frost is given.

The Harris Pine Story

The story of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Harris's gift to the church is a story that bears telling over and over again, because in their wildest dreams these dedicated people did not imagine the extent of that liberal gesture and the way God would bless its growth.

I am certain we who live in the Lake Union Conference had no idea the gift would reach us. The accompanying picture shows the main plant, located on a 70-acre site at Pendleton, Oregon, in the heart of ponderosa pine country. The company, fully operated under church management, now operates in 16 states. The mills saw enough lumber annually to reach around the world at the equator.

Harris of Pendleton, as the company is now known, operates assembly plants on or near 22 of our denominational school campuses, three of which serve Broadview, Indiana and Wisconsin academies. Here is where the story gets close to us. Last year these three plants did a gross volume of $11,422,632, employing 431 students. During last year alone, our students earned $350,000 for tuition!

The Lake Union Conference wishes to thank Mrs. Harris of Pendleton, Oregon, and Elder Charles Naegle and other church leaders who administer this great company for including us in that enterprise.

THE HEART OF THE LAKE UNION

She Has Done What She Could

by Ethel Wise and Ernie Wendth

"She has done what she could."

Christ said this of Mary who expressed her love for Him by anointing His feet with perfume worth a year's earnings. Perhaps this could also be said about Ida Carson of Benton Harbor who is showing her love to Him by helping thousands of those for whom He died find Steps to Christ in their mail boxes. It is an expensive gift of love, because her project to blanket towns, cities and counties with copies of Steps to Christ has cost her more than $60,000!

Ida Carson has operated a nursing home and more recently a retirement facility for the past 32 years in Benton Harbor. One result of her daily witnessing was highlighted recently with the baptism of a nursing home resident.

This, however, was not enough for Mrs. Carson who had a larger vision. Through the years she has systematically sent literature to friends and relatives of those staying in the home. Three years ago she began sending copies of The Ministry of Healing to doctors, and The Desire of Ages to ministers in her area. She was gratified with the replies but still was not satisfied. Was she doing what she could?

Then she felt impressed to initiate a mass mailing of Steps to Christ. But what about the expense? How could a 76-year-old person, who was not rich, carry on such a project? She pondered the question; prayed for answers, and received a "sign" to move ahead.

About three years ago $500 was unexpectedly made available to her. She was confident it "came from the Lord" as approval of her plan. So she placed her first order for the newsprint edition of Steps to Christ and proceeded to mail them to all families in the town of Galien in southwestern Michigan.

Her project continued as she scraped together additional funds from her own resources—Social Security checks, retirement savings and from profits of her business. Coloma, Watervliet and Eau Claire residents were next. When a branch Sabbath School was started in St. Joseph, Mrs. Carson started a mailing to cover the twin cities of St. Joseph and Benton Harbor.

By now Mrs. Carson was sharpening her methods of operation. She found a firm to supply her with printed mailing labels. Residents of the nursing home helped her address envelopes, insert the books and other literature, and seal and stamp each mailing for the trip of love to her neighbors in the twin cities. The local postmaster supplies her with information for the urban and rural routes and suggested using a commercial mailing permit. He wisely pointed out that people were more likely to open mail from a business concern than one with the name and address of a church organization. She also obtained telephone books for the cities she was covering using the information in them for her project.

As the mailing to the twin cities and then Berrien County neared an end things began to snowball. Cass Beware!

Snapping Turtle

by Jim Snelling
edited by Colleen Garber

"Be sober, be watchful. Your adversary the devil prowls around like a roaring lion, seeking someone to devour." 1 Peter 5:8, Revised Standard Version.

We are all familiar with this description of Satan, and can almost hear his loud roar and see him shaking his shaggy mane and switching his rope-like tail, just like the lions we've seen in the zoo. But I have found that the devil is also very much like a turtle!

I'm not talking about the lovely box tortoises you've seen in your back yard, or the pretty little painted turtles you can buy in the pet store. No, but I've found the devil to be very much like a snapping turtle.

