Retired Social Worker Honored in Green Bay

WISCONSIN—"Never have I experienced the warmth and hospitality you extended while I was a guest at your church," wrote Green Bay, Wisconsin, Press-Gazette columnist, Lois Kerin, to Gloria Wilde, Green Bay Church communication secretary.

Her gracious words reflected the atmosphere that pervaded the congregation on December 10, 1983, when Lois attended the Adventist Church to report on De Lorr Hayward, chosen recipient for this year's Community Services Award.

Ray Fitzgerald, Sabbath School superintendent and head deacon, began the 11 A.M. worship service by presenting the special honor to Miss Hayward, a retired social worker who had placed 1,500 children in foster homes throughout her 41-year career.

Miss Hayward then reminisced to the congregation of the early days of her work in Green Bay during the 1940's, when the Seventh-day Adventists were the first to provide foster homes in response to her plea for help. More than half of her original "pioneer couples" were present to hear her words of praise for their love, patience, and endurance in caring for homeless children.

Elder Richard Morris summarized the spirit of the special guest day with his sermon on the topic of love. Guests were invited to stay for the potluck dinner which followed.

During the dinner, Lois confided in Gloria, "I wouldn't give up this story for anything!"

A few days later, Lois dedicated her column to a picture of the award presentation and a heartwarming recital of the Sabbath day's activities at the local Adventist Church.

Caring Church Seminar Set for March 11 to 15

LAKE UNION—A union-wide Caring Church Seminar is scheduled for March 11 to 15 at the Interlaken Resort near Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, for church administrators, departmental leaders, pastors, and laymen.

The Caring Church approach to outreach focuses on people. Jesus spent His entire ministry caring for people. His deep conviction that people were more important than institutions or traditions set Him apart in His day. He saw life through the eyes of His hearers and responded to their desires whenever appropriate.

This same viewpoint will guide the upcoming Caring Church Seminar. Participants will seek to understand the pain and longing of people and to share Christianity in ways that will meet both their felt needs and their deeper spiritual needs.

The Caring Church program is a strategic outline of why and how things happen, not one in which someone tells a pastor or layman what to do. After studying Caring Church models, pastors and laymen will be encouraged to plan the work and then work the plan, rather than try to adapt someone else's plan.

Elder Robert Dale (left), administrative assistant to the vice-president for North America, presented information to help union and local conference leaders visualize the potential in a Caring Church program. Dialoging with Elder Dale at the meeting is Elder R. H. Carter, Lake Union Conference president.

Among those participating in the seminar are General Conference personnel Tom Ashlock, C. D. Bradford, Floyd Bresee, and Bill Scales. Others taking part include Des Cummings Jr., from the Institute of Church Ministry at Andrews University; Mark Finley from the North American Division Soul-Winning Institute, and Larry Webb, a specialist in conflict management.

R. H. Carter, Lake Union Conference president, says: "If the churches here in the Lake Union were to unitedly become the Caring Church, there would be a massive claiming and reclaiming of people for Christ.

"Seldom does a seminar warrant bringing ministers and laymen together from throughout the Union," Elder Carter continues. "I am firmly convinced that the concepts of the Caring Church are of such importance and contain such potential for the church today that we will be benefited greatly by this session together."

Laymen in the Lake Union who would like to attend the seminar should contact John Hayward, Secretary, Lake Union Conference, Box C, Berrien Springs, MI 49103; 616-473-4541 by March 1 for cost and reservation information.

Church pastors and conference workers who would like to attend should contact their conference president or their ministerial secretary by March 1 for additional details.

Interlaken Resort may be reached by traveling approximately 1½ hours west of Chicago on I-94 west to Route 50 west. The resort is located three miles from Lake Geneva.

This past fall, Lake Union Conference leaders and local conference administrators met to talk about organizing a strong Caring Church program in the Lake Union. As a result of this meeting, the union-wide Caring Church Seminar scheduled for March 11 to 15 will be held near Lake Geneva, Wisconsin.

TV Series Looks at Adventists

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif.—A three-part "It Is Written" miniseries, "The Truth About Seventh-day Adventists," will soon give television viewers across America a close look at the message, ministry, and mission of Adventists.

"The Truth about Seventh-day Adventists" will air March 11, 18, and 25 during regular "It Is Written" time slots. Major advertising in TV Guide and other publications will give the church an audience of millions it has never reached before.

The series is being produced in an investigative, documentary format. Programs will answer questions such as, Is Adventism a cult? Why do Adventists live, on the average, up to six years longer than the general population? Why do they give more per capita to their church than any other religious body?

Short "location" segments featuring Adventists active in medicine, education and other professions will enliven each program.

"It Is Written" invites church members to pray for these programs and invite friends and relatives to view the programs with them.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif.—During the month of December 1983 the Pacific Press Board voted to move the publishing house to the Boise, Idaho, area.

