COVER

"Praise ye the Lord. Praise God in his sanctuary: praise him in the firmament of his power. . . . Praise him with the timbrel and dance: praise him with stringed instruments and organs. Praise him upon the loud cymbals: praise him upon the high sounding cymbals. Let every thing that hath breath praise the Lord. Praise ye the Lord."
Psalm 150:1, 4-6.

The violin, owned by LeRoy Peterson, was made by Luiz Bellini in 1977, and is an exact copy of the Ex-Lord Wilton Guarnerius.

IN preparation for the Lake Union Constituency Session and audio-visual report, Dick Dower and I have had the fantastic privilege of meeting many members of the Lake Union family. We have been deeply moved as we have interviewed and photographed individuals whose stories have been told in the Herald.

They have recounted the blessings of God and how He has used them in His longing to share His love with mankind. You'll meet them all at your camp meeting this summer when the program is presented there.

One of those individuals is Jim Wery, who has been confined to a wheel chair for about 10 years because of muscular dystrophy. You read recently in the Herald (October 7, 1980) of the evangelistic series he and his brother (Larry, also confined to a wheel chair) conducted last summer.

When we visited Jim in February, he handed me an open letter he had written. Mediate on his sincere appeal. Take courage from his strength.

"People of this world—people that I can reach—I love you. My love for the Lord through my faith relationship with Him and His abiding love in me takes care of my love for you. All I ask is that you come to love the Lord. It will in turn come back to me, and keep me going. Search for Him and for His strength, and keep on searching. Psalms 105:4. In Isaiah 44:22 God says to Israel through Isaiah, 'Return to me, for I have redeemed you.' Christ says, All you people just come to Me, for I am wonderfully able to help you.

"When I get to heaven, the first person I want to see is Paul. The life Paul lived and the life I live have some things in common. I was given a physical condition which has been a thorn in my flesh, a messenger from Satan to hurt and bother me, and prick my pride. Three different times I begged God to make me well again. Each time He said, 'No. But I am with you; that is all you need. My power shows up best in weak people.'

"Now I am glad to be a living demonstration of Christ's power. I am quite happy about 'the thorn' and about insults and hardships, persecutions and difficulties; for when I am weak, then I am strong—the less I have, the more I depend on him. II Corinthians 4:17; 12:7-10. I wasn't healed as I had asked, but I believe the Lord healed me on three separate occasions. I believe He has given me more insight and I believe more will be revealed to me in the days to come.

"My life isn't my own. Death would be easy for me, with my last hope in heaven, but His will drives me on. I'm a hostage to my wheelchair, but it's a privilege living that way. I like what the two hostages from Detroit said, that they 'are no different from anybody else.' All my words come to an end on that same note.

Sincerely, your friend in Jesus,
James Wery"

MA RTIN Lushbough, D.O., at age 68, is an example of good Seventh-day Adventist principles of living, and his own particular specialized medicine. His active years in a small-town practice developed into an enlarged half-block area of clinic building, adjacent housing for stay-over patients, personnel, labs, parking lot, and sidewalks engraved with pertinent Bible texts in North Liberty, Indiana.

Other than the usual waiting-room religious literature for which most church doctors are noted, Dr. Lushbough has a wall displaying books by Ellen White as well as other Adventist authors. He has a supply of these to sell to patients who want a copy for their own library. Also available to patients in the lower level of the main clinic are tapes of the Bible by H.M.S. Richards.

An avid reader, Dr. Lushbough combines exercise with learning. When he takes a daily walk he listens to a tape on the latest medical advances or news of importance to his field. For a period of 10 years, he taught an average of two Five-Day Plans to Stop Smoking a year.

Dr. Lushbough puts in 40 or more hours per week, and his office is open six days and two evenings each week. He says his desire is to live like a friend of his who treated 25 patients the day he died at 83. In the past two years Dr. Lushbough has treated patients from 24 different states. His reputation lies in his 25 years' experience in the treatment of degenerative diseases due to deficiencies and imbalances.

In 1980 Dr. Lushbough received the Carlos Lomas Pioneer Memorial Award of the American Academy of Medical Preventics. He is also a member of the International Academy of Preventive Medicine. He still attends many medical conventions, combining them with short vacations. He says he is able to thrive on a strenuous program of activities because he follows basic health rules and keeps company with the Lord.

