Thankful To Share

Thanksgiving day holds deep-rooted meaning for serious Americans. For most, it has some relationship to the time of harvest and the providences of God. With each celebration we are reminded that, just as we are created from the dust, He also causes the earth to provide our daily bread. It naturally follows that Thanksgiving is especially meaningful for those who enjoy partnership with God through productive labor. This is in keeping with His plan, "The Lord God took the man and put him in the garden of Eden to till it and care for it." When man labors in cooperation with God fruition is assured.

Any day now we expect winter's snow to fall. For some reason a few farmers have delayed harvesting. This causes me to worry and wonder. Is the problem one of too little machinery or machinery too little used? Is it a problem of too little time or time poorly utilized? If none of the above, is it a problem of too many cares or faulty priorities? I can't believe it is due to lack of interest—especially after expending so much time and effort on what has gone before. In any case, for God's providence in what has been accomplished, we are thankful.

While God is surely interested in our physical needs and wants to provide our daily bread, He is more concerned for the spiritual harvest of earth. In this effort, as with a diligent farmer, God again depends on our cooperation. We are thankful for the many souls already won for the Lord this year, but what about the unfinished harvest? Thankfully there has never been a better response from those who want to be counted as "sheaves" for the Lord, but as Jesus said, "The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of harvest, that he would send forth labourers into his harvest." Luke 10:2. In increasing numbers, members of the Lake Union family are responding to God's call for reapers, and for this we are grateful.

The greatest want of the world today is not for food. God knows this need and grieves for the people of Cambodia and others in want. The greatest need is not for more oil or physical resources. These things we can either minimize or do without. The urgent need is for the Bread of Heaven which in turn fits us for eternal life and creates in the hearts of those who receive a desire to share both spiritual and physical bread with those who have not!

As we are thankful to receive, let us also be thankful to share.

Right and center: The occupational therapy department of several decades ago had the same goal as today's department (below): rehabilitation.

O.T.—Today and Yesterday

by Larry Yeagley

OCCUPATIONAL therapy is not a new concept at Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital. In fact, if you were to browse through the photo files from the Sanitarium in the early 1900's, you would chuckle at the sophisticated women making quilts. They were all dressed in clothes suited for a gala ball. The room they used was a well-lighted area resembling a solarium. By the looks of just-so hairdos, it is doubtful much relaxation was going on.

A visit to today's occupational therapy department at Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital shows a real contrast to those early days. Patients come in casual clothes. Slippers are worn as much as shoes. Nothing about the atmosphere would make a person feel stiff and formal.

In one room there is a long table where patients work on ceramics. Coin banks shaped like a big half dollar, cookie jars that look like strawberries and roosters, mustache cups, candy dishes, and fancy spoonholders are in various stages of being completed. Now and then a patient tries his hand at making an "original" on the potter's wheel. Decoupage—a craft in which pictures are fastened to wood and then varnished—is another favorite occupation.

Memories of yesteryear come back as patients learn needlecrafts that their grandmothers learned from their parents. The tapping of hammers can be heard from one corner of the main workroom. Here leather is being cut and tooled into wallets, belts, sunshields and purses. Needlepoint and rug hooking begin in the craft room and projects are taken to the wards where patients continue to work in their leisure time. A patient who enjoys weaving makes the loom respond to the touch of hands and feet.

In the relaxed environment of occupational therapy the hospital staff members talk with the patients about little things and about the eternal values. Some patients point to their time in the occupational therapy department as the transition from illness to health.

The long dresses are gone. The well-waxed mustaches are gone. The world's wealthy and famous no longer sit around quilting tables, but healing is still the goal in the occupational therapy department of Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital.

Our Daily Bread

by Opal Hoover Young

What's in a loaf of bread?

Beauty and Toil. The beauty of seedtime and harvest. Golden summer sun and refreshing rain. Patterns of wind and cloud shadows across fields of ripening grain. Serenity of far reaches of prairie land, with the song of a lark overhead. Sound of threshing and gusts of flying chaff. Triumph of harvest.

