Good Will Toward Men

Robert H. Carter
President
Lake Union Conference

COVER

God's greatest gift to man—His Son, Jesus Christ—is revealed in the Holy Scripture. At this season of the year let us renew our acquaintance with Him. "Behold, a virgin shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son, and they shall call his name Emmanuel, which being interpreted is, God with us." Matthew 1:23.

The photo was taken by Julie Dickey as a class project in Color Photography at Andrews University.

WE have reached a period in earth's history in which good will seems to be a rare commodity. Men appear to go out of their way to express contempt and hate for each other.

Man's inhumanity to man has reached alarming proportions. Hideous crimes are perpetrated against fellow beings continually. Indiscriminate bombings against unsuspecting citizens are commonplace in some areas. Innocent victims are frequently held hostage and sometimes brutally murdered by fanatics determined to get their own way.

In the last few days, Americans have been shocked by the revelation that leading government figures of this country including the President, are the targets of trained assassins from another country.

The sad state of affairs is undoubtedly a fulfillment of Scripture which indicates that in the last days "men shall be lovers of their own selves," and "without natural affection."

It is even more alarming, however, to notice that good will is declining among God's professed people. Misunderstanding and bitterness are on the increase among members of the remnant church. Brother is against brother. Sister is at odds with sister. Children rebel against their parents. Fellow workers have irreconcilable differences.

Our Saviour was quite accurate when He predicted in Matthew 10:21: "And the brother shall deliver up the brother to death and the father the child: and the children shall rise up against their parents, and cause them to be put to death."

Because mankind appears bent on manifesting a spirit of intolerance and malice toward one another, this world as we know it now is doomed. There is little doubt that unregenerate men under Satan's control will continue on a path of self-destruction.

Man's only hope for salvation is to turn to his Maker. Jehovah is willing to take away our sin-hardened hearts and give us hearts with feeling, hearts of good-will; hearts that love.

At the birth of our Saviour, holy angels were dispatched to earth with a message to earth's inhabitants. They exclaimed: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth, peace, good will toward men."

In the January 2, 1894, Review and Herald, Ellen G. White wrote: "We are to learn what it means to have good-will towards all men, a sincere desire to be as sunshine and not as shadow in the lives of others."

It is my hope that during this Christmas season every believer in the Lake Union Conference will glorify God and experience peace and good will toward all men.

THE HEART OF THE LAKE UNION

Something Wonderful in Everyone

by Bonnie Planck

WHO is the lady in the green dress?" Jill asked me one Sabbath.

"That's Ruth Rhoades."

"I wondered who she was, because she is always so friendly to me. Every Sabbath she smiles and says Hi!"

There are many ways to describe Ruth Rhoades. You could say she was short. You could say she was a teacher who retired after 35 years of teaching in Indianapolis. Or you could describe her as a generous financial supporter of Vacation Bible School, the Ingathering program, the blind, and college students.

But it is not these things that bring a warm feeling to your heart when you talk about Ruth. "Friendly, smiling and caring" are adjectives affixed to Ruth Rhoades' name.

Bonnie Planck is the fifth- and sixth-grade teacher at Indianapolis Junior Academy, the communication secretary of the Glendale, Indiana, Church, and a free-lance writer.

Ruth's earliest recollections include knowing of her father's faith in the Seventh-day Adventist Church. "He has been gone for so many years now," Ruth says, "I wish I had been old enough to see the value of having him record for me how he learned about the Adventist message." And when Ruth speaks of her one sister, she says, "She was like a mother to me; she was a wonderful sister."

A widow, Ruth shares this philosophy: "You feel a special closeness to the Lord when you are left alone."

If you were to ask Ruth what she does for the Lord, she would say that she really doesn't do anything. She wouldn't tell you how she looks around the church each week to see who's missing, and then writes a note to them to send with a copy of the church bulletin. She wouldn't tell you that she visits with shut-ins each week. Neither would she mention that she takes a certain church member to her doctor's appointments and other errands every week.

If you were to ask Ruth about herself, she would tell you about all her friends in the church. She would tell you about her closest friend, Jesus, and how good he is to her. She wouldn't tell you that her former students love her so much that they still write to her. And she has a large collection of pictures of grandchildren—grandchildren of former students!

Ruth's cheerful, friendly spirit is an inspiration to the Glendale church members. And I sometimes wonder: Is everyone in the world really as nice as Ruth's description of them? Or does she have so many friends because she finds something wonderful in everyone she meets?

'Abdi, I Love You'

by Elaine Meseraull

illustration by Nadine Dower

"And his fame went throughout all Syria: and they brought unto him all sick people that were taken with diverse diseases and torments, . . . and he healed them." Matthew 4:24.

Christmas gives us wonderful opportunity to think about the life of Jesus. Time has not dimmed the impact of His love. We can still feel the warmth of His presence as we trace His miracles of compassion, but we can only begin to imagine what meaning He gave to the lives of those He touched. . . .

ABDI opened one eye and looked around the room. Sleepily, he closed it again, rolled over and yawned. Already the eastern sky was warming from ice-black to a more friendly shade of pink, and he knew he should be about his daily chores.

Slowly, a 9-year-old toe crept adventurously from beneath the covers to sniff the morning air. Hmmmm. Still chilly.

Bravely, Abdi rubbed his eyes, swept his blanket around him, and with courage born of necessity shuffled over to the wash bowl to splash himself awake.

At that precise moment, the rooster, perched in the window crevice, as was his nightly custom, heralded the day's arrival with a magnificent, well-polished, and much-practised crow.

Abdi did not notice. He did not jump from surprise at the sudden attack on silence because he did not hear it. No sound had ever startled Abdi, because he had never hear a sound. Abdi was deaf.

He did not hear the water pattering back to the wash bowl as it dripped from his hands and chin. He did not hear the birds begin their morning gossip outside the open window. He had never even heard his own heartbeat in his ears as he ran across the fields.

And he did not hear the smile in his mother's voice when she said, "Good morning, Abdi. How's my boy today?" Gently she touched his shoulder, and he turned to face her.

Patient mother. Little could Abdi know of her pain. Not pain of body, but of spirit. She seemed such a simple woman—poor, widowed, dressed in tatters.

But internally and eternally, Abdi's mother was a poet. She could look at rain and see the flowers—look at her boy and see intelligence trapped in silence.

How could she tell him things—things he needed to know and yet didn't know he needed? Common things like how to bargain in the market.

She could never even hold him close and tell the stories of Daniel or Moses or of the coming Messiah. She could only point and gesture and smile—such a frustrating and awkward way for a poet to write a message on the heart of one she loved so much.

Yet, Abdi understood her silent words. If he did not completely comprehend meaning, at least he knew the intent.

His mother always said, "I love you, Abdi," even when her lips never moved at all. Perhaps he really understood her better than people who heard her speak, for who expects to find a poet dressed in rags?

After all, if you are poor, it is because you are stupid—because God does not bless—sin lies at your door. If you have nothing, it is because there has been no effort. Some things are common knowledge.

But poets have a way of recognizing poets. Rags or no rags. And that is why on this particular day Abdi's mother planned a surprise. She motioned for Abdi to hurry with his chores, for they were going to see Someone.

From what little she knew, this Person could speak in words musical and mysterious. He could speak in soul poetry—a very different language from Aramaic. It was, perhaps, her one chance in life to listen to the language of her inner self.

