Men Shall Call You Ministers

*Robert Dale
President
Wisconsin Conference*

Merle Marsh, elder of the Wautoma Church in Wisconsin, believes that contacting interested people really does bring success in winning people for Christ.

Mr. and Mrs. Wakeley and their children first came in contact with the Seventh-day Adventist message through the It Is Written television program. Their names were given to Merle Marsh in the autumn of 1977. He visited the Wakeleys at their dairy farm several miles from Wautoma, near Neshkoro.

They asked many questions and Bible studies were soon begun by Mr. Marsh. He gave the Wakeleys reading materials and lent them a series of Elder Ken Mittleider's evangelistic tapes. In due time Mr. and Mrs. Wakeley and their son, Jay, began to attend Sabbath services.

About this time Pastor Elbert Tyson began to study with the family. He especially spent time with 11-year-old Jay who was not interested at first. In June the entire family decided to follow Jesus, and they were baptized in Long Lake near Saxeville. They joined the Seventh-day Adventist Church in Poy Sippi.

If you ask Mr. Marsh about this experience, he may tell you of five other people with whom he studied who have also been baptized recently.

As a result of his faithful contacting of interested people whose names he receives from television and literature ministry, Bible studies have developed and, with pastoral assistance, baptisms have resulted.

What a thrilling experience can be ours as we cooperate with God in using His methods of inviting people into His kingdom!

“. . . ye shall be named the Priests of the Lord: men shall call you the Ministers of our God: . . ." Isaiah 61:6.

Ed Shinner grew up across the street from the Seventh-day Adventist church and school in Snoqualmie, Washington, but always avoided associating with those "strange people who did not drink or dance."

As a boy he attended church every Sunday with his parents, but abandoned their faith when he joined the Navy because he "really did not ever understand what it was all about."

While stationed at a naval base near Mountain View, California, he met Dianne at a roller skating rink. They were married three months later.

Dianne was a Christian but did not follow the doctrines of any particular religious organization, so she occasionally attended any church which happened to be near her home.

After Ed and Dianne's fourth child was born, they felt it was time their children received some religious training and began visiting a different church each Sunday, looking for one that would meet their spiritual needs.

Ed completed a motel managers course in Western Washington and secured a job as manager of a motel. He decided it would be more convenient to move the family into the managers quarters and lease their home.

A couple answered their ad and Ed and Dianne learned that these people were Seventh-day Adventists.

Imagine their astonishment when Ed and Dianne—with whom they had just become acquainted—asked if they could attend their church the following Sabbath!

In their search for a church home Ed and Dianne had worshiped in many churches on Sunday but had never considered attending church on Saturday.

Ed realized that he really had never become acquainted with any of those "strange people" who worshiped across the street from his boyhood home and felt that Saturday might be as good as any "church day."

About the time Ed and Dianne began attending the Seventh-day Adventist Church, Dianne became ill and was hospitalized for several weeks.

Ed had been working in a grocery store during the day, managing the motel in the evening, and now, faced with the added responsibility of totally caring for the children, he realized for the first time in his life that he could no longer manage everything by himself.

He needed strength from a greater power, and completely surrendered his life to God. Ed and Dianne know that God led them to a church that satisfied the longing in their hearts.

They realized that operating a motel seven days a week was not compatible with obeying the Fourth Commandment. Their conscience would not permit them to do anything but obey God, so Ed resigned his position as motel manager and they were baptized.

The only job Ed was able to find was 37 miles from home. Ed and Dianne were convinced that their children should have a Christian education. Since Dianne needed the family car to transport the children back and forth to school, Ed had no alternative but to hitchhike to work.

It was a long trip and he usually started out at 4:30 each morning. He soon found that a compensation for the inconvenience was the opportunity of sharing his faith with those who offered him a ride.

An Adventist physician who had been a member of Ed and Dianne's church in Washington set up a medical practice in Eastern Montana and invited them to work with him to help establish a Seventh-day Adventist church and school in the small community where he practiced.

