Jesus Our Lord

At this season of the year we are reminded in a special way that God did keep His promise to our fallen world in the gift of His own son. The event becomes even more precious and meaningful as we become aware of its very personal application. "The value of a soul, . . . Would you know its worth, . . . for one sinner Christ would have laid down His life, . . ."—Christ's Object Lessons, p. 196.

Ever since the birth, ministry, death and resurrection of our Lord, man has studied the meaning and application of that mission. To describe this study, we hear such technical terms as incarnation, Christology, soteriology, et cetera, which simply attempt to describe in human thought and words how God revealed Himself in Jesus Christ. Through the long years since, there have been countless discussions, councils and debates on the subject.

It is understandable then that something of the identity of each school of thought (or church) will be found in its conclusions on this subject. Seventh-day Adventists are no exception, and in the Church Manual, pages 32 and 33, we find listed among our fundamental beliefs the following statement:

"That Jesus Christ is very God, being of the same nature and essence as the Eternal Father. While retaining His divine nature, He took upon Himself the nature of the human family, lived on the earth as a man, exemplified in His life as our example the principles of righteousness, attested His relationship to God by many mighty miracles, died for our sins on the cross, was raised from the dead, and ascended to the Father, where He ever lives to make intercession for us. (John 1:1,14; Hebrews 2:9-18; 8:1,2; 4:14-16; 7:25)."

In simple terms I now understand that Jesus was born at Bethlehem for me—and you. I understand He lived for me—and you. He died on the cross for me—and you. "He ever lives to make intercession for us."

"What a wonderful Saviour is Jesus our Lord."

THE HEART OF THE LAKE UNION

Student Missionary to Palau

by Daryl L. Meyers

Bombs! Two of them! What if they exploded? Should she run or take her chances? Debbie wondered. She stared at the small but dangerous ammunition dump blocking her way to the little house which was to be her home for the next nine months. Had God really directed her to this place or was it all a mistake?

The months ahead would not always be easy but there was no mistake. God never makes mistakes. She had come to the island of Koror as a student missionary from Andrews University and she knew that the divine plan behind her journey would be revealed as time went on.

The two bombs? No real cause for worry. They were just old rusty World War II relics dragged up from the ocean's bottom by curiosity seekers, reminders of the fierce battles fought on the island.

Koror, "a home away from home" as Debbie calls it, is but one of more than 200 small islands at the western end of the Carolines called the Palau Archipelago. The inhabitants—Palauans—have a mixed descent composed of Melanesian, Malaysian, Polynesian, Japanese and American influence, a mixture partially due to the four foreign nations who ruled the islands during the past century. Until recent years Japan was in control of the area, but today the United States is in charge, with the supervision of the United Nations.

Located near the equator, Koror is quite sunny and warm, but it is also very humid with a heavy annual rainfall typical of tropical areas. Temperatures change very little, varying between 75 and 85 degrees year round.

Though the climate and living conditions were different, Debbie was determined to make the best of the situation.

Daryl Meyers is a graduate student at Andrews University and is employed in the public relations office at the university.

With the courageous spirit typical of student missionaries, Debbie and her roommate, Joyce Runnals, moved into their small but "well-fortified" house. The place was not elaborate, but it was comfortable, and for now it was home.

The little Adventist elementary school where both girls were assigned as teachers was less than 50 yards from their house. This made their work more convenient but not necessarily less strenuous.

Because of traditional views on the family and life in general, most Palauan children grow up in a more reserved emotional atmosphere. With this type of background children often find it difficult to form close relationships with others, or to express love and affection openly.

To reach a people like this with a love-centered religion is not always so easy. Repeatedly in her teaching and other activities, Debbie was faced with this challenge.

Not long after her arrival, Debbie said, "Palauans are good-hearted people. They want to be kind and loving, but they don't always know how to express themselves. It seems to me that the only way to really help them is by showing them what love is all about."

And so Debbie put her plan into action. All through the school year she taught them. Played with them. Sang with them. Prayed with them. And she even read stories to them, until gradually a change could be seen taking place in the lives of the young Palauans.

