"The mighty God, even the Lord, hath spoken, and called the earth from the rising of the sun unto the going down thereof. Out of Zion, the perfection of beauty, God hath shined." Psalm 50:1, 2. Photo by Charlie Swanson of Chana, Illinois.

IMAGINE this.

As you scan your evening newspaper, you come to a full-page advertisement. Super specials. Prices slashed. Unheard of savings. Inflation fighters.

You read the items carefully. With a bright red, broad-tipped marker you circle the items you plan to purchase.

You don't want to miss this special sale. But where is it being held? Carefully you examine the ad, looking for the store offering the bargains. Hidden in small print at the bottom of the page are simply the words: The Store, 742 Main.

Of course this is ridiculous. No intelligent advertiser pays for a full-page display and then hides the firm's identity.

But what about advertising for Seventh-day Adventist evangelistic meetings? Certainly the message we have to offer is of far greater value than variety store merchandise. But recently I have seen some ads for Adventist evangelistic meetings. They were bold. Exciting. Compelling and persuasive. And expensive. At the bottom of the page in small print were the words, The church auditorium, 742 Main.

This is an editorial page, and I feel compelled to write about a burden I carry: Why do we hide the identity of our church? Are we ashamed to be called Seventh-day Adventists? I ask these questions not only of evangelists, but of administrators, colporteurs, pastors, and laymen. I invite you to share your point of view with me.

Some Adventists hesitate to reveal the name Seventh-day Adventist because they are afraid of prejudice. But sooner or later people will learn that we are Seventh-day Adventists. Won't they wonder why we did not forthrightly state the name of our church? Obscurity breeds suspicion. But openness inspires confidence.

Our inspired counsel is clear on this point: "The name Seventh-day Adventist carries the true features of our faith in front, and will convict the inquiring mind."—Testimonies for the Church, vol. 1, p. 224.

Our name is a witness.

Our name is a positive influence—nothing to hide or be ashamed of.

Seventh-day Adventists have a good reputation—a good name. The name is well received. This is true because of the positive lives and activities of the members in our church family.

The church has spent much effort and money to boldly proclaim the name Seventh-day Adventist through media messages. (We should spend a lot more, but that is another burden for another editorial.)

Today I received in the mail an audio disk of radio spots commemorating Father's Day. The disk was prepared by the Voice of Prophecy, and sent to every one of the 8,700 radio stations in the United States and Canada.

The attractive jacket encasing the disk clearly states: "Produced by Seventh-day Adventists." Every message tells the radio audience that the announcements are sponsored by Seventh-day Adventists.

(And wouldn't it be a wise witness for our church educational and medical institutions to include "Adventist" in their names?)

Hold your head high. Say it with pride. Print it in bold letters: I am a Seventh-day Adventist Christian.

It can't hurt.

It "will convict the inquiring mind."

Custodian of God's House

by Glenn Hill

LAURELS are usually given to the up-front people, those who are on the cutting edge of the action. But how much action would there be without the supporting people who keep the cutting edge sharp?

Harold and Dorothy Brown of Troy, Michigan, are a big part of the support of their church. They represent thousands of other faithful members who attend to their daily tasks in a quiet, unassuming way. In a casual acquaintance, you might never guess how much they mean to their church.

Dorothy was raised a Seventh-day Adventist. But for a time she did not follow her childhood faith. She married Harold 53 years ago. He was a Protestant but was not attending church. When five children were born into their home, the Browns realized the need for Christian education and sent their children to the Ferndale Adventist Church School.

The Holy Spirit was working on all of the Brown family members. In 1969 they moved to Troy to be close to the church and began attending. Elder Robert Boothby started working with them, and soon Harold and Dorothy were baptized into the newly built Troy Church.

Since his formal retirement from the Chrysler Corporation 10 years ago, Harold has been the custodian of the Troy Church. He and Dorothy put hand and heart into the work. Their pastor, Arnold Swanson, says he wouldn't know how to get along without them.

"Whenever anything needs to be done around the church, Harold is there to do it. He opens the building for all groups needing to use it, and sees that everything is in order when they leave. He runs a lost-and-found department, sells health food, checks out the robes and baptistry for each baptism, keeps the lawn looking nice, and sees that the church mail reaches the proper persons," Elder Swanson said.

When the Browns are gone on a brief vacation, Pastor Swanson's phone calls pick up noticeably, and he counts the days until the Browns get back.

