Reach Out For Life

R. A. Thompson
President
Indiana Conference

REACH out for life, was the theme for the world-wide evangelistic thrust of our church. It is a good theme, and we should remember the idea and the plan. We must reach out day by day to our Saviour for eternal life.

"And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life." 1 John 5:11-12.

This is not talking about the mortal life that we all have, but the future immortal or eternal life that God wants to give us. We can only have this eternal life by reaching out and accepting it from Jesus our Saviour.

There are multitudes of people who are either rejecting Christ or are totally neglecting Him. And because of this, they do not have eternal life. Many people know about Christ, but they do not know Him as their personal Saviour.

How about you, my friend? Do you have Christ in your heart right now? Or is He just a person you know about? Reach out for life—the only life that really matters—eternal life.

Jesus said, "... I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." John 10:10. He wants us to be happy while here upon earth. But more than this, He wants us to be happy through all eternity. He has promised to take us by the hand and lead us to His kingdom.

"But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons [and daughters] of God, ... John 1:12.

The earthly mortal life we live is filled with sorrow and disappointments. It is at best short and filled with tragic events. But Christ offers each of us the power to be adopted into the family of God. To live forever: can you even begin to comprehend it?

Paul says after we are baptized we should "... walk in newness of life." Romans 6:4. This is the experience all of us need. Every day that God gives us we should reach out to Christ Jesus and receive of Him life—eternal life.

"... This life is not inherent in man. He can possess it only through Christ. He cannot earn it; it is given to him as a free gift if he will believe in Christ as His personal Saviour. 'And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent.' (John 17:3.) This is the open fountain of life for the world." Selected Messages, Vol. 1, pp 296-297.

Fulfilled by Serving Others

by Carl Koester

A visit from Chaplain Neff is appreciated by nursing home residents.

CHAPLAIN Wilbur Neff ministers in a special way to the residents in three of the Adventist Living Centers' nursing homes in southwestern Wisconsin.

Often, he says, the residents' greatest need is to know that someone cares for them even though they may be ill and separated from their loved ones.

As a boy, Chaplain Neff grew up observing suffering and disability. His mother, Pearl Fredericksen, owned and operated several small rural hospitals in North Dakota and Montana.

His compulsion to serve others was partially fulfilled during his 25 years of pastoral work, mainly in the Midwest. But the complete fulfillment of his desire to serve came when in January, 1970, he and his wife, Esther, accepted a call to minister to the spiritual needs of the residents of Lancaster Nursing Home and Prairie Convalescent Center.

Elder Neff is also Chaplain of Mineral Point Care Center, which was annexed to Adventist Living Centers in 1978.

The personal way in which Chaplain Neff ministers to others in the community has endeared people of all faiths to the God he serves.

For a time Elder Neff was also pastor of the Lancaster Church. He was instrumental in establishing a building fund that enabled church members in Lancaster to construct a new church and begin a church school. This has strengthened the nursing home work. Several nursing home residents have been baptized.

Mrs. Neff, a licensed practical nurse, works in the Lancaster Nursing Home as an activity assistant, helping her husband with chapel services by playing the piano and singing.

"The work of the chaplain," says Elder Neff, "is to reassure these special people that God loves them. The chaplain ministers to people on a one-to-one basis, assuring the residents of God's promise: '... I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee.'" Hebrews 13:5.

Chaplain Neff brings people closer to the Lord through a personal ministry of love and devotion. His example inspires those who associate with him to yield to God and become His channel of tender regard and loving outreach.

Plan to Prevent

by William Jones

IMAGINE that the news in your community centers around a death that occurred at the largest church in the area. Everyone is talking about the incident: It was a tragic accident, they say. A young man fell asleep while sitting in an open window during the Sunday night service. He fell all the way to the sidewalk and broke his neck. He died instantly.

The church was negligent for not having bars or screens on the windows, and there might be a lawsuit, other people comment.

"The deacons or other responsible persons should have stopped the young man from sitting in a potentially dangerous place. And there were too many people inside the building for good safety. An attorney plans to build his case around a previous lack of concern by the church group."

This fictitious, modern-day Eutychus story could happen at one of our churches today. Charitable immunity or exemption from liability claims no longer protect churches. Now churches must be protected by costly liability insurance, like business or industry.

When Eutychus fell from the window during Paul's sermon (Acts 20:9, 10), Paul restored him to life. Paul is no longer with us to restore life in such cases. But there is something we can do. Let's consider our options.

