Minor Events with Major Consequences

*G. W. Morgan
President
Indiana Conference*

For several years the city of South Bend has been a very difficult area for public evangelism. From August 30 to October 6, an Andrews University Field School of Evangelism was conducted there, directed by Lester Carney, Indiana Conference ministerial secretary.

The church and pastoral staff had worked hard to prepare for this series, and God has rewarded their efforts with many wonderful decisions. Out of the many experiences that might be related, there are three that may seem minor in themselves but which meant much to the individuals involved, and indicate God's guidance and power to save.

One woman had received Bible studies from the pastor for some time. She had been a very sincere Christian in another church but became so convinced of the Sabbath truth that she had given up her job because of her desire to keep God's holy day. The Lord had miraculously worked to help her secure other employment with the Sabbath off, but still she was not sure that she should join the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

One Sabbath morning before leaving her home for the worship service, she prayed about this decision. Her convictions were strong. She said, "Lord, if this is the church that I should join, then two things must happen. First, they must be willing to accept me on my former baptism, and second, they must give a public altar call so that I can respond."

That very Sabbath morning at the end of the sermon, the evangelist extended a public invitation for anyone who wanted to join the church either by baptism or profession of faith. This was the answer to her morning prayer. She was the first to respond, and a week later she joined the church family.

That same Sabbath afternoon as the pastors visited various homes they were impressed to call upon a certain family who lived several miles out of town. The ministers had not wanted to go so far that busy afternoon. However, they responded to the impression and when they arrived at the home, the husband, with tears in his eyes, said, "I have been praying for you two men to come." He had a problem that needed to be discussed. That night at the evangelistic meeting he made his decision in a public altar call to join the church. A few nights later his wife also made the same commitment.

There was another young couple who came to only one of the regular evangelistic meetings. They had Adventist relatives who had been witnessing to them and answering their questions. However, they did come to the week of Bible classes that followed the meetings. They were so impressed with the message of truth that the young woman made her decision to follow the Lord in baptism the next Sabbath morning. At her baptism, her husband indicated his desire to follow his Lord in baptism also.

It is marvelous how the Lord leads in seemingly little ways to bring great success to the lives of men and women.

In addition to alleviating overcrowding in Meier Hall, the new facility will accommodate the 134 students now living in Burman Hall.

"We plan to consider those living in the two dormitories as belonging to one residence family," says Dean Scott. "Our aim as deans is to combine our talents, meeting the individual needs of the residents through a channeling of our own personal strong points."

Don Murray and Kermit Carter, associate deans, share Dean Scott's goal. "Between the three of them, there's always somebody a dorm student can relate to with a given problem," says Dorothy Keller, secretary to Meier Hall deans for the past nine years.

IT takes more than a cold drizzle to keep Andrews' construction crew from getting a job done. With the back-up of a front-end loader and the force of a crane, the new men's dormitory at the university is going up.

"Things are right on schedule," says Richard Scott, dean of men. "The dorm should be all ready to move into by fall of 1980."

The five-story residence hall, being constructed as part of the university's master plan, will house 192 men. Architects Ralph Calder and Associates from Detroit have proposed two wings, including a main lobby, dean's apartment, chapel and lower level with recreation area.

counseling, each dean takes responsibility for specific facets of dorm living.

Dean Carter, whose career experience includes six years of being dean at Oakwood College, takes charge of desk personnel, puts out a weekly paper for men in the dormitories, and coordinates speakers for evening worships.

"Our objective this year in worships is to give the students the opportunity to benefit from the experiences others have had," he says. "We've asked faculty members and other professionals to talk about things that have happened in their lives—both positive and negative—and to discuss what they've learned from these experiences."

Holding a master's degree in guidance, Dean Carter feels one of the most important aspects of his job is that of fostering open communication with the dormitory residents.

"I think it's essential that students see the dean as a friend, rather than an authority figure," he says. "I don't see my role as making all the decisions for the men, but as helping them work through their problems themselves."

Dean Murray, who came to Andrews in 1977 after having worked as an academy dean for 13 years, coordinates the Resident Hall Deans-In Training program offered at the university.

In addition to his regular duties as dean, Dean Murray works with students interested in becoming deans, helping them arrange their academic programs and scheduling one year of field experience.

