ATTENTION! Revelation 3:13-22

GOD'S church in the Lake Union is on the march and I believe most of His children are focusing their eyes and attention on the front ranks where they see Jesus and His banner of Truth. However, as always in the history of the church, there seem to be those who are more prone to look left and right at those soldiers of the Cross who walk beside them. They are troubled by what they see.

"Why can't you walk a little straighter, soldier? Shouldn't you use a little polish on your armor? Why do you insist on that little dash of red on your helmet? Why can't you keep in step with the drum? Why do you insist on being different? You know, unless you line up, you really shouldn't be walking with us!"

Too often, time has shown that those who become preoccupied with the shortcomings of others and do not concentrate their attention on Jesus, stumble over unseen impairments in their own path. Such is the fate of a self-righteous person. The counsel of Scripture cautions all of us about this possible pitfall. "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death." Proverbs 14:12.

It is a human tendency, and perhaps the most selfish, for us to want others to think, act and look as we do ourselves. We feel complimented if people take our advice on clothes, recreation or food. It is hard to refrain from wanting to immediately cast new believers into a tight preconceived mold.

The propensity to judge others is as old as the church. The uniqueness of Jesus proved so troublesome for the Pharisees, those self-styled defenders of the faith, that in their ultimate frustrations they could only rid the earth of His Holy presence. They were angered by his reminder that before considering the "sawdust" in their neighbor's eye, they should first consider the "plank" in their own. Matthew 7: 3 and 5, New English Version.

As the enemy very clearly presses the battle against God's church in this last generation, let us close ranks! Let us be thankful for the comfort and warmth we find in the soldiers who march at our side. Let us observe with pleasure that with us they are also facing the enemy, and that they are marching in the right direction, with their eyes fixed upon Jesus!

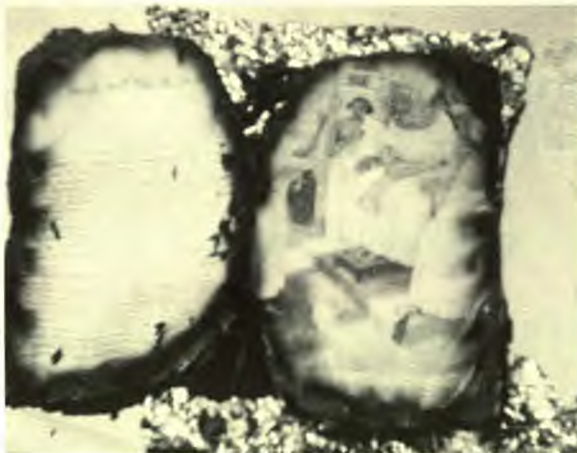

Most important is our need to listen to the words and commands of our Leader, the One who also led the armies of truth in ridding Heaven of sin. Revelation 12: 7-9. He patiently waits for our attention. He is speaking to us about our duty and special roles in His battle plan. If we will only focus our attention on Him and listen carefully to His commands, the battle will soon be over.

How fitting that during the new quarter our Sabbath School studies will be in the book of Revelation. It contains special instructions for God's people as they enter the final conflict.

THE HEART OF THE LAKE UNION

The Book That Wouldn't Burn

by Bonita Porter, as told to Mildred McConnell

I will never forget January 17, 1979. After many days of severe cold and snow there was a slight thaw. But as I drove home about seven o'clock that evening, I could tell that it was much colder, so I drove with extra caution.

As I came over a hill I saw a car parked in the road ahead of me. I found out later that another car had hit an icy spot and went off the road. The driver of the car that I saw had stopped to investigate the accident. I wondered what was wrong and applied my brakes. As I did so my car slid on the ice and into the path of an oncoming truck loaded with coal. It struck my car in the rear, and the car burst into flames and went into a wild spin.

I did not know all this at the time. All I knew was that my car was spinning and that I was being thrown violently from one side to the other. I felt as if my body was hitting everything in sight. Then my car went off the road, down an embankment and stopped.

