THIS issue marks the 73rd anniversary of the Lake Union Herald, Adventists' oldest union paper.

Said the first editor in 1909: "The publication of the Lake Union Herald is for the purpose of fulfilling a long-felt need of a medium of communication between the conferences and laborers of the Lake Union Conference; to aid in unifying the work in all lines of Christian endeavor; and to keep the members of the churches throughout the union informed. . . . We are anxious," he said, "to make the paper a success in every way, that it may fulfill the mission for which it has been brought into existence."

We embrace this editorial philosophy today, and believe it to be a sound philosophy for the future as well. Again, we restate the purpose of the Herald: TO INFORM, INSTRUCT, INSPIRE.

With this in mind, we are enthusiastically announcing some major changes in the Herald format beginning with the first issue of 1982. We believe you will find the changes innovative, creative, and more communicative.

The Herald is now a biweekly magazine of 16 or 24 pages—a single medium. A magazine. Next year there will be three media:

1. A monthly magazine
2. A monthly newspaper
3. A quarterly audiovisual report.

The magazine will continue to have 24 pages with a color cover. It will be filled with feature articles, providing more indepth reports about the work of Lake Union church members. More spiritual articles will appear as well. (The cost of the color cover is met through the sale of color advertising.)

The newspaper will alternate with the magazine every two weeks, and will be filled with news reports from around the union and the world. Through this varied format our journal will become a more effective communicator.

The audiovisual report—8 to 10 minutes long—is titled "No One But You." It features stories of Lake Union church members and their witnessing activities. The report will be available to all churches for a nominal cost. You will receive more details about how your church can obtain these reports.

One more important fact should be mentioned. The changes in the Herald format will provide a savings of more than 20 percent in the cost of producing the Herald.

This major savings and the varied format will make the Lake Union Herald measurably more effective in informing, instructing, and inspiring.

THE HEART OF THE LAKE UNION

Double Dividends

by Dale Ziegele

I'M happy you allowed me to work at camp. I had, and am still having, so many rich and rewarding experiences from sharing Christ with my campers. One of my campers who was interested in working at camp next year wrote me a letter and said she had decided to follow Jesus, and she wrote a short prayer for me. Praise God for how He works in His children. I think camp was a real inspiration."

Is summer youth ministry worthwhile? Twenty-six Wisconsin camp staff members would tell you instantly, "yes!" This letter testifies to that fact. The newly relocated Wisconsin Youth Camp has taken a new name. Rich in the Indian heritage of Wisconsin, the name Wakonda describes God's purpose for youth: "He who is set apart."

The summer youth ministry has double dividends to both campers and staff alike. Life-styles are important to all of us, but especially to youth during these decisive years. The waterfront is a center of activities at camp, but never more memorable than during the baptism of a camper who has learned to know his Creator.

Wages for the staff, which in the majority of cases are for Christian education, though important, can not compare with the satisfaction of a young life committed to the Lord. Campers make those decisions, not just because of the swimming, campfires, riding and skiing, but because of the view of the Master in the prism of a counselor's life.

The majority of the Wakonda staff members are studying currently at Wisconsin Academy, Andrews University, Union College or Walla Walla College. Each student is working to achieve educational goals. One member of the staff returned to camp this summer saying, "I've talked to my banker and I'm going to Andrews this fall."

Do we recruit for Christian education during summer camp? It happens in so many ways. Perhaps a staff member helps raise the horizon in a co-worker's life. Perhaps a counselor whose life has purpose because of his walk with Jesus will cause someone to say, "If that school has people like this, then that is where I want to be, too."

Youth want to be involved in what they believe. David Goymer from Great Britain, and Anne Kanerva from Finland brought an international air to the camping program this summer. They were both part of the international volunteer program. Other staff members such as Carmie Cox have extended their involvement to far corners of the world. Carmie is now a student missionary on Truk in the the Eastern Caroline Islands in the Pacific. She is a teacher for 15 third- through eighth-grade students. Carmie plans to be a staff member at Wakonda next summer. Bill Lundeen is serving his second year as a taskforce assistant pastor in the Tomahawk, Wisconsin, Church.