As sponsor of the men's club, Sigma Phi Delta, Dean Murray of the potential of the relationship," says Sue.

Sponsored through Andrews' Campus Ministries, the program attracts students from colleges all over the country and is scheduled for Walla Walla and Southern Missionary colleges next spring.

Keeping the routine matters of the dormitory running smoothly through all these programs is Dean Scott. Coming to Andrews as an assistant dean in 1972 after having served as dean of boys for four years at Cedar Lake Academy, Dean Scott became Meier Hall's head dean in 1973.

Taking on the administrative responsibilities of maintaining the dormitory program, Dean Scott coordinates budgets, watches night checks, and oversees general duties.

But his job involves more than just red tape and daily records. Says one dorm student, "Dean Scott really cares. Whenever something goes wrong with somebody's car, you can be sure he'll be out there in the parking lot, getting it to run again."

Dean Scott also maintains the dormitory's health club, which offers residents and others the opportunity to work out on the leg and arm machines and use the weights, whirlpool, sauna and other equipment and facilities.

Summing up the combined goals of all three deans, Dean Scott says, "Our motto here is 'Far More than Just Bed or Bath.'"

"To us that means meeting the needs of our residents, maintaining a service-oriented outlook, giving the students a place they can call home."

spends much time with the students, planning such things as open-house events, floor parties and dormitory recreation.

"We're interested in the development of the whole person," he says. "Providing social activities for spare time is an important part of our total program."

Reflecting this concern for the social aspect of Christian growth is Dean Murray's involvement with "Engaged Encounter." Started by Don and his wife, Sue, in the spring of 1978, the program is the first of its kind in the denomination.

"We started 'Engaged Encounter' because of the real need within our church for couples to go into marriage with a clear understanding

● Harry Lloyd, chief flight instructor at Andrews Airpark, has received his examiner's license from the Federal Aviation Administration. Mr. Lloyd, who is assistant professor of aviation and transportation in Andrews' College of Technology, is now authorized to supervise check rides and issue private pilot's licenses for persons to fly any single-engine aircraft. "Anyone with an application for a license and his instructor's recommendation can take his check ride here at Andrews," says Mr. Lloyd, adding that the university also offers a complete F.A.A.-approved pilot training program.

● Two distinguished European Seventh-day Adventist leaders were among the speakers at the John Nevins Andrews Sesquicentennial Conference held at Andrews University, October 18 to 21. Jean Zurcher, secretary of the Euro-Africa Division of Seventh-day Adventists discussed the role of J. N. Andrews as a missionary. Georges Steveny, president of the French Adventist Seminary in Collonges, France, presented the topic "J. N. Andrews: His Personal Library." Other lectures were given by Andrews' faculty and noted denominational historians.

V.O.P. BENEFITS FROM FALL FESTIVAL

A "love offering" of more than $6,045 was made to the Voice of Prophecy by listeners and friends in the Berrien Springs, Michigan, area on Sabbath afternoon, October 13.

The donation took place during the final meeting in a weekend series of youth rallies on the Andrews University campus with H.M.S. Richards Sr., founder and speaker emeritus of the radio program, as the featured speaker.

According to Chester Damron, university chaplain, the project was initiated in September to help Elder Richards and the V.O.P. staff realize their dream of broadcasting the program "on the air, every day, everywhere."

The theme of the campaign stated that "a nickel still counts" when used in support of the Voice of Prophecy. The five-cent coin was chosen for the project because it was reminiscent of Elder Richards' upcoming 50th year of radio ministry.

A goal of 100,000 nickels, or $5,000, was set and a four-foot high, 28-gallon container was constructed in the shape of a V.O.P. microphone to hold the coins.

Services for the two-day series, which was sponsored by the Andrews Christian Youth Action organization, were held in the Pioneer Memorial Church on the university campus throughout the weekend.

A.C.Y.A. President Pagie Isaacs lends a hand to donors of all ages as they contribute their nickels to the Voice of Prophecy.

Elder Richards delivered his final message of the series and the campaign appeal was made by Elder Damron. Donations began pouring in and it was soon obvious that the original goal of $5,000 would easily be surpassed.