June Leary Mitchell has been communication secretary in the South Haven, Michigan, Church for 15 years.

Dr. Martin Lushbough is shown in front of his Liberty Health Center with a colleague, Dr. Sibyl Anderson.

Cowering in Their Closets

by Lawrence Maxwell

COWERING in their closets! That's the way the disciples spent the Sabbath after the crucifixion—trembling in fear, frightened by the priests! But the priests were so scared of them they were over in Pilate's office begging for a band of armed soldiers to protect them from the disciples.

How different that day might have been!

The disciples could have spent that Sabbath going up and down the streets of Jerusalem boldly inviting everyone to come out Sunday morning to see the resurrection.

They knew Jesus was going to rise again, didn't they? Certainly Jesus had told them so often enough! He had given them an entire series of prophecies leading up to that sublime event, and by Sabbath morning every one of those prophecies had been fulfilled, except the resurrection.

The disciples could have stood on the temple steps all day Sabbath and proclaimed to the crowds attending the Passover that Jesus had said He would be arrested—and He was.

He had said that He would be condemned—and He was.

He had said He would be scourged—and He was.

He had said He would be crucified—and He was.

He had said He would die—and He had.

Then they could have finished their astonishing discourse with the ringing declaration, "He said He would rise again on the third day—and He will! Come out to the tomb tomorrow morning and see Jesus return from the dead!"

They could have! Why didn't they?

They could have spoken of the strange darkness Friday afternoon, and of the earthquake that had opened so many ancient graves. They could have pointed to the veil of the temple still hanging in plain view, torn in two from top to bottom. "These are signs that the Lord is doing a mighty work in our day," they could have said.

They could have.

Because they didn't, the resurrection—undoubtedly the most significant, exciting event of all history—was observed by just a small handful of heathen soldiers who didn't know what was happening and willingly accepted bribes an hour later to say it never did happen.

There might have been a hundred thousand people out there to see the resurrection, if only the disciples had believed! If only they had told others the wonderful message Jesus had given them!

And did the attitude of the disciples change after they had seen the resurrected Christ and talked and eaten with Him? No, it didn't. A few weeks later on the shore of Galilee, they said to one another, "We don't have any special message to give to the world, and to make sure no one asks us, let's go fishing."

How tragic! How incomprehensibly shortsighted! We feel like getting behind those disciples and giving them a shove, don't we? We want to tell them, "Get on out there and tell everyone the wonderful things you know."

But are we inclined to say the same thing they said, that we don't have anything special to tell the world, and we hope no one asks?

What a message we Adventists have! We have prophecy upon prophecy pointing to the coming of Christ. We have a message, straight from Jesus, about healing and good health. We have a message from Jesus about forgiveness and a new life in Christ.

We can tell people why they are in the world and what it is coming to. We can tell them that Jesus is coming again soon to set up an everlasting kingdom of peace and joy and righteousness, where there will be no pain or sorrow or crying, no crime or talk of war, and nothing will make anyone afraid. Oh, what a message!

One way we can tell this wonderful message to the world is through the monthly visits of the missionary journals, These Times, Message, El Centinela, and Signs of the Times.

Tactfully written and beautifully illustrated, these journals tell Christ's last message for time's last hour. Every article is centered in Jesus. Every page reveals the love of Jesus. Every issue tells of the soon return of Jesus.

This year, as never before, let's do what the disciples in the beginning failed to do. Let's tell everyone everywhere that Jesus is coming back. Through the pages of these soul-winning journals, let us reach out and win thousands to Christ this year.

Lawrence Maxwell is editor of Signs of the Times magazine.

CAMPUS HIGHLIGHTS

● A new course in career and life planning was made available this spring quarter, according to Margaret Kroncke, director of freshman education. The class is intended for those students who are undecided in their major field of study. Two hours of general education credit can be earned. Taught by Dr. Herman Johnson, director of the university counseling and testing center, and Mrs. Kroncke, the class will be limited to 30 students to provide more individual attention. Mrs. Kroncke says that the course will help students discover themselves, the world of work, and develop their decision-making skills. Part of the course requirement is that students interview people from various professions to develop a feeling for what different occupations offer.