Youth ministries is a way of life that does not stop with the season. Bill Lundeen and Jane Graves, writers of the new camp song, sum it all up: "At Camp Wakonda, fun is Jesus, you and me!"

Another Kind of Mission Story

by Sherman McCormick

SEVERAL weeks ago I was asked to give the mission report in my church, and I readily answered "yes." But then I could not think of what I should say!

Surely, after spending five years overseas, I ought to be full of exciting stories. There ought to be no problem at all!

Mission reports, traditionally, fall into one of three types. First of all, there are the exciting stories of demonic possession and harassment. Secondly, there are the dramatic accounts of the Gospel's breakthrough.

Sherman McCormick is a student in the Doctor of Education program at Andrews University. He and his wife, Betty, recently returned from Sri Lanka where they taught at Lakpahana Adventist Seminary for five years. This report was originally given at the Pioneer Memorial Church Sabbath School in Berrien Springs, Michigan.

We had experiences that would match any of the typical, stereotyped mission stories. But such a report, I felt, would give a false impression.

It would give the impression that this is a routine happening, or that exciting manifestations of God's leading and power are only possible overseas. Neither of these are accurate.

Thirdly, there are the reports of strange customs and foods. But these only underscore our Western smugness and ignorance.

They belittle a life-style many times older than our own—a life-style that makes very good sense when you understand the socio-economic background—a life-style that, by many standards, is much more successful than our own, a life-style that is often the exemplification of graciousness.

And anyone who has lived in southern Asia knows that it is the home of the world's greatest, but often unsung, culinary artists. Their subtle blending of herbs and spices must be experienced to be appreciated.

No, this type of report is little more than a travelogue—and Sabbath School is not the place for that.

Rather, I decided to emphasize what southern Asia has done for me, what it has taught me—how I am a better man for my experience there, how I am a richer man for my friendships there, and how I am a bigger man for my insights there.

Sri Lanka, in particular, and southern Asia, in general, have taught me the beauty of the simple, uncluttered life.

I have learned the necessity of re-examining my priorities. I have learned that most of my "needs" are not real needs, but only selfish wants that I rationalize into needs, so that I can justify getting what I want.

If you question this, look in your attic, basement, garage, or other storage area. Notice all the things which at one time you "needed." But once obtained, they ceased to be needed.

What really is of most importance, what is to have top priority in my life? Because of the rate of exchange, and the lower cost of living, I can sponsor a student full time for the ministry at Lakpahana Adventist Seminary for the cost of a daily milkshake in this country.

For the cost of dinner for four in town I can pay the salary of an ordained minister in Sri Lanka for a month.

Secondly, my experience overseas has taught me the "familiness" of the Adventist community. Exactly the same types of joys and satisfactions, problems and frustrations exist there as here.

Life overseas is not all excitement—most of the time it is routine. There are days of difficulties, days when you keep going only because you know that you are expected to, that others are watching you, and that they are taking courage from your apparent courage.

Worldwide the simple joys of shared experiences weld bonds of love and friendship. Worldwide there is a common need for an understanding and sympathetic ear.

Lastly, in southern Asia I learned the omnipotence of God. He is still in control: ruling, overruling, leading in ways we sometimes fail to immediately discern.

But He is always working things out so that His name is glorified and that His people are vindicated and exalted in the end.

I learned that God does not need anything that I can give him. He does not need my programs, my plans, my politicking—not even my money. His work is going to go forward in spite of me and mine.

All God needs is for you and me to be practicing students of Scripture who are constantly aware of His presence: students who keep the channel of prayer communication continually open so that He can have 100 percent access to us to use us as He sees fit.

I have learned that only in this relationship is there real satisfaction and lasting joy. Have you also learned that? If not, I recommend it very highly!

ANDREWS RECRUITMENT SEASON OPENS

Andrews' fall recruiting season opened October 19 to 21 with visits by university representatives to Wisconsin Academy and Broadview Academy.

The two schools were the first stops in a series of appointments that will take the Andrews recruiting team to all the Lake Union academies by early December.

Headed by Paul Riley, assistant to the vice president for development and public relations, and Norman Roy, associate director of admissions, the recruiting team is making two-day visits to the boarding academies and one-day visits to the day academies.