"Because of what they do," Pastor Swanson said, "I can get around much more to make evangelistic and pastoral visits. There will surely be more people in the kingdom because the Browns did work that would have fallen on me."

Glenn Hill is communication director of the Michigan Conference.

Harold Brown

Dorothy and Harold Brown work closely with Pastor Arnold Swanson.

Financial compensation is minimal. Harold and Dorothy are paid for two days work but are at the church seven days each week.

"I can't drive past the church without going in," Harold said. He just enjoys being there and seeing that all is well.

The poet says, "They also serve who only stand and wait," but the pastor says the Browns are doing "outstanding service" while they wait.

Make Your Calories Count

by Cynthia Hadley

It's been a long day. You're tired and hungry. As you walk into the kitchen the fragrant aroma of your favorite meal hits you. You feel better as you look forward to a relaxed, satisfying meal with your family.

Twenty minutes later you're seated at the dining room table ready to enjoy the meal you've been anticipating. As the food is passed you say to yourself, "I need a little more calcium and B-12 today, and a vitamin-A-rich vegetable." Looking at the green salad, you think, "Folic acid! I haven't had any all day!" An unlikely scenario, isn't it?

Why do we eat? Very few would list their nutritional needs first. The duty to nourish the body is often given second place in allowing food to fulfill sociological and psychological functions. We eat for many different reasons. But the body has very specific nutritional needs, and not all foods meet those needs.

Nutritionally, the body needs energy, protein, carbohydrates, fat, vitamins, minerals, and fiber from food. The body's first need is for energy. Energy to keep the heart beating and the brain functioning.

The energy food provides is measured in calories. You need a specific number of calories every day. It is from your daily calories that you have to obtain the other nutrients the body needs.

The average woman needs approximately 2,000 calories daily, and the average man 2,700 calories. The foods that provide those calories should also provide the proper amount of carbohydrates, protein, fat, vitamins, minerals, and fiber.

The catch is that it is possible for food to contain calories without nutrients. So it is important to choose calories by the company they keep.

One way to assess a food's contribution to the diet is to look at its nutrient density, or the ratio of calories to nutrients. Some foods provide far more calories than nutrients.

Soft drinks are a good example: 12 ounces contain 144 calories and no other nutrients. Foods made up of refined ingredients with large quantities of sugar and fat have low nutrient densities. Many fast foods fall into this category, but often home preparation dilutes the nutrients in food by adding calories.

Consider an apple and potato. They both have high nutrient densities, providing a number of nutrients with a relatively low number of calories. But different methods of preparation dilute those nutrients, providing too many calories.

One medium baked potato has 95 calories; $\frac{2}{3}$ cup of mashed potatoes prepared with milk and margarine has 125 calories, and $\frac{1}{2}$ cup of hashed-brown potatoes has 170 calories.

One medium apple has 60 calories; one sweetened baked apple has 160, and one slice of apple pie contains 300 calories.

Diets containing too many foods with low nutrient densities make it possible for people to become overweight but undernourished.

Foods with high nutrient densities are vegetables, fruits, dried beans and peas, whole grains, and low-fat dairy products. These foods carry their weight nutritionally and should be the mainstay of a healthful diet.

The culprits of the typical American diet are too much fat and too many calories. Remember, your diet has room for only so many calories. Make them count by choosing them wisely.

HINSDALE NURSE HONORED

HINSDALE—Marion Boothby, R.N., relief house supervisor at Hinsdale Hospital, was honored on May 13 at the Chicago Hospital Council Annual Luncheon.

With the more than 100 nighttime and evening employees of C.H.C. member hospitals, Mrs. Boothby received the Hospital Candlelight Award for her dedication, skill, and compassion.

The criteria for selection established by the council stated that the honored employee be: a hospital nighttime or evening employee who took steps above and beyond the call of duty that resulted in saving a life; or a hospital nighttime or evening employee who performed an extraordinary deed for a patient.

Mrs. Boothby was chosen because of her assessment of a patient's declining status in the emergency department which prompted physician response, and her attention was instrumental in saving the patient's life.

Local celebrities who attended the event included Mayor Jane Byrne. She and other dignitaries assisted in the presentation of the awards to the employees.

Attending the luncheon with Mrs. Boothby were: Donald Hanson, president; Lance Campbell, public relations director; Durward Wildman, vice president for personnel; and Jean Graves, R.N., night supervisor.

