people. "At times I had to cope with insecurities, but it also made me more outgoing. It was a good experience."

For the last two years she attended Peabody Institute, a music conservatory in Baltimore, where she specialized in musical performance.

Although Teri came from a religious family and had been introduced to Christ five years earlier, it was in a Christian fellowship group at Peabody that she first met a Seventh-day Adventist. Teri was baptized in October 1976.

Rita Waterman is a senior communication major at Andrews University.

"I was living in downtown Baltimore. My apartment was in a nine-story building and the school was two blocks away. City life was getting to me. I wanted to go to a place where I could be alone and think, to get my head together."

So Teri came to Andrews and enrolled in music education with a major in voice and a minor in piano. She had some interesting first impressions.

Coming from city environs, Teri was impressed with what she calls Andrews' "big, beautiful campus." But she feels that things are also more scheduled and busier.

"Now I'm sampling different fields. The people are really diversified. It's exciting." She said that although her program at Peabody was more cohesive, it was an eat-sleep-and-drink-music kind of life.

Teri discovered differences between the philosophies of the schools and teachers, too.

"No institution made up of people is going to be absolutely perfect, but I'm pleased with my teachers at Andrews," she said.

Teri's career plans are to teach music on the elementary or high-school level. She would also like to work on a master's degree in counseling.

Although she describes herself as "a little absentminded, a daydreamer," she also feels creative.

"I like to find new ways of expressing old ideas in music, religion, of myself, and the way I relate to people," she said.

Teri wants to put the counseling and creativity together to help Adventist young people. Currently she is teaching in the earliteen Sabbath School.

Settling down to one place for a couple of years doesn't mean that Teri's wanderlust and love for travel have lessened. But for now she's content to enjoy the international atmosphere she's found at Andrews.

Following the Blueprint

By W. McClintock

"Your Adventist education system will never survive on its own. Soon you will have to join the national education system like all the other churches have."

These predictions, made in 1970 by a non-Adventist educator in Papua New Guinea, have not come true. The Adventist education system in Papua New Guinea is growing stronger every year and now the country's government leaders are taking a closer look at the way Adventists do things.

Sonoma College is an important key in the Adventist system. Students who come to Sonoma pay school fees. They are also expected to work 15 hours each week.

Students at other colleges have their fees paid by the government and they also receive a weekly allowance.

In spite of the extra sacrifice required for those enrolling at our denominational college, Sonoma has more applications from prospective students than can be accommodated. A deeper sense of commitment is seen in Sonoma students than in state-college students.

A large wing has been added to the college mainly as a result of self-help projects by staff and students. Facilities have been steadily improved from the first tin shed used in 1969.

Without any restriction on curriculum and programming, Sonoma is able to follow the Spirit of Prophecy blueprint. Work and study are combined with social, spiritual and evangelistic activities.

Sonoma's primary-teacher training department meets regularly with leaders from three non-Adventist colleges to discuss curriculum and programming. The differences in aims and objectives of the Sonoma courses have caused much comment.

The principal of one college said, "We take a great deal of notice of what Sonoma is doing, for in about three years we find ourselves doing what they are doing."

We can praise the Lord for the clear guidelines He has given us. His way is always best. Sonoma lecturers have pioneered new methods of teaching math.

The government education department has regularly invited the math lecturers to conduct in-service training courses for 500 elementary school teachers.

The Papua New Guinea government has an eight-point plan for the development of the country. One point of the plan is self-reliance. Sonoma is self-sufficient in food production and sometimes has a surplus.

Recently Sonoma donated 2,500

cabbages and other garden produce to government hospitals, boarding schools and colleges, and even to the police barracks. These gifts proved to be an excellent community-relations project.

The matron of one large hospital wrote in response to the gift, "The tapioc, sweet potatoes and cabbages were sent to our diet kitchen. They were used to prepare meals for malnourished children. May the Lord bless the staff and students at Sonoma as you serve in His name."

In the eight years it has been operating, Sonoma College, Papua New Guinea's senior college, has sent out hundreds of ministers, teachers and clerks to join the Adventist work force. They are working in every area of the Papua New Guinea Union Mission and in many parts of the neighboring Western Pacific Union Mission.

Sonoma needs an administration building, an expanded library and more classrooms. We are so happy that the first quarter, 1978, 13th Sabbath offering will provide funds for development at Sonoma Adventist College.

Join us in developing trained workers for God's church in Papua New Guinea and other South Pacific countries.

13TH SABBATH OFFERING, MARCH 25

Lake Murray Adventure

by C. A. Townend

It took us about an hour to fly over the green wilderness. Kikori, headquarters of the South West Papuan Mission, was our takeoff point.

Gordon Stafford and John Bryant were our pilots. Pastors Raymond Imona, Papua New Guinea Union Mission stewardship director; Ray Sills, mission president, and David Blanch, district director, were our fellow travelers. Our destination was Lake Murray.

As our flight path intersected the Strickland River we could see Lake Murray, the largest inland lake in Papua New Guinea.