The snapping turtle is one of the most vicious and deceptive of the carnivorous animals. When he gets hungry, he swims across a pond to a place where there is likely to be a school of small fish. Slowly he settles to the bottom and the mud and debris settles all around him. Very carefully he opens his eyes and looks around him, not moving his head at all. When a fish swims near, he slowly opens his mouth and sticks out his tongue.

Now a snapping turtle's tongue is very intriguing to a little fish, for it has a little device on the end of it that looks just like a wriggling worm. The poor foolish fish swims closer and closer, thinking only of the tasty morsel he is about to catch, when all of a sudden—yummp! The snapping turtle catches a tasty morsel instead.

Of course all the other fish are frightened away, and the snapping turtle must find a new location to hide for his next meal.

If you found a snapping turtle by a pond, you wouldn't want to put your finger near his mouth. You might not have a finger for very long. Satan's devices for tricking us work just like the snapping turtle's tongue. He makes sin appear so attractive that many folk gather around closer to get a better look, and then he has them in his trap.

The snapping turtle has another plan for eating when he gets tired of little fish. He finds a pond where ducks or geese are raising their family. When the young ones hatch into little tiny balls of fluff, the parents are very proud!

As soon as the baby geese are able to swim, the proud parents set off across the pond with the father out front, the mother behind him, and five or six baby geese following in a line. The father goose calls "Honk, honk, honk," meaning, "See my lovely family! Aren't they the most beautiful baby geese on the pond!"

But just below the surface the snapping turtle is waiting. He sees two big pair of feet going "swish, swish" through the water, and several tiny sets of feet going "zip, zip, zip" right behind.

Very quietly the snapping turtle swims up behind the last tiny gosling and—yummp! Down it goes. But the proud parents continue their parade across the lake, and don't even miss the baby goose.

The next day the snapping turtle follows along and has the next baby for his dinner. And still the parent geese don't notice the danger.

Finally, only one gosling is left. But the parents don't recognize the danger, so they keep swimming along right by the snapping turtle's nose. They keep bragging to the pond residents about their lovely baby until it, too, is caught by the snapping turtle. Then they finally realize, "Oh, we have lost all our children!"

Sometimes human parents are a lot like the geese on the pond. They think that by taking their children to church and sending them to church school they must be safe. How proud they are of their lovely children. But parents must be watchful. Satan is lurking just below the surface waiting to catch the young.

You can usually tell when geese have raised a family, then lost them to the snapping turtle. When their next batch of young hatch and they take them out on the lake, the mother may be swimming in front, with the father behind the young. They are ever vigilant, looking all around. If they pass near some fish and there is a disturbance in the water, the father quickly sticks his head under water and looks all around.

There are many snapping turtles in ponds who have only one eye because they got too close to a goose who was more concerned with protecting her children than bragging about them.

So we have two important lessons to learn from the snapping turtle. First, we should not let our curiosity about sin bring us closer and closer to it, just so we can get a good look, for then Satan has a much easier task in catching us.

And for parents, even though we may be very proud of our lovely children, we still must be always sober and watchful, not like the silly geese, lest we lose our children to the devouring snapping turtle, the devil.

A BOOK REVIEW—

Mind, Character, and Personality

by Robert H. Parr

I well remember the late Pastor A. H. Piper saying once, when I was in college, that he wished that some scholar would collect and publish all that Ellen White had said on the subject of psychology. I remember thinking at the time that that would be quite a task, and so it has proved.

However, some nameless, faceless geniuses (it is surely not the work of one lonely researcher) have tackled the task, under the auspices of the Ellen G. White Estate, and have come up with what can only be described as "a blockbuster in two volumes."

I have marveled at the erudition of Ellen White when it comes to the insights she had into the human mind, the human personality and character. "Uncanny" is a most inadequate word, and "well ahead of her time" is a tired old cliché. But both descriptions spring to the lips when you have to give an opinion.