Just before her return to Andrews and the final farewell to her many Palauan friends in Koror, Debbie said, "The Holy Spirit has really brought about a change in these children this year. At the beginning of the year, they were jealous of each other, noisy, and they liked to be disobedient, but now they're so happy and so much kinder to each other and much more cooperative.

"This year has taught me a lot," said Debbie, "about myself, about teaching, about children, about people, and about God."

The Greatest Gift

by Cherry B. Habenicht

Each person who loves hopes to give—at least once in his lifetime—some remarkable manifestation of his love. He searches for a gift that will astonish and delight, a gift that proclaims, “You are most important to me.”

Gold, frankincense and myrrh are not standard baby items. The Magi might have thought of something more practical, though as elegant: a silk pillow, a silver rattle, a gold spoon.

For a fleeting moment, perhaps, they consider bartering their costly presents for swaddling bands, food and another donkey. Should they have given money instead? It would have been easier—the little family could have purchased what they needed.

Uppermost is their desire to honor the One born to reveal the kingdom of heaven to men. Falling to the floor, these noble philosophers worship a young child. They open their treasures and present the most valuable products of their countries. Their dazzling gifts are the first laid at Christ’s feet.

Jesus is again honored as a king near the end of His life. Mary, at great personal sacrifice, purchases an alabaster box of very expensive spikenard ointment. Believing Jesus’ words about His approaching death, she plans to anoint His body.

However, as others declare that Jesus will soon be crowned as their ruler, Mary wants to be the first to honor the Lord who has pardoned her sins, raised her brother Lazarus from the dead and opened truth to her heart.

At Simon’s feast Mary hopes to approach Jesus unobtrusively. Anointing the head of a distinguished person was a common Eastern custom, but bowing to anoint the feet would signify deep humility.

Mary kneels. Gratitude overwhelms her, and she weeps. Mary uses her beautiful, long hair to wipe the tears mingled with the ointment.

The heady fragrance of the spikenard fills the room and guests pause to sniff in curiosity. Conversations become buzzing speculation as people turn to Jesus.

Judas whispers complaints, reproaching Christ for permitting such extravagance. “What of the poor?” Mary has spent the equivalent of the annual income of an ordinary laborer for a cruse of perfume. Olive oil would have served as well for the purpose of anointing. What foolishness to buy this luxury for a man who lives simply and frugally!

Mary herself is distressed. No doubt Martha will elaborate on her extravagance. Perhaps Christ judges her act improvident, a lavish mistake by an emotional woman.

No. Christ speaks above the murmurs. “Let her alone; why trouble ye her?” He accepts her gift for the devotion and appreciation it represents. Given while He is alive, it is indeed the best investment.

Such splendid gifts! The recipient could never afford these things Himself. Is its price, then, what makes a gift extraordinary?

Not at all, for Christ praised the widow’s mite and blessed a lunch of loaves and fishes.

Metals and ointments—items that Jesus did not need. Must practical gifts be considered inferior when one’s motive is adoration?

On the contrary, these “useless” gifts were turned to practical purposes. Joseph and Mary financed their trip to Egypt and subsequent stay there with the wise men’s offerings.

We are told that as Christ “went down into the darkness of His great trial, He carried with Him the memory of [Mary’s] deed, an earnest of the love that would be His from His redeemed ones forever.”—The Desire of Ages, p. 560.

The Magi and Mary offered their treasures with no intent of impressing onlookers and with no thought of reciprocation. Theirs was the same generous spirit that caused Jesus to come to earth.

“The offering from the heart that loves, God delights to honor, giving it highest efficiency in service for Him. If we have given our hearts to Jesus, we also shall bring our gifts to Him. Our gold and silver, our most precious earthly possessions, our highest mental and spiritual endowments, will be freely devoted to Him who loved us, and gave Himself for us.”—The Desire of Ages, p. 65.

Cherry Habenicht lives in Downers Grove, Illinois. She is a full-time mother of two small children, and occasionally finds time to write.

