BEING a part of the Lake Union family for nearly five years has been a fulfilling experience for Merlo and me. We simply cannot count the many ways the hundreds of conference and institutional staff people, and that other vast number of ministers we often refer to erroneously as laity, have encouraged our hearts and enriched our lives. It is encouraging to know that even as we continue to work in this world and look forward to that ultimate relationship in the world to come, that in Christ we will always be one in the family of God!

Please accept this final homily. In recent weeks through our Sabbath School lessons we have reviewed the history of the Christian church. I trust you have been encouraged by the way our Lord revealed through the disciple John the precise account of the experiences God's children would pass through and the effusive care, including discipline and protection, so lovingly demonstrated in the church's behalf. It has been a long and perilous journey for God's people, as in each age they have sought to extend the Gospel story. Through failure and success the family of God remains to this day. The enemy may hurt God's people. He may discourage God's people. He may persecute God's people, but God's plan to save and restore cannot be stopped.

We must never forget that one member of the Godhead is resident in the earth. The Holy Spirit is in charge of the affairs of man. In the struggle between truth and error, the enemy is evident in certain successes, but never to the ultimate peril of God's people. Truth prevailed through the darkest years, and truth will prevail now and in the future.

Let us earnestly and prayerfully study God's message to Laodicea. Certainly it must offer solace as we realize our privilege in living so near the end of time. Responsibly, we also must recognize that privilege demands accountability. God's urgent appeal to Laodicea is a call to recognize its true condition and the solemnity of the time of its existence: to awaken from its smug, self-satisfied condition; to recognize its need for repentance, faith, the righteousness of Christ and the unction of the Holy Spirit.

Those who hear and respond to the appeal of the One waiting at the door, will again, as in former years, say "Pastor, what can I do to help?" "Brother evangelist, when can we have a series of meetings where I can personally take my friends and neighbors?" Or "please let me go with you so I can learn to witness." The church of God is moving into the final scenes of the great controversy. Please dear brothers, sisters, don't hesitate longer. Place yourself solidly on God's side and be a part of the exciting victory over Satan and sin!

Your new president, Elder Robert Carter, is an outstanding and dedicated church leader and servant of God. Under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, he will give strong leadership to the Lake Union Conference. You will enjoy meeting him and his lovely wife, Rose. Each local conference enjoys strong leadership. Surely God's work in this territory will progress.

When meeting each other or saying goodbye, the early Christians expressed their faith and hope by greeting each other with the word Maranatha. The expression appeared officially in the "apostolic constitutions" (VII, 26) where it reads, "Gather us all together into Thy kingdom which Thou hast prepared. Maranatha, Hosanna to the son of David; blessed is He that cometh. . . ." In time the word seemed to embody the consummation of all Christian desires. Believing with all our hearts that the ultimate fulfillment of God's plan for mankind is near at hand, my wife, Merlo, and I will close this column and our stay in your midst with that same expression of love—Maranatha!

THE HEART OF THE LAKE UNION: A NEW UNION PRESIDENT

Robert H. Carter

by Jere Wallack

ROBERT H. Carter, 54, was elected president of the Lake Union Conference on May 7.

Elder Carter, formerly executive secretary of the Lake Union, is the first black to become president of a North American division union.

That is the news—"the facts" as reporters say. But the news does not reflect the man Robert Carter.

Warm. Friendly. A quick smile. Dynamic. Diplomatic. A wise, organized administrator. Spiritual. Burdened for a finished work. Sincere and dignified.

Robert Carter was born the third of four children and raised in Bridgeport, Connecticut, by faithful Adventist parents. His father was a deacon and his mother the church organist.

He is a graduate of Oakwood Academy, Oakwood College, and holds a master's degree from Andrews University.

He met Rose Marie Vaughn of Chicago at Oakwood and later married her in the Chicago Shiloh Church.

H. W. Kibble Sr., then president of the Lake Region Conference, performed the ceremony.

Because of his artistic talents, his father was certain that Bob would become an architect. But after assisting his older brother, Gene, as tent master and song leader in an evangelistic series, Robert felt called of God to become a minister.

His ministry began while he was still a college student. He worked for 2½ years as a literature evangelist in Georgia and Tennessee.

His first pastoral experience was as associate minister of the Ephesus Church in New York City. He pastored various other churches in the Northeastern Conference for 11 years, and returned, at age 36, as senior pastor of the 2,400-member Ephesus Church for six years. He also conducted many successful "tent efforts" during those years.

Elder Carter was ordained in 1957 in Hyde Park, New York, and for four years was executive secretary of the Northeastern Conference.

Elder and Mrs. Carter then felt a clear call from Heaven—though it was a difficult decision—to the presidency of the Uganda field in East Africa.

They arrived within days of the beginning of the political problems in the country caused by the regime of Idi Amin. Their year in Uganda was filled with cordial relationships with church members, punctuated by frightening experiences with government officials. (Invite him to share the fascinating details of his Uganda experience with your church family sometime.)

Their term of service ended suddenly one day when—without warning—Elder Carter was arrested and imprisoned. Government officials gave no response when he asked them to explain the charges against him. They questioned him intensely and continually.

Dozens of Adventists throughout Uganda heard on the radio of his arrest and they came to be near their beloved leader. They met in a park across from the jail and conducted a continuous service of prayer and song. Elder Carter's courage was strengthened by their presence.

After two days he was taken at midnight to be flown, alone, to New York.

A church school teacher was able to speak a few words of encouragement to his president: "Don't worry. You will be safe and we will watch over Rose until she can join you. Then we will worry about ourselves."

Rose, who went with the band of believers to the airport, said that as the plane left, the members all sang "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." She was able to join her husband 10 days later.

The Carters then served in Bermuda, where he was conference president, for three years before coming to the Lake Union Conference in July 1977.

His hopes for the Lake Union? "It is my prayer that the spirit of unity and enthusiasm that was generated by our former administration will motivate every layman and worker to concentrate on one thing—the work of calling men and women to the feet of the cross of Christ."

THE 1980 GENERAL CONFERENCE SESSION

By His Spirit

by Jere Wallack

FROM around the world they came representing 192 countries.

Their language, dress, stature, skin color were different.

Sitting together were former headhunters and college professors. The high-heeled and the barefoot. Western-suited and saronged.