Now I know that the supreme accolade is expected of a reviewer of Ellen White books; bold would he be and careless for his own neck if he came out with a stinging condemnation of such a compilation as this.

But I speak from the heart, and believe me, I would pick holes in this, even if it were only the typeface or the quality of the paper, if I could. But frankly, both the technical production and the assiduous work of the compilers are beyond reproach.

It says something for a writer, dead sixty-some years, when her works can be raked over and a total of 882 pages can be published on a subject which, ostensibly, she knew nothing about—that is to say, in matters in which she had no formal training.

It says something even more eloquent when it can be said with truth and conviction that what she has said is as modern as tomorrow and as relevant as the weather forecast in Melbourne (but far more accurate than that is likely to be).

The subtitle of the two volumes is "Guidelines to Mental and Spiritual Health," and the books live up to the claims thus made.

The compilation is immensely practical. The subsections of the section entitled "Emotional Problems" run for nearly 100 pages and contain these headings: Guilt; Grief; Worry and Anxiety; Fear; Depression; Controversy—Positive and Negative; Overstudy; Pain; Anger; Hatred and Revenge, and Faith. That is down-to-earth stuff.

The collection of paragraphs in this book comes from 66 different sources, counting such titles as Testimonies for the Church, volumes 1 to 9, as one.

This will indicate the depth of research that has gone into these volumes, and many of the titles from which they have lifted material are no longer available. (For instance, have you a copy of "Special Testimonies to the Battle Creek Church"? Or "An Appeal to Mothers Relative to the Great Cause of the Physical, Mental, and Moral Ruin of Many of the Children of Our Time"? No, I thought not.)

Excerpts in these two volumes are of various lengths. The very first one is, as far as I can ascertain, the shortest:

"To deal with minds is the nicest work in which men ever engaged." (And that, incidentally, is the correct usage of the word nicest.) The longest quotations run for more than a page.

You know, the more I read Ellen White, the more I believe she was gifted with sound common sense. She was no prude; she was extremely practical in her outlook, considering the Victorian era in which she flourished.

And she never minces her words. I recall with almost a shudder the straight counsel she gave to an Adventist youth who was indulging in a rather torrid courtship of a young lady: "In the name of the Lord, cease your attention to N or marry her. . . . You might as well marry her as to be in her society and conduct yourself as only man and wife should conduct themselves toward each other." (Volume 1, page 231.)

The foreword of this collection of statements begins with these words: "In Ellen G. White's lifetime (1827-1915) psychology, the science which treats of the mind and its powers and functions, was in its infancy. Yet there emerges throughout her writings a distinctive philosophy in which guidelines in this science and to mental health are clearly portrayed."

Right! And you name me a notable psychologist of, say, 80 years ago whose works are still in vogue today. Yet these writings are fresh and lively, and sound and Scriptural. And because they are the last-named, they are all of the others.

Incidentally, for those who wish to make a thorough study of these books, a study guide has been prepared, and this will help the serious student as he endeavours to work his way methodically through the contents. However, the study guide is not essential for the general reader.

This work has taken 10 years to complete. It is a tremendous tribute to the researchers who have painstakingly combed through countless pages of the writings of Ellen White.

It is a pity that good old Pastor Piper didn't live to see these two volumes. His eyes would have sparkled with joy.

WAUS APPLIES FOR SATELLITE RECEIVER

WAUS, Andrews University's FM radio station, has become the first public radio station in Michigan to apply to the Federal Communications Commission for a satellite receiving terminal, according to station manager Allen R. Steele. Final action by the F.C.C. on the proposal is expected soon, he said.

Funding for the terminal will come from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (C.P.B.), but WAUS will be the sole owner after nine years.

"Zoning and environmental codes have already been met for the project," said Mr. Steele. "At the completion date of November 1979, a larger variety of National Public Radio (N.P.R.) broadcasts will be available. In addition, the satellite signal is expected to be of excellent fidelity capable of stereophonic and quadrasonic transmission."

Presently N.P.R. programs must come over a single telephone line from Washington, D.C., to Berrien Springs.