RELIGIOUS LIBERTY EMPHASIZED IN JANUARY

Nineteen seventy-nine promises to set new records in the fulfillment of prophecy. Never have events pointed more clearly to the nearness of Christ's return to this planet in rebellion. "Our redemption draweth neigh."

January is the special time in the Adventist Church when the fulfillment of prophecy is carefully studied. The following is a list of guests scheduled to speak in your area on the fascinating and timely subject of religious liberty.

REGISTRATION ANNOUNCED

Winter quarter registration for Andrews University students who have not pre-registered will be Tuesday, January 2, from 8 to 11:30 A. M. and 1 to 4:30 P.M.

Registration for students who are taking evening classes only and those who are taking only one class will be from 7 to 8 P.M.

Classes for all schools begin Wednesday, January 3.

The university's winter quarter ends March 14.

WAUS FORMS ADVISORY COMMITTEE

WAUS, Andrews University's FM radio station, has formed a community advisory committee, according to station manager Allen R. Steele.

The committee, whose chairman is John Gillette, vice president of the First National Bank of Southwestern Michigan, met for the first time on November 30 to provide counsel on programming and help promote public awareness and financial support of the station, says Mr. Steele.

Members of the committee come from throughout the WAUS coverage area of southwestern Michigan and northern Indiana, a reflection of the station's recent boost to 48,000 watts.

Plans call for the committee to meet two or three times a year.

WAUS, which provides more fine arts programming than any other station in the Michiana area, is a member of the National Public Radio network.

MORE STUDENT HOUSING SCHEDULED

Housing for married graduate and seminary students at Andrews is continuing to expand, according to Vernon H. Siver, vice president for financial administration.

A 24-unit apartment complex is scheduled for completion in the fall of 1979, says Mr. Siver, with another 24 units to follow. The apartments will be located near the existing student apartments along Seminary Drive.

Spectators gather around the Cessna 206 bound for mission service in Mexico.

DEDICATION HELD FOR MISSION PLANE

A dedication service for the Cessna 206 Stationair airplane headed for mission work in Mexico was held December 2 at Andrews University's airpark.

The plane is owned by the Inter-American Division and will be operated by medical students at the University of Guadalajara to provide medical service to outlying areas.

Funds for the plane were raised by the Quiet Hour radiobroadcast and Missions Unlimited, a nonprofit organization in Mexico.

Andrews' Seventh-day Adventist Aviation Center outfitted the plane for mission duty.

Presently almost 30 student families are living in a recently acquired apartment complex in Buchanan, and dozens are renting privately owned apartments in the community, Mr. Siver says.

The student labor and housing office currently maintains 419 apartments for students and helps to match students with other available apartments in the community.

"In addition," says Mr. Siver, "some options are being explored to lease and manage multiple-family units which are not privately owned."

WESBERRY SPEAKS TO ADVENTIST FORUM

Dr. James P. Wesberry, a Baptist minister from Atlanta, Georgia, and executive director of the Lord's Day Alliance, appeared before a meeting of the Andrews chapter of the Association of Adventist Forums on December 2.

The Lord's Day Alliance, organized in 1888 as the American Sabbath Union, is dedicated to preserving the observance of the Sabbath in the United States, said Dr. Wesberry. The Alliance places heavy emphasis on the role of the Sabbath in protecting religious freedom and strengthening individual Christian commitment and family life.

According to Dr. Wesberry, the primary efforts of the alliance are through education of the public in Sabbath observance rather than coercive legislation such as blue laws.

Contrary to the beliefs of some, the alliance is indeed interested in the rights of minority groups who worship on days other than Sunday, said Dr. Wesberry.

Dr. Samuele Bacchiocchi, associate professor of religion at Andrews, was instrumental in arranging Dr. Wesberry's appearance.

Dr. Bacchiocchi, author of From Sabbath to Sunday, responded to Dr. Wesberry's remarks, finding more areas of agreement than disagreement.