Representatives from ten churches and four elementary schools in the vicinity turned in nickels by the bucket. Individual contributions by area residents and university students numbered in the hundreds. The "microphone" eventually became so heavy that two men were needed to prevent it from tipping over.

Among the donations were several sets of antique coins that have tentatively been appraised at a value of approximately $1,000. The money raised from the sale of these collections, many of which remained true to the campaign theme and contained buffalo nickels, will be added to the $6,045 already accumulated.

A.C.Y.A. President Pagie Isaacs, who was on hand during the meeting to assist donors with heavy clusters of nickels, said that the experience reminded him of the enthusiasm and spirituality shown by the Israelites as they gave their gifts of gold for the Lord's temple in the Biblical account.

Elder Richards, who personally received another $2,000 in contributions for the Voice of Prophecy, expressed his deep gratitude to all who took part in the effort. He also reaffirmed the V.O.P.'s commitment for increased radio coverage.

A final total of monies raised through the project was not yet available, Elder Damron reported, because the nickels were "still coming in."

The afternoon meeting also opened the annual Fall Festival, a week-long series of social, recreational and religious activities for Andrews students. In accordance with the "nickel drive," the university's student association sponsored several fund-raising events, the proceeds of which were also donated to the Voice of Prophecy.

HINSDALE HOSPITAL BREAKS GROUND IN BOLINGBROOK

BOLINGBROOK—Ground breaking for Bolingbrook Medical Center, an ambulatory/emergency care affiliate facility of Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital, was held Tuesday, October 2, at the site of the proposed center just west of Interstate 55 and Route 53 in Bolingbrook, Illinois.

Quoting from the third epistle of John, chapter 2, Lowell Bock, president the Lake Union Conference and chairman of the Hinsdale Hospital Board of Trustees, pointed out the hospital's sensitivity to the Creator's desire that man realize health of body and soul.

The religious conviction of the Adventist Church has led it to a historical involvement in health care. In the context of this commitment Hinsdale Hospital was founded, and when the need was expressed for an extension of services in the Bolingbrook area, Hinsdale responded.

Hospital President Irwin Hansen cited the ground breaking as another benchmark for the community and the new medical center.

With input from the Economic Development and Medical Advisory Committees, backed by resolutions from the villages of Bolingbrook and Romeoville, Hinsdale Hospital sought from state health-planning authorities a certificate of need for construction of a 120-bed hospital.

Impressed with the communities' interest and the documented need for such a facility, the local Health Systems Agency recommended that the State of Illinois grant the certificate; however, on October 10, 1977, the request was turned down.

Alternate plans were pursued which led to the October 2 ground breaking for the ambulatory/emergency facility. The planned facility is seen as the initial phase of a health-care program which will culminate in a hospital in the next few years.

Other participants in the ceremony included: Pastor Frank Anksorus of St. Dominic's Church, Bolingbrook; Charles Snyder, vice president of Hinsdale Hospital and project director; Jack Levine, president of the Medical Facilities Advisory Committee; Robert Bailey, Mayor of Bolingbrook; John Hayward, president of the Illinois Conference; Jim Weith of Schmidt, Garden and Erikson, Architects; and Thomas Gilbane Jr., Gilbane Building Company.

CHRISTIAN WITNESS HELPS CHANGE LIVES

BATTLE CREEK—This is a report given recently by Larry Yeagley, Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital chaplain, to the membership of the Battle Creek Tabernacle.

"A few days ago I walked into a patient's room and found him reading. During our conversation he said, 'You know what got me off of drink two years ago? It was this book.' He held up Steps to Christ.

Elder Yeagley continued: "I attended Sabbath School a few months ago in a nearby city. The woman giving the mission story took a few minutes to thank me and the hospital for the impact made on her daughter's life. The daughter had accepted Christ and was baptized because of the influence of the hospital staff.

"The booklet Because of You, which is available throughout the hospital, tells the story of the Adventist message in a very concise way. A visitor recently took 10 of them to mail to her friends. She left $105 as a donation.

"Last week I taught a Sabbath School class. There, sitting in my class, was a former patient with whom the chaplains had worshiped during his recent illness."