WAUS is recognized by broadcast history books as one of the first educational stations in the country. John Fetzer, current owner of the Detroit Tigers baseball team, established it in 1922 as a shortwave station through Andrews University, then Emmanuel Missionary College. Two years later it went to professional broadcasting.

On June 29, 1978, the station began broadcasting at a power of 48,000 watts, enlarging its coverage area to serve communities within a 100-mile radius, including most of northern Indiana and southwestern Michigan.

DEAN'S TRAINING PROGRAM COMPLETES FIRST QUARTER

The Residence Hall Deans in Training program at Andrews University has completed its first quarter, coordinated by Donald Murray, associate dean of men.

The program aims to "upgrade the quality of deans in the profession," says Mr. Murray.

Five students enrolled this fall. One of them, Doug English, is currently serving a one-year stint as student dean at Pioneer Valley Academy in Massachusetts.

"The profession of being a dean is coming into its own," says Mr. Murray. As evidence, he cites last spring's formation of the Adventist Student Personnel Association, an organization of deans, guidance counselors and other educators.

In addition, says Mr. Murray, the annual summer workshops for deans, held at Andrews since 1963, will continue.

WORSHIP TALKS DONATED

Minnie Dauphiness Roberts has donated 21 notebooks of worship talks to the Ellen G. White Research Center at Andrews.

The worship talks were written and presented during a period of 25 years when Mrs. Roberts was a dean of women, and are organized alphabetically by subject.

"The talks will be on file here for deans, pastors, seminary students and others to use as resource material," says Hedwig Jemison, director of the research center.

Mrs. Roberts was dean of women at Pacific Union College from 1932 to 1943, and dean of nurses at Washington Sanitarium and Hospital in Takoma Park, Maryland, from 1943 to 1949.

In 1949 she returned to California and served as nurses' dean at St. Helena Sanitarium and Hospital.

She also was active in developing the School of Prayer at St. Helena in 1962, which resulted in the book, Communion with God, a devotional guide.

COLLEGE COURSES BY RADIO

A new series of college courses by radio sponsored by Andrews University is being broadcast during 1979, according to Dr. Rudolf E. Klimes, director of Andrews' Lifelong Learning program.

The courses, Personal Finance and Enjoyment of Music, may be taken either for credit or personal development.

Many individuals interested in advancing their education have responsibilities that prevent them from regular university enrollment, says Dr. Klimes. The radio courses will benefit these people as well as anyone else desiring personal or professional enrichment.

Personal Finance, which began January 8, is heard Monday through Thursday at 10:15 P.M., and will continue through March 18. It will be offered again March 26 through May 24 in a morning time period.

The course was developed by Dr. C. Torben Thomsen, assistant professor of business administration at Andrews, and Dr. Robert Brown, professor of business at Purdue University.

The second course, Enjoyment of Music, was developed by Dr. LeRoy Peterson, assistant professor of music at Andrews, and Dr. Bobby Loftis, professor of music at West Virginia Wesleyan College. The course will be on the air at 10:15 P.M. Monday through Thursday, beginning March 26.

The tuition charge for each course is $75, plus textbook and materials, says Dr. Klimes. Enrollees desiring only a continuing education certificate will pay $20, plus textbook and materials.

Syllabi and other material will be mailed to registrants, but final examinations will be given on the Andrews campus.

Complete sets of the 36 broadcasts will be available at four libraries in the area and may also be purchased from WAUS.

HOSPITAL AWARDED 2-YEAR ACCREDITATION

HINSDALE—Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital has been awarded a two-year accreditation by the nongovernmental Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (J.C.A.H.).

The two-year accreditation, the maximum time period awarded, is the result of an on-site survey made by field representatives of the J.C.A.H. Accreditation indicates that Hinsdale Hospital has voluntarily chosen to operate according to standards set by J.C.A.H., a not-for-profit organization, and that the hospital has, in the main, met these standards.