Both Seventh-day Adventists and the Lord's Day Alliance are in agreement on the binding obligation of the fourth commandment, said Dr. Bacchiocchi, differing only on interpretation of the commandment.

The two groups also find common ground, according to Dr. Bacchiocchi, in the recognition of the right of all persons to rest and worship on their respective holy days and distaste for legislation which would deprive individuals of their civil liberties.

Dr. Bacchiocchi found that the major differences between the organizations are theological in nature.

MENTAL HEALTH UNIT OBSERVES ANNIVERSARY

BATTLE CREEK—An open house was held Friday afternoon, November 3, at Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital, to celebrate the mental health unit's 20th anniversary. Pictures taken during the 20-year period were on display for the psychiatrists, psychologists and other people who attended. Dr. Anne F. Norgan, right, and nurse Elizabeth Ingle, left, originators of the mental health program 20 years ago, were present to greet guests.

SAN AUXILIARY RECEIVES GIFTS

BATTLE CREEK—Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital Auxiliary held its monthly meeting on Monday, November 6. Former San patient Lillian Hendrick presented four homemade afghans to be used as lap blankets for hospital patients in wheelchairs. They were accepted by special projects nurse Wilma Fox, in the absence of Esther Oldham, director of nursing.

San elevator operator Alex Stuart's hobby is woodworking. He made a gavel to be used at future auxiliary meetings. His other projects include pencil holders for physical therapy's new facility in the Jeffrey Building.

NEWS NOTES

• Pastor Jerry Page of the Stewardson, St. Elmo and Donnellson district has been elected president of the St. Elmo Ministerial Alliance at the organization's meeting on October 10. Pastor Page was also recently elected vice president of the Fayette County Chaplains' Association.

• On October 13, the North Shore Church held the services of the Last Supper on Friday evening at a candlelight communion. A brief sermonette was given by guest speaker George Vandeman of It Is Written. Elder Vandeman spoke of Christ's humility and His desire to wash the heart of sin before the congregation observed the ordinance of humility and communion. During this special service, four men were ordained as deacons: Billy Kintanar, Reuben Legaspi, Jose Nieves and John Peplow were dedicated to the Lord's work. Evangelist James Cress, who began his prophecy lectures on October 21, was also a guest at the communion service. Steve Biro of the Czechoslovakian Church and Ray Rouse of the Illinois Conference office also took part in the services.

YOUNG PEOPLE SING IN LA GRANGE

The Celestial Sounds, a young singing group from the Austin Church, presented the worship hour message in song at the La Grange Church, on Sabbath, October 21.

COMMUNITY AWARDS PRESENTED IN ROCKFORD

For 100 years the Rockford Seventh-day Adventist Church has stressed that every Sabbath is visitors' day at their services, but this year, October 14, there were special Guest Day services at 9:30 and 11 A.M. The highlights included the presentation of the Adventist Community Services Award to someone who has demonstrated concern through community service.

Jeanne Knowland and James Tillman were honored this year in recognition of their respective community services.

Mrs. Knowland was honored for more than 3,000 hours of volunteer services in the chaplaincy program in the local jail, and Mr. Tillman was recognized for his work with the Westview Central Council, an organization for revitalization of a large area in West Rockford. He is a parole officer in Rockford, and a member of the Rockford Adventist Church.

Nick Scott, award winner of radio station WZOK's Sunshine Award in 1976, and Bill Smith, Vesper Voices singer, had received the community services award in 1976 and 1977 respectively, and were present for the service on October 14.

After a fellowship luncheon and an afternoon vesper service presented by Rockford Jail Chaplain Wilbur Bartholomew, a large handmade banner was presented to the jail chaplain for the inmates chapel. The presentation was made by Bill Braun.

The banner, on which was written, "While we were yet sinners, Christ died for us," was made by the Sabbath School superintendent, Jean Schroeder, who spent many hours designing and sewing it by hand.

ROCKFORD COMPLETES CENTENNIAL OBSERVANCE

One of the last centennial programs of the year for the Seventh-day Adventist Church in Rockford was held October 28.