What's in a loaf of bread?

Survival and Communion. "All life is moving to one measure—Daily Bread," wrote poet Wilford Gibson. Bread—the common denominator that binds all the peoples of the world in one communion of interest—survival. An old 18th-century "grace before meat," known as the Selkirk grace, describes the varied food status of people everywhere:

"Some hae meat and canna eat,
And some wad eat that want it;
But we hae meat, and we can eat,
And sae the Lord be thankit."

Give us all, Lord, our daily bread, and grant also that we be able to eat thereof.

What's in a loaf of bread?

Survival and More. For there's a Bread that IS life. The loaf is a symbol of Him who said, "I am the bread of life; he that cometh to me shall never hunger. Your fathers did eat manna in the wilderness, and are dead. This is the bread which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die."

There's a hungry world out there. A world hungry not only for the staff of life which means temporal existence, but also for the Bread of eternal life. "If any man eat of this bread," Christ assured his listeners on the shore of Galilee, "he shall live forever."

At this Thanksgiving season, while we thank God that we have bread and can also eat, we need to seek a larger vision of concern. True thanksgiving implies that we deal our bread to the hungry, sharing both the loaf of temporal desire and the bread of our hope in Christ Jesus.

So, to the Selkirk grace we might add: Father, as you have broken this living Bread for us through the gift of your Son, we, too, would give others to taste of this heavenly manna. We would share the Bread that to eat thereof is life eternal. Help us to cast our bread upon the waters of the world's need that it may return in a harvest of souls for Your kingdom. Amen.

UNION LITERATURE EVANGELIST INSTITUTE

Catalysts in the Community

by E. N. Wendth

THREE literature evangelists received top honors at the closing session of the recent annual Lake Union Literature Evangelist Institute held on the campus of Wisconsin Academy.

Leona Jaecks and Don

McCullough were chosen Literature Evangelists of the Year.

Leona Jaecks of Wausau, Wisconsin, began her canvassing career when she and her husband, Lawrence, started working as a team in 1964. After his death in 1973 she continued to carry on the work they started. Since then she has sold more than $180,000 worth of Adventist literature. She knows of 43 baptisms which have taken place as the result of her work.

Don McCullough, of Kendalville, Indiana, had a lifelong dream of becoming a successful farmer. Then one day he realized that there were more important seeds to be sown, and he gave up a successful business to sow seeds of truth.

He reports that, since then, the Lord has provided him with a better living and a much more rewarding harvest. Several people have joined the church because of his work, and Mr. McCullough is always among the top literature evangelists in sales and baptisms.

Paul Adams of Lowell, Michigan, received an award for his record sales of $6,001, which topped all other reports throughout the union for the special 11-day campaign just before the institute.

These and other awards and recognitions were made Saturday night after a full week of planning and participation by the union and local conference leaders, and five days of instruction, fellowship and recreation for the literature evangelists.

Among the special guest speakers for the institute was C. E. Bradford, the General Conference vice president for the North American Division. Elder Bradford reminded the group that "In almost every land where the work of the church was established, a literature evangelist led the way." He urged each worker to be a "catalyst" in his home church. "One person praying and working for a revival can bring it about," he pointed out.

Other speakers were Duncan Eva, General Conference vice president, and C. M. Willis, an associate director of the General Conference publishing department.

The Review and Herald was represented by Robert Kinney of the book department and Robert S. Smith of the periodical department.

Dr. W.G.C. Murdoch of Andrews University gave practical spiritual help to the literature evangelists. His wife, Dr. Ruth Murdoch, presented a special series of studies to the women.

Lowell L. Bock and Robert Carter, president and secretary of the Lake Union Conference, respectively, also participated.

The entire institute was directed by John Bernet and his associate, George Dronen, assisted by local conference leaders. Reginald Froot of the Home Health Education Service also participated.

It Is Written Begins New Season

by Jiggs Gallagher

A bright, new season of It Is Written programs is now underway, heralding many hours of inspiration. It Is Written produces at least 36 all-new half-hour programs each year.