Speaking to employees on the day of the decision, Board Chairman Lowell Bock said, "As far as I am concerned, there could be no argument with today's decision."

A few days later the General Conference officers gave their consent to this move.

During this same period the Mountain View City Council voted in favor of a usage plan for the present Pacific Press property that would allow Pacific Press to sell the property to South Bay Construction and Development Company, a sale that had been pending for several months.

Many months of investigation was done before the board took this action. A long list of possible locations was compiled. Each site was studied on an individual basis applying the same criteria for all.

This thorough investigation showed that an annual savings in operating expense of about $400,000 would be realized from operating in the Boise, Idaho, area instead of operating in any other California site.

No land has yet been purchased in Idaho, but negotiations are underway.

Enertech, Inc. of Chicago, Illinois, has been hired to do the land studies, draw up the building plans, and secure bids for construction. Enertech is an architectural/engineering firm specializing in the needs of the printing industry.

It was also announced that a building committee has been appointed. It consists of three Pacific Press employees, Eugene Stiles, president of Pacific Press Publishing Association, chairman; Martin Ytreberg, vice president for finance, and David Lawson, vice president for printing operations. In addition Kenneth Emmerson, Rudy Henning, Harold Weeks and Tom Zapara were also asked to serve on the committee.

It is expected that Pacific Press will be moved and operating in Idaho by the end of 1984.

Let's Be a Friend to Man

After seeing "The House by the Side of the Road," this quarter's NO ONE BUT YOU program, a 70-year-old woman who lives nearly 200 miles away wrote a letter to Elder Armour Potter of the Troy, Michigan, Church.

"The program, 'The House by the Side of the Road,' mentioned that you give spiritual gift tests to your church members to see what their spiritual gifts are. Do you think I'm too old to find out what my gift is?" she asked.

Elder Potter believes God has given everyone a spiritual gift, and so he promptly responded with a letter of encouragement and enclosed a spiritual gifts test for her to complete.

Carol Learnihan

makes visitors feel like old friends.

Though Carol works full time managing the office of a busy physician, she helps out as a waitress two nights a week at the Pure 'N Simple vegetarian restaurant run by two fellow church members, Eric and Martha Kratz.

Carol was asked to work at the restaurant because of her friendly nature and deep spiritual commitment. And Carol enjoys working there because it affords her opportunities to witness for the Saviour she loves.

The restaurant regularly offers cooking classes which are conducted at the Troy Church. The current cooking class has an attendance of 75 people—all non-Adventists, and all customers of Pure 'N Simple.

"We demonstrate and distribute the very recipes that we serve at Pure 'N Simple," says Carol. "People like the food at Pure 'N Simple, so they come to the cooking classes to learn how to make the same food at home."

Carol is also a member of the Troy Church's evangelism group, Society of the 70. This organization takes its name from the 70 individuals which Christ appointed to witness two-by-two (Luke 10:1).

At Society of the 70 meetings members learn how to give their personal testimony for Christ, how to make a visit, how to initiate a Christian contact with someone, and how to determine the level of spiritual interest a person has.

"We use role playing to demonstrate how this is done," said Pastor Potter. "Later David Sydnor, our Bible worker, and I plan to take members with us on Bible studies so they can be trained in an actual situation."

"I'm a member of Society of the 70," says Carol, "because I want to know how to give an impromptu testimony when an opportunity arises." Carol is also a member of the intercessory prayer group which meets immediately after the worship service each Sabbath.

Even Carol's exercise time of "brisk walking" is used for witnessing. When Carol discovered a young woman living near her who seemed to need a friend, she invited the young woman to join her during her exercise time.

This exercise time has provided opportunities for Carol to share her love for Jesus.

"I don't know how people can talk about being bored?" says Carol. "There's so much to do for the Lord; I just don't have enough time to do all I want to."

Perhaps that's because Carol has really learned, as the poet says, to "live by the side of the road, and be a friend to man."

Downers Grove Junior Sabbath School Band

ILLINOIS—The junior Sabbath School organized a band of flutes, trumpets, French horn and trombone for the annual Christmas program at the Downers Grove Church. The response from the congregation was so favorable that an encore was planned for the next Sabbath and a prelude was played for the church service on a later Sabbath. The coordinator and director of the band was Zeda Christian. According to Richard Cook, communication secretary, the local suburban newspapers had two headlines in the church section featuring the band.

Elder Armour Potter gives a spiritual gifts test.

Elder Potter provides spiritual gifts testing for his church members to help them identify their special talents. And the gift of hospitality is a gift that visitors readily experience as they enter the Troy Church.

"I purposely tried to sneak into the church without being greeted," said one visitor, "but it's impossible!"

