The Efficacy of United Prayer

DELEGATES to the 1980 Annual Council of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists voted unanimously to invite every member of the church to participate in a prayer offensive beginning on Sabbath, April 4, 1981. The purpose of this prayer offensive is to invite the worldwide membership to pray for the desperate needs of humanity.

Church officials feel that this is one thing that every member of the church can do at the same time. If done in a systematic manner every person on earth could be prayed for by some Adventist family.

There are still at least 26 countries with a population of more than 58 million where we have not yet been able to establish any work. Religious, political, and other barriers have prevented our church from making inroads in those areas.

Even in the United States of America, there are still 1,380 dark counties which have no organized work. We believe that the efficacy of united prayer will help us to accomplish these tasks.

The experience of the early church during the imprisonment of the Apostle Peter is a vivid example of the effectiveness of united prayer. Peter was incarcerated because enemies of the church were determined to stop its growth and development. The apostle was bound in chains between two soldiers, while two additional soldiers stood guard. The door of the prison was shut tight. Not only did it appear impossible for Peter to escape, but it looked as though none of his friends would be able to reach him.

From a human standpoint Peter's release was unlikely. Hope seemed far removed. It appeared certain that he would suffer the same fate which had already taken the life of James. So the church did the only thing that it could do. The believers united in earnest prayer in his behalf. According to Acts 12:5, "prayer was made without ceasing of the church unto God for him."

God heard the supplication of His people. Though the way was barred to men, the way is always open to God. He sent an angel to deliver His servant. We find the following reassuring statement in Testimonies to Ministers, page 484: "God has appointed the angels that do His will to respond to the prayers of the meek of the earth."

Do not our hearts ache for the millions of unsaved who are still bound by the shackles of sin? All types of barriers have been created to keep the third angel's message from reaching these dear ones. Doors that were once open to our missionaries are rapidly being closed. Minds that would otherwise be open are being prejudiced against the truth.

What are we to do? Should we throw up our hands, and cry out in despair that it is a hopeless fight? No! Never!

"With men this [battle for souls] is impossible; but with God all things are possible." Matthew 19:26.

I invite you to prepare now to join the great prayer offensive that will be launched in every Seventh-day Adventist Church on Sabbath, April 4. What a tremendous opportunity this will present to God's remnant people to penetrate walls, to break down barriers, to hurdle obstacles, to loosen fetters, and to dissipate prejudice by the efficacy of united prayer.

THE HEART OF THE LAKE UNION

As Unto the Lord

by Freda Swensen

FIVE years ago, when Ethel Kelley was making plans for retirement from her job as punch-press operator in a Battle Creek factory, she could have been eagerly anticipating the day when at last she might "take it easy." Not so with Ethel—she was looking forward to having more time for one of her favorite projects: visiting the sick and shut-ins.

While Mrs. Kelley was yet employed, Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital's chaplains department expressed a need for Friendship Volunteers (persons who would telephone patients one week after their discharge from the hospital, to ask how they were faring). Mrs. Kelley responded, went through a series of training sessions given by Chaplain Larry Yeagley, and made telephone contacts for a few months.

Chaplain Yeagley then asked if any Friendship Volunteer would like to help him with inpatient visitation. The timing was right. Mrs. Kelley's retirement now made it possible for her to become a Chaplaincy Volunteer, spending about two afternoons each week on the San's medical floor.

Mrs. Kelley is not a fair-weather volunteer. During inclement weather she takes the city bus four miles from her home to the hospital. However, on good days it isn't unusual for her to walk all the way. "Walking will help to keep me, myself, out of the rest home," she jokes.

Chaplain Yeagley appreciates Mrs. Kelley's help, and he believes that patients feel comfortable with her. "They like her smile," he says.

Freda Swensen is public relations assistant at Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital, Battle Creek, Michigan.

Ethel Kelley visits a young patient at the Battle Creek San.

That smile comes from genuine Christian love and compassion for those who are hurting physically or emotionally. In her own way Mrs. Kelley does what she can to ease their pain.

One day easing the pain involved walking a few blocks to the drugstore to purchase a special brand of corn pads for a patient who forgot to bring some along when he came to the hospital. The patient thought this was a "wonderful" gesture, but Mrs. Kelley merely said, "It really wasn't anything. If I had a sore corn, I'd be happy for something to relieve it."

Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital has no pediatrics ward. Nevertheless, Mrs. Kelley doesn't forget the children who are occasionally hospitalized on its medical/surgical floor. She brings them three or four copies of Little Friend, Primary Treasure, or Junior Guide, neatly bound together in booklet fashion with colorful covers and ties.

Her visits to patients are usually short and may or may not include prayer or discussion of spiritual things. She understands that in her role it is unlikely that she will see immediate results. She reflected, however, "It would bring me great joy to learn someday that someone whose life I have touched has seen Jesus through me."

Mrs. Kelley reaches out to patients in three other community hospitals as well as to shut-ins in four area nursing homes. She reserves Tuesdays for working at the Battle Creek Tabernacle's Community Services Center where she helps with clothing distribution.

With all of this, Mrs. Kelley still says she would like to be volunteering more, but she realizes that her 79-year-old aunt who lives in her home also needs some of her time—time that she humbly and generously gives "as unto the Lord."

MUFFLED roars sound overhead as a sleek frame glides into view. Dipping a wing, its nose aligns itself with the runway.

The scene is a familiar one on the airstrip of Andrews' Airpark in Berrien Springs, Michigan. But it's not the only one. Other operations are being practiced and learned in the classrooms of Andrews University's Airframe and Power-plant (A&P) School.

