The "good ol' summertime" is soon to be a reality as winter has already given way to spring. Summertime means school is out and for many city young people it means few constructive activities in which to be involved.

On the farm there are chores to do and land to plow and plant, but for city youth there isn't even much yard to mow.

Satan is well aware of these facts, and provides plenty of activities: television, drug parties, street fights and petty crime.

To meet this need and provide Seventh-day Adventist youth with the privilege and opportunity of reaching the non-Adventist youth in their community is the purpose of the Illinois youth department's summer Chicagoland evangelism program.

Young people from the Broadview, Brookfield, Elmhurst, Hinsdale, La Grange and West Central, Illinois, churches will use the West Suburban Adventist School gym as their base of operations for 14 weeks this summer.

The neighborhood youth recreation and evangelism outreach will include a day camp for children 8 to 12 years old, a sports clinic program for teens, and a door-to-door literature distribution program culminating in a three-week Voice of Youth evangelistic series in the Broadview Church in August.

The Upper Columbia Conference will send a team of young people again this summer to develop Bible studies through door-to-door visitation. They plan to work in tandem with this outreach in the same western suburban area.

Dennis Meyers, Hinsdale's youth pastor, will be coordinating the entire youth outreach and Loren Fradulis, Broadview Academy boys dean, will be assisting. He will develop the sports clinic program and encourage the growth of the youth council in the individual churches. Working with them will be six scholarship students. Scores of youth volunteers can find rewarding ways to witness with their talents.

These youth leaders take as their marching orders the words of God's servant:

"We have an army of youth today who can do much if they are properly directed and encouraged. We want our children to believe the truth. . . . to be blessed of God. We want them to act a part in the well organized plans for helping other youth."—General Conference Bulletin, 1893, p. 24.

There is something in a name! In 1860 "The Little Flock" of Sabbatarian Adventists assumed the "Seventh-day Adventist" label.

About 1875 the stalwart S.D.A.'s in Battle Creek acquired the nickname "congressmen."

And in 1879 West End folk surrendered the Quaker, New England "meetinghouse" for "tabernacle."

However, to trim some of the pomp away from it, they fastened the diminutive "dime" to it. The leaders, like the founders of Oberlin and Olivet colleges, realized they were promoting a colony like other sects had around their institutions, and decided to build a tabernacle.

The believers at Battle Creek had combined to erect a battened meetinghouse, measuring 18 by 24 feet, on Van Buren Street in 1855.

A larger one was built in 1857, and a third one in 1866, on the site of the future Tabernacle, with a gallery to seat 600.

In March 1878 however, because the church's conclaves now attracted so many, a drive was begun for a still larger structure.

The laying of the stone for the foundation began in August 1878.

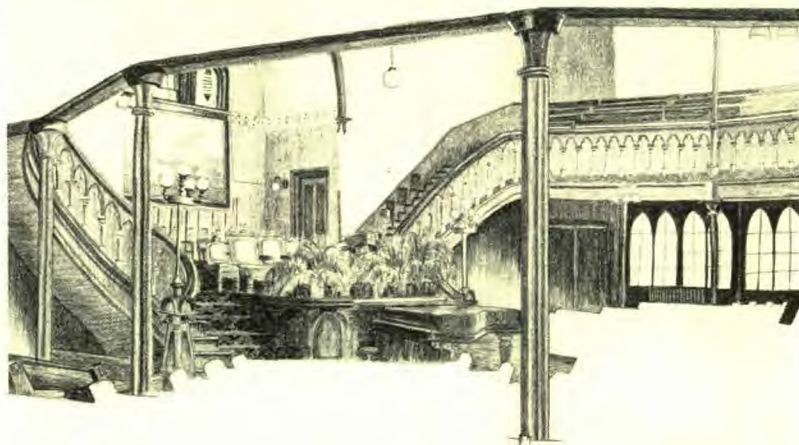

By February the name "Dime Tabernacle" was applied, stemming from a suggestion by Will C. White that members everywhere help out with 10-cent pieces.

These amounted to $5,933.13 (on a $26,275 total), so a few pennies must also have marched.

This edifice contained a central auditorium, three communicating vestries and a large balcony. Above the auditorium rose a central dome, and a clerestory with windows above the balcony.

The side vestries were closed off by sliding doors with ground-glass windows. On either side of the rostrum, graceful curved stairways led up into the balcony and caught the eyes of all!

A slender spire above the front entrance rose above the city skyline and housed a $600 Seth Thomas clock installed to melodiously strike the church bell every hour. The clock was a gift from the townsmen whose hearts had been warmed with the information that the Tabernacle was to be a quasi-public auditorium.