NEWS NOTE

● BATTLE CREEK—On April 22, clergymen of the Battle Creek area attended a half-day conference on substance abuse treatment at Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital. The seminar, a joint effort of the chaplaincy and medical education departments, was designed to help clergymen better understand the substance abuser and his problems, and to point out the services the hospital provides for meeting his needs. Those making presentations were Delbert L. Brown, M.D., medical director for psychiatric services at B.C.S.H.; Anne F. Norgan, M.D., director of Substance Abuse Treatment Services, and Jane Holmes, M.A., counselor for Substance Abuse Treatment Services. Also, during a noontime luncheon, Dr. Hernan S. Schmidt gave a case presentation with the cooperation and assistance of one of his patients.

FIRST TRI-LATERAL PLANNING SESSION

HINSDALE—Members of Hinsdale Hospital's board, administration, and medical staff came together in a work and social setting for the first time in the history of the hospital, May 3 to 5 at Lake Geneva, Wisconsin.

At one point during the session, each person was asked to list his ideas about the future direction of Hinsdale Hospital. Dr. G. Howard Glassford, medical staff president, moderated a discussion of these ideas.

Strengthening the relationship between the administration, medical staff, and board was one obvious outcome of this first joint planning session. "Hinsdale Hospital is known for the model relationship that exists between the medical staff, administration, and board of trustees," says Dr. Glassford. "However, it is a tenuous, fragile one. The commitment needs to be restated. This meeting reaffirmed and extended this previously good relationship between these groups."

Dr. Glassford continues, "What really sets the institution apart is the Seventh-day Adventist philosophy. As the underpinning of everything we do, this must not be changed.

"We also confirmed that the hospital would continue to be a community service hospital.

"Further commitments include community outreach programs. For example, one of the priority items was to provide a program of care for the elderly. The program would include everything from helping the family take care of the older person at home, to having a day-care center where these people could stay during the day while the family works."

Follow-up for the ideas presented is now in the hands of the hospital administration and the medical staff president.

Tentative plans call for a repeat session within six months to a year at which a progress report will be presented.

NURSING HOMES RECEIVE ACCREDITATION

HINSDALE—Adventist Living Centers has been notified that Colonial House of Colby, Colby, Wisconsin; Mineral Point Care Center, Mineral Point, Wisconsin, and Prairie Convalescent Center, Prairie du Chien, Wisconsin, have been accorded two-year accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals' (J.C.A.H.) Long Term Care Division.

The J.C.A.H. seeks to promote a high level of care and services in nursing homes that seek accreditation. Receiving J.C.A.H. approval indicates that these nursing homes are striving to provide an optimal level of quality care for their residents.

Colonial House of Colby, Mineral Point Care Center, and Prairie Convalescent Center now join Bethel Convalescent Center in Arpin, Wisconsin, as accredited facilities.

It is expected that by the end of the year all of the Adventist Living Centers' facilities in Wisconsin will have received their J.C.A.H. approval

The correct numbers are: nationwide: (800) 253-2874; in Michigan: (800) 632-2248. Andrews University is pleased that it can make this toll-free service available to those with questions about courses of study, financial aid, registration or enrollment. The telephone lines are open Monday through Thursday, 8 A.M. to 5:30 P.M. and Friday, 8 A.M. to 12 noon. Get on the IN-Line. Call us today.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark L. Bovee recently donated a collection of Uriah Smith memorabilia to Andrews' Heritage Room in the James White Library.

HERITAGE ROOM HOSTS TWO SPECIAL EXHIBITS

A display of Uriah Smith memorabilia and a collection of early Adventist hymnbooks are on display in two special exhibits in the Heritage Room of the James White Library.

Uriah Smith (1832-1903) served as editor of the Advent Review and Sabbath Herald, the official Adventist church paper, during the latter half of the 19th century.

He was author of several books, among them his well-known commentaries on the biblical books of Daniel and Revelation. He operated an engraving shop in Grand Rapids, Michigan, and also patented several inventions that became popular throughout Michigan. A selection of these items are on exhibit.

Elder Smith also served as the first Bible teacher of Battle Creek College, the forerunner of Andrews University.

The Smith exhibit in Andrews' Heritage Room was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Mark L. Bovee of Battle Creek. Mr. Bovee is Uriah Smith's grandson and a 1927 alumnus of Andrews. He made the official presentation during the university's alumni celebration in April.

Also on display in the Heritage Room is an exhibit featuring early Adventist hymnology. The exhibit contains a collection of Adventist hymnals which were printed before the official organization of the Seventh-day Adventist denomination in 1863. Later hymnals for youth, temperance, religious liberty, evangelism and community service are also on display.