● Dr. George Knight, associate professor of educational foundations, is the author of a book on Christian education entitled Philosophy and Education: An Introduction in Christian Perspective. Discussed in the book are some philosophies and issues relevant to education. According to Dr. Knight, the relationship between philosophic starting points and educational outcome is one of the major highlights of the book, as well as an approach to Christian philosophy and its implications for Christian education. He is currently writing two other books, Myths in Adventist Education and Redemptive Education. In addition, he is editing a volume of original essays entitled Early Adventist Educators and is working towards a published history of Seventh-day Adventist education.

● Former United States Senator and presidential candidate George

McGovern spoke at the university during a student assembly period on Thursday morning, March 5. The appearance was sponsored by the student association. His topic, "A Perspective for the '80s," included a discussion of current political trends and issues, with particular focus on the implications of the "new right" in contemporary American politics.

Several students attended a local press conference after the program.

● A new aviation survival course has been voted in the permanent curriculum of the aviation program at the university. Taught by Dan Walters, a former mission pilot in Brazil and now an Andrews student, the course was tried out recently for the first time. Mr. Walters' program stressed passenger and pilot techniques for minimizing danger and equipment damage. Included in the training were exercises in preparation for crash impact, how to ditch planes, evacuation procedure, and how to obtain food, water and shelter. Rescue procedures involving a flare or mirror signalling and the boarding of rescue aircraft were also practiced. In addition, special practice sessions taught students, faculty and community residents basic land and sea survival techniques. Seamanship skills necessary for an ocean crash were discussed, including defenses against shark attack and landing aircraft on coral reefs and rocks. Practice sessions were held in the Beaty swimming pool on campus and at the Andrews Airpark. Wave and weather conditions were simulated in the pool for a sea crash by placing a large fan nearby. Mr. Walters has recently accepted a position with the West Indonesian Union and will be leaving in June to head the aviation program there. He first learned crash survival skills in a course taught in the jungles of Peru.

● The university's Siegfried H. Horn Archaeological Museum has received a grant award of $9,803 from the Michigan Council for the Humanities, an affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities. The grant is for a lecture series/exhibition entitled "Tell Heshbon: 3,000 Years of Frontier Life" which began at the museum on March 25 and continues until May 3. The project brings an exhibit of significant artifacts discovered in expeditions to the biblical city of Tell Heshbon, Jordan. Many of them have never been seen in the United States. Five excavations have been sponsored by the Horn Museum since 1968. Featured during the project will be the 3,000-year history of the city, its people and culture. A lecture series with noted humanists intimately involved with the Heshbon project opened the museum's exhibit, March 25 to 27.

● A total of 42 individuals attended a Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking despite a snowstorm in Rockford. Stopping smoking was promoted as a valentine to give to loved ones.

7 BAPTIZED AT CHICAGO SPANISH SOUTH

Recently seven persons were baptized in the Chicago Spanish South Church as a result of the teamwork of a literature evangelist and pastor.

In addition, a new branch Sabbath School has been organized with four to five families and a dozen children attending every Sabbath afternoon.

About a year ago, Literature Evangelist Israel Rodriguez sold a set of message books to the Refugio Astorga family. Mr. Astorga was so enthralled with the beautiful books about the Bible that he purchased a complete set of all the books Mr. Rodriguez had in his portfolio.

Mr. Astorga began reading the books at once and could not keep to himself the wonderful news he was discovering. He began preaching to his family what he was learning about the Bible.

Soon he called Mr. Rodriguez and requested information about a church that worshiped on the Sabbath he had learned about.

Also baptized at the Chicago Spanish Church were Maribel Astorga, left, and Antonia Avila who joined the Spanish Central Church.

Mr. Rodriguez gave Mr. Astorga's name to Humberto Villegas, his pastor. Pastor Villegas began studies with the Astorga family.

Soon seven people were ready for baptism. In the meantime, Mr. Rodriguez had been canvassing door-to-door throughout Mr. Astorga's neighborhood. He enrolled more than 100 families in the Voice of Prophecy course and sold many books.

