To See a Sermon

Lake Region Conference*

THE student stormed out of the dean's office, his face and manner revealing anger and frustration. As he went rapidly past a friend in the hall, he blurted out bluntly, "This place is just like the church over there, the people sing and say one thing and practice another." Without waiting for a reaction or reply, he continued down the hall, flung open the door and exclaimed, "Who needs it?"

Adolescent impatience? Perhaps. Having problems himself? Maybe. But let's look for a moment at the situation as he thought he saw it. He thought he saw a gap between what is said and what is actually practiced.

In the church I call this the "gospel of rhetoric." The art of rhetoric was once required of students in high school and college because it was regarded as an essential skill by which the individual communicated ideas and feelings to other people. It was assumed that the language and skill of rhetoric were able to adequately handle the subjects and problems and values it was talking about. This concept was seen often in the early church.

Talk, however, was not cheap in the early church. The members as a whole were about their Father's business. But today, an examination of the pew will reveal a strong presence of rhetoric or just plain talk. Many times this is found to have no active follow through.

Phillip Brooks said, "Personal preaching is truth through personality." At best, we are called upon in our everyday lives to become a Gospel event. We are to become a divine reality, a disclosure and living experience of what the "Word" actually says. Our actions sometimes invite observations that do not fit our doctrines and teachings. In a word—hypocrisy—and it makes no difference whether it is intentional or unintentional.

It is very necessary for us to recognize today our position in a disturbed world. We cannot afford to neutralize ourselves by using rhetoric only. We have power within our midst to effect spiritual change in the lives of those that come in contact with us. We are in contact with the Source of power.

The real question is, How are we personally going to use it in interaction with others? The indispensability of our message in the troubled cities of the Lake Union gives us a unique opportunity to model true spiritual power which can do more to shape the character and quality and destiny of human life than any other force. To recognize this and act upon it would point our energy in an upward direction from the neutrality of rhetoric to total spiritual responsibility.

As in the earlier days of the Apostolic church, it can be said of us, "They have been with Jesus." The spiritual strength of our actions will show it.

IN Chippewa Falls, Wisconsin, there are several shoe manufacturers—and Ruth Rheingans.

A lifelong resident of the town and member of the Chippewa Falls Seventh-day Adventist Church since 1938, Ruth is the church's communication secretary and a very active promoter of the Adventist story.

Everybody knows Ruth. Since the late 1940's she has worked to keep the public informed about all the activities of the church. The Adventist section in the church page of the local newspaper almost always contains more information than that of any other church.

Ruth contacts people, too. She collects clippings from Adventist periodicals and places them on the desks of city council and county board members before every meeting. She clips articles from local publications for pastors and conference personnel.

Ruth is also an active member of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. She edited their newspaper for five years, often reprinting material from Seventh-day Adventist temperance literature.

Richard Peck, an Eau Claire church member who serves on the Chippewa County Board of Directors, says the board members, including the president, often take notice of Ruth's work. "Once when she was promoting a W.C.T.U. fund-raising project," says Mr. Peck, "the board president invited board members to leave donations for her on his desk after the meeting. The board president is one of the officers of the Leinenkugel Brewery!"

Ruth's public relations mission is an important part of her life. She reads everything she can find and saves everything. She uses her home as her office and as a gigantic "filing cabinet" for all that printed material. Sometimes there's hardly room left for Ruth! Perhaps her only public relations mishap was when the fire marshal once made her clean it all out.

Ruth has never used the excuse of a lack of equipment or typing skill to keep her from working as a communication secretary. She types according to the venerable one-finger method on an ancient typewriter that was old when her father gave it to her more than 20 years ago.

Ruth believes a communication secretary should be personally involved in many church activities. She plays the piano for church and enjoys going from door-to-door, distributing Bible course enrollment cards and literature.

Ruth believes that a successful communication secretary should attend all the special meetings, including camp meeting, in order to be able to write about them. "And you should try to cooperate with other departments of the church," she says, "so they can get information to you in time to use it."

Ruth says it is important to have access to Adventist books and publications—and to use them.

Some might say Ruth is eccentric because she does work that most people don't even think of doing. And she puts her work first. She isn't afraid of what people think.

This Is Our Story

by William and Virginia Fagal

ELDER Fagal: On a drizzly morning in early April 1950, when I was the happy pastor of a church in downtown Brooklyn, New York, I was making hospital calls. When I returned in the early afternoon, my secretary told me that I was wanted immediately at the Hotel Victoria in the Times Square area of New York. Some officials from Washington, D.C., church headquarters were there and wanted to talk to me.

About a half an hour later I walked into the hotel and saw the General Conference president, the secretary and the treasurer. The group also included the head of the radio department and two or three others.

The hotel room was carpeted in red, and the men made the most of it, telling me the church had summoned me to the red carpet for important discussions. I had a few uncomfortable moments, but soon they began telling me what they had in mind.

The church, they informed me, would like to "experiment" with television. A committee had been appointed to investigate the possibilities, and these men had come to New York to finalize the arrangements.

That morning they had signed a contract at the American Broadcasting Company offices to begin a half-hour weekly telecast on Sunday night, May 21.

All they now lacked was a program and someone to be responsible for it. They said they wanted me to create the program and put it on the air. I would have about six weeks to prepare!

I don't remember much more about the meeting, but I do recall walking down the street afterward as if in a dream. This was exactly what I had been thinking and praying about for many months. In fact, the whole experience was an answer to my prayers.

God had placed a television program in my hands in a most remarkable manner! But now that I faced the awesome challenge and responsibility, I found myself shrinking from it and wondering whether or not I would be capable of doing what was expected.

Virginia Fagal: He phoned me from the noisy subway station to share the news. There was no jubilation in his voice, but only a rather subdued recital of what had taken place.