Sunday, April 20, 1879, was dedication day. Some 3,649 people attended, but James and Ellen White were not among them because of illness.

Several men participated: A. S. Hutchins, Sydney Brownsberger, Uriah Smith, H. W. Kellogg, S. N. Haskell, J. N. Andrews, George I. Butler and D. M. Canright.

Elder Andrews, just returned from Switzerland, preached a "masterly" sermon. The congregation sang "Watching and Waiting," and a large choir thrilled the audience by declaring "The Earth Is the Lord's."

On Sabbaths there were regularly three meetings in the Tabernacle: Sabbath School at 9:30, worship service at 10:30 and social meeting at 2 P.M. Quarterly meetings occurred at the sundown hour on four Sabbaths each year.

So here in the impressive Tabernacle able preaching was heard and revivals ensued. Here General Conference sessions deliberated and temperance rallies stirred. Here pulse-inducing commencements unfolded—as well as a few weddings.

By the 1890's, however, one more aesthetic thing was wanted—a pipe organ!

Yet such an organ was never purchased. Why? Because Ellen White, who was agonizing for every dime necessary to establish the denomination in Australia, wrote:

"Do you think this is more essential than to help our brethren in foreign countries to erect churches that they may have suitable places in which to worship God? . . . The matter of purchasing a pipe organ for the tabernacle at Battle Creek was placed before me . . . I could not for a moment give the least encouragement to this piece of extravagance. . . . My heart is sick and sad and sore. . . . It would not be an agency to convict and convert souls."—General Conference Daily Bulletin, 1893, pp. 13 and 15.

Therefore when the Tabernacle burned in 1922 the pioneers who wept beside its smoldering ruins did not mourn a pipe organ as well.

"A man's wisdom maketh his face to shine, and the hardness of his face is changed!" Ecclesiastes 8:1, American Revised Version.

The Challenge

by R. W. O'Ffill

The developing countries, the so-called Third and Fourth Worlds, number more than 100.

About 70 of them are comparatively new nations, having gained their independence since 1950.

The developing countries contain three billion of the world's four billion people.

A few statistics portray what life is like for these three billion people:

- From 400 to 500 million of them suffer from malnutrition.

- The average per capita income for more than a billion is about $150 a year, an amount earned by a typical American in less than a week. In some countries, per capita income is as low as $80 to $90 a year.

- More than half of them have never been to school.

- One out of five children will not live to reach the age of five.

- Millions have no access to the most rudimentary health services.

- Life expectancy is 52 years compared to 71 years in the United States.

Seventh-day Adventist World Service (SAWS) is responding to the challenge.

Coordinating its efforts with the world divisions, unions and conferences, SAWS seeks to aid the underprivileged in terms of their immediate needs, and to develop programs that will assist them in their development as individuals and as communities.

These are some of the situations and ways in which SAWS has responded:
Recent droughts in the Sahel Region

of West Africa cost 100,000 lives.

SAWS backed an irrigation project in Chad that will provide agricultural self-sufficiency to 300 families.

In Haiti there existed severe drought and underdeveloped conditions.

SAWS sent $25,000 immediate aid for foodstuffs, and has begun an ongoing program that will include Food for Work projects, school meals and maternal child care. The number of beneficiaries will be 60,000.

In Chile malnutrition exists among the poorest people.

SAWS is presently providing food rations for 120,000 malnourished children. This is a cooperative effort with the Chilean National Health Service.

In Peru a lack of basic services, unemployment and underemployment, and malnutrition must be dealt with.

SAWS is providing Food for Work programs that include road and bridge building, literacy and handicraft training.

The worst cyclone in modern times hit Tamil Nadu, Andra Pradesh, Pondicherry Union Territory, Union Territory Kerala State, India. The tidal wave was 19 feet high, 50 miles long and 10 miles wide. Thousands of lives were lost, millions were left homeless and crops were destroyed.

SAWS provided $75,000 in cash and 75,000 pounds of clothing and medical supplies. SAWS is now rebuilding two complete villages of 100 homes including wells and sanitary systems. Through USAID, SAWS is providing 1,000 cots, and 100 sewing machines to re-establish cottage industries.

Space does not permit a complete review of all SAWS activities for the year ending December 31, 1977, during which 32 countries received a total of $6 million in cash and material items that included food, clothing, medicines and equipment.

The North American Division received $45,404.39 to assist local community services efforts during such disasters as the Johnstown flood, the Kansas City flood and the Teton Dam disaster.

The large-scale relief programs just enumerated are made possible through the generosity of church members when the Famine and Disaster Relief offering is received in churches around the world.