Troy Church greeters have been chosen because they have the gift of greeting, and their love for people exudes from them. Carol Learnihan is one of the greeters, and her vivacious personality quickly disarms apprehension and

Evangelistic Crusade Wins 14 in Waukegan

Illinois Conference News Notes

- In preparation for Christmas, Hazel Wright, a Quincy church member, dressed and repaired about 60 dolls. Twenty-six fruit platters and 17 food boxes were prepared by Jim and Sharon Hurt, Dean and Sue Thompson, Jinny Olson and George Wiemerslage. Other church members helped by making special treats. Toys and a Cosmic Conflict book were also included in the Christmas baskets.

- According to Berniece Peterson, communication secretary, the Galesburg Church School had been preparing for the distribution of annual Christmas baskets for those in need since the middle of October 1983. Students conducted a door-to-door campaign to collect cash donations and canned goods and involved the chairman of the community services committee of the church. The students also obtained permission from several grocery stores to place donation boxes in the stores, from which they received $40. Total cash from all sources amounted to $236, and 130 cans were collected.

- Burr Ridge church members were treated to a special program by the children of the church during Sabbath worship services December 10, 1983. Dressed in Middle East costume of the day, the children acted out and sang a 30-minute musical entitled, "The Good Samaritan." Rita Taylor directed the children who had practiced for five weeks. The program was also featured at Hinsdale vespers, Bolingbrook Church and the Monticello Nursing Home in Hinsdale.

- On Sabbath morning, December 17, families of the Burr Ridge and Bolingbrook churches presented gift-wrapped checks designated for needed church items as gifts to the Christ Child. Sabbath, December 24, these gifts were opened and dedicated to the Lord as a token of the congregation's renewal of spiritual commitment.

- On Sabbath, December 31, three families dedicated their newborn babes to the Lord at Burr Ridge. Those dedicated were James Alvin Miller IV, son of Jay and Andi Miller; Bradley Douglas Ritland, son of John and Sandi Ritland; Laura Swan Testerman, daughter of John and Nancy Testerman. Pastor Peter Rampton officiated. Like Samuel's mother, the parents presented gifts to their children symbolic of their desires for their children as they grow and mature. The Testerman's presented a diary in which they are recording significant steps in the growth of Laura. The Millers' gift was a pair of boots, symbolic of their desire to see Alvin walk in the path of the Lord. And special music was sung for Bradley Douglas as a symbol of his parent's desire that music play an important role in his development.

Coupons for Cash

MICHIGAN—One person's junk is another's treasure, but Lois Yost of Grand Haven, Michigan, says it better; "trash is cash." And the cash goes to the Lord's work through the Investment program.

Three years ago Lois became interested in collecting refund and discount coupons from name brand products.

It started as a hobby, but then her vision enlarged and she dedicated half of the returns to benefit the Lord's work. Now she gives it all to Him.

Last year that amounted to $501 for Investment. The year before it was $268.

Lois works full time at a print shop. Friends there bring her labels and coupons as do fellow church members.

She clips and saves the coupons, trades with five other collectors from coast to coast, and then redeems all she can.

There are times when the community services program benefits too. When Lois needs just one or two more coupons to get a significant refund, she may buy the necessary items, tear off the labels and give her purchase to community services.

Lois says, "We are always looking for investment projects. I'm just investing my time to turn some trash into cash to help finish the Lord's work."

Investment special projects for 1984 are an inner-island mission boat for Newfoundland, Canada, and a Spanish evangelistic-care center in Houston, Texas.

Spiritual Interest Sparked At Cheboygan Garage Sale

MICHIGAN—Ron Duman and his fiancée, Rita, went to a garage sale in Cheboygan, Michigan. Three books, Dimensions of Salvation, Triumph of God's Love, and God Speaks to Modern Man caught Ron's attention, so he bought them and started reading.

Later, a letter arrived at Ron's home announcing meetings at the Cheboygan Adventist Church. He and Rita looked over the list of subjects and decided to attend; they attended each night.

When the meetings closed, Ron and Rita began attending Sabbath School and church with Rita's two children and Ron's three children by previous marriages.

Rita discovered help was needed in the children's Sabbath School and asked if someone who was not a member could help. The leader quickly assured her that her assistance would be welcome.

Ron and Rita were married on Christmas Eve in the home of Pastor Kenneth Oliver; later they were baptized.

"The Dumans are proving a real blessing to the church. They are the kind of people who can be counted on," said Janet Oliver, the pastor's wife. "They are busy helping others and spreading the message through the sharing of cassette tapes.

"The Lord has wonderful ways of working—even through garage sales," said Mrs. Oliver.

Honor Society Inducts New Members

MICHIGAN—Induction services for the Alma L. Campbell Chapter of the National Honor Society were held at Andrews Academy January 30. Admission to the society is limited to students who have achieved sophomore status and demonstrate qualities of service, character, and leadership, according to Donna Wheeker, faculty sponsor. Sophomore students must have a grade point average of 3.6; juniors, 3.5; and seniors, 3.4. The chapter is named in honor of Mrs. Victor Campbell who was an English teacher at the academy from 1946 to 1958. Students inducted in the chapter are from left: Paul Poyser, Michelle Bacchus, Shelly Dunn, Beth Osborn, Brenda Rowland, Marta Solomon, Jill Patterson, Roxanne Medina, Brent Geraty, Michelle Kuebler, Mark Flory, Mary Butt, Michael Quion, Tonya DiBiase, Karl Medina and Ceneen Rasmussen.