Translation headsets dotted the congregation, though English continued to be the international language. Translators gave understanding in Russian, French, Spanish, Portuguese and German. Even those from New Guinea where 650 languages are spoken—really a new tongue and culture in each village—were together in pidgin English.

They were all part of one family. God's family. All carried a quick, happy Christian smile. Their purpose was motivated by the same urgency: A finished work "By His Spirit." A close feeling of unity prevailed.

Dallas. The 53rd World General Session of the Seventh-day Adventist church.

There were 2,018 official delegates. Together they made some changes in the church manual, clarified the fundamental beliefs of the denomination, and defined the immediate goals of the church.

The theme of the entire session was "By His Spirit," taken from Zachariah. The vitality of these words pervaded the entire session. They were prominently displayed on the backdrop, which also contained 192 flags, one for each country represented at the session.

The 182-member nominating committee, made up of members throughout the world, had as chairman H. H. Smith, Southern Union president.

Dr. Joseph G. Smoot, president of Andrews University, was secretary of the nominating committee, which filled 293 positions in the General Conference office in Washington and in the 11 world division offices.

Two of those positions were filled with Lake Union Conference workers. President Lowell Bock was elected one of six general vice presidents, and director of education, Fred R. Stephan, was elected as an associate director of the General Conference department of education for the North American Division.

History was made because two of the General Conference's top three officers elected are not from North America. The session brought the first non-caucasian to officer status: G. Ralph Thompson, Barbados born, is the new executive secretary.

It was the first time in the 117-year history of the church that a non-North American was named as treasurer. He is Lance L. Butler from Sidney, Australia.

Neal C. Wilson, 60, was re-elected president with a standing ovation. Elder Wilson began his ministry as an accountant in Poona, India, 41 years ago. Since then he has been a pastor-evangelist, a treasurer, departmental director and president on various levels of the church structure.

Elder Wilson opened the 10-day session with the keynote address.

His message contained what he called "10 major concerns" for the church. He wants to clarify the "mission and the message" of the church. He seeks to strengthen the family witness, place qualified women in leadership posts, and emphasize Christian education.

He is also anxious to encourage lay initiative and make organizational changes, enabling all aspects of the church's work to be "cost effective."

Charles E. Bradford, who was re-elected as vice president for North America, preached on the first Sabbath morning to the 10,000 delegates and members assembled in the Dallas Convention Center.

Said Elder Bradford, "God's ultimate self-revelation is in His word, and if we do not accept this fact, we shall be left to the gods of our own making—culture, science, money and humanism."

According to Elder Bradford, the church does not need new theology. "What we do need is a vital new contact with the living God," he said. The first Sabbath's activities concluded with a dramatic presentation by the ministerial association entitled, "The Worth of a Soul."

Four "angels" slowly ascended the platform carrying the "Book of Life." They carefully searched the book for the names of the saved. A "blind" man, a "crippled" girl, and many others came forward and "were healed" and greeted by the welcoming arms of the angels.

Especially did the scene become realistic to Carmen Paredes, former director of the department of elementary education of Guatemala. Mrs. Paredes had been badly injured in an automobile accident 17 months ago, and had been confined to a wheelchair ever since.

On August 10 last year she was baptized in a Kenneth Cox crusade in Guatemala City. Continued visits to her neurologist brought her little courage that she would ever walk again.

During the program she quietly spoke to Barbara Folkenberg, sitting next to her, and said, "I'm beginning to feel some strange sensations in my legs. I think I can stand up." Mrs. Folkenberg and Mrs. Paredes quietly prayed together.

"I think I can walk. I think God has healed me," Mrs. Paredes said. Slowly, but gaining confidence, she walked to the front of the auditorium. One hour later this woman, who had been wheeled into the auditorium, was still standing in front, humbly offering praises to God for her healing.

Many events of the session will stand out vividly in the memory of those who were there. Many Dallas residents will also remember the session.

Before the 10-day session began, the city was made aware of Adventists because the church sponsored several health-oriented projects. Downtown shoppers and businessmen were greeted at some 30 intersections by 40 college and academy students wearing "May I help you?" buttons.

The students were promoting a Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking conducted immediately after the session. The giant cigarette they carried, five feet long, listed the harmful poisons connected with smoking.

Several church-sponsored health-screening vans from throughout the United States offered free blood-pressure checks at five shopping malls throughout the Dallas area.

On the opening Friday of the session, a special Thanksgiving program was held at Thanksgiving Square, in the heart of Dallas featuring flag-carrying nationals in native costume from 192 countries (see cover photo). They paraded about one-half mile from the convention center during the noon hour.

The program at the square included some music groups, a short talk by President Neal Wilson, and personal testimonies of thanks in several languages.

Inspired by the presence of hundreds of costumed nationals, Dallas declared an international week. Throughout the week Adventist music groups from Poland, Puerto Rico, the Dominican Republic and Mexico joined other large groups for city mall concerts.

Dallas citizens were also made aware of the events throughout the session as a constant flow of news streamed from the press room. Church communication personnel from around the world kept busy day and night writing news releases and providing radio and television stations with up-to-the-minute reports.

On Sunday the Dallas Times Herald prepared a 20-page tabloid insert featuring the General Conference session.

More than 8,000 radio stations across the nation were alerted to the availability of two, one-minute news briefs for rebroadcast locally

Clockwise, from top: G.C. President Neal Wilson addressed the session on several occasions. The Filipino Family Singers were among the many musical groups that performed. The mission pageant on Sabbath afternoon was highlighted by the parade of the divisions—most people wore their national costumes.

by dialing a toll-free WATS line 24 hours a day. The three lines were in use almost constantly.

The final Sabbath fellowship was enjoyed by more than 30,000 Adventists. The services were held in the grand hall, a room larger than two complete football fields. Two giant television screens, 24 by 28 feet, magnified the service participants for all to see.

President Neal Wilson's sermon challenged the worldwide membership of the church to a life of repentance and "total commitment to finish the work, not by might, nor by power, but by His spirit."

The Sabbath afternoon musical praise service was most memorable. Instrumentalists, vocalists, choral and orchestral groups from all over the world were featured.

Youth from the 12 Adventist colleges in North America combined to form a 300-voice mass choir and 100-piece symphony. And over and over again, the words were heard, "The Adventist Church has the finest musical talent anywhere."