Since the majority of early Adventists lacked musical training, they depended upon others for their music and contributed the words, usually based on the distinctive doctrines of the church. They wrote new poems to existing hymn tunes and altered the wording of others.

S.A. ELECTION RESULTS ANNOUNCED

The top two positions in Andrews' student association were filled by residents of Berrien Springs in elections held earlier this spring.

Mark Edquid, 21, a second-year theology major, was elected to the student association presidency. A 1979 graduate of Andrews Academy, Mark assumed his new office in June for the 1981-82 school year.

Elected vice president was 20-year-old David Hamberger, a sophomore history and business administration major. David also graduated from Andrews Academy in 1979, and will be chairman of the student association senate for the coming year. The senate is the major forum for student opinion on campus and determines funding for all association programming.

Other officers elected include Brenda Black of Canton, Ohio, chairman of Student Services; Mark Ivey of Oakley, Michigan, Education Standards chairman; Gaylan Herr of Homewood, Illinois, chairman of Andrews Christian Youth in Action; and Sheree Strom of Lincoln, Nebraska, editor of the weekly student newspaper, the Student Movement.

Officers appointed by the incoming administration include: Greg Thompson of Hinsdale, Illinois, sergeant-at-arms; Carol Bologna of East Detroit, Michigan, Social-Recreational chairman; Heidi Hunt of Stevensville, Michigan, treasurer; Chris Smoot of Berrien Springs, parliamentarian; and Rick Riley of Berrien Springs, editor of the student directory, the Cast.

"Our best sources tell us that about five percent of the hymns published by Adventists in the early years were written by them," says Louise Dederen, curator of the Heritage Room. "Coming out of mainstream Protestant churches, they brought with them a rich legacy of existing worship music."

Both exhibits will be on display through the summer.

Hedwig Jemison

E. G. WHITE CENTERS ESTABLISHED

Hedwig Jemison, assistant secretary of the Ellen G. White estate and director of Andrews' Ellen White Research Center, recently left Berrien Springs to set up a new center at Philippine Union College.

With two tons of resource materials relating to the history of the Adventist Church and the life and writings of Ellen White, Mrs. Jemison conformed to a goal set by the General Conference in 1972: to establish E. G. White research centers in major divisions of the world field.

Centers have since been founded in Australia at Avondale College, Mexico at Montemorelos University, England at Newbold College, and Argentina at River Plate College.

Resources soon available to students at Philippine Union College include: articles from the Review and Herald and Signs of the Times on microfiche; 500 file folders with answers to questions of denominational interest processed during the past 50 years; an index to the letters and manuscripts of Ellen White topically arranged; 2,000 references in chronological order on the life and work of Mrs. White; 4,600 articles written by her in various periodicals, documents concerning major issues in the Adventist denomination; 5,000 names of Adventist workers and church pioneers; and files on hundreds of early Adventist books and pamphlets, topically arranged.

Modern equipment will assist researchers in finding the desired materials quickly and efficiently. One small file drawer, the size of a shoe box, stores 48,397 pages of the Review and Herald on microfiche. I.B.M. microfiche readers magnify the copy 25 times and some make duplicates of the text in readable sizes.

Mrs. Jemison is also in the process of setting up the microfiche portions of the research centers at Korean Union College in Seoul and Japan Missionary College in Chibaken. She will familiarize the curators of the colleges with their new holdings and assist students using the materials.

"People in the Far East interested in doing research on Ellen White and the denomination no longer have to travel to the United States to examine these documents," says Mrs. Jemison. "This is just another way that we can share the international scope of our church."

ANDREWS ARTIST TAKES LICENSE TO NEW YORK

Art department chairman Greg Constantine is adamant about his artistic license to create. At 43, he is enjoying his one-man revival of "pop" art with the production of nearly 70 "artist's license" plates. Each hand-painted plastic plate is personalized with the name and characteristic creative style of a celebrated artist of the last five centuries. Mr. Constantine exhibited his artist's license plates March 6 to 28 at the Louis K. Meisel Gallery in New York City. The Warhol plate is the largest in the series.