Some of the happiest days Ed and Dianne had ever had were spent working with the church and school and witnessing in rural Montana.

Last year when their oldest child, Eddie, graduated from the eighth grade, Ed and Dianne felt they should move where Eddie could attend a Christian school and live at home.

They moved to Arcadia, Wisconsin, and enrolled Eddie in Alpine Springs Academy. Ed began working as bookkeeper for a partnership farm and served as a part-time faculty member at the academy.

Three months later when the farm was sold, Ed was without a full-time job. He applied to Mid-American Health Services and was hired to work in the corporate office as manager of patient accounts.

Ed and Dianne are thankful for the way God has led in each step of their lives.

God knew when their hearts were open to hear His message and at that time He opened the way for them to receive His word.

Ed and Dianne have spent many hours working in various church capacities, but they feel any contribution they have made in service to God is insignificant compared to the blessing and joy it has brought to their lives.

Studies Confirm Inspired Counsel

by Marietta Deming

Would you like to improve your health without spending money?

A recent study in California indicates that regardless of your age, sex or income level, you can improve your health without the use of medications.

The study points out seven specific good habits that will lead to better health:

1. Sleep seven to eight hours each night. Too much or too little sleep may be either the cause or the result of illness.

2. Eat breakfast regularly. People who do so report less sickness.

3. Do not eat between meals.

4. Maintain normal weight. Health problems increase with obesity.

5. Exercise regularly.

6. Abstain from alcohol.

7. Do not smoke.

People more than 75 years of age who practiced all seven of these health principles enjoyed a health status similar to people between the ages of 35 to 44 who practiced fewer than three. This 30-year advantage held true essentially for all age groups.

What does this study mean to Seventh-day Adventists? Does it bring new and startling knowledge? It does not; rather it emphasizes inspired counsel that was given years ago.

Look briefly at some of this counsel on the specific health practices as outlined above.

SLEEP: The hours of sleep are to be "regular and abundant" (Education, p. 205) especially for young people, yet young people "should not be allowed to lie in bed late in the morning, sleeping away the precious hours..."—Counsels on Health, p. 187.

BREAKFAST: Breakfast should not be neglected. "At breakfast time the stomach is in a better condition to take care of more food. . . . Make your breakfast correspond more nearly to the heartiest meal of the day."—Counsels on Diet and Food, p. 173.

EATING BETWEEN MEALS: "Nothing should be eaten between meals, no confectionary, nuts, fruits, or food of any kind."—Ibid, p. 180.

NORMAL WEIGHT: Overeating hinders the body in its work; "by taking too much food we . . . do great injury to the whole system."—Ibid, p. 131. We should use restraint in eating only that quantity of food needed to maintain weight.

EXERCISE: "More people die for want of exercise than through overfatigue; . . ."—Counsels on Health, p. 173. Exercise is vital for good circulation of the blood. It also aids in the digestion of food. The best exercise is that which is carried out in the fresh air. "There is no exercise that can take the place of walking."—Ibid, p. 200.

ALCOHOL: The desire for alcoholic beverages can be nurtured by the use of rich foods. Tea, coffee, and spices create the desire for more stimulating food and drink. (Ministry of Healing, p. 334.)

TOBACCO: "Tobacco is a slow, insidious, but most malignant poison."—Ibid, p. 327. The use of tobacco in the early years "undermines the physical strength, . . . stupefies the mind, and corrupts the morals."—Ibid, p. 329.

When we see inspired counsel confirmed in so many areas, should we not seek to follow it as far as possible?

God desires our bodies to be His temple. This is possible only as we follow the health principles established for our well-being.

WAUS BOOSTS POWER TO 50,000 WATTS

Andrews University's FM radio station in Berrien Springs, WAUS, boosted its transmitting power to 50,000 watts at 9:06 A.M., Thursday, June 29.