Michigan Pathfinders enjoyed winter sports despite subzero weather.

Pathfinders Enjoy Outing

MICHIGAN—Pathfinders from throughout Michigan gathered with their leaders to participate in a teen snow outing at Camp Au Sable January 13 to 15.

More than 450 of them overflowed available sleeping quarters at Cedar Lodge though frigid temperatures reached minus 28 in the area.

A highlight of the weekend was the report of Teen Mission Impact in Haiti. Pathfinders just back from that trip shared their firsthand experiences in ministering to people less fortunate than themselves.

Chester Damron, associate pastor of Pioneer Memorial Church and campus ministry chaplain at Andrews University, was the featured speaker for the weekend.

Saturday night and Sunday the activities included snowmobiling, downhill skiing, sliding on tubes and sleds, sleigh riding, skating, and horseback riding.

An Ingathering Surprise In the Upper Peninsula

MICHIGAN—Ingathering occasionally holds a surprise or two for those who solicit funds.

This year Jerry Snowden and Pastor John Glass of the Escanaba, Michigan, Church received an Ingathering surprise while contacting businesses in town.

Pastor Glass had sensed that something unusual was afoot when one of his regular contacts declined to make his usual contribution.

He told Pastor Glass that another businessman in town (one of Mr. Snowden's contacts) had already talked with him about giving a donation to the Ingathering program and would be picking up the check.

"We have a little project going on," the man said. "If this other man doesn't pick up the check, I'll mail it to you."

When Mr. Snowden and Pastor Glass visited the other businessman, he said, "There are a lot of people out there who need help right now, and I know you people do a lot of good. I figured some of us businessmen could afford to give $100 a piece and that we'd split it between you and the St. Vincent De Paul Society."

At that point, he opened his safe. "I wanted to have more," he said, "but here's $550. Another hundred should be coming" (it did). He handed them the money and then proceeded to write an additional check for his regular donation.

"We're not sure whether the same project will be conducted next year, but we're thankful this year for some fine businessmen in Escanaba," said Pastor Glass.

● Holly Sabbath School members raised $3,140.87 for Investment during 1983, according to Dorothy Kamin, Investment leader. At the announcement time during Sabbath School, Mrs. Kamin expressed thanks to God and to members for their support. In addition to individual Investment ideas used by the members, two group projects were conducted during the year. In June members held a garage sale; in December a Christmas sale was held. A group of senior citizens from the church worked many hours preparing homemade quilts and other items for the sale. "Grandma" Rosie Anderson, who recently celebrated her 90th birthday, donated materials for the quilts.

● A Christmas program was given on December 18, and plans are being made for a Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking at Kinross Correctional Facility in the Upper Peninsula, according to Harry Selby, a member at Sault Ste. Marie. Helping him with the visitation program at the prison is Matt Ballard. The program was started in July 1983. The prison houses more than 700 medium security inmates. In October, Bible studies were begun with two men and has expanded to four.

● Thirteenth Sabbath became a memorable day for Sabbath School members at the Urbandale Church. Their Christmas program featured special music by many of the children who sang and played their instruments. Members decorated a tree with their Thirteenth Sabbath offerings which had been placed in tiny stars, stockings, and colorful envelopes.

Revelation Seminars Prove Successful

INDIANA—Twenty-nine people were baptized in the Michigan City and La Porte, Indiana, churches resulting from a Revelation Seminar conducted by Larry Cansler, conference evangelist and Duane Longfellow, district pastor. The nine-week seminar was held three nights a week in the Barker Junior High School in Michigan City. More than 60 visitors joined with church members for the study of Revelation. "Why haven't we heard of Seventh-day Adventists before?" was the question many of those visiting asked. Four students from Andrews University assisted in the seminar. During the Michigan City seminar, Elder Cansler also conducted a seminar in Valparaiso on alternate evenings. Three were baptized in the Valparaiso Church. Don Short, district pastor at that time, assisted Elder Cansler in Valparaiso.

Investment Proves a Blessing

INDIANA—Sabbath School Investment funds in Indiana totaled $38,710.50 in 1983. The Monticello Church reached 16 percent of this goal through a yard sale, an Investment basket project, coin collections and sale of garden produce, reported Barbara Banes of Monticello.

Fort Wayne members were challenged by Investment Leader Debbie Stout's theme, "With God as our partner, we will see miracles happen"; and they did.

Debbie's goal was for $1,500, but more than $2,400 was turned in. Church members collected aluminum cans, made crafts, held an Investment fair, and earned money doing odd jobs. One grade-conscious college student pledged $10 for each "A" received.