This offering is the bread and butter of SAWS, without which it would not be possible to contact other donors, individuals, companies and international organizations, such as the Agency for International Development, whose gifts in grants and materials make possible an expanded ministry of mercy.

As Christians, our mandate is clear: "First meet the temporal necessities of the needy and relieve their physical wants and sufferings, and you will find an open avenue to the heart, where you may plant the good seeds of virtue and religion."—Testimonies for the Church, vol. 4, p. 227.

SAWS has prepared a full report of its activities in the SAWS Reporter which is distributed in all the churches. If you have not already received a copy, you may request one from your church lay activities leader.

Won't you respond to the challenge? Please be liberal when the Disaster and Famine Relief offering is received on May 13.

Above, SAWS Food for Work projects in Haiti will help the people help themselves. Right, SAWS 1978 Disaster and Famine Relief offering poster.

SECRETARIES EXAM SCHEDULED AT ANDREWS

Andrews University will serve as an examination center for the 1978 annual Certified Professional Secretary Examination, according to Bonnie Jean Hannah, chairman of the secretarial studies department.

This exam will be administered May 4 and 5.

Andrews University will be one of more than 200 centers for the two-day, six-part examination, which will be taken by approximately 5,000 secretaries throughout the United States, Canada, Puerto Rico and Jamaica.

To date 11,124 persons have earned the right to use the C.P.S. designation by passing the six parts of the examination: Environmental Relationships in Business, Business and Public Policy, Economics and Management, Financial Analysis and the Mathematics of Business, Communications and Decision Making, and Office Procedures.

The examination is open to all secretaries who have completed a high school education. A certain number of years of secretarial experience is also required, depending upon the educational background.

Applications for the 1979 examination are now being accepted by the Institute for Certifying Secretaries, 2440 Pershing Road, Suite G-10, Kansas City, MO 64108.

STALEY LECTURE SERIES COMES TO ANDREWS

Dr. Calvin Linton challenged Andrews students and teachers to rethink their role and mission in Christian higher education during his two-day series on April 17 and 18.

Dr. Linton came as a representative of the Staley Distinguished Scholar Series, a lectureship project begun in the fall of 1969 by the Thomas F. Staley Foundation of New York.

The foundation seeks to bring to American colleges and universities distinguished scholars who truly believe in God and can clearly communicate their beliefs to students.

Dr. Linton, a native of Washington, D.C., is a professor of English and literature and dean of Columbian Arts and Sciences at George Washington University.

OGDEN AND MOORE RECEIVE FACULTY AWARDS

Andrews University's Faculty Awards were recently presented to Dr. Merlene Ogden of the English department and Lillian Moore of the nursing department.

Dr. Ogden is the assistant dean of the College of Arts and Sciences as well as director of the Andrews honors program and professor of English.

Dr. Gerald Herdman, who presented the award to Dr. Ogden, cited her "tireless effort and efficiency in various duties, and willingness to help students individually in a personal way."

Mrs. Moore is an associate professor of nursing and administrative assistant of the nursing program on the Hinsdale, Illinois, campus. Dr. Zerita Hagerman, nursing department chairman, said of her: "I feel she is a superb teacher. She explains complex nursing theories in a simple and concise manner."

Dr. Ogden and Mrs. Moore have taught at Andrews since 1955 and 1966 respectively.

The Faculty Awards Committee evaluates teachers nominated by faculty colleagues on the basis of teaching, research, creative expression and leadership qualities.

ELECTRON MICROSCOPE IS SENIOR CLASS GIFT

The Andrews University senior class of 1978 will contribute to the purchase of a scanning electron microscope as its class gift, according to Rita Waterman, president.

At a meeting on April 11 the class voted to help raise the remaining funds needed to finish the $54,100 project which was begun in the fall of 1975.

The scanning electron microscope has a wide range of functions in modern laboratories. According to Dr. Asa Thorsen, chairman of the biology department, it may be used for everything from insect study to medical diagnosis.

In addition to biology, the fields of physics, chemistry, geology and electronics may also benefit.

Although the class has not yet set a specific goal, Miss Waterman said there are several fund-raising projects underway in order that the class may make as large a contribution as possible.

HINSDALE NEWS NOTES

- Designed to enhance the professionalism of secretaries and office workers, a secretarial workshop directed by John Christian, Ph.D., director of education and training, recently dealt with such topics as interpersonal relations, time management and the establishment of goals. Approximately 100 people from Hinsdale Hospital, Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital, and the Illinois and Lake Region Conferences attended the one-half day workshop held at Hinsdale Hospital.