Closing the 10-day conclave was a 90-minute parade of missions which featured Andrea Steele, Lake Union Herald assistant editor, and her husband, Allen, manager of WAUS-FM, as narrators.

Honored during the parade of missions were Dr. Elizabeth Hiscox, who served 42 continuous years at Gifford Memorial Hospital, Nuzvid, India; Erna Krueger, who 50 years ago left her home in Berlin and has been "mother" to hundreds of children in the Adventist orphanage in Cairo, Egypt; Dan Walters, a missionary pilot along the Amazon River in South America for the past 14 years, and all the nationals that they represented.

New languages and a wide variety of accents in English are now being heard at the Washington, D.C., headquarters, and Seventh-day Adventists from the four corners of the earth have returned home to make Christianity relevant to those who know not Christ.

Clockwise, from top: Meeting old friends from around the world was a favorite pastime at the General Conference session. Allen and Andrea Steele narrated the mission pageant on April 26. Members of the Russian delegation compare notes. A special service was held in Thanksgiving Square in Dallas. Samuel Oliveras of Panama, left, the youngest G.C. delegate, talks with Lake Union delegates Mr. and Mrs. Willie Smith. The sound of the Swiss alpenhorn echoed through the arena during the Euro-Africa Division report.

Happy to Be Alive

by Donna Willard

In addition to working in the camps, medical teams went into the villages to give medical care to the Thai people in their homes.

Editor's note: Beginning in February of this year, medical personnel from Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital have been involved in volunteer relief efforts for the Cambodian refugees. Working under the auspices of Seventh-day Adventist World Services (SAWS), a member of the task force of the United Nations, several physicians and nurses from the hospital have served and are now serving one-month stints in Thailand. While there, they work with the International Red Cross and volunteers from 18 other international organizations. The following article relates some of the experiences of Stephen Bielinski, Dale Fetroe and Dave Ahrens, resident physicians in the Family Practice Residency, and Judy Fetroe, R.N. Others from Hinsdale Hospital who are involved in the relief efforts include Jill Minus, R.N.; Steve Bascom, Keith Hanson, and Ron McLean, family practice residents; and Walter Thompson, M.D., staff surgeon.

THE people consider themselves lucky to be alive. Although they all have a tragic tale to tell, they exhibited a tremendous amount of love, showing no hatred or bitterness," says Judy Fetroe. "We discovered that they are not much different from us. There were cultural differences of course, yet their life philosophy is the same. With the distance removed, we could really identify with the people. It could have been us as easily as them."

Reflecting on their four-week stay in Khao-I-Dang, a Cambodian refugee camp approximately 15 miles from the Cambodian border, Stephen Bielinski and Dale and Judy Fetroe agree that it was the refugee people that made their trip worthwhile.

"Our translators were representative of the people in the camp," says Stephen. "They included a medical student, a lawyer and the wife of a diplomat."

"These people are resourceful, hard-working people—definitely not welfare candidates," Stephen continued. "All they want is a chance."

"There were thousands of children in the camp," says Judy. "Everyone was anxious to learn English. One of the best times was each morning when we always had worship with the children. They learned to sing 'Zacchaeus' word for word, and I learned two songs in Cambodian."

Despite the fact that these people live under the constant threat of attack, they exhibited little evidence of depression. "They did not react as Americans normally react," says Stephen. "Of course, we may not have been sensitive to their ways of expressing feeling."

"No one cries," says Judy. "The first time I saw tears was when we were leaving. Many saw their families murdered. If they cried, they would be murdered, too. Their experiences during five years of fleeing invading armies have changed their personalities. They talk in a superficial way. Rather than relate the brutal way a family member was killed, they would just say 'he died.'"

The medical facilities at Khao-I-Dang were relatively sophisticated. Because of the variety of specialists available (dentists, ophthalmologists, a pediatrician, surgeons, a psychiatrist and radiologists) the camp became a medical referral center for other area camps. There were 110,000 people in the camp with two hospitals.

The hospitals, which were made of bamboo with thatched roofs and dirt floors, were divided into wards including obstetrics, pediatrics and adult medical, with facilities for physical therapy and leprosy and tuberculosis patients.

"Although it was depressing to see the people under drastic conditions, we were glad we had the medical supplies and expertise to help," Dale says. Yet there were frustrations.

"Blood chemistries were absent; we had no lab results," says Stephen. "With no blood counts we often had to allow the body to do its best in natural healing."

The major medical problems treated were tuberculosis, malnutrition, beriberi, diarrhea, malaria and worms. Pictured with the patient is Dale Fetroe, M.D.

Only emergency surgeries were performed. Because of critical needs, medical teams were allowed to treat only those patients in life-threatening circumstances.

SAWS rented two homes for the medical teams. "We shared our home with a snake, a rat, a rooster, lizards and bugs," says Judy. "We ate supper by candlelight. We had running water, a tile floor and bare wooden walls.

One house was the "dormitory" sleeping area. The other house, where they ate meals, had a table, folding chairs and benches. A Thai woman from the Seventh-day Adventist Hospital in Bangkok cooked meals which included rice, pineapples, bananas, granola, whole wheat bread, noodles, soup and curry with rice.

"What really kept us going was the fact that the refugees were so glad to have us there," says Stephen. "Their spirits are not destitute. These people have a lot of potential. We would all like to go back. However, there is danger now that the Red Cross may pull out, and volunteer agencies cannot do the work without them."

The uncertain future of these people and the inability of any agency to provide long-term solutions is what causes so much frustration to relief volunteers. "We wanted to do something for them," says Judy, "That is why we went."

The team members from Hinsdale did not all go to Camp Khao-I-Dang. Dave Ahrens, M.D., family practice resident, volunteered to go inside Cambodia itself to work with soldiers at a camp accessible only by a three-mile hike up a mountain. The closest town was 40 miles away. Conditions were primitive and fear of attack was ever present.

"There were three perimeters of soldiers protecting the camp," says Dave. "I could always hear shelling and artillery fire. I thought it was maneuvers, but I was told there was not enough ammunition for maneuvers. We were never told how close the front was. I was more afraid than I had ever been in my life.

"My house was an 8-by-8-foot tent. We were allowed three gallons of water a day to bathe with and wash our clothes. I washed my clothes—I had two changes of surgery greens—wrung the water back into the container and used it to wash up with. Because of the heat, 110 degrees during the day, a bath always felt best at noon.

