Cheri Willis works in an office in Lansing, Michigan, with Ailene Zimmerman, a member of the East Lansing Church, who has quietly and faithfully witnessed to her for three years. Cheri, a member of another church, practiced her faith sincerely, but she sensed a need she felt her church could not fill.

Cheri and Ailene became good friends and had many conversations in which Cheri expressed her desire to know her Bible better. Occasionally Ailene gave her books, tracts and papers to read—always gently encouraging her to study the Bible for herself to find out what it said. Cheri introduced Ailene to her husband, Jack, and a bond of friendship grew between the two families.

One day Cheri came to Ailene and said, "I have decided I want to do some serious Bible study, and I want you to give me a name and phone number of someone who will help me." Ailene made arrangements for Viv Shull, first elder of the East Lansing Church, and his wife, Virginia, to begin Bible studies with Cheri.

During the second Bible study, Cheri said, "I would like to know what the 'mark of the beast' is." Sometimes answers to questions such as this should be delayed, and the student is asked to wait for further study, but the Holy Spirit impressed Viv to answer her question then. After the study, she didn't say much; Viv and Virginia wondered if she would return the next week. She did, and the studies continued.

About this time, Evangelist Leighton Holley began a series of meetings in Lansing. Viv asked Cheri if she would like to attend. She agreed to go. Evangelist Holley presented a beautiful, Christ-centered sermon on baptism, and Cheri remarked at the end of the service, "It just gets better and better." She didn't want to miss another sermon and arranged her schedule to attend every meeting until the end of the series. Later, when she discovered she would have to miss a meeting, she bought the recording and printed copy of the sermon she could not hear, and purchased other sermon tapes for further study.

When the sermon, "Who is the Beast?" was scheduled, Satan made his move to keep Cheri at home that evening. She phoned Viv and Virginia to say she was too tired to go. But just as the Shulls were leaving for the meeting, Cheri called back and said she had decided to go. Pastor Holley's sermon caused Cheri to think deeply and earnestly about her relationship to God. She responded to the evangelist's invitation to accept all the teachings of Jesus.

On December 8 Cheri was baptized in a service at the end of the evangelistic series. She said, "I have learned so much in a few short months, and the peace that has come into my life is wonderful." Since then she has shared her faith with everyone she has met.

The week after Cheri's baptism Pastor Colin Rampton of the East Lansing Church conducted a dedication service for her daughter, Kari, and on January 3 Kari transferred to the Lansing church school.

Cheri's husband, Jack, had faithfully attended church and the Holley evangelistic meetings. The week after Cheri's baptism, Jack made his decision to give his life completely to the Lord; he was baptized on December 22.

THE HEART OF THE LAKE UNION

Adolph's Conversion

by Kae Jaworski

In retrospect, Adolph Praper believes that an unusual chain of events led to his conversion and baptism into the Seventh-day Adventist faith.

During the 1950's, as a political prisoner in Eastern Europe, he met a man who would influence his future: a Seventh-day Adventist.

Adolph found his Adventist friend to be "different" than the other prisoners. This man's Christian conduct and especially his dietary habits intrigued Adolph. Strict prison regulations prevented the aged Adventist from witnessing, but his wonderful Christian example whetted Adolph's appetite for more teachings. Adolph was unaware that the Holy Spirit had planted a seed of truth which would take years to germinate in his heart and life.

Shortly after his release from prison, Adolph immigrated to Austria. On the same day and at almost the same hour he was crossing the border, a young Seventh-day Adventist woman named Olga was also entering Austria.

Adolph and Olga were both sent to an immigration camp in Vienna. An event occurred one Sunday evening that would change their lives. Olga was trying to explain something to an official, but was getting nowhere because she could not speak German. Adolph was standing nearby and offered to interpret for her. Olga accepted his kind offer and later they became good friends.

The couple were detained at the camp for one year. They fell in love, and upon arrival in the United States they were married. They chose Chicago as their home and have lived there since 1963.

In Europe Adolph had earned an engineering degree, so he had no trouble finding employment in

Chicago. He worked for many years as a tool-and-die worker before opening his own business. By working long hours, seven days a week, Adolph was able to insure financial success.

Several times through the years Adolph confided to Olga that one day he, too, would join the Adventist Church. The years passed quickly and as her husband's business prospered, a knowing fear entered Olga's mind. Maybe Adolph didn't feel a need for God now that he was doing so well financially.

Adolph's health began to fail; he was unable to work at all. Now he had long weeks of recuperating to reflect on his future and his spiritual condition.

In October 1978 the James Cress Prophecy Lectures came to Chicago's North Shore Church. Olga was eager to attend the meetings and asked Adolph if he would go along. To her surprise, he consented.