Here are highlights from some of the new programs:

"Jonestown" has become a code word for organized insanity since the tragic events in Guyana one year ago. In "Only A Whim Away," causes behind the blind loyalty to Jim Jones are revealed, giving insight into the very origin of evil.

On "The Extravagant Builders," Pastor George Vandeman takes viewers on an armchair tour through some of history's most lavish mansions, including footage of William Randolph Hearst's castle at San Simeon, California. After seeing the best of what earth can offer, you'll learn about a future country where you can own your own mansion.

Worried about big government? Find out "What Makes Big Brother Tick" as Pastor Vandeman explores Bible commentary on the threat of increasing government control and loss of religious liberty.

It Is Written holds a mirror to itself and other religious TV programs in "The Electronic Gospel." The proper role of television ministries in the Christian's life is examined.

"Package Deals" will surprise you. The interesting springboard leads you to the results of the Holy Spirit in your life. The "fruits of the Spirit" are not only love, joy and peace. They're a "package deal" and must include such substantial virtues as learning and obedience.

"If God Reads Your Mind" explores the question of why we need to pray if God knows our needs already. You'll find penetrating insights into the power—and results—of prayer.

"First You Look" outlines the simple steps to becoming a Christian.

It Is Written programs appear on different weeks in different cities. Check your local listings for particular episodes. And invite some friends to watch—if you do, they might some day write letters like these to It Is Written:

"I really enjoy your program very much. In fact, I skip Sunday school and only attend church, because I get so much more out of your sermon. The books you send me do double duty, as my friends love to read them."—G. C., Michigan.

"The books which you so generously offered led to a request for Bible studies, which we completed. This eventually led to baptism. In appreciation for all the blessings we feel have been bestowed upon us—commencing with the It Is Written program—we requested to be made part of the telephone answering staff."—D. & A.K., Michigan.

"[As a result of the It Is Written telecast my future wife and I joined the Adventist Church.] We have used many of your booklets (especially Impersonation Game) in reaching people and will continue to support your fabulous ministry."—M.B., Illinois.

"I have been listening to you every Sunday and I must say you have revealed things I've never known before. I have read my Bible and gone to church but never have I learned as much as I have from you. For this I am thankful."—M.B., Wisconsin.

"Although I have been a Protestant church member all my life, I have learned more from your TV broadcasts than I ever knew before."—V.G., Indiana.

HINSDALE HOSPITAL OBSERVES 75TH ANNIVERSARY

by Donna Willard

At a rededication service on Sabbath afternoon, October 6, at the grave sites of Drs. David and Mary Paulson, co-founders of the hospital in 1904, David Paulson, great-grandnephew of Dr. David, and Willis Graves, hospital chaplain, look at Dr. David's personal Bible.

HOSPITAL tours, a nursing alumni brunch, open house for the health education center, and a commemorative tree-planting ceremony were among the special events in celebration of Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital's 75th anniversary.

From September 30 through October 7, the attention of employees, former employees and community residents was directed toward the hospital's heritage.

The editor of the local Hinsdale newspaper, the Doings, saluted the hospital with these words: "Hinsdale is fortunate, along with its neighbors, to have in its midst a health-care facility unequaled for its dedication to human life. Its personnel act with Christian love in care of patients."

Donna Willard is a public relations assistant at Hinsdale Hospital, Hinsdale, Illinois.

A sugar maple, symbolic of 75 trees to be given by the hospital to the village of Hinsdale in the spring, was planted on the hospital's south lawn on Sunday, October 7.

Babies born during the anniversary week were given shirts imprinted with the words, "I'm a Hinsdale San baby." Pictured are Rickey Johnson and his mother, Vanessa, of Woodridge, Illinois.

Patrons of the hospital cafeteria on Wednesday, October 3, received a free piece of the "San's" birthday cake and selected items on the menu at 1904 prices. Cutting the hospital-shaped cake are, from left, Donald Hanson, executive vice president; Irwin Hansen, president, and Kathryn Sieberman, vice president.