I was on the passenger side, dazed and hurting, and realized that my car was on fire. The greedy flames reached out to grab me from every side. I was terrified! I remember saying, "God help me! God help me!" over and over as I tried in vain to open the burning door. "I must get to the other side through the flames!" Somehow I made it. The door would hardly open, but I managed to squeeze through. There were eager hands to help me. As we ran away my car exploded in a sheet of flames. I had escaped death by seconds.

My rescuers took me to a nearby home until the ambulance came. My clothing was scorched and smoking, my jacket melting, and my dark hair crisp and grey. I was taken to the hospital where the doctors found I had a broken nose, a concussion and many cuts and bruises. I was told there was no way I should have survived. Even the headlines in the paper the next day called it "incredible." I know it was only by God's answer to my prayer that I was able to get out of the car.

When my husband and son went to examine my wrecked car they found just a heap of metal. Only one thing had not been utterly consumed in the intense heat. It was the book Patriarchs and Prophets. I had placed my purse, a pair of shoes, and an umbrella in the back seat along with the book. They were completely destroyed. The book cover was somewhat charred, but it was still readable.

My escape and the silent testimony of the book, have impressed many people. One young woman who was an atheist told me that it had made her believe in God.

I do not know why all this happened to me, but I am sure that God had his reasons. Our trials can be turned into blessings for ourselves and others if we will only let them. He says in His Word that He will not forsake us or leave us, and I know from experience that this is true. God spared my life for a purpose, and I pray with all my heart that I may fulfill that purpose and serve Him forever.

THE LAKE UNION REACHES OUT TO GHANA

Yeboah's Dream

by Jeanne Jepson

IN 1976, Paul and Elizabeth Yeboah, Chicago laymen, attended alumni homecoming at Oakwood College in Huntsville, Alabama. Lake Union Conference Evangelist Robert Connor was one of the weekend speakers.

The Yeboahs were impressed with the message Elder Connor presented, and Paul envisioned the success Elder Connor might have presenting the Gospel to the people in his homeland of Ghana.

That was the beginning of Paul's dream that finally became a reality early this year. "Even Paul was afraid there would not be an opportunity for his plans to come to fruition," said Elizabeth, "but in 1978 we began setting aside an amount from each paycheck for evangelism among the Ashanti people in Ghana."

Eventually, the Yeboahs and a friend, Dr. Lindsey Thomas of California, who was a missionary to Ghana, raised the money for Elder Connor's air fare to Ghana. Arrangements were made for him to conduct a four-week evangelistic crusade in Kumasi, the second largest city in the country, and capital of the Ashanti region.

The Ashanti people are an African tribe in Central Ghana. According to Elder Connor, they are proud of their heritage—they were great warriors and consider themselves the elite of the African tribes. The Ashantis are well educated; about 60 percent of them speak English. They are a warm, loving people with close family ties, and they cherish the customs and traditions of their ancestors.

"I must confess that I was apprehensive about going," said Elder Connor. "Here I work with a professional evangelistic team: a full-time minister of music; a full-time soloist, and Bible instructors. I wanted to take the entire team, but, of course, funds were not available. I wondered what it would be like working alone in a foreign country.

"When I arrived in Kumasi, I learned that neither an organ nor a piano would be available for the meetings, so I set about to find someone to sing the meditation and appeal hymns. Five young men formed a singing group, and these human voices became our instruments."

They sang the hymns Elder Connor uses in crusades here in the United States. They sang some of the hymns in English, some in Twi, the language spoken by the Ashantis.

To ensure that all who came could understand the message, Elder Connor used an interpreter. Paul Coffie, one of the local pastors, served as interpreter, translating the sermons into Twi.

And according to Elder Connor, Pastor Coffie was a tremendous asset to the meetings.