By eliminating the conditions and situations that lead to accidents, we can virtually eliminate the accidents.

Listening to more of the reports from Eutyclus's church suggests areas to think about in our church: The hand rails were loose. And it was reported that few of the exit lights were burning. They say the pews were not fastened to the floor. The carpet was torn and wrinkled. The steps were broken and cracked. All these situations help build a strong case of negligence.

Through effective loss control and safety procedures, loss can be prevented. In one church the clock mounted on the balcony wall fell, narrowly missing a church member as it crashed to the pew below. A number of members said they noticed the clock was not hanging "quite right." But they had not been concerned enough to request an inspection.

Good loss control does not require that church members become unduly anxious about accidents. But each one can help those entrusted with the responsibility of safety do a better job.

Perhaps we are unconcerned because we believe it is the Lord's job to protect. The Scripture says that God will protect—but, He expects us to do our part.

"We are never to place ourselves unnecessarily or carelessly in a position where God will have to work a miracle in order to save us from the untoward results of a foolish course of action. We are not to presume upon God to rescue us when we rush unbidden into danger. Mature faith will lead us to order our lives in harmony with what God has already revealed to us, and then to trust Him for the rest." Seventh-day Adventist Bible Commentary, Vol. 5, p. 314.

To anticipate what the future holds, one only needs to be aware of the judgments coming from today's court system. We do not want our church to be sued. But, this is not the main reason for our emphasis on safety and loss control—WE DO NOT WANT ANYONE HURT WHEN IT CAN BE PREVENTED! We can keep the Eutycluses from sitting in the windows. Let's plan to prevent.

So what's in Proverbs for me?

FIRST OF TWO PARTS

by Lawrence T. Geraty

ARE you having trouble making ends meet?

Have you come to the end of your rope with your teenager? Your spouse? Your parent? Your boss? Your employee?

Are you having trouble with alcohol? Or some other habit requiring self-control?

Does authority get to you? Especially religious authority?

Do you have a problem with your tongue? With the wise use of your time? Or, are you proud to say you don't have any problems? (Pride is a problem, too.)

What do you do in situations like these? These are all practical problems—problems common to human beings.

If you answered "yes" to any of these questions, what you need is a practical guide to the successful life.

Do you realize that you undoubtedly own such a guide? It is the book of Proverbs in the Old Testament.

The book of Proverbs has been the despair of many theologians. It says nothing about institutional religion, or a special relationship between God and His people. Proverbs doesn't speak to a collective Israel as the prophets do.

So why is Proverbs preserved for us in the Bible? What makes the proverbs of the wise good for us today?

Well, it is their concern with people as individuals—individuals in their social relationships and in their private thoughts.

Proverbs tells people how to act in the work-a-day world. Proverbs speaks of personal character, and a way of life that can be called good because it has unity, value and meaning. The main concern of Proverbs is to shape character. The Proverbs are concerned with conduct, with ethics. So the wisdom we find there is practical.

In fact the purpose of Proverbs is clearly indicated in its opening verses:

- To know wisdom and instruction; to perceive the words of understanding;
- To receive the instruction of wisdom, justice, and judgment, and equity;
- To give subtilty to the simple, to the young man knowledge and discretion.
- The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge.

There we have the basis of the book: God is all-wise, and wisdom can only be claimed by God. And of course that wisdom expresses itself in all His works and in all His ways.

So, if wisdom is perfect in God, wisdom in human beings is fear of the Lord. This phrase, "the fear of the Lord," occurs more often in Proverbs than in any other Biblical book.

But this fear is not a fear of God hurting us, but rather a fear of our hurting Him. It is a fear born of love; an emotional recognition of God that results in our submission to His will.

Proverbs is not teaching that this fear of the Lord is ultimate wisdom; "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom."

This view of the relationship between wisdom and faith is unique to Israel in the ancient world. The Israelites held other ideas about wisdom in common with some contemporary cultures. According to I Kings 4:29-34, Solomon was in touch with wise representatives from neighboring peoples.

But the Egyptians and Mesopotamians worshiped many gods. And that was the difference. The Israelites believed that the one God controlled everything. This enabled them to see more clearly the true relationship between wisdom and faith.

"And if you call out for insight and cry aloud for understanding,

Lawrence T. Geraty is professor of archaeology and history of antiquity at the Theological Seminary and curator of the Siegfried H. Horn Archaeological Museum at Andrews University.