The standards set forth optimal achievable goals of excellence against which a facility such as Hinsdale Hospital can measure itself and be measured by the joint commission's survey.

It is not legally necessary for a hospital to be accredited, but health-care facilities have sought accreditation because it represents a benchmark of quality that is higher than governmental licensure alone.

HOSPITAL RECOMMENDED FOR C.M.E. ACCREDITATION

HINSDALE—An on-site visit from a representative of the Illinois Council for Continuing Medical Education (C.M.E.), a branch of the Illinois State Medical Society, has resulted in a recommendation for a four-year accreditation of Hinsdale Sanitarium Hospital's program for C.M.E.

During a day-long visit by Joseph R. O'Donnell, M.D., on October 26, 1978, the continuing medical education program was reviewed on the basis of six criteria: administration and budget, needs identification, learning objectives, educational methods and teaching staff, evaluation, awards and certificates.

When comparing the program's first application for accreditation with the second, it was reported that effort had been made to correct deficiencies and that criteria as set forth by the council had been fully or substantially met.

The Illinois Council for C.M.E. recommended the four-year accreditation, the maximal time period awarded, to the liaison committee on C.M.E. which is nationally responsible for accreditation decisions. A report on the final vote by the liaison committee will be given within four to six months.

AUSTIN CHURCH OBSERVES 10TH ANNIVERSARY

On December 7, 1968, on the day commemorating the bombing of Pearl Harbor, church members from the nations of the Far East organized the Austin Church in Chicago. There were 18 Koreans, 10 Japanese, 7 Filipinos, 5 Americans and 2 others, with the leadership of Elder and Mrs. George Shigeru Aso.

Coming into existence at a time when the influx of immigrants from the Orient was rapidly increasing, Austin was soon to be a home for many who would otherwise be drifting in this great metropolis.

Soon there were members from the east, west, north and south corners of the globe. This was a unique characteristic of the church—the worshiping together of peoples from different races and languages.

When a crisis about the building they were renting came a few months after organization, the handful of members rose to the challenge—they decided to purchase the building. It was an act of faith, for what could a handful of newly arrived aliens do, still struggling to survive in a foreign land?

Like the boy's five loaves and two fishes their dedicated efforts were multiplied by God in the hands of people who believed this church had a special mission in Chicago.

It was a happy occasion when exactly one year after that decision the church building was dedicated free of debt on May 30, 1970.

The church grew rapidly. In three years the membership increased threefold. In January 1972 the Korean members, the fastest-growing segment of the congregation, decided to form their own church. At present about 85 percent of the members are of Filipino background. On November 25, 1978, it was voted that the name of the present congregation be officially changed to the Austin Filipino S.D.A. Church, making Austin the first Filipino Adventist Church east of California in the United States.

On Sabbath, December 9, 1978, the Austin congregation observed their 10th anniversary. A special Sabbath School program was held. Filipina Galera, a charter member, sang "Until Then," the song she sang during the dedication ceremony nine years ago.

In a moving speech, church clerk Veneracion Cabana recalled the warmth and enthusiasm of the members during the early years of the church.

With the church at the threshold of another decade, Mrs. Cabana appealed to the members to fulfill the purpose for which the Austin Church was established.

Church member Dorothy Morris, formerly of Jamaica, challenged the members to be faithful and united. May Austin be a church that exercises this faith until Jesus comes.

A WARMER CHRISTMAS BECAUSE OTHERS CARE

Senior citizens and needy families in Coloma had a warmer Christmas this year because of the warmth generated for them by members of the Coloma Church, and especially because of the efforts of three senior citizens.

During the past year, 38 pairs of slippers were knitted by Suzanna Roosenberg, Mrs. William Valkner and Mrs. John Gehringer. These slippers were included among the items in Christmas baskets that were given out during the holiday season.

A special Sabbath School program recognized the efforts of these three women, two of whom are members of the Lutheran Church. Mrs. Valkner of Allegan is the mother, and Mrs. Gehringer of Norridge, Illinois, the grandmother of Gloria Palmisano, Coloma Community Services director. The love of these three women for their Lord and for His people shines through in their efforts on this project.