"After the second night we were like twins," commented Elder Connor. "He used the same voice inflection and gestures I used. I didn't need to slow down at all. Each day we discussed the vocabulary I planned to use that evening, in order to be certain there were words with similar meaning in the Twi."

Central Ghana Conference President M. A. Bediako was the associate evangelist. "It was wonderful to have his support," said Elder Connor. "He carries the responsibility of administrating a conference with more than 20,000 members. He was present every night but one during the four-week series. One night he was called to Nigeria on church business."

Meetings were held in a large tent that seated about 1,000 people. The tent was packed every night. Church members stood outside the tent so that their friends could sit inside.

"We tried to attach an addition to the tent, but we weren't able to," said Elder Connor. "People stood all around the outside. We were blessed with a good public address system, so everyone could hear.

"I have never seen laymen support evangelistic meetings like they did in Kumasi," remarked Elder Connor. "They gathered under the tent regularly to pray for the success of the meetings. They walked many miles throughout the city, inviting people to the meetings. 'If you would like to come, stand by the side of the road,' they told them, 'a truck will come and take you to the meeting.'"

Laymen were the Bible instructors, studying the Bible with their friends and neighbors. "When I asked for volunteers to visit the people who were attending the meetings," said Elder Connor, "I hoped 80—maybe even 100—people would respond. To my surprise, 800 people volunteered! The laymen in the Central Ghana Conference have the vision of soul-winning. They are on fire with a desire to share the Good News. They are uniting with pastors to finish the work."

In addition to conducting evangelistic meetings in the evening, Elder Connor spoke at college and university assemblies during the day. As a result, many students accepted his invitation to attend the meetings and scores of these young students were baptized.

According to Elder Connor, spiritism and voodooism are considered sacred rituals of the Ashanti culture. Christianity teaches that these practices are satanic, not sacred, and their whole way of thinking is challenged.

When Ashantis reject the religion of their ancestors, they are usually disinherited by their families. Family ties are strong, and they must stand courageously for the conviction of their conscience.

Polygamy is practiced among the Ashantis, and Elder Connor said this is another problem people face when they accept the teachings of the Adventist church. Men who have several wives love all of them dearly, but when they prepare for baptism, they continue to live with only their first wife, and they must arrange living accommodations and care for their other wives.

"Because they have made God supreme in their lives, His law is paramount, and they are willing to keep His commandments," said Elder Connor.

During the first two weeks of the series Elder Connor appealed to the people to accept Christ in their hearts, but not ask them to take a public stand. Although the tent was crowded every evening, Elder Connor was not sure whether the congregation grasped the message he presented.

"Am I getting through, Pastor Coffie?" he asked his interpreter.

"They are spellbound," replied Pastor Coffie.

"When I considered the sacrifice Paul Yeboah and others made for the crusade," said Elder Connor, "I prayed earnestly for the success of the campaign. Before I left for Ghana, I fasted and prayed. During my seasons of prayer, I asked God for 200 baptisms."

During the third week of the series, Elder Connor gave the people present an opportunity to signify publicly their intention to follow Christ. More than 250 people responded.

"My faith increased then," said Elder Connor, "and I asked the Lord for 400 baptisms."

When the final appeal was made at the close of the four-week campaign, 739 people expressed their desire to be baptized.

Two baptismal services, with five pastors officiating, were held in a nearby river; 452 people were baptized at the first service, and 287 at the second.

Commenting on Elder Connor's campaign, which culminated in the largest baptism in the history of the Northern Europe-West Africa Division, division President Walter Scragg sent the following message to church members in the Lake Union:

"This signifies the spiritual and evangelistic fire present in the Central Ghana Conference, which was the first conference organized in Black Africa. Elder Connor has shown what the Holy Spirit is waiting to do through His African peoples.

"We believe this will escalate evangelistic fervor in all West Africa, encourage our ministers, and establish evangelism as a prime responsibility of our lay people, without whom this marvelous harvest would have been impossible.

"Thank you, Robert Connor. Thank you, Lake Union. Above all, let us thank and praise God for His goodness."