I thought of our two children, 6-year-old Kathy and 3-year-old Billy, and I distinctly remember feeling, rather than thinking, "From this moment on, our lives are never going to be the same."

I knew I had married a man whose burning desire was to get the message of Christ's soon coming out to a perishing world, and in the 10 years of our marriage he had never spared himself in reaching for this goal. Even earlier, he had expressed to me his belief that the Lord might come before he would have a chance to finish college and do his part in sharing the Gospel story.

So I knew there was no turning back now; this decision would affect our whole family, in thousands of ways I could not yet foresee. But I also had the certainty that whatever the future would hold for us, the Lord would be there to help us through it.

Many times in the months and years that followed, I would have to recall that this television responsibility was something God had placed in my hands in an unexpected, and even providential, manner.

When things became rough I reminded myself, over and over again, that I would have to trust Him to also give me the wisdom, strength and ability to carry it out successfully.

William Fagal is the speaker and director of the Faith For Today television broadcast. His wife, Virginia, directs the Faith For Today Bible School.

His promise to Joshua, "I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee," was a promise I relied on.

Presenting the Gospel over the airwaves had been in my blood since the earliest days of my ministry. I was fascinated by the possibility of reaching so many people at one time with the Good News.

My initiation to a radio ministry came in the early 1940's. I had been invited to move from Elmira, New York, where I had begun as a pastor three years before, to Buffalo, where I was to conduct a citywide evangelistic series in Kleinhans Music Hall.

The hall was new and consisted of two auditoriums, the larger one seating 3,100 and the smaller one seating 1,000. Since it was so new it engendered a great deal of civic pride, and of course, the local church people were thrilled with the prospect of an evangelistic series being held there.

The conference officials asked me to conduct the series after four or five experienced evangelists had been unable to accept the job. I had reached the advanced age of 23 and had just been ordained. When I agreed to take up the task my wife became alarmed.

Frankly, I was terrified for him. He had never had the chance to observe and learn from the methods of an experienced evangelist, or even a pastor. The sum total of his evangelistic experience had been three series he had conducted in towns of 20,000 and 60,000.

Buffalo had a population of 600,000, the largest city in the state outside the metropolitan New York area. I felt it was not fair to him to be placed in the position of total responsibility for the large Buffalo crusade.

But that's as far as my objections got. As he told me about it, I could see he was not afraid, but immensely pleased with the challenge. That was all I needed.

We moved to Buffalo and plunged into two months of frenzied activity to meet the contract deadline. In eight weeks a team of workers had to be assembled, citywide advertising arranged and a myriad of details cared for.

The Lord was with us in a very real way. Three thousand people turned out for the opening meeting in the main auditorium, and on week nights the smaller hall was packed.

World War II was in progress and gasoline rationing was severe. So, at no extra cost to us, the city provided a fleet of buses to bring people to the auditorium, and later to take them back downtown.

For the next 18 months we continued the meetings three nights a week, resulting not only in our church building threatening to burst its seams, but growth for nearby churches as well.

It was at this series that I first started presenting the Gospel over the airwaves. Half an hour before the Sunday evening meetings we conducted a live broadcast by radio from the stage, and a good portion of our audience came early to see, hear and participate in it. An excellent response resulted, making me enthusiastic about further use of the media.

From Buffalo, we accepted the call to move to New York City, and a new phase of our lives began at the Washington Avenue Church in Brooklyn.

A new phase indeed! We drove into New York on his 25th birthday, and three weeks later our first baby, Kathryn Gail, was born.

A PREVIEW OF THE DALLAS G.C. SESSION

By His Spirit

by Victor Cooper

The Convention Center in downtown Dallas, Texas, is the site of the 1980 General Conference session. The business meetings will be held in the arena, the round building in the center. The grand hall, two football fields in length, will be used for services the last weekend.

THE flags of 190 countries will fly at Dallas, Texas, April 17 to 26, 1980. They will form a colorful background on the platform of the Dallas Convention Center for the 53rd world session of the Seventh-day Adventist Church. The theme will be "By His Spirit."

Victor Cooper is associate director of the General Conference department of communication.

Some 1,800 delegates will meet to elect church leaders for the next five years and care for business items.

The world conference will attract representatives from more countries than any other meeting held in the United States during 1980.

By April, the Adventist church membership will be 3,280,000—3/4 million more members than at the last world conference in Vienna, Austria. The growth rate of 5.2 percent per annum over the past five years is higher than for most Christian churches.

H.M.S. Richards of the Voice of Prophecy will speak Friday evening, April 18, and will be honored for 50 years of broadcasting. Saturday evening there will be a pageant entitled "Is My Name Written There?"

During the first weekend and the following week, meetings will be held in the arena which seats about 10,000 people. For the last Friday evening and Sabbath, programs will be transferred to the grand hall—as large as two football fields—holding approximately 28,000 people.

Worried you won't see the speakers? There will be image magnification on two projection screens, 24 by 32 feet, one on each side of the platform. You will see their every gesture!

At the entrance to the hall will be the central exhibit. It is composed of four groups of panels. These

Each evening at 7, a program of music begins, and two divisions will report. In between their programs, two General Conference departments will each present a five-minute audio-visual report featuring some of their activities. Evening programs will be open to non-Adventists.

On Sabbath there will be separate Sabbath Schools for children. Youth will meet with adults. The president of the General Conference will speak on the second Sabbath and there will be a missions pageant in the afternoon.

The spoken word from the podium will be translated into six languages, each of which will be transmitted on a different frequency. Delegates who do not speak English are invited to bring a transistor radio with an ear piece to enable them to hear the proceedings in the language of their choice.

The available languages will be French, German, Spanish, Portuguese, Norwegian and Swahili.

Musical selections will be heard from more than 20 groups, such as Advent Sound from Poland; the Caribbean Steel Band; the Marimba Ensemble from Montemorelos; a 300-voice mass choir, and a 100-piece symphony orchestra.