On the last Sabbath in February a branch Sabbath School was established in the Astorga's home. The group is looking forward to the day when there will be a new Seventh-day Adventist Church in the area.

'HOW MUCH I ENJOY THIS SCHOOL'

Is Christian education worth the price? Here is the unsolicited testimony of William Sullivan, a sixth-grade student at Waukegan Church, who is a 12-year-old non-Adventist. "I came from a Public School and the reason I left was because they had too many people who smoked dope or cigarettes. I just wish they knew God's way. Some kids there don't even know who God is. Now in this school it has less people, and it's 100 percent quieter here than in the other school. In this school they know a lot about God and Christ and we read the Bible everyday in the class or in the library. And one more thing: YOU'VE GOT THE SMARTEST TEACHERS I'VE EVER HAD!"

WEST FRANKFORT EVANGELISM REPORT

So far seven individuals have been baptized as a result of evangelistic meetings held in West Frankfort in January and February.

Conference Evangelist Dan Schiffbauer and Don Philpott, local pastor, report that more than 100 non-Adventists consistently attended the meetings in this town of 8,000 people.

One couple, the Summers, attended every night but then stopped abruptly. When the ministers visited the home, they found Mrs. Summers sick in bed. After praying for her recovery, the ministers left.

The next day the woman experienced complete healing and she and her husband completed the meetings and are preparing for baptism.

Another man, an inspector in a coal mine, attended with his family. Through surrender to Jesus and prayer, he was given the victory over cigarettes. He has not smoked since, despite a 20-year-old habit and continual temptation and harrassment from fellow miners.

BAPTISM AT WEST CENTRAL

Paul Rohacek, a 21-year-old Morton College accounting student who also holds down a full-time job in a machine shop, was baptized at West Central Church, Sabbath morning, February 28, after studying the Adventist message for 18 months, according to Bruce Fox, pastor. His initial contact was in October 1979 when he attended meetings held by Evangelist James Cress at West Central. He then attended a Daniel Seminar conducted by Mark Fox, the West Central Bible instructor, and took Bible studies. Paul's joy was complete when he became the first person to be baptized in 1981 at West Central.

● Israel Wilson was baptized on November 15, 1980, by Pastor Chico Rivera as a result of the Radiant Living '80 series of meetings. The series began September 26 and lasted through November 2 at the New Castle Seventh-day Adventist Church. Chris Rivera, the pastor's wife, held vegetarian nutrition demonstrations each Sunday during the meetings, according to Evelyn Carnes, New Castle Church clerk.

● Sabbath, January 31, the Cicero Church members witnessed their newest member being baptized into the fellowship of the church by Pastor Randall Murphy. John Oliver rededicated his life to the Lord and requested rebaptism.

● According to Dr. Larry Ward, a layman in the Noblesville Church, 35 people recently met in a home in the town of Arcadia, 2 miles north of Indiana Academy, to pray and discuss the possibility of starting a church in that town. Since then arrangements have been made to use a large local nursing home for future meetings of this new branch Sabbath School.

● The Cicero Home and School leaders prepared a special meal the day before vacation started at Christmastime. Directed by Claudia Sargeant, home and school leader, the women served a spaghetti dinner to the students and teachers. The Christmas party the next day ended the school period for 1980 with 72 students in attendance.

CICERO CHILDREN PRESENT CHRISTMAS PROGRAM

On December 17, the Cicero Church School students presented their annual Christmas program to the church and community in the Indiana Academy Chapel, according to Ramona Trubey, communication secretary. Music selections included carols by the choir, voice and violin solos, and songs by the recorder group. The main part of the program was a skit, "The Healing of the Blind Man," given by the eighth-grade class. Directed by Kandi Zollman, English teacher, the class presented this Bible story with no background or props. The students were invited to present the skit for the academy students, the Logansport Church, and on March 14 for the Kokomo Church's conferencewide Pathfinder-Youth Rally.