The spiritual witness of Christian workers at the Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital does change lives.

A DREAM COMES TRUE

A Spanish Church has been organized in the suburbs of Chicago. This came about after prayer and labor and the efforts of the Illinois Spanish publishing department and lay workers.

Two years ago Israel Rodriguez, Gene Torres, Franco Vega and others, began a branch Sabbath School in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Torres.

Charter members of the west Chicago Spanish church are shown here with publishing directors and conference officers.

This group grew to such an extent that larger quarters were required. The group is now renting from the United Methodist Church in Northlake, Illinois, for $50 a month.

John Hayward, president of the Illinois Conference, and Ray Rouse, treasurer, officiated at the church organization on August 25, 1979. Also present was Claudio Ingletton from the Pacific Press Publishing Association.

The church was organized with 29 charter members. Currently the church has a weekly attendance of more than 50 people. The members have committed themselves to launching an evangelistic program, delivering the lessons of the Voice of Prophecy personally. They hope that at least 100 people will graduate from the Bible study plan which is called "Missionary Mailmen."

Other literature evangelists are conducting Spanish evangelism in previously unentered areas.

Let's all join hands for a finished work!

HOOSIERS GIVE SUPPORT TO INDIANA ADVANCE

Indiana Adventists are participating in a new plan to finish God's work in Indiana. Under the new logo, Hoosiers are budgeting two percent of their income for statewide programs.

A new "mission spotlight" type of program introduced to several churches has received enthusiastic support.

The program consists of more than 60 slides with narration to explain how tithe and offerings are allocated to support the church program in evangelism and education.

"If we want to change the giving habits of our members, we will have to educate them," stated Jerry Lastine, conference stewardship director.

Twelve sets of the slide program have been reproduced so that each church in the conference will be able to receive educational information on Indiana Advance this fall.

The logo of the state, the world, graduation cap and books and campfire picture the projects which are included in the Indiana Advance program.

Funds raised in this combined budget will be used to improve the academy, subsidize church school teachers, and subsidize the operations of Timber Ridge Camp at Spencer, Indiana.

More than $92,000 has been raised in 1979 in the Indiana Advance Two Percent Plus Plan and the program is only four months old. This program expands the old one percent plan in operation since 1973.

INDIANA AND ILLINOIS PATHFINDERS UNITE FOR CAMPOREE

For the first time in recent history Indiana and Illinois Pathfinders were together for the fall camporee.

Due to the cancellation of the union camporee, Jeff Wilson, Illinois youth director, and Cliff Hoffman, Indiana youth director, decided to combine the annual conference fall event.

On September 7, 375 Pathfinders and their leaders from the two states gathered at Crete, Illinois, approximately 30 miles south of Chicago.

On Sabbath, Leo Ranzolin, world Pathfinder director, visited the camporee and spoke at the worship service.

Sabbath afternoon Elder Hoffman conducted a Bible quiz involving four Pathfinders from each of the clubs represented. The Chicago North Shore Stars proved to have the most knowledgeable participants in the contest.

On Saturday night the Illinois Pathfinders presented a talent program of skits, songs and stories.

Sunday was dedicated to field events geared for every Pathfinder to participate. The events included physical activities such as sit-ups, 50-yard dash, standing broad jump, shuttle run and soft ball throw.

The camporee ended with Elders Wilson and Hoffman presenting ribbons for field-event participation.

CARING IS APPRECIATED

Pastor Ivan Christen, his wife, Marlyn, and their two sons, Scott, 11, and Monte, 7, have shared a great deal of love and concern with the Glendale church family during their few short months in Indianapolis. Bonnie Planck, communication secretary at Glendale, says that the church members were "influenced by the excitement the Christen family has for serving the Lord." They will be missed at Glendale, but "wherever they are called we are sure the Lord will bless many others through the Christen family as He has blessed us at Glendale."

MERCHANTS FOR CHRIST

Stanley and Suzanne Gross closed their dress shop on one of the busiest days of the week when they accepted the third angel's message.

This story began when Doris Smith, wife of Pastor Robert Smith, entered the Second Debut Dress

Stanley and Suzanne Gross

Store while shopping in downtown Belleville, Illinois.