On the last Saturday evening, there will be a premier presentation by the massed choir of the final movements of an oratorio on the three apocalyptic angels' messages.

Basic to the meeting will be the 170-member nominating committee's task of selecting 300 church leaders for the next five years.

The nominating committee will be invited to adjourn by 3 P.M. each day to enable most of the business to be executed at the afternoon business sessions.

As a result of discussions on the Church Manual, one recommendation to be considered in the business meetings would change the basic purpose of the church board, making it the evangelistic coordinating committee of the church.

Another is concerned with an alteration in the statement of the fundamental beliefs of Seventh-day Adventists, in an attempt to more clearly define the belief in the Trinity and what the church is.

An army of people will be involved in communication organized by James Chase. Radio stations across North America will be able to call on a WATS line for taped actualities they can use in newscasts or features.

Communication personnel will care for radio and TV interviews, spots, speakers' bureau, and Adventist World Radio interests.

Vegetarian meals will be available at a cafeteria. Pleasant warm springtime weather is usual in Dallas during April.

Outside the convention center, the church plans to have several health-screening vans available both to church members and the general public. The temperance department plans to conduct a Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking.

Advertisements will be placed in the newspapers, and it is hoped that as Adventists from around the world talk with the people of Dallas and invite them to the evening meetings, that their hearts will be warmed "by His Spirit" toward Adventists who know the Lord Jesus and live in expectation of His return.

This is the interior of the grand hall of the Dallas Convention Center.

surround the eight-foot globe on which colored lights twinkle, indicating the centers in which Adventists are working.

The panels will be twelve translucent Harry Anderson paintings illustrating Biblical highlights from the Garden of Eden to the return of Jesus Christ.

On the reverse side the panels will tell the story of the worldwide work of the church—the script written by Marjorie Lewis Lloyd.

Each division will have an exhibition booth along one of the corridors; so will the Ellen G. White Estate, Andrews University and Loma Linda University, and the North American publishing houses.

A daily Adventist Review will be on sale, as well as periodicals, books, records and literature in various languages.

The daily program begins at 7:45 A.M. with song service, devotional, and prayer bands. A 2½-hour business session starts at 9:30. At 1:30 P.M. there will be a pictorial report on world work, and the afternoon sessions will be from 3:15 to 5:30.

CAMPUS HIGHLIGHTS

● A three-day seminar on the history of health care was presented at the West Side Seventh-day Adventist Church in Niles, Michigan, January 8 to 10. Reuben Hubbard, associate professor in the School of Health at Loma Linda University, taught the course, "Historical Perspectives on Health," which emphasized Egyptian health care at the time of Moses. Mr. Hubbard teaches classes in Loma Linda's master's degree program in public health at Andrews.

● Dr. George W. Reid, chairman of the department of religion at Southwestern Adventist College in Keene, Texas, is teaching church history this quarter at the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary. Dr. Reid graduated from the seminary in 1955 and has been associated with S.A.C.'s religion department since 1967.

● A new course dealing with the practical use of Spanish in the medical professions will be offered during the spring quarter, according to Dr. Wolfgang Kunze, chairman of the modern languages department. "Spanish for Health Personnel," will emphasize everyday speaking of Spanish and will attempt to meet the needs expressed by practitioners in a variety of health-related occupations.

SOMETHING TO CONSIDER: A CAREER IN ENGLISH

Two basic career choices are often associated with the field of English—teaching and writing. However, a degree in English today is the basis for numerous occupational specialties, according to Joseph Warren, instructor in English at Andrews University.

"What we are discovering," he says, "is that many law schools, and even medical schools look very favorably on English majors."

In addition, says Mr. Warren, English graduates are being selected for government jobs in which "writing, planning, projecting, designing and programming" are involved.

Another line of work becoming popular among those with proficiency in articulating the language is "grantsmanship," the job of writing for grants from government agencies, as well as public and private foundations and corporations.

Apart from the traditional areas of journalism and public relations, Mr. Warren also mentions careers in linguistics, business and individual tutoring.

"Many institutions and industries are currently seeing the importance of fostering good writing skills among their employees," he says. "English graduates are being sought after by these places to hold workshops or to work with employees on a one-to-one basis."

For those who do plan to teach, positions are still prevalent within the Seventh-day Adventist school system.

Says Dr. Delmer Davis, chairman of Andrews' English department, "In spite of the lack of teaching positions in English in the public sector, there is no such lack in the denomination. On the contrary, there is a continuing need. I have taught English since 1967 and I have yet to find a qualified student who has not been offered a position somewhere in the denomination."

The widest area of demand right now, he continues, is the field of teaching English as a second language (E.S.L.). Andrews offers the bachelor's, master's and master of arts in teaching degrees in this discipline, as well as equivalent degrees in English.

Directed by Stella Greig, Andrews' English Language Institute is structured so that a student may begin at his level of proficiency and progress through several levels. Students majoring in E.S.L. are able to study under experienced instructors in the institute, all of whom are specifically trained in E.S.L.

In fact, students with any number of interests can be accommodated by Andrews' English department, since the faculty represent such a diverse range of specialties within the field.

Research is continually being conducted, and as graduate student Gayla South puts it, "The teachers are excited about what they are doing."

Dr. Davis recently completed a study of "Ellen White and the Theater in Battle Creek: 1880-82," presenting the results to Pacific Union and Walla Walla Colleges at their request the beginning of this month.

Dr. John Waller, professor of English, is conducting an extensive study of the classical scholar Edmund Lushington—the brother-in-law of Alfred Tennyson. Engaged in the research since 1975, Dr. Waller has made four trips to England to gather materials.

Dr. Joyce Rochat, professor of English, is in the final stages of completing the first volume of the biography of the Seventh-day Adventist archaeologist Dr. Siegfried Horn, former dean of the seminary.