And, perhaps, Abdi's one chance as well.

When they found Him, He was surrounded by a crowd, but as we already know, Abdi's mother was a patient woman. Slowly, she led Abdi to the front, slipping quietly in place just in front of Him. Suddenly, He looked up, and their eyes met. The two poets talked wordlessly.

The most amazing part was that He knew everything about her—her pain, her hopes, her heart. His eyes said he knew the frustration of expressing love in a language not designed for it—He had a similar problem.

So even if He had never laid His hands aside Abdi's head that day; even if she had not seen the odd, quizzical expression in her son's eyes when his ears heard for the first time, it would have been enough. Just to know He understood would have been enough.

As soon as Those Hands had touched sound into Abdi's ears, speech into his mind, and words into his memory, the Poet turned and walked a little way up the mountain. Abdi and his mother followed with the crowd.

All that afternoon Abdi was hungry for sound. He stood enraptured while the Poet said, "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. Blessed are they that mourn . . .

Of course, Abdi could not know that the first words he heard would stay with men until the end of time. He only knew they sounded beautiful.

All the way home that evening, Abdi listened. Fascinated by the sound of his footsteps, he marched ahead for a few steps—just for fun.

Intrigued by a buzz, he turned just in time to see an insect boil by. But mostly he listened to his mother's voice as she told him all the things he ever wanted to know.

"Mother," he asked suddenly, "where did HE come from?"

"From heaven," she said simply.

"How do you know?"

"Well, it is said that on the night He was born, angels sang on the hillsides of Bethlehem. They say it was the sweetest music men have ever heard." Then she paused.

Music? How could Abdi possibly know?! "Music," she began to explain, is a rainbow sound that sparkles in your mind. It's a snuggle sound that hugs you before it goes.

Abdi's face brightened. "Oh," he said happily, "I know what music is then!"

"You do?" His mother was surprised.

"Yes," he giggled. "I saw it today."

"But Abdi, you can't see music, you . . ."

"Yes, you can, mother. I saw it today—in His eyes."

Abdi's mother started to say something and then stopped. It's funny, she thought. I've heard music all my life and never really knew what it was. Abdi has never heard a note, and yet he recognizes the melody of the universe.

"Abdi," she spoke very seriously, yet with a smile. "Abdi, I love you."

FIRST LAKE UNION SPANISH YOUTH CONGRESS

Ardiendo por Cristo

by Charles Case

THE Lake Union has another first—a congress for Spanish-speaking youth.

For the past several years, the number of Spanish-speaking believers in the union has been on the increase, especially with the Cuban refugees moving into the union. There are more youth as well.

Many of the youth said, "Why can't we have a youth congress for the Spanish-speaking young people? Most of us speak English, but it is nice to have a congress in our own language, with our people."

The conference youth directors met, accepted the request, and planned a Spanish Youth Congress.

Charles Case is youth director for the Lake Union Conference.

John Youngberg talked to the youth about love and marriage.

Eloy Martinez, associate director of the human affairs department of the General Conference, was invited to be the guest speaker.

On Friday, October 23, 1981, about 300 young people gathered in the convention hall at the O'Hare Ramada Inn in Chicago to begin the congress.

Sabbath morning, October 24, 1981, at 8 A.M., the seats began to fill, and by church time more than 900 Spanish-speaking youth and their families were present at the congress. They came from Milwaukee, Grand Rapids, Gary, Berrien Springs and Chicago.

A lively Sabbath School program was presented by Dr. Eduardo Ocampo and students from Andrews University.

On Sabbath afternoon four seminars were held for the youth: "Problems Adventist Youth Are Faced With," conducted by Jeff Wilson, Illinois youth director, and Dale Ziegele, Wisconsin youth director; "Love, Courtship and Marriage," conducted by Dr. John Youngberg of Andrews University; "Adventist Youth and Music," conducted by James Hanson of Andrews University; "Adventist Youth and the Military," conducted by Charles Case.

Samuel Ocampo, well-known pianist from Andrews University, and former pianist for the Heritage Singers, played a special vespers concert accompanied by an orchestra of students from Andrews.

When the congress was over, participants expressed appreciation for this first Lake Union Spanish Youth Congress. Plans are now underway for a unionwide Spanish youth Bible conference from September 24 to 26, 1982.

The youth directors were grateful to the pastors of the Spanish Churches for their help in organizing the youth congress. Elders Luis Leonor and Cesar Funes directed two of the meetings.

The Lake Union has a Spanish constituency of about 2,000 members in 18 churches. Please pray that these enthusiastic believers may continue to spread their enthusiasm of the Gospel to the many non-believing Spanish-speaking people in the Lake Union. The Spanish-speaking youth are "ardiendo por Cristo"—on fire for the Lord!

Eleven of the 15 graduates of 1931 attended.

The weekend was coordinated by Tom Massengill, president of the alumni association. Jim Reynolds of Columbus, Ohio, class of '51, spoke during the church service, and Ted Kilty of Michigan, was guest organist.

A podium in use for 50 years, refinished and presented to the school by the class of '31, was used during the weekend services.

During afternoon activities, Charles Marsh, first principal of Indiana Academy (1918-1924), presented an oil painting to be hung in the girls' dormitory.

Also during the afternoon program the Good News quartet, all alumni of the academy, gave a musical program which included performances by the academy band and choirs.

Cliff Hoffman of Cicero was elected president of the alumni association.

C.L.A. OBSERVES FALL WEEK OF PRAYER

From October 19 to 24, Cedar Lake Academy was honored to have Don Pate of Port Huron speak for the annual fall Week of Prayer meetings.

ANDREWS STUDENTS BACKPACK ON APPALACHIAN TRAIL

Andrews Academy held its annual backpacking trip October 4 to 9 on a portion of the Appalachian Trail in North Carolina and Tennessee. The trip is held each year as the field experience for the academy's class in backpacking. Twenty-three students participated this year. Sponsors for the trip were faculty members Douglas Newberry, Ed Dower and Lydia Chong.

His subject was "Death." Elder Pate's premise was that if a person has nothing to die for, then probably he has nothing to live for either.

Then Elder Pate described how some Bible characters lived so that they were prepared to die. Some of the stories included Adam's experience with killing the first lamb, Abraham's grief when faced with killing his own son, and Moses' experience on Mt. Pisgah.

Many students participated in the program by giving prayer or presenting special music. Elder Pate also provided music. At the end of some of his talks he sang. Many listeners said that the entire week filled them with "the joy of heaven."

GRAND LEDGE STUDENTS TOUR NEW ENGLAND

Fifteen excited people left Grand Ledge Academy early on a Sunday morning in November for Boston, Massachusetts. Twelve students had been taking a class on early American history and this was the culmination of nine weeks' work.

While in the Boston area, the group stayed at Atlantic Union College. Several days were spent seeing the sights in Boston and visiting Sturbridge Village and Plymouth Plantation. The students were impressed with the heritage of America still remaining in Boston.

Another highlight of the week-long tour was the visit to Mystic Seaport Museum in Connecticut. The only whaling ship left in America, the Charles W. Morgan, is docked at the harbor.

Everybody concluded that the trip was well worth the time and money.

The Original Silver Cornet Band performed at Cedar Lake Academy.

CEDAR LAKE ACADEMY WELCOMES CORNET BAND

On November 1, 1981, "Mr. Jack Daniel's Original Silver Cornet Band" gave a concert on the campus of Cedar Lake Academy.