"Debbie believes God appreciates human efforts and greatly increases one's resources when dedicated to Him," said Paul Merrills, communication secretary in Fort Wayne.

"Investment is an exciting adventure in Sabbath School that makes giving a joy and builds faith that God opens windows of financial blessings."

Indiana Leaders Give Reports

INDIANA—A report and planning meeting of church leaders and pastors was called by Robert A. Thompson, Indiana Conference president, on January 15 in Cicero, Indiana.

Edward Skoretz, director of personal ministries reported that Indiana church members raised $135,872.39 for the Ingathering program.

Plans for the Pan-American Adventist Youth Congress to be held in Mexico City, December 16 to 23, 1984, were presented to the church leaders by Herb Wrate, director of youth activities. Details were given to each pastor.

It was announced that "It Is Written" TV programs scheduled for March 11, 18 and 25 will give special invitations to listeners to visit Adventist churches. "The future of 'It Is Written' in Indiana will depend on the financial support given through Indiana Advance and the response to the March television ministry," said Jerry Lastine, communication and stewardship director.

Treasurer Tom Massengill presented the treasurer's report which showed a gain in tithe, but a decrease in Indiana Advance funds. W. G. Nelson, principal of Indiana Academy, shared progress reports of academy life, and Herb Wrate compared Adventist elementary education in Indiana with national statistics.

A progress report on the academy building committee was presented by Robert A. Thompson. Currently the architect is completing enlargement and renovation plans for the north dormitory to accommodate the girls in a new facility.

Gymnasium renovation and additional classroom space will be considered along with the girls dorm project at a constituency meeting planned in the spring.

● The community services department at the Ephesus Church in Marion, Indiana, led by Bea King and Jane Watkins, arranged to have food baskets and clothing given to families in need. According to James M. Buford, communication secretary, nearly every society meeting is held at the home of Bea where plans are made for all types of sewing, knitting, and quilting projects.

● The Gethsemane Church in Danville, Illinois, gave a special invitation to all of its members who had been blessed by God during the year 1983 to be present on Home Coming Sabbath. Emmanuel Foxworth, pastor of the Dowagiac-Cassopolis, Michigan, District, was the guest speaker for the divine worship service. This meeting brought together a number of members who had not been present at church in quite a while. The children from the cradle roll and primary Sabbath School departments were active participants in the afternoon program. Members from the Terre Haute, Indiana and Champaign, Illinois, churches also helped to make the day a special occasion, according to Debra Murphy, communication secretary of the Gethsemane Church in Danville.

● In December 1983, the Haughville Church in Indianapolis, Indiana, moved into its own church building located on North Pershing Avenue. Pastor Richard Washington delivered the sermon during the worship service. At the conclusion of the sermon the church building was dedicated. The renovation of the building was done by Nicholas Joseph and James Pilot, both church members. Financial support was received from the Haughville Church and the sister churches of Capitol City and Eastside.

● Phillip Prime, a member of the Eastside Church in Indianapolis, recently conducted a week of prayer for the Haughville Church also in Indianapolis. At the close of the series of sermons, a fellowship dinner was prepared for the church family in the home of Phillip and Cynthia Prime.

● Royce Mentor, pastor of the Pontiac-Saginaw, Michigan, District, was guest speaker at the Sharon Church in St. Paul, Minnesota. Pastor Mentor's sermons for the special weekend centered around how mankind communicates with God.

● Calvin B. Rock, president of Oakwood College, was special guest speaker for the Twin City Scholarship Banquet in Minnesota. Victor Cancel, president of the scholarship association; Pamela McKinney, vice president; Maxine Austin, secretary; Helen Adair, treasurer; Lester Collins, public relations director, and other members strive each year to provide scholarships for students who attend church school in the Twin City area.

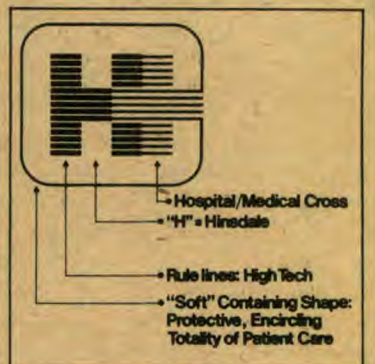

Hinsdale Approves New Logo

HINSDALE, Ill.—The name of Hinsdale Hospital will soon begin appearing alongside a new trademark on stationery, street identification signs, forms, brochures and service award pins. Commonly referred to as a logo, this element is the central part of a recently approved identity package.

Following the action by the board of trustees to officially update the hospital's name to Hinsdale Hospital, the public relations department began considering ways to also update the hospital's image as portrayed by the look of its name and logo.

"A hospital's name and the graphics associated with it convey a distinct mental image to those who see them," says Keith Lundquist, public relations director. "The high level of technology and staff expertise available within the hospital needs to match the hospital's visual identity."