Former administrators who came to celebrate the hospital's 75th anniversary are pictured with the current president, Irwin C. Hansen, left. They are William Wilson, 1970-76; Mardian Blair, 1963-70; A. C. Larson, 1954-63, and Robert H. Hervig, 1948-50.

Visitors toured physical therapy, radiation oncology, the laboratory and the new birthing room.

ENROLLMENT TOPS PREVIOUS RECORDS

Andrews University has completed the largest registration in its history, according to figures released by President Joseph G. Smoot.

With 1,817 students in the College of Arts and Sciences and 270 in the College of Technology, undergraduate enrollment totals 2,087.

An additional 525 students in the School of Graduate Studies and 371 in the Theological Seminary bring the campus enrollment to 2,983.

"In an era when enrollments in some private and public institutions of higher learning are declining, we are pleased to see Andrews University continue to grow," said Dr. Smoot. "This registration shows a two-percent increase over last fall's enrollment and reflects not only an increase of students registered, but also an equal rise in the total number of credits for which these students are enrolled."

The figures reported for the College of Technology, School of Graduate Studies and combined undergraduate colleges are new records, Dr. Smoot said.

He added that 24 Andrews students are involved in special education projects around the world, while another 213 are enrolled in university programs offered at affiliated foreign colleges.

A grand total of 3,220 students are involved in educational activities at Andrews and in extension programs this fall.

The cumulative number of students served by the university during the entire previous academic year, both on campus and in extension schools, was 5,414.

Figures compiled by the office of institutional research show that there are 46 occupational education students, 586 freshmen, and 523 sophomores registered, with 413 juniors and 419 seniors enrolled for fall classes.

Another 100 students are listed in Andrews as a doctoral degree-granting institution. The association first accredited the school in 1922 and granted full approval for the master's degree level in 1968. The university received preliminary approval to initiate doctoral programs in 1972. According to President Joseph G. Smoot, the recent accreditation "gives full recognition to Andrews as a doctoral-granting university for the programs now offered."

Ralph M. Coupland, instructor of vocal and choral music at Andrews University since 1972, has recently been named executive director of the university's alumni association. A native of British Columbia, Mr. Coupland holds two master's degrees from Andrews and is currently a candidate for a doctor of education degree in educational administration from the university. His wife, the former Astri Hestdalen, is a physical therapist employed by the Berrien County Intermediate School District.

CAMPUS HIGHLIGHTS

● The North Central Association of Colleges and Schools has voted to grant 10-year accreditation to

● Alice Marsh and Patricia Mutch, Ph.D., of the home economics department recently completed two lay nutrition workshops, graduating 48 participants. One workshop was held at Andrews and the other, co-sponsored by the Michigan Conference, at Camp Au Sable Youth Camp.

● Andrews Academy celebrated Brotherhood Week, from November 5 to 9, which included activities concerning the foods, flags and games of other nations. The events, coordinated by Thomas Baker, instructor of German and English at the school, also featured a discussion about Nazi mistreatment of Jews during World War II.

ALLENS LEAVE ILLINOIS

This is part of an open letter written by Elder and Mrs. Eston Allen to the church members in the Illinois Conference. "Betty and I will be leaving Illinois to take up responsibilities, as of October 1, in the Upper Columbia Conference in Spokane, Washington, where I will be the Sabbath School secretary. Our 28 years in evangelism, the Bible school, communications, religious liberty, Sabbath School, and as a pastor, have been wonderful. We will never forget your friendship and love for us. You have helped make our ministry a success. Continue to help strengthen the Sabbath School work in your church. Give the same loyal support to your new leader. Pray for us, as we shall pray for your success in Illinois."

VEGETARIAN RESTAURANT UPDATE

For more than four years Ellen White's council to establish vegetarian restaurants in larger cities has been followed by laymen in the Chicago area.

The restaurant idea has expanded from the original center at 3339 North Halsted to the addition of the New Earth Vegetarian Restaurant at 211 West Front Street in Wheaton, Illinois.