Accompanying them on each visit are representatives from the university's student personnel staff (residence hall deans, counselors) and current Andrews students who graduated from the academy being visited.

When the recruiting team arrives on the academy campus, the seniors are given a vocational interest inventory to determine their broad areas of career interest. This is followed by an interview with each senior to discuss the results of the inventory and the student's career goals.

"We have found this interest inventory to be helpful to students," Mr. Riley said. "They are often surprised at the results. Even though the inventory is not meant to be a precise indicator, it helps the students see where some of their major interests are."

After the interviews, the university's annual multimedia production is shown to the entire student body.

This year's program, titled "Of Galaxies and Guppies and Flowers in the Rain," is a fully-automated, three-projector slide and music presentation produced by Chris Robinson, director of public relations. "In this show we have tried to focus on some of the special people and unique characteristics that comprise the Christian education we offer here at Andrews," Mr. Robinson said.

According to Mr. Riley, one of the main purposes of the fall visits to the academies is to alert the seniors to some of the sources of financial aid.

"Many of these funds require early application," Mr. Riley said, "but sometimes students think they can wait until next spring or summer before applying. In our visits with the seniors, we stress over and over again the importance of beginning the application process now."

Mr. Riley also said he will visit the academies again in the spring. Two Andrews musical or performing organizations will visit each academy during the year to present special programs.

"We're keeping in close touch with our Lake Union academies," Mr. Riley said. "The students that come to us from these schools form the basis of Andrews University. They are top on our list."

OPEN HOUSE SCHEDULED FOR NEW DORM

Andrews University announces the open house of its new men's residence—University Towers/Burman Hall, on Sunday, November 15, 1981. The ribbon-cutting ceremonies will begin at 2:30 P.M., with building tours following until 5 P.M.

Included in the day's events will be a presentation by Robert L. Carter, vice chairman of the Andrews Board of Trustees and president of the Lake Union Conference; a brief history of Burman Hall by Dean of Men Richard Scott, and musical selections by the Andrews University Singing Men, directed by James Hanson.

The public is invited and encouraged to attend.

Dr. Benjamin Reaves greets students after a sermon during Andrews' fall Week of Prayer.

REAVES SPEAKS AT FALL WEEK OF PRAYER

Benjamin Reaves, chairman of the department of theology at Oakwood College, was the speaker for the university's annual fall Week of Prayer, October 19 to 24.

Speaking on a theme of "Hear the word of the Lord: Imperatives and Invitations," Dr. Reaves delivered a series of 11 sermons at special morning and evening chapel services at Pioneer Memorial Church.

Dr. Reaves is a former assistant professor of preaching and urban ministry at the seminary at Andrews, and former associate pastor of Pioneer Memorial Church.

Born and raised in New York City, Dr. Reaves attended Atlantic Union College and Oakwood College, receiving a Bachelor of Arts from Oakwood in 1955.

He later earned a Master of Arts degree and a Master of Divinity degree from Andrews. In 1974 he received a Doctor of Ministry degree from Chicago Theological Seminary.

Dr. Reaves served as a pastor for 14 years in Illinois and Indiana. He has worked as a teacher in the Chicago school system, as a counselor for the Cook County, Illinois, Department of Public Aid, and as a social worker in drug abuse at the Veterans Administration West Side Hospital.

"Benjamin Reaves is a tremendous Christian communicator," said Chester Damron, associate pastor of Pioneer Memorial Church. "His practical, down-to-earth messages were Bible-centered and spirit-filled. And I know they will have a long-range effect on the university throughout the year."

Elder Damron also said that a new feature was introduced in the week's schedule. Fourteen organized prayer bands were held after each meeting in various parts of the church.

"The prayer bands were well attended, and grew as the week progressed," Elder Damron said. "We were very pleased with the interest in this activity as a result of Dr. Reaves' ministry."

Andrews will hold its spring Week of Prayer from April 4 to 10, 1982. Morris Venden, pastor of the College View Church at Union College, will be the speaker.

Designed as a mini camp meeting in the Broadview Academy chapel, the program will feature H.M.S. Richards Sr. and Del Delker.