MUSIC PROFESSOR TEACHES WORKSHOPS OVERSEAS

Offer Charles Davis a mid-winter week in Puerto Rico, and he'll spend it teaching violin lessons 12 hours a day to 60 students. As an associate professor in Andrews' music department, Dr. Davis recently returned from his third such trip in the last three years. Each February he travels to Antillian Union College in Mayaguez, Puerto Rico, for a week-long violin workshop in the unusual "Suzuki method" of instruction. Instead of learning musical scales or how to read musical scores, students learn techniques by imitation and repetition, frequently listening to recordings of the piece they are learning. Enrollment the first year was 25 students, and has now risen to some 60 students from preschool to college-age. Dr. Davis has been using the Suzuki method for 10 years, and currently teaches violin students from the Berrien Springs area as well as directing the university orchestra.

PASTORS KOWARSCH AND RAMPTON ORDAINED AT CAMP MEETING

Heinz Kowarsch and Peter

A VISIT TO ILLINOIS CAMP MEETING

Rampton were ordained on Friday evening, June 5, at the Northern Illinois Camp Meeting, La Fox, Illinois.

The two district pastors are a commentary on the worldwide scope of the Seventh-day Adventist Church. Elder Kowarsch was born in Lamspringe, West Germany, while Elder Rampton was born halfway around the world in Melbourne, Australia.

Elder Kowarsch graduated from Collegedale Academy, Collegedale, Tennessee. He served in the U.S. Army, and graduated from Southern Missionary College.

In 1964 he married Judy Adams of Mt. Pleasant, Michigan. They have three children: Lisa, 12; Jason, 7, and Monica, 4.

Before coming to Illinois to pastor the Bloomington district, Elder Kowarsch was a pastor in the North Dakota Conference.

Peter Rampton attended Avondale College and graduated from Columbia Union College. He received a Master of Divinity degree from Andrews University in 1976, and completed a Master of Public Health degree at Loma Linda University in 1978.

Elder Rampton is married to the former Vivienne Sue Douglas, a registered nurse. They have a daughter, Emily Sue, 2.

The Ramptons interned in the Downers Grove Church, and for the past three years have served in the Wyoming-Kewanee district.

Flags from 34 nations and the state of Illinois were paraded during a program highlighting the history of the Adventist message.

Mary Jo Fanelli, a Brookfield Church member, interprets Elder Cumbo's sermon for a group of deaf people attending their first camp meeting.

66 YEARS OF SERVICE THROUGH MUSIC

Esther Munroe

Esther T. Munroe can only be described as 85 years young as she marks 66 uninterrupted years as a choral director.

As organist in a large Methodist Church in La Cross, Wisconsin, at age 19, she became organist-choirmaster when the regular director became ill.

Her service for the Seventh-day Adventist Church began in 1921 in Minneapolis. In 1929, she became the director of music at the New York City Temple Church where H. Camden Lacey was the pastor. Elder Lacey, a renowned Bible scholar, would often become so engrossed in the subject he was discussing that he preached right through to 1:30 in the afternoon, reports Mrs. Munroe.

From 1935 to 1953, Mrs. Munroe was director of music for the Glendale, California, Church. Last January she directed the choir at the Glendale Church for the 75th anniversary service.

Mrs. Munroe was active in the organizational years of the Seventh-day Adventist Musicians Guild of Southern California, serving as an early president of the group. During her years in California, Mrs. Munroe was also active in the American Guild of Organists Association.

In 1938, after the death of her husband, Mrs. Munroe became supervisor of music for the public school system of Ventura, California.

Recognizing her success as a music educator, the General Conference in 1959 called her to Washington, D.C. to be co-author of music textbooks for the denomination's elementary schools.

Mrs. Munroe's first retirement was to northern California, where she organized and directed for 22 years the 97-voice Ukiah Oratorio Society.

During these years, she served as director of music at the Ukiah Adventist Church as well as maintaining a private music studio.

In 1978 Mrs. Munroe retired, again to Hinsdale.

She is currently the choir director at the Elmhurst Church and also serves as pianist and accompanist for the church music program.

Elder and Mrs. Robert Thompson

ROBERT THOMPSON IS INDIANA'S NEW PRESIDENT

Robert Thompson, formerly president of the Mountain View Conference in the Columbia Union, was elected president of the Indiana Conference at an executive meeting on May 26.

Born in Starke County, Indiana, Elder Thompson became a Seventh-day Adventist during his senior year in high school.

In 1960, he received a B.A. degree in Theology from Andrews University, and a year later earned an M.A. degree at the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary.

After graduating from the seminary, Elder Thompson served as a pastor in the Ohio Conference. From 1965 to 1967, he was a pastor in Augusta, Georgia. In 1968 he joined the Wisconsin Conference, serving as evangelist, ministerial secretary and lay activities director. Before assuming the position of Mountain View Conference president, Elder Thompson was lay activities director and ministerial secretary of the New Jersey Conference.