The new manager of the Wheaton Restaurant, Scott Williams, is a graduate of Purdue University with a degree in sociology. Scott was employed as a buyer for a department store when he first visited the Wheaton Restaurant.

He became interested in the Sabbath and began reading every book he could find by Ellen G. White. He now attends the Glen Ellyn Church faithfully.

Scott's enthusiasm led him to resign his position at the department store and join the witnessing force at the Wheaton restaurant. He is very enthusiastic about making the New Earth more of an evangelistic center.

"I know this is where God wants me to be," says Scott.

Some of his plans for the restaurant ministry include recruiting additional workers, developing a garden and canning program to provide home-grown fruits and vegetables for restaurant use, cooking classes and Bible studies.

"There is great potential in this outreach. Ellen White encourages us to provide for the cities," said Scott. "We know God will continue making it all possible."

ABC OPEN HOUSE HONORS CHILDREN

In honor of the Year of the Child, the Illinois ABC added a "friendly farmyard"—a 20-by-34-foot yard full of 35 animals and fowl—to their open house events this year. There were goats, sheep, geese, donkeys, ponies and a calf, all tame enough for children to pet and feed. Many children took a pony ride.

HACKETT BECOMES C.P.A.

A conference treasurer does not have much time to prepare for a Certified Public Accountant examination. But Arlind Hackett spent every Saturday night and Sunday for several months preparing for the exam. Mr. Hackett took a review course for the exam which is only given twice a year in each state. The 20-hour test is given during a three-day period. Mr. Hackett passed and received his certificate from the state of West Virginia where he had originally applied. When he was asked why being a C.P.A. was important to him he said, "It gives church members confidence to know there are competent people dealing with the funds of the church." The conference staff is proud of Arlind's achievement and know the Lord will bless his work for the church.

CICERO SCHOOL ADDS NEW ROOM

Cicero Church School opened its doors this year to the sound of hammers and saws ringing throughout the building as the construction of a new multipurpose and Pathfinder room nears completion.

With an enrollment of 80 children this year, the room was needed to house extra classes and activities for school functions.

Paul Johnson's Construction Firm of Alexandria, Indiana, is working to complete the building before bad weather sets in.

Four full-time teachers, Milo Payne, principal; Mark Sargeant; Dorothy Noonan, and Valerie Crabtree, and Naomi Trubey, a part-time teacher, carry on the school program which began in 1921 when Indiana Academy was established at Cicero.

GREENFIELD MAKES IMPROVEMENTS

The Greenfield church members have been involved in a church improvement program. Large letters fastened to the building identify it as a Seventh-day Adventist Church. A new bell tower was recently erected. The bell was salvaged from the old one-room building formerly used for worship services. Each Sabbath it once again summons the hour for services to begin. A line of telephone-pole posts has been placed around the church lawn to prevent vehicles from driving on it. The church interior will soon be painted.

EIGHT BAPTIZED AFTER RECEIVING STRAIGHT ANSWERS

DETROIT CENTER CONDUCTS VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL

Those who belong to the Lord's kingdom must work earnestly for the saving of souls. "Christ's interests are the first and the highest of all interests. He has a property in this world that He wishes secured, saved for His everlasting kingdom."—Colporteur Ministry, p. 37.

With these thoughts in mind members of the Detroit Center Church went forth, brochures in hand, inviting youngsters to attend Vacation Bible School.

Several people asked the members, "What took you so long? We thought that you were not going to have it this year." These words of encouragement proved to be a source of inspiration to the members as they continued from door to door.

On the first day of Vacation Bible School 81 children attended, and by Thursday of that week there were 104 present. By Friday the craft supplies were depleted!

The junior department had the highest enrollment, 41 students; the primary department's enrollment was 38, and the kindergarten enrollment was 25. All the departments had 95 percent of their enrolled students in attendance daily.

Of the youngsters attending Vacation Bible School 90 percent were non-Adventists. The majority of these students didn't attend any church. Therefore they had to be instructed in the proper attitude for worship.