The Academy band, the Yugoslavian string orchestra, and choirs from the Korean, Filipino and Spanish churches will present special music.

Everett Cumbo

Besides praising God for the more than 600 new members added by baptism so far this year, reports will be given of the special "Thanksgiving and Praise" offering taken November 14 and 21 in Illinois churches.

To meet the gigantic challenge of reaching Chicago and more than 4,000 other cities, towns and villages in Illinois, 1,000 church families are being challenged to give $100 each. Every family is being encouraged to give as much as they can.

The program will begin at 10:30 A.M. and close by 3:30 P.M. Members are asked to bring a sack lunch and the conference will provide a drink and dessert.

BOOKS PAVE THE WAY FOR CONVERSION

Recently Joy Wimberly and her son, John, were baptized by Elder Jack Carpenter in the Decatur

Church. Last spring her daughter, Charlene, was baptized at Broadview Academy.

Their story of decision goes back a couple of years when Eugene Taylor, Decatur pastor at the time, received a postcard from Mrs. Wimberly requesting four copies of Child Guidance by Ellen White.

While Mrs. Wimberly was not interested in Bible studies at the time, she was wanted help in raising her children, and she had heard of the sound spiritual advice of Ellen White.

In time she began attending church, and Elder Taylor arranged for her children to attend Little Grassy Lake Adventist Camp, and for Charlene to attend Broadview Academy.

"I have been giving Bible studies since joining the church," she says, "and expect to be very active in my church."

PLAN TO ATTEND THE DAY OF THANKSGIVING AND PRAISE

A special day of Thanksgiving and Praise has been planned for the entire conference on Sunday, November 22, by Conference President Everett Cumbo.

Church and Casey Chovan, guest instructor from Ft. Wayne, Indiana, conducted the classes. Both are certified home nutrition instructors.

They were assisted by members of the church who not only supplied vegetarian dishes for the sample table but also demonstrated the preparation of the recipes. Four students from Broadview Academy and a Broadview staff member assisted one night.

Nine persons participated in the classes; eight of these were non-Adventists, including three men.

The classes ran for three consecutive nights and at the close each person received a personal invitation to a potluck supper at the church. They were asked to prepare a vegetarian dish using one of the recipes they had learned.

The response from the participants was positive. One woman is even considering asking her food co-op to sponsor the cooking class.

Because of the overwhelming favorable response, the park district refunded the entire fee for the use of their facilities, and asked the church to conduct the cooking class again next year.

NEWS NOTES

• The Chicago Beverly Hills Church welcomed 23 new members as a result of the first baptism from the Voice of Prophecy crusade held by Evangelist L. B. Baker. This baptism, on October 17, is the first of several planned for the meetings.

• New Beginnings is an evangelistic series being presented at the Lakeview Church by the pastor, LeBron McBride. More than 100 non-Adventists have attended at least once—one man walks more than five miles to attend. Church members are active participants in the series and take part in visitations. All lectures have been illustrated with a slide presentation.

• Ernie Voyles, research and development director of the South-eastern California Conference, presented a program on spiritual gifts at Downers Grove, Sabbath, October 10. At the 11 o'clock worship hour he talked about church demographic statistics and how Downers Grove can grow. In the afternoon meetings he presented the Houts test which was taken by 55 members. This test determines what a person's spiritual gifts are. In vespers and the concluding session the tests were scored and graphed. The personal ministries department of Downers Grove plans to use these results to inspire members to utilize their spiritual talents for the Lord.

• Thirty-seven young people are currently attending a baptismal class conducted by Pastor Jeff Cinquemani, counselor at Hinsdale Junior Academy. According to Pastor Cinquemani, who conducts the class throughout the year, "Times get harder as we get nearer to Christ's return, but an increasing number of students are making their decision to follow Christ." Recently a dinner was attended by last year's students who were baptized in various churches. Doyle Harp, the school principal, gave each student a copy of Steps to Christ.

• The West Frankfort members sponsored a booth at the Old King Coal Festival held in their town every year, according to Jewell Vineyard, communication secretary. Homemade whole-wheat bread, cookies and sandwiches were served. Visitors to the booth stated they appreciated "such good wholesome food," and many have arranged to buy more from some mothers of school children who are selling whole-wheat bread to meet church-school expenses. Since the festival was on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the booth was only open Thursday night. Proceeds amounted to $55. Religious literature was also given away.