The changeover from 17,000 watts was performed by Dr. Joseph G. Smoot, Andrews' president, as the station momentarily left the air and the adjustment was made. Programming resumed immediately at 50,000 watts.

The stronger signal will result in greater saturation of southwestern Michigan and the South Bend area will enable new areas to receive the station's programs.

The distance at which WAUS can now be heard will vary depending on atmospheric conditions and the type of receiver used, but with good equipment, listeners in Chicago, Grand Rapids, Battle Creek and Fort Wayne should receive a good signal, says WAUS development director Max Church.

WAUS is a noncommercial educational station and a member of the National Public Radio network. It broadcasts from 6 A.M. to midnight at 90.7 MHz.

Frank Mankiewicz, president of National Public Radio, telephoned his congratulations to WAUS and "all of the people in your listening area who have made this power boost possible and who will now be enjoying the same fine programs, but with a better sound."

The power increase marks the end of several weeks of assorted difficulties for the station.

Programming was halted abruptly on May 4 when the antenna shorted out because of leaks in the antenna casing.

Then on May 17 when the station returned to the air with what was believed to be authorization from the Federal Communications Commission to begin broadcasting at 50,000 watts, the F.C.C. asked the station to leave the air once again until performance and program tests had been properly filed.

On May 22 WAUS cranked up again at 17,000 watts, awaiting final approval from the F.C.C. to increase power permanently. The authorization came on June 27.

DR. HANCE HONORED BY ANDREWS

Dr. Kenneth G. Hance, former adjunct professor at Andrews University, was honored July 5 during a presentation by Dr. Joseph G. Smoot, university president.

Dr. Hance, who celebrated his 75th birthday on July 6, was given a bound volume containing the cover sheets to nearly all the doctoral dissertations he has directed in his years as a professor.

Representative letters from the majority of doctoral candidates with whom Dr. Hance has worked are also included.

Dr. Joseph Smoot, left, makes a special presentation to Dr. Kenneth Hance.

During the period from 1940 to 1971, Dr. Hance directed 103 doctoral candidates in the preparation of their dissertations. Of those, approximately 50 were graduates of various theological seminaries and 23 were graduates of the seminary at Andrews.

Smoot announced plans to name a conference room in the James White Library at Andrews in honor of Dr. Hance. The room will contain copies of the dissertations and a number of journals on preaching and speech that Dr. Hance has given the university.

Dr. Hance was an adjunct professor at Andrews from 1962 to 1970. He taught classes on the history of homiletical and rhetorical theory, master preachers and group discussion on the life and work of the church.

Dr. Hance has lived in St. Joseph, Michigan, for the past four years since his retirement from Olivet College where he was assistant to the president and director of church relations.

He began teaching in 1924 as instructor at Olivet College. He was later assistant professor at Albion College, associate professor at the University of Michigan, professor and assistant dean of the school of speech at Northwestern University and professor and director of graduate studies in speech at Michigan State University. He has held several positions at Olivet College and has been adjunct professor at several universities.

Participants in the walk-in lunch program at the Lancaster Nursing Home enjoy a nutritious meal together.

LANCASTER NURSING HOME OFFERS WALK-IN LUNCH PROGRAM

MID-AMERICAN—A dab of leftovers or a bit of soup is hardly considered a well-balanced meal. Good nourishing meals are essential for everyone, but especially for the elderly.

Unfortunately, many senior citizens do not always enjoy an adequate diet. Just getting to the grocery store, especially during winter months, can be a problem. Often the elderly are living on a small pension and try to scrimp on buying food.

Sometimes people who have prepared meals for a large family for many years lose their enthusiasm for "cooking for one."

Lancaster Nursing Home, in cooperation with the Grant County Nutrition Project, has established a program to help remedy this situation.

Monday through Friday, the nursing home serves lunches to approximately 25 senior citizens who come from various areas of the county.