She found Suzanne reading a religious book and smoking a cigarette. Mrs. Smith felt impressed to begin a conversation with Mrs. Gross because of the book she was reading.

In due time the conversation turned to Mrs. Gross's smoking habit. Suzanne did not conceal how much she disliked this craving and hoped she could overcome it. Mrs. Smith told Suzanne about the harmful effects of tobacco, then she said she would bring Pastor Smith on her next visit to the store.

When Pastor and Mrs. Smith returned they not only told Mrs. Gross about the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking, but also enrolled Mr. and Mrs. Gross in the Straight Answers Bible Series.

When Stanley and Suzanne completed the Bible lessons they decided to close their store on the Sabbath, one of the busiest days for sales.

They had an article written and printed in the Belleville newspaper stating that the Second Debut Dress Store would no longer be open on Saturday because it is the true Sabbath. They also conquered their desire for cigarettes.

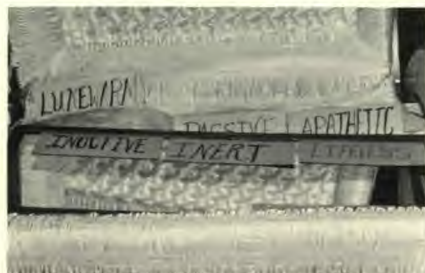

After their decision to close the store on Sabbath, they opened a half day on Friday and Sunday and noted an increase in profits.

Mr. and Mrs. Gross have continued to receive God's promises since their committment. Stan admits he would have believed himself to be out of his mind a year ago, but he is thankful that God allowed him to be where he is today.

Stanley and Suzanne's new experience did not end here. They have continued to witness diligently for Christ by enrolling other people in the Straight Answers Series. They have sponsored radio announcements and conducted Five-Day Plans to Stop Smoking in their community.

The coffin of "Mark Valentine."

THE DEATH OF "MARK VALENTINE"

The Fair Haven Adventist Youth Society of Flint, Michigan, recently held a symbolic funeral for "Mark Valentine."

However, not many were saddened to hear of Mark's death. You see, "Mark's" influence was responsible for the Adventist Youth Society being in the state that it presently found itself. His attitude and character represented traits the members of Fair Haven wanted to remove from their organization.

Along with Mark were buried his characteristics such as lifelessness, inactivity, lukewarmness, passiveness and apathy. Traits which could not be placed inside the coffin were burned.

Since this symbolic funeral, the Adventist Youth Society has become alive. Interest has been awakened and the attendance is growing.

Lay pastor Roscoe Brown traveled to Waukegan three times a week to speak at these meetings. As Elder Brown preached, Elder Julio Roscoe Brown preached and Julio Astacio translated the message at the Waukegan meetings.

Astacio, pastor of the Waukegan congregation, translated the messages into Spanish.

The church now vibrates with enthusiasm and vitality as new converts share their new-found faith.

Ruth Wallace assisted in the meetings as a Bible worker.

The meeting demonstrated that when laymen and ministers join hands to preach the Word the work will advance.

Three persons were baptized at the end of the meetings.

NEWS NOTES

- A new community services building has been purchased by Bangor members and moved to a parcel of land just east of the church. The $1,500 price of the land was waived by the seller in honor of the late Don Piper, a church member and former elder who was mainly responsible for obtaining the building.

- Seven adults have been baptized in the Kalamazoo Church as the direct result of a mailing program launched last year.

- Hard work on the part of the women of the Ironwood Church resulted in 400 cartons of clothing being packed for this fall's clothing pickup. This averaged almost 10 cartons per church member.

- The Warren Church observed its 50th anniversary on September 15 with Dr. Ivan Blazen of Andrews University's Theological Seminary as guest speaker.

- The Battle Creek Tabernacle is involved in a $200,000 renovation program. New 12-foot-wide steps will replace the present ones when the project is completed early in January. Other improvements include enlarged restrooms and a storage room under the old steps, a remodeled choir and altar area, carpeting throughout the sanctuary, and other redecorating.

- The Pathfinders of the Shelby Church recently helped do some painting at a senior citizens home.

- Five persons were baptized during September by Philip R. Colburn of the Pontiac Riverside Church.