"The most prevalent diseases treated were malaria and worms. A lot of the soldiers were treated for shrapnel wounds. Every soldier had a gun at his bedside. Some of them looked like kids, 10 or 12 years old. All were young, usually 15 to 25. There were two hospitals in the camp. Each day I saw about 50 patients in the hospital and 50 more outpatients in the villages. There were many soldiers that belonged in the hospital, but there were no beds available.

"Like the Thai people and the Cambodians across the border, these people were grateful to have us there. They appreciated everything we did.

"It was a good experience. I'd go back to Thailand again. It really opens your eyes. I think everyone should live once in these kinds of conditions. They'd never complain about their food or country again."

Mark Dupre

MISSION EXPERIENCE OPENS NEW WORLD

Mark Dupre's experience as a student missionary was like so many others in that he taught English and Bible at a language school. But it was also different from the rest.

First, Mark was a relatively new Adventist. Also, he didn't go to Japan or Korea, but to Indonesia, to the Adventist English Conversational School in the capital city of Jakarta.

"The Advent," as it is called by most everyone in town, is probably the largest Adventist language school in the Far East, with an enrollment of more than 1,000, and is well known by the public. Last year about 400 would-be students were turned away for lack of room.

Mark, who was 20 and a sophomore business administration and management major at Andrews, left for Indonesia in June 1978, after becoming convinced that it was what God wanted him to do. Having never been mission-oriented, he was somewhat surprised at his new interest.

When he consulted his family, most of whom were now in the church, Mark found support and encouragement for a student missionary venture. Only after he went did he discover that they never really expected him to go.

The predominant religion of Indonesians is Islam, generally one of the hardest groups in the world to reach with the Gospel of Christ. And indeed, when Australian evangelist Peter Jack held a series of meetings in Jakarta, the nightly attendance dropped from about 800 to only 350 as soon as Jesus was featured in the sermons.

Nevertheless, Mark says the crusade resulted in about 500 baptisms by September 1979, nothing short of phenomenal in that area.

What would Mark say to someone who is considering the student missionary program?

"Trust in God and do His will with a smile on your face."

Mark's one-year stint in Indonesia has been the stimulus for his plans for the future. He hopes to enter hospital administration—in the mission field.

BECKER PUBLISHES BOOKS

The first in a series of revised books by Dr. C. Warren Becker, professor of music at Andrews, has recently been published. Dr. Becker, who is on an extended two-year leave, is working with organist and author Harold Gleason in revising a series of music history and literature books entitled Music Literature Outlines.

CAMPUS HIGHLIGHTS

● Max Church, former director of development and public relations at WAUS-FM, has left the station to establish the West Indies Resource Enterprise (WIRE), a network of off-shore assembly plants in Haiti,

Jamaica and the Dominican Republic. This electronics assembly facility will assist students on Adventist college campuses in the West Indies in earning part of their tuition costs.

● Dr. Otilie Stafford, professor of English at Atlantic Union College in Massachusetts, is serving as a visiting professor in Andrews' English department this spring.

● The Seventh-day Adventist Student Association choir from Soweto, South Africa, presented a concert at Andrews April 14, featuring a variety of African music and works by Witty, Handel, Bach and Mozart.

● Dr. Ruth Murdoch, professor of educational psychology at Andrews, will be the first guest lecturer in the new Master of Arts in Teaching program offered at Atlantic Union College in South Lancaster, Massachusetts, through an affiliation with Andrews. She will teach graduate courses in the education of emotionally impaired children and the psychology of character development during the second session of the school's summer term.

● The Southwestern Michigan Inaugural Conference on Counseling Minorities was held at Andrews April 1. Several authorities on counseling attended the meeting, which was sponsored by the Adventist Student Personnel Association and the counselors' association of Berrien, Cass and Van Buren counties in Michigan.

● Sixteen runners completed a cross-country relay run from Andrews to Detroit April 9 and 10. Dr. Daniel Klein, physical education department chairman, said they made the trip to "show the benefits of an active life style and the results of healthful living." The group arrived in Detroit at the start of a five-day health conference.

● The Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary has begun a program to help strengthen and coordinate all aspects of the ministry of the church. The Institute of Church Ministry is an official extension of the seminary and will use proven methods of evangelism and ministry blended with scientific research.

NEWS NOTES

● Daniel Bledsaw, an eighth-grader at the Decatur Church School, won first prize in the Macon County Nutrition Poster Contest, sponsored by the Illinois Council on Nutrition. His poster is being sent to Springfield for the state competition. Chris Cohen, a third-grader, won second place for his age group.

● Two young people, Denise Geier and Peter Thorsen, were baptized on February 2, at the Hinsdale Church.

● The Hinsdale Church presented a Focus on the Family Week, February 9 to 16, with nightly meetings featuring Dr. James Dobson's films, as well as presentations by church members and guest speakers about marriage and family life. Several people from the community also attended.

● Dr. Richard Schwarz of Andrews University, Dr. William Loveless of Columbia Union College and Dr. Marlowe Schaffner from Loma Linda University were featured as the speakers on February 22 and 23 at the Hinsdale Church. The weekend, with the theme "Our Health Heritage," was sponsored by Hinsdale Hospital.

● Mike Doucoumes, a ministerial intern for the Illinois Conference, was recently ordained as a local elder of the Springfield Church. He is working in the Jacksonville area to reestablish a church company in that city. God has blessed the work there, and plans are being made to purchase a house of worship.

● A special candlelight communion service was held in the North Shore Church on Friday evening, February 29. The service concluded with a special season of prayer for the Prophecy '80 evangelistic series currently being conducted in the church by Pastor Stanley Cottrell.

● Dorothy Stone, a student in Karen William's multi-grade room at Hinsdale Junior Academy won third place in statewide competition in the Illinois State Council on Nutrition's poster contest for elementary school children.

● The Voice of Prophecy Golden Jubilee meeting in Chicago on March 22 resulted in more than $7,000 in contributions. A dinner in honor of Elder Richards coordinated by Harry Hartsock of the Hinsdale Church brought in an additional $4,000. These funds will assist in paying air time for two more daily broadcasts in the Chicago area: WKDC 1530 at 9:00-9:15 A.M. and WTAQ, 1300, at 7:45 A.M.