The Prapers attended every meeting. Olga prayed for many years for her husband to become a Seventh-day Adventist. Now she prayed more fervently for a miracle. A few weeks later Olga's prayers were answered. With tears in her eyes and joy in her heart, she saw her husband baptized by Pastor Stanley W. Cottrell.

Two ministers had a profound influence on Adolph's life. Clarence Gruesbeck and S. W. Cottrell were especially kind to Mr. Praper on many occasions and Adolph never forgot this. He noted that Pastor Cottrell seemed pleased and happy when he occasionally attended church and at the Cress meetings, but Pastor Cottrell never used any pressure or pushed Adolph to take his stand. Adolph considers it a blessing to work today as a deacon in the North Shore Church.

A loving wife, a concerned daughter, an Adventist prisoner and two dedicated ministers influenced Adolph to accept the Adventist message.

Kae Jaworski is communication secretary of the North Shore Church in Chicago, Illinois.

What's Happening to Religious Liberty?

by Robert W. Nixon

What's happening in the world of religious liberty?

Some church leaders are becoming concerned. Attorney William P. Thompson, Stated Clerk of the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, recently shared his views with the First Joint Press-Church Conference on First Amendment Rights.

"There is a pervasive pattern of action of government at all levels which constitutes a serious threat to the free exercise of religion," Mr. Thompson said. "It is the nature of all religious faith to appear strange, irrational or fraudulent to those who do not accept it. We must protect the foolishness of faith from the power of government."

Though he believes "religious groups do not have the right to wholesale exemption from reasonable laws," Mr. Thompson pointed out several key areas of church-state confrontation:

✓ The United States Department of Labor has ruled that church schools must pay unemployment tax for their teachers even though the law appears to exempt them. Recently a Federal District Court in California ruled that church schools do not have to pay the tax, but that decision probably will be appealed by the government.

Attorney Robert W. Nixon is an associate director of the General Conference department of public affairs and religious liberty.

✓ For two months early last year, a court-appointed receiver, installed at the request of the Attorney General of the State of California, ran the Worldwide Church of God. Though several dissident members alleged improper use of church funds and property, the church argues that the state should bring criminal charges of fraud if it has evidence of such.

Among other things, the Attorney General argues that the Worldwide Church of God is a public trust subject to the Attorney General's unlimited supervision, scrutiny and control, that all church records are public records, and that church officers may be replaced by the state.

By the end of October, thirteen denominations and other organizations interested in religious liberty had asked the California Supreme Court to review the case.

✓ The Internal Revenue Service requires that certain organizations file informational tax returns, but "integrated auxiliaries" of churches are exempted. I.R.S. regulations, however, say that a church school, for example, is not an "integrated auxiliary" of the church because its principal activity is education.

Many religious groups feel the government is wrong in characterizing their parochial schools as principally educational and not religious.

✓ In June the United States Supreme Court ruled that state courts can use "neutral principles" of law to settle church property disputes. The Court said that if a court has to consider religious documents, it must do so in "purely secular terms."

The dissenting Supreme Court justices predict the decision is likely "to invite intrusion into church polity forbidden by the First Amendment."

✓ Several old-age homes run by corporations affiliated with the United Methodist Church have gone bankrupt in the West, and residents are trying to sue the unincorporated church, as well as its corporations.

The California Supreme Court has ruled that the jury may decide whether the church as a whole is liable. The Supreme Court of the United States has refused to review that decision.

As the Presbyterian leader's list indicates, church-state cases are in the news, often on the front pages. But increasingly informed observers are asking, "Where are we headed?"

Most Americans, of course, feel the First Amendment to our national constitution guarantees full religious liberty. It begins:

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; . . ."

But I want to tell you a shocking truth. The First Amendment does not guarantee us Americans absolute freedom of religion.

One hundred years ago the Supreme Court, in a case involving Mormons and their practice of polygamy, held: "Congress was derived of all legislative power over mere opinion, but was left free to reach actions which were in violation of social duties or subversive of good order." [Emphasis supplied.]

That concept has come to mean that our religious beliefs are protected—absolutely. But our actions based on our religion are protected only to the extent they don't violate a compelling interest.

Seventh-day Adventists know that their religious liberties are going to be snuffed out—all because of compelling public interest.

On page 592 of The Great Controversy Ellen G. White indicates the charges will be that our practices are breaking down law and order, lowering the moral restraints of society, causing anarchy and corruption, and bringing calamities upon the face of the earth.

But until that day comes, Seventh-day Adventists must "fly the banner of truth and religious liberty." Other than our personal witness, what better way to fly the banner than to send Liberty magazine to the opinion makers in our cities and towns, our states, our nation?

If we don't fly the banner, who will?

Glenda and Gordon Hayward

THEY FIT RIGHT IN

It was a crazy idea. Would it work? Gordon Hayward and Glenda Coffin were planning to be married in March 1979. Now, in May 1978, they were suddenly being asked to consider moving their wedding date up to August, just three months away, so they could fill a rare opening for a married couple to serve as student missionaries.