The afternoon activities began at the Greenwood Cemetery, where a memorial to William Yates Lloyd was unveiled and dedicated by Pastor Harold Flynt.

Mr. Lloyd, a prosperous ironworker by trade, gave all of his earthly possessions to build up the church of his choice. It was Mr. Lloyd's dream to see his fellow parishioners in their own church.

He was involved in his church and devoted most of his time to selling Bible Readings for the Home Circle, and was the head elder of the church.

He did not live to see the church built in 1923—he passed away in 1916. When the church members discovered that there was no marker, only a number to indicate Mr. Lloyd's grave, they decided to have the lot marked with a dignified marker.

William Lloyd and his wife, Grace, are the parents of Elder Ernest Lloyd, 99, who lives in St. Helena, California. He was also a member of the Rockford Adventist Church. He has written about 1,300 stories and was editor of Our Little Friend for 25 years.

At the 5 P.M. vespers concert in the church Michael Vaccarello played old-fashioned hymns on the Farfisa Transicord organ. Then there was a dedication message and a taped interview from Elder Lloyd.

The evening featured a Centennial Fall Festival. There were booths with crafts, food and games. Little Miss Peanut of 1978, Michelle Dewey of Rochelle, and her parents were greeters at the centennial booth.

Hattie Jaeger and Jeanette Bridgeford were honored guests during the services—they have been dedicated members of the church for 62 years, inspiring everyone who knows them.

ELKHART CHURCH WELCOMES CITY VISITORS

On September 20, 1978, 50 members of the Religious Emphasis Committee and the Executive Board of the Elkhart, Indiana, Y.W.C.A. visited the Elkhart Church for a special program coordinated by Elkhart members Joyce Marsh and Camille Gordon.

The 50 women, representing various churches in the Elkhart area, were presented a program on the history and beliefs of the Seventh-day Adventist Church by Elder Jan Follett, and a discussion of the church's community services, disaster, and famine relief work by Cathryn Kuzmaul and Pauline Rock of the Indiana Conference organization.

A vegetarian buffet luncheon was served, and a discussion was presented about meatless cooking and healthful diets.

The visitors were so favorably impressed with the program that they took up a spontaneous offering to contribute toward local church activities. The women left the program remarking how they were impressed with the work of the Seventh-day Adventists and the hospitality shown them by the Elkhart Church.

Also contributing capable assistance to the success of the program were Elkhart members Gerry Dider, Sharon Earls, Arlene Fore, Jean Hile, Nancy Hile, Mary Johnson, Lois Kalb, Jo Kiernan, Bev Larsen and Ida Whitfield.

IRVINGTON BREAKS GROUND FOR NEW CHURCH

On Sunday afternoon, October 22, Elder Duane Longfellow, pastor of the Indianapolis Irrington Church, directed a ground-breaking ceremony for the construction of a new church.

The Irrington Church recently purchased six acres of land just east of Interstate 465 near the corner of South Franklin Road and Raymond Street.

Also taking part in the service were G. W. Morgan, conference president; A. E. Hackett, conference treasurer; J. F. Webb, church construction consultant; Hilman Culp, construction superintendent; Larry Hodge, building contractor; Delbert Sweeney, local church elder; S. L. Jeffries, local church treasurer; Alvin Ford, church stewardship secretary, and two Pathfinders who served as the honor guard.

When it was time for the dirt to be turned over, the boys and girls were invited to try their hand at the shovel.

Plans were made for the building to be framed and enclosed before the cold weather arrives.

INDIANA ACADEMY HONOR STUDENTS VISIT ANDREWS

Sixteen of the 17 eligible honor students from Indiana Academy visited Andrews University on November 14 and 15, 1978.

According to Elwin Shull, faculty sponsor for the group, the trip proved very valuable to the students. It gave them an opportunity to observe college classes in which they were interested. They learned the advantages of earning college credit by examination, and of the opportunity of taking honors classes.