Since last summer, Dr. Bruce Ronk, associate professor of English, has been conducting varied forms of research for his program "Music of Poetry," aired on the campus-based WAUS-FM each Sunday. Each half-hour program represents two to three hours of production time, with Dr. Ronk as producer and engineer.

"By enhancing the poems with music, I'm hoping to help the listeners develop an interest in this art form which is so often neglected," he says. "Many people seem to have a built-in resistance to poetry—a kind of 'shrug and grin' attitude."

The 26 programs aired thus far have featured such seasonal topics as Christmas, New Year's, fall, summer and winter poetry. "I'm trying to tie the program into the calendar," explains Dr. Ronk. "I've also celebrated the birthdays of several poets, including Coleridge, Keats, e. e. cummings, Dylan Thomas, and Emily Dickinson."

Dr. Ronk encourages those who have not yet heard his program to tune into 90.7 at two o'clock on Sunday afternoon.

And for those interested in learning more about Andrews' English department, Dr. Davis suggests calling (616) 471-3298, or writing to him at the Andrews University English department, Berrien Springs, MI 49104.

Judy Fetroe, R.N., takes time to talk with, and listen to, a patient.

MORE THAN A NURSE

HINSDALE—Bill, a 47-year-old businessman was on his way to O'Hare Airport after a Chicago convention when the limousine he was riding in was involved in an accident. He was taken to Hinsdale Hospital and admitted for observation.

Judy Fetroe, R.N., noticed her new patient's confusion. "Hinsdale? Where's Hinsdale? Where am I?" he asked.

"Hinsdale is a suburb west of Chicago," explained Judy. "This is a Christian hospital operated by the Seventh-day Adventist Church."

Throughout his stay, Bill asked Judy specific questions about some of the unique aspects of her religion. Why was she an Adventist? How did Adventists celebrate Sabbath? Why were some Adventists vegetarians? Was there anything different about Adventist homes?

Judy found time during her work, and sometimes stayed after her 3-11 P.M. shift ended to answer Bill's questions. Being the daughter of an Adventist minister helped her explain doctrines, but she had to draw from her own experience to show how they centered around a relationship with Christ.

The last night Bill was in the hospital, Judy sat down for another talk with him. "Though he had no particular religion, I sensed he wanted a relationship with Christ." Judy suggested they pray.

During her prayer, Bill grabbed Judy's hand and started crying. "Judy, you will never know what you have done for me. I've never been in a hospital with such friendly nurses and doctors."

Now, more than a year later, Judy says, "I know I'll see him again. If not here, then in heaven."

It is only natural for Judy to combine sharing Christ with her job. "I am a Christian nurse and I love being a Seventh-day Adventist. I want my patients to know that I am more than a nurse—that I am a person they can depend on, someone they can talk to."

Though giving spiritual attention is important, Judy acknowledges that a nurse must give top priority to physical care. "We do have to meet physical needs first, as Jesus did. But most of the time you can integrate the two. For example, I used to hate giving baths, but now it's a time to chat, to get to know the patient."

Judy says it is sometimes frustrating not to see the end results of talking about Christianity to her patients, but she feels hospital workers have a mission to do just that.

"We can reach people—we are much closer than the layman on the street. These people have a special need because they are sick."

ADMITTING AREA REMODELED

HINSDALE—The remodeling project currently underway in Hinsdale Hospital's admitting area focuses on centralizing outpatient registration.

When the remodeling is completed at the end of this year, outpatients will give registration information at the admitting area on their first visit.

With this information entered into the hospital's computer system, patients that may have appointments at several departments such as electro-physiology, respiratory therapy, physical therapy, radiology or pathology, will not have to repeat information such as their address, telephone or insurance policy numbers to other departments they may visit subsequently.

Since the outpatient information will be entered into the computer, billing will be computerized rather than being done by each department providing outpatient services.

An automatic, computer-generated plate-maker for inpatients will increase speed and accuracy. The expansion calls for additional registration booths which will speed the admitting process for inpatients.

LOMA LINDA UNIVERSITY COMES TO YOU

HINSDALE—The Loma Linda University Alumni Federation recently sponsored a special alumni weekend, "Loma Linda Comes to You," at Hinsdale, Illinois.

The Sabbath service featured Walter Specht, Ph.D., professor of New Testament at L.L.U., at the 8:30 A.M. church service at the Burr Ridge Church, and the 11 o'clock service at the Hinsdale Church.

The 135 people attending from the Lake Union included alumni, their spouses and children. Alumni from the Schools of Nursing, Dentistry, Medicine, Liberal Arts, Health, and Physical Therapy were among others represented.

Dick Weismeyer, director of university relations and editor of Scope, presented a slide show of the La Sierra and Loma Linda campuses. He told the alumni of recent changes at each of the campuses and gave details of new projects being developed.

On Sunday a dental continuing education course entitled "Cellular Basis of Oral Diagnosis" was presented by Elmer Kelln, D.D.S., associate dean and professor oral pathology, L.L.U. School of Dentistry.

A luncheon was provided by the L.L.U. Dental Alumni Association and Century Club. Eight dentists attended from Illinois, Indiana, and Michigan.

Each year the L.L.U. Alumni Federation coordinates continuing education courses for various medical-dental professionals throughout the United States and Canada. The types of continuing education hours offered in each geographic location depend upon the requests from the alumni living in these areas.

If you are an alumnus of L.L.U. and would like to suggest a topic for a future continuing education course to be offered in your area, please write to the Alumni Federation, Loma Linda University, Loma Linda, CA 92350, or call (714) 796-7311, extension 2931.

WRONG ADDRESS IS THE RIGHT ONE

Sometimes as personnel tending to the endless details of the Adventist Book Center operation, we are tempted to doubt the evangelistic ministry of the ABC. But let me tell you what happened recently.