Chet Damron, faculty sponsor of the student missionary program at Andrews, told them it would either make or break their marriage.

"As far as we're concerned," says Gordon, "it made it."

Three weeks after they were married they left, stopping first in Seoul, South Korea, where they were held up for four months because of visa problems. While there they taught in the English language school.

But finally, permission came to go to their real destination, the Indonesian city of Jayapura in Irian Jaya on the west side of New Guinea.

During their six months in Jayapura Gordon and Glenda saw their language school's enrollment climb to 150, including university students, naval officers, and even the wife of the provincial prime minister.

Their experience as student missionaries provided the stimulus to make them want to go back to the Far East in regular mission service.

"We fit right in," they remember, "and the regular missionaries treated us as equals."

It was in Jayapura, they say, more than anywhere else they have ever been, that they felt part of God's work.

Those feelings are fueled by letters they still get from their former students, like this one:

"Three days after he [Gordon] left Jayapura, he came in my dream and he said, 'Karim, get up! It's time for Bible class.'"

"I got up and looked for where the voice had come from. Suddenly I was conscious that I had had a dream. I read my Bible more than an hour."

CAMPUS HIGHLIGHTS

● Adventist Engaged Encounter will be held on the Andrews University campus, February 29 through March 2 and May 9 through 11. The weekends are open for couples who have officially announced their engagement; reservations may be made through the Campus Ministries office.

● In cooperation with the General Conference's Home and Family Service, Andrews will offer a special workshop on family life, April 29 through May 5. Planned especially for overseas delegates, the workshop will be offered in two sections, enabling participants to take the entire eight-day course or either of two four-day clinics. Further information may be obtained by contacting Lifelong Learning.

● Brad and Dee McIntyre performed in sacred concert, Friday, January 11, in Pioneer Memorial Church. They have conducted concerts across the country, sponsored by the General Conference Temperance Department. This presentation was arranged by the Andrews Christian Youth Action (A.C.Y.A.) Sacred Arts Series in conjunction with the A.C.Y.A. Collegiate Adventists for Better Living.

● The University Singers, directed by Dr. Harold Lickey, will perform at the First United Methodist Church in South Bend, Indiana, at 7:15 P.M., February 24. The sacred concert will be during the church's observation of Lent.

● Dr. Eduardo Ocampo, assistant professor of Spanish, has been elected vice president of the Adventist Language Teachers Association. The association's membership consists of modern language teachers from the academies, colleges and universities of the Adventist Church.

● The nursing department received a six-year accreditation by the National League of Nursing on December 7. The league's board of review for baccalaureate and higher degree programs visited the nursing department in October.

FAMILY HEALTH CLINIC OPENS IN STEVENS POINT

MID AMERICAN—This summer Mid American Health Services branched into an area of health care other than nursing homes. The family health clinic and Better Living Center began operations.

It is a physicians' clinic established to provide Stevens Point, Wisconsin, with a Seventh-day Adventist family practice physician, and to serve as a springboard for the health education programs in Central Wisconsin and elsewhere in the Wisconsin Conference.

NEWS NOTES

● An open house to celebrate the 40th wedding anniversary of Jim and Irene Smith was held July 15. The event was planned by their three daughters and held at the home of one of them, Sonja Grosboll of La Grange, Illinois. The Smiths were married in St. Louis, Missouri. They moved to Villa Park in 1958 and are active members of the La Grange Church.

● The Vesper Voices Junior Choir recently appeared on Rockford radio station WOFL's Christian Talent Show, November 10. The children didn't win a prize but the audience seemed to enjoy the group's original song, "The Reason Why I'm Happy." The Vesper Voices won a second prize in the group singing.

● Until the hostages in Iran are released, electric bells will be heard at noon for 15 minutes every day at the Downers Grove Church. According to Jerry Coyle, pastor, the church will respond to President Carter's appeal for prayer bells for the safety of the hostages.

A.R.S. EXPANDS TO 16-BED CAPACITY

HINSDALE—Recent expansion in the Alcoholism Rehabilitation Services (A.R.S.) unit at Hinsdale Hospital brought the total bed capacity to 16, and enlarged the solarium to better accommodate group meetings.

The addition of a kitchen area within the meeting room creates a relaxed homelike atmosphere which is more conducive to informal conversation and group discussion.

The A.R.S. program opened at the hospital in April 1978 with an eight-bed inpatient unit. During approximately one month in the hospital, recovering alcoholics participate in group dynamics, one-to-one counseling, educational lectures and exercise and relaxation sessions.

Once the patient recognizes that he has a problem, and accepts the fact that by himself he is powerless to beat it, he has made the first step toward recovery, according to Joyce Henderson, director of A.R.S.

An important part of the program involves family counseling for concerned people. Through lectures and discussions, family members acquire understanding of the disease of alcoholism, and learn ways to deal with their own anxieties.