And if you look for it as for silver and search for it as for hidden treasure, Then you will understand the fear of the Lord and find the knowledge of God. For the Lord gives wisdom, and from his mouth come knowledge and understanding. He holds victory in store for the upright, he is a shield to those whose walk is blameless, For he guards the course of the just and protects the way of his faithful ones." Proverbs 2:3-8.

Perhaps you have noticed from reading the Proverbs that most of it is in a poetic form. Sometimes it is called parallelism because a complete thought is always presented in two lines, called a couplet.

The second line in the couplet does one of three things: it gives the antithesis, or opposite, of the first line (see Proverbs 10:4); it repeats the thought of the first line (see Proverbs 4:14), or it completes the thought of the first line (see Proverbs 6:6). You can see how this would be helpful for learning. The repetition and contrast would aid memorization and recitation.

With this background, let's take a walk through the book of Proverbs. It may appear at first glance to be a hodge-podge, but the book has a definite plan. We have already looked at the book's introduction and theme in chapter 1:1-7.

The book is arranged in three main parts and several appendices. Part I is a series of discourses about wisdom which deal first with the child, then with the youth, and finally with the adult.

At first the whole world for the child is its home. There wisdom must be learned. The first movement away from home is when the young person finds a friend, a companion. There wisdom must be applied. Finally the young adult passes out into the wonderland of the life of the city.

In the midst of the rush and hurry of life, wisdom must be obeyed.

So chapter 1, verse 8, begins in the home: "Listen, my son, to your father's instruction and do not forsake your mother's teaching. They will be a garland to grace your head and a chain to adorn your neck."

Isn't that a beautiful picture of wisdom? The fear of the Lord is taught to the children at home. Children cannot really grasp the thought of the Infinite. For them God is represented by father and mother. It takes both, you notice.

The fatherhood of God is well-known. Jesus expressed the motherhood of God when He said, "How often I have longed to gather your children together, as a hen gathers her chicks under her wings." Matt. 23:37. So wisdom for children is contained in both the instruction of the father and the teaching of mother.

But the day must come when the child moves out into wider circles of experience. At that time, wisdom again offers careful instruction. "My son, if sinners entice you, do not give in to them." Proverbs 1:10. Then follows, through verse 19, a list of friendships which are not to be made. The proper choice of friends is the crucial thing at this stage of development.

At last there comes the day when the young adult goes out into the big city. To this maturing adult come these words: "Wisdom calls aloud in the street, she raises her voice in the public squares; at the head of the noisy streets she cries out, in the gateways of the city she makes her speech." Proverbs 1:20-21.

The first word of wisdom to the youth going out from home and beyond the first circle of friendship into the wide world is a word of warning against the ways of those who do not fear the Lord. The last word is one of gracious promise.

(verse 33). "But whoever listens to me will live in safety and be at ease, without fear of harm."

So wisdom does not call the youth back from the street, the market place, the crowds. Rather, wisdom warns the youth of the fate of those who forget God. But the promise to those who fear the Lord is that they will be quiet and safe, even in the turmoil of the city.

Chapters 2 through 9 are a whole series of discourses. And in these discourses the voice of home speaks to the youth who has become involved in life's busy whirl. Wisdom warns the young adult of the perils that threaten ruin, and counsels in favor of the forces that will make him strong.

Finally, the young adult faces not merely the excitement of the city but climbs to a high position. And wisdom comes again in one of the most wonderful appeals the Bible utters: "Choose my instruction instead of silver, knowledge rather than choice gold, for wisdom is more precious than rubies, and nothing you desire can compare with her." Proverbs 8:10-11.

This series of discourses closes with a vivid contrast. Wisdom and folly are each personified as a woman—the first as a woman of virtue and glory, the second as a woman of vice and shame.

And friends, in every city, on every street, by every door of opportunity, these two voices of wisdom and folly are appealing to us. To obey the call of wisdom is to live; to yield to the clamor of folly is to die.

How can we discern between the voices? Proverbs says, by making the fear of the Lord the central inspiration of the life; by yielding ourselves to Him for correction and guidance.

CHURCH AND LAW WORKSHOP TO BE HELD

Richard L. Huff

Richard L. Huff, Andrews vice-president and general counsel. The workshop is offered through Lifelong Learning, the university's continuing education program.