I received a call from a man named Thomas Jackson. He had ordered three Conflict of the Ages sets of books but had received only two.

I sent tracers on all three sets. Our records showed all three had been shipped. We sent the information to Mr. Jackson. Several days later I received a phone call from him with the amazing story of the missing set of books.

After receiving our notice that the three sets had been delivered, Mr. Jackson noticed the delivery address for one of the sets was not his home address. This is not unusual in Chicago, but the address was some distance from his neighborhood.

Mr. Jackson drove to the address to reclaim his missing books. As he walked into the home, he noticed an open box on the living-room table. When he asked if the family had received a set of the books, the man of the house said yes, and added, "I didn't order them or sign for the delivery. They were left by my door."

"Is your name Thomas Jackson?" asked Mr. Jackson.

"Yes," replied the man, "I'm the pastor of the Pentacostal Church."

The pastor had read two of the books and wanted to buy the set. As they talked, the two men learned that they were from the same town in Mississippi.

The Adventist told the pastor that the Holy Spirit must have signed the delivery receipt for the United Parcel Service driver and arranged to have the books left on his doorstep.

God works in strange ways, His wonders to perform. At the ABC, even the details have a part in this great Gospel ministry.

LITTLE GRASSY CAMP RECEIVES NATIONAL ACCREDITATION

Little Grassy Lake Adventist Camp Director Jeff Wilson reports that the camp has been fully accredited with the American Camping Association (A.C.A.).

To qualify the camp had to demonstrate excellence in six areas: site standards, administration, personnel, programs, day camps, and camps for the physically disabled.

The accreditation process involved numerous written procedures and records as well as an inspection by a visitation team from the A.C.A.

Overall percentage of compliance with standards was 96 percent. In preparation for the process Elder Wilson completed the Certified Camp Director requirements with the A.C.A.

The bridge across Little Grassy Lake is being rebuilt this winter to provide better access to Vesper Point and waterfront activities such as canoeing.

During 1979 Little Grassy Lake Adventist Camp meant an opportunity to canoe, water ski, swim, discover nature firsthand and learn about the Lord for hundred of campers.

During the regular summer season 474 attended camps, an increase over 1978. In addition hundreds more attended camp meeting, Bible camps, retreats, and local church camp-outs at the facility.

More than 150 of the campers were from non-Adventist backgrounds. Dozens made decisions for Christ during the Sabbath services. Names of interested children have been passed on to local pastors for follow up.

Two staff members were baptized in Little Grassy Lake by Elder Jack Carpenter, West Frankfort district pastor.

"Chicago Cubs?" No, it really means "Christ's Cubs" at Little Grassy Lake Adventist Camp!

Summer camp offers a unique setting for young people to become better acquainted with the Creator. "One important feature of camp," says Elder Wilson, "is the close contact with counselors who show campers a personal relationship with Jesus." Every child who goes to camp makes some kind of decision for Christ.

"We are grateful to God for the change we see in lives we observe at camp each year," he adds.

The Little Grassy staff has made an effort to incorporate spiritual lessons into the special activities of camp. For example, campfire programs use exclusively religious, not secular, stories and songs.

Each camp includes a planned effort to make the Sabbath a delight. Each Sabbath's programming includes Sabbath School, worship service, Adventist youth meeting and sundown worships.

Scores of non-Adventist campers keep the Sabbath holy for the first time in their lives. This has been found to make a deep impression upon their lives which they carry home to family and friends.

Camping is an experience not easily forgotten by the young people and adults who participate. Songs like "Pass It On" and "Beloved, Let Us Love One Another" are favorites all year long.

Staff applications are now being accepted. A camping schedule for 1980 is available by writing to: Camp, Box 89, Brookfield, IL 60513.

MINISTERS MEET AT CONFERENCE OFFICE

On December 11 to 13 ministers went to the conference office for the annual minister's meeting to plan for the new year.

For the first two days Dr. Tom Blincoe, dean of the Theological Seminary, gave several studies on the doctrine of the atonement. He also allowed time for questions at the close of each study.

Roland Hegstad, editor of Liberty magazine, challenged the ministers to continue their program supporting the journal and the cause of religious freedom. Indiana Conference stands at the top in per capita subscriptions in the North American Division. These subscriptions are sent to the nation's leaders.

On Tuesday evening, December 12, the ministers enjoyed a special buffet prepared by the Indiana Academy Food Service Department. A male chorus from the Glendale Church sang several Christmas selections.

Ed Skoretz, conference lay activities director, made a roll call of the conference districts to receive the final figures raised by each church. After the totals were added up the conference lacked $200 of reaching its Silver Vanguard goal.

However, after a few phone calls that evening by the pastors of some churches that were Ingathering that very night, it was reported the next day that the conference had attained its goal.

The total reported was $143,830.62, making Indiana the first conference in the nation to exceed its Vanguard Goal. Now, a month later, $147,249.12 has come in for the campaign this year.

Lowell Bock, Lake Union Conference president, closed the three-day session with a message of encouragement as the ministers launch into a new decade.

He emphasized the need to avoid shyness in spreading out the Gospel nets so the Lord can give a bountiful harvest.

GREENFIELD HONORS INVESTMENT LEADER

consecutive year that she has directed the Investment program. Her daughter, Joan Bussell, pinned a corsage on her mother in honor of her 40 years of service as Investment leader.

Mrs. Owens has used many projects throughout the years. One year she made a quilt for the mission field charging 10 cents for each name put on the quilt.

Other projects include selling cakes, candy, cards, lambs and their wool, apple trees; collecting new dimes, pennies and half dollars; giving for weight lost; and delivering newspapers.

This year she made money bags for the young people to use for Investment.

When Investment Sabbath arrived and the total was counted, $786 had been turned in. Mrs. Owens asked for permission to take up an offering to make it an even $800 for 1979. The amount was quickly raised.