An aftercare program assures the alcoholic and those who are concerned about him of continued support once the inpatient phase of the program is completed.

Donna Willard
Public Relations Assistant

Donald Casebolt, the physician in the clinic, is a board-certified member of the American Academy of Family Practice.

In addition to his involvement with the growing patient load in the clinic, Dr. Casebolt is also the medical director for River Pines Community Health Center, the largest of Mid American's nursing homes.

An active search in conjunction with Great Lakes Adventist Health Services is underway to find other physicians to join Dr. Casebolt. The plan is to eventually have three doctors working in the family health clinic. In addition to the usual staff associated with a modern doctor's office, the clinic employs a full-time health educator.

John Reaves, who has recently completed a master's degree in public health at Loma Linda University's School of Health is the only health educator in denominational employment in Wisconsin.

He is responsible for the health education programs sponsored by the Better Living Center in the Stevens Point area, and will assist local churches around the state with their medical missionary endeavors.

The Better Living Center has recently held a Heartbeat program and a diet and heart disease program in Stevens Point and conducted a weekend seminar on simple home treatments at the Milwaukee Northwest Seventh-day Adventist Church.

These programs are in addition to the patient counseling services available through the clinic, including a recently inaugurated obesity clinic.

In January the staff will be conducting two stop-smoking programs in Central Wisconsin and assisting the Milwaukee Central Church with a citywide Heartbeat program.

Many of the contacts made through the health education programs are with individuals who would never otherwise have considered involvement with Seventh-day Adventists.

One woman remarked at the conclusion of a recent series of lectures, "I used to think Adventists were just another strange sect; now coming with her friends and neighbors. After moving from Mومence she started a Bible study with six of her new neighbors.

Soon after the Sabbath truth was presented, several of the group began attending church with her. However, Easter Neal was the only one of the group to accept the Adventist message and request baptism. Everything she learned she shared with her son, Robert, and daughter-in-law, Wendy. They also were excited with the new things they were learning.

About this time Robert became ill and couldn't seem to discover the cause. He was in and out of the hospital several times during the year. Finally he took his situation to the Lord and dedicated his life to Christ. He asked Jesus to heal him so he could be baptized.

The result was three baptisms on November 17 by Pastor John Carpenter in the Eldorado Church.

Robert's greatest desire is to enter the ministry as soon as he is completely healed and to win his 12 brothers and sisters to Jesus Christ.

Hundreds of people visited this display built by the Rockford Church for the Heart of Illinois Fair.

ROCKFORD BUILDS SANCTUARY MODEL FOR FAIR

At the Peoria Church, the longtime dream of a member was born with the building of a model wilderness sanctuary.

The goal was to prepare a display for the Heart of Illinois Fair held each July in Peoria.

Agnes Moushon, lay activities leader, had studied the subject and with the help of other church members searched for the various items to be used.

Most of the articles of furniture were cast from handmade molds made to scale from the original instructions to Moses.

People gathered at the booth day after day listening to the story of the tabernacle.

The visitors were invited to join a Daniel Seminar class. Several church groups asked to come to the Peoria Church to study.

A circuit judge wants to teach his church the message of salvation and judgment as a result of viewing the model.

SMOKING CLINIC GETS NOTICE IN QUINCY

In cooperation with the American Cancer Society and Blessing Hospital, the Quincy Church held an "I Quit" smoking clinic, October 8 through 12.

Pastor Barry Ulloth directed the meetings with the help of five local doctors, including Dr. Roy Olson of the Quincy Church.

A Quincy Herald-Whig newspaper reporter attended the current clinic and wrote a daily column on his experiences as a "quitter." Elder Ulloth received special commendation from the area office of the American Cancer Society for the Five-Day Stop Smoking Clinics he has held.

The letter from the American Cancer Society read as follows: "Elder Hayward: For the past three months I have been working with Pastor Barry Ulloth of the Quincy Church on a smoking clinic using the Five-Day Plan of your church. On behalf of the Adams County Unit of the American Cancer Society and myself, I want to tell you how much I have enjoyed working with Pastor Ulloth."

● A bus load of South Bend church members, with their pastor, Glenn Hill, as leader, toured historical spots in Battle Creek, Michigan, on Sabbath afternoon, November 17. The tour was so interesting that a similar trip may be taken next fall.

● On Sabbath, December 8, 1979, the Indiana Academy Choir sang a sacred concert for the worship service at the Glendale Church.

CICERO SCHOOL CHOIR SINGS AT CHURCH

The Cicero Elementary School choir performed for the first time this year on Sabbath, October 6, when they presented special music for the Cicero Church service. Directed by Valerie Crabtree and accompanied by Anita Skoretz at the piano, the 50-voice choir includes students from grades one through eight. They are frequently asked by churches in the community to give programs and are always willing to sing when the opportunity comes.