● Halvard B. Thomsen, pastor of the Milwaukee Central Seventh-day Adventist Church, was the guest speaker for the spring Week of Spiritual Emphasis co-sponsored by Hinsdale Hospital and the Hinsdale Seventh-day Adventist Church.

● Richard Habenicht, associate pastor of the Hinsdale Church, was one of seven speakers in a community service on Good Friday, April 4. He presented a meditation on Mary, the mother of Jesus titled, "The Shadow of Responsibility." Seventeen pastors participated in the three-hour program held at Christ Lutheran Church, Hinsdale, Illinois.

● Ten children were presented by their parents for dedication on Sabbath, March 29, at the Hinsdale Church. They were: Kevin, son of Roscoe and Julie Aldrich; Stephen, son of Stephen and Valorie Bielinski; Holly, daughter of Terry and Darlene Burg; Deborah, daughter of Donald and Denise Coon; Erica, daughter of Terry and Arlene Foster; Jonathon, son of Edward and Brenda Hill; Samuel, son of Benjamin and Luivina McCash; Jeremy, son of Kenneth and Carol Scanton; Jeremy, son of Alan and Rae Twing; and Travis, son of Steven and Linda Speakman.

● The Edgewood Branch of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union recently presented awards to two students of the Moline Seventh-day Adventist School. In the WCTU poster contest on Drugs and Smoking, James Norman won a first place and Dean Eckart won third place from the school. Doris Capicotte is their teacher.

● More than 25 members of the Illini Outdoor Club enjoyed a pleasant weekend at the Indiana Dunes, April 18 to 21. Richard Cook conducted the Sabbath School and Club President Bill Froelich gave the sermon. The singing was led by Jo Anne Dillon. After a potluck dinner and a short rest, the group hiked over the sand dunes and along the beach. Vespers by Bill Froelich and a campfire concluded the day's activities. The next camp-out will be May 23 to 25 at White Oaks, near Starved Rock. Everyone is welcome.

● On the evening of April 19, 1980, the Waukegan Church members enjoyed a program by the Tumbling '80 Team from Hinsdale Junior Academy.

RICHARDS TO SPEAK AT CAMP MEETING

H.M.S. Richards Jr., Director-Speaker of the Voice of Prophecy since 1969, will be the featured speaker Sunday evening, June 8, at Broadview Academy for the 1980 camp meeting. The Sheltonettes trio from the West Frankfort Church will also be featured that evening.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH HAS ADVENTIST PASTOR

Kewanee-Wyoming district pastor Peter Rampton has been asked by the church board of the Atkinson United Church of Christ Congregational Church to serve as interim pastor until the church finds a permanent minister.

Pastor Rampton has already spoken on seven occasions and held the communion service, which he says "is surprisingly similar to the way Adventists commemorate the last supper."

The church, which has been without a minister for five months, offers good evangelistic opportunities with a ready audience of at least 80 attending members.

Pastor Rampton has been asked by the head deacon to preach a series of sermons on Daniel and Revelation, and on the meaning of the new birth.

Announcing to the congregation on Sunday, March 30, that Pastor Rampton was willing to serve, the head deacon said, "The Ramptons already seem to be part of the church family."

LAKE AT TIMBER RIDGE GETS ATTENTION

The 11-acre lake at Timber Ridge Camp is getting some much needed attention. For several years the water has been murky and weeds have been on the increase.

So the conference signed a contract with an aquatic-control company in Seymour, Indiana, to revitalize the lake.

Last November, aeration units were installed in the lake. This process has been used for many years to add new life to lakes in Europe and more recently in the United States.

Before camp begins this spring weed control will be effected in several strategic places on the lake.

It is hoped that these measures will make the lake a more attractive place for Timber Ridge campers during the summer of 1980.

1980 INDIANA CAMP MEETING PLANS

Elder Caris Lauda, a former president of several conferences, will be the early morning devotional speaker during the camp meeting, June 13 through 21.

Other guests include Morris Venden, who will speak on Thursday and Friday at 10:45 A.M. and 2:15 P.M., and Sabbath afternoon, June 21, at 4 P.M.

H.M.S. Richards Jr., and the King's Heralds will have the worship service and the evening meeting on June 21.

Mark Finley, director of the Lake Union Soulwinning Institute in Hinsdale, Illinois, will speak at the evening meetings, June 17 to 19.

Leo Van Dolson, associate editor of the Adventist Review, will conduct two series from June 17 to 20. At the 9:15 A.M. session, he will give help on "How to Study the Bible." The evening series, beginning at 7:15, will be "Health Emphasis."

L. E. Tucker from the Quiet Hour radiobroadcast will speak on Sunday night, June 15.

Herman Bauman, chairman of the Atlantic Union religion department, will be the nightly speaker for the youth department. He has spent many years in evangelism and has also served in the mission field.

The annual Indiana Book and Bible House Book Sale will be held at 2:30 P.M., Sunday, June 15, in the main auditorium.

Pathfinders will also have a Tag Day on Sunday, June 15, to raise money for a special camp project.

STUDIES IN REVELATION FOLLOW MEETINGS

Every Monday evening, beginning on April 28, Lester Carney, conference ministerial secretary and evangelism coordinator, has conducted a study in the book of Revelation at the Indiana Conference office. The studies follow a series of evangelistic meetings held during March and April at the Convention Center in downtown Indianapolis. Above, Betty Engelkemier, Martha Dalton and Dorothy Parkhurst mapped out their visits to interested people and gave them invitations to attend the meetings. Photo by Bonnie Planck.

A DAY TO REMEMBER

February 16, 1980, will be a day Barry and Sheila Cole will long remember.

Barry Cole and Sheila Kitzmiller were baptized that morning in the Indianapolis Glendale Church by Jerry Lastine, stewardship and trust services director for the Indiana Conference.

That evening Barry and Sheila united their lives in marriage.

Barry was formerly a member of the Michigan City, Indiana, Church. After being out of the church for a period of time he states, "Such peace comes to you when you come back to the Lord and are with the Seventh-day Adventist remnant people."

Sheila, who is originally from Ft. Wayne, learned about the Adventist faith when she met Barry. She says, "Attending church makes our family so much closer now."

Barry, a graduate of Ball State University with a degree in math, is employed by the American Testing and Engineering Corporation. Sheila works for a Marsh Super Market.