The new logo is comprised of a large "H," which represents the hospital name, and an adjoining medical cross. These two elements, which convey the name and business of the institution, are encircled by a fine line symbolizing the totality of the care rendered by the hospital staff. The bold horizontal lines that make up the symbol give the logo a contemporary, high-technology look.

The elements of the new logo as they are described above lend to the contemporary look of the hospital identity.

"Hinsdale Hospital has long been known for its dedication to Christ-centered care," says Mr. Lundquist. "This element will continue to be a vital part of patient care."

To reinforce the Christian foundation upon which the hospital is based, the logo and the name of the hospital will often appear along with reference to the institution's association with Adventist Health System/North.

"In order to compete in today's health care environment, a hospital must be viewed as being up-to-date," says Mr. Lundquist, "and that's the main goal of this new identity package."

"For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind." II Timothy 1:7

● According to Sally Westman, communication secretary, the Wausau Church's Sabbath School members are working as volunteers with the local social services agency. Joyce Thomas, Sabbath School superintendent, and Gloria Wenzel, coordinator of the project, are working together to get members involved. Members are helping by sewing layettes for children; sewing quilts; visiting single parents; providing emergency baby sitting; giving health care advice to families; providing companionship to the elderly, and providing hot meals and transportation to those in need. Gloria says, "in this service time is more important than money."

● Vera and Elwood Westman of the Wausau Church visited area nursing homes and the Wausau Health Care Center this past Christmas season. They handed out fruit, candy, and popcorn balls to the residents, according to Sally Westman, communication secretary.

● "The Greatest Gift" Christmas program was presented by various Wausau Church members on December 23, 1983. The program was organized by Peggy Beranek and the master of ceremonies was Ed Drygalski. The program consisted of a reading from the book of Isaiah on the prophecy of Jesus, the Christmas story from Matthew and Luke, and readings from the Desire of Ages. Church members also presented instrumental and vocal Christmas music, according to Sally Westman, communication secretary.

● The Wausau Church completed its annual Ingathering campaign led by Ed Drygalski, personal ministries leader, in only seven nights. "Solicitors found most of the people they contacted pleasant, friendly and receptive to the appeal. The very best we can remember," says Ed. "Despite unemployment and the economy, many nights solicitors averaged more than $20 for the evening".

Food Baskets Distributed

LAKE REGION—On December 22, 1983, in freezing subzero temperatures, Mary Brooks, chairman of the Robbins, Illinois, community services department, led her members in the largest single food basket giveaway program in the church's history.

The south suburban church with 92 members and only eight active community services workers, prepared and distributed 53 food baskets for families that totaled in excess of 240 persons.

The food baskets contained entrees, vegetables, and staples. The society gave each child, eight years old and under, a personally wrapped gift which included stuffed animals, books and an assortment of toys donated by the members.

One family receiving a basket had eleven members. Another family had been recently burned out of their home.

Pastor Robert Tolson, and his wife, Ellen, were present to commend the community services workers for their efforts in giving to those in need.

Witness Leads to Baptism

LAKE REGION—Ellen Collins, a member of the Calvin Center Church in Cassopolis, Michigan, constantly looks for opportunities to witness about her God.

An opportunity was opened to her one day when she was contacted by Robert Conner concerning her assistance in some business matters.

She invited Robert to some evening church meetings. Robert accepted the invitation and also consented to Ellen giving him Bible studies.

When the series of Bible studies was completed, Ellen invited her Bible student to a church evangelistic meeting which was being conducted in Dowagiac by Gene Donaldson, a seminary student at Andrews University.

Although Ellen worked on a

Robert Conner and Ellen Collins

night shift, she sacrificed her rest time to accompany Robert to the meetings.

When the invitation to join the church was given, Robert responded by joining the church. He is now baptized and is faithfully attending the Dowagiac and Cassopolis churches.

Michigan Music Camp is the only week-long Adventist music camp in the North American Division.

Music Camp—1984

ANDREWS UNIVERSITY—Plans are now being made for the 1984 Michigan Music Camp which is scheduled for July 8 to 14.

The organizers of music camp are studying the possibility of lengthening it by several days. This would allow for not only the sacred camp meeting performances but a secular concert for a nearby town.

According to Nancy Steely, music camp and band director at Battle Creek Academy in Battle Creek, Michigan, any Adventist academy or high school student in North America may attend.

"I hope that music camp will enhance the students' musicianship in their own academies," said Miss Steely.

Students from as far away as Canada and California came to Camp Au Sable in Grayling, Michigan, for the 1983 Michigan Music Camp.

Michigan Music Camp is the only week-long Adventist music camp in the North American Division. It began five years ago when music teachers expressed their concern for Adventist youths who wanted to go to music camps but could not attend because of Sabbath conflicts.

Band, choir, orchestra, and keyboard were the four areas of concentration that students were offered in 1983. Most of the students participated in more than one group, which meant that the average student practiced approximately five or six hours a day. Each day began with reveille sounding at 7 A.M.