"This experience has added a new dimension to my ministry," said Elder Connor. "I wonder if my faith has been too weak. When I saw the candidates on the river bank in Ghana waiting to be baptized, I thought of the Day of Pentecost when thousands were baptized in a day.

"We are promised that the Holy Spirit will be poured out again. I am looking forward to the day when, through the combined efforts of laymen and pastors, there will be a Day of Pentecost in the Lake Union."

Five pastors baptized 739 people in two services.

Does Anyone Care?

by Kenneth J. Holland

A small boy, admitted to a modern hospital for minor surgery, was placed in a room where a wall speaker made it possible for nurse and patient to talk to each other without the nurse having to leave her desk.

When Bobby awoke from the anesthetic, the nurse called his room and asked, "Bobby, how are you feeling?"

There was no answer. Again she called, "Bobby, are you all right? How are you feeling?" Still there was no answer. A third time the nurse was more insistent, "Bobby, answer me. How are you feeling?"

Back came a small, timid voice, "I'm all right, wall."

In commenting on this experience, George Vandeman says, "Too many people are talking to the wall, and counting the flies on the windowpane, and playing games with the wallpaper. Too many people are calling the time of day just to hear a human voice. And training parakeets to say, 'I love you.' And swallowing terror-reducing drugs to try to relieve their hurt!"

The trouble is that nobody seems to care.

Once again we approach the time for sending Adventist missionary journals, These Times and Signs of the Times, to people who are "talking to the wall." The publishers of these magazines are doing their best to provide warm, personalized messages that portray God's love, but they need your help to distribute them.

There are thousands of people in America who want to know about themselves. They want to be more alive. They want to know God. And you have an opportunity to help them.

The world is full of publications, and people are reading more than ever before; they are lonely, frightened, searching.

Would any of today's weekly news magazines devote an entire issue to the prophecies of Daniel and Revelation? Could they instruct people how to overcome a poor self-image? Could they reveal how Satan works to destroy the souls of men? Could they present a message of hope to a despairing world?

These Times and Signs of the Times proclaim the fundamental, life-enriching doctrines of the Bible, the judgment to come, the nonimmortality of the soul, and God's holy Sabbath.

The articles in these journals offer hope for the 1980's by telling of the resurrection life available to all men. Now we have resurrection life in the abiding Christ; soon we will have it even more gloriously in the coming Christ.

These Times and Signs of the Times present the Christian life style from the Seventh-day Adventist point of view.

The significance of missionary journals is clearly stated by Ellen G. White. She said, "If there is one work more important than another, it is that of getting our publications before the public, thus leading them to search the Scriptures."—Colporteur Ministry, p. 7.

Jesus often spoke in parables. The following contemporary parable, despite its inaccurate theology, speaks rather powerfully to Seventh-day Adventists.

A good man died and went to heaven. Upon approaching the keeper of the gates, he made the strange request to visit hell a few days before taking up his heavenly residence.

Permission was granted. He was amazed at what he found below.

He saw huge banquet tables piled high with delectable foods fit for kings. But all the people were emaciated, lean, anemic. Knives and forks six feet long were strapped to their hands so that they could never reach their mouths. They could not get one bite of food.

The visitor had enough. He hurried back to heaven, and on entering there he saw practically the same scene: the same kind of banquet tables, the same kind of long knives and forks strapped to the hands of the people. Yet the saints were pictures of health and strength, and they came in to dinner laughing together.

As the newcomer stood by, they approached tables and gathered generous helpings of food with their clinking silverware. Then they began to feed each other.

This had never occurred to the people in hell. According to the parable, that's why they were down there in the first place.

You are invited, through the use of our missionary journals, to feed your fellowmen with spiritual food. By doing so, you will be showing them that you care.

WORLD VIEW GAINED BY ANDREWS STUDENT

Natalie DeWend

Gaining a new perspective on the world and coming home to a family and a country that were different from what she remembered them to be were two of the most memorable aspects of Natalie DeWend's student missionary experience.