- South Haven church members recently purchased a new building. A remodeled house has served as their church home for several years.

- A cooking school, held recently in the community services center at Boyne City, was directed by Lena Sydnor. Pat Sherwood and Irene Brannon also presented lectures. Mrs. Sherwood is a graduate of the recent nutrition instructor's training course held at Camp Au Sable.

- The Orion-Oxford Church has sponsored six Five-Day Plans to Stop Smoking during 1979. Walter Koch served as director of the programs, and Kathy Hubbard, community services director, helped organize them.

- Recent services at Vassar included an ordination service and child dedication. Lannie Ross and Dr. Reuben Eliuk were ordained as deacons. Pastor Herbert W. Lohr and church elder Clarence Brummett dedicated Brett Aaron and Stacy Ann, children of Ray and Sally Borchard; Todd, son of Phil and Susan Marcy, and Kimberly Sue, daughter of Lanny and Rosalie Ross. Phil Marcy, father of one of the children, sang a special medley of songs for the children.

- Kalamazoo's annual Ingathering tag day was held on Wednesday, September 12. Approximately 80 members participated and $1,750 was collected. Ola Herzel was given $20

CEDAR LAKE OBSERVES CENTENNIAL

Thirteen charter members perfected a church organization on July 3, 1879, by signing a covenant to "keep the commandments of God and faith of Jesus."

As a result of that act, Cedar Lake church members observed the 100th year of the church organization on July 14, 1979.

The Cedar Lake area used to be a lumbering community. Francis Nelson and his son, William Nelson, owned and operated several sawmills. They were devoted and sincere Seventh-day Adventists, and their employees knew it. Largely through their influence and witnessing a church in Cedar Lake was formed.

By 1898 several young people belonged to the group, and church leaders realized Christian education was necessary. After prayer and sacrifice, the members secured a building.

Church school began that year with Elder J. G. Lamson as principal. Emil Lauda, father of C. H. Lauda who took part in the centennial celebration, enrolled as a student.

Through the years, members considered building a church home; however, because of heavy financial obligations to the school, they tabled the idea time after time.

The church and academy worked and worshiped closely through the ensuing years. The students received inspiration and encouragement from the local church members and they in turn inspired others by sharing the responsibilities of church activities.

On January 18, 1965, the church again voted to begin raising funds for a new church building. With the leadership of Elder Donald A. Eckenroth, the church body worshiped in their completed sanctuary on April 24, 1976.

Those taking part in the July 14 centennial service stressed the theme of the commemoration and rededication, "Yesterday—Our Today—God's Tomorrow."

Present for the occasion were Charles Keymer, conference president; C. H. Lauda; Donald A. Eckenroth, former pastor; and Norman Kinney, current pastor.

Membership at Cedar Lake has reached 343, and more than 300 students are accommodated during the school year.

SOUTHFIELD JUNIOR ACADEMY CHANGES LOCATION AND NAME

Southfield Junior Academy was recently moved from 15350 Southfield Road to 27100 Avondale in Inkster and renamed Westfield Adventist Junior Academy.

The former site has been leased to the Detroit Children's Orthogenic Center. The present Westfield Adventist Junior Academy is being leased from the Cherry Hill School System.

School ran continuously at Southfield from September 1947 until June 1979. Through the years it has served the people of Detroit faithfully. It has always had a 10-grade program with the exception of the year 1961-1962, when it expanded to an 11-grade program.

A unique story has been reported: When the school opened in 1947, Lois Townsend Moillman was one of the first students enrolled in the first grade. When the school closed in June this year Mrs. Moillman's son, Devin, was a member of the 10th-grade class. He is now a student at Adelpian Academy.

Sixteen different principals have served the school since 1947. Duane Lemon, present principal, has served since 1975.

He supervised the moving of all the equipment from the old site to the new one, assisted by Alice Merrifield, office secretary.

Westfield Adventist Junior Academy continues with a K-10 program, and has added a day-care center and nursery school directed by Frieda Mattson. The hot lunch program is operated by Richard Dicks.

The spirit of Westfield Junior Academy students is excellent, and the school has been accepted well by the local community residents.