We flew over the lake to try to identify Boinabalavu, the village where our work had commenced.

"There it is. And they have finished the new church!" was David Blanch's comment above the roar of the engine.

Soon we landed, and half an hour later we were skimming across the lake in a dinghy with an outboard motor. I had time to reflect on the Lake Murray story.

Around Lake Murray live 2,000 people. They are somewhat nomadic because they must search for their staple food, sago or sak sak. Sago palms are found in the swamplands surrounding the lake.

When the people return to the village they may bring enough sak sak to last about one month. Then they go off again in search of sustenance.

Government aid and expertise have encouraged these people to set up an industry which is probably unique in the world—crocodile farming.

For years they have gone on night expeditions to spear or shoot crocodiles. They know how to preserve the skins in salt and then sell them to traders.

Now the villagers are being taught how to build ponds and raise crocodiles for selling.

In July 1975 Sonoma College ministerial graduate Reuben Ruhi was sent to the Lake Murray area where he made contacts in several villages. Elders of Boinabalavu village invited him to stay and tell them about Jesus. But the powers of darkness were not pleased with this breakthrough.

One evening Reuben was bitten by a Papuan Black—a poisonous snake. Responding to his cry for help the village people killed the snake.

Reuben knew the seriousness of the situation and asked the people to pray and get him to the nearest clinic quickly.

But at the clinic the "doctor boy" had given his last antivenin injection the previous day. The best he could do was to give Reuben an aspirin and hope that a plane would land on the nearby airstrip to take him to the government hospital at Daru.

The poison began to take effect—Reuben had only a few hours to live. When a company plane landed the next morning Reuben was already unconscious. Usually that would have been the end, but miraculously Reuben awoke a few hours later in the hospital.

God had answered the prayers of the people who had just begun to believe in the power of Jesus.

A few days later Reuben returned to Boinabalavu where there was much rejoicing. Later he was transferred to Daru and was replaced by Enoch John, another Sonoma Adventist College ministerial graduate.

Enoch found the people had built a house for the missionary and were preparing to build their first church.

He showed them how to grow sweet potatoes, corn, yams and greens to supplement their sak sak diet.

As we stepped ashore at Boinabalavu, Enoch and his wife were standing there surrounded by a host of smiling faces. We shook hands with everyone and went up to the village.

That evening we all squatted under a large mango tree and reviewed the story of how Jesus calmed the storm on Lake Galilee. As I spoke I could see that these people related very quickly to this story.

The next morning we saw a demonstration of the power that had stilled the winds and the waves, as freedom and peace were brought to a devil-possessed man.

What a thrill it was to open and dedicate the first Seventh-day Adventist Church at Lake Murray, and how we thanked God for the dedicated graduates of Sonoma Adventist College whose ministry had made this possible.

As we skimmed across the lake on our return journey, I found myself reflecting on the events of the past 24 hours.

Our mission aircraft had made possible the opening of this territory, and Sonoma Adventist College had given us men like Reuben and Enoch who were prepared to go out to the new work frontiers in Papua New Guinea.

How thankful I was for the privilege of belonging to the great worldwide family of God's children who, on the 13th Sabbath, March 25, 1978, would be sending a special overflow offering to Papua New Guinea.

OSBORN LECTURE SERIES BEGUN AT LA SIERRA

A lecture series has been established on the La Sierra campus of Loma Linda University in honor of the late John Osborn, former adjunct professor at Andrews University, who also served on Andrews' board of trustees from 1971 until his death in March 1976.

Creation of the lecture series occurred in conjunction with the donation of Elder Osborn's extensive and well-organized library to the La Sierra campus library.

Almost 2,000 volumes, including basic reference materials, denominationally published works and many classics were turned over to the library's Heritage Room by Elder Osborn's wife, Marion, along with his analytical index of the books.

A Seventh-day Adventist minister for 45 years, Elder Osborn held several positions in the denomination, including the presidencies of the New Jersey and Southeastern California conferences.

His last position was as ministerial director of the Pacific Union Conference.

He was a candidate for the Doctor of Ministry degree at Andrews when he died.

Elder Osborn's special interest was in continuing education for ministers and he constantly endeavored to upgrade the Adventist ministry.

He pioneered the establishment of several committees dealing with the ministry, including the Intern Review Committee and the Competence in Ministry Committee.

MUSIC SCHOLARSHIP GIVEN BY HAMELS

The Mahlon and Irene Hamel Endowed Scholarship has been established at Andrews University to provide approximately $3,000 each year to undergraduate music majors and graduate students in the field of music.

Prior to his death in 1976 Mahlon Hamel had made provision for

DEDICATION SERVICE HELD FOR SOPHOMORE NURSES

A dedication ceremony for Andrews University's sophomore nursing students was held February 11 in Pioneer Memorial Church.

The class was addressed by Dr. John Stout, Andrews' professor of biology.