- The Hinsdale Hospital credit union recently began to offer gifts as incentives to savers. The premium program allows savers, depending upon their cash deposit, to receive free or at a drastic discount items ranging from hair dryers to cordless drills. The credit union has been meeting the financial needs of employees since 1961.

- A nine-week medical terminology course designed for hospital personnel who deal with medical words on a regular basis is being offered by the hospital during the weeks of April 17 through June 12. The course consists of one 50-minute session per week instructed by Al McMullen, education coordinator, School of Medical Technology. There is no charge for the course, and the cost of the textbook will be reimbursed to those who successfully complete the course under the guidelines of the Tuition Reimbursement Program which allows for this refund if the course taken is directly related to the employee's work.

• Hinsdale Hospital recently underwent a successful three-day review by the State Department of Health, entitling it to a one-year license renewal. While touring the hospital the inspector commented on the distinct Christian atmosphere and cleanliness of the institution.

• A total of 48 Hinsdale Hospital employees are currently involved in an Interpersonal Relations Seminar being offered at the hospital. Coordinated by John Christian, Ph.D., director of education and training at the hospital, the seminar is designed to enhance the professionalism of employees who meet the public on a regular basis. The director of the 15-hour seminar, Les Bidrawn of the training firm, Bidrawn/Mitchell Associates, is placing primary emphasis upon how to present our concept of service to the public. An evaluation following this seminar will determine whether future ones will be offered at the hospital.

Battle Creek College Library comes down to make room for the new administrative wing at B.C.S.H.

LIBRARY MAKES WAY FOR NEW ADDITION

BATTLE CREEK—The former Battle Creek College Library, constructed in 1927, is being demolished during March and April to make room for the new administrative wing.

The library has been vacated for the past six months. The mechanical gym (with many of Kellogg's exercise devices displayed and used by the mental health patients) and the housekeeping department were the last offices to move out of it. The Heritage Room furnishings were moved to the Fieldstone Building parlor last fall.

As soon as the demolition is completed, construction will begin on the new wing as the first phase of an upcoming $3.5 million expansion program.

The new building will house all administrative offices and food service, as well as public relations, purchasing, personnel and data processing.

These are now located in the Fieldstone Building. Occupancy is scheduled for early 1979.

LINEAR ACCELERATOR INSTALLED

BETTER LIVING CENTER SCHEDULES LIVE-IN PROGRAMS

MID-AMERICAN—Two five-day live-in plans for people who want to quit smoking have been scheduled at River Pines Better Living Center in Stevens Point, Wisconsin.

River Pines is situated along the Wisconsin River on 30 acres of scenic woodland—an ideal setting because participants will be free of environmental distractions and the pressures of everyday living.

The first program will be held from April 30 to May 5, and the second from June 11 to June 16. Past experience indicates a higher success rate if the group size is kept relatively small, so enrollment will be limited.

The concept of live-in programming extends beyond the initial purpose of breaking the smoking habit. Participants will receive professional counseling on diet, exercise and general health.

Professional staff members include a physician, pastor/health educator, physical therapist, dietitian and administrator.

These programs are only the beginning of a larger concept. Mid-American Health Services, Inc., of which River Pines is a part, and Great Lakes Adventist Health Services have made a commitment to develop a permanent Better Living Center and expand community outreach programs.

Eventually permanent facilities will be established to conduct ongoing live-in health education programs for the rehabilitation of patients with heart disease and other chronic health problems.

The better-living center concept is not totally new. Europe has reconditioning centers that have functioned successfully since the end of World War II.

This idea should not be new to Seventh-day Adventists either, when we consider the vast wealth of counsel given by Ellen G. White on this aspect of medical ministry.

Program personnel urge pastors throughout the Lake Union to encourage those who have failed in the conventional Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking to attend one of these programs.

Readers who know of individuals in their community who could profit by such a program should invite them to write to: Five-Day Live-in Program, River Pines Better Living Center, 1800 Sherman Avenue, Stevens Point, WI 54481, or call (715) 344-8000.

HOOSIERS TO MEET 'GIANT' IN MAY

The leaders of the churches in Indiana have set a giant objective for their Finish the Work appeal in May.

Believing that the "business as usual" approach must be set aside and that the completion of God's work requires extraordinary faith and sacrifice, the Elders Advisory Council and the Indiana Conference Executive Committee have set a goal of $100,000 for 1978.

During the calendar year 1977 receipts were about $60,000; but in order to continue the present program which includes the It Is Written telecast, it was necessary to set a higher objective.