They failed to understand why they couldn't do or say certain things in church, but as the staff continued to solicit the aid of Jesus, the Holy Spirit impressed the children's hearts. By the time Vacation Bible School was over, a definite change had been made.

The Pathfinder Club donated scraps of fabric to the kindergarten department to make stuffed animals. Pastor J. P. Lewis made all the molds. The craft department received many compliments for the beautiful and unusual work.

During Vacation Bible School there were two days of heavy rainfall, but that did not keep the youngsters from coming. They arrived wet but on time.

After Vacation Bible School was dismissed each day, the staff found it difficult to send the children home. They liked to stay outside the church until the staff left.

This exciting Vacation Bible School program, directed by Wessie Henderson, was conducted from August 13 through 25, from 5:30 to 8:15 P.M.

The first portion of the closing exercise was presented by the Pathfinders and the second part by the Vacation Bible School students.

During the second phase of the program, Pastor Lewis spoke about the worldwide work of the Seventh-day Adventist Church. Slides were shown of the 1978 Pathfinder Camporee. After this program six children joined the Pathfinders and others expressed the desire to join.

Teenagers always express the desire to attend the Detroit Center Vacation Bible School. Last year there was a youth class, and this year the oldest young person in attendance was 16.

Sometimes people ask whether Vacation Bible School is worthwhile. The Detroit Center Church can respond by saying, "Yes." There will be many people in the kingdom who will trace their first encounter with Jesus to Vacation Bible School.

NEWS NOTES:

● Several Pathfinder clubs across the state are planning active witnessing programs. The Coldwater Colts had a work bee at the welfare center, the Holly Herons are adopting a grandparent this year, the Gladwin Gophers distributed radio logs for the Voice of Prophecy and Unionville Pathfinders shared a special issue of the Review and Herald to get acquainted with their neighbors.

● Alpena members expanded their activities by having a Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking in Atlanta. They also had a fair booth there and won a third-prize ribbon. Atlanta is in Montmorency County where there is no organized Adventist church.

● "The little red building at the end of the street," the Adventist church school in St. Johns, received publicity recently when a staff writer for the Clinton County News did a feature story on the school and its teacher, Larry Lighthall.

● A slide presentation of community services work was presented recently by Pastor and Mrs. Phil Hopkins to the Sault Ste. Marie Council on Social Services. Mrs. Hopkins is the director of Adventist community services there and gave a report on local work also.

● The Troy Church observed its 10th anniversary on October 20. The church membership was located in three different places before settling in the present $1,000,000 complex. Remaining charter members of the Ferndale Church, which moved to Troy, are Albert and Vera Evans, and Earl and Margaret Denslow. Membership has grown from 53 in 1926 to 333 members today.

● A choir of 80 Detroit area members presented a sacred concert November 17 for the Detroit area. Guest soloist Charles Keymer sang "Sanctus" by Gounod. Churches represented were: Metropolitan, Oakwood, Troy and Warren.

● A sunshine band of youth and Pathfinders from Troy witnessed recently to patients at the Bloomfield Nursing Home.

● A youth leaders convention convened recently at Camp Au Sable. Workshops included Sabbath School, creative Sabbath afternoon activities, how to conduct Bible studies and general outreach programs of the department. Des Cummings Jr. and his seminary class in youth leadership presided over the discussions.

● Office secretaries in the Michigan Conference office honored their "bosses" on October 15 by serving them a lasagna and salad buffet. According to one secretary who helped plan the luncheon, "We often fail to let our co-workers know we appreciate the fellowship of a Christian office. This year we decided to show it in a more material way." Most of the men arranged their busy schedules to be present for the noontime treat.

EVANGELISTIC PROGRESS BEING MADE IN MICHIGAN

Evangelistic meetings across the state are resulting in many baptisms. Myron Voegele, director of the ministerial department, says this is only the beginning of the evangelistic meetings and greater increases are expected during the fourth quarter of the year.

Meetings held at Cadillac and Tawas by Robert Wiese and James Danforth have resulted in about 35 baptisms so far. The Cadillac Church has shown a gain of 21 members since last year.