Operating its own private airport and maintenance facilities, Andrews is particularly suited to students of aviation. It comprises a modern 3,200-foot grass runway for conventional training and a grass runway for special short field training. The maintenance hangar and classroom facilities have been especially designed for training purposes.

Approved by the Federal Aviation Administration (F.A.A.) in January 1979, the maintenance school is the only such program in the denomination's world field, says Raymond Swensen, chairman of the aviation department who has been on the faculty since 1964.

The maintenance program is one of two new options offered to students in the aviation program at Andrews. Included are the repair and servicing of aircraft and the installation or modification of equipment.

"An A&P student can go three routes," says Dr. Swensen. "He can simply go for a mechanics certification with an airframe and power-plant rating, or he can fulfill the general education requirements in the same length of time and earn an Associate of Industrial Technology degree."

Also available is the four-year bachelor of Industrial Technology degree with a technical concentration in aviation and mechanics for the A&P student.

Classes in the power-plant (airplane engine) section are conducted by Stanley Sornberger, whose experience in mission aviation, aircraft maintenance and flight instruction totals 38 years.

These courses give concentrated study and laboratory work on turbine engines, engine lubrication systems, engine fuel systems, and induction and cooling systems. Further classwork in this area explores engine exhaust systems, fire protection systems and electrical and ignition systems, to name a few.

Gary Marsh, authorized inspector and designated mechanical examiner, instructs students in the airframe (fuselage) section. Courses in this area reflect a detailed study of aircraft structures, their repairs and aircraft systems.

Aircraft fabric coverings, assembly, electrical systems, fluid power systems, navigation and communication equipment installation are some of the specific areas emphasized in laboratory work.

Additional classes in both areas are taught by Dick Kaping, who came to Andrews last year from High Country Helicopters in Colorado where he served as head airframe and power-plant mechanic.

As Dr. Swensen sees it, now is the time to be offering students these specialized skills. "There is a need for more aircraft mechanics," he says. "Many were trained during World War II, but they are retiring now. The field is becoming wide open again."

According to the Occupational Outlook Handbook, issued by the United States Department of Labor, career opportunities in aviation are numerous and are going to increase faster than the average for all occupations through the mid-1980's.

Becky Frost is a feature writer for the public relations department at Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Michigan.

The other main option in Andrews' aviation program is, of course, in flight training. The flight option involves skills in navigation and piloting. The requirements for this program include commercial pilot certification as well as instrument and flight-instructor's ratings.

The flight program, led by chief flight instructor Harry Lloyd, is certified under part 141 of the Federal Aviation Regulations, approved school standards. With about 95 percent of the students passing the F.A.A. test the first time they take it, the program holds one of the highest performance rates in the Midwest.

Mr. Lloyd, who has all flight-instructor ratings, received certification as an F.A.A.-approved flight examiner for the private pilot license. Eight written examinations are currently administered at the airpark. In addition to the maintenance and flight concentrations, a four-year course in aviation technology is also available, which, says Dr. Swensen, "gives the graduate of aviation technology a sufficient background in business administration to enter the field of management."

Graduates of the Andrews' aviation program have premium marketable skills in the aviation industry. A primary purpose of the program is to prepare pilots and mechanics for church mission service.

According to R. A. George, airport manager who has served as a pilot and medical missionary in Brazil, the airpark is the center for the largest mission aviation program of any denomination in the world.

Because of this emphasis, unique opportunities for students exist. For example, a course in techniques of mission flying aims to develop skills required in mission air operations, such as terrain flying, low-level operations, cargo drop, uphill and downhill operations on primitive airstrips and precision aircraft control.

William E. Smith, director of the Adventist Aviation Center and the Adventist Aviation Association, is responsible for checking all full-time denominational pilots, mission pilots, mechanics and aircraft.

Mr. Smith spent 16 years in the Far East as a mission evangelist and pilot, opening the aviation work in the country of Indonesia.

And, according to William Davidson, dean of the College of Technology, this unique emphasis makes the Andrews' aviation program beneficial.

"Whether it is in mission air service or in the aircraft industry, demand for licensed mechanics, professional pilots and trained air-base management personnel is increasing and plays an essential role in the work of the church to hasten the second coming of our Lord, Jesus Christ," he said.

WITH what excitement the young people, some from Ethiopia, others from Uganda, Tanzania and Kenya, converged on the campus of the University College of Eastern Africa during the first week of October 1980.

This was registration week—the first registration for a full academic year. What made it so exciting? What was the momentous occasion?

If you had waited year after year to attend a college where Christian standards are upheld and where there is freedom to worship on Sabbath, you too, would rejoice. Because of Sabbath problems in some countries undergraduates have been unable to complete their degree requirements.

"This is the answer to many prayers that have ascended to our Heavenly Father," remarked Bekele Heye, Afro-Mideast Division's president. "This is the day for which we have waited for a long time."

What does it matter if the physical plant leaves much to be desired, with dormitories, classrooms, library and cafeteria in remodeled buildings which had housed an agricultural research station?

Both students and teachers have a vision of a completed college sometime in the future with new buildings for the administration block, student center, and dormitories. They will make the best of a rather primitive situation, waiting patiently for a better day.

Why all the hurry to get a new college going when funds are woefully insufficient and the physical plant inadequate?

Consider the dilemma faced by the Afro-Mideast Division whose membership in its African territories of Ethiopia, Uganda, Kenya and Tanzania (217,252) is greater than the combined membership of four Unions in North America—Atlantic, Canadian, Columbia and Lake (202,078)—yet whose undergraduate program is such that there has been no graduate on the African continent from this division for the past 15 years.