Those officially accepted into the sophomore nursing class were Lois Eppel, Debbie Gillham, Karin Lundstrom, Cynthia Haugen, Adamelia Emery, Jacqueline Brown, Sara Concepcion, Norma Barker, Mary Ann Lewis, Darlene Hawley, Simone Demiar, Kathy Garcia, Roselyn Marcelle, Rhonda Mellinger, Ramon Gazan, Randy Hainey, Debra Silver, Christine Webb, Marjorie Moon, Louann Peeples, Kim Carter, Jeanna Easley, Peggy Driscoll, Elizabeth Santana, Tim Carlson, George Yancer, Norman Forbes, Hetty Bacchus, Patti Wildman, Vicki McDannel and Becky Andersen.

$50,000 to be invested by Andrews for a scholarship fund.

Dr. Hamel's "heart and life were in music," and "he wanted to help students," according to his son, Dr. Paul Hamel, chairman of Andrews' music department.

Students interested in applying for a scholarship should contact Dr. Hamel or the dean of their school.

Mahlon Hamel was born in 1892 in Nebraska to parents who moved there by covered wagon.

He became one of the youngest barbers in Wisconsin at the age of 18, but abandoned that occupation to devote his time to music, joining several bands, including the Ringling Brothers Circus band.

He married Irene Flentie in 1916, and began organizing community bands and teaching band in central Wisconsin schools in the 1920's. In 1930 he conducted what he termed "the first 4-H Club band in the world."

Dr. Hamel was educated at the University of Wisconsin, and he directed and taught junior and senior bands in more than a dozen Wisconsin communities before his retirement.

After he formally retired he became band director at Andrews University for one year and then taught at Mount Vernon Academy in Ohio.

MEETING LIFE'S EMERGENCIES SEMINAR

A continuing medical and dental education seminar has been planned for the physicians and dentists of the Lake Union from May 10 to 14, 1978.

These seminars will run simultaneously at the Marriott's Lincolnshire Resort located just north of Chicago on I-94.

We are inviting physicians and dentists from surrounding unions to attend this special program. Dr. H. S. Sjoren of the Loma Linda School of Dentistry will be contacting the dentists in the union regarding their program.

The medical seminar, "Meeting Life's Emergencies," has been planned with these objectives in mind:

1. To help the physician understand and treat some of life's emergencies.
  2. To alert him to some of the professional's family problems.
  3. To outline appropriate medical management for most common emergency situations arising from an automobile accident.
  4. To provide opportunity for self-improvement of CPR techniques.
  5. To provide the opportunity for personal cardiovascular stress testing.
- The program is an A.M.A. category I credit, and application is being made with A.C.E.P. and A.A.F.P. for category I and prescribed credits respectively.

The theme is built around a parable of a physician's family who were involved in an automobile accident.

The immediate cause of the accident was simply that the exhausted family physician fell asleep at the steering wheel when the family, after innumerable delays, finally got started on a long-overdue vacation.

The parable, presented in skit format, is broken up piecemeal to the audience throughout the four days, with pertinent data immediately preceding the lecture of the moment. The skit utilizes only two to five minutes of time at the beginning of the lecture hour.

In addition to the didactic lectures there will be a short pretest (to be mailed out early to pre-registrants) and post tests for each area, as well as syllabus materials related to the lecture, with a reference list for further study.

The lecturing participants hold teaching appointments at the following universities: Andrews University, Cook County, Loma Linda University, Loyola University, Northwestern University, Rush Presbyterian St. Luke's, University of Illinois and University of South Florida. Many of these lecturers are practicing physicians at the Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital.

Opportunity for individual practice on the Resusci-Anne is provided outside the scheduled 15 hours, with a trained cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) instructor available to teach the correct technique of CPR.

Reservations are now being taken for this valuable, A.M.A. category I accredited program—"Meeting Life's Emergencies."

Pre-registration fee for this five-day seminar is only $225 per person. Deadline for pre-registration is April 30, 1978. Late registration by mail or at the door will be $250 per person.

Participants include Everet Witzel, M.D., Ph.D., director of family practice residency, Hinsdale Hospital; Jack Provonsha, M.D., Ph.D., Loma Linda University; Roy Wightman, vice president, Great Lakes Adventist Health Services (GLAHS); Joel Hass, vice president, GLAHS; A. Graham Maxwell, Ph.D., Loma Linda University, and many others.

It is the intended purpose of this seminar to bring together the physicians and dentists of our union in a continuing medical and dental educational program that will allow not only for professional growth but spiritual growth as well.

For information write the Great Lakes Adventist Health Services, 34 South Vine Street, Hinsdale, IL 60521, or call (312) 920-1100.

NEWS NOTES

• Plans are underway to organize a branch Sabbath School in Crystal Lake to be directed by the Elgin and Palatine churches. For the time being the group is planning to meet in a member's home on Sabbath afternoons. There are about 12 Adventist families in this area which will form the nucleus for the new group.