Natalie had always thought it would be "neat" to be a student missionary, and the fact that several of her friends were going overseas as well provided all the incentive necessary.

So in September 1978 she left her home in Hudsonville, Michigan, for Jakarta, Indonesia, and the Adventist English Conversational School.

Natalie's new world perspective began to form one evening when she watched the news on television and noticed that the map used as a backdrop behind the news broadcaster featured not the familiar outline of North and South America, but Asia and Australia instead. Somehow, that discovery made real for Natalie the fact that here she was truly a foreigner.

Her experience in Indonesia, where the predominate religions are Buddhism and Islam, showed Natalie that Seventh-day Adventists have been slow to unlock the secret of reaching people who are steeped in the Eastern religions. But she sees the beginning of real progress.

"The key is the family," she says. "In Western culture it's hard enough for an individual to step out of his family tradition and embrace the Adventist message. But in the Far East family ties are so strong that the pressure is enormous."

The emphasis of evangelism in that area, she says, is shifting away from the individual toward the family unit.

"Be prepared," is Natalie's advice to future student missionaries, "for what you will find when you come back. Styles change, your attitude changes, and even family relationships can change."

Now, at the age of 20, Natalie DeWend, sophomore business administration major at Andrews University, has completed one part of her education and has come home to complete another.

HERITAGE ROOM SEEKS FAMILY TREE INFORMATION

Louise Dederen, curator of the Heritage Room at Andrews, and student Linda Carpenter, right, search for information on the history of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in the Heritage Room's obituary file. The index, which contains more than 50,000 obituary notices from issues of the Adventist Review and the Lake Union Herald, provides valuable information for scholars working on research projects and for individuals investigating their family trees. "We are asking anyone who has information about ancestors of church members to send it to us at the Heritage Room," Mrs. Dederen said.

FOOTRACE FEATURES NOTED RUNNERS

The third annual Kountry Kanter, a 10-mile footrace originating from Andrews University in Berrien Springs, Michigan, will be held on Sunday afternoon, April 27, according to Dr. Daniel Klein, chairman of the university's physical education department.

Featured during this year's race will be Steve and Cheryl Flanigan, well-known runners from Boulder, Colorado.

The Flanigans will present a series of brief clinics on such subjects as realistic goal setting, equipment, warm-up procedures and pacing skills beginning at 10 A.M. on the day of the race, Dr. Klein said.

The race course will extend from the Andrews campus through the village of Berrien Springs and the surrounding countryside, with aid stations at appropriate intervals along the route. Police protection and medical service will also be available.

Starting time for the race is 2 P.M. Participants may run the 10-mile course or a 4-mile route.

This year's entry fee is $4 if paid by the pre-registration deadline of Sunday, April 20, and $5 until 1:30 P.M. the day of the event.

Information and registration forms may be obtained from the physical education department at Andrews, or by calling (616) 471-3253.

Area realtors recently visited Hinsdale Hospital to learn about the services offered to community residents.

REALTORS TOUR HOSPITAL

HINSDALE—Have you ever tried to sell a hospital? Probably not. Yet more than 40 area realtors recently came to an open house at Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital to be "sold" on the facility.

Hospitals must constantly alert new residents to the services available to them. The professionals most likely to encounter the majority of these new residents are realtors.

Thus, the public relations department of Hinsdale Hospital decided to have an open house for realtors to acquaint them with the hospital's services, so they could then give the information to new area residents.

Realtors who accepted the invitation attended a slide presentation of hospital services, took a walking tour and were provided with a question/answer period.

The short program, including a continental breakfast, met early in the day to allow realtors to reach their offices in time for business as usual.

Because most realtors naturally appraise a house while walking through, the program director gave the realtors a spoof sheet which detailed "specifications of the hospital property and facility."