To be eligible for the honors trip, students must be seniors and have a grade point average of 3.25 for the first three years in secondary school.

COMMUNITY SERVICES WORK IN HOOSIERLAND

Progress is the word for the community services work in Indiana, reports state federation president, Cathryn Kuzmaul.

The new community services center in Indianapolis is steadily becoming known throughout Indianapolis. Many organizations are sending or bringing their clients to the center for assistance. The center also refers clients to other organizations for other types of aid.

The state community services organization is giving careful study to the feasibility of purchasing a medical screening van for statewide use.

The Fort Wayne and Plymouth churches were active in assisting their flood-ridden areas last spring. Betty Jackson, community services director for the Fort Wayne Church, received an award from the Red Cross in appreciation for the work done by the church during the flood.

The Frankfort society worked closely with Red Cross and Civil Defense organizations in their area of the state during the blizzard of 1978.

Cathryn Kuzmaul, community services director for the Cicero Church, reports many activities at the Cicero center. They have field tested several projects such as the Five-Day Play to Stop Smoking, public school temperance contests, cooking classes, blood pressure testing, the 3-C program, and fair exhibits.

They are pleased with the community's response to these programs.

Mrs. Kuzmaul and the treasurer of the state federation, Pauline Rock, have been making a tour of many Indiana churches showing the film, "No Choice," and encouraging the people to become actively engaged in community services.

According to Mrs. Kuzmaul, community services is not just for the elderly women of the churches, but it is for both men and women to volunteer their energies in behalf of the community.

The new year calls for new challenges in each community. The church needs every able-bodied person to help meet many social problems that exist in each community. It is a work that Jesus did and His followers will enjoy.

SENIOR CITIZENS DAY IN PONTIAC

Senior Citizens Day was celebrated recently at the Pontiac, Michigan, Southside Church.

Participating in the senior citizen's day activities were, from left, Georgia Wade, Ophelia Sullivan, Elder Dillett and Louise McKinney.

"March of the Senior Citizen" was the theme of the sermon and Elder Eric Dillett gave the congregation Scripture on how to number their days. He challenged the younger generations to regard and to respect the senior citizens, for "they have paved the course carefully and held the banner high."

Special music was presented by two of the senior citizens, Mary Cummings and Annie Johnson.

Among the guests present were Georgia Wade, 90 years of age, and Ophelia Sullivan.

NEWS NOTES

- Pathfinders of the Pinedale Church picked apples as a recent Share Your Faith project. For several years a local orchard owner has been providing the Pathfinders with apples for cider. This year a severe health problem prevented him from picking his own fruit. The Pathfinders picked 70 bushels of apples as a gesture of practical Christianity. The man, a non-Adventist, greatly appreciated the club's assistance and their Christian witness.

- Battle Creek Academy students gave special attention to Veteran's Day by honoring the memory of 1966 graduate Ronald Dale Van Beukering, who was killed in Vietnam. After remarks by Melvyn Clemons, a pastor of the Battle Creek Tabernacle, three members of the local Naval-Marine Corps Reserve Center took part in a special outdoor memorial service incorporating the flag used during the funeral service for Ronald.

- Construction of the new Munising Church is "moving along close to schedule," according to latest reports. The building has been enclosed and now heated. It is anticipated that the congregation will be meeting in the new sanctuary shortly after the first of the new year.

- Jean Kennedy, wife of the pastor of the Chikaming Church, has been conducting a series of well-attended and informative meetings on better living during the regular prayer meeting hour.

- A four-column story, 13 inches long, was used by the Saginaw News to highlight the recently held cooking school conducted by Elizabeth Woodhams, wife of the local pastor. Special artwork and a picture of Mrs. Woodhams helped to catch the reader's attention. The reporter began the article: "Cheaper, safer, more nutritious, a better way of life—those are only a few of the reasons for the growing popularity of vegetarian diets across the country."

- The Fairplain Church in Benton Harbor recently conducted a fabric sale. Proceeds are being used to purchase needed equipment for the church school's kitchen.