• A Marriage Enrichment Seminar, "From This Day Forward," was conducted at the Elgin Church on February 24 and 25. Conducted by Bob and Lana Dahl of Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital, the seminar offered help in enriching Christian marriages. The Dahls, married for 18 years and the parents of two teenage boys, are available for conducting these seminars throughout the Chicagoland area.

• A district rally was held for the Alton and Collinsville churches, February 17 and 18, at the Rosewood Heights Township Hall. Josephine Cunnington Edwards, former missionary to Africa, was guest speaker for the weekend.

• Approximately 80 members are now meeting regularly as a new Korean company at the Hinsdale Unitarian Church. Due to the great amount of travel commuting back and forth to the Korean Church in Chicago, a branch Sabbath School was started in September 1977. On January 7 this year the group was officially organized into a company, and it is hoped that they will be organized into a church shortly.

READING CORNER BUILT IN ROCKFORD

Rockford Church School students in grades one to five are head and shoulders above their peers when it comes to reading! These students do their reading assignments in a six-foot "tree house" built in their classroom. Teacher Rosemary Peterson, right, thought that a special section of her classroom should be devoted to those who needed a place to study or just to read. Russell Waterman, a parent of one of the students, accepted the challenge and worked 30 hours to design and complete the tree house for the class. It has already proved to be a very effective learning tool for lots of happy reading. Missy Schroeder and Corey Waterman are shown climbing up to the tree house.

HUNGARIANS BEGIN BIBLE CORRESPONDENCE COURSE

On January 18 the Chicago Hungarian "Remenyseg Hangja" (Voice of Hope) Bible Correspondence Course was begun.

The purpose of this course is to introduce in 18 lessons the truths of the Bible to the many Hungarian-speaking people in the Chicagoland area.

With the help of the Illinois Conferency Executive Committee and others, the members of the Hungarian Church were able to mail 980 letters to Hungarians throughout Chicago and the suburbs.

Each Saturday evening the members help Pastor Imre Petrik prepare more letters so that they can mail 300 to 400 each week.

If you know of any Hungarian-speaking people please send their address to Remenyseg Hangja, P.O. Box 41921, Chicago, IL 60641. Pastor Petrik will then contact them.

Please pray with us that the Lord will open many hearts to the third angel's message through this medium.

VANSANFORD RETIRES AFTER 17 YEARS IN ILLINOIS

Edward VanSanford has announced his retirement on March 31 as trust services director of the Illinois Conference.

Elder VanSanford came to Brookfield as manager of the Illinois Book and Bible House (now the Adventist Book Center) in 1960 from Syracuse, New York, where he held a similar position.

He worked as manager of the Book and Bible House from June 1960 to October 1971, when he was promoted to auditor and trust services director.

On June 22, 1974, Elder VanSanford was ordained during camp meeting at Broadview Academy, La Fox.

In January 1977 Elder VanSanford became full-time trust services director for the conference.

Elder VanSanford attended Union Springs Academy, Union Springs, New York, and graduated from Atlantic Union College, South Lancaster, Massachusetts, with a B.A. in business administration in 1940.

He is married to the former Grace Evans of Utica, New York.

Mrs. VanSanford also attended Atlantic Union College and graduated with a B.A. in English. For several years she taught English at Union Springs Academy. Later she worked with her husband at the Book and Bible House when he was manager.

A dinner was held in their honor on March 12 at the New Earth Vegetarian Restaurant, Chicago. After retiring, the VanSanfords plan to move to Calistoga, California.

Elder Harold Flynt welcomes Judy Jildera into the Rockford Church fellowship.

FRIENDSHIP BRINGS RESULTS

Rockford's first baptism of the year took place on January 14 when Judy Jildera was baptized.

Prior to her baptism Mrs. Jildera related the four factors that led her to find Christ.

The first Seventh-day Adventists she met were Harold Carter, Margaret Thompson, and Dick and Vernita Watts of the Rockford Church—all of them expressed concern for her and prayed with her.

Her second contact with Adventists was during the 1977 camp meeting at Broadview Academy. Mrs. Jildera was very impressed with each of the ministers who spoke, and said the speakers were as "servants to their people."

Her third contact came at the Rockford Church where she was greeted with warmth and friendliness and said she immediately felt like part of the big family.

Elder Harold Flynt then gave her Bible studies which helped to fill her spiritual needs. This and the concern and friendliness of Rockford members have changed her life into one full of happiness and meaning.

CICERO NEWS NOTES

• Cynthia Durham, a student of organ performance at Andrews University, gave a recital on the pipe organ at the Cicero Church on February 18. The Andrews University Brass Ensemble accompanied her several times during the program.

• A temperance rally sponsored by the Cicero Community Services and directed by the Indiana Academy temperance organization was begun on February 17 at the Hamilton Heights Public Elementary School. Cash prizes have been offered for the winners in the poster, poem, jingle and oration contests. The rally culminates on March 9.

• Most evening meetings, including Testimony Countdown II, have been cancelled in the Cicero Church for the present time because of the electricity shortage in Indiana.