WEST BRANCH CHURCH CONSECRATED

It was only a little spark, but fanned by active witnessing it grew stronger until today the bright light of Adventism now shines in Ogemaw County.

On December 9, a new church at West Branch was consecrated in special services directed by Elders Charles Keymer and James Hayward, president and executive secretary, respectively, of the Michigan Conference.

In 1974 the Ray Gardner family moved north from Clawson to West Branch 36 miles west of Tawas City. Mrs. Gardner, "Billie," thought she and her four children were the only Adventists in that county. They began attending the church at Mio and the children went to the Mio Church School, even though it meant driving nearly 40 miles one way.

At that time Elder Kenneth

Wenberg, the local pastor, informed Billie that there were other Adventists in and around West Branch including young people who should be in church school. Soon Billie was driving 15 children back and forth to Mio. Because of the growing list of commuting students Billie's husband, Ray, purchased a van large enough to carry the students.

Parents are thankful that during the past 4½ years and 93,000 miles of taxiing these students, not one accident occurred.

In the spring of 1975 Cecil Booth of Mio, then the head elder, took the responsibility of starting a branch Sabbath School at West Branch. It was primarily for the families living in the area who were driving to Tawas, Long Lake, Gladwin or Houghton Lake.

Those who began to attend the new branch Sabbath School were thankful because transportation or other problems hadn't allowed them to regularly worship at the distant churches.

One of the pastors serving the area during this time was Elder Jason Prest who told the group that if they wanted to grow and not fade out as other groups had done, they must conduct prayer meetings.

The fledgling group took this advice to heart and, although they had no regular preacher, elder or deacon to direct their worship, they met faithfully for prayer meetings and read from the works of Ellen G. White.

Later Pastor Lyle Chamberlain held the first ordinance of communion for the group with an inspiring candlelight service in the home of Robert Gilman.

During the months the group was meeting as a branch Sabbath School, Cecil Booth was always faithful in meeting with them. Then one happy Sabbath they held their last worship service in a private home and began regular Sabbath services in the local Methodist church. Worshiping God in actual church surroundings added an extra spiritual dimension to the group's experience.

The activities of the church members were not confined to their own group; members eagerly participated in a witnessing program. Vacation Bible schools, cooking classes and Five-Day Plans to Stop Smoking all became part of their witness.

Then in June 1976 the group of 24 were organized into a full-fledged church.

Later, circumstances forced them to move to another location for services and the congregation began to sense a need for their own church home. It seemed an impossible dream, but as one member reminded the others, "With our God all things are possible."

Before long a piece of land was purchased just off M-55, and two portable classrooms were obtained, moved to the site and remodeled into an attractive church building. A talented pastor and willing lay people made this dream and witness come true.

The West Branch Church thus became the last of five churches to celebrate the opening of new church buildings during 1978.

A dedication service was conducted on November 25 at the Bristol Church. The three eldest sons of James Calkins and the late LaFern Bloomquist Calkins—James Fred Jr., Milton Henry and Bruce Willard—returned to the church of their childhood to dedicate their infant daughters to God.

Fred and his wife, Bonny, of Frankfort, Kentucky, presented Keren Adel for dedication.

Milton and his wife, Margaret, presented their daughter, Michelle Margaret, for dedication. They live in Buchanan, Michigan.

Bruce and his wife, Cindy, presented Arlene Rose for dedication. They live in Gilbertville, Massachusetts.

Fred presented the sermon about God's fatherly love for His children. Florence Calkins, sister of the three brothers, sang "My Father's Table." James F. Calkins Sr. gave the dedicatory charge, and Evert Wicks offered the dedicatory prayer.

One of the 21 stop-smoking billboards in Michigan which draws the attention of travelers.

5-DAY PLAN BILLBOARDS GET ATTENTION

Motorists driving on Michigan highways are invited by the Adventist Church to stop smoking. Twenty-one billboards call attention to the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking as sponsored by the church.