Compare this with the four unions

Jean Thomas is editor of the Afro-Mideast Division Adventist Review.

When the funds from the Sabbath School Special Projects Overflow offering on March 28 are made available and this administration block is complete, it will be a "dream come true!"

A New College is Born in America mentioned above which have four colleges with an enrollment of 3,766, and which last year graduated 774 students.

Compounding the problem is the number of students who have gone abroad for further education thinking that their finances were sufficient to see them through, but who have found them to be inadequate. Now, stranded with no way to finish, they are pleading for financial assistance from the division.

Then there are others who, having accepted scholarships to countries where there is religious intolerance, have found no way to keep Sabbath and are pleading for help to get away to some other country where there is religious freedom.

In addition, other students who have been attending schools overseas are attracted to the way of life in the new environment, and they do not wish to return to their homelands.

After summarizing the number of undergraduates on the African continent during the past three years from all three divisions with territories in Africa, Fred G. Thomas, secretary for the Afro-Mideast Division, wrote to Dr. Charles Hirsch, General Conference education director: "How can a church survive in this modern age when it produces so few graduates on African soil?"

Anyone with a superficial understanding and knowledge of the situation would be quick to ask, "How could a division get into such a deplorable state?"

Solusi College, Africa's old, well-established and well-known institution of higher learning, alma mater of many of Africa's leaders today, became isolated from the East African countries at the time

This classroom block, converted from the old calf-pen on the agricultural research station, is where classes will be held until the administration block is built from funds to be received on Sabbath, March 28.

Much of the furniture building and other carpentry work for the buildings on U.C.E.A.'s campus are being done by students who are earning their way through college.

Rhodesia declared its independence in 1965.

To remedy this situation, the East African territories were incorporated into the Afro-Mideast Division when it was formed in 1970, giving students from this area access to Middle East College in Beirut, Lebanon.

However, the school was on a different continent, and the Middle East was a different culture, so it did not attract many students. Nor were they willing to go into the war situation which existed in Lebanon.

It was during the escalation of the Lebanese conflict in 1978 that Middle East College was no longer able to operate as a division institution. This left the youth of eastern Africa with no Adventist college to which they could go.

At this juncture the agricultural research station, located in the beautiful Nandi Hill District of Kenya, became available to the Afro-Mideast Division as a 99-year lease from the Kenya Government. The division was quick to take up this offer even though funds for the establishment of a new college were not sufficient.

Now, even though the buildings are inadequate and not representative of a university college, the first year of schooling has begun.

Concluding his letter to Dr. Hirsch, Elder Thomas stated: "Unless this fledgling college in Kenya, the University College of Eastern Africa, becomes a sound, well-developed college, the situation can only worsen, and whether we can ever make up the 15 lost years since 1965 is a question I cannot answer. . . . Our division has put all available resources into this project, but unless we receive some special consideration over and above the support that has already been offered, I do not see how the college can really develop as it must. . . . The Lord's work is not tied just to educational qualifications, but our philosophy has surely been that if the church is to mature, become self-supporting and self-propagating, it must produce adequately-trained leaders."

The University College of Eastern Africa has an affiliation agreement with Andrews University and will be offering majors in theology, business administration, English, biology, and mathematics. There will also be secondary-education, secretarial, vocational and industrial training.

The master plan calls for an enrollment of 2,000. Two dormitories and the administration complex have been selected by the division to benefit from the overflow offering on Sabbath, March 28, 1981. Please be generous on that day.

A WEAPON CALLED prayer

by C. E. Bradford

SINCE Annual Council time quite a bit of discussion has been caused by one of the recommendations adopted: "To issue from the 1980 Annual Council of the Seventh-day Adventist Church a call to every member in all countries of the world to join in a prayer offensive for the spiritual needs of their communities, their nations and those places, both within and outside their areas, where the Adventist message is not known."

To some it seems strange to refer to prayer in this way. It seems almost military. This is precisely what the General Conference officers have in mind.

C. E. Bradford is the General Conference vice president for North America.

The church is a mighty army. We have been given weapons of warfare over and over, and the Apostle Paul likens the spiritual life to a battle. Once Ellen White said it was "a battle and a march."

So it is fitting and proper that the church be called to launch a mighty prayer offensive. The beginning date has been set for April 4, 1981.

All across North America and the nations of the world, people of God will send up mighty petitions which will envelop the globe. Mingled with the merits of Christ, these prayers will ascend as sweet incense to the throne of God.

The Christian is never helpless. The church is never without resources. It is prayer that brings us in contact with these riches and resources. It is from the secret place of prayer that God's servants go forth empowered to meet the enemy and to achieve great victories for God.

Yes, prayer is a weapon—a spiritual one to be sure. Every crisis is a call to prayer, and the people of God facing the crises of the ages are summoned to send up their petitions, specific and direct as arrows, to the throne of God.

Paul reminds us that we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. (Ephesians 6:12). But he also assures us "For the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strong holds." (II Corinthians 10:4).

The prayer offensive is the one single united endeavor in which all the people of God may wholeheartedly engage. I am confident that you will not let this opportunity pass.

Students interviewed "first-century followers of Christ" during a recent Spiritual-Emphasis Week at Cedar Lake Academy.

CEDAR LAKE ACADEMY STUDENTS PRESENT 'BORN AGAIN IN JESUS'

"Born Again to Live Forever" was the theme of a sermon presented by two Cedar Lake Academy students, Sabbath, January 24, as the highlight of the annual student Week of Spiritual Emphasis.

Mike Ward told the story of his conversion, and the "Apostle John" appealed to the congregation to allow Christ into their hearts.