MILWAUKEE NORTHWEST CHURCH DEDICATION

The Milwaukee Northwest Church dedication services commenced with an inspiring candlelight communion celebration on Friday evening, September 14.

Sabbath morning the church overflowed with members, visitors and special guests, including Elder Robert Dale, conference president, and former pastors of the Northwest Church: Bruce Moore of Virginia, Lester Merklin of Wisconsin Academy, Warren Skilton of Texas and Fred Ellis of LaCrosse, Wisconsin.

A fellowship dinner provided by the women of the church was enjoyed by everyone.

During the afternoon program each former pastor recalled a memorable experience while he was pastor of the church. Many pastors who could not attend sent a letter of congratulations.

Elder Dale presented a short sermon and the pastor, Don Giarrusso, burned the mortgage with the assistance of Virgil Erickson and Howard Shirmbrand, members of the church.

It was a memorable occasion as Northwest members and the pastor dedicated their buildings as well as their lives to the Heavenly Father.

SIGNIFICANT LOSS CONTROL SAVINGS REALIZED

Loss control activities for Seventh-day Adventist churches, schools and other related operations in the Lake Union have resulted in more than $112,000 in actual insurance premium savings.

These savings have come as discounts from the insurance company in the amount of $81,000 for having a loss control program with another $31,000 discount for actually reducing losses.

A third savings, which is not as easy to evaluate, comes by not having the loss or having to experience the inconvenience, suffering and additional non-insured financial strain that come when losses do occur.

Loss control is a natural for Seventh-day Adventists. The philosophy of the church, the stewardship emphasis, and the general mission all demand that Adventists minimize potential loss situations.

The end result is more funds to win souls for Christ. It does not mean that we will not have losses, but the experience factor will indicate that we have done our best.

William E. Jones
Loss Control Director

WHAT'S THE MEANING OF TEMPERANCE?

What does temperance mean to you? Let me tell you what it could have meant to one person.

Recently a young woman celebrated the end of the spring semester at a state university by visiting a bar with her companions. She then joined them in taking a dare to cross the street underneath a semi-truck and trailer while it was stopped at a light.

Her friends made it safely. But she did not—her life was snuffed out beneath the wheels of the moving trailer. The slowed reactions and the impaired judgment from the drink at the bar undoubtedly contributed to the tragic end of a promising life. The undergirding strength of temperance in her character could have changed this.

How does a person adopt attitudes and principles that keep him aloof and free of these enslaving and debasing habits?

First, there must be education. Frank and open discussion in a manner that appeals to youth as well as adults is necessary. This, we believe, is done best by Listen magazine, The Winner magazine, tapes, films and other materials prepared by the General Conference temperance department, for use by conferences and churches.

Second, the character-building principles needed to do what is right and best are most easily developed during childhood and youth with the help of parents and teachers. But they need tools, and the church's temperance materials are designed to give this help.

As Christians we have something to share that keeps us clean, clear-headed, and pure in character.

May God bless you and impress you to plan so the temperance offering November 24 will be the largest ever given in our churches. This Thanksgiving time is our opportunity to thank God for the blessings of temperance by contributing to the betterment of our communities.

Francis Wernick, Vice President
General Conference

EQUAL OPPORTUNITY GUIDELINES PUBLISHED

Proposed revisions in guidelines for employers for accommodating religious observance and practice have recently been published in the Federal Register by the U.S. Government's Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (E.E.O.C.). A deadline of December 13 was established for public comment after which the commission will issue the guidelines in final form with any changes resulting from the comments.

The guideline revision was deemed necessary following the 1977 Supreme Court decision in the case of Trans World Airlines v. Hardison. This decision has resulted in extensive confusion by employers as to what obligation employers had to make in accommodating Sabbathkeepers.

The new guidelines, when implemented late in the year, should help hundreds of Adventists find accommodation for Sabbath employment problems, as well as difficulties created by conscientious objection to labor union membership.

Letters to E.E.O.C., especially from those who are having or who have had serious Sabbath or labor union problems, would be most helpful to the E.E.O.C. A brief mention of your problem, and encouragement for enacting the guidelines, will help offset some of the expected unfavorable comments from some employers.

Your letters should be addressed to: Marie D. Wilson, Executive Secretariat, Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, 2401 E Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20506.