Dean Burns, pastor at Paw Paw and Lawrence, is presenting his own series of meetings at Paw Paw. A baptism is being planned for the near future.

Robert Collar has just closed evangelistic meetings at Marshall. Six people were baptized and more are studying for baptism.

East Detroit, Troy and Warren church members sponsored Daniel seminars in their areas. Rosalie Lee, Bible instructor and pastor's wife in East Detroit, began a Daniel seminar with women who attended her weight-control classes last summer. She reports increased interest.

Paul Penno Jr. plans a Revelation seminar with the same people when they finish Daniel. A non-Adventist pastor and six of that pastor's members are attending and taping the meetings at Warren.

Adrian meetings by Pastor Al Parker have created a lot of interest and a baptism is planned soon.

The Leighton Holley evangelistic series closed October 20. Fifteen persons were baptized and several more are studying. One woman, who brought a friend with her to a previous Daniel seminar, was not baptized, but her friend was.

Evangelistic meetings are now underway in Lansing. Leighton Holley and Jack Nash are conducting these meetings in the church and the attendance has been very good.

The Arnold Kraner team started early in October. About 15 have been baptized so far. One young man, who traveled 40 miles every night to Wilson where the meetings are being held, prayed that the Lord would show him something new in his Christian experience.

He picked up a young hitchhiker who happened to be from Oakhaven. The hitchhiker shared the Bible doctrine of the Sabbath, and the young man is preparing for baptism.

A "Come Alive" health series, conducted by Dr. Arthur Weaver, Arnold Swanson and Norman Yeager in Troy, has resulted in a Sabbath morning Bible study class for at least six of the participants.

Spanish members have added nine persons to their group through baptism.

Sleigh rides through the newly fallen snow provide an ever-changing picture on roads throughout the camp.

PLANS ANNOUNCED FOR WINTER CAMP

Paul Cannon, who is director of "The Bridge," a home for troubled youth, and a noted pastor in the Kentucky-Tennessee conference, will be on hand from December 26 to January 1 to help set the spiritual tone of the annual winter camp.

Sponsored by the Michigan Conference youth department, the camp begins December 20 and will continue until New Year's day. Les Rilea, youth director, and his staff are busy planning what promises to be the most exciting camp yet.

Cooks at the camp plan a beautifully decorated Christmas night banquet for those who arrive at camp before that day.

New cross-country skis have been secured and will be available for the campers' use, said Elder Rilea.

For those who prefer indoor activities, Russ Durham and his wife, Cindy, will teach a ceramics class. They have several new molds this year.

January 24 to 27, 1980, the Michigan Adventist snow outing provides opportunity for those who cannot make it to winter camp at Au Sable. The camp is located in northern Michigan near Grayling and offers access to some of the best ski slopes in Michigan.

Charges per day for both winter events are: adults, $10; students, $7.50, and preschoolers $5. A family discount is allowed, after the fourth person in one family, as follows: student, $6, and preschooler, $4.50.

If you provide your own housing and food, special rates are available. Reservations may be made to the Michigan Conference Youth Department, Box 19009, Lansing, MI 48901. Telephone: (517) 485-2226.

Roy Curtis of the Belgreen Church was one of two men who completed the course. Here he explains his method of preparing an eggplant dish. His wife served as his assistant.

NUTRITION INSTRUCTORS WORKSHOP AT AU SABLE

Thirty-three Adventists interested in a greater outreach in health evangelism participated in a Home Instructors Nutrition Workshop at Au Sable early in September.

The workshop was sponsored by the community services and health services departments of the conference, which underwrote a large portion of the expenses.

Area community services federations and local churches financed the balance of the delegate expenses.

The five-day program was directed by Dr. Patricia Mutch and Alice Marsh of Andrews University, with Natalie Weaver of the greater Detroit area assisting.

Douglas Matacio, pastor of the Grayling Church, conducted morning worships, and Arthur Covell of the conference community services department participated in the opening of the workshop.