NEWS NOTE

● The Beacon of Joy Church of Chicago, Illinois, and the Adventist Youth Department recently sponsored a farewell luncheon for Donald Davis who has joined the Air Force. He will receive basic training at Lacklin Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas, and then will serve four years in England. Donald is a graduate of Shiloh Academy in Chicago, and is the son of Donna Davis and the grandson of Beatrice and James Garrett, all members of the Beacon of Joy congregation.

FELLOWSHIP IS THE ANSWER

To improve communication, to increase faith, and to provide strength for one another, the Eastside Seventh-day Adventist Church encourages fellowship. Among the groups that have participated in fellowship with Eastside are the Andrews University Choir from Berrien Springs, Michigan; the Little Lambs Choir, above, from the Capitol City Church in Indianapolis; the Interfaith Choir from the city; the Echos of Faith from Capitol City, and the James Mosely family from Capitol City. Eastside plans to continue with this kind of fellowship during the year.

A TRIBUTE TO A MAN

"The Lord moves in mysterious ways, His wonders to perform."

Approximately four years ago, Marshall Simmons joined the Ecorse, Michigan, Seventh-day Adventist Church.

When Mr. Simmons accepted the Adventist message and joined forces with those who believed as he did, he did not know the Lord had a special job for him.

At the time Mr. Simmons joined, the church was engaged in a building fund campaign to renovate the church building. Funds finally reached the point that work could begin. To avoid any extra expense, no general contractor was hired. The pastor and men of the church worked hard with those who were skilled and the work progressed.

One person consistently arrived early every morning before the other workers and stayed late after they had left for the day. This person was Marshall Simmons.

The Ecorse Church has named him chief supervisor and he is consulted on everything. Mr. Simmons has a back injury and leg injury that prevent him from climbing and lifting, but he has followed the leading of the Lord and has used his leadership talent.

Ecorse pays tribute to Marshall Simmons for his loyalty, his love, and his Christian conviction. May God bless his every endeavor.

A LITTLE CHILD SHALL LEAD THEM

To his disciples Jesus said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God." Mark 10:14.

The Fairhaven Church of Flint, Michigan, is making an all-out effort to see that their children are adequately trained in all aspects of the church, to be effective leaders in the church for the betterment of mankind and for the glory of the Creator.

Recently the church had an Education Day, planned by Edwin Davis, principal of the church school. On that day the children assumed many duties of church officers. Some of the children were so small they could hardly be seen above the pulpit.

Eric Dillett, pastor of the Pontiac, Michigan, Church, was guest speaker. Pastor Dillett is the oldest active minister in the Lake Region Conference.

The Bible speaks of God calling the youth because of their strength and the aged because of their wisdom.

It was clearly demonstrated that God has a job for both the youth and those who have been blessed with years and wisdom. An army of dedicated and properly trained youth can do much to help finish the work and hasten the coming of the Lord.

STRAFORD MEMORIAL MEMBERS SERVE ELDERLY CITIZENS

The community services department of the Straford Memorial Church of Chicago, Illinois, was host to several elderly and disabled persons from the Homewood Rehabilitation Center on Sabbath, April 12, 1980.

The Rehabilitation Center, located in Homewood, Illinois, has been helped by Straford Memorial Community Services for several years.

Once every month the center is visited, and toiletries and other small items are distributed among the patients.

The center is also visited on every major holiday. Recently 100 Easter baskets were delivered to the patients. A special service was held and patients were invited to worship at the church. Six persons accepted the invitation.

Dorothy White, community services director, arranged to have the patients driven to church. After the service, dinner was served to the guests and community services workers.

SENIOR CITIZENS HAVE SPECIAL DAY

The Indianapolis Eastside Church recently joined the ranks of its sister churches that have given special attention to elderly people by setting aside one Sabbath each month to honor its senior members.

The government generally provides for the physical needs of senior citizens, but the church members felt an urgent need to provide spiritual needs and to establish a sense of belonging.

Eastside saluted Estella Williams during January, James Fanroy during February and Gertrude Miller throughout March.

NEWS NOTES

● Sault Ste. Marie members recently voted to cover the area with 5,000 16-page tabloid-style newspapers. They will also install an answering service with 26 two-minute Bible study tapes. People using the service may request Bible studies, literature, visits or prayers.

● Jim Hoffer, pastor of the Bellevue Church, reported that their area has been covered with literature by Ida Carson's nursing home. This has been timed so that interest may develop for August evangelistic meetings by Arnold Kraner. Elder Hoffer's churches also have assigned territory for each member to cover in an outreach program.

● Barbara Stark, Pathfinder director at Cedar Lake, reported that 163 people registered for the Voice of Junior Youth meetings recently held there for eight nights.

● If you are thinking about Ingathering already this year, take a suggestion from 95-year-old Millie Beal. She wrote letters to friends since she was unable to go out, and she has already reached her goal.

● An early spring baptism at Troy resulted in the addition to the church of Carol Learnihan. Pastor Arnold Swanson officiated.

UPPER PENINSULA CAMP MEETING SCHEDULED JUNE 13-15

The 1980 Upper Peninsula Camp Meeting will be held June 13 to 15 at the Wilson, Michigan, Church.

Featured speaker for the meetings will be Elder Norman Kinney, who will speak Friday night, Sabbath morning, at 6:40 P.M. on Sabbath, and at 6:45 P.M. on Sunday.

A presentation about the Michigan Advance Program, with time for questions and answers, will begin at 2:45 P.M. on Sabbath. James Hayward, conference secretary, will conduct this meeting.

At 8 P.M. on Sabbath, conference communication director Glenn Hill will present a multimedia program entitled "Footsteps of the Pioneers."

On Sunday morning at 9, Leon Cornforth from Pacific Press Publishing Association will present the devotional. Workshops on soul-winning and lay activities begin at 9:30 A.M.

Michigan Conference President Charles Keymer will make a presentation at 2 P.M. on Sunday entitled "How to Achieve 1,000 a Day in Baptisms."

The Adventist Book Center sale begins at 3:45 on Sunday afternoon.

Recreation for all youth is being planned from 2 to 4 P.M. on Sunday.

There is ample camping space next to the church. Plan to stay for the whole weekend.