For nearly a score of years this program of the temperance department has been attracting many people to its message. Do people respond? Little Steve of Marysville did. He saw a sign, and in his childish handwriting penciled:

"My dad has been smoking for 30 years and he is now starting to get a bad cough. What can be done to save his life?"

Perhaps more typical of the regular flow of mail that comes to the office are the following: Mary of Muskegon wrote, "I am a heavy smoker, a little more than three packs a day, and I have been to a hypnotist three times without success." She wanted information on the plan.

Near tragedy caused this wife from Vernon to ask for help: "My husband and I both smoke. He has a bad heart so he should quit, and I went to sleep in my chair a couple of nights ago setting fire to the chair. Thank God the house wasn't hurt except by smoke."

Jack of Spring Lake is a department store executive. He wrote: "I have seen your ads on many billboards throughout the state. I recently had a heart attack and was told to stop smoking, but to no avail."

Jon of Vandalia wanted to be sure to get material on how to stop smoking: "Enclosed please find a $2 donation for your trouble, and to show my appreciation for your concern."

Are you concerned about those who need help? Do you believe that whatsoever you do even for the little ones you are doing unto Him? If so, you will have another chance to support this special billboard program.

On January 27 the annual special offering will be taken in our churches to benefit this program. The head of the company which paints our message on these 21 billboards has, through the years, given us special price considerations because of what we are trying to do. He is concerned, are you? Then show it by giving your full support for this offering on Sabbath, January 27.

Pastor Philip Colburn presents books to Lorraine Fankhouser at a recent ceremony in her honor.

RETIRED TEACHER HONORED

In a recent Sabbath morning ceremony, Lorraine Fankhouser, 84, was honored at Pontiac Riverside Church in appreciation of her 47 years of service as a denominational teacher.

Elder Philip Colburn presented her with the books The Vision Bold and Joy in the Morning. The following week Miss Fankhouser drove her car south to Lake Highlands (151 Minnehaha Avenue, Clermont, FL 32711) where she plans to enjoy the warmer climate.

Miss Fankhouser began her teaching career in Jasonville, Indiana, teaching there for 13 years. Pastor Colburn's mother, Grace Colburn of Saginaw, and his aunt, Esther Nelson of Cedar Lake, were among Miss Fankhouser's pupils at Jasonville.

Miss Fankhouser then taught 19 years in Ohio: 11 years at Mt. Vernon and eight at Toledo.

In 1949 she moved to Pontiac, where she taught at Pontiac Junior Academy for 15 years. She retired in 1964.

5-DAY PLANS TO BE HELD IN GREATER DETROIT AREA

Wisconsin Conference

Dale Ziegele, Correspondent

Only splinters remain as workmen clean up debris after the demolition of the former Wisconsin Conference office.

OLD CONFERENCE OFFICE DEMOLISHED

Inside the package delivered to the communication department were two bricks. The bricks had solidly done service from 1919 to 1943 as part of the former Wisconsin Conference office.

W. E. Brown collected the bricks, recalling the days when he served as a maintenance man.

Located on Lake Monona in Madison the office was near the old Madison Sanitarium, directed by Dr. Lindsay. The veranda of the San overlooked the office and Lake Monona.

The former Madison Sanitarium site is now the home of the Wisconsin Medical Society. Wrecking crews demolished the of the former office structure to enhance the grounds of the medical society.

County was next. Then St. Joseph, Van Buren and Allegan counties, and the Michigan Conference asked her to cover Traverse City's Leelanau County.

Included in the telephone directories received were two directories not asked for—Alger County in the Upper Peninsula of which Marquette is the county seat, and Michigan City, Indiana. Mrs. Carson decided the Lord was directing and decided to cover both areas with Alger County first.

At that time church workers in Marquette were wondering how to develop a list of interested people. Then the returns from the Alger mailing began to come in. According to Mrs. Carson, a phone call from workers in the Marquette area informed her of 30 studies resulting from the mailing to that area. Bible study guide requests included in the mailing were bearing fruit!