This group is a 13-member recreation of a turn-of-the-century village band, complete with authentic silver conical-bore instruments and a replica gazebo bandstand.

Around the turn of the century there were approximately 15 thousand village bands, which were the hub of culture in rural America. With the phonograph still a novelty and radio and television in their infancy, it was to the bands that people turned for diversion and entertainment.

Dave Fulmer, director of the Original Silver Cornet Band, spent several years doing musicological research on the American village band movement.

The band's performance at C.L.A. was greeted with unanimous approval by students, staff, and community folk alike.

Through the presentation of concerts and cultural events such as this one, C.L.A. is seeking to enrich the lives of its students, and to provide quality programs for the community.

GRAND LEDGE ACADEMY WELCOMES INGATHERING

Recently the students at Grand Ledge Academy held their annual Ingathering day in the communities surrounding the school. Donald Slocum, Bible teacher and coordinator for the day, reported a student average of $13.04. This was the highest amount anybody can remember.

Two students, Val Boccheciamp and Jeff Moore, solicited more than $62. Not only was money collected, but thousands of pieces of literature were given to the residents.

More important was the witnessing through special prayers several students had with the residents. The faculty feels Ingathering should be an integral part of G.L.A.'s school program.

HINSDALE HOSPITAL'S BLOOD BANK ACCREDITED

HINSDALE—Hinsdale Hospital's Blood Bank has been awarded a two-year accreditation by the American Association of Blood Banks (A.A.B.B.), according to Roland Lonser, M.D., blood bank director.

Accreditation follows an intensive on-site inspection by specially trained representatives of the association, and establishes that the level of medical, technical, and administrative performance within the facility meets or exceeds the rigorous standards set by the A.A.B.B.

By successfully meeting those requirements, Hinsdale Hospital's Blood Bank can join more than 2,000 similar facilities across the United States that have earned the accreditation rating and recognition.

ALCOHOL EDUCATION PROMOTED AT B.C.S.H.

BATTLE CREEK—During Alcohol Awareness Week, November 8 through 14, Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital joined the state chapter of the National Council on Alcoholism in educating the people of southwestern Michigan about problems associated with the use and abuse of alcohol.

A special display was posted on the glass-enclosed bulletin board at the entrance of the hospital's Heritage Dining Room. The display included a daily set of interesting facts about alcohol and its misuse.

The fact sheets included information about alcohol's effect on health, job, and family, and the special problems of alcoholism in young people and older adults.

Area television and radio stations cooperated with the hospital in the educational effort. B.C.S.H.'s public relations department furnished 10-second public service spot announcements to 47 radio and television stations in southwestern Michigan.

Informative in nature, the spots focused on the same daily topics as those covered by the hospital's bulletin board display. Each of the announcements invited the listener to call B.C.S.H. for information about how to receive help for problems associated with alcoholism.

Jane Nelson-Holmes, M.A., program coordinator for Substance Abuse Treatment Services at B.C.S.H., was interviewed on

CHIPPEWA VALLEY CONSTRUCTION ON SCHEDULE

DURAND, WISCONSIN—Construction on the new facility at Chippewa Valley Hospital and Nursing Home Inc., Durand, Wisconsin, is progressing rapidly. Construction on the 4.5 million dollar facility began with initial excavating and site clearing on September 9. The exterior block and brick walls have been laid, and the building is being enclosed so that work can continue throughout the winter months. Work on sewer and water lines is almost complete and work continues on the interior footings and piers, plumbing, electrical work, and gas line installation. Construction is presently running slightly ahead of schedule, due to good weather. The facility is scheduled to be ready for occupation in the fall of 1982.

WUHQ-TV's Sunday Morning Spotlight program, aired on November 8, and was also interviewed November 11 on WBCK's Mid-Morning Show.

Mrs. Nelson-Holmes believes that as a result of the television and radio interviews a large number of the people in southwestern Michigan will be more aware of alcoholism—what it is, its signs and symptoms, its effects upon the user, and the available treatment programs.

"I am so glad for these opportunities to be able to tell people that help is available at Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital for this common problem," she said, "and I am pleased that I can have a personal part in helping people to find a better way of life that is alcohol free."

NEW VICE PRESIDENT NAMED AT A.H.S.N.

James Morris

HINSDALE—James O. Morris was recently named vice president for management services of Adventist Health System North, according to Earl W. Amundson, chairman of the A.H.S. North Board of Trustees, and Irwin C. Hansen, president.

Mr. Morris received a Bachelor of Science degree in business administration in 1972 from Southern Missionary College, Collegedale, Tennessee, and a Master of Science degree in hospital and health administration in 1975, from the School of Community and Allied Health Resources at the University of Alabama in Birmingham.

Before joining Adventist Health System North, Mr. Morris served as vice president of Florida Hospital, and as assistant regional vice president for Adventist Health System/Sunbelt, both in Orlando.

To help meet the demands of A.H.S. North member facilities' changing health care environment, Mr. Morris will assist with long-range strategic planning in the areas of financial and human resources.

Mr. Morris will also help to further establish A.H.S. North's role of "resource bank" for its facilities, helping them achieve specific institutional goals. By initiating policies and developing resources, he will enable members to better handle the increasing number of governmental requirements.

He will also work closely with officials from the other divisions of the Adventist Health System to ensure consistent purchasing contract policies throughout.

B.C.S.H. EMPLOYEES 'SWEAT' FOR AWARDS

BATTLE CREEK—On Wednesday, October 7, Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital was the scene of an award ceremony for winners of the three-month SWEAT (San's Weight, Exercise, and Training) program.

Joyce Combes, M.P.H., director of health education, presented the awards.

Individual winners were: Jackie Goodenough, R.N., first prize $50; second prize, Salli Slagle, medical records, $30; third prize, Byron Qualls, housekeeping, $20.

The three top winners were all presented with T-shirts with the lettering "I WON WITH SWEAT."

Twenty additional hospital employees who achieved high individual scores now sport SWEAT T-shirts for their persistence in the program.

The housekeeping team, captained by Tina Ross, scored the highest overall achievement of the 10 teams who competed. Tina reported the team party turned out to be "more fun than they ever dreamed it would be. Some members resolved to make lasting life-style changes as a result of the SWEAT program," she said.

The contest, which ran from June 22 to September 21, was sponsored by B.C.S.H.'s health education department as an incentive for employees to loose weight and improve their levels of physical fitness.

The nutrition services department gave emphasis to the program by serving a variety of low-calorie foods in the dining room and by offering in-service education.

Performance was measured in terms of the number of points earned. At the onset of the SWEAT program, employees were informed of the point system. Points could be earned by attending in-service programs on nutrition and fitness, loosing weight, and decreasing one's resting pulse rate.

B.C.S.H.'s health education department was invited to present the details of the SWEAT program to the Southwest Michigan Inservice Education Council on November 20.

B.C.S.H.'S FITNESS CENTER EXPANDS HOURS

BATTLE CREEK—To make Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital's Fitness Center more accessible to a greater number of area residents, the facility's hours have been expanded.

The new fitness center hours began September 21, and now include many early-morning and late-afternoon hours that were previously unavailable, according to Duane Gustrowsky, physical fitness coordinator.

The fitness center has also added space. Remodeling and redecorating have added new dressing rooms and areas for flexibility stretching, in preparation for the routine that will follow in the exercise room.