5-DAY PLAN BREAKS RECORDS IN INDIANA

The Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking in Fort Wayne broke all previous records set in the state of Indiana with 236 people registering at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Program director Roy Ursin said,

"The crowd's enthusiasm was contagious and their glowing testimonies for the program and the church set the tone for the week."

Participants represented a variety of occupations ranging from attorneys and clergymen to people who were unemployed. The plan drew a much younger crowd than usual.

"Some people traveled 60 miles one way to attend," said Belva Green, executive director of the Allen County Cancer Society.

Mike Hill, a graduate of the October 1978 clinic, told about his life since kicking the smoking habit. He is now a marathon runner and has received many national awards.

Television Channel 21 representatives came to cover the clinic and the program was aired at prime time in the evening. On the last night, 87 percent of the participants reported success.

One couple who had traveled 40 miles were so appreciative for the help they had received that they presented a $100 check to Roy Ursin to be used to help others to kick the smoking habit.

An enthusiastic core of volunteers from the church and community helped conduct the clinic. Team members from the local church were Alice Weaver, Lynn Ursin, Bob and Betty Jackson, Jack Hernandez and Sue Booth.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Mendenhall and their son, James, were recently baptized in the Greenfield Church.

TRUCK DRIVER AND FAMILY BAPTIZED IN GREENFIELD

Gene Mendenhall, his wife and son were baptized on Sabbath,

October 20, 1979, in the Greenfield Church by Elder A. E. Wade.

In the spring of 1979 Gene began to feel very tired. The more he rested, the more he needed to rest. A medical checkup revealed a heart problem. A change in diet was suggested but it did not help.

Two weeks later he was admitted to a hospital for further tests. Open heart surgery seemed to be the best answer, and he was admitted to the hospital one month later.

During this time Gene did some serious thinking. He asked his mother, a Seventh-day Adventist, to have her pastor visit him.

Pastor Richard Lewis and local elder David Rock visited Gene one Sabbath afternoon. They had prayer with him.

Gene said, "I started to feel at ease almost at once. I knew that I would come through the surgery and everything would be fine."

After surgery Gene had a great deal of pain. In frustration he said, "God, why do I have to hurt so much?"

Gene says that about five minutes later "every bit of pain" had left his body. "I raised my head and looked around to see if I was truly all right."

To his amazement, he was. He was convinced God was taking care of him.

Today Gene and his family are members of the Greenfield Church, and he is again driving his 18-wheel rig.

Gene Mendenhall is positive of the Lord's leading throughout this whole experience. He and his family report they have peace and joy which they have never experienced before.

SHARON SCHOOL PRESENTS CONCERT

Recently the Sharon Seventh-day Adventist School of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, presented its first music concert of the year entitled

"Starting A New Day" with featured soloist Cheryl Lynnette Harris.

The Sharon school has an enrollment of 42 students. The students sponsored this concert to help with school finances.

Prizes were given to three students for raising the most money. First prize was presented to Janie Taylor, a fifth-grade student, and Stephan Foster, a seventh-grade student. Second place was won by Ollie Triggs, a fifth-grade student.

Approximately $600 was raised for this program.

Miss Harris is presently co-director of "The Creations," a group of about 22 young adults at the Shiloh Church in Chicago, Illinois.

She sang with various groups while attending Forest Lake Academy in Maitland, Florida, and Andrews University.

NO-SMOKING DAY PROCLAIMED IN GARY

Richard Gordon Hatcher, Mayor of Gary, Indiana, proclaimed October 27, 1979, as "No-Smoking Day," at the request of the Temperance Department of the Mizpah Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Conrad L. Gill, youth and temperance director of the Lake Region Conference, was the guest speaker for the day.

Films were shown which focused on not smoking. They were entitled, "One in 20,000" and "A Crutch For All Seasons."

All the churches in Gary worked together by bringing their members and friends to see the films. Brochures announcing the day's events were mailed out and distributed in various churches and public schools.

The temperance committee sought a No-Smoking Day Proclamation from the Mayor. On October 24, 1979, at his news/business session, Mayor Hatcher, a nonsmoker himself, read the proclamation and presented it to the group. The proclamation appeared in the Gary Post Tribune on October 26.

Attendance was good at the film showing. Pastors from the community brought their congregations and provided the use of the building free of charge.

The Mizpah Temperance Committee suggested that the visiting churches start their own temperance societies in an effort to help stamp out crime in Gary. The Mizpah group members are making themselves available to help the other churches to get started.

Many people vowed to stop smoking after seeing the films.

Lake Region Conference education superintendent Reginald Barnes is shown with Devolia Cantrell, who was recently honored at the fall workers meeting.

THANK YOU, DEVOLIA CANTRELL

Devolia Cantrell was honored at the annual fall workers meeting with a "This Is Your Life Program" in appreciation for her 40 continuous years of denominational service as an elementary teacher.