Ernest Wendth, director of health services, was present for the graduation service when certificates for successful completion of the course were presented.

Each delegate has been encouraged to hold cooking classes in his local area in the near future and to help with this popular health outreach on a continuing basis.

Contact your local federation president to find out who represented your district at the workshop.

NEW SLIDE PROGRAM ON HEALTH AVAILABLE

The conference department of health services has received a new slide/tape program for use in cooking schools or other health education classes.

This new program, produced by the St. Helena Hospital and Health Center of California, is titled "Vegetables All Around." It compares the value of eating vegetables to eating meat.

The audiovisual health program comes in its own carousel tray with a tape cassette and script, and can be obtained from the conference department of health services for a $1.25 rental fee.

Write or phone the office to reserve it for your needs. All films and tapes from the conference health department should be scheduled at least a month, and preferably six weeks, in advance.

Participants in the 5-Day Plan enjoyed a vegetarian banquet.

5-DAY PLAN HELD AT CLEAR LAKE

A victory banquet on Thursday night, August 9, concluded the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking held in Clear Lake from July 23 through 27.

Seven of the nine participants in the plan overcame the smoking habit. Several enthusiastically asked when the next Five-Day Plan would be held, because they wanted to urge friends and relatives to attend.

One man wondered what to do with an unopened carton of cigarettes at home. He decided to take them back to the store where he had purchased them. Two bystanders overheard him tell the store manager how he had been able to quit smoking and they expressed interest in attending the next Five-Day Plan.

All of the participants in the plan attended the vegetarian banquet. Several took home recipes for the meatless entrees.

The Clear Lake Church hopes to conduct a vegetarian cooking school in the near future, and plans to hold another Five-Day Plan next month in a nearby town.

CLEARWATER LAKE FLOAT WINS SECOND PLACE

This float, entered by the Clearwater Lake Church, was awarded a second place in the Independence Day parade at Three Lakes, Wisconsin. The painting and lettering were done by church member Donna Bruette. Julie Burzinski rode on the float, and Mr. and Mrs. Joey LaFata and Donna Bruette towed it. A "Happy Birthday America!" float displaying a large red, white and blue cake with streamers and giant firecracker-candles was prepared and entered by the Stebbeds families of the church. Both floats were also entered in the parade at Eagle River, and both received favorable mention on the Eagle River radio station.

Wisconsin Academy are happy to have six college task-force workers on campus this year.

Mike Koerting, who is working in the boys' dorm, studied at Walla Walla College and Andrews University, and plans to continue his preparation next year to teach history and to be a boys' dean.

Leon Bunker of Green Bay, Wisconsin, has spent one year at Andrews University, and one year as a student missionary in Kwang Ju, Korea. Next year he will continue his studies in behavioral science and religion. He is working in the boys' dormitory.

Ken Allen is assisting Lester Merklin, Wisconsin Academy pastor, in directing youth outreach activities. Ken has studied two years at Walla Walla College and is planning to major in youth ministries and theology.

Diana Schmidt of Hayward, California, has been studying at Pacific Union College. Her major is social service. She is working in the girls' dorm.

Cheryl Lee has studied at Walla Walla College and plans to continue her studies in physical education next year. She is working in the girls' dorm.

Jeanne Klopfenstein of Mount Shasta, California, has studied at Pacific Union College, majoring in recreation. Her responsibilities are in the girls' dorm.

Huguenots. In exploring their struggle for religious freedom, she finds the moral resolve that leads her to spiritual renewal.

The same young girl plays both the modern and ancient Marie. Viewers can't help but marvel at the fortitude of Marie Durand who was imprisoned at 15 and spent 38 years inside the 18-foot-thick stone walls of the Tower of Constance.

"What makes the movie particularly effective," says Roland Hegstad, editor of Liberty magazine, "is the semi-documentary approach that makes history live again through the experience of a modern 15-year-old. The film left me with a lump in my throat and a renewed appreciation of the cost of resistance to evil."

After viewing the film a parent commented, "This film is better than a sermon for seeking a commitment to Christ."