In Indiana the Finish the Work fund is used to support the conference outreach program. Contributions to this fund are used in activities which require nontithe funding such as youth-camp evangelism, Christian education, et cetera.

Every contribution is matched by an equivalent appropriation of tithe to public evangelism including It Is Written.

Thus broad support for God's work is generated by giving to the Finish the

FLOOD VICTIMS RECEIVE AID IN PLYMOUTH

On Easter Sunday word was received in Plymouth that the Indiana Conference disaster van was going to arrive to aid the flood-stricken city.

The local radio station was notified to announce the arrival of the van.

The following morning Connie Edwards, Plymouth lay activities leader, and Mabel Miller, communication secretary, met with local Red Cross executives and mapped out plans to work together.

Two newspapers, the Plymouth Pilot News and the South Bend Tribune, were notified. They assigned a reporter to take pictures of the van's operation.

The radio station announced the time and place. Arrangements were made for Elder Jan Follett to be interviewed for a half-hour radio program which was aired Wednesday morning.

Mayor Charles Glaub, the local coroner, and Red Cross and welfare personnel and others stopped by the van to observe the S.D.A. method of caring for disaster victims.

ANDERSON'S LITTLE ONES DEDICATED TO THE LORD

The sermon began a few minutes later than usual on a recent Sabbath morning in Anderson as five babies were brought forward by their parents to be dedicated to the Lord.

Elder A. D. English spoke of the Lord's displeasure with His disciples when they attempted to turn away the mothers who had brought their children to Him to receive His blessing.

Although they had acted from a genuine concern for His welfare, Jesus "was much displeased." He rebuked the disciples sharply and made it clear that this must never happen again.

While the congregation bowed their heads in prayer, Kari Deibel, Thomas Elliott, Lindsey Gunter, Lacey Johnson and Luciana Whitlow were dedicated to their Saviour.

The prayers of the church go with these little ones as they begin their journey through life.

TERRE HAUTE CHURCH NEWS

The members of the Mount of Olives Church of Terre Haute, Indiana, are happy to have Emanuel Foxworth as pastor of their church. Pastor Foxworth comes to them from the Altgeld Gardens Church in Chicago.

Pastor Foxworth has already begun to work in the Terre Haute Church—two people were recently baptized and another person joined on profession of faith. The pastor intends to have at least one baptismal service per month.

Included in plans for next month is a three-week revival beginning on May 7. The members will be working hard to increase the membership of their church during this revival.

The Dorcas Society, directed by Emaline Tyler, is taking on a new appearance. The society is preparing for all the coming events for the remainder of the year.

Last December some of the women delivered Christmas baskets to those who were less fortunate.

A successful bake sale helped them to purchase some of their uniforms.

FESTIVAL OF FAITH APPRECIATED

The Festival of Faith '78, which called for delegates from the Lake Union, is now history.

The Lake Region Conference youth department willingly participated in this witnessing seminar by sending 98 delegates from 31 churches and Shiloh Academy.

A well-rounded training program, stimulating worship services, Christian personalities, beautiful weather and good food combined to make the festival a success.

Our delegates were greatly inspired, and it is our hope that this inspiration can be actively utilized to encourage the youth of the church to accept the challenge of compelling men and women to accept Christ as their Saviour in this earth's crisis hour.

Thank you, church leaders for supporting our efforts. May the benefits never cease.

NEWS NOTES

- Non-Adventist ministers in Michigan are becoming acquainted with the Ministry magazine published by the General Conference ministerial association. Gordon Frase, pastor of the Belgreen and Ionia churches and secretary of the Ionia Ministerial Association, reports that several of the local ministers "have voiced appreciation" for this magazine.

- Conference evangelist Arnold Kraner is preparing for a 14-night Revelation Seminar with Ray Hamstra of the Charlotte and Eaton Rapids churches. Elder Kraner has just completed a successful campaign at Jackson and Troy. His 14-night series are proving to be an excellent way of reaching interested people. Many who attend continue with regular studies conducted by the local pastor.

- Conference evangelist Bob Collar teamed up with Elder Neal Sherwin for an evangelistic series in Unionville. This opening-wedge program in a new area led to several continuing Bible studies. Elder Collar is currently involved in a series in Holly with Elder Earl Zager.

- Pupils in the Grand Haven Church School have been taking birthday greetings to senior citizens of that city in the form of a cake, cards and songs. At one of these parties for a 90-year-old woman the students built a snowman on her front lawn. It brought back memories of her own childhood, she said, and gave her "one of the best birthdays" she could remember. Claudia Philo is the teacher for these grades.