Each day during the Week of Spiritual Emphasis students and faculty heard an "interview" with some of the first-century followers of Christ. During the interview, each of these persons told how his life was changed because of an encounter with Christ.

At each of the evening meetings the audience witnessed a presentation featuring a 20th-century counterpart of the apostle interviewed in the morning meeting.

On the day "Nicodemus" was interviewed, the evening program featured a modern-day Nick who decided to step forward and stand for Christ among his peer group. Other apostles portrayed were Paul, Peter, Thomas and John.

Special music added another dimension to the meetings that were planned, written and presented by the on-campus seminar group, sponsored by Richard Wuttke of the religion department and Karen Stroud, English and speech teacher. Music department teachers, Randy Day and Steve Hubbard helped arrange special music. Lori Warren and Shawna Beal acted as chairmen of the planning committees for the meetings.

RELIGIOUS EMPHASIS AT WISCONSIN ACADEMY

A Week of Spiritual Emphasis was conducted from February 2 to 7 at Wisconsin Academy.

Approximately 50 students took part, giving talks, providing special music, planning the programs and helping in other ways.

Angie Bevins, head of the Student Seminar Council, worked with Pastor Lester Merklin in planning and coordinating the programs.

The theme for the morning chapel programs was "setting priorities," and included personal testimonies.

The week was highlighted on Friday evening by guest speaker, Mark Fox, Bible instructor from the Lake Union Soul-Winning Institute in Chicago.

The students who took part remarked they felt that God worked in and through them. "Our lives were touched in a very serious way."

HOME HYDROTHERAPY TAUGHT IN LANCASTER

ADVENTIST LIVING CENTERS—Lancaster Nursing Home sponsored a Home Hydrotherapy program, January 24 and 25. The program was presented by John Reaves, manager of the Family Health Clinic, Stevens Point, Wisconsin.

More than 20 people from the Lancaster area attended the widely advertised, two-day workshop. The demonstrations and lab sessions taught, as part of God's overall plan for wellness, how water can be easily used to supplement treatment of arthritis, throat and respiratory problems, headaches, and other common ailments.

As a further demonstration of the Creator's plan for health, a complimentary vegetarian supper was served Saturday night.

THOMAS WILLIAMS HEADS B.C.S.H. BOARD

BATTLE CREEK—Thomas K. Williams, Ed.D., has been named chief executive officer by the board of directors of Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital.

Dr. Williams has spent 18 years in leadership roles at the San.

While director of pastoral services from 1963 to 1967, he organized an alcoholism treatment program which led to the formation of the hospital's special services department in 1964. Dr. Williams served as its director until 1979 when he became vice president for mental health services.

Dr. Williams is currently vice president of the National Committee for Prevention of Alcoholism and Drug Dependency. He is a past chairman of the Michigan Alcohol Problems Prevention Training Council.

From 1973 to 1978 he was affiliated with Western Michigan

University, Kalamazoo, as associate professor of counseling and personnel, and he was director of its Specialty Program in Alcohol and Drug Abuse.

Dr. Williams is the author of Winning the Bottle Battle.

Dr. Williams' wife, Audrey, is a learning disabilities teaching consultant for Springfield schools. They have three children.

BOLINGBROOK MEDICAL CENTER NOW OPEN

BOLINGBROOK—Doors opened for patients at Bolingbrook Medical Center (B.M.C.) for the first time on Monday, February 23.

B.M.C. is an emergency/ambulatory care facility affiliated with Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital. It is located in the village of Bolingbrook, 20 miles southwest of Hinsdale.

The new medical center offers clinical, outpatient and community services. Clinical services include an emergency department providing patient care 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Outpatient services, available 12 hours daily, include laboratory testing, X-rays, electrocardiography (EKG), physical therapy and outpatient surgery.

Community services provide physician referrals, a poison-control hotline, transfusion services, prepared childbirth classes and health-education programs.

At all times during the week, an emergency physician, a registered nurse and an emergency medical technician (E.M.T.) are on duty.

The physicians, members of the American College of Emergency Physicians, devote their practice solely to emergency care. A laboratory technician and an X-ray technician are on duty 12 hours every day and are always on call for emergencies.

The present facility represents the first phase of the total development plan for a full-service hospital at this site.

Construction of professional offices on the Bolingbrook Medical Center campus is scheduled for completion in the summer of 1981.

An enclosed hallway will connect the professional office building with the medical center.

A formal open house for the new facility is scheduled for Sunday, March 22. Activities will include health screenings, a drawing for free health-education classes and an exercycle, and a formal ribbon-cutting ceremony with representatives from the community and Hinsdale Hospital.

ALUMNI RESPOND TO BECA PROGRAM

Ralph Coupland

Since the unveiling of the Business Executives' Challenge to Alumni Fund (BECA) last July, Andrews alumni are responding in an admirable way toward the new giving goals, reports Ralph Coupland, executive director of the university's alumni association.

"As a result of our letter and telephone contacts, we have surpassed 1979's year-end figures," he said. "However, we still have a way to go before the university will be able to reap the full benefit of this BECA challenge."

Mr. Coupland emphasized the significance of the full potential of the campaign. The BECA Fund is offering Andrews University $271,000 if its alumni participation level increases from the current 10 percent to 25 percent in the next five years.

"With an increase in alumni giving," Mr. Coupland added, "this incentive could generate a total of two million dollars or more for the support of excellence in Christian higher education at Andrews University."

"Our hope is that this program will greatly increase alumni interest and concern for the future of the university as well as provide financial support. When we can show corporations and foundations that Andrews has the full support of its alumni, this greatly increases the potential for generating even greater revenue from these sources."