PHILOSDA TRI-UNION REGIONAL RETREAT AT CAMP MOHAVEN

On Thanksgiving weekend 130 single people from all over the eastern part of the United States met at Ohio's Mohaven Youth Camp. The retreat included people from the Columbia, Southern and Lake unions. Seventeen states were represented.

David Green, associate evangelist for the Amazing Facts radiobroadcast, was the weekend guest speaker. On Sabbath afternoon he shared the thrilling story of his and his wife's conversion.

For several years he served as a crime reporter for the Tucson (Arizona) Daily Star, and was once nominated for the Pulitzer Prize for journalism. Over a period of several years God led him and his wife to a knowledge of His plan for their lives and an active part in His church.

Indiana Conference Youth Director Cliff Hoffman attended the retreat and spoke several times. He also taught the Sabbath School lesson.

Garland Day, chaplain for the International Philosda Club, spoke for a vesper service and directed the music during the weekend.

Floyd Miller, International Philosda Club president, challenged the singles to give sacrificially to sponsor the Amazing Facts radiobroadcast on Station XERF in Mexico, and the Voice of Prophecy broadcast on Station KCTA in Corpus Christi, Texas. During the weekend more than $500 was given and pledged in support of these projects.

A Thanksgiving banquet was enjoyed Thanksgiving Day, and a Christmas banquet on Saturday night.

One of the features of the Christmas banquet was a fashion show. The fashion creations will never make Paris tremble, but they made everyone there "split their seams" with laughter.

Mildred Wagner, Indiana Philosda chapter president and director of the club in the Lake Union, planned the weekend program and the banquets.

The next Philosda nationwide retreat will be held at Michigan's Au Sable Youth Camp, over the Easter weekend, March 24 to 26, 1978. More information will appear later in the Herald's announcement section.

DELEGATES TO FESTIVAL OF FAITH RECEIVE TRAINING

On the first two Sabbath afternoons of February at Indiana Academy, 57 of the 75 Festival of Faith delegates received special witnessing training to prepare them for their trip to Lincoln, Nebraska, March 29 to April 1.

They received six hours of training from Harry Sackett, lay activities director of the Indiana Conference; Al Williams, Indiana Academy Bible instructor, and Cliff Hoffman, conference youth director.

Instruction was given on the following subjects: How to Approach a Door, How to Handle Special Situations, Power for Witnessing and How to Give a Personal Testimony.

On the second Sabbath afternoon Elder Sackett challenged the delegates to look inward to examine their own hearts to see if they really had an experience with Jesus to share with others.

The training session ended with many of the delegates sharing their testimonies with their fellow delegates.

Elder Hoffman concluded by telling the delegates that they did not have to wait for the Lincoln trip to start witnessing. All around them are individuals who are lonely and guilt ridden, people who need the hope of salvation.

It was a heart-warming experience to see the Holy Spirit work upon this youth group, and to see their enthusiasm grow in the prospect of becoming active soldiers for Christ.

A.S.I.

All of the Saints, Inc., is one definition of an enthusiastic group of Adventist laymen from North America who seek to be laborers together with God.

The A.S.I. by correct definition is the Association of Privately Owned Seventh-day Adventist Services and Industries that provides fellowship among business people of the church who share ideas and methods of finishing the gospel work, and actively implement these projects with their time, money and talents.

Roger Goodge of Layman's Foundation, Knoxville, Tennessee, is the president, and the executive secretary and treasurer is James Aitken of Washington, D.C.

Last October the national convention was held in Gatlinburg, Tennessee, with more than 500 A.S.I. members attending.

Businesses represented included automobile agencies, travel bureaus, nursing homes, builders, C.P.A.'s, logging companies, interior decorators, food companies and retired professionals.

The Lake Union Chapter of the A.S.I. will meet in Hinsdale, Illinois, April 21 to 23.

Galveston Island near Galveston, Texas, will be the location for the next international meeting, October 25 to 28, 1978.

Adventist business people from Indiana are encouraged to contact the A.S.I. secretary for Indiana.

The work of God can be finished more rapidly when the laymen and the ministry of the church combine forces and resources.

Send for more information and plan to attend and take part in the program of A.S.I. in the Lake Union Conference.

WHAT CAN WE GIVE HIM?

What can we give Him?

This is the question that came out of a casual conversation between two Indianapolis Chapel West Church friends as they chatted on the phone.

Bonnie Howell and Ruth Helzerman began to wonder, If Christmas is the time we celebrate Christ's birth, then why do we give all the presents to ourselves?

Both women have completed advanced professional courses in several crafts. So they decided to capitalize on the gift-giving season by making and selling handmade craft items—the proceeds to be donated to the Chapel West Church building fund.

They decided to make Christmas tree ornaments from eggs for their fund-raising project.

There are 10 steps in the creation of an ornament from an egg: blowing out the insides, drawing the pattern, cutting, painting, pearlizing, coating with plastic, glittering, building a floor inside, decorating the outside and inserting a miniature inside.