NEWS NOTES

• Cicero church members recently witnessed the ordination of a deacon and an elder for their church, according to Ramona Trubey, communication secretary. After the election of new officers for 1981-82, Perry Burke was ordained as a deacon and Doug Gregg as an elder.

• A farewell party was held at the Noblesville Church in honor of the Milo Payne family who have spent the last five years in the Cicero area where Milo was principal of Cicero Elementary School and taught grades seven and eight. Poems, speeches by students, and refreshments were the order of the day as members of the Noblesville and Cicero churches met to give farewell gifts to the Paynes in appreciation for their years of service to the school.

• The Gary Glen Park Church held its Vacation Bible School nightly, August 10 to 14, with closing exercises on Sabbath evening, August 15. The average attendance was 58, with 28 of those from non-Adventist homes. Many Bible stories, songs and crafts were enjoyed by all who attended. Mary Petruzelli directed the Vacation Bible School this year. A follow-up Bible story hour is being planned for each Sabbath afternoon through December by Lillian Muldoon.

• The Spencer Church family honored its oldest member, Mary Jones, with a pitch-in dinner on her 90th birthday, according to Katy Marlette, communication secretary. Mary was janitor for the Indiana Conference office for more than 25 years. She retired eight years ago and moved to a country cottage north of Spencer, Indiana. She is till very active, mowing her lawn and raising a garden.

● A farewell party was given on October 3 for Robert and Betty Jackson in the Fort Wayne Church social hall, according to Paul Merrills, communication secretary. Robert is retiring after 30 years as a plumber. Betty has been active as the communication secretary and community services director for the church for the past 13 years. They will be making their home in Fall of the Rough, Kentucky.

● The Harvest Celebration Singers gave a concert at the Fort Wayne Church on Tuesday evening, October 6, 1981.

● The Elkhart Church recently purchased 4½ acres of land on East Bristol Street for a new church and school. This summer some successful garage sales netted $2,700 for this project.

52 ATTEND V.B.S. IN ANDERSON

The Anderson Vacation Bible School was held July 6 to 17, with a kindergarten division and two primary divisions. Attendance was recorded at 52 children. Teachers and helpers were members of the congregation, friends and neighbors. Missy Jones, right, a teachers' assistant helped these two V.B.S. students with their crafts. A special closing program was held July 17. The children sang songs, and three skits were given depicting stories from the Bible. The program was well attended by parents and members, according to Diane Jones, communication secretary.

NEW CICERO CHURCH TAKES SHAPE

On September 30, 1980, the Cicero Church members stood stunned as their church burned to the ground.

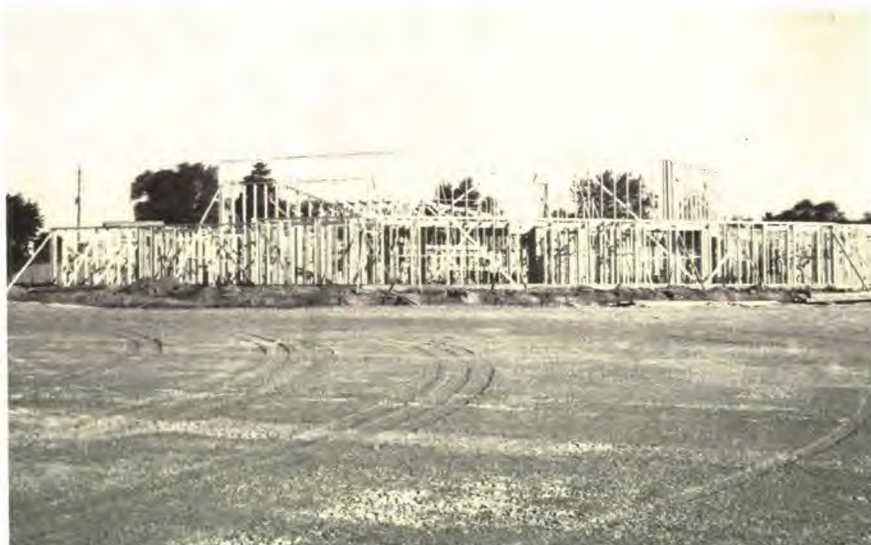

Eighteen years to the day earlier, they had gathered at the church for a work bee to prepare their new church for open house.