3 YOUTH BAPTIZED IN MARTINSVILLE

VALENTINE BANQUET HELD IN NOBLESVILLE

A Valentine Banquet was held on Saturday night, February 14, for the Cicero and Noblesville churches, according to Ramona Trubey, communication secretary. It was sponsored by the young adults of the two churches and held in the fellowship hall of the Noblesville Church. The meal was prepared by Dick Tanner, above, conference publishing director. After the meal, Jerry Lastine, conference stewardship director, acted as master of ceremonies and introduced the "home talent." During the program, Pat and Veda Logan were honored with farewell gifts from the Cicero Church. They are going to Pendleton, Oregon, where Pat will work at Harris Pine Mills.

COSTUMES DONATED TO CHICAGO BETTER LIVING CENTER

Recently in Chicago, Illinois, the N.R.W. Feature Film Company recorded the life story of teacher Marva Collins, well-known for bringing educational excellence to the lives of ghetto children.

After the shooting of the film was completed, all clothing, pots, pans and other household items were donated to the Chicago Better Living Center, operated by the Lake Region Conference.

Jean Alan, who was in charge of obtaining the costumes for this film, contacted the Illinois Public Aid Department, which in turn contacted Margaret Rauls, director of the Better Living Center.

The center was chosen to receive the 350 garments, shoes and other items because it is located on the west side of Chicago where Marva Collins's Westside Preparatory School operates.

EVANGELISTIC SERIES SCHEDULED FOR BERRIEN SPRINGS

Jack Bohannon

Revelation Exposition, a multi-image presentation of evangelistic subjects, will begin in the Berrien Springs Village Church on April 11, 1981.

The series conducted by Lake Union Evangelist Dr. Jack Bohannon will continue for five weeks.

The thirteen churches in the area will coordinate and cooperate in inviting interested people to the meetings.

If you know of any interested persons in Berrien County, please send their names and addresses to Pastor Don Driver, 635 North St. Joseph Avenue, Berrien Springs, MI 49103.

TELESEMINAR DRAWS 710 IN MICHIGAN

In Michigan 710 persons attended the three locations of the It Is Written Teleseminar at Flint, Detroit and Troy. Programming for the all-day session originated live in the Beverly Hilton auditorium of Los Angeles and was distributed via satellite to 22 centers around the United States and Canada. A total of 6,900 attended across the continent. Nineteen follow-up classes will be held in Michigan. At the Teleseminar, 468 people registered for the classes. Lonnie Melashenko, above, is shown on the giant screen at the Renaissance Center of the Detroit Plaza Hotel where 364 attended the meeting. The Lake Region Conference gave strong support to the program in Michigan.

EVANGELISM IN COLOMA

Twenty-six persons were recently baptized in the Coloma Church following the prophecy lecture series by evangelists Leighton Holley and Sam Woods. J. D. Westfall is the pastor. Twelve of those baptized were students of Mrs. Robert Cash who recently revised the Twentieth Century Bible Course. When asked if she would be looking for more people to study with now that so many of her regular students had been baptized, she responded, "No, now I have more than ever to study with." Evangelism sows as well as reaps. Shown above, Leighton Holley and his daughter, Maria Lynn, blended vocal talents in the music portion of the program.

Ruth De Lorean was a vegetarian before she became an Adventist.

VEGETARIANISM WAS THE WAY IN

Vegetarianism need not be a barrier to uniting with the remnant church. It can be a wholesome conduit. At least, Ruth De Lorean of the Warren Church knows that to be true.

A few years ago Ruth was a member of a Protestant Church, but was "not getting enough out of her religion."

She began watching the It Is Written telecast. She liked what she saw, but somehow missed that it was sponsored by Seventh-day Adventists.

Ruth was a vegetarian, but some of her family thought it was not something to be proud of. So she quietly practiced her belief.

Then, one day she read in a Detroit Free Press an article about vegetarianism that mentioned incidentally that many Seventh-day Adventists lived that way.

Immediately she looked for the church in the Yellow Pages of her telephone book, and was delighted to discover the Warren Church just a mile from her home.

She called Pastor Edmund Grentz who invited her to attend the next Sabbath. Even though she wondered about this "Saturday business," she did go, and was warmly welcomed by Grace Carson and her husband. A friendship blossomed.

Ruth asked for baptism even before she understood all the Adventist message.