It was a great surprise for Mrs. Cantrell as Inez Shelton, also a veteran teacher, announced, "This is your life, Devolia."

The program followed Mrs. Cantrell's career from Union Academy in Washington, D.C. to Oakwood College.

Her first teaching assignment was in Meridian, Mississippi, where she received $30 per month in salary. She supplemented her income by selling magazines on Sundays.

She was later called to Knoxville, Tennessee, with a salary increase to $40 per month. After serving one year, she returned home where her father encouraged her to get a job that would provide her with a decent living.

Turning down several government job offers, Mrs. Cantrell accepted a teaching position in Flint, Michigan, teaching grades one through eight.

From there she was called to teach at Sharon Academy in Inkster, Michigan, where she remained until moving to the new Peterson Academy built in Inkster.

Mrs. Cantrell has been urged on many occasions to accept administrative positions but has chosen to remain in the classroom.

Words of appreciation and commendation were spoken by fellow workers, administrators, former students and parents. Some parents who now have children in Mrs. Cantrell's classroom are former students of hers.

Gifts were presented to help Mrs. Cantrell remember this moment when time was taken to say thank you for her selfless giving to others.

RELIGIOUS LIBERTY RALLIES SCHEDULED

Religious liberty rallies are scheduled in January for Flint and Warren area members.

Jonathan L. Hamrick, religious liberty director in Michigan, announced that the Flint rally will be held at the First Flint Church, G-4285 Beecher Road, on Sabbath January 19. The Warren meeting convenes January 26 at 12100 Thirteen-mile Road in Warren. Both meetings begin at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mr. Hamrick will be the featured speaker for the 11 o'clock hour at both churches. At the afternoon rally, he and his wife, Winnifred, will present a duo-piano music program interspersed with thoughts on religious liberty.

A question and answer period will complete the afternoon rallies. Vernon Alger, a Detroit-area attorney and religious liberty secretary of the Warren Church, will assist at the Warren rally.

If you have Sabbath, union, or other religious liberty questions, come prepared to present them for discussion and answers.

NEWS NOTES

● Northfield Junior Academy ninth-graders of Troy have joined their teacher, Candice Penno, in a program to educate elementary students about the value of a healthy body, sound health practices, and the hazards of smoking. Students Lisa Dotson, Heidi Erickson, Steve Corke, Patti Feldbush, Robert Portugal and Betty Houghtaling will go in pairs to local schools in their area and present the Students Against Smoking concept they learned at the American Cancer Society conference they attended recently.

● A special Christmas Eve music program by a combination of Adventist, Methodist and Baptist church members was presented at the Orion-Oxford Church. Lee Walkowiak, head elder of the church, coordinated the program.

● A medical doctor from the Orion-Oxford Church left recently on a four-month mission project. Dr. Percy Marsa is assisting his dentist son-in-law in a free clinic in Africa.

● The Prattville Church, with a membership of 63, recently held a baptism for five people. Their school enrollment is 17. Members there make provision for all school-age children in the congregation to be enrolled in church school, regardless of their financial ability.

● The Urbandale Church added 25 members recently during evangelistic meetings with the Hasenpflug and Turner team.

● Jackson members have formed 10 witnessing teams and are committed to reach 500 homes in the near future. They are also involved in an extensive upgrading of their church property.

- Battle Creek members are planning to mail Steps to Christ to all residences in Calhoun County. Cost for the project amounts to $35,000. They have also organized 12 week-night prayer groups and have 11 active witnessing teams.

- Church members from Cadillac were interviewed recently on WITW Roundtable, a radio program. Bob Quillen and Nancy Johnson explained the Ingathering program as a kickoff to the Ingathering appeal in that area. When the interview was finished, Nancy asked the coordinator of the program to contribute, and he did.

- Dr. Robert Streeleman, a member of the Grand Rapids Church, has been awarded membership in the American College of Dentists. Fellowship in the college is by invitation only. Dr. Streeleman has been active in civic affairs in the city of Wyoming, where he lives, and at the present time he is a member of the public school board of education.

- Grand Rapids Central Church members recently completed Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking programs in the Cascade Christian and Faith Lutheran churches. Pastor Mike Kember and Dr. Roosenberg conducted the meetings, and Carl Baker coordinated the program.

- Buchanan church members joined the local ministerial association-sponsored community choir recently. Russel Blair, church elder, and Carol McKean directed the choir; Marjorie Ness of Berrien Springs played the organ.

- Pastor Paul Gates received a letter of appreciation from the mayor of Grand Ledge thanking the Adventist Church for helping to beautify their city. In his letter he said the residents of Grand Ledge had enjoyed the flower bed at the corner of the campgrounds. He also thanked Grand Ledge Academy students for their work during a recent work-a-thon in which they stained the city's band shell and worked on the sidewalks. Mayor Lewis Gentry said, "We consider Grand Ledge fortunate to have your church in our city and hope your efforts will continue."

65TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED

Henry and Grace Weaver celebrated 65 years of marriage on November 25, 1979, in Niles, Michigan. The Weavers have recently returned to Michigan from Arizona to be near their only son, Harold, and their two grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. Twenty-one of their forty-seven years of denominational service were spent in Michigan at Kalamazoo, Gobles, Cedar Lake and Grand Rapids. They retired from Thunderbird Academy in Scottsdale, Arizona, in 1963. Both Mr. and Mrs. Weaver are members of the Niles, Michigan, Westside Church.

Wayne Schaffer was one of three bricklayers in the group.

MICHIGAN COUPLE HELP BUILD CHURCH IN THE AZORES

A series of miracles unfolded for a Kalamazoo couple who made a recent trip to the island of Sao Miguel, Azores, as part of a Maranatha Flights International team.

Wayne and Marie Schaffer flew with the first group of 42 in September, and they were followed two weeks later by a group of 100. The church they built was badly needed since the congregation there had been meeting in a room above a store, according to Mr. Schaffer.

"There were a lot of miracles performed," Mr. Schaffer said. "I know it has made both my wife and me better Christians."

The first miracle occurred when their international flight from Boston to the Azores was delayed one hour. On this flight they met a woman who was flying to the same destination. She asked them why so many were flying to her home island. When told what their mission was, she became very interested.

Later she asked, "You will be needing some money, won't you?" She had $1,000 (U.S.) in the bank in Sao Miguel which she could not take into the United States, so she donated it to help the group in their work.

The Schaffers wondered how the group would be able to build a church in so short a time in a place where, they discovered, another building had been in the process for more than a year with the concrete work still not finished.

While there the group stayed in a Catholic school for children. The man in charge of the children anticipated that with so many strangers there he would have problems with drinking and partying.

He was a nervous, excitable man, said Mr. Schaffer, but after becoming acquainted with the group he soon joined their morning worship services and requested that his cook learn to cook from Adventists. He later gave up smoking and stopped eating meat and is now studying to become an Adventist.

A witnessing team, headed by Bill

Interested crowds gathered to watch as the church building neared completion.

Liversidge, a former Andrews University student and former pastor of the Hartford Church, went about the countryside teaching about Adventists and telling about the church building project.

The group expected the concrete work to be finished by the time they arrived, said Mr. Schaffer, but none of it had been done. Three bricklayers in the group, including Mr. Schaffer, laid 400 blocks in one day. The cement had to be carried in pails.

In spite of difficulties in obtaining lumber on time, the church building, with the exception of a few minor details, was finished on schedule.

6 BAPTIZED AFTER COLLAR SERIES

The baptism of six people in December occurred after Pastor Leonard Andrews continued to contact people who had attended meetings held by the Collar evangelistic team. Members of the Manistee and Ludington churches joined in an afternoon service in the Manistee Church. Each church received into its fellowship three new members. Uniting with the Manistee Church are Shirley Halverson, right, next to Pastor Andrews, and her two daughters, Jamie and April. Ludington's new members are, from left, Lori Smith, Denise Meissner and Doris Lyle.

the 11 o'clock service at the Milwaukee Central Church, and Don Gray, Lake Union Conference ministerial secretary, will present the sermon at the Milwaukee Northwest Church.

In the Waukesha Church, Robert Dale, Wisconsin Conference president, will speak on religious liberty.

Everyone is invited to attend a religious liberty rally at 3 P.M. in the Milwaukee Central Church, 2229 North Terrace. "Les Prisonnieres," a newly released film about the Huguenots, will be shown.

Participating in a panel discussion about religious freedom will be Robert Dale; Don Gray; Jere Wallack; Ernest Wheeler, Wisconsin Conference religious liberty director; attorney Jack Werner, and Pastors Don Giarrusso and Halvard B. Thomsen. The panel will answer questions from the audience.

MADISON BURNS THE MORTGAGE

A long-awaited dream became a reality for the members of the Madison Church when they dedicated their house of worship free of debt during the weekend of October 5 and 6.

Services began on Friday night with a service of consecration featuring Elder Joe Ray from Texas, who served the Madison Church during the construction of the building.

Sabbath services included Robert Dale, president of the Wisconsin Conference, who conducted a special lesson study, and Kenneth Mittleider, former Wisconsin Conference president (currently president of the Potomac Conference) who presented the message for the morning worship service.

After a fellowship dinner in the Madison Church School gymnasium, an organ concert was held in the church sanctuary featuring Gary Klemp, music instructor at Wisconsin Academy, and Bruce Rasmussen of Andrews University.

The highlight of the entire weekend, the dedication service, included former pastors recalling memories of pastoring in Madison, music selections from the church school and adult choirs, a history of the church prepared and read by Eva Brown, and the act of dedication, led by current pastor, Dan Neergaard.