The two women made 195 of these individually crafted originals. They used hand-carved miniatures imported from Italy, and Tiffany-cut rhinestones set in 22-karat gold chain from Austria.

Each woman also made 20 pairs of magnetic refrigerator decorations. One made roosters with real tail feathers and the other made scottie dogs from craft fur.

Bonnie and Ruth contracted with the Lord to make and sell as many ornaments as possible from October 15 to Thanksgiving. News of the sale of the ornaments traveled by word of mouth, and some friends took sample eggs to their places of work.

At the end of six weeks these two friends had turned their time and craft ability into $394.50 for the Chapel West building fund.

Orders are already being placed for next year, and a commercial gift shop has offered to sell their creations during the Christmas season.

"It was fun," said Bonnie at the end of the project. "But I don't want to eat scrambled eggs again for a long time!"

MIZPAH CHURCH HOLDS NUTRITION CLASSES

The Gary-Mizpah Church health secretary, Clayton Williams, sponsored nutrition classes each Sunday beginning on October 2 and continuing through November 6.

Several nonchurch members and a Muslim couple were among the 57 enrollees.

Myra Pierson, the instructor for the classes, is a graduate of Oakwood College and has done postgraduate work at Andrews University. She teaches in the Chicago Public School System.

Coordinators and lecturers were Martha Graham and Ernestine

Sampson. They were assisted by other willing workers.

The instructions and demonstrations were based on the health lessons entitled "It's Your World of Good Food" and the cookbook Food, Health and Efficiency.

Nutrition and health books were on display at each session. Thirty-two certificates were awarded.

HIGHLAND AVENUE PATHFINDERS ORGANIZE

It was time to select a Pathfinder leader for the Highland Avenue Church in Benton Harbor, Michigan. The responsibility and honor fell on the shoulders of Mack Rodgers, an energetic, hardworking believer in Pathfinders.

To revive the club, Mr. Rodgers first task was to provide uniforms. He asked several people in the church to assist the parents in the purchase of uniforms for the boys and girls.

He had allotted 60 days for this endeavor, but the club members were all in uniform within 25 days.

To inform the church of the Pathfinder philosophy and the plans of the club, a Pathfinder Day was observed in December with Pastor Eugene Armstead, guest speaker.

Mr. Rodgers and deputy director Solomon Collins are very proud of the Pathfinders. Their prayer is that the Lord will use them to the glory of His name.

The club has selected as its name the Highland Avenue Cobras.

The Cobras hope to participate in all the conference-sponsored activities for 1978, as well as enjoying nature and craft activities, camp-outs, hikes and the development of physical skills.

MIZPAH SCHOOL WELCOMES WEEK OF PRAYER

One hundred and twenty young students at the Mizpah School in Gary, Indiana, listened attentively as Pastor Barry Brandon spoke to them during the Week of Prayer. Their theme was taken from the song "Keep Me."

Pastor Brandon presented the example of Daniel praying three times a day. He encouraged them to have worship each day before going to school and to let Jesus be their idol as Timothy did.

Reminding them also of the story of David and Goliath, Pastor Brandon said:

"No matter how big or little you may be, you can still be used by God. Don't follow after the things of the world. If someone curses or swears at you, don't return remarks in the same manner. Don't follow the crowd, follow Christ."

Pastor Brandon also admonished the children to be respectful and to reverence God. Teachers and students appreciated the Week of Prayer.

CITY COUNCILMAN RECEIVES COMMUNITY SERVICES AWARD

Detroit City Councilman Nicholas Hood received a Community Services Award at Detroit Center Church for meritorious achievements in the inner city.

In his acceptance speech Councilman Hood, who also pastors a Congregational Church in Detroit, related how he and his members fought to rebuild their church in the same area after urban renewal claimed their old building.

"After we won that battle with the city," he recalled, "we saw the need for low-to-moderate income housing in the same area for our members."

With the help of his congregation and concerned citizens, the housing complex became a reality in a few short years.

But there was another need. The women who lived in the complex wanted to work, but there was no one with whom they could leave their children. A day-care center close to home was desperately needed.

Councilman Nicholas Hood holds the Community Services Award he has just received.

Councilman Hood said they didn't have money for a day-care center, but they went along by faith and the Lord supplied what they lacked.

Later missionary contacts revealed that people with varying degrees of mental retardation lived in the area and nothing was being done for them. They needed both physical and medical care.

And so in time, the Cyprian Center for Mentally Retarded Adults was built in the same area as the other projects.

In his dual capacity as councilman and pastor Mr. Hood has an unusually wide reach into community services.

He is a member of the board of trustees for Detroit's Hutzel Hospital and a member of the Michigan Association for Mentally Disturbed Children.

Councilman Hood is well known in city affairs as a person who can be reached. His home address and telephone number are listed in the Detroit directory. He makes himself available and can be counted upon to act on a problem whether it is related to city affairs or the church.

In addition to the Community Services Award plaque, Councilman Hood received several books including The Great Controversy, which was donated by Northern James, lay activities leader for the church.

65TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

An open house honoring the 65th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. William Allen was held Sunday, February 19, in the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. George Akers of Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Michigan. The couple are living proof that not all teenage marriages are due to founder. Ada Robinson was 16 and William Allen, 18, when they were married in Nashville, Tennessee, in 1913. Before moving to Berrien Springs a year and a half ago, the Allens lived in Collegedale, Tennessee. He retired in 1960 from the Review and Herald Publishing Association in Washington, D.C., where he had been a printer for many years. The Allens have two other daughters besides Mrs. Akers; they are Mrs. Herbert Rose of Florida, and Mrs. Charles Frederick of Takoma Park, Maryland.

NEWS NOTES

● As part of an active career-day program at Troy's Northfield Junior Academy, pupils of Nick Olson's third and fourth grades recently learned about the florist business. During an on-the-spot visit to a local establishment the youngsters also learned how to make a corsage.

● Merrill and Patricia Ashley and William and Lou Taylor of the Battle Creek Tabernacle were elected leaders and assistant leaders, respectively, of the newly established marriage enrichment group for that area. This was an outgrowth of the Marriage Enrichment Seminar recently conducted by Elder and Mrs. Edward Banks of Berrien Springs.

● A multimedia program, "Where Does the Money Go?" was prepared by Paul Bonney, finance chairman of the Grand Rapids Central Church, to explain to church members how their church finances are distributed.

● Youth of the Pontiac Riverside Church spent a recent Sunday doing odd jobs to raise funds for the redecorating of their Sabbath School room.

● A Methodist Church in Detroit contributed two truckloads of used clothing to the Troy Community Services Center. Other clothing left over from a rummage sale was also processed by center workers. During a four-day period they processed more than 4,000 pieces of clothing; 100 boxes were shipped to the New York depot.

RELIGIOUS LIBERTY IN MICHIGAN

Literature evangelists can now work freely in Decatur thanks to the efforts of Bill Miller, associate publishing director of the Michigan Conference, and Jonathan Hamrick, director of the conference religious liberty department.

Recently literature evangelist Glenn Lynch protested a Decatur ordinance requiring a $50 fee for a license to work in that area.

A special meeting of the village council was called and Elder Miller and Dr. Hamrick had the opportunity to witness while upholding the principles of religious freedom.

After an explanation of the work of literature evangelists and a review of recent court cases which upheld their rights to engage in such activity, the council agreed that it had no jurisdiction to apply this ordinance to the literature evangelists.

In a continual battle to prevent the lines of religious liberty from being cut, Dr. Hamrick spends many hours each week at the capitol in Lansing discussing with state legislatures proposed bills which would affect Seventh-day Adventists who conscientiously oppose working conditions which would interfere with their religious liberties.

UPPER PENINSULA CHOSEN FOR FAMILY CAMP

Michigan's Northland will be the locale of this year's Traveling Family Camp with emphasis given to the "Copper Country" of the Keweenaw Peninsula. The week-long get-together is scheduled for August 14 to 20 and is expected to again attract a large number of Adventist families who are seeking an interesting and organized vacation. Typical of some of the sights to be enjoyed is this view of Eagle Harbor Lighthouse. conducted by Elder Paul Howell in that Upper Peninsula city.

The Better Living Booth at the fair was operated by the Escanaba and Riverside churches. When a man stopped to ask for some stop-smoking literature Pastor Howell was on duty and chatted with him. The man indicated he had stopped smoking five years earlier.

"That's the best thing you ever did," the pastor said and the man agreed and went on his way.

Within a few minutes he returned and told Elder Howell that "the very best thing" he ever did was to give his heart to Jesus Christ.

During the conversation which followed, Elder Howell discovered that his visitor was a doctor and so he invited him to assist in the next stop-smoking clinic. Dr. Roy Bergman agreed and honored his promise this January, assisting at a Five-Day Plan for which 63 people registered.

Dr. Bergman has indicated a willingness to help again.

Also assisting in the program was a non-Adventist inhalation therapist, Ted Adiska, who had stopped at the 1976 fair booth because the Adventists were giving pulmonary lung tests. Mr. Adiska was interested because he was a representative of the Michigan Lung Association.

He also became interested in sending his daughter to the Adventist church school. After a consultation with the pastor and the teacher, Robert Willis, the child was enrolled and will soon complete her second year at the school.

Based on these and other contacts made at the fair, Elder Howell is convinced that the sponsoring of properly run fair booths does pay.

Ground-breaking ceremony for the new Tomahawk Church.

TOMAHAWK CHURCH GROUND BREAKING

Who says it can't be done!

On September 18, 1977, the members of the Tomahawk Church broke ground for their new church building. It was a dream come true. For years they had needed and longed for a new facility.

The old church, built in 1928, was no longer adequate to meet their needs. It had only two rooms: the main sanctuary and a smaller room behind it that was used for a Sabbath School room, one restroom, no basement, and pipes that liked to freeze in winter.