As a break from their practicing, students were given some free time in the mornings and afternoons for horseback riding, canoeing, swimming and other recreational activities.

After a week of practicing sacred music, the students were transported to Grand Ledge, Michigan, for the opening weekend of the Michigan Conference Camp Meeting. Each group performed several times throughout the Sabbath hours.

Aside from the regular summer camp staff at Camp Au Sable, the teaching staff included Barbara Favorito, director of bands at Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Michigan.

Stephen Zork conducted the music camp choir and is the choral director at Auburn Academy, Auburn, Washington. Leroy Peterson, nationally known conductor and performer, conducted the music camp orchestra.

Sandra Camp directed the music camp keyboard ensemble. She is associate professor of piano at Andrews University.

For more information concerning the 1984 music camp, contact the Michigan Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, Youth Department, Box 19009, Lansing, MI 48901, or call 517-485-2226.

Religious Training Is Not Enough

WASHINGTON, D.C.—"What we all need to realize is that good parents' kids get into drugs." Paul and Carol Cannon, co-directors of The Bridge Fellowship in Bowling Green, Kentucky, a live-in counseling center for troubled college-age youths, made this statement in an interview article appearing in the February issue of Listen magazine.

The article, entitled "When Religious Training Is Not Enough," discusses the drug involvement of children and teenagers from conservative religious homes with total-abstinence codes.

"A child who has been reared in a conservative religious home is less likely to start using drugs and alcohol," the article says. "But if he does start using these substances, he's more likely to have problems with them."

The Cannons say that this increased risk of dependence is caused by several influences. "A young person reared in a total-abstinence code who jumps barriers and begins to use a drug has an extreme guilt load."

Listen magazine is helping families facing drug problems.

Furthermore, "conservative religious people... are unlikely to provide prevention, intervention, and treatment facilities, because it's assumed they are unnecessary."

And "most parents who have never violated their total-abstinence code themselves don't know what to teach their children," the article adds, "so they don't teach them anything."

This lack of preventive measures is aggravated by over-protectiveness on the part of parents and rebellion on the part of children. "The best way the adolescent from a conservative church can think of to get to either his parents or the church is to do one of three things: drink, smoke, or get pregnant... This attitude may be unconscious, but it's often there."

With this in mind, Listen magazine's staff have put together a parent-support group starter kit to assist concerned parents who aren't sure how to effect change in their families and communities.

The kit includes materials specifically for Adventists on how to deal with a drug problem within the Adventist subculture, a single-theme issue of Listen on parent groups, and the syllabus from the Cannon's drug-awareness seminar.

This kit is offered free to those who sponsor 10 or more subscriptions to Listen during February and March. It is also available at a small charge from Narcotics Education, Inc., 6830 Laurel Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20012.

The Sounds of Adventist World Radio

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The Adventist World Radio is heard in dozens of countries in Africa, Asia, Europe and Latin America; places where such broadcasts on local radio stations are not allowed. Thousands of listeners are tuning in daily to these broadcasts to reach out for help. The Bible correspondence schools report a growing interest in the radio messages.

A few weeks ago a bomb exploded at an Adventist Bible correspondence school and demolished part of the building. No one was injured because it happened at night when the office was closed. It is assumed someone felt threatened because the school, in cooperation with the broadcasts, is doing an effective job of leading people to Christ.

Because of this type of reaction some people prefer to listen in secret, never writing to request help from the Bible correspondence school. Nevertheless, they may be very interested.

It can only be assumed that there are many more who continue to listen faithfully hoping that someday they will be found.

Just recently another broadcast began on a powerful radio station in Gabon, West Africa. This is the beginning of a new ministry for Africa, one of the fastest growing Christian communities in the world. At the same time, another program went on the air in Europe from Radio Luxembourg.

Another development was the creation of a corporation to hold radio licenses in the United States called Adventist Broadcasting Service, Inc. It was recorded in the District of Columbia on December 19, 1983, and already plans are being made to submit an application to the Federal Communications Commission for the first license.

The master plan for Adventist World Radio calls for three or four powerful shortwave stations in strategic places to permit coverage of every nation, kindred, tongue and people. This is in addition to the use of local stations.

The Gospel must be preached in all the world before the Lord's return, and Adventist World Radio plans to do its part, with the financial help of dedicated Adventist believers everywhere.

Saturday Evening Post Features Adventists

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The Saturday Evening Post, America's oldest magazine, is featuring the Seventh-day Adventist Church in a major article in its March issue.

Written by John Cook, author of Diet and Your Religion, the article outlines basic beliefs of Adventists concerning nutrition and abstinence from alcohol, tobacco and harmful drugs. It also highlights reports which show that Adventists have increased life expectancy and less cancer than the general population.

Reprints of the article will be mailed to every Seventh-day Adventist Church in North America. Churches will be able to order additional reprints for use in their outreach ministries.