A similar approach is used by schools to acquaint parents in their district with the educational facilities. The success of the program has prompted the public relations department to plan this as an annual event.

BRANCH SABBATH SCHOOL ACTIVE IN WARSAW

Don McCullough

Literature evangelist Don McCullough and Frances, his wife, have been actively working in a branch Sabbath School in Warsaw.

A small company of believers first met in a family room next to a laundromat at the Suburban Acres Trailer Court.

The court changed management and the group had to move. Lillian Nine, although not a member of the church, invited the branch Sabbath School group into her home.

Loren Whorley, a member of the Fort Wayne Church, serves as superintendent of the branch Sabbath School. Roger Martin, from Andrews University, is the pastor.

Recently 29 people attended the branch Sabbath School. More than $5,300 has been raised toward the purchase of a meeting place.

In October 1978 Bill and Betty Poe purchased a set of books from Don McCullough. Recently they were baptized and are an active part of the Warsaw group.

MURPHY SHARES HOLY LAND TRIP

Recently Pastor and Mrs. Randall Murphy presented a slide program at the Cicero Church about their trip to the Holy Land.

Pastor Murphy was selected by a local businessmen's club for an all-expenses-paid trip to the Holy Land. He chose the Ministry magazine 18-day tour in September 1979. The Cicero, Noblesville and Elwood churches sponsored his wife, Martha, to accompany him.

Besides the thrill of walking in the paths that Jesus trod and seeing the sights of the stories of the Bible, they had many other experiences: They left their passports in a motel, ate green oranges, bargained with many vendors, rode camels, and enjoyed the company of the 16 other members of the group.

CRUSADE HELD IN EAST CHICAGO

TEEN SNOW OUTING WAS THE LARGEST EVER

One of the largest groups ever assembled for a winter outing at Camp Au Sable met in January for the Teen Snow Outing. Merrill Fleming, Pathfinder director for Michigan, said 351 people registered for the weekend. Pathfinders and their leaders from around the state came to enjoy fellowship together, not only on the ski slopes and woodland trails, but also during the Sabbath worship hours. Skating was good on most of the lake, and downhill sliding was the best ever. Larry Caviness, youth director of the Carolina Conference, was the guest speaker for the weekend.

PATHFINDERS BUSY IN MICHIGAN

Michigan Pathfinder clubs are alive and well, judging from information and pictures received from leaders and pastors across the state recently.

Activities have ranged from canned food collections to training programs.

Grayling Pathfinders cooperated with local Brownie Scout troupes to collect more than 300 cans of food for needy people in their area.

After the collection of food, the young people met in Camp Au Sable lodge for a nature devotional, a movie and refreshments.

The Brownie leaders also helped with the Vacation Bible School last summer. Pathfinder Director Linda Johnson reported that the joint project was enjoyed by both groups.

Elder Merrill Fleming conducted a Pathfinder staff training course at the Hastings Church in February. Pathfinder leaders from Ionia, Freeport, Muskegon, Kalamazoo and Hastings attended the instruction.

NEWS NOTES

- During the weekend of February 23, fifteen couples from the Wisconsin Academy Church participated in the seminar, "Pillars of Marriage," presented by Don and Sue Murray of Andrews University. Group meetings and opportunities to be alone to discuss the principles presented highlighted the meetings. Positive and enthusiastic responses were given by all participants.

- On March 8 and 9, the Wisconsin Academy Church sponsored a "Water, Water" program, presented by John Reeves of River Pines, Wisconsin. Sabbath afternoon featured simple remedies for disease. Sunday was devoted to demonstrations of home treatments.

- LeeRoy Holmes, pastor of the State Line, Oregon, Church, was guest speaker for the spring Week of Prayer, March 9 to 15, at Wisconsin Academy. Pastor Holmes has been a pastor and Bible teacher at Columbia, Upper Columbia, and Laurelwood academies. He spent time counseling with students and speaking in classes, as well as presenting devotional talks. Pastor Holmes was the author of a recent youth Sabbath School quarterly. On Sabbath, March 15, the Wisconsin Academy Choralaires, directed by Louise Larmon and accompanied by Gary Klemp, presented the church service. Elder Holmes talked about the importance of music in the Christian life.