After the burning of the mortgage, Lake Union Conference President Lowell Bock challenged the members to be actively planning to expand their church family by preparing another house of worship in the Madison area for dedication in the near future.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM FEATURED IN MILWAUKEE

The cause of religious freedom will be emphasized in Milwaukee area churches on Sabbath, January 26.

Jere Wallack, Lake Union Conference religious liberty director, will be guest speaker for

The Madison Church

Elder Lowell Bock challenged the members to greater deeds.

George Crumley, treasurer of the Lake Union Conference, who was treasurer of the Wisconsin Conference during construction of the building, presented the evening vespers program.

Lee Sherman Dreyfus, governor of Wisconsin, sent his best wishes for a memorable day.

The Madison Church began in 1888 with members meeting in homes.

In 1937 the first pastor, Roscoe Moore, began to serve the 23 members in the church located in downtown Madison.

In 1973 the members began to meet in the school gym which had been built on the 11-acre tract where the present church and school now stand.

Construction of the present facility began in 1975, at a cost of approximately $432,000 and many hours of donated labor. The building is valued at approximately $700,000.

THANK YOU FROM OAKWOOD

The 1979 Oakwood College offering was the largest in the history of the college. The Kresge Foundation agreed to give Oakwood a challenge grant of $200,000 if the college could raise $225,000. In January 1979 the college board accepted the challenge. The board, faculty, student body and churches all over the North American Division contributed liberally. Today the $225,000 goal has been reached and Kresge has already sent the check to Oakwood for $200,000.

This $425,000 is a major help on the construction cost of the new science complex Oakwood needs so badly. The new complex is about 65 percent completed and will probably be in operation before school closes in May 1980.

Oakwood College extends a sincere thank you to the North American family for this support.

SAWS REPORTS ON CAMBODIAN RELIEF

Richard O'Ffill, Deputy Executive Director of Seventh-day Adventist World Services, Inc., (SAWS), returned recently from a trip to Thailand and Cambodia and reported on the work of the Seventh-day Adventists in relieving the suffering of the Cambodian refugees.

Two medical teams, consisting of two doctors and six nurses each, and a team of 12 from Loma Linda University staff the two field hospitals SAWS is operating in Thailand. Each hospital has a capacity of more than 100 beds to care for refugees suffering from malnutrition and other illnesses.

The Seventh-day Adventist church joins at least 48 other agencies in providing food and medical assistance worth more than $100 million.

'IT IS WRITTEN' TO COVER 47 STATES VIA SATELLITE

Beginning January 6, It Is Written can now be seen on cable television via satellite in 47 of the 50 states. The development is a milestone in the history of the telecast.

The program will be carried on WTBS-TV, Channel 17 in Atlanta. Known as the "superstation," WTBS has made TV history by beaming its signal all over the nation to cable viewers. It is now one of the most widely viewed suppliers of cable programming in the United States.

It Is Written will also be seen over the air in Atlanta on Channel 17, a city where the program has not been previously aired.

Another major development at It Is Written is a contract with the new National Christian Network, a cable programmer in Cocoa Beach, Florida. NCN will begin operations on February 1, 1980, serving up to 4 million cable households by satellite.

It Is Written will be seen in prime time, three nights a week. The telecast will be aired Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings at 10 P.M. E.S.T., with simultaneous release at 9 P.M. C.S.T.

C.R.B.F. TO ASSIST HEARING IMPAIRED

After 80 years of providing inspirational materials to the visually impaired, Christian Record Braille Foundation will begin to serve the needs of another segment of the handicapped population—the deaf.

This commission was given to Christian Record by its constituency in April 1979 and approved at the Annual Council held recently, says

Eugene Stiles, general manager.

According to Mr. Stiles, a proposal was approved by the North American Division Committee on Administration for C.R.B.F. to employ an individual with expertise to give specialized leadership and guidance in this new area of emphasis.

The committee also requested that C.R.B.F. study with the education department of the General Conference recommendations for the teaching of sign language and the providing of some educational facilities for the deaf.

"These people deserve to 'hear' the Gospel message through Christ-centered materials," Mr. Stiles says. "Christian Record will work with other institutions of the church to make this a reality."

MATERIAL AVAILABLE FOR PREMARRIAGE EDUCATION

A 1978 Annual Council action recommends premarriage education for every couple before a wedding is performed by a Seventh-day Adventist pastor. To provide pastors with material for counseling Home and Family Service of the General Conference sponsored a taskforce on marriage education. Led by Pastor Ron Flowers, and his wife Karen, of the Capital Memorial Church, Washington, D.C., this skillful group included both professionals and laymen in the family-life field.

Material prepared by the taskforce is ready for distribution. It includes three cassettes, background articles, tests and study outlines.