Mr. Huff, who is also associate director of the Institute of Law, said the workshop is the first of its kind conducted by the denomination to deal directly with the legal issues often faced by church pastors and leaders.

According to Mr. Huff, the workshop is designed especially for seminarians, pastors, and church administrators; and it will provide a week of intensive study on church legal problems. Practicing attorneys and experts in related fields will discuss problems involving membership in labor unions, construction contracts, liability for accidents on church-related activities, a sound insurance program for a church, and clergy malpractice.

Other topics will include divorce and remarriage within the Adventist church, the pastor and the juvenile in custody, civil rights legislation and Equal Employment Opportunity Commission guidelines as they affect the church.

The Andrews University Institute of Law was organized in May, 1981, as a vehicle within the denomination to consider legal questions facing the church and to provide lines of communication among a membership of more than fifty Adventist attorneys and judges throughout the United States.

The workshop's full schedule will feature seven in-depth topic presentations each day. Among those making presentations will be: Lee Boothby, a Washington D.C. attorney specializing in Constitutional law; Kimber J. Lantry, Director of the General Conference Risk Management Services, and D. O. VanBuren, a criminal attorney from Houston, Texas.

Also, Herbert E. Hass, Robert A. Yingst, Norm R. Perry and Michael Cook, attorneys from the Berrien Springs-St. Joseph, Michigan, area, and a variety of other specialists in various aspects of church administration and legal counsel.

The workshop may be taken for graduate credit or as a noncredit class. For information about tuition, reservations, and registration contact Lifelong Learning, Andrews University, Berrien Springs, MI 49104; telephone: (616) 471-3286 or (616) 471-3510.

4 TEACHERS APPOINTED DANFORTH ASSOCIATES

Four Andrews professors have been appointed to five-year terms as Danforth Associates, sponsored by the Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Missouri. The Foundation is a national educational philanthropy dedicated to the enhancement of the humane dimensions of life.

The four Andrews appointees are: Dr. G. William Mutch, associate professor of chemistry; Dr. Patricia B. Mutch, associate professor of home economics; Dr. Malcolm Russell, assistant professor of history; and Mrs. Sharon Russell, assistant instructor at Andrews Academy.

The four were selected on the basis of an evaluation of the principles that govern their life and teaching, in addition to recommendations from colleagues, deans, and the student body.

Danforth Associates may attend foundation conferences which emphasize improvement in the quality of teaching and learning. They are also eligible to apply for grants in special projects that enhance student-faculty relationships.

The Danforth Foundation has announced the appointment of 531 associates in colleges and universities throughout the United States. More than 8,500 educators, representing all academic fields in more than 1,000 institutions of higher learning, participate in the Danforth program.

FAMILY LIFE WORKSHOP SEPTEMBER 7-16

Andrews' annual Family Life Workshop will be held September 7-16, according to workshop director John B. Youngberg.

The workshop is designed especially for training minister and teacher couples in church-based family ministries. According to Youngberg, the nine-day seminar is intended to be a "couples experience" with the goal of giving husbands and wives insights on how to make the home a ministering center. The workshop is jointly sponsored by the General Conference and the university, and is offered through the university's continuing education program, Lifelong Learning.

Featured speakers will include: Larry Richards, author of A New Face for the Church, Youth Ministry, and other Christian best sellers, and a specialist in the area of evangelism through the home; H. Norman Wright, pastor-psychologist and specialist in teenage and premarital counseling; Alberta Mazat, former head of the Marriage and Counseling Department of Loma Linda University, who will discuss Christian perspectives of human sexuality.

Other speakers and workshop leaders will cover the spectrum of what it means to be a Christian family in today's world.

The Family Life Workshop is open to anyone interested in participating. Graduate or undergraduate credit is available. For further information concerning tuition, reservations, and registration contact Lifelong Learning, Andrews University, Berrien Springs, MI 49104; telephone (616) 471-3286.

ADVENTIST OPTOMETRISTS MEET

Adventist Optometrists from the United States and Canada attended the 23rd annual convention of the Association of Seventh-day Adventist Optometrists, July 2-5, in Battle Creek, Michigan.

The professional emphasis of the meeting centered on contact lenses. According to Dr. Clarence Omans, host for the meeting, the major discussion centered around overseas mission activities.