The Post does not accept alcohol or tobacco advertising. Ironically, the issue containing the Seventh-day Adventist article is the first issue following the Post's decision to discontinue tobacco advertising.

CHURCH MEMBERSHIP AND ACCOUNTING SYSTEM for KAPRO, IBM and IBM compatible computers. Prints receipts, financial summaries, membership

When you perform at Andrews University you're rewarded with more than compliments. You're rewarded with money.

Introducing the Andrews University $30,000 Performance Scholarships.

Talent is talent.

And with young people, talent comes in different ways. At Andrews, those different talents are acknowledged not just with compliments, but with scholarships.

It's all part of the Andrews University Performance Scholarship Fund where $30,000 worth of scholarships and honorariums are issued to deserving students in the categories of Wind Ensemble, Men's Chorus, Women's Chorus, University Singers, and Gymnics.

It's not unusual for Andrews to be offering so much for Performing Arts. Just as it's not unusual to hear of the other scholarship plans and financial aid programs offered here at the University.

Our goal is quite simple: offer the student the chance for a "total education." The University consists of six different schools where students can choose from a variety of degree programs and curricula.

So if you're looking for a school where your talent will be recognized, then you just might be looking for Andrews. Find out more by calling one of our Admissions Counselors toll-free: nationwide, call 1-800-253-2874. For Michigan residents, dial 1-800-632-2248. Or, mail in the coupon.

You'll discover, that in more ways than one, it pays to go to Andrews.

Letters

Letters on nontheological topics are welcomed by the editors. We appreciate your thoughtful reaction to articles printed and your suggestions and questions. Right is reserved to edit for continuity and space limitations. Your name, address and the name of home church are required, but will not be published if you request anonymity.

I feel you should edit or reject all "religious discrimination for profit" classified ads. We should be equal opportunity employers, landlords, and sellers of goods and services, just like we want to be dealt with. Not only is this fair, but it creates many excellent witnessing opportunities. The November 22, 1983, ad for Adventist Employment Service was the worst one yet.

Editors's Note: We agree that discrimination in any form is not Christian. However, Adventist Employment Service does not advertise that they will only employ Adventists or serve only Adventist employers. There are many non-Adventists who have been blessed through their employment with Adventists. This "creates many excellent witnessing opportunities."

"Pardon me, please, would you mind if we just squeeze into this little area while we wait for our luggage to show up on the carousel?"

These words led to a most satisfying dialogue with a young married couple at the O'Hare Airport in Chicago.

I was returning home from a grueling trip and was ready for a rest from the bustling crowds of public transportation. The young couple had found the cigarette smoke in the general luggage area too much for them, and the little spot between me and a support column offered relief from the polluted air.

Upon establishing their position and watching for the arrival of their luggage, the young lady shared with me her low tolerance for cigarette smoke. I asked questions as to why she found cigarette smoke to be repulsive. She answered by giving me reasons why she felt it could be harmful to the health of the smoker and also to those in the immediate environment.

She proceeded to suggest to me that smoking is an act that God prefer we not do. I challenged her to tell me more, and she immediately responded by quoting verses from the Bible and giving her interpretation of their meaning.

Looking cynical I asked, "Does your church teach this, or is this a personal belief of yours?" They both assured me they personally believe this and their church teaches it as well.

At this point they began to tell me about a Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking that would help anyone who wanted to kick the habit.

Glancing back at the luggage carousel I thanked them for the information and began removing my luggage. "Just a minute, Sir," the young man said. "Our church will be sponsoring a Five-Day Plan this spring, and I would like to invite you to attend."

After finding out that the Five-Day Plan was to be held in a little town in Wisconsin, I told him that the distance was too great to travel. He quickly retorted that no distance was too far if it meant saving health and becoming acquainted with his church.

The young man then stared at me and asked, "Do you smoke?" "No," I replied. With a gleam in his eye he said, "Could I have met you before?"

"Maybe," I said. He looked at me quizzically. "Well you look very familiar." "Maybe it's because I believe the same as you," I said. "I'm an Adventist."

The young couple smiled broadly and talked of their sense of fulfillment when promoting the kingdom of Christ.

Forward motion was the thrust of this young Adventist couple. My dictionary says that the word "motion" comes from a combination of two words: "pro" meaning "forward," and "motion" meaning "movement."

We have reached the halfway mark of the 1,000 Days of Reaping, and if there ever was a time to verbalize a renewal and involvement it is now. There are indeed many occasions in our lives that present to us opportunities for witnessing. When they come, I say to you, "forward motion."

Lois Yost of Grand Haven, Michigan, started a hobby of collecting refund and discount coupons three years ago. Soon she felt impressed to dedicate half of her financial returns to the Lord's work; now she gives it all to Him. During 1983 Lois donated $501 to Investment as a result of her coupon-collecting efforts. To learn more about Lois' Investment project, see "Coupons for Cash" on page two. (Photo by Glenn H.