The "lunch together program" began at Lancaster Nursing Home in 1976 through the efforts of administrator Harvey Rudisaile.

"I'd been wanting to establish this program for a long time," says Mr. Rudisaile, "But there were several details that needed to be worked out." One of these was the menu.

The county dietitian planned menus for the county lunch program while the nursing home's dietitian planned something a little different for the residents.

"Our dietary staff could not prepare two different lunches, so the county dietitian and our dietitian met to work out a solution. The county approved of our program and the problem was solved," says Mr. Rudisaile.

Another item which had to be arranged was dining space. Lancaster's dining room could not accommodate both groups at noon, so the residents agreed to eat at 11:30 A.M. and the other group comes at 12:30 P.M.

Lancaster Nursing Home is reimbursed by Grant County for the cost of the meals served. Each morning the dietary staff is informed of the number of guests coming for lunch. Grant County provides transportation for the participants.

"There are two main advantages in the walk-in lunch program," says Mr. Rudisaile. "It spares these people the monotonous routine of eating every meal alone, and it provides them with the opportunity to eat with old friends and make new ones."

After lunch recreation is provided for those who want to participate. Often the group stays at the nursing home for a social hour. The residents are invited to join the group.

The second advantage is closely related to the first. "Eventually," says Mr. Rudisaile, "some of the senior citizens who now come for lunch may need the services of a nursing home. When that time comes, the transition is easier for them because they have been in the nursing home and have had an opportunity to make friends with the residents and staff."

CONFERENCE BUSINESS SESSION

John Hayward, conference president, center, holding the microphone, directed a question-and-answer period at the recent Illinois Conference business meeting held at Broadview Academy, May 21. One of the most interesting aspects of the meeting was the session when delegates were able to ask each of the departmental directors questions regarding his particular responsibility and the accomplishments of last year.

Clockwise from center right: James Beshires, a former Pentecostal minister, was asked many questions regarding the charismatic movement. Dolores Jones of the Glen Ellyn Church shows a small chick to the kindergarten class. Donella Rosenboom teaches primary children about prayer. Louise Smith of the Rockford Church was one of many people who provided special music. The main auditorium was filled to capacity each Sabbath.

Camp Meeting Memories

Camp meeting is always a special time for everyone, and this year was no exception.

Among the highlights were the excellent array of speakers. Robert Pierson, General Conference president; James Beshires, a former charismatic preacher; Harold Flynt's presentations on righteousness by faith; Bob and Lana Dahl's practical family series; H.M.S. Richards Jr., Del Delker and Jim Teel from the Voice of Prophecy; William and Virginia Fagal and their film on John Huss from Faith for Today, and Dr. Terrence Roberts's tips on mental health from St. Helena Hospital, to name just a few.

There were other events that will be remembered—the small chickens that flew into Dolores Jones's hair in the kindergarten room one afternoon, the primary's evening camp-fire circles, the violent thunderstorm which blew down the junior tent on the last night of camp, the heat blasts from Sunday's whipping wind, and the mountain of books sold at the ABC.

"Waiting, Watching and Witnessing Together for a Finished Work" was the theme—and a commitment which each person will make for the coming year.

NORTH SHORE MEMBER CELEBRATES 100 YEARS

Kittie Norris, a member of the North Shore Church in Chicago, celebrated her 100th birthday on May 2. Mrs. Norris was surprised with a party in her honor on Sunday, April 30, at the Central Baptist Home in Norridge where she resides. Besides a three-tiered cake, flowers and many gifts, she received hundreds of cards, many of them the result of an announcement made over WMBI, Moody Bible Institute radio, in Chicago. When asked about her longevity and wit, Mrs. Norris says, "I inherited my quick wit from my father, and I have been led by God all the way and have trusted in Him."

JAPAN COMES TO ELGIN

Planned last summer as a part of the Lake Union curriculum for grades one to four, the unit dealt with all aspects of Japanese culture. After the meal, which was prepared for the students' mothers, a short interview program was given by the students.