After putting up with these inconveniences for many years the members decided the time had come to do something.

With the able leadership of Don Roth, pastor, they explored the possibilities, and to their amazement found that they could build a brand-new church with the resources they had available.

Then came a concerted effort to raise the funds, design a plan, obtain pledges, buy a lot, secure a contractor, and then break ground and start building.

A joyful group gathered at the site on Sunday, September 18. It had been raining but at the appointed time the clouds broke, giving them blue sky and sunshine for the ceremony.

An hour later it began to rain again.

As the 42 members of the Tomahawk Church look to the future they know that God will continue to bless them as they seek to honor and glorify His name.

CONCERT PIANIST TO PERFORM AT WISCONSIN ACADEMY

Dr. Lynn Wheeler, associate professor of music at Pacific Union College, will present a combined sacred and secular piano concert at Wisconsin Academy, Tuesday, April 4, at 7:30 P.M. Dr. Wheeler heads the piano department at P.U.C. and teaches piano and music history courses. He received his Bachelor of Music degree from Walla Walla College, Walla Walla, Washington; a Master of Music degree from the Catholic University of America, and a Doctor of Musical Arts from the University of Oregon. Dr. Wheeler's wife, Charlaine, will narrate the sacred program.

RECIPE OF THE MONTH

Sliced 'N Nice

½ pound frozen Worthington PROSAGE®, sliced (about 8 slices)	½ cup sugar
3 ½ cups sliced apples (3 to 4 apples)	1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon lemon juice	½ teaspoon nutmeg
	1 ½ tablespoons margarine

Fry PROSAGE in a skillet coated with corn oil until nicely browned on both sides. In a separate skillet, melt margarine. Combine apples, lemon juice, sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg; place in skillet containing melted margarine. Cook covered at medium heat for 10 minutes. If too much moisture is present, continue cooking uncovered to desired consistency. Place PROSAGE in the center of a heated platter. Surround with apples. Pour remaining "syrup" over PROSAGE. ## FESTIVAL OF FAITH COMBINES STUDY AND ACTION

The youth of four union conferences will assemble at the Pershing Auditorium in Lincoln, Nebraska, for the Midwest Festival of Faith, March 29 to April 1.

One of five such festivals held in North America this year, the Lincoln event is being sponsored by the Central, Lake, Northern and Southwestern Union conferences.

The emphasis of the Festival of Faith is on instruction and practice in personal Christian witnessing. All delegates will participate in as many as four of the 13 seminars dealing with various kinds of witnessing opportunities.

The titles of some of these seminars are: One-to-One, Dark County, Street Witnessing, Campus Witnessing, and Ready With an Answer.

Recognized experts in these subjects will direct the seminars. The delegates will also participate in a variety of witnessing experiences in the streets, on the campuses, in the homes, hospitals and schools in Lincoln.

The festival speakers include: John Hancock, youth director of the General Conference; Dick Barron, associate youth director of the General Conference; Smuts van Rooyen, associate professor of religion, Andrews University; Ron Halvorsen, pastor of the Keene, Texas, Church; C. D. Brooks, field secretary of the General Conference, and Ann Kiemel, author of I'm Out to Change My World.

The public will be invited to three evening programs. The Thursday night program will feature the Andrews University Gymnics, and Elder van Rooyen as speaker. Elder Halvorsen will tell his own life story on Friday night: From Gangs to God.

The Saturday night speaker will be Ann Kiemel, a popular speaker at evangelical youth meetings from coast to coast.

L.L.U. SUMMER PROGRAM AT MIDDLE EAST COLLEGE

Loma Linda University's summer program at Middle East College has been reactivated following two summers of political unrest in Lebanon, according to Dr. Anees A. Haddad, coordinator of the Middle Eastern Studies program.

Director of the summer session will be Dr. Robert Darnell, associate professor of missions.

Scheduled for June 11 through August 10, students may select from a variety of courses including Anthropology of Mission; Introduction to Health Education; Historical Perspectives of Health; Health Evangelism; Introduction to the Qur'an; Epochal Events of the Old Testament; and Faith, Righteousness and Salvation.

Students may take up to eight units of Loma Linda University graduate or undergraduate credit.

In addition to the summer session, students who leave from the United States will take a 23-day tour of the Bible lands.

Costs for travel, touring, room and board are currently being negotiated to obtain the lowest prices available. Further information is available from Dr. Darnell by writing to the Division of Behavioral Sciences, Loma Linda University, Loma Linda, CA 92354.

McFARLAND PRAISES H.E.W. ANTI-SMOKING ACTION

The $23 million anti-smoking campaign announced recently by Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano drew praise from a pioneer in the field. Dr. J. Wayne McFarland, a physician who co-founded the successful Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking, said in Washington that the H.E.W. secretary's proposal is long overdue and should help increase life expectancy in the United States. Dr. McFarland, new associate director of the department of health of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, developed the Five-Day Plan with Elman Folkenberg in 1962.