There, an individual follows prescribed exercise on the Universal Gym and works out on one of numerous Monark bicycles, the treadmill, and other pieces of equipment.

The health education department has increased its staff so that it can continue to provide personalized instruction for those who participate in the center's fitness program.

TUITION REDUCTION POLICY ANNOUNCED

Andrews has announced a 50-percent reduction in tuition for eligible students in the College of Technology.

According to Joseph G. Smoot, Andrews' president, the new policy is designed for persons already holding a baccalaureate degree who wish to train for a new career or upgrade their current educational level in technical fields.

"Individuals who have graduated from any accredited college or university with a baccalaureate degree may enroll in any class in Andrews' College of Technology and receive a 50-percent reduction in tuition," Dr. Smoot said. "The program goes into effect with the January registration for winter quarter."

Dr. Smoot said the new policy does not apply to students currently enrolled in degree programs at Andrews.

William Davidson, dean of the College of Technology, says he is enthusiastic about the new policy and expects it to make continuing technical education much more available and attractive for people wishing to add to their professional skills.

The College of Technology offers a variety of degree programs in agriculture, architecture, aviation and transportation, engineering, engineering technology, industrial education, and information and computer science.

President Smoot said the new policy is to operate for a two-year trial period and will be reviewed after one year. He also said that students registering under the arrangement must enroll in classes where the regular rate of tuition is applicable. Laboratory charges, housing and food are not included.

The policy is applicable to classes where space is available and does not apply where hiring of new staff or faculty is required.

According to Dr. Smoot, regular tuition in the College of Technology is $94 per quarter credit for full-time students and $115 for students taking less than 12 credits. The 50-percent reduction will bring these figures to $47 per credit for full-time students and $57.50 for part-time students.

Persons interested in enrolling for classes under the new provision should contact: Dean, College of Technology, Andrews University, Berrien Springs, MI 49104, or call (616) 471-3413.

SEMINARY PROFESSOR PUBLISHES BOOK ON TEENAGE COUNSELING

Roger Dudley

Roger Dudley, assistant professor of church ministry at the seminary at Andrews University, has written a new book entitled When Teenagers Cry Help!

The 126-page book lists some of the problems teenagers face. Dr. Dudley suggests ways to counsel more effectively, drawing upon his research on youth and his own experience with young people during 27 years of ministry. He gives case histories of teenagers he has dealt with.

"Many people think of counseling as a sort of psychiatrist-couch situation, but most counseling of young people involves plain listening and helping the teenager arrive at his own solution," says Dr. Dudley. "It is important to have a sensitivity and love for young people and they will have confidence in you."

The book is written in nontechnical language so that parents and teachers and others not trained in counseling can use it in their contact with teenagers. It is a continuation of Dr. Dudley's first book, Why Teenagers Reject Religion and What to Do About It.

Dr. Dudley submitted his manuscript a year and a half ago to the Review and Herald Publishing Association. Unknown to him, the Review and Herald was sponsoring a writing contest.

Dr. Dudley's manuscript for When Teenagers Cry Help! won first place in the home life category for which he received a $1,000 award. The book has been released by the Review and Herald and is available at Adventist Book Centers.

SEMINARY STUDENT MAKES SACRED RECORD

Steve Darmody, a student in the seminary at Andrews, has recorded his first solo album to be released this month by Brentwood Records, Inc.

The album, entitled "Shall We Learn to be Friends," features contemporary gospel music.

Even though these songs have already been recorded by other gospel artists, Mr. Darmody says he wanted to record them because each song has been significant in his life. "The songs have themes of praise, forgiveness and a relationship with Jesus Christ," he says.

Mr. Darmody spent five summers in full-time Christian youth singing groups while in high school. He began his singing career when asked to sing for a series of evangelistic meetings in Oak Cliff, Texas, while in the 11th grade.

Since then he has performed as a singing evangelist in Arkansas, Louisiana, Tennessee and Georgia. He has also given concerts in high schools, colleges, churches and camp meetings.

Before coming to Andrews, Mr. Darmody was pastor of the Brunswick, Georgia, Church. He plans to return to the pastoral ministry after graduation. He will continue to give concerts, but not full-time. "I want to combine the message of the music with Scripture," he says.

'MISSION POSSIBLE' DAY AT BURR RIDGE CHURCH

Less than three years old, the Burr Ridge Church held one of its more exciting Sabbaths on November 21. Assisted by the personal ministries committee, Pastor Peter Rampton directed a surprise program entitled "Mission Possible."

The week before, along with announcing the coming event in the church newsletter, the pastor urged the congregation not to miss "next week's special program."

As the scheduled moment approached, the deacons ushered incoming members to their prearranged groups. All guests were invited to participate in the planned exercise.

In his introductory remarks, Pastor Rampton said, "More than just a 'program,' the solemn significance of Mission Possible is to plan our future as we ask ourselves, 'What should the Burr Ridge Church be doing five years from now? Five weeks from now? In short, why are we here?'"

Already assigned to six groups, the 130-member congregation began at once to formulate replies, which were recorded on a large sheet of paper, in answer to the

SPRINGFIELD DEDICATES CHURCH SCHOOL

Services were held at the Springfield church school on Sabbath morning, November 7, 1981, to dedicate the school free of debt in service to God and the children, according to Lucille A. Trumbo, communication secretary. After Pastor Gus Scheuneman read a letter of congratulations from George Lloyd of the Illinois Conference education department, the teacher, Al Schone, presented seven "P's" necessary for a successful school—providence, preparation, payments, presents, people, planning and prayers. Thirteen students also participated in the program with songs and recitations. The building was purchased in the summer of 1980 from the Springfield Public School System. It was then moved to the church property and, with the help of several church members, prepared for occupancy. The first classes were held in the building on December 15, 1980. It is a beautiful tribute to God's program in Springfield.

question: "How can we share God's love and character in the Burr Ridge area, in a tangible and unique way?"

Little by little, the congregation reviewed the true mission of their church. One had only to scan the large sheet of paper before one's own group, to notice the objectives considered most important by the members.

Bible studies, more fellowship and spiritual meetings in the home, ranked high on the list, along with community work, a missing persons program and a prayer chain. Still others included the importance of a children's program and hospital visitation.

The personal ministries committee is busy giving priority to the stated goals and will present their findings soon. "For the time is come that the judgment must begin at the house of God. . . . 1 Peter 4:17.

TEAMWORK STRESSED ON FIELD TRIP

Students at South Bend Junior Academy enjoyed a field trip to Camp Eberhart near Three Rivers, Michigan, on October 5 and 6, according to John Bedell, correspondent. About 72 students participated in the activities provided by the Eberhart staff. One exercise stressed teamwork in covering an obstacle course. Another event was a group effort in wilderness survival. Students also learned more about the role of spiders in the environment through the study of a large rope web.

MARION REACHES OUT IN HEALTH MINISTRY

Marion Church members, with the assistance of the health-screening van and Smoking Sam, sponsored a two-day program at the Marion North Park Mall, according to Darlene Turner, communication director. A total of 487 people received free blood pressure checks. Smoking Sam was demonstrated by Pastor Rick Blythe, right. Thirty-seven people signed up for the Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking. Twenty-two members of the church volunteered their services. Pictured with Pastor Blythe is Donna Boys, church temperance secretary.