ISAIAH INSPIRES WORKERS AT DORCAS MEETINGS

The Michiana Dorcas Federation held its spring meeting in the Summit Church in Jackson, Michigan, April 9, 1978. More than 75 delegates and visitors attended.

Dorothy Lewis, Summit Church Dorcas leader, gave a warm welcome to everyone and, with the help of her co-workers, served a delicious dinner.

It was a day packed with inspiration, action and enthusiasm. From the opening song, "Footprints of Jesus," led by Elder Horace Jones, executive director of the federation, it was evident that the Holy Spirit was pervading the meeting and impressing hearts.

Elder Jones had chosen "Footprints of Jesus" as the theme and purpose of the meeting.

In his opening remarks he quoted the Prophet Isaiah as he urged the workers to determine to seek out people who need help.

When Zadock Reid, pastor of the Summit Church, presented the devotion, he, too, quoted from Isaiah, urging the workers to be "on the march" to fulfill the admonition of the Lord to go into the highways and byways.

Ernestine Sampson, the new federation president, welcomed the delegates and urged them to unite and participate in the overall program.

She read several inspirational quotes from Welfare Ministry, and also quoted from Isaiah.

In spite of a chilly wind and rain, 16 delegates conducted a survey in territory mapped out beforehand by Quincy Corey, lay activities leader for the Summit Church.

When the delegates returned they had 35 names and addresses for follow-up visitation by the local church.

Twelve of the 16 churches comprising the Michiana Federation were represented and gave very encouraging reports on the activities in their churches.

Many delegates brought exhibits which were displayed in the church foyer.

The speaker for the meeting was Howard Burbank, executive secretary of the Seventh-day Adventist World Services (SAWS). He presented a slide program on the theme of the meeting. He said repeatedly that the necessary ingredient to make our efforts successful is love.

"The people we help," said Elder Burbank, "need our love as much as they need the food and clothing we give them." Elder Burbank also quoted from Isaiah.

The meeting closed with the delegates singing the prayer chorus chosen as the theme, and the benediction was given by Elder Burbank.

To give location office personnel and other campground workers time for their own Sabbath preparations the location office will close at 8 P.M. sharp.

The conference camp-meeting management committee realizes that emergencies do arise. Therefore temporary parking facilities will be made available for anyone who cannot arrive by 8 P.M. However this area does not contain any facilities for your comfort or convenience.

GROUND IS BROKEN FOR MUNISING CHURCH

A ground-breaking ceremony for the new Munising Church sanctuary was held on Memorial Day at the building site adjacent to the present school building.

Munising pastor C. James Danforth presided, assisted by Vera Morin, charter member (the church consisted of 15 members when it was organized in 1949); Dick Bowerman, mayor of Munising; Shirley Olson, representative of the building committee; Elder Paul Howell, district leader from Escanaba, and Ami Pierce, construction supervisor.

The new church, contemporary in design, will have a cultured stone exterior to complement the brick school built in 1969. It is to have stone and pecky cypress on the interior and windows of stained glass. Both the outside and inside will be done in earth tones.

The main sanctuary will have a mansard roof with cedar shakes. A representation of the Ten Commandments will be carved in wood and located at the back of the chancel. "The entire structure has a natural, unaffected simplicity," Mrs. Olson commented.

The sanctuary will seat 210, and classrooms will be located in the back. Church members are donating labor to the project which is scheduled to be completed before winter.

ANNUAL PATHFINDER FAIR= TEAMWORK

May is the month for Michigan's annual Pathfinder Fair. It is an event that is planned and anticipated by club members throughout the conference.

On Sunday, May 7, clubs from all over the state arrived at the Lansing Civic Center as soon as its doors opened at 7 A.M. They needed the time to set up their booths and display their hobbies, crafts and collections.

Battle Creek Pioneers at attention.