By September 30 this year, a new

HAMMOND CHURCH CELEBRATES BAPTISM

September 12 was a special Sabbath for the Hammond Church family. They witnessed another person join the church through baptism, according to Pastor Carmelo Mercado. Bonnye Wilson had been raised as an Adventist but had never made a commitment to Jesus. For the past year, however, she was strongly impressed to attend church and study the Bible. After much soul-searching and some answered prayers, Bonnye decided to be baptized. The Koinonia Choir sang some special hymns. Now Bonnye is an active witness to her family and friends. We pray that many more will follow Bonnye's example and join the Adventist Church. Pictured are the Hammond Church family, the guest choir, Bonnye Wilson and her family.

church was being framed. It is located on the academy side of the road in Cicero.

Denominational Building Services is in charge of the construction with the aid of local church members.

Robert Byram, a retired member, spends hours at the site each day cleaning up boards and scrap. The contractors are pleased with the clean conditions they are working in.

Bill Clark of Walla Walla, Washington, is the building superintendent. He reports that they are well ahead of schedule and plan to compete the project early in 1982.

God's blessing can be seen in the progress of the construction, and the Cicero members are eagerly looking forward to another open house in the near future.

SUNDAY KEEPER CHANGES HER MIND

"After attending church on Sunday all of my life, it would be very difficult to change," said Jenny Lawrence of Pontiac, Michigan, who was enrolled in a Faith For Today Bible course.

Last February she wrote on her lesson sheet: "It would be impossible to do so. I don't think I could survive the change."

Eight months later she reported that she accepted the Lord and was baptized in the Southside Church in Pontiac.

"Thank you so very much for the lessons," she added. "They really helped me make this choice."

HIGH TIMES HITS LOW IN ALLEGAN COUNTY

High Times in Allegan County has reached a new low. And the reason is Ken Randall and his friends.

Ken is the Listen magazine representative in Allegan and Kalamazoo counties and a member of the Paw Paw Church.

Every month 1,200 copies of Listen are delivered through Ken's ministry to the 47 schools in his area. He contacts local businessmen and invites them to finance the distribution of Listen.

When Ken discovered that High Times was being sold in his area by several stores, he decided to do something about it. The magazine encourages the use of drugs. About 95 percent of the advertisements in High Times promote drug-use paraphernalia and sources for purchase.

Ken's approach was to visit a store which sold High Times, hand a copy of the magazine to the manager, and ask him, "Would you want your children reading this?"

Usually the manager answered with an emphatic "No!" and declared that he had not read the magazine personally since it is purchased on a consignment basis. Then the magazine would quietly disappear from the shelves in that store.

At one store the assistant manager wanted to keep selling High Times. The store manager did not wish to oppose his associate. So Ken contacted a Christian woman he knew who was strongly opposed to drug use. She persuaded her friends to write letters to the manager urging him to drop the magazine. He did. Now there are no stores in Allegan County selling High Times.

Ken's ministry includes giving health/temperance talks in the public schools. At one high school he gave 12 talks to 110 young people.

At the close of the meetings, 102 of them signed the temperance pledge. Thirty-two students wrote letters thanking Ken for giving them insight into drugs and their dangers. They were glad for information from someone other than their peers.

Ken has begun work with 10 new schools this year. For two years the Kalamazoo Church had been sending Listen to the superintendent of Catholic schools. Ken visited the superintendent, who then wrote to the principals of 5 schools in his diocese recommending the program. Ken followed up the letters with personal contacts.

There are seven Listen workers in Michigan doing similar work: Paul Adams, Terry Cornell, Donald Hall, Al Munar, Doug Powell and Joe Whitaker. They help form a line of defense between Michigan's public school youth and people who would exploit them for profit.