CRAFT SEMINAR HELD IN CICERO

On Sunday, November 15, more than 40 Pathfinder staff members and elementary church school teachers took part in the annual craft seminar. The program is designed to teach these youth leaders a new skill, which they in turn can teach their youth in their Pathfinder Club or school. The classes started at 9:30 A.M. and lasted until 4 P.M. This year the following classes were taught: basketry, ferns, knot tying, marching and drilling, sand, sign language and weaving. Pictured above is Naomi Trubey, teacher of the Frankfort Church School, who took the basketry class.

Lloyd Jacobs, manager of the Indiana Adventist Book Center, reports new changes being made in the center. The building is receiving a new paint job, drapes have been added to the windows, and new freezer units have been installed. Christmas shoppers will be happy to see these new changes. ● Holland members conducted a craft/bake sale and amateur hour early in November. They also served a light supper. The proceeds helped members add $400 to their Investment fund. Leon Slikkers was master of ceremonies for the amateur hour, and winner of the evening was Nick Dykstra.

● Two new elders, Horst Krenz and Gaylan Herr, were ordained in October at Pioneer Memorial Church on the campus of Andrews University. Approximately sixty local elders assist the pastoral staff in ministering to the 2,700-member congregation.

96 YEARS OLD, 70 YEARS A CHRISTIAN

Affectionately called "Grandma" by lots of folks, Bessie Essex celebrated her 96th birthday on November 26. She is the oldest member of the Pinedale Church and a charter member of the Over-50 Club. Mrs. Essex and her husband, Charley, who died in 1972, raised three daughters and a son. She has 13 grandchildren, 26 great-grandchildren and 5 great-great-grandchildren. Bessie joined the Allegan Church in 1911. She has served the church as Sabbath School superintendent, church clerk and Sabbath School teacher. She now resides with her daughter and son-in-law, the Ed O'Connors at Gobles. Although Grandma Essex doesn't see too well, she still reads, does her own mending, bakes bread, washes dishes and works outside piling wood. Until this year she worked in the garden. "I have to get some exercise," she said, "or I'll curl up and die." She attributes her long life to hard work, simple living, the blessing of the Lord and following the instruction of the Bible and The Ministry of Healing, she said.

PATHFINDER SEMINAR HELD AT GRAND LEDGE

The annual craft seminar for Pathfinder leaders attracted 314 participants from 58 clubs.

One seminar was held at Grand Ledge on November 8, and another a week later at Camp Sagola in the Upper Peninsula.

Orienteering involves skills with map and compass—how to "get from here to there" with accuracy.

Twenty-one craft classes were offered, including ceramics, basketry, photography, orienteering, quilting, shells, metalcraft and fancy drill.

During the seminar, M. Y. Fleming, state Pathfinder director, met with 32 people who plan to go on a trip to the Dominican Republic during the holidays to help build a church.

Quilting is a group project with many sharing the satisfaction of the completed artwork.

Attendance at the craft seminar this year represents the largest number of clubs ever involved in this activity in Michigan, according to Elder Fleming. The program greatly enriches the craft offerings in the local church Pathfinder clubs, he said.

104 YEARS FOR GRANDMA STONE

Bertha Stone was 104 years old on October 11 and continues strong in the Lord in spite of failing health. She now lives in Riverside Manor Nursing Home in Battle Creek. Until she was 102 she studied her Bible and Sabbath School lesson each day and wrote many letters. In earlier years she had been active in the Holly Church as Dorcas leader. Her membership there dates back more than 60 years. Before moving to the nursing home, she lived with her granddaughter, Pat Vanderwaal, in Battle Creek.

PATHFINDERS PARTICIPATE IN CHRISTMAS PARADE

in Marshall on November 30 in bitter cold weather. And at the end they received the grand prize for their float.

For more than a decade the city of Marshall has had a Christmas parade on the first Monday each year following Thanksgiving. This year 59 groups participated. Four other Michigan Pathfinder clubs marched in the parade: the Urbandale Campers, the Marshall Morning Stars, the Eau Claire Critters, and the Kalamazoo Kampers.

Thousands of people lined the streets watching the parade. They saw the name Seventh-day Adventist in a colorful setting, illuminated with hundreds of tiny light bulbs.

Makers of the float spent nearly a month on the project. It was designed by Jim Schilling, a co-leader of the Pathfinder Club with Donovan Dinning.

This is the second year in a row that the Pioneers have won the grand prize in the parade. Three years ago, when they entered for the first time, they won first prize for the noncommercial section. The parade committee says, "We know we can depend on the Pathfinders to have an outstanding float every year." Leaders of the Pioneers feel that the float project builds morale in the club and provides an opportunity for witnessing to the thousands of people who watch the parade.

ARCHITECTURE STUDENTS MAKE PLANS FOR KALAMAZOO

Architecture students from Andrews worked with four of the nation's top architects in October to present possible design proposals for the revitalization of the Kalamazoo, Michigan, downtown area. The designs may become part of future development plans for the city.

Andrews students spent three days and three nights making models for a public presentation. It was also shown to the Michigan Society of Architects (M.S.A.), which was part of Archiventon '81, was sponsored by the M.S.A. The final design proposals were turned over to the city of Kalamazoo.

Leading the four design teams were four nationally known architects: Merrill Elam, senior associate and senior design architect for Heery and Heery Architects and Engineers, Inc.; Frank O. Gehry, the principal of Frank O. Gehry and Associates; Stanley Tigerman of Stanley Tigerman and Associates; and Robert A. M. Stern, the principal of Robert A. M. Stern Architects.

Alan Taylor, coordinator of the event, originally asked Stanley Bell, assistant professor of architecture at Andrews, to bring two students to the Archiventon. later, Mr. Taylor called Mr. Bell and told him eight architecture students from Andrews were needed. Students and faculty from 10 other universities also participated in the endeavor.

The Andrews students who participated were Gordon Julius III, Ken Hebbard, Bill Briggs, Dave Schull, Steve Erickson, Arnold Hill and Jim Eller.

"Working with these innovative architects was a stimulating experience for the students," said Mr. Bell.

Bill Briggs, a junior architecture major, said it was well worth the long hours. "It was hard work, but that's architecture," he said.

Gordon Julius III, a senior architecture student, added that the experience was especially worthwhile "if the designs stimulate the development of downtown Kalamazoo."

MARQUETTE PRISON INMATES BAPTIZED

The baptism of two prisoners inside the Marquette Branch Prison testified to the witness of Seventh-day Adventist laymen.

It started with a request by Dennis Earl, a member of the Grand Haven

John Irwin, baptized at Marquette Branch Prison by Elder Kenneth Williams, spoke of an inner peace that he had not known before. Clifford Ward, left, was one of two laymen who conducted services at the prison.

Church, for Pastor Kenneth Williams of Marquette to visit an inmate. Dennis had witnessed in the jail where he worked and detected interest. The prisoner, John Irwin, had been transferred to Marquette.

Pastor Williams was delighted to find a man who had already read the Conflict of the Ages set by Ellen G. White, was keeping the Sabbath and desired baptism. Another prisoner, Terry Donovan, had been baptized previously in the Jackson prison before also being transferred to Marquette.

These two prisoners recruited enough interest to get permission for Sabbath services to be held in the prison each week. Since Pastor Williams was already committed to other church services at that time, two laymen from the Marquette Church, Clifford Ward and Terry Schneider, conducted the prison services.