They were welcomed at the opening meeting by conference president Charles Keymer.

The morning's activities included relay races which called for practice and dexterity. Floats and booths were judged so that the points earned could be added to those the clubs had accumulated during the year. This time more clubs joined the honored "200 Club" which proved that leaders and club members worked hard at being Pathfinders.

Forty-eight booths, five more than last year, were set up for this fair. The Ithaca Warriors' booth was in memory of club member Carol Ann Grossman who died in a fire in March.

The special afternoon feature was a presentation by the Andrews University Gymnics. Prior to coming to the fair numerous clubs had practiced gymnastic feats, and directed by the Gymnics the clubs presented their own demonstrations.

Just before the closing parade, relay winners were announced and awards presented. Those clubs which had achieved membership in the "200 Club" received this year's trophy, a colorful Brazilian butterfly.

Each club which attended the fair also received a special trophy, a wood carving of a bird by Weldon Card of Midland.

The Pathfinder clubs highlighted their day with the march of club members and their floats and the traditional "passing in review."

Pathfinders and their leaders went home tired but happy. As Gordon P. Guild, D.O., director of the Adrian Luzerios Club wrote to the conference, "It has been a most enjoyable year and the fair was rewarding and exciting for all of us.

"I am sure," Dr. Guild continued, "that the Pathfinder organization has a great deal to do with many children remaining in the church. I think that it is the best form of church evangelism that can be done."

This wooden bird was the fair award trophy.

Clockwise from top, The new Niles Westside Church was consecrated on May 20, The sanctuary seats 450 people, The children's rooms in the educational wing are well lit and cheerful.

THE SOUND OF HAMMERING

Niles Westside Seventh-day Adventist Church members have been building a house of worship this year.

On May 20, 1978, the sound of hammering was stilled at last, and the Niles congregation, led by their pastor, Ola D. Robinson, cut the ribbons across the doorway and crossed the threshold to worship in their new church home.

The church, hexagonal in shape, is located at the corner of Grant and Fairview Streets near the church school building.

It is constructed of brick and native stone, and the inside decor accents warm earth tones in its carpeting, paneling, beamed ceilings and pews. An educational wing which extends from one end of the foyer has large rooms (including a youth chapel) for each division of the Sabbath School.

The sanctuary itself invites worship. Glass paneling between the foyer and the sanctuary, excellent acoustics, and a fine public address system all facilitate the ministry of the church.

The seating capacity of the sanctuary with its balcony is 450. On the opening day the seats were filled, including the youth chapel.

A solo, "God Bless This House," sung by Carolyn Bisel of the Andrews music faculty, and the choir's anthem, "How Lovely Is Thy Dwelling Place," struck amen chords in the hearts of the worshippers.

The 250 members of the Niles congregation were joined for the occasion by many guests from around the Lake Union and as far away as Virginia, Florida, California and Hawaii.

Participating guests from the Lake

Union and Michigan conferences were George Crumley, Lake Union Conference treasurer; Herbert W. Pritchard, Michigan Conference treasurer; John A. Kroncke, district pastor and pastor of the Pioneer Memorial Church at Andrews University, and Ernest N. Wendth, Michigan Conference director of communication and health services.

Other visitors participating in the program were Steven T. Vitano, professor at Andrews University's Theological Seminary; William Liversidge, seminary graduate, and Robert L. Boothby and Oliver Johnston, former Niles pastors. Speaker at the youth chapel was Paul Menhardt, seminarian.

The day's program concluded with an afternoon service of celebration featuring the reading of the church history by Mrs. G. R. Fattic, who was largely responsible for the design and arrangement of the building.

The program also featured music by the University Singers, directed by Dr. Franklin Lusk, and the Andrews Brass Ensemble with Pat Silver conducting.

Organized in 1923 with 16 charter members, the Niles Church held its first meeting on September 23 of that year in an upstairs room of the Paris Candy Shop on Main Street. The pastor, Howard Walker, was a ministerial student enrolled at Emmanuel Missionary College.