COUPLE BAPTIZED AT TWIN CITIES

Clifton and Arlene Downing, left, were baptized recently by Pastor James Micheff in the Twin Cities Church. Pastor Micheff mentioned at the baptism that these new members were influenced by a praying Christian mother.

William and Myrtle Butcher of Breckenridge, left, and Truman and Lois Berry of Alma, celebrated 50 years of marriage recently. The Butchers have been church members since the early 1950's, and the Berrys became members 16 years ago. ## CAMP AU SABLE: A GOOD PLACE TO BE

What if Camp Au Sable were sold to another group and the conference no longer had a youth camp? Try to imagine the impact it would have on the church.

Think of how many disappointed campers would miss out on the Camp Au Sable experience. Consider how many soul-winning workshops and district camp-outs would have to be canceled or held elsewhere.

Most Michigan Adventists are grateful for the beautiful Au Sable campus where nature speaks of God and His love—where quiet decisions are made that affect life-style and commitment.

Lester Rilea, Michigan youth director, reports that 1,302 campers went to Au Sable this past summer. That is 181 more than last year.

About one-third of them, 450, made decisions for Christ. Of these, 150 requested preparation for baptism.

There were 195 Friendship campers. To many of these people, especially, Au Sable is a highlight of their lives.

Maintaining a youth camp the size and quality of Camp Au Sable requires a lot of thought, time and money. But who can measure the value of influencing young minds for Christ?

One parent wrote after last summer's camp: "You will never know how much this camp means to my son and how much it does for him. We thank you for having it available. We will continue to pray that you will be able to keep wonderful Camp Au Sable open for years to come so that many generations of young people can pass through."

BAPTISM IN LAKE MICHIGAN

Pictured are members of the Roger Harrington family of Lakeside who were recently baptized in Lake Michigan. The baptism of Mr. and Mrs. Harrington and their son, Roger, was witnessed by several of their non-Adventist friends who lined the beach. Pictured with the Harrington family is Nancy's mother, Sylvia Rosenthal, who was rebaptized. Eleven persons have been baptized this year in the Stevensville-Chikaming district as a result of lay members giving Bible studies to their friends and family members, according to Pastor Franklin Horne.

KNECHTLE SPEAKS AT CAMP SAGOLA

Emelio Knechtle

More than 300 members of the Michigan church family in the Upper Peninsula crowded into Camp Sagola for their annual camp-out recently.

The featured speaker for the October 2 to 4 weekend was Emelio Knechtle, revivalist for the General Conference. His series of studies on the plan of salvation usually requires a week to present, but Pastor Knechtle condensed them for this occasion.

Many members in Michigan are acquainted with Pastor Knechtle's story. He was at one time president of five corporations in New York city. Following his convictions has led him through considerable stress, but now he travels the world to share what Jesus means to him.

Sabbath afternoon the Michigan Conference Advisory for Region D met. Elders Myron Voegelé and Glenn Hill were present to answer questions regarding the conference program and to note suggestions for improvement and efficiency.

NEWS NOTES

● A group of young people from the Menomonie Church recently went to Camp Wahdoon for a weekend retreat. A young woman who is confined to a wheelchair attended and was wheeled and carried on the hikes.

● The Daniel Seminar advertisement that appeared in the Green Bay News Chronicle prompted so many people to call the newspaper that one of the staff writers attended the first seminar. The reporter then wrote a 10-inch article about the seminars, which appeared in the next day's paper to satisfy public curiosity. The next day, a newsman from a local radio station called and requested an interview with the pastor, Bill Wilson. The interview was aired on the radio that day.

Pastor James Ellison baptized Sadie Brown.

THE CHURCH OF HER YOUTH

A resident of Fond du Lac returned to the church of her childhood through baptism on October 3 after an absence of many years.

Sadie Brown was born and raised in an Adventist home in Panama. When she was older she went to Nicaragua where she joined another church.

Later she moved to the United States and the Fond du Lac area. It was at this time that she became convinced that she should be attending the Adventist Church. In Fond du Lac, Mae Wallington, a church member, befriended her and initiated Bible studies.

Sadie is an accomplished musician and vocalist and has given several musical recitals and concerts. Her musical talent has been an inspiration to all the Fond du Lac members. She is also a registered nurse, and works at St. Agne Hospital in Fond du Lac.