Andrews Alumni Association leaders and university officers are working with alumni throughout the country to set up a network of alumni volunteers. It is the goal of this organization to involve as many of the alumni as possible in various avenues of alumni support.

Guidelines for meeting the BECA challenge during the 1980-1981 fiscal year are as follows: Gifts between $5 and $2,500 will qualify. For each gift received from a new donor before June 30, 1981, BECA will award Andrews an $80 grant up to a maximum of $35,000. In addition, BECA will match, dollar for dollar, gifts that surpass the 1979-1980 level, up to a maximum of $35,000. Where both the husband and wife attended Andrews, each will count as separate donors.

"My hope," said Mr. Coupland, "is that all Andrews alumni will rally behind this challenge by giving strong support to their alma mater."

STUDENT BODY AIDS COMMUNITY

Students at Andrews have donated $5,300 to repair the roof of a senior citizen's center in Benton Harbor, Michigan, in response to a plea from a community action agency.

The funds will be drawn from surplus monies of the Andrews Student Association, income from various student projects and contributions from the more than 1,000 dormitory students at the university, reports Student Association President Mark Mathews.

"We were presented with a list of the four most crucial needs at the center," he said. "We chose the one that needed the most immediate attention." Mr. Mathews added that though the building is currently being used by senior citizens, it has poor heating facilities and needs a new roof.

The $5,300 raised by the students will pay for a three-ply hot roof of approximately 6,000 square feet for the center. Mr. Mathews hopes that this and similar projects will continue to involve students in community outreach.

"The senior citizens use their center rain or shine," he said. "They really depend on getting together. We are glad we could help."

CAMPUS HIGHLIGHTS

● Honor students from five colleges met on the Andrews' campus February 18 for the annual honors symposium. Open to the public as well, the all-day event was entitled "The Professional: Values and Accountability." Featured were guest speakers and a panel of selected professionals. The other schools represented besides Andrews were Carthage College, Central Michigan University, Western Michigan University, and the University of Wisconsin at Whitewater.

● WAUS, the university's fine arts radio station, raised a record of $35,807 in pledges and donations during its recent eight-day campaign. According to station manager Allen Steele, more than 50 staff members and volunteers participated in the campaign, including Andrews students, staff and community residents. Mr. Steele particularly credits Chad McComas, assistant development director of the station, and Vaida Smith, program director, with the successful operation of the campaign. The fund-raising drive also coincided with the station's 10th birthday celebration. Mr. Steele estimates that the pledged monies will provide about 30 percent of the operating budget for the station in the coming year. Other major sources of support include contributions from corporations and the sponsorship of the university.

● W. Peter Blitchington, associate professor of educational psychology and counseling at the university, has had his latest book published by Tyndale House Publishers, Wheaton, Illinois. The Energy and Vitality Book covers the principles of energy and its barriers, stimulators and source, steps to both quick and lifelong energy and the "energizing power of love." The book also deals with the effects that emotion and stress have upon energy output, and techniques for working more effectively and overcoming procrastination.

Author of the recent best-seller, Sex Roles and the Christian Family, Dr. Blitchington was recently interviewed by Dr. James Dobson, noted family-life author and counselor, on the "Focus on the Family" radio program. On April 10, he is scheduled to appear on Pat Robertson's television "700 Club."

● Architecture students under the direction of Neville H. Clouten, department chairman, recently drew designs for a proposed plaza and sculpture in nearby Benton Harbor, Michigan, as part of a new community civic project. The Berrien County Community Action Agency contacted Dr. Clouten for assistance in renovating some of the older sections of the city. The project, says Dr. Clouten, is called "Window Place" by the class, suggesting that people can emanate onward into other parts of the city. The chosen design proposal included a reinforced concrete sculpture resembling a strip of film. Its link is with a nearby theater but also represents a sequential window frame for Benton Harbor's future development.

FIVE FACULTY EARN ADVANCED DEGREES

Five university faculty members have recently received advanced degrees from a variety of educational institutions across the country.

Robert C. Schwab, assistant professor of management in the School of Business, was awarded a Ph.D. in organization and management from the University of Oregon in December. Dr. Schwab received a bachelor's degree from Atlantic Union College and a Master of Business Administration degree from Andrews. He has also worked as an accountant for both institutions before joining the faculty last September.

Samuel T. Harris, assistant professor of education, recently completed requirements for a Doctor of Education degree from the University of Denver, from which he received a Master of Arts degree in 1968. Dr. Harris' doctoral dissertation dealt with a study of issues in pre-kindergarten education in Colorado. He has been at Andrews since 1978.

Peter Erhard

Peter Erhard of the art faculty was awarded a Master of Fine Arts degree in advertising and graphic design in December from Syracuse University in Syracuse, New York. A graduate of the School of the Art Institute of Chicago, Mr. Erhard is now in his fifth year at Andrews as assistant professor.

Mary Dockerty

Kit Watts

Nursing instructor Mary M. Dockerty has earned a Master of Science degree in maternal and child nursing from Northern Illinois in Dekalb, Illinois. She received undergraduate training at Columbia Union College and has been a member of the university faculty since 1979.

Kit Watts, periodical librarian of the university's James White Library, has earned a Master of Arts degree from Andrews. She received a bachelor's degree from Union College and completed a Master of Library Science degree at the University of Maryland in 1978. In addition to being a contributor to religious publications, she has also served as an assistant book editor at the Review and Herald Publishing Association in Washington, D.C.