So were requests for information on The Bible Story and other books whose advertisements she had included in the packet. As a result a literature evangelist had to be called to follow up these leads.

On January 2, 1979, Mrs. Carson mailed 1,700 of her packets as the last of the coverage for Michigan City. The Lord had directed her, she believes to cover these two areas and she was faithful in carrying through.

Now the name of Gary, Indiana, has been impressed upon her mind and she is working on plans for the next project. Already she has a list of more than 200,000 homes to work on. Soon she and her faithful associates at the nursing home expect to be mailing materials, and thousands of Gary families will find stepping stones to Christ in their mailboxes.

What are the results? Mrs. Carson is not concerned. Her work is to scatter the seed. The Lord will provide the increase. However she has been pleased to hear of two baptisms which have taken place as the direct result of her project.

To date Ida Carson has mailed nearly one-third of a million copies of the book with accompanying materials at a cost of approximately 20 cents each. She knows funds will somehow continue to become available so she and her crew can continue their work. She is determined to carry on her personal witnessing project because she cannot be happy unless she is sure "she has done what she could."

Ida Carson has done more than she thought she could but it has been accomplished, she says, because the Lord has promised to make all things possible—even big projects.

"She has done what she could." Have you?

CATCH THE BRIGHT DAWN, by Jan S. Doward. Review and Herald Publishing Association, Washington, D.C. $4.50.

This year's devotional for young people is truly unique! Bible stores and Spirit of Prophecy illustrations are used to present the plan of redemption as it is chronologically recorded in the Bible from Genesis to Revelation, in language which will appeal to young people. Each day's reading, although designed to stand alone, interlocks with the others so the book often reads like a continued story. Each reading is also designed to create a strong desire for more details so the inquisitive youngster will look deeper into the Bible and Spirit of Prophecy himself for answers to his questions. Careful and prayerful perusal of this book throughout the year will surely draw the reader to Christ, whose great sacrifice assures us of an eternal bright dawn.

World Church News

ADVENTIST DENTISTS MEET

More than 200 professionals and their spouses heard practical suggestions for recovering and maintaining good health highlighting the San Diego meeting of the National Association of Seventh-day Adventist Dentists.

Though pointing out the causes of fatigue and heart disease in adults, Mervyn Hardinge, M.D., also noted that "coronary heart disease today is a disease of the adolescent." Thus he had suggestions for the entire family, for "heart disease," Dr. Hardinge emphasized, "is a disease of the Western world and our life style." He emphasized the necessity of proper diet, rest, and exercise for the professional with long hours of mental exertion and tensed muscles.

Spotlighted during Sabbath School was the NASDAD project of building a teaching dental clinic at Montemorelos University. Already under construction in conjunction with the medical school, the clinic is designed to be expanded to a full-fledged dental school as soon as possible. Meanwhile, English-speaking dentists will go on volunteer stints to help the resident dentist with the teaching program.

NURSES MEETING HELD NEAR DENVER

Nearly 150 delegates from throughout the country met near Ward, Colorado, November 7 to 12 for two conferences for Seventh-day Adventist nursing personnel.

Glacier View Ranch was the site for the 1978 North American Adventist Nursing Council November 7 to 9, and a gathering of the Association of Seventh-day Adventist Nurses (ASDAN), November 10 to 12.

Both annual events, usually conducted in tandem, provide for discussion of current issues facing the nursing profession in Adventist-operated institutions and produce recommendations to the department of health at the church's world headquarters in Washington, D.C.

Participants were exposed to a full agenda featuring numerous lectures and group discussions. Topics included leadership, budgeting, special nursing roles, holistic health, and many others.

Delegates voted to recommend that similar nursing councils be organized at regular intervals within each of several regions in the United States such as the four-state area served by Great Lakes Adventist Health Services, Inc.

Also passed was a recommendation to expand opportunities for college students to gain work-study experience at a hospital not necessarily in the same union as their college.