Elder Grentz was transferred, but the new pastor, Paul Penno Jr., gave Ruth Bible studies. She was the first baptism in his new assignment.

Ruth is active in health education herself. She attended the nutrition seminar and workshop at Camp Au Sable last fall. She assisted Natalie Weaver in the cooking school just concluded at the Warren Consolidated School District. They had 115 people attending.

Sensible diet may be a barrier to some because of its seeming restrictions on life style. But to others it is an entrance into the rest of God's message for this time.

One night's lecture on vegetarian cookery was devoted to the benefits of nutritious breads and the use of sprouts. Joan Finch invited those who attended to try an attractive array of samples.

LANSING COMMUNITY SERVICES STRESSES HEALTH

Community services centers serve a variety of needs in the surrounding community.

The center at Lansing is no exception, according to Mabyn Gillen, community services health director. There has been a special emphasis on health during the past few months.

"We are trying to let the community know that we are on the move for Christ, in a practical way, to help our fellowmen," Mrs. Gillen said.

The center recently sponsored three classes in cardiopulmonary resuscitation, taught by Chuck Theroaux, owner of a local oxygen supply business. An oxygen setup has been installed in the center, and Mr. Theroaux has instructed the workers in its use.

In late January, a Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking was conducted by Dr. V. L. Sheline of Ithaca and Bob Lawson, assistant pastor at Lansing. Most of those attending were able to kick the habit.

Joan Finch conducted a series of six vegetarian cooking classes in February. Health films were shown, and a variety of brochures, recipes and food samples distributed.

Canned vegetarian entrees were given to those who had not tried them, and there was a drawing for a free vegetarian cookbook each evening. Average attendance for the series was 33.

A blood drive, in cooperation with the American Red Cross, is being planned for April 21 at the center.

The building is also used as a precinct voting station. This helps residents of the neighborhood become acquainted with the center, according to Penny Ancel, church communication secretary. The center is located just behind the church.

Sheila Hurt, Carmen Inquilla, and Kim Allred of the Berrien Springs Church, helped prepare felt books for children in Nepal.

SOMEBODY CARED

Many times Pat Wyant, primary department leader at Berrien Springs, thought of encouraging her children to become involved in a personal missionary project.

Then one day a friend shared a letter from Dr. Sherry Read of Scheer Memorial Hospital, Katmandu, Nepal, with the children.

A part of the letter said: "There are many children in our hospital every day. They do not have a single toy to play with, not one book to look at, and certainly no TV to watch."

Mrs. Wyant corresponded with Dr. Read, asking what the children could do to help the young patients. The idea of something to occupy the children's time during their hospital stay was suggested.

The primary boys and girls saved their money to purchase felt material. Senior Sabbath School members were asked to donate Christmas and greeting cards.

Felt books were made and the pictures from the greeting cards were glued to the pages. The books were sent to Nepal, and the children recently received a letter of thanks from Dr. Read:

"We here at the hospital will tell the children that boys and girls in America made the books for them... they will be happy that someone from far away cared for them," she wrote.

APPLETON NEWS NOTES

● Appleton's church school classrooms were the scene of good fun and fellowship for a large number of adults and children the evening of February 14. After a light potluck supper of sandwiches and fresh vegetables, several well-organized group games were enjoyed by everyone. This evening of Christian fellowship was planned by the social committee, according to Claire Tennant, Communication Secretary.

● Pastor Jim Mamanua of the Appleton Church recently baptized two new members into the church family. Brenda Roebke's baptism is the result of Bible studies given to her by a couple in the church. Brenda first became interested in taking Bible studies after reading an old copy of The Great Controversy found on a bookshelf in her home. Monica Danoff is a familiar person to the Appleton Church members. She has been raised as an Adventist, and is a former student of the church school. Brenda and Monica were lovingly welcomed into the church family.

CLEAR LAKE NEWS NOTES

● The Clear Lake Church rejoiced recently when seven of its young people made decisions to follow Christ. Roberta Nelson, Tamara Wolcott, Roy Nelson, Susan Story, Shawna Morris, Michael Nelson, and Lisa McClintock were baptized on February 28 by Pastor Jim Morris. All of them attend the local church school, and had recently completed baptismal classes, according to Beth Nelson, communication secretary.