Elder Thompson and his wife, the former Violet Karowski, have two married sons: Renny of Huntsville, Alabama, and Dan, a ministerial intern in the Indiana Conference, presently attending the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary.

5 BAPTIZED AT HUNTINGBURG CRUSADE

"I'll just have to pull myself together and go there and face it. Pastor, I honestly don't think there will be anyone there but you and me tonight." I glumly hung up the telephone and went upstairs to change clothes for the opening night of Pastor Larry Cansler's Bible Prophecy Crusade in Huntingburg.

Imagine the thrill of discovering three cars of people waiting at 6:50 P.M. for the meeting to begin at 7:30. As I climbed the long staircase and took a seat near the front, I felt almost faint from exhilaration as the rows steadily filled up behind me. More chairs had to be added.

As the sweet strains of "What A Friend We Have In Jesus" filled the corners of the room, tears filled my eyes. Looking around, I realized after a year of the church group having contacts with nearly 200 people, I didn't know a single person in the room.

As with Gideon, Christ wanted to be sure I understood that He was in control and that it is His Spirit that draws souls to Him. He is not dependent upon our efforts. I felt He had sent these strangers just for me to increase my faith.

Throughout the crusade many people with whom the church members had studied the Bible also attended the meetings. Five new believers increased Huntingburg's membership by one third at the close of the crusade.

On May 31, Pastor Cansler united Jeff Johnson and Lorraine Lindauer in marriage, and on June 6 they joined God's people through baptism. Others are still studying.

The Huntingburg members extend their thanks for the Indiana evangelism offerings that made it possible for an evangelist to assist them in this previously unentered county.

It is such a pleasure to report the successful use of these offerings, and to share with you the unforgettable thrill of that opening night.

years Mrs. Carter had been involved in the missionary outreach of the church. She had on file several hundred names of interested persons whom she contacted and studied the Bible with. After a short program of poems and music, the church gave the Carters a gift certificate to the Indiana Book and Bible House. Tom Carter is a retired businessman, and has served as an elder and deacon, and assisted in the community welfare service. The Carters are going to Accomack, Virginia, to work with a company of believers who want to organize as a church in the near future.

An investiture service was held in the Cicero Elementary School. The first- and second-graders presented poems and illustrated songs. The third- and fourth-graders recited the poem "Hiawatha" responsively. The fifth- and sixth-grade recorder choir presented some songs. The Master Guides in the church assisted Cliff Hoffman, Indiana youth director, with the investiture. Elder Hoffman thanked the teachers, and charged the youth to meet the challenge of living for the Lord. Above, Mike Barrett, Beth Wilson, Heather Savage and Heidi Marshall sing about pansies.

NEW MUSIC AT 87

Special music at Michigan's Upper Peninsula Camp Meeting included a harmonica medley presented by Ruth Lunz. She was a long way from her home in Berrien Springs.

Mrs. Lunz is a fourth-generation Adventist and a member of Pioneer Memorial Church.

She remembers her great-grandmother telling how she saw the stars fall in 1833. Great-grandmother Cady was a Sabbath keeper and an Advent believer at the time of the great disappointment in 1844.

The piano was a favorite instrument for Mrs. Lunz to play until recently when she became almost blind because of a hereditary eye problem.

When she could no longer see to read notes, she found an old harmonica among the family treasures and learned to play it by ear. That was one year ago, when she was 86. Now she often plays for programs in nursing homes or churches.

Undaunted by painful arthritis in her knees, Mrs. Lunz has walked across the Mackinac Bridge the past two years on Labor Day.

"I never did anything for the Lord," she says, because she has never "given Bible studies or brought anyone into the church."

But she and her husband raised seven daughters on a dairy farm in Wisconsin and today every child is active in the Adventist church. Three are church school teachers and two are nurses.

The first place every baby was taken was to church. It was Mrs. Lunz's way of dedicating her children to the Lord. The family was always together for worship every morning and at church every Sabbath. The Lord "worked many miracles to provide money for a Christian education," she said.

Her philosophy is "The Lord put me here. He has always taken care of me and will continue to do so. I am going to live and work as long as He needs me."

A harmonica isn't quite a harp, but it can help share a faith forged in Christian experience.