The men were baptized in a whirlpool tank. (Terry had asked to be rebaptized.) They urged Pastor Williams to "push them down hard" because they wanted the water to completely cover them. The two men were received into membership of the Marquette Church. Both are soon to be paroled from prison.

Recently new doors have been opened. A pastor of another denomination moved away. He had been conducting a Friday morning service. The group asked for Adventist leadership, and laymen are now directing a Friday morning Bible study.

When the prisoners rioted at Marquette and were trying to destroy buildings, those who had been attending the Adventist services formed a line around the chapel and prevented it from being burned down. To them it was a holy place and they risked their lives to preserve it.

IONIA WELCOMES 5 NEW MEMBERS

BAPTISM AT MUNISING

Debbie LaPlant was baptized in the AuTrain River by Pastor Mike Kemper the same day her husband, Rick, and daughter, Lori, became members of the Munising Church. Debbie had known the Adventist message for several years, but decided to be baptized when she attended the prophecy lecture series conducted by conference evangelist Jack Nash. Rick rededicated his life to the Lord, according to Pastor Kemper. Others baptized as a result of the Prophecy Lectures were Sharon Lovins, Theresa and Maxine Haefner, Christine Mannisto and Margaret Martin.

WAUSAU NEWS NOTES

● Wausau Community Services has delivered furniture, clothing, appliances and more than 30 quilts to people whose homes burned during this year. Sally Westman, church communication secretary, also reports that the Pathfinders collected canned goods at Halloween, and these items were included in the Thanksgiving baskets that were delivered to needy families.

● Wausau church members participated in a witnessing seminar conducted recently by Ernest Wheeler, conference director of personal ministries. Methods of giving Bible studies and a description of available materials were presented.

NEW EMPHASIS ON WITNESSING

A new plan to help laymen and ministers merge their efforts into a cooperative soul-winning ministry was suggested at a recent ministerial council in the Wisconsin Conference.

The plan includes methods whereby the laymen can find interested persons and bring them into the pastor's evangelistic study groups.

"This plan has grown out of a realization that not much witnessing is going on, even though the laymen have been almost inundated by witnessing training programs," said Ernest Wheeler, conference personal ministries director. "It may be that we've expected too much from the laymen," he added.

It was recognized that most laymen are deeply consecrated and willing to follow the leading of the Holy Spirit, but that effective soul-winning requires more training than just a few sessions reviewing a manual.

The key to the new methodology is in the statement on page 117 of Testimonies for the Church, volume 9, "The work of God in this earth can never be finished until the men and women comprising our church membership... unite their efforts with those of ministers..."

Now the laymen and ministers can work together to seek and save the lost. The laymen will specialize in "seeking" and the pastors will specialize in "saving," thereby utilizing the best talents of each group.

"I will come to any district," said Elder Wheeler, "and not only tell the laymen what to do but show them how to do it."

The plan calls for the pastors to have a continuing evangelistic study program in operation, and for the laymen to continue to bring in new people to participate in the spiritual learning experience that will help them make an intelligent decision for truth.

Tentative schedules were set up so that this plan can be introduced in every district in the conference during 1982.

Several districts will have a full four-week seminar designed to help laymen prepare to enter this cooperative effort.

DAY OF FASTING AND PRAYER

In response to a recent conference executive committee decision, pastors of the Wisconsin Conference observed December 12 as a special day of fasting and prayer.

The purpose of this day of prayer was that the Lord's will might be accomplished in the sale of the Camp Wahdoon property.

The conference constituency overwhelmingly voted in 1980 that the former youth camp property should be sold so these funds could be used to offset the development of the new combined youth camp and camp meeting property at Westfield, Wisconsin.

The Camp Wahdoon property has been on the market for more than a year. "It is understandable that this property has not sold in the light of today's economic uncertainties and high interest rates," stated Conference Secretary Wesley Jaster.

"Believing that the entire conference belongs to the Lord, including this property, it seems appropriate to appeal to the Lord that if it is His will, a buyer would come forth at the present time," Elder Jaster concluded.

COULD THIS BE YOU?

by Robert H. Pierson

"Ya, ya, ya. Grrr, grrr, grrr. Wrangle, wrangle, wrangle." Harry Husband and Winnie Wife are chewing each other out again. The air is blue with conflict.

The phone rings. Harry Husband hurries to answer.

Immediately his voice changes dramatically. The abrasive yowling is gone. Now his words are dripping with honey. They are the essence of sweet reason.

"Yes, why of course! Sure," he purrs. "That's wonderful. No problem at all. I appreciate that so much. You are so thoughtful. Thank you very much."

Sound familiar? I hope not. But this little bittersweet-talk scenario is not altogether fiction. Now is it?

The Apostle James has a few words for any of us who may be bittersweets: "Doth a fountain send forth at the same place sweet water and bitter? My brethren," James declares, "these things ought not so to be." James 3:10, 11.

I think James knew considerable about husband-wife relationships, don't you?

FREDDA ASHCRAFT has recently joined the secretarial staff at the Illinois Conference office. Born in Fair Lawn, New Jersey, Fredda is married to Harold Ashcraft, pastor of the DeKalb and Sheridan churches. The new secretary to President E. E. Cumbo formerly held a similar position at St. Helena Hospital, Pacific Union College, and the North Dakota and Iowa conferences.

LUCILLE BERGMAN has recently joined the secretarial staff at the Illinois Conference office. Mrs. Bergman and her husband, Dick, have three children, David, an auto mechanic in Kettering, Ohio; Sandy, a housewife in Corona, Calif., and Shari, a senior at Georgia-Cumberland Academy.

BRIAN J. COSTA has joined Adventist Health System North as a communication intern. The internship is being co-sponsored by the communication department of the General Conference, Adventist Health System North, and Adventist Living Centers. Mr. Costa graduated with Bachelor of Arts and Science degrees in public relations, journalism, and communication in 1981 from Pacific Union College, Angwin, California. While in college, Mr. Costa was a teaching assistant, as well as a radio announcer for KANG FM, the radio station of Pacific Union College. He has also toured with the Heritage Singers.

HAROLD HAAS is the newly appointed Illinois-Lake Region assistant Adventist Book Center manager. A graduate of Campion Academy and Union College, the Longmont, Colorado, native began his denominational career as a teacher at Minneapolis Junior Academy. After working as assistant manager of the Minnesota and Upper Columbia ABC's, he was manager of the Montana ABC. He is married to the former Mary Hermanbourg of Galesburg, Illinois. They have two sons, Robert, 12, and Michael, 10.

LLOYD R. JACOBS has joined the Indiana Conference workers' staff as manager of the Indiana Adventist Book Center. Mr. Jacobs has a B.A. degree in business and economics from Atlantic Union College. He formerly managed ABC's in the Northern New England, New Jersey and Pennsylvania conferences. Before that he served as a teacher at Mt. Pisgah and Greater Baltimore academies. He is originally from North Carolina, and his wife, Ingrid, is from Washington State. Mr. Jacobs has two children, Bruce, 17, a student at Indiana Academy, and Julie, 13, who attends the Cicero Church School.

ARCHIE MOORE is now pastor of the Cicero District in Indiana. He was formerly a pastor in the New Jersey Conference. He has also served as principal of Lake Nelson Junior Academy in Piscataway, New Jersey, and Tampa Junior Academy, Tampa, Florida. Elder Moore has a B.S. in elementary education from Southern Missionary College, and an M.A. in elementary education from the University of South Florida. He and his wife, Rozella, have two daughters, Lela, 19, and Darla, 15.