● Members of the Clear Lake Church recently conducted a six-week vegetarian cooking school at the Amery High School. One of the class members had been searching for nutritious vegetarian recipes for some time. During the classes, she and her husband made a definite decision to eliminate meat from their diet.

HARVEY BISHOP LOOKS BACK ON A LONG LIFE

Harvey Bishop, a member of the Almond Church who celebrated his 100th birthday on February 7, says "We all just have to live until our time comes."

He was born February 7, 1881, on a farm northwest of Wautoma, the son of Myron and Ida Parker Bishop. He had four brothers, one sister, two half-brothers, and one half-sister. "When my mother died, my dad married her sister, so my half-brothers and sisters were also my cousins," Harvey explained.

He married Lettie Parker of Hancock. They moved to Wild Rose Manor two years ago and celebrated their 73rd wedding anniversary there before Mrs. Bishop's death.

They had six sons and one daughter and now have 27 grandchildren, 70 great-grandchildren, and 25 great-great-grandchildren. He said it is hard to keep track of them all.

Reminiscing a bit, Harvey said he never owned a car, but in the 1940's he wanted to visit relatives in the state of Washington, so he offered to pay for the gasoline and oil if three friends from Redgranite would drive him there.

The four men traveled in a Model A Ford and the total cost for the gasoline and oil was $23. "Sometimes we found seven gallons of gasoline for $1," Harvey recalled.

The centenarian is still very active and walks to the dining room for his meals. He likes to keep up with current events and loves to visit.

DELEGATES to the 15TH SESSION of the LAKE UNION CONFERENCE

Following is a list of the delegates to the 15th Session of the Lake Union Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, April 19 and 20, 1981. You may wonder about the mix of representatives. The answer is logical. Whereas the business of the local conference is directly responsible to the laity within that conference, work of the union is largely responsible to the local conferences. That is, union conference staff are largely at the service of local conference leadership and clergy. Thus, while laymen predominate at a local session, pastors from throughout the five conferences in the Lake Union have a larger voice in a business meeting which covers the wider area. Moreover, while local congregations choose delegates to a local conference session, that local conference executive committee is the body which names delegates to the unionwide session. In addition, Lake Union officers and staff are accountable to the union executive committee and local conference counterparts. Suggestions which you have may be channeled through one of your lay delegates or a pastor, or by way of your local conference administrator.

REVOLVING FUND AT WORK IN INDIANA

During the past few years in Indiana the following projects have been completed with funding from the Lake Union Revolving Fund: the Noblesville, Huntingburg, Indianapolis Irvington, Lafayette, Paoli, Brownsburg, and Indianapolis South Side churches, and Richmond, Paoli, Cicero, Evansville church schools and Indiana Academy.

The Seventh-day Adventist Church is noted for its "helping hand." One of the great commandments is, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Mark 12:31. A great way of showing love within the church is to help one another.

Through your investment in the Lake Union Revolving Fund you are helping many constituents receive an additional blessing in their community.

The low interest rate on the Revolving Fund has enabled many churches, schools, and conferences to proceed in building programs that otherwise would not have been possible.

We want to thank you for your interest and financial support in making the Revolving Fund a benefit to the Lord's work.

Please write to your local conference trust service director for any questions you may have regarding the Revolving Fund.

PLAN NOW FOR THE LOMA LINDA OFFERING APRIL 18

The April 18 church offering is designated for the use of Loma Linda University. This offering is taken once every two years and is designed to help meet some of the pressing needs of the university, according to Lake Union Conference President Robert Carter and Andrews University President Joseph G. Smoot, both members of the Loma Linda University Board of Trustees.

The April offering will be used to provide student aid funds and needed instructional facilities.

The church looks to Loma Linda University as its primary source of doctors, dentists, and other health professionals. Besides providing health care in institutions around the world, these graduates of L.L.U. are giving dedicated leadership in local congregations in many parts of the North American Division.

Many instructors in Seventh-day Adventist Schools of Nursing have received their advanced degrees from Loma Linda University School of Nursing.

Please remember the needs of Loma Linda University on April 18.