CHILDREN PRESENTED TO THE LORD

Michael and Carolyn Lingos dedicated their children to the Lord at a worship service presented by Pastor Paul Howell of Hastings on April 11. Pictured are, from left, Pastor Howell, August Nelson, elder; Michael Lingos holding Mark; Melissa, Carolyn and Sarah Lingos; and local elder, Edward Lechleitner. The Lingos' have five children and are enrolling three of them in church school this fall.

STATE LEGISLATORS RECEIVE CHURCH LEADERS

On a visit to Michigan, B. B. Beach, General Conference director of the department of public affairs and religious liberty, visited the capitol with his Michigan counterpart, Jonathan L. Hamrick, and met some of the representatives and senators there. With Elder Beach, left, is Senator Harry De Maso.

NEWS NOTES

● CORRECTION: The article entitled "Marriage Enrichment at Green," which appeared in the last issue of the Herald (issue 13, dated June 23, 1981) was about a marriage enrichment program at Green Bay.

● Sabbath, April 4, was a happy day for Ron Boersma when he was baptized in the Oxford Church. Ron had attended both church school and Broadview Academy. As time went on he drifted away from church, but did not forget what he had learned. Ron began studying and attending church occasionally. All this led to his baptism. The Oxford Church is happy to welcome him as a member.

● A 10-week Daniel Prophecy Seminar was recently completed in the Wausau Church, according to Sally Westman, communication secretary. Paul Scofield, pastor, presented the series of meetings. Each session consisted of a lecture and an informal discussion. Attendance was excellent.

● Wesley Jaster, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Conference, presented a Discovery Seminar at the Wausau Church, May 15 to 23, according to Sally Westman, communication secretary. Each evening Elder Jaster presented a lecture and slide presentation on major topics in the Bible.

WINNING WAYS

The Tomahawk Sabbath School has used the Vacation Bible School as a springboard for Sabbath School evangelism.

During the summer of 1980, about 50 children enjoyed the Vacation Bible School, and when the two-week program was finished, the staff decided to continue their contact with the families of the children who had attended.

Armed with a supply of Signs of the Times, Ramona Bushor and Candee Kuhn, church members, visited the homes of the children who had attended the Vacation Bible School.

They talked with the parents and invited the children to Sabbath School. As a result of these visits several Bible studies were started and several of the children began attending Sabbath School.

Ramona and Candee used their cars to pick up the youngsters and attendance continued to grow until there was an average of 25 non-Adventist children attending Sabbath School regularly.

The church adjusted its program format to devote 15 minutes between Sabbath School and church to these children.

As this summer rolled around, all those who have been attending Sabbath School have enrolled in Vacation Bible School again. The staff members are planning to extend this follow-up ministry to include even more children and parents in the Sabbath School program.

Sabbath School evangelism includes Vacation Bible School outreach. Tomahawk Church has not only reached out—they have pulled in youngsters who will remember the Seventh-day Adventist Sabbath School all their lives.

4 GENERATIONS IN GREEN BAY

TROUBLE ON THE HOME FRONT

I wish I did not have the uneasy feeling deep inside that many Seventh-day Adventist homes are in trouble.

My concern was heightened when a pastor with 150 members in his church recently confided to me in a letter that 22 couples are experiencing some degree of marital deterioration.

"Several homes have already been broken by divorce," he writes. "Others are in the process of separating. In still others, trouble is brewing dangerously near the surface." Unfortunately, his letter is one of many bearing this bad news.

What factors have contributed to the unhappiness in these homes?

Financial and social pressures that may threaten any home—Adventist or otherwise.

Wives and mothers burdened with outside jobs as well as homemaking. Husbands and fathers too busy to give time and attention to wives and children.

Depreciation of moral values around us. The T.V.

Lack of a warm, personal experience with Jesus. Breakdown of the family altar. Poor communication. Family togetherness crowded out.

Isn't it time we took prayerful inventory of our own homes and searched for answers before problems have developed too far?

Editor's Note: This is the first article in a series written by former General Conference President Robert Pierson, and provided by the Home and Family Service of the General Conference. More articles will appear from time to time in the Lake Union Herald.

American postsecondary institutions are represented through their accrediting associations in COPA. As a COPA board member, Elder Holbrook represented the National Home Study Council, the accrediting body for private and proprietary correspondence schools in America. Elder Holbrook's professional assignments with COPA have given Home Study Institute high visibility, a good reputation, and wide acceptance in the academic world, according to Max Torkelsen, chairman of the Home Study Institute Board.