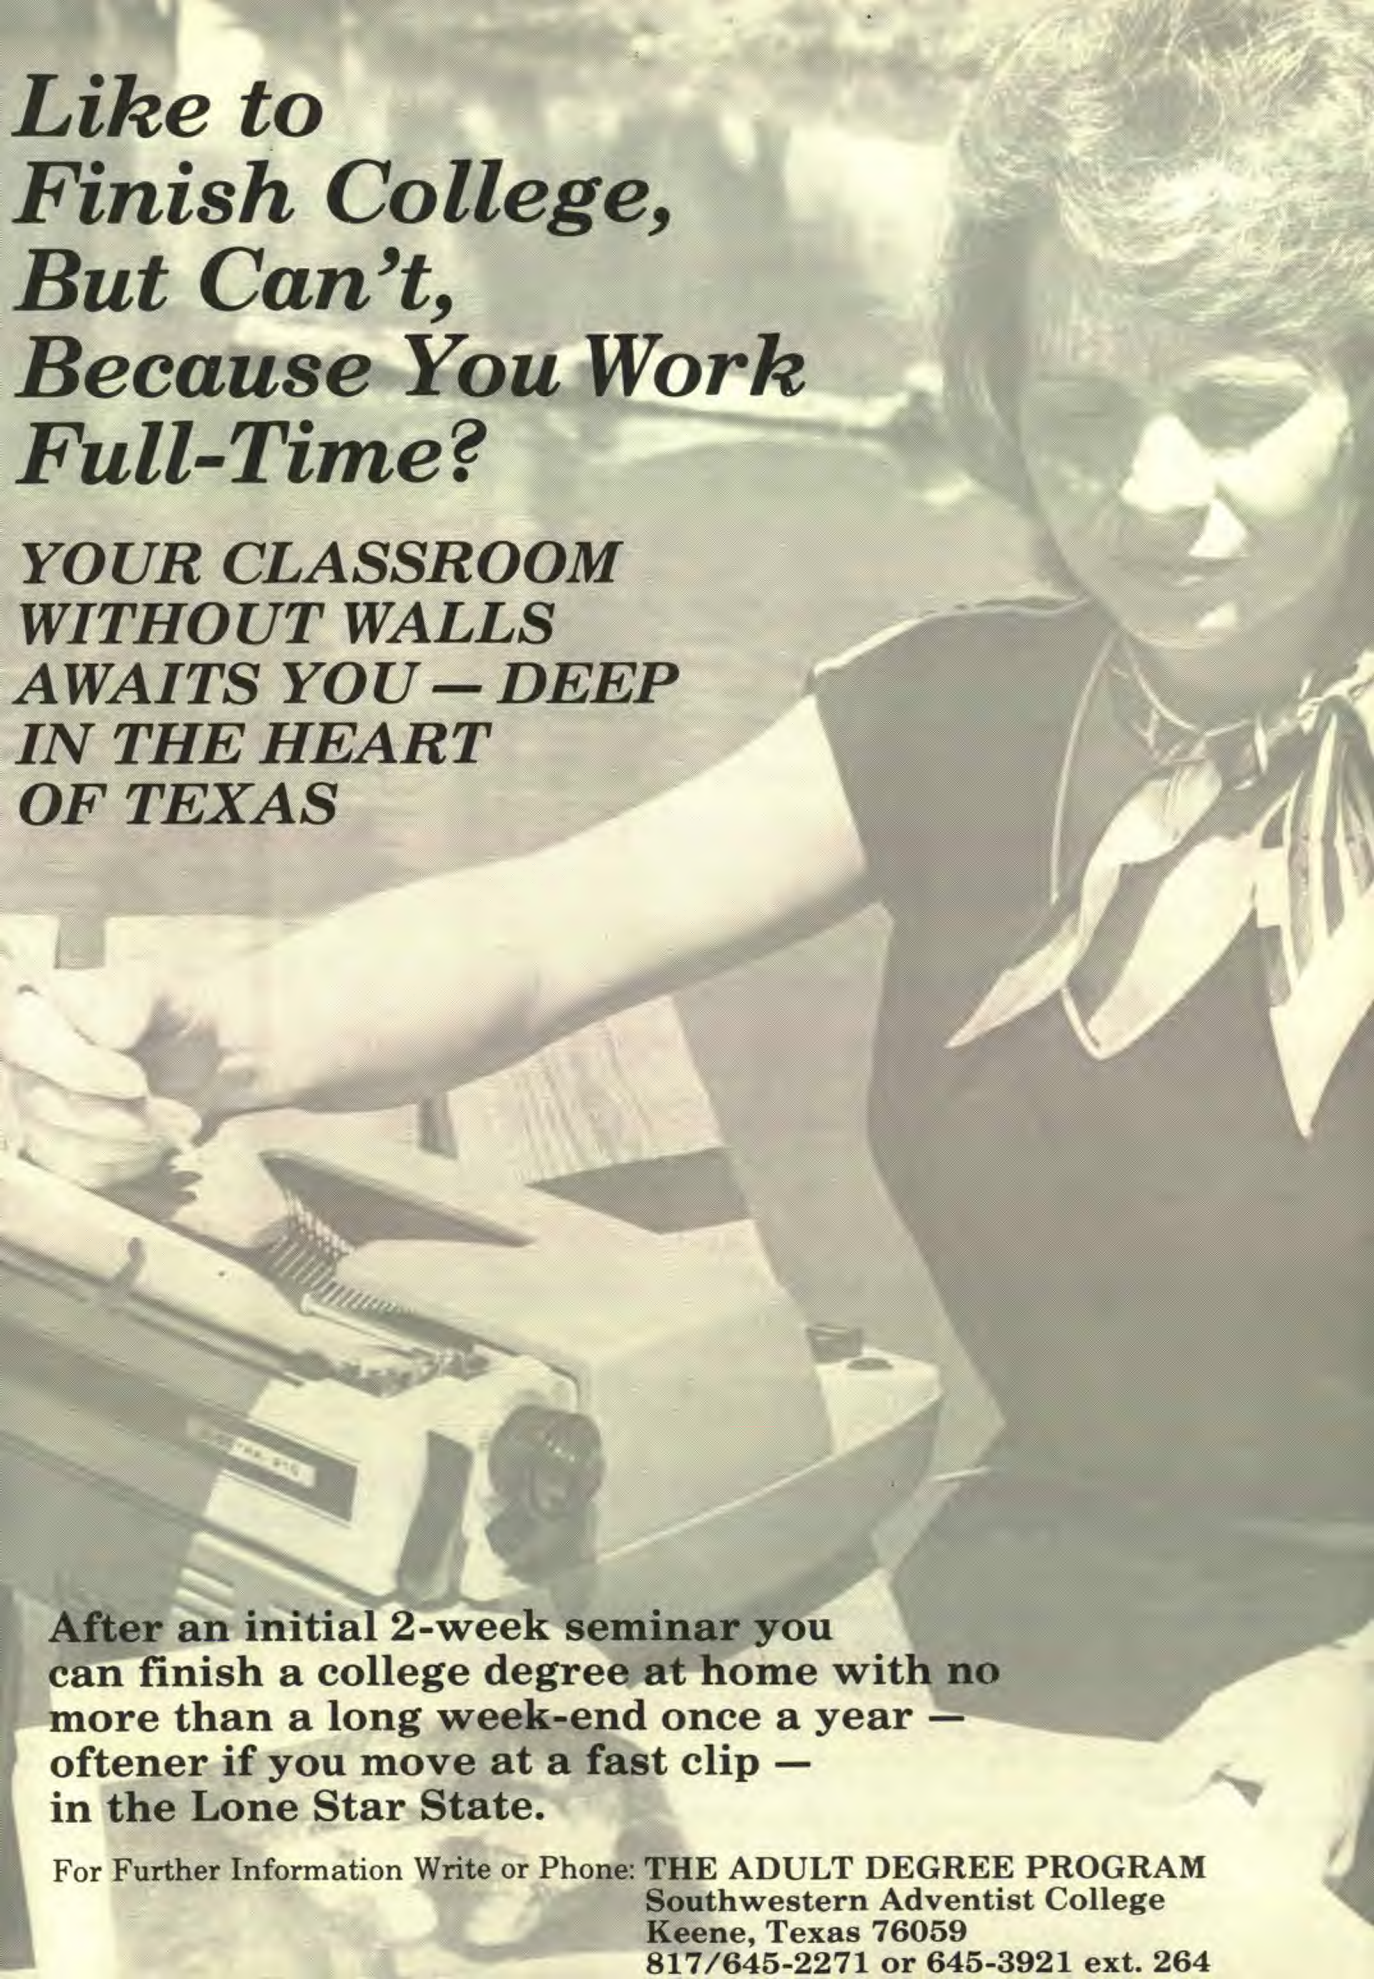

PETER O. PEABODY was recently appointed administrator of River Pines Community Health Center, Stevens Point, Wisconsin, which is owned and operated by Adventist Living Centers, Inc. Mr. Peabody has been an assistant administrator at River Pines for about a year. He received a Bachelor of Science degree in 1972 from Andrews University, and a Master of Arts degree in educational administration in 1978, also from Andrews.

WILLIAM G. STRAIGHT was named senior vice president of Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital, Battle Creek, Michigan, on July 1, 1981. Mr. Straight received a Bachelor of Science degree in business administration in 1960 from Southern Missionary College, Collegedale, Tennessee. At the time of his appointment to Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital, Mr. Straight was administrator of Windsor District Hospital, Windsor, Missouri, an affiliate of Adventist Health System/Eastern and Middle America. From 1972 to 1980 he was associate administrator of Harding Hospital, Worthington, Ohio.

LINDA G. WOODHAMS has joined Adventist Health System North as an accountant. Mrs. Woodhams has been a clerical assistant at a hospital and office manager to a physician, both in California. From 1978 to her recent appointment, she was junior accountant at the Adventist Media Center, Newbury Park, California. Mrs. Woodhams is a 1970 graduate of St. John's Hospital School of Radiologic Technology, Oxnard, California.

ERIC J. WRANGELL has recently been appointed chaplain of the Prairie Convalescent Center, Prairie du Chien, Wisconsin, which is owned by Adventist Living Centers, Inc. Mr. Wrangell is taking responsibilities formerly filled by Chaplain WILBUR NEFF, who is now chaplain for the Mineral Point Care Center and Lancaster Nursing Home in Wisconsin. Before joining Adventist Living Centers, Mr. Wrangell was employed by Grand County in Hot Sulphur Springs, Colorado. Mr. Wrangell received his education at Andrews University, and holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in theology. He has been a pastor in the New York Conference and has served as a chaplain in a nursing home. Mr. Wrangell and his wife, Kennene, have a daughter, Nicole Denise, 2.

Lake Union Conference

LAKE UNION ASI MEMBERS ATTEND NATIONAL AND LOCAL MEETINGS

About 35 members of the Lake Union Chapter of Adventist Laymen Services and Industries (A.S.I.) attended a recent national convention held in Colorado. Seminar topics included Christian education and business.

Don Copsey, Lake Union A.S.I. executive director, was appointed to membership on the national board. Barbara Randall of Lawton, Michigan, was elected national vice president.

The Lake Union chapter then met for a fall fellowship at Camp Timber Ridge in Indiana from October 23 to 25. Featured speakers included Warren Ashworth of Andrews University and Robert Thompson, Indiana Conference president. Fred Boothby of Kalamazoo, Michigan, was re-elected president for a two-year term.

If you are an Adventist businessman and would like to become involved in the activities of A.S.I., contact Don Copsey, Lake Union Conference, Box C, Berrien Springs, MI 49103.

UNIONWIDE SPIRITUAL ACTIVITIES RETREAT FOR ACADEMIES