- The Adelpian Academy band performed at Battle Creek Academy on March 21; in exchange the Battle Creek Academy band played at Adelpian on March 20.

- Seven members of the Grand Haven Church have finished the reading assignments for the Testimony Countdown series just completed and have become eligible for the certificate of completion. This is one of the first groups this year to report a successful conclusion to this program. William Hafner is the pastor at Grand Haven.

- The Long Lake Pathfinders are involved in a unique form of faith-sharing. Since eight of the ten Pathfinders are from non-Adventist homes, they are given inspirational books at their club meetings which can be taken home and shared with family members.

- The home economics class of Grand Ledge Academy, directed by teacher Mary Ann Phipps, prepared and served a full-course dinner for 28 parents and guests on April 10. The girls prepared the whole meal, including a vegetarian roast, homemade rolls and ice-cream pie. It was an evening to which the students had looked forward and one which the parents and guests appreciated. The project supported the belief that girls should be taught early to prepare wholesome, satisfying and attractive meals.

- Five young children were dedicated to God during a special service recently at the Munising Church by the local pastor, Jim Danforth.

- Correction: The April 4 issue of the Lake Union Herald published a listing of the It Is Written telecast topics for April and May. A change of time in the telecast has been made and the program is now being seen on Channel 2, Detroit, at 8:30 Sunday mornings instead of the time published in the Herald article.

V.O.P. MAILING COMPLETED BY MEMBERS

The Voice of Prophecy recently wrote to the members of the Bay City Church thanking them for the local promotion the church has been giving to the radio program.

It has increased enrollment in the Bible school by 100 percent, they said.

A year ago Pastor Jeremia Florea and the Bay City Church started a mass-mailing program to promote the broadcast heard over WSAM on Sundays at 9:30 A.M. Each home was to receive promotional literature and an invitation to enroll in the Bible course.

A Bay City map was covered with sections of black paper. As the mailing was completed in each neighborhood the black paper was removed.

As a result of this promotion the station noted a 15-percent increase in audience response to the V.O.P. broadcast.

Word from the broadcast headquarters indicated that the benefits of the promotion are just beginning to pay off for it takes time for projects like this to be fully effective. "It usually takes a year or more for interest to mature," the letter said.

V.O.P. officials have praised the project, and local church members continue to ask their friends and other Adventists to remember their efforts in their prayers.

BIG RAPIDS AYBL ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

Students of the Big Rapids Church School elected new officers for their Adventist Youth for Better Living (AYBL) organization recently to complete activities for the school year. Other officers are Lee Oliver, vice president, and Diane Jenkins, secretary-treasurer.

Some of the 30 members of the Pontiac Riverside Church lay witness group who are actively giving Bible studies.

ACTIVE MEMBERS IN PONTIAC GIVE BIBLE STUDIES

An active group of more than 30 members of the Pontiac Riverside Church are involved in weekly Bible studies.

They are contacting interested people whose names were given to them by their pastor, Henry Mattson.

In March 1977 Don Gray and Myron Voegele, ministerial secretaries of the Lake Union and Michigan Conferences, respectively, visited the Troy Church to conduct a weekend of lay witnessing training classes.

Pastors in the area were asked to attend and bring a dozen lay members who would be interested in learning the art of giving Bible studies. Elder Mattson found 13 of his members who were willing to attend.

Month by month this faithful group put in practice what they had learned. Their enthusiasm for this witnessing program, and the many heartwarming experiences they had, created additional interest in the church. Now more than 30 members are involved.

The group meets monthly on a Sabbath afternoon for a potluck and fellowship. Experiences are discussed, problems analyzed and further instruction is given.

Some members are still shy about conducting studies by themselves. So Pastor Mattson or his assistant accompanies them until they feel more confident.

Others are willing to go by themselves, but as a team.

One very busy couple, Dr. and Mrs. Raymond Mayor, are presently studying with six people. Other teams are studying with only one person.

But the important thing, Pastor Mattson says, is that each member is doing what he can—and thus inspires others to do the same.

Their motto has become, "Together we will finish the work."

5-DAY PLAN FEATURED IN ALMA NEWSPAPER

The bottom half of the front page of an Alma newspaper carried the headline, "Three who care help smokers break habit."

That headline referred to the February Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking presented at Alma College by Elder Freberin Baerg and Drs. Harold Racine and Robert Johnson, all members of the Ithaca Church.

The extensive article which was continued on page two also featured two photos.

The story was written by Bill Schmieding, editor of the Friday Reminder who attended the stop-smoking clinic and was impressed by what he saw.

In the article Mr. Schmieding reported on the day-to-day lectures and recommendations in a favorable manner.