● Larry Huston of the Wisconsin Conference stewardship department visited the Clearwater Lake Church on February 17, 1980. His sermon was entitled "Motivation by Belief."

● The Wausau Pathfinders, in an effort to combine total church support for the Faith For Today campaign, made a heart for the members of the church to place their dimes on. A Pathfinder director said that the church support of the project was appreciated and gives incentive for further Pathfinder/church cooperation on outside projects. The total amount received was $30.20.

island in Lake Superior.

A chartered boat will take the participants to one of the larger islands of the Apostle Island National Lakeshore.

The group will camp in two different locations, backpack all of their gear for several miles across country without trails, and enjoy a wilderness experience far removed from the distractions of daily life. At the end of the week the participants will return by chartered boat.

The trip will be directed by experienced wilderness campers, and there will be plenty of opportunity for learning wilderness living and survival skills in addition to Christian fellowship and fun.

Sound interesting? Contact the Wisconsin Conference youth department for information and application forms right away. Applications are now being accepted. Write to Island Wilderness Camp, Youth Ministries, Wisconsin Conference, P.O. Box 7310, Madison, WI 53707.

PUBLISHING HOUSE MERGER ANNOUNCED

The smallest and the second largest of the three Seventh-day Adventist publishing houses in the United States have agreed to operate jointly under one management.

The decision was made in Washington, D.C., on March 20 at a joint constituency meeting. The smallest, Southern Publishing Association, is located in Nashville, Tennessee, and the second largest, the Review and Herald Publishing Association, is located in Washington, D.C.

All assets and liabilities of both houses will be combined in the cooperative structure. The corporate name under the merger will be Review and Herald Publishing Association. However, publications with both names will continue.

Harold F. Otis Jr., general manager of the Review and Herald, has been elected to manage the joint operation.

The merger is an outgrowth of the need to fully utilize the high-speed equipment already in operation at the Washington, D.C. plant. A 31-inch web press on order for delivery to the Review and Herald will be installed in the Nashville plant. The Southern Publishing Association has also implemented several cost-cutting and income-providing measures.

W. Ross Wollard, general manager of Southern Publishing Association, plans to retire this fall.

ADVENTIST REVIEW ASSOCIATE EDITOR DIES

unexpectedly on March 3 in his Silver Spring, Maryland, home. His death was the result of a myocardial infarction.

Kenneth Wood, editor of the Adventist Review, said, "Elder Neufeld was a man of tremendous spiritual and intellectual stature, a respected scholar and peerless exegete. He was a strong defender of truth with a good perspective on both the Bible and the history of the Advent Movement. Through his work on the Seventh-day Adventist Bible Commentary and as an associate editor of the Adventist Review, he will long be remembered, and his writings will continue to be a blessing and strength to the church that he loved."

Elder Neufeld, who served his church for 40 years, was first a pastor/evangelist in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, Canada, after earning a Bachelor of Theology degree at Walla Walla College in Washington in 1939.

He obtained a master's degree from the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary in Maryland in 1948. He was given an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree by Andrews University in Michigan in 1972.

He is the author of the Sabbath School lesson material, "Redemption in Romans," for the first quarter of 1980.

He and Maxine, his wife of 41 years, have six children, two girls and four boys.

LARGE-PRINT REVIEW NOW AVAILABLE

In May 1980 a large-print monthly edition of the Adventist Review will be available at the same subscription rate as the regular Review. Tabloid-size, with type faces about one-third larger than those in the regular issue, this edition will be easily read by people with limited vision. The Review and Herald Publishing Association voted to produce the large print edition after receiving hundreds of requests from readers. It is estimated that a minimum of 2,000 people will subscribe.