MONTICELLO CHILDREN COLLECT 314 CANS

The Monticello, Indiana, Church school children collected canned goods in their community at Halloween time. The six children collected 314 cans, according to Carol Hughey, their teacher. The canned goods were used in both Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets which community services distributed to needy families.

I.J.A. STUDENTS SAVE QUARTERS FOR V.O.P.

Students in grades one to six at Indianapolis Junior Academy participated in the Voice of Prophecy Christmas Club. A total of $167.80 was given to help construct a radio antenna in Guatemala. The Voice of Prophecy mailed each student a booklet for saving quarters. Each student who filled his booklet with $5 in quarters gathered around the Christmas tree with his offering. ### CRUSADE YIELDS RESULTS IN EAST CHICAGO

During the months of October, November and December Victor Schulz, East Chicago Church pastor, assisted by Carmelo Mercado, associate pastor, conducted an evangelistic crusade in East Chicago's Heritage Hall. As a result 13 people were baptized on December 9 in the East Chicago Church. Among those baptized was a former Communist leader and TV personality from the Dominican Republic. He is now interested in becoming a minister and an evangelist. Elder Schulz, left, and Pastor Mercado, right, are shown with the baptismal candidates.

KELLERS BID FAREWELL TO INDIANAPOLIS

Mary Keller worked for 23½ years for six Indiana Conference presidents, three treasurers, and several M.V. Educational superintendents and field secretaries. Among Mrs. Keller's many activities was the organizing of the "Buddies Exchange" during World War II for Seventh-day Adventist servicemen. The address directory, which increased from six to over 400, enabled servicemen to contact each other. Mrs. Keller also wrote sermons in shorthand at camp meeting. She later transcribed, duplicated, and sent them to conference church members who could not attend. A farewell dinner was recently given for Mary and her husband, Fremont.

AUCTION YIELDS $461 FOR MEDICAL VAN

The social committee of the Glendale Church has decided to choose one service project each year. According to committee chairman Janice Greer, they decided that the project for 1979 would be to plan an auction to earn money for a health screening van for Indiana.

Volunteer auctioneers Mike Hammans and James Ashley collected a total of $461.77 from items donated by the Glendale members.

This money will be placed in a fund by the state federation of community services to acquire a van which will be used for blood pressure testing as well as information on nutrition, low-cholesterol vegetarian cooking, and how to stop smoking. Bible study guides and other free literature will also be available.

The donation given by the Glendale social committee brings the total raised to approximately $8,000. The cost of a 22-foot mobile unit, equipment, supplies and other items to make the unit functional is $20,000. Ed Skoretz, conference lay activities director, invites Indiana

FESTIVAL OF THE WORD INSPIRES YOUTH

In February 1978, 80 delegates from Indiana traveled to Lincoln, Nebraska, to attend the Festival of Faith. When the youth returned they had a desire to witness for their Master.

Several months later at camp meeting the delegates were invited to eat lunch together one Sabbath. A committee was selected to work with Cliff Hoffman, conference youth director, to organize the Indiana Festival of the Word.

A new committee was appointed to organize next year's Festival of the Word.

The main desire of the committee was to help revive a small church. They also wanted to work in a town that had good potential for growth and a representative church building. After much study Crawfordsville was selected.

The Lafayette Church was headquarters for the festival. Lafayette members agreed to provide housing, food and assistance in organizing the witnessing program in Crawfordsville.

On October 17, 50 young people went to the Lafayette Church. The program combined the inspiration of the former youth congresses with training and experience in sharing characteristic of the Lincoln Festival of Faith.

The youth received inspiration from guest speakers Des Cummings Jr. of Andrews University and Robert Zamora of Columbia Union College. Elder Zamora shared many personal witnessing experiences and emphasized the importance of being able to ask people the right questions to stimulate their thinking.

Brad and Dee McIntyre of Takoma Park, Maryland, directed the singing.

The New Communion Singers from Indianapolis sang for Sabbath School, worship service and the Saturday evening evangelistic meeting.

On Thursday night and Sabbath afternoon the young people visited throughout Crawfordsville inviting people to the Prophecy Crusade which began the last night of the festival.

The meeting room at the Holiday Inn where Elder Larry Cansler began the crusade was too small to house everyone, so the delegates had their own praise and prayer service at the Crawfordsville Church.

What has happened in Crawfordsville? About 12 nonmembers have attended the meetings. Elder Cansler is encouraged because several young people are very interested.

The Festival of the Word delegates were only a part of the action in Crawfordsville. On July 14 the conference literature evangelists visited the town and enrolled people in Bible study courses. Ed Barnett, a new ministerial intern, has worked untiringly in following through on these studies.

Many Lafayette members have also been involved in the Crawfordsville project. The Festival of the Word delegates have already begun plans for a festival next year.

I.J.A. STUDENTS
HELP INDIAN CHILD

The fifth- and sixth-graders at Indianapolis Junior Academy have chosen to sponsor a child as one of their mission projects. The child, Anna Madhakar Phasge, is from Bombay, India. He is now able to attend kindergarten at the Lasalgaon Seventh-day Adventist School because of the $12 the class sends each month. Anna, 11 years old, works as a coolie to help support his family. The monthly family income is only $11.25. Bringing in the first dollars for Anna are, from left, Jennifer Gephart, Karin McDonald, Marlow Pennyman, Tanya Ross, Susan Leacy and Kristie Stewart.

STRAFORD BEGINS 1980 WITH CANDLELIGHT COMMUNION

On New Year's Eve nearly 400 members and visitors at Straford Memorial Church of Chicago, Illinois, participated in a candlelight communion service. Elder T. M. Kelly delivered a sermon in music, accompanied by John C. Handy at the piano.

Upon arrival, the worshippers were ushered into the service of humility. At the close of this service, Elder Kelly led the congregation to feel their need of a Savior with the song "Poor Little Lost Lamb." He sang of Jesus' sacrifice and humility with the song, "He Could Have Called Ten Thousand Angels."