In closing the 96-column-inch story the editor indicated that the three men conducting the clinic did so because, they said, "Your success is our joy."

ALLEGAN CHURCH HOLDS HEALTH MEETINGS

Members of the Allegan Church are meeting Sabbath afternoons in a family gathering for a "Helps for Health" class.

Leonard Hultgren, a registered nurse and physical therapist, is presenting the eight laws of health as stressed by Ellen White.

These health classes are also serving as a community outreach and two non-Adventists have been attending.

In three weeks time the attendance has grown from nine to twenty, and further increases are anticipated, reports Cecil Pomeroy, local pastor.

THE HAROLD BROWNS CELEBRATE 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Troy Church members recently honored Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brown with a luncheon to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary.

Harold has been custodian for the church for seven years and is responsible for organizing the "Heavenly Dusters" cleaning teams of volunteers.

The couple were married in Lemington, Ontario, April 7, 1928, and have lived in the Detroit metropolitan area since then. They have five children, 22 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

CLERGYMEN HONORED AT LUNCHEON

Four Pontiac clergymen were honored recently at a luncheon. Awards were presented by the administrator of the Pontiac General Hospital in recognition of the time the men had spent serving as volunteer chaplains for the hospital. Each had spent more than 100 hours visiting all newly admitted patients and continuing visitation upon the patient's request. Receiving the award were, from left, Baptist minister Jim Matthews; Henry Mattson, pastor of the Pontiac Riverside Adventist Church, and Methodist ministers Otto Flachesmann and Eldon Miller. Pastor Mattson says he feels this type of ministry provides a good outreach in the community.

BIBLE ANSWERS SEMINAR

The Bible Answers Seminar conducted by W. Lee Grady, Wisconsin Conference evangelist, began in Appleton, April 8, with a good response from the Fox Cities area.

Approximately 50 percent of the attendees each evening were non-Adventists. About 50 visitors have attended with the regular visitor participation averaging between 30 and 35.

This response is the result of follow-up by church members who participated in Pastor Grady's lay training program which has focused on contacting people who were interested in the It Is Written telecast.

According to Appleton pastor Robert DeForest, "Pastor Grady's lay training program has generated high enthusiasm and participation from the church members with a real team spirit existing between the evangelist and the church."

The Bible Answers Seminar continued through April, but it is the prayer of the church members that their involvement will be the spiritual lifestyle in Appleton until the Lord comes.

MADISON DORCAS HELPS COMMUNITY

People who come to the Madison Seventh-day Adventist Dorcas Society find food, clothing and other material help for themselves and their families. But coming in contact with people who know Jesus has changed many lives in other ways.

Adaline Hansen, leader of the Madison Dorcas Society, says one day last year a young woman with a small baby called her office for help. Her husband had been injured in an accident and was unable to work; the family needed food, and gas for their car so the woman could find a job.

The Dorcas Society provided the food and gas. Several days later the woman called again to thank them for the help she had been given, and to tell them that she had found a job. She is now interested in coming to church.

In another case a woman called Mrs. Hansen's office because she, her husband and two small children had no food in the house.

Food was taken to them, and several weeks later a bill was paid for the motel the family was staying in while seeking other housing.

Now the woman and her husband are enrolled in Bible studies.

In talking with the woman, Mrs. Hansen learned that although she was not an Adventist, she had attended a Seventh-day Adventist academy, and wants her children to go to Sabbath School. In addition her husband's mother, brother and sister are also interested in taking Bible studies.

In the third instance Mrs. Hansen says a woman called and asked for bedding and clothes. The Dorcas Society was able to provide her with the things she needed, and she asked to be visited by a pastor. She and her husband are now enrolled in Bible studies and have attended church several times.

Mrs. Hansen and the other members of the society count it a blessing to have a part in the work of leading people to Jesus.

OCONTO DISTRICT HOLDS COMBINED MEETINGS

The churches of the Oconto District, which includes Gillette, Lena, Pound and Oconto, met together on Sabbath, March 11.

Robert Dale, Wisconsin Conference president, was the guest speaker. He delivered an inspiring message entitled "Respectful Disobedience."

He pointed out that we can be "good" Adventists but still actually disobey the divine commission if we are not witnessing for Jesus.

A fellowship dinner was enjoyed by everyone at the Lena American Legion Hall.

The afternoon session took place in the Lena Church. Elder Dale presented a plan by which members could become involved in witnessing, and he explained how to develop interest in Bible studies among nonmembers.

The district is implementing lay involvement in the Lord's work and everyone appreciated the day's services. As a result many members have committed themselves to more active involvement in the district witnessing plans.