Hazel Wright of the Quincy Church has been making dolls' clothing for the past 12 years, according to Earl Parrick, communication secretary. Mrs. Wright cleans and redresses dolls that are given to the church's community services center during the year. Between 50 and 100 of these refurbished dolls are given to families who otherwise would not have dolls for their children for Christmas. Also, some 20 to 35 families a day are given clothing which has been donated to the center for this purpose. Missionary College to prepare to be a minister in God's service. John became a Seventh-day Adventist through an unusual circumstance.

About two years ago, a follow-up card was sent to the Springfield Church concerning a family who had expressed interest through watching Faith For Today. For some reason no visits to the family were made immediately, even though the card was passed along to two or three individuals.

Finally, several months later, interest coordinator John Jagitsch was given the card. When he called on the family, he learned that they had just recently returned to their newly rebuilt home.

Their former home had been destroyed by fire and they had moved temporarily to another location. Had a visit been made during this time, no contact could have been made.

Mr. Jagitsch began studies with the family. Their interest grew and the mother, a widow, and two or three of her five children began attending church regularly.

Studies are continuing, and two cousins are also enthusiastically learning of God's message for this time, bringing to eight the number of people reached through this delayed contact.

SPRINGFIELD CHURCH SCHOOL ACQUIRES BUILDING

The Springfield Church School held open house in its newly acquired building on January 21. Students' work projects were on display and guests were served refreshments.

The new Springfield Church School was ready for occupancy in December.

For four years the school was conducted in a small classroom in the church building. Early last summer, the church purchased a movable, surplus school building from the public schools.

Church members prepared the foundation and installed utility lines. In late September, the building was moved onto the foundation and finishing touches were completed.

A group of happy students and their teacher, Al Schone, moved into their new and spacious quarters on December 15.

It is evident that God has led from the beginning in securing this vinyl-sided, brick trimmed, 24-by-48-foot building. The house movers commented that it was the best building of this type they had ever moved.

Acquisition and work was begun with the leadership of Elder Paul Gregoroff and completed with Elder Harold Ashcraft.

NEWS NOTES

● Pastor Chico Rivera of the Muncie Church met Lois Clevenger last summer. She began Bible studies and sent her son, Chris, to church school in September. On Sabbath, January 31, she was baptized, according to Vivian Wake, communication secretary. The Muncie Church is happy to welcome Lois into the family of God and are enjoying her three young children in Sabbath School.

● On the weekends of January 16 and 23 Pathfinder training courses were held in the Richmond and Indianapolis South Side Churches. Cliff Hoffman, conference youth director; Hilman Culp (center), and Janet Clear, conference Pathfinder area coordinators, served as instructors. Robert Chase, pastor of the Indianapolis South Side Church, taught leadership. In the past few months several new clubs have begun in the Indiana Conference.

PATHFINDERS COLLECT AND DISTRIBUTE CANS

The Lafayette Pathfinders collected enough canned foods for the community services members to make up 11 Thanksgiving food baskets, according to Bob Sanders, Pathfinder director. The baskets were delivered to needy families before Thanksgiving. The community services women worked with the Pathfinders to help many families in their community have a more enjoyable holiday season.

HUNTINGBURG CHURCH WELCOMES SPECIAL VISITORS

Sabbath School Visitor's Day at Huntingburg was a unique experience for both the hosts and the visitors.

On learning that there was a small group of non-Adventist Sabbathkeepers meeting in a little town about nine miles from Huntingburg, the Adventists decided to invite them to be their guests on Visitor's Day. The other group were surprised and delighted to find that there were more Sabbathkeepers in the area.

Sixteen adults and three children from the Seventh-day Church of God attended the services, provided special music for both Sabbath School and church, and stayed for a special luncheon.

They believe in clean-and-unclean meat distinctions, and were interested in learning more about vegetarianism, and obtaining recipes for entrees.

DOORS OPEN IN SOUTH BEND FOR FIVE-DAY PLAN

Exciting things are happening in South Bend with the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking. A program was held in January in a local hospital, and another hospital has requested a Five-Day Plan there.

A vegetarian restaurant in downtown South Bend has offered its facilities for the smoking clinic.

The church has been put on a telephone "Hotline" along with the American Lung Association and the American Cancer Society. Many calls are from people who have been told by their doctors to stop smoking.

As a result the Five-Day Plan is getting free coverage on radio and TV and in the local newspaper.

Currently, six Five-Day Plans are being held each year, with three local hospitals as hosts for some of them. Two of the hospitals do all the advertising through their public relations department.

Three teams conduct two plans a year: One person presents the medical lectures, another gives the physiological lectures, and they are helped by a projectionist and a receptionist.

Because of the demand for more programs, more teams will need to be trained.

The church is also instituting Wa-Rite programs, stress control seminars, nutrition classes, and several other programs are in the planning stages.

At the conclusion of a Five-Day Plan, participants ask about other programs the church offers, so the church wants to be ready to fill any need they may have.

Church members feel that they are working as Jesus worked, helping people in their needs, loving and caring for them.

CRAFT SEMINAR AIDS PATHFINDER STAFF

On Sunday, November 16, 1980, more than 50 Indiana Pathfinder staff members participated in the fourth craft seminar held at Indiana Academy. The purpose of the seminar is to help teach club personnel new crafts that they can then teach their youth. Harry Huyck, above, of the Cicero Club learned how to do string art, a new class taught this year. Response to the craft seminar, organized by the conference youth department, has been positive. Conference elementary school teachers are also invited to attend, according to Cliff Hoffman, youth director.

organized by the home and school leaders, Millie Perry and her two assistants, Elaine Lawson and Sunny Weedman. Two plays were presented by the school children. Later the same plays were presented in a nursing home in the area.