After several other songs emphasizing Jesus' abiding love and God's care, the congregation was divided into sections as the elders and deacons gave each person an opportunity to testify to God's goodness during 1979. Prayer partners were selected, and people thanked God for His tender mercies during the year.

The holy service of communion was then begun with Elder Charles W. Drake III, pastor of Straford Memorial Church, presiding.

During the giving of the bread and wine Elder Kelly told in song how "God Specializes" and urged each person to want to know "More About Jesus." Then in quiet solemnity, he warned the congregation of the "Judgment Day."

Elder Drake closed the service by lighting a candle and inviting each of the officers for 1980 to join him and dedicate their lives to the service of God for the ensuing year.

It was a beautiful sight when each officer lit his candle as a promise to God to accomplish a greater work in the coming year.

LAKE REGION HOLDS WORKERS RETREAT

Lake Region recently held its annual fall workers retreat at Potawatomi State Park in Angola, Indiana. The park is located in a wooded area with deer and racoons roaming freely around the premises.

Ministers, Bible instructors and teachers met to sharpen their skills and fellowship with each other.

William DeShay, director of Black affairs for the Southern California Conference, was the invited guest for this occasion.

He spoke during several sessions on the topic "The Psychology of Pastoral Care," and outlined the hierarchy of needs. He emphasized the need for workers for Christ to show compassion.

He also stressed the fact that one should look beyond a person's actions to the reasons which caused a person to act in such a manner. The importance of a good family background was discussed, showing how our upbringing affects every aspect of our lives.

Devolia Cantrell, a teacher for more than 40 years with the denomination, was honored during this worker's retreat.

Various workshops were held that dealt with many phases of the ministry and teaching.

With new goals set and a better understanding of the work at hand, the workers were sent out again to labor for Christ.

TEACHER TRAINING SESSION HELD IN CHICAGO HEIGHTS

As a result of many requests for assistance in learning how to work with the lower division Sabbath School and story hour programs at the Emmanuel Church in Chicago Heights, Illinois, Sally Washington and Ruth Willis of Detroit, Michigan, presented a well-structured workshop for cradle roll and primary Sabbath School teachers.

Many ideas and helpful hints were shared. Felts and Sabbath School devices were provided for audience participation.

It was emphasized that planning ahead each week is a must. It was also stressed that organization and creativity are essential ingredients in making the program a success.

YOU MUST DECIDE

Have you ever wondered what alcohol, drugs, Satan and your peer group have in common? The Adventist Youth Society of the Fairhaven Church in Flint, Michigan, found out during a recent program presented by the Young Drama Club from the Detroit area churches.

As one young "devil" and one young "angel" of the Lord wrestled with one young soul, it was clearly shown that if you pause a moment to check out the goodies of Satan, that's all the time he needs to trap you.

If that is not enough, your friends will get involved and prove to you that being in church, A.Y., Sabbath School and prayer meetings is really not much fun.

During all these interruptions, the Holy Spirit and the guardian angel still try to let you know that you don't have to fail. If you fail, you fail by choice.

When the drama ended, one young soul was lost simply because she wanted to see what the devil's goodies were all about. Peer pressure, alcohol, drugs, cigarettes, and the world won.

The question was asked, What about us? Are we checking to see what the devil offers or are we searching for a permanent place in a society that will last forever?

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS RETREAT TO AU SABLE

Public high school students and their sponsors attended the first retreat planned especially for them at Camp Au Sable.

Lester Rilea, conference youth director and his assistant, Don Williams Jr., planned the weekend program. Although academy students have retreats, students who attend public high schools don't participate in these retreats. These students have special problems, Pastor Rilea said, and this retreat was "tailor-made" for them.

About 55 youth and their sponsors joined in the weekend of spiritual food, fellowship and recreation.

Pastor Don Pate, from Port Huron, spoke to the students on Sabbath morning about their special needs; and in the afternoon service, Carol Rolf, a member of the Wyoming Church, dealt with dating problems confronting public school students.

Pastor Williams said, "The next retreat will be held December 5 to 7, 1980; all public high school students are urged to take advantage of this important event."

LITTLE ANGELS VISIT HOSPITAL PATIENTS

Adventist children at Sault Ste. Marie joined with First Presbyterian Church children and sang carols to patients at the War Memorial Hospital. The children, directed by Mrs. Howard Vollick, were accompanied by Jeff Haynes who played the guitar.

KOREANS ORGANIZE CHURCH COMPANY AT BERRIEN SPRINGS

Memorial Church recently received authorization from the conference committee to organize their own church company.

Pastor John Kroncke said the conference committee has voted that the approximately 20 Korean members could organize, but they have had difficulty finding a permanent meeting place.

At the present time they are meeting in various members' homes, but that cannot be considered a permanent solution, Pastor Kroncke said.

interest and participation at summer camp in 1979.

It was more than just horses in a corral or saddling up for a trail ride that held the campers' interest. "Wrangler Tim" taught cowboys and cowgirls far more than which side to mount from and identification of 50 anatomical features of a horse.

Included in his presentations were the practical bits of "horse sense" such as "hands on," "feet out of stirrup" action.

Thanks to the generosity of the Walter Johnsons of Antigo, three horses were available to campers in the regular horsemanship classes. The horses were also available to all other campers during their free times of the day.

Many campers promised themselves that next year they would register for camp early to be able to take horsemanship. The youth department not only encourages campers to register early for camp for 1980, but also to state their preference if they want horsemanship this year.

From all indications three horses will not be enough for everyone who is interested in the horsemanship class. Perhaps there are members of the Wisconsin Conference who would be willing to contribute their horses with tack for six to ten weeks this summer.

If you would consider this possibility, call or write Dale Ziegele, Youth Director, Box 7310, Madison, WI 53707, phone: (608) 241-5235.

