A Lesson From the School Report

According to the annual educational report given on another page, we had last year in our church and family schools 369 students, but of this number only s'xty-three were in attendance nine months. Our academies enrolled 212 but 142 of this number either started after the school had opened or left before it closed.

Some of these workers are now month. This will call a good many out of the work and leave our ranks much thinner. What shall be our attitude relative to this condition? Shall we become indifferent, or shall we take a personal interest in the situation and help to remedy it?

I believe it lies within our power to see that there are no gaps left in the ranks of those who are struggling so bravely and so hard to carry this Message to the world. The situation leads me to appeal to every reader of the REAPER and all our dear brethren in the churches. I am certain that many who have been occupied with work on their farms during the summer could arrange to spend the fall and winter canvassing for some of our Message-filled books. While I was gone Brethren Peters and Kurtz moved the tent from our former location to another part of the city, where we expect a larger hearing. From the first the tent was filled with attentive listeners, but extremely cool weather set in causing real suffering to the people before we could get the tent properly heated. This caused a falling off in attendance. Then the Lutheran priest warned his people strongly not to go to the tent and since that the attendance has dropped off very much. Remembering the interest my good brethren of Minnesota and the Northwest have in the messege, I am constrained to write a few words to the REAPER.

Thief River Falls

The reports from this field have been somewhat different in their character. But the present outlook is more promising than it has been for some time. God has worked for us in a different way from what we had expected.

Three of the families that met with us on Sabbath, have just moved away, and other interested ones are planning to go in the near future. This .nakes the work harder.

Two weeks ago a young man from the country, who is working in the city, was baptized and united with us. We do not know how many will take hold of the truth and step fully over on the Lord's side. Six or seven are attending Sabbath services quite r rlv.

May God richly bless the REAPER family. Remember the work here in your prayers.

Lincoln a Gentleman

In his speech delivered at Springfield, Ill., Saturday evening, July 17, 1858, Mr. Lincoln said:

"I set out in this campaign with the intention of conducting it as a gentleman, in substance at least if not in outside polish. The latter I shall never be: but that which constitutes the inside of a gentleman I hope I understand, and am not less inclined to practice than others."

The words, "That which constitutes the inside of a gentleman" appeal to, and stir the soul and admiration of every true man and woman. While we should, and of necessity must, conform to the regulations and customs of society, it is nevertheless true that with all the outside polish one may have, he is not in the truest sense a gentleman whose important. # there are some customs that are overnice, that are straining at a strictly conform to such regulations as the time, place, and conditions have established. The old adage, "When you are in Rome you must do as Romans T do," is largely true. Not, of course, when truth and principles must be sacrificed in order to 1 comply. Never do that. But p whenever you can (and observe and learn, if you do not know) T carefully observe such rules as are in operation in that place where you may chance to be.

And here I may say that these forms are quite sectional in their application. That which would be admissable and correct in one locality might be entirely out of place in another. Every country, every nationality, and even different sections of a country have widely differing ideas of propriety. And so I repeat that when one changes localities he should always adjust himself, or better, perhaps, adapt himself to the society-laws of that place. Indeed he must do this, or his will be destroyed.