- Share Your Faith activities of the conference Pathfinder clubs are varied. However, reports received in the conference Pathfinder office indicate that more and more clubs are "adopting" elderly church members or friends confined to nursing homes. Clubs recently adopting "grandparents" include those at Ann Arbor, Battle Creek and South Flint.

- November 14 was the 50th wedding anniversary of Floyd and Minnie Ownes of the Chikaming Church. After 20 years of membership and service to that church the couple have moved to Florida.

- Delivery of pews for the Marshall Church is expected during December. The nearly $5,000 investment will give church members more comfortable seating and add a greater feeling of reverence to the sanctuary than the folding steel chairs currently in use.

- William and Marie Walker of Jackson celebrated their 62nd wedding anniversary on November 11.

- During the last week of November, Pastor Jack Nash of the Shelby and Fremont churches gave three presentations on smoking to students of the Newaygo High School. He also scheduled a Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking for early December with at least 20 people already registered.

- The Bangor Church members have moved their community services center from the church to a newly acquired building. Besides carrying on the routine work of a center they are remodeling the building and look forward to a formal opening at some future date.

FOUR NEW MEMBERS BAPTIZED

DELTON CHURCH MEMBER ELECTED JUDGE

As a result of the recent election Gary Holman, a deacon of the Delton Church, was voted into the office of District Judge of the 56th District which consists of Barry County and part of Eaton County. Judge Holman's margin of victory was 7,151 to 4,937. He had been in private law practice in Kalamazoo from 1969 to 1976 when he was named prosecutor for Barry County. Local church members are praying that the Lord will grant him "the wisdom of Solomon" in the discharge of his duties.

Kalamazoo opened a new service center recently.

NEW COMMUNITY SERVICES CENTER OPENED IN KALAMAZOO

An event which inspired many Adventists and brought plaudits from others was the formal opening of the new Kalamazoo Community Services Center.

Arthur Covell, director of centers throughout the conference and the Kalamazoo pastor while the building was being built, and Roy Lemon, current pastor, were in charge of the October 15 opening ceremonies.

It was evident from the remarks of the speakers that the work of Seventh-day Adventists in the area of clothing distribution, health education and disaster relief is well known and appreciated.

Kalamazoo Mayor Francis Hamilton and other government and church officials cut the ribbon.

Grants from the Upjohn Company, Kresge Foundation, the Kalamazoo Foundation and the generous support of the local church members made construction of the large building possible.

According to a well-written article in the local paper which reported on the opening, the center is "the church's way of following the 'Golden Rule.'"

According to Elder Lemon and Ona Holman, the center's director, classes in budget-making, health education, nutrition, child care and smoking termination are being planned.

The 7,200-square-foot, $132,000 structure is located at 1527 Humphrey Street, a block from Borgess Hospital.

NEWS NOTE

• Calvin and Pat Taylor presented a sacred concert in Green Bay. Many of the musical presentations were written by the Taylors who were joined in this concert by their sons, Adam, 7, and Garrett, 6. Adam and Garrett played a violin duet.

PATHFINDER DAY AT POUND

ACADEMY BAND PERFORMS

The Wisconsin Academy band and choir presented a secular concert, December 2, 1978, in the academy gym. The band members were wearing their new uniforms. Paul Haynes is the conductor of the band and choir. Steve Smith, accountant for the academy, narrated the program.

LIBERTY '79

The Supreme Court decision in TWA v. Hardison has brought real hardship and economic deprivation to many Seventh-day Adventists. Satan so hates the Sabbath that he deceives those in power, and instead of upholding religious freedom, they diminish it. Here is what Satan told his evil angels:

I will so control the minds under my power that God's Sabbath shall be a special object of contempt. A sign? I will make the observance of the seventh day a sign of disloyalty to the authorities of earth. Human laws will be made so stringent that men and women will not dare to observe the seventh-day Sabbath. For fear of wanting food and clothing, they will join with the whole world in transgressing God's law. The earth will be wholly under my dominion.—Prophets and Kings, p. 184.