A.S.I. MEMBERS MEET IN HAWAII

More than 300 of the 555 members of the Association of Privately-Owned Seventh-day Adventist Services and Industries (A.S.I.) from the North American Division attended the annual national convention in Hawaii, October 25 to November 1, 1979.

Lake Union members and their families numbered approximately 40 of the total group with the leadership of Elder Don Copsey, Executive Secretary, A.S.I. (Michigan Conference).

A.S.I. is an organization of laymen of the church who have discovered the value of cooperative endeavor. It is dedicated to the service of every person engaged in the operation of an acceptable private enterprise for God.

A.S.I. assists businessmen who desire to look beyond the ordinary pursuits of life to broaden their horizons and lead others to Christ, while at the same time earning a living. A.S.I. members own, operate, conduct or control activities in various classifications from hospitals to beauty shops.

Friday evening at sunset in a chapel high above the city, the first official business session convened with C. E. Bradford, president of the North American Division, and C. D. Brooks, General Conference associate Sabbath School secretary.

The highlight of Sabbath school was music by the Hawaiian Kings Men and Elder Brooks. J. W. Bothe, associate secretary of the General Conference, taught the lesson. The Sabbath sermon by C. E. Bradford challenged the "sleeping members" of our church to awake to the challenge facing us in these last days.

Business sessions during the week included witnessing stories told by business and professional people.

A furniture manufacturer conducts morning worship with his employees each day. To date, three people at his firm have been baptized.

A doctor said he leaves Ellen White's books in his office for staff and customers to read. His secretary and her daughter have recently been baptized as a direct result of taking these books home at night and reading them.

Elections for A.S.I. officers were held, and serving as executive vice president for the National A.S.I. is John Freeman of the Lake Union. Harold Lance of California was elected president. James C. Aitken is the General Conference advisor to the A.S.I.

If you are a self-supporting S.D.A. businessman, and would like to learn more about the A.S.I., please contact: Elder Don Copsey, Lake Union Conference, Box C, Berrien Springs, MI 49103. Phone (616) 473-4541.

DENOMINATIONAL ACCOUNTANTS MEET

The Association of Adventist Certified Public Accountants (AACPA) convened for the 1979 annual meeting in Napa, California, from November 2 to 5.

In addition to the business meeting, with AACPA President Vernon Peterson of Vancouver, Washington, as chairman, the 20 members who attended also participated in a fellowship banquet with accounting students at Pacific Union College, and a professional development course in nonprofit accounting.

Projects approved for 1980 include promotion of church-affiliated accounting and auditing projects, recruiting professionally qualified personnel for employment by the church, development of a scholarship fund to assist students of accounting in denominational colleges, and the organization of local chapters.

All Adventist certified public accountants are encouraged to join this fraternity of professionals within the church. The secretary-treasurer is Dr. Wayne VandeVere, chairman of the department of business administration at Southern Missionary College, Tennessee.

VOICE OF PROPHECY STAMP PROJECT

The sale of postage stamps and stamp collectors' supplies by the Voice of Prophecy Stamp Project results in nearly $50,000 in funds for the broadcast each year. That amount keeps the program on several radio stations.

Adventist stamp collectors who buy from the V.O.P. find the prices comparable to what they would pay elsewhere, but they have the added satisfaction of knowing the profits are furthering the Gospel ministry.

"A child who develops a healthy life style is less likely to get involved in drugs," says Patricia Horning, editor of the Winner magazine. "The Winner helps develop these positive attitudes," she says.

New features this year include a column by Rudy Klimes, Ph.D., a longtime educator now specializing in temperate living. Each month he explains a single concept for creating a happy, drug-free life style. Included in his Winner's Circle column is a teaching activity to involve the child with the idea presented.

An information article is also included in every issue. These cover the facts about beer and pot—and more. Subtle temptations such as advertising and peer pressure will also be discussed. Again, an activity supplements the reading material.

Jim Conrad, a professional naturalist who specializes in writing for children, leads the adventure-some on an expedition each month. Learning to discover nature even in the city, identifying stars, and finding Christmas in a swamp are some of his topics for this year's series.

Character-building stories, photos, facts, and puzzles fill every 16-page issue. The cost for the school year (nine issues) is just $3.75 in the United States.

Club prices are available for 10 or more issues to the same address. A four-page teaching guide is also available for $1.00. Orders should be sent to: The Winner, 6830 Laurel Street, N.W., Washington, DC 20012.

MICHIGAN

NURSES TO DISCUSS 'CREATIVE SABBATH WORK' AT ASDAN MEETING. What Seventh-day Adventist nurse has not been faced with the problem of decisions regarding Sabbath work? This question inspired the topic for the February meeting of the Southwestern Michigan Chapter of the Association of Seventh-day Adventist Nurses to be held Tuesday, February 12, 7:30 P.M. at the Village

S.D.A. Church, St. Joseph Avenue., Berrien Springs. The topic will be discussed first by a panel. All nurses and nursing students are invited. Come and share your ideas; bring a friend.

CORRECTION: In Elder Charles Keymer's article on page 2 of the Lake Union Herald (January 15, 1980, issue 2), the last paragraph speaks about the baptism of Cheri's husband, Jack. However, it was Ailene's husband, Jack, who had been studying and attending the meetings and was subsequently baptized.

GUEST SPEAKER at the Lansing Church, February 15 and 16 will be Morris Venden, Pacific Union College pastor. His sermons on Christian living will emphasize righteousness in Christ alone. The sermons are scheduled for Friday, February 15, at 7:30 P.M.; Sabbath, 10 and 11:15 A.M.; 3 P.M. and 5 P.M. A potluck dinner is planned for 12:45 on Sabbath. Everyone in District 7 is invited to attend. The church is located at 5400 West St. Joseph in Lansing.