Dr. Donald Ackley of Le Mesa, California, and Dr. Pete Heinrich of Yuba City, California, who recently returned from Thailand, reported on the work of Seventh-day Adventist World Service (SAWS) in the area of eye care. These men, sponsored by SAWS, were the first to give eye care to Cambodian refugees in Thailand.

All Cambodians who came as refugees had their glasses taken away from them before leaving their country, Dr. Ackley said, so there are thousands who need help in securing new ones. About 90 percent of the glasses used in the project are donated by the people in the United States and Canada.

The General Conference has given a $20,000 grant through SAWS to promote a two-year project of eye care for the Cambodian people. Through arrangements with the United Nations, United Airlines is providing air passage to optometrists helping with the project.

Dr. Albert Whiting, associate director of the General Conference health and temperance department, spoke for Sabbath services at the Battle Creek Tabernacle, as a guest of the optometrists. He challenged members and visiting optometrists to be filled with a sense of loyalty, of history, and of destiny, to recognize that the greatest signs of Christ's return are from within the church.

"On July 4, 1981, in this historic spot, I take courage, for we have nothing to fear except we forget how the Lord has led us," he said.

Other weekend highlights included a tour of Battle Creek's historical spots and a Sabbath evening vesper service at the Tabernacle.

ACTIVITY LEADS TO A LONG LIFE

decade, the postal administration of Papua New Guinea, issued a set of five postage stamps.

Commenting on mission aviation in Papua New Guinea, a government brochure describing the stamps says: "Whenever new stations were established a landing strip was normally provided, often of bearily sufficient standard for safe landing. Airstrips atop mountain ridges, in valley bottoms, carved out of the side of hills, some waterlogged and slippery had been made with picks, shovels and wheelbarrows. Stones and soil have been carried away in 'bilums' on women's backs or in baskets and hods on men's shoulders. . . . Mission pilots fly more than 50,000 hours a year.

NOT FOR 21 YEARS?

by Robert H. Pierson

"Not once since we were married 21 years ago has my husband told me he loved me."

At first I could scarcely believe what I was hearing. Yet, as I considered the personality and the disposition of the man concerned, I could be persuaded that the words just might be true. It was not surprising when the marriage ended in divorce a short time later.

Love cannot thrive for long where it is seldom expressed.

The Lord's messenger reminds us that if we desire to have "a home where love dwells," that love must be expressed "in words" Counsels to Teachers, p. 115.

Wives need to be told they are loved. Husbands' hearts likewise are cheered to know they are loved. Children need to be assured frequently that their parents love them.

I know one couple, still very much in love after a long and happy marriage, whose last words to each other before they fall asleep at night are, "I love you, dear."

"I love you"—three small words, but, oh, so important to a happy marriage.

Lake Union Conference

Conference, said after the special Washington meeting, that, to his knowledge at the present time, no funds from any church organization or institution within the Lake Union territory have been, or are currently invested involving Dr. Davenport.

GENERAL CONFERENCE REVIEWS DAVENPORT INVESTMENTS

WASHINGTON, D.C.—A special meeting of the presidents and treasurers of the North American Division unions, as well as those of certain local conferences and institutions, was convened at General Conference headquarters July 21 to review investments made by certain organizations within the church in ventures involving Dr. Donald J. Davenport of Long Beach, California.

The meeting also involved a review of the application of denominational investment policy, following the discovery by the General Conference in recent days that certain investments involving Dr. Davenport may be in jeopardy.

The General Conference has retained the law firm of Gibson, Dunn and Crutcher as special counsel. In addition the conference has retained Ernst & Whinney as special auditors. The special counsel and auditors have begun to investigate the investment matters discussed at the special meeting.

While it is premature to draw any conclusions from the information available, the General Conference will advise the constituency of the church of the results of this inquiry, when they are available and will also advise on further developments.

It is the intent of the General Conference to keep the church constituency informed on this matter to the fullest extent possible.

Vice-President for North American Division*

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED FOR LOCAL DRAFT BOARDS

The Selective Service System is looking for people willing to serve as members of local draft boards when mobilization occurs. Those selected will be nominated by their state governor and appointed by the President, but will be held in a standby position because there is no plan now for drafting people into military service. But people chosen will be trained to handle deferments, exemptions, and postponements if the draft is revived.

Church members chosen to serve on local Selective Service boards will be in a position to assist Adventist draft-age youth who request special classification. The position will also provide an opportunity for sharing convictions and beliefs with community members.