- Three Southwestern Junior Academy ninth-graders attended the Presidential Inauguration. Pastor Carroll Lawson and school principal, Dale Ford took Connie Busch, Greg Johnson and Keith Lanham to Washington, D.C., to witness the event and to visit historical sites.

- All children from fourth-grade and up at Southwestern Junior Academy have recently acquired new gym uniforms: a sweat suit with the school logo.

- In November the Evansville Pathfinders held their first Pathfinder Day with 24 Pathfinders participating. Their program was repeated in the Inner City Church to encourage the members there to establish a club. The next week prospective leaders from the Inner City Church were guests of the Evansville Pathfinders.

CICERO CHURCH RECEIVES GENCON HELP

Nearly a half-million dollars has been paid by Gencon Risk Management Services to the Indiana Conference for the rebuilding of the Cicero Church. The church, which is insured by the denomination's insurance company, was destroyed on September 30, 1980, by an explosion and fire. An architect has been hired to develop plans for a new church, according to Ramona Trubey, church communication secretary. In the picture, Leon Spears, left, from Gencon, presents to Tom Massengill, conference treasurer, the first installment of insurance money. The church has been promised a total of $625,000 for the project. The final check will come after the rebuilding program is well under way.

NEWS NOTES

- The 20 members of the Long Lake Church raised a per capita in Ingathering last year of $60.

- Tawas Church members, with the leadership of Mrs. Ottl Bell, raised $1,449.18 for Investment, a per capita of $30.83.

- According to communication secretary Agnes Foster, the Bunkerhill Church turned in more than $1,500 for Investment—nearly $400 more than the previous year.

- Members of the Saginaw Center Street Church made more than 1,000 missionary contacts during the last three months of 1980, distributed more than 2,000 pieces of literature, and gave nearly 50 Bible studies. Lay activities leader Gary Minnick has started an active territorial assignment program, with each family given the opportunity to be responsible for a specific area for personal witnessing. About one-third of the families in the church are participating so far.

- Two students at the Ruth Murdoch Elementary School in Berrien Springs have been announced as winners in the annual American History Month essay contest for grades five through eight, sponsored by the Algonquin Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. Brent Geraty won the seventh-grade contest with an essay, "The First Fire." The eighth-grade winner, Craig van Rooyen, won with an essay titled, "A Young Spy for Freedom." Both are students of Dr. Minerva Straman. Charlotte Groff, American History Month chairman, presented the awards.

- The Holland Church had a Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking at Hope College, January 26 to 30. Cancer specialist Dr. Andre Jubart and Pastor Nels Thompson presented the class. They received many comments of appreciation from the participants.

- Led by Lois Gair, youth of the Houghton Lake Church meet each Friday evening to conduct their own youth meetings. They have only four regular members, but quantity is not what counts, Mrs. Gair said. It is the quality of experiences of the youth that count. Some adults have expressed an interest in attending.

- Two babies were dedicated to the Lord at the Vassar Church on January 31, 1981. They were: Geoffrey Joshua, son of Lon and Allison Skutt, and Jonathan Andrew, son of Raymond and Julie Boyles. Pastor Herbert Lohr conducted the dedication services.

Gordon Hewlett

HUSBAND WON THROUGH COMMUNITY SERVICES

Gordon Hewlett married into an Adventist family. But for many years he had no interest in joining the church.

Gordon and his wife, Glenna, moved to Battle Creek from Milwaukee, Wisconsin, after his retirement in 1977. Then things began to change.

"I became lonely every time my wife went to church at the Tabernacle on Sabbath. So, one Sabbath I went with her," he said. "I found out I was not lonely while I was there."

Mr. Hewlett began to go to church with his wife every Sabbath and enjoyed it. "It made me feel as though I was part of a big family," he said.

During the time he was attending church, he became acquainted with Leone McKelvey, community services director. He asked if non-Adventists could work at the center.

"She said I didn't have to be a Seventh-day Adventist to become a helper of God," Gordon remembers.

So he started to work with Mrs. McKelvey's husband, Jim, delivering items to the needy and working at the center. He happily worked at whatever jobs needed to be done.

One day Elder Wayne Olson called on the Hewlett family and asked Gordon if he would like to study the Bible. Gordon consented and, with the help of his wife and deacon Duff Stoltz, he finished the lessons and was baptized.

Do you have lonely non-Adventists in your community who might enjoy working with you in community services or other phases of church work? Include them in the work of the family of God, and you may also add them to your membership.

WOLVERINES HELP DELIVER FOOD BASKETS

Some of the members of the Wolverine Pathfinder Club of Berrien Springs who helped deliver 45 food baskets to needy persons throughout Berrien County were, from left, Jeff Bendrat, Jeff Rice, Michael Hasel, Nathan Sumner and Corry Lane. The young people were accompanied by leaders of Health Care at Home, a service provided by Berrien Springs Adventist Health Services.

DO YOU WANT A FREE WEEK AT CAMP?

Some industrious and thoughtful young person in Wisconsin will win a free week at youth camp this summer.

The person submitting the winning suggestion for a name for the youth camp, which will be held for the first time this year near Westfield, will receive a coveted week at the new camp.

Entries should be submitted to the youth ministries department of the Wisconsin Conference. The deadline date is April 15, 1981.

The winning suggestion will be announced on May 3, 1981, at the annual Pathfinder Fair at Wisconsin Academy.

Entry cards will be available from teachers, pastors, youth leaders and Pathfinder directors statewide. Any number of entries may be submitted from individuals ages 8 through 30.

All entries should be mailed as early as possible. In the event of a duplication, entry time will be a factor.