'MOUNTAIN TOPS' REPRESENTS
AMERICAN FILMS OVERSEAS

The film "Mountain Tops" has just been selected to receive a Golden Eagle award from the Council on International Nontheatrical Events (CINE), according to Dan Matthews, Faith For Today director. As the recipient of a Golden Eagle, the half-hour documentary about a paraplegic who climbs the High Sierras will represent the United States in several international film festivals. "Mountain Tops," which will be shown at many camp meetings this summer, is a production of Faith For Today and Morning Star Films, and is distributed by Pyramid Films of Santa Monica, California.

OUTSIDE LAKE UNION

THE SCHOOL OF HEALTH, Loma Linda University, is pleased to announce to all of its

C. D. Brooks addresses 800 students at Palau High School.

BREATH OF LIFE: VICTORY AT SEA

During World War II, on the Palauan Island of Peleliu, one of the fiercest battles in the Pacific was waged. Recently, over three decades later, Pastor C. D. Brooks and the Breath of Life team went to Palau to battle for souls.

After three weeks of public evangelism, 146 persons were baptized, with another 57 awaiting baptism on the following Sabbath. These 203 individuals are a living testimony to the providence of God, and the power of the Gospel.

Almost two years ago Dr. Howard Baker, a missionary doctor on Palau, requested that Breath of Life be placed on the air in Palau. As interest in the telecast increased, it was decided that in March 1981 a reaping campaign would be conducted.

Palau, a part of the Guam-Micronesia Mission, is a trust territory of the United States. Of its population of 14,000, 50 percent are under 14 years of age.

Among those baptized was the wife of the governor of Airai, Mrs. Tua Tmetuchi. Also in the group were teachers, medical personnel, government workers, a judge, students, and many families. Eighteen prisoners were allowed to attend the meetings nightly, and 10 of them were baptized.

Local pastors are now conducting an aggressive follow-up program.

In an area strongly influenced by spiritism, Breath of Life was used by God to bring the Gospel to the people.

TELESEMINAR UPDATE

In the Lake Union 1,029 persons witnessed the opening of a new era when the It Is Written TELESEMINAR took place on Sunday, March 1.

A total of 7,000 people at 22 locations coast to coast (including Detroit, Flint and Troy, Michigan; South Bend, Indiana; Chicago, Illinois, and Madison, Wisconsin) were present for the live-via-satellite presentation of Bible truth, conducted by telecast director

George Vandeman and associate director Lonnie Melashenko.

Via satellite from Phoenix, Arizona, news commentator Paul Harvey participated on the health panel with George and Nellie Vandeman and Dr. Richard Neil from Loma Linda University.

Pastor William Fagal of Faith For Today offered prayer before the mid-day vegetarian meal. And the Voice of Prophecy's H.M.S. Richards concluded the day's activities with a moving prayer of commitment.

Representatives from the television industry and from other church organizations attended in various locations to observe this "first in religious seminars."

More than 50 percent of the people who attended were non-Adventists. Among comments overheard at the conclusion of the day's program: "This has been the most exciting day of my life, and I've learned things that have taken my breath away." "I came to see the technique, but I got caught up in the content."

Already, encouraging letters from delighted participants are pouring into the It Is Written headquarters offices. Three of the video net technicians working with the TELESEMINAR at the Chicago Marriott Hotel were so enthusiastic that they signed up to attend follow-up seminars.

Reports like these affirm the success of this new approach to evangelism. Another TELESEMINAR is planned for 1982, covering a wider area and more cities across the United States and Canada.

PRAYER OFFENSIVE URGED BY CHURCH

Denouncing violence gone rampant in the world, Seventh-day Adventist leaders from across the United States and Canada have asked their constituents to pray for the healing of society. Meeting at the Church's Loma Linda University in Southern California, the council appealed to Adventists to join their prayers with other concerned Christians.

"Attempted assassinations, meditated murders, and continued crime on every hand call for immediate intercessory prayer," says Charles E. Bradford, president for the church in North America. "It is not relevant for us to set aside a day in future weeks for this kind of worship."

Citing the primary reason for these troublous times as being the widespread belief that God's law is not binding, Elder Bradford underscored the necessity for "prayer in a world full of hurry and pride and selfishness and violence though it may seem a waste of time and breath.

"God's Word is fulfilling when it points out that our cities will be filled with confusion and violence and crime, and that it will increase till the end of this earth's history—until God's patience is exhausted as it was in the days of Noah," Elder Bradford continued.

"Our prayers in behalf of society's healing will give society more time to get to know Jesus," he concluded.