In due time the growing congregation built a church on Broadway Street, dedicating it free of debt on May 10, 1952. The members worshiped there until May 24, 1973, when they moved to the gymnasium of the church school on Fairview Street.

The Niles Westside Church members, grateful to God for their new church home, reverently open the church doors "to those who come to worship, to the lost who seek a Savior, to the afflicted who come for grace and strength, to those who mourn and long for comfort, to the little ones in their innocence, to the youth in their exuberant strength, to the men and women in their maturity, to the older ones with their years of experience."

The sound of hammering has accomplished its purpose in Niles. "And the house which I build is great: for great is our God. . . ." 2 Chronicles 2:5.

INGATHERING ENCOUNTERS

"I used to be an Adventist in east Texas," Marian Springer, left, confided to literature evangelist Ralph Walter when his caroling team met her last December in Tucson, Arizona. After 17 years away from the church, Marian was baptized in March 1978 following a series of Bible studies given by Bible instructor Pauline Wassell, center. Mrs. Gill Badenhuizen, right, was met by Ralph Walter on an Ingathering night in 1976. Pauline Wassell gave her Bible studies and rejoiced to see her baptized last July. Mrs. Badenhuizen testifies how her faith in God has increased since her baptism. Arizona lay activities director, Lee Hadley, says, "We're finding more and more people interested in knowing about our faith as a result of Ingathering contacts." (Photo by Harold Reiner.)

SOLUSI COLLEGE CLOSED

Solusi College, a Seventh-day Adventist college in southern Rhodesia, has been closed because of local political unrest. The college is located on the site of the first Seventh-day Adventist missionary venture in Africa. Maurice T. Battle, associate secretary of the General Conference, says the college is being relocated.

All Adventist missionaries and national workers were reported safe in a message from the president of the Trans-Africa Division, according to Elder Battle. There were 20 missionary families in Solusi who have been temporarily relocated, but three Rhodesian families are remaining on the campus, Elder Battle said.

COLLEGE DECIDES LOCATION, GETS NEW PRESIDENT

Columbia Union College will remain in its suburban Washington, D.C., location. A vote of the 900-student school's constituency rejected the idea of a move to a more rural location in the mid-Atlantic states. The college, one of 13 operated by the Adventist Church in North America, had been the subject of discussion for a possible move for more than three years. William Loveless, president of the Pennsylvania Conference, has become the school's president, replacing Colin Standish, who was elected in 1974.

Participants at the minority writers workshop held recently at Columbia Union College.

MINORITY WRITERS WORKSHOP

More than 40 people attended the Minority Writers Workshop at Columbia Union College, May 1 to 5. The workshop was sponsored by the communication and regional departments of the General Conference to develop writing skills among black and other ethnic minorities.

DeWitt Williams, associate director of the General Conference communication department and director of the workshop, said that only 25 black Adventists have had books published and few submit articles to church publications. In view of this, each participant came to the workshop with an unpublished manuscript, and each day a panel discussed and polished the manuscripts.

Individual counseling was arranged for the evening sessions. At the end of the workshop many manuscripts were completed and will soon be appearing in church publications.

Instructors at the workshop included editors of church magazines, church communication directors, pastors and teachers. Officers were elected for the newly organized "Minority Writers Guild of Seventh-day Adventists."

The guild will publish a newsletter and plan future writing workshops. Further information can be obtained from Dr. Lizette Westney, 1206 Prospect Street, Takoma Park, MD 20012.

Rhode Island and its cities and towns are barred from scheduling elections on religious holidays under legislation just signed by Governor Joseph Garrahy. The measure applies to all ballots except the general election held in November in even-numbered years. A state representative introduced the bill as the result of a controversy in Newport last year when officials scheduled a municipal election for September 13, the date of Rosh ha-Shanah, the Jewish New Year.