Camp staff, Wisconsin Conference office staff, and board members and their families are ineligible for this free offer.

The campgrounds at Westfield will continue to be known as Camp Go Seek; the new name will specifically refer to the youth camping activities.

BOOK EVANGELIST BECOMES PERSONAL EVANGELIST

Ellsworth and Dean Wery are literature evangelists in Wisconsin. They began their ministry in the spring of 1979 in the Madison area.

After a summer literature evangelist institute at Camp Go Seek, Ellsworth decided he would like to give Bible studies and he asked God to lead him to an interested person.

Using Colporteur Ministry as his vehicle, he began calling on every home between Columbus and Marshall, Wisconsin. That is when he met Deborah Lynn Ward. She was interested.

But Ellsworth had never given a Bible study. Lewis Blumenberg came to his rescue with the C. D. Brooks evangelistic series on tapes. Every week Ellsworth and Dena stopped by and gave Deborah a couple of lessons based on the sermons she had heard on the tapes.

On January 17, 1981, Deborah was baptized in Columbus at the Academy Church by Elder Lester Merklin.

Ellsworth and Dena are looking for more people to study with as they combine book evangelism with personal evangelism.

GLENWOOD SCHOOL CHILDREN PRESENT CHURCH SERVICE

Children from the Glenwood Union School recently presented a church service at the Glenwood and Dowagiac churches. They also presented the same program at the Dowagiac nursing home. The program, "Secrets of Christ's Perfection in Childhood," illustrated through Scripture and songs that with Christ's help, home life and rearing children can be a pleasure. Betty Jo Baerg, assisted by teachers Ruby Smith and Thomas Wagtowicz, arranged the program. The children, pictured above with their teachers, used visual aids to emphasize their ideas.

'ADVENTURES IN READING' CAMP SCHEDULED FOR LITTLE GRASSY

The "Adventures in Reading" Camp, scheduled for June 21 to July 3, 1981, at Little Grassy Lake Camp in Illinois, is a unique but very effective approach of providing assistance to young people who need reading instruction and improvement.

Sponsored by Andrews University, the Lake Union Conference and the Illinois Conference, this camp will provide instruction on a two-students-to-one-teacher ratio, using several remedial methods so the needs of every individual will be met.

Since the number of participants will be limited to about 70 students, applications will be accepted on a first-come, first-served basis.

For more information and application blanks, contact your local conference office of education.

PILOTS INVITED TO FLY-IN

Adventist pilots from the Lake Union are encouraged to attend the second annual fly-in at Camp Au Sable, Grayling, Michigan, May 22 to 25, 1981.

Ed James, Adventist pilot for United Airlines since the mid-1960's, will be one of the featured speakers.

Also highlighted will be pioneer mission pilot Dan Walters, who has spent 14 years flying a Lake amphibian on the South American Amazon River.

Plans call for a relaxed, informal schedule, according to Wayne Vallieres, coordinator of the program. "There will be time for spiritual inspiration, physical refreshment, and lots of 'hangar flying,'" reports Mr. Vallieres.

"Not only are pilots invited, but any individual interested in aviation will be welcome to attend," he said.

"The fly-in is not restricted to Lake Union members. Encourage your friends from throughout the United States to come and enjoy the beauties of Adventist aviators' fellowship and a northern Michigan spring," Mr. Vallieres said.

For additional information, write Fly-in, Adventist Aviation Center, Berrien Springs, MI 49104; or call (616) 471-3547.

CHURCH'S POSITION ON MILITARY SERVICE IS UNCHANGED

Draft registration has already taken place for young men born during the years 1960 to 1962. Now every 18-year-old must register within 30 days before or after his birthday.

All Adventist young men are urged to register at the appointed time. If you have already registered and have not received an acknowledgement letter within 90 days, you are not considered legally registered and you should check on this immediately.

With the registration has come reports in some areas that the church has changed its position concerning military service. This is not true.

What was advocated by the church as far back as the Civil War is still held today, that is, the noncombatant (1-A-0) position.

This means a willingness to respond to a military draft and serve as loyal citizens in uniform, but not to train with or use a weapon.

Since the late 1960's the church has stressed the importance of personal decision, and has offered support to all youth whether they choose the combat position (1-A), pacifist position (1-0), or that which the church suggests, noncombatancy (1-A-0). Such a decision is not a test of fellowship.

This is the same position the church has always held. It should be clearly understood that at the present time, as always, the church feels that the noncombatant position best reflects the Christian's effort to loyally serve his country as well as his God.

WAUSAU NEWS NOTES

● The Wausau Church has been conducting an Oriental Cooking Demonstration on Sundays with a potluck dinner following, according to Sally Westman, communication secretary. Three classes have been given so far. Edith Chu and Maxine Scofield are teaching the classes. Classes have included the making of egg rolls, fried rice, egg foo yong, and fried wontons. Attendance has been excellent.

● The Wausau Church is conducting a story hour every Sabbath afternoon until March 28. Diane Seiler is the leader with Maxine Scofield, Linda Garris, Fran Siemers, and Theresa Macomber assisting. The program has been very successful: about 30 children attend each week. Activities at story hour include singing, a "mystery seat," Bible stories, a nature film, and more.

GREEN BAY HOSTS FRIENDSHIP BANQUET

Christian fellowship was celebrated in Green Bay at the February 15 Friendship Banquet, according to Esther McNeal, communication secretary. Planned by the social committee, the evening's meal was followed by a program of music and comedy. A feature-length film, "Heaven's Heroes" concluded the festivities. Social committee co-chairmen Jim and Katie Hanaway are shown checking the reservation list for the banquet.