Marjorie Allen, left, and Nancy and Charles Kegel were recently baptized in the Bad Axe Church by William Hafner.

3 BAPTIZED AT BAY CITY

Marjorie Allen of Bay City, and Charles and Nancy Kegel of Bad Axe recently became members of the Adventist Church after their baptism by Elder William Hafner.

Chuck Kegel was a friendly neighbor who invited acquaintances to use his auto body shop to work on their cars.

It was through his generosity that Keith Steinhurst, a Bad Axe Church member began using his facilities. Their conversation turned, more often than not, to discussions of the Bible. Keith asked church members Jim and Nancy St. Clair to visit the Kegels.

The St. Clairs took a Dukane projector to the Kegel home and after several studies, Pastor Hafner visited the Kegels. On his second visit Chuck indicated that he was already trying to work out his Sabbath keeping. The Kegels were baptized and are now sharing their faith with their friends.

HONORS STUDENTS VISIT ANDREWS UNIVERSITY

Honors students from academies in the Lake Union Conference recently participated in Honors Day on the Andrews University campus. Dr. Merlene Ogden, director of the honors program, planned activities for the students, including a campus tour, classroom visits, a banquet, and a special program. Shown with Dr. Roy Graham, center, university provost, are honors students from Battle Creek Academy.

3 BAPTIZED AT HASTINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Clouse, second and third from left, and Mrs. Sylvia Forster recently joined the Delton Church during evangelistic meetings held by Pastor Robert Collar, left. Pastor Paul Howell, right, officiated at the baptism. Mrs. Forster is a neighbor of the Clouses and became interested in the Adventist message through talks with the Clouses.

SPANISH MEMBERS DOUBLE MEMBERSHIP

These six people recently became members of the Detroit Spanish Church after their baptism, conducted by Pastor D. A. Rodriguez. The Spanish Church in Detroit has more than doubled its membership since it was organized in November 1975.

4 COUSINS DEDICATED

Delton members recently witnessed a baby dedication that included several church families. The mothers of Matthew and Charles Stuck and Christine Hill are daughters of the first elder, Herbert Rorabeck. Murray Stuck Jr. and Mrs. Gene Hook are brother and sister. Church members and families were encouraged by Pastor Paul Howell to work together to guide the little ones to Jesus. Pictured in the back row are Albert Van Allen, Herbert Rorabeck, and Frank Cruttenden. In the front row are Mr. and Mrs. Stuck with Matthew and Charles, Mr. and Mrs. Hook with Geoffrey, Mr. and Mrs. Hill with Christine, and Pastor Howell.

LAKE UNION SECRETARIES ATTEND WORKSHOP

A workshop for 120 Andrews University and Lake Union conference office secretaries was held April 20 to 21 at Andrews University.

Guest speaker Marge Andrysiak stressed the importance of learning everything there is to know about the office so that if a co-worker is absent the routine is not interrupted.

"There are more technological changes in the business world than anything else," she said. "Keep current on trends in the business-world, and always remember that the best sermon is a good example.

"There is a crisis in confidence in the real world," Mrs. Andrysiak continued, "secretaries need to develop the fine art of communication."

Mrs. Andrysiak is personnel director at the American National Bank and Trust Company in South Bend, Indiana.

Dr. George Akers, professor of religious education at Andrews

University, emphasized the importance of time management.

"Ask yourself," he said, "How can I avoid ever having to handle this piece of paper again?"

Dr. Akers stressed the necessity of doing away with nonessentials and making every minute of the day productive.

A panel discussed everything from what a good secretary should be to career possibilities in the denomination.

ANDERSONS CELEBRATE 67TH ANNIVERSARY

Married life has lots to offer to folks who have dedicated their lives in service to God. Mr. and Mrs. Paul P. Anderson of Holly are no exception. The Andersons celebrated their 67th wedding anniversary on December 30, 1979. They are now retired and live at the Barnett home, where they make quilts for the needy. Mr. Anderson was employed by Adelpian Academy before his retirement in 1970. The Andersons were "Mom and Pop" to dozens of academy students during their tenure at the school.

YOUTH RALLY SCHEDULED FOR GRAND LEDGE

Personal evangelism, how to give a Bible study, health witnessing, nursing-home ministry, Vacation Bible School follow-up, prison ministry and literature evangelism will be stressed at the Festival of the Word youth training program at Grand Ledge, June 5 to 8.

Don Williams, associate youth director for the conference, announced that the campgrounds will be opened for this special event for Michigan youth.

Speakers for the training program will include Dr. George Akers and Dr. Bill Richards of Andrews University; Don Gray, Lake Union ministerial secretary; Chaplain Walter Horton from Ionia, and Chaplain Larry Yeagley from Battle Creek Sanitarium and Hospital.

Pastor Williams said any youth between the ages of 16 and 30 is invited. They are also looking for adults who would be willing to help oversee the festival, he said. All churches and academies in Michigan are invited to send delegates.

Registration begins at 4 P.M., June 5. Total cost per delegate is $20, plus $10 from each church for each delegate sent.

WISCONSIN ACADEMY ALUMNI DAYS

Wisconsin Academy welcomed alumni and former students to Alumni Days, April 4 and 5. All services were held in the gymnasium.

Friday evening a program of music and meditation was presented by the Andrews University Gymnics.

Sabbath School was presented by the class of 1970, coordinated by Dennis Shelton, class president.

Speaker for the Sabbath morning church service was Don Schneider, president of the class of 1960, who is now president of the New Jersey Conference. Elder Schneider spoke about the certainty of God's grace and forgiveness.

Mildred Summerton, principal, gave special recognition to Elder Schneider with a plaque as Alumnus of the Year, and to Wendell Marsh as an honored alumnus of the class of 1955 for his success in business and his impact on the lives of young people as vice president of Little Lakes Industries.

The afternoon program featured Jim Clizbe of the class of 1960, education superintendent of the Ohio Conference, and Dr. David Bee, class of 1955.

During the afternoon program $100 scholarships were presented to Carmie Cox, Elizabeth Beal, Cheri Knutson, Brenda VanAlstine, Carri and Terri Conquest, Keith Neergaard, and Greg Wachter.

Class reunions were held for the classes of '55, '60, and '70. The alumni met for a business meeting and elected the following officers: president, Barbara Drewieck; vice president, Dale Hilt; secretary-treasurer, Pat Mummert, and historian, Dan Gillen.