The Lake Union youth and education departments joined hands to sponsor the first Academy Spiritual Activities Retreat ever held in the union.

The retreat brought together 28 principals, Bible teachers, campus chaplains, education and youth directors to study ways that spiritual activities on academy campuses and student involvement could be enhanced.

Dick Duerksen, principal of Campion Academy in Colorado, was the guest speaker. He expressed his joy at being able to come and participate in a "first" of this type.

Elder Duerksen challenged those present to be spiritual role models for the youth on their campuses. Discussion centered on ways to improve the spiritual atmosphere on academy campuses.

Many items were recorded for suggestions. At the end of the seminar one participant summed up the feelings of the group when he said, "I hope this will be the springboard for a more spiritual climate on our campus."

The evaluation responses clearly indicated a desire for future seminars because this weekend of fellowship, sharing and personal searching had been meaningful to each one present.

The ideas shared there are being sent to each academy campus in the Lake Union. More than 30 ideas were taken by Elder Duerksen to be shared divisionwide in the new Cornerstone Connections Youth Ministry Resource Guide for local church Sabbath School and youth leaders. Elder Duerksen is the editor.

We give God the glory for a wonderful weekend.

SAWS AIDS FIRE VICTIMS IN BURMA

Responding to requests from embassy officials in Washington, Seventh-day Adventist World Service (SAWS) has sent 50,000 pounds of emergency supplies to assist 60,000 homeless people in Burma.

Shipped from the Watsonville, California, resource center were clothing for 30,000 people—infants to adults—200 six-person tents, 1,000 blankets, and special medicines valued at $20,000.

"They tell us it's one of the worst disasters ever in Burma," says W. Lee Grady, assistant executive director of SAWS. "In fact, we're told that the fire raging in Mandalay and Taundwingyi is the third largest fire in the history of the world.

"Moreover, by the time this shipment of 25 tons arrives December 30 on the "America Maru," they probably will be even more in need," says Mr. Grady. "We've begun stock-piling more just in case."

Students at Monterey Bay Academy in California helped with the packing.

The SAWS center warehouses assistance for the Far East, Central and South America. Although they cooperate with the Red Cross and U.S. aid, the Burmese need was brought directly to Adventist church headquarters where leaders made an immediate appropriation to handle the disaster relief.

In the October 27, 1981, issue of the Herald, a picture of Hinsdale Hospital employees representing various departments is shown [on the cover]. In this picture one very essential department is missing. A department that most of the departments represented in the picture cannot do without. This department provides clean mops for housekeeping; clean surgical linens for surgery; clean drop cloths for plant operations; clean aprons for the kitchen; clean X-Ray gowns for radiology; clean linens for the patients; and clean window drapes and room divider curtains for the whole hospital, to name just a few services that the Linen Service provides. A very essential service left unnoticed and taken for granted.