A bake sale was held that evening for the Home and School Association.

OCONTO DISTRICT TRIO PRESENTS PROGRAMS

A trio comprised of Ruth Carriveau, Janet Sanford and Sharon Wery of the Oconto District recently presented a half-hour program for the Catholic Women's Altar Society of St. Charles Catholic School of Lena, Wisconsin. Vicki Aubrey was their pianist.

The inspirational music interspersed by readings from Steps to Christ by Dan Towar, Oconto District pastor, was very well received by the audience.

Each person who attended received a copy of Steps to Christ after the program.

The Altar Society president commented that the book was wonderful. She had read it through ahead of time. More programs are being planned by the trio for other churches in the area.

CHRISTIAN RECORD MEETS BETTER BUSINESS STANDARDS

If you noticed that your favorite camp for blind children was not recommended by the National Information Bureau (N.I.B.), don't be alarmed.

Annual accounting by the N.I.B. is strictly prying into the $26 billion charity business nationwide, especially since the charge was made that $100 million in contributions will be wasted.

Listed as not meeting one or more N.I.B. standards are such groups as Boys Town, Cousteau Society, Easter Seals, Goodwill Industries, World Vision, most associations for the blind—and the Christian Record Braille Foundation, Camps for the Blind, and National Camps for Blind Children.

The Christian Record, the Adventist Church's outreach for the blind and visually handicapped, does meet the standards of the Better Business Bureau.

Christian Record materials are of two categories: those of general braille reading and listening interest for the blind, and those of a purely sectarian theme.

Included in the religious materials are the Sabbath School quarterly and the Adventist Review, paid for by funds from the annual North American Division offerings taken in Adventist churches.

All other materials are printed from funds obtained through solicitation or gifts by businessmen and others to this charitable cause. Camping funds are received from both sources.

Christian Record and its camps for blind children probably would never achieve standards recognition by the N.I.B. because that group contends that a board must consist only of nonpaid individuals who believe enough in the charity concerned to devote their time without remuneration, and to act as watchdogs to see that management does not act in a self-serving manner.

While the church does not quarrel with this reasoning, it does insist that this standard does not apply to the Christian Record because the board is made up according to normal Adventist policies, and salaries and allowances also are arranged by General Conference policy. There is no way that Christian Record funds could be channeled to self-serving ways.

Many other charities may also lack approval by the N.I.B. Even the American Cancer and Leukemia societies fall into this class.

Lack of approval does not necessarily discredit these groups—among a hundred others. Be assured that gifts to the Christian Record Braille Foundation are used as you design they should be. Probably gifts to your other charities are, too. Each group will, no doubt, supply you with the credibility information you need.

The next regularly scheduled offering to meet the needs of the blind and seeing-impaired through the Christian Record is set for July 8.

L.L.U. FACULTY PRESENT CREATIONIST VIEW

A difference of opinion exists among some members of the scientific community over such issues as how old the earth is and whether or not man evolved from a lower form of life.

Interest in this area has been particularly great in the Santa Clara Valley area of California. Public school leaders there have debated at length the issue of presenting the creation theory in the classroom along with the theory of evolution.

Three faculty members from Loma Linda University were invited last month to teach a four-week course entitled "Evolution or Creation? A Look at the Evidence" at West Valley College of Saratoga and De Anza College of Cupertino.

During the four extended meetings at each institution, various aspects of the controversy were discussed. First, the biological aspects were discussed by Greig Rose of West Valley College and Leonard Brand, Ph.D., chairman of the department of biology at Loma Linda University.

The relations of fossils to questions of origins and the flood of Genesis was discussed by Ariel Roth, Ph.D., professor of biology at L.L.U. and a member of the Geoscience Research Institute. Monte Andress, assistant professor of anthropology at L.L.U., discussed the question of the origin of man, while Dr. Roth concluded the series with a study of various time factors as they relate to the age of the earth.

Attendance at the classes was very good, according to Dr. Roth. "We discussed the scientific evidence for creation and the flood and toward the end, discovered that several students and community members who formerly denounced creation theory had changed their minds in support of it," he says.

Of concern to public school administrators and faculty is the possibility that teaching creation in the classroom is actually the same as establishing religion, which is forbidden by the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

According to Dr. Roth, the L.L.U. team tried to show that studying about creation need not establish a religion, but that a creationist viewpoint can be introduced through scientific evidence.

Loma Linda University has been actively involved in disseminating scientific evidence for the creation concept. Graduate degrees in earth history and biology are offered, along with seminars designed to inform teachers about the evidence for creation.