PATHFINDERS INDUCTED IN GREEN BAY

SUMMER YOUTH RETREAT AT CAMP WAHDOON

The summer youth retreat held at Camp Wahdoon, Chetek, Wisconsin again this year was considered an extra special weekend.

Rodger Ratcliffe, a pastor from Minneapolis, Minnesota, was the guest speaker.

Elder Ratcliffe's theme centered on Christ's righteousness. The theme helped everyone to realize they did not have to be good enough to come to Jesus, He accepts us the way we are.

Hiking, swimming, canoeing, and fishing were highlights of the weekend. Bill Lundeen and John Baker provided the music. The food was delicious and everyone looked forward to the traditional pancake breakfast Sunday morning.

It was good to come apart from the routine of life, to get acquainted with other young people and to learn of God's goodness to us. Make plans now to attend the winter retreat, February 19 to 21, 1982.

Youth Retreat Coordinator

BETTER FATHER SEMINAR AT SHEBOYGAN

A three-part seminar on how to be a better father was presented recently at the Sheboygan Church. Allan Lindsey, currently completing work on a doctor's degree in education at Andrews University and the father of four, was the featured speaker. A vegetarian fellowship dinner was provided during Sabbath morning and afternoon meetings. The school children made table centerpieces for the fathers. The Sheboygan Press and radio stations WHBL and WKTS featured the seminar with news releases.

Lake Union Conference

The Milwaukee Spanish Church

HOW THE REVOLVING FUND WORKED IN WISCONSIN

"When people hear the expression, Lake Union Revolving Fund, they think of money. What they should really think of is church or conference growth," states Wesley Jaster, Wisconsin Conference secretary.

Perhaps one of the best examples of this, according to Elder Jaster, is the Milwaukee Spanish Church.

In 1976 the Milwaukee Spanish Church was only a dream. There were a few Spanish-speaking Adventists attending the Milwaukee Central Church, an English-speaking church.

During 1977 dreams began to turn into reality. Carefully made evangelism plans were carried out. Cesar Pusan was called to be pastor for a new church. In December 1977 the first Spanish-speaking church in the history of the Wisconsin Conference was organized with 58 charter members.

The congregation met in rented facilities. But if a church is to grow it must have its own church home.

With rapidly escalating interest rates during this time, it seemed almost impossible for this congregation to have its own church building, particularly in a large city where property is expensive.

But the prayers of the congregation and the conference administration were soon answered. A Greek Orthodox church became available for just $25,000, including the pipe organ. Even this would have been out of reach if high-interest commercial loans had been secured.

But thanks to the investment of funds in the Lake Union Revolving Fund by God's faithful stewards the needs of this new congregation could be met.

In September 1978, less than one year from the date of organization, the congregation worshiped in their own church home. This was only possible with the assistance of a low-interest loan from the Revolving Fund.

With their own church, where meetings can be held and people freely invited to worship, the members now number 162.

"Nearly every Revolving Fund loan in this conference is made to meet a growth need," states Elder Jaster. "If it were not for the availability of these low-interest loans from the Lake Union Revolving Fund made possible by the investment of church members, many of these projects would have to be delayed or cancelled," he concluded.

For more information about the Lake Union Revolving Fund, contact your local conference or the Lake Union Conference.

outstanding loans of $17.8 million to a California surgeon and real estate developer now involved in bankruptcy proceedings.

Under an agreement announced in the recent Annual Council of the General Conference, but subject to ratification by church entities, an arbitration steering committee headed by Kenneth Emmerson, former treasurer of the General Conference has been formed. Elder Emmerson is now a general field secretary of the General Conference.

The steering committee will handle equitable distribution of assets recovered, and provide a mechanism for arbitrating any dispute arising among church entities. No individual claims will be handled by the committee.

According to Charles E. Bradford, vice president of the General Conference for North America, the steering committee will be composed of lay members and officials from the directly involved local conferences, all nine unions of the church, and the General Conference.

The steering committee is to provide orderly supervision of the settlement of claims and will have power to make final settlements. There will be an appeal process established. A first organizational meeting was held October 26 in Washington.