The evening program featured the Andrews University Gymnics, with Carl Barnaby as master of ceremonies. During the program Ed Vogel presented a plaque to Mildred Summerton in appreciation for her inspiration to the class of 1955.

POUND PATHFINDERS COLLECT AND SHARE

WITNESSING FOR THE LORD

What could be more exciting than riding a windsled across nearly three miles of ice on Lake Superior from Bayfield to the Apostle Islands?

When the ice begins to break up, the Apostle Islands windsled begins its daily mail run, a trip which takes 2½ minutes compared to the 15 minutes by car or ferry.

The sled occasionally drops through the ice; then the airplane motor in the back pushes it back up onto the ice.

What has this got to do with witnessing? Here is the story.

During a church business meeting at the first of the year, Ashland Pastor Ray Plummer held up 30 It Is Written interest cards. He asked if any church member would call these individuals to find out if they wanted to study the Bible. The appeal may have generated some enthusiasm if the cards were not several years old.

But after the meeting Emily Larson told the pastor she had been praying for a way to begin witnessing, and said, she would take the cards.

Emily called all the members. Several people had moved away, but four others accepted personal Bible studies in their homes and one of these homes was located on one of the Apostle Islands.

Emily invited lay Bible instructor Barbara Reid to give the studies and offered to help.

The young woman taking the studies is an eager student. She had asked her pastor if he thought there might be a gimmick. He assured her there was not and encouraged her to study.

Never neglect a single opportunity the Lord sends to us, even if the card with people's names are out of date. Some people are still waiting!

PLANET EARTH TO REPLACE WEEKLY READER

A unique approach to news and current events was introduced to students and teachers in Seventh-day Adventist elementary schools across North America during April.

Preview copies of Planet Earth, an eight-page newspaper to be published monthly during the school year beginning in September, were expected to reach teachers by April 1.

Planet Earth is being created primarily for students in grades 4 to 6, but will also be suitable for use in grades 3 to 7. In addition to presenting national and international news and events to the child at his own level of reading and comprehension, the new publication will provide a distinctly Adventist Christian perspective on such happenings.

The General Conference Department of Education is developing Planet Earth in cooperation with Concerned Communications, an Adventist-owned publishing company in Arroyo Grande, California.

"There is a definite need for a publication of this type, since the Weekly Reader is no longer suitable for Seventh-day Adventist schools," says George P. Babcock, Ed.D., associate director of the G.C. department of education.

Because of this great need for a current events paper, which is acceptable to schools with a Christian orientation, the Lake Union K-12 Educational Board on March 25 voted to pay one-half the subscription rate for each student subscribing to Planet Earth next year. Elder Warren Minder reports that, "This is another approach to integrating faith and learning in our church schools."

Included in each issue of Planet Earth will be feature articles, items of current news and events, personality profiles, photographs and illustrations, activities and games, and learning exercises.

These features will include coverage in the areas of religion, government, economics, geography, environment and population, science, medicine, and recreation.

Regular columns will include vocabulary words, "how to do" activities, and a "sharing" feature which will encourage reader response. A regular editorial column will help bring each month's events into meaningful focus for the Christian young person.

The preview issue of Planet Earth (including a teacher's guide) was mailed to all teachers of grades 4 to 6 in S.D.A. elementary schools in North America. Included was information on ordering subscriptions for the 1980-81 school year.

He is married to the former Linda Booth whose father is a minister in the Michigan conference. The Spivas have two boys, Larry Jr., 11, and James, 9.

NELS THOMPSON, formerly associate pastor of the Lansing, Michigan, Church, is now pastor of the Holland and Bauer, Michigan, churches.

RACHEL V. TWING recently joined the Illinois conference office staff as secretary to the ministerial secretary. Her skills in layout and graphic arts have been used by all the departments in improving their departmental bulletins. She has served as a secretary and administrative assistant at the New England Memorial Hospital and as a secretary in the health education department of the Upper Columbia Conference. Her husband, Alan, is a family counselor in the alcohol rehabilitation unit at Hinsdale Hospital. The Twings have three children, James, 6; Tammy, 5, and Jeremy, 1.

NORMAN YEAGER, formerly pastor of the Belleville and Plymouth, Michigan, churches, is now pastor at Detroit-Oakwood Church in Michigan.

INTRODUCING

The 24-Volume BibLearn Series of Books

The BibLearn books are exceptionally fine quality, attractive, and durable books for children. People from the Old Testament and the New Testament have been described by superior writers and portrayed by excellent illustrators. Based solely on events related in the Bible, each book is sound Christian material for children in grades one through six. At the end of each chapter a brief section entitled "Thinkback" offers questions, activities, or other material which encourages the child to retain the content of the chapter. At the end of each book is a section entitled "Reflections" which is intended to help the child apply the events, problems, and resolutions of the content to modern life.

The BibLearn books make excellent reference and resource materials when used in the Sabbath School classroom and/or church library. These books are also ideal for home use—what better bedtime material!

NEW

The mealtime treat that's quick to fix and good to eat.

There's something irresistible about new Chik Stiks from Worthington. Their unique shape. Their golden-brown outside. Their tender, chewy inside. But most of all, their really delicious taste.

And, Chik Stiks are rich in vegetable protein, completely meatless, free of preservatives. So easy to fix, too...just heat and serve.

Whether you serve new Chik Stiks at mealtime or as tasty and nourishing snacks, they're definitely a new family favorite. Look for new Chik Stiks in your store's freezer case. Irresistible.

 WORTHINGTON
Putting good taste into good nutrition.

Serve Loma Linda Swiss Steak as your next dinner, then sit back for the compliments. This meatless dinner comes with its own rich gravy. And tastes absolutely delicious, thanks to our continuing food and flavor advancements.

They're made from our own special ingredient, combining two nutritious vegetable proteins. There are no preservatives or added MSG. No animal fat or cholesterol, either!

Swiss Steak is Loma Linda's number one seller.

Now, by popular demand, it's available in a new, smaller size (4 steaks), as well as the 28-oz. can (8 steaks). Just heat and serve with potatoes and fresh vegetables. Or, for a tempting mid-day variation, serve as an open-face steak sandwich.

Check out the whole line of Loma Linda meatless foods today. And write us directly for your free Swiss Steak recipe folder.
