PHILOSOPHY OF REMUNERATION

The Seventh-day Adventist Church has accepted the commission given by Jesus Christ to His disciples to proclaim the gospel to all the world. The church employs many agencies to accomplish its spiritual task, but all of its several organizations (conferences, schools, medical institutions, food factories, publishing houses, radio and television ministries, Adventist book centers, etc.) have one central objective—the salvation of man. Because of this, every denominational employee has a responsibility to participate in the mission of the church.

To provide a basis for the remuneration of various classes of workers, a denominational remuneration scale has been adopted. The philosophy of this remuneration scale is predicated upon the fact that a spirit of sacrifice and dedication should mark God's workers irrespective of the position they hold or the department they represent. The work of the church, including every denominational organization, is a mission to which lives are dedicated rather than a business or commercial venture. The church remuneration scale does not always compensate its dedicated workers in monetary units commensurate with their talents, accomplishments, and contributions, but does provide workers with a modest living income, which gives recognition of responsibilities borne, preparation undertaken, professional attainment, previous experience, and years of service.

The church believes that modesty and good taste with reasonable comfort will govern the lives of Christian workers. It recognizes that some areas of its work are more directly affected by economic factors outside of the church organization than are others, and by local economic conditions obtaining in different geographical areas.

The spirit of sacrifice on the part of Adventist employees will be manifested not only by the level of their financial remuneration but also by the dedication of time, talents, and energy to the cause of God and humanity. Men and women called to labor in the cause of the Adventist Church are to be workers of single purpose and allegiance. With Paul, the great missionary of the early Christian church, they say, "This one thing I do."

The church philosophy of remuneration was developed on the scriptural and spiritual imperative, "Give us this day our daily bread." It is a plan which provides income for the needs of individuals who believe that God blesses the spirit of selfless service and who believe that the Seventh-day Adventist Church has a worldwide mission. The philosophy, from its inception, has anticipated that, in addition to the contribution of time and talent, a Seventh-day Adventist worker will also, from his modest income, make voluntary gifts to accelerate the proclamation of the gospel, and thus exhibit a further demonstration of faith and commitment. Because of this philosophy, all denominational employees in the Seventh-day Adventist Church are regarded as church workers placed in one of two harmonious categories and designated either as ministers or missionaries. Both categories call for commitment and sacrifice but allow for different functions.

The church has a basic remuneration scale for all employees in each job classification without discrimination on the basis of race, religion, sex, age, national origin or color.

If considered in the light of these principles, the remuneration policy of the Seventh-day Adventist Church will be seen to be in harmony with the prevailing equal practices and the spirit of nondiscrimination and at the same time conform to the teachings and beliefs of the Church.

THE BASIC REMUNERATION SCALE

- 1. A remuneration scale for the North American Division based on such considerations as education, experience, and responsibility, provides scale for all employees in each job classification without discrimination on the basis of race, religion, sex, national origin or color, with minimums and maximums expressed in percentges of the remuneration factor (rounded to the nearest dollar). It incorporates basic income rates for various categories of services, with recognition of the responsibility inherent in each position or category.
- 2. A spread between minimum and maximum rates in the various categories of from ten to thirty percent has been incorporated in the remuneration scale. In setting rates within this spread, employing organizations should take into consideration the following factors with respect to each worker:
  - a. Preparation, education and dedication
  - b. Previous experience and achievement
  - c. Years of service
- 3. The remuneration scale should be strictly adhered to and no special allowances of any kind should be made except as may be provided for in the North American Division Working Policy

REMUNERATION SCALE PROVISIONS

REMUNERATION INCREMENTS

The arrangement of the remuneration scale provides separate listings for the various types of organizations. The advisability of a regular plan of increments is recognized. In order to provide a reasonable degree of uniformity in the area of remuneration increments, it is recommended that the following guidelines be followed:

1. For conference organizations and field workers (to apply to the General, union, and local conference, Adventist Media Center)

Employing organizations may set increments for ministers starting with the first year in the field and reaching the maximum for ordained ministers ordinarily in the sixth year of field service. Conference and field workers who are not ministers may ordinarily reach the stated maximum for their respective categories after the completion of five years of regular full-time service.

2. Educational system

Schedules of increments for qualified workers in the educational system may be set by controlling and employing organizations so that the worker's salary may ordinarily be at the maximum for his category after the completion of five years of regular full-time service. Annual increments may be based in part on certification.

3. Publishing houses and Christian Record Braille Foundation

Increments may be scheduled in relation to a five-year apprenticeship for factory workers. For secretrial and other categories of workers, increments may be scheduled so that the maximum rate may ordinarily be reached after the completion of five years of regular full-time service.

4. Other institutions

Increments for workers in other denominational institutions, such as homes for the aged and orphanages, may be scheduled so that the worker's maximum rate for his category may ordinarily be reached after the completion of five years of regular full-time service.

In all of the above categories two principles are applicable with respect to increments:

- 1. Departures from the strict application of the time schedule for increments may be made in recognition of special skill and/or exceptional productivity, or the normal period of achieving the maximum rate may be extended if lesser ability and rate of growth so indicate.
- 2. The rates for administrative and executive personnel may be set without regard to the established increments schedule.

REMUNERATION

GENERAL APPLICATION

We recognize the historical denominational position which provides that a worker is paid on the scale for the general classification and category in which he is employed. For example, personnel employed in hospitals will be paid on the health care institution scale, and those employed in general educational or academic administrative and teaching areas will be paid on the educational scale for their category.

In publishing houses major administrative rates are to be controlled by the denominational remuneration scale with each board determining the level of remuneration for all other workers, the maximum rate not to exceed the modest average community rate for such categories.

The remuneration rate assigned to each worker is designed to meet his requirements for all living allowances, including salary, housing, utilities, auto depreciation and insurance, telephone and professional allowance.

In addition to the remuneration rate the worker may under conditions described in the respective policy receive the following:

- a. Health care assistance
- b. Scholarship grants on behalf of dependent children
- c. Additional auto insurance

If both spouses are denominationally employed, the cost of these allowances may be shared by the employing organizations.

MAXIMUM REMUNERATION AND COMMUNITY RATES

The present remuneration scale provides for maximum rates to certain categories of employees which may be in excess of the remuneration rates paid in the community for a similar type of service. It is recognized that because of the area, the type employment, and community patterns of remuneration, the responsible committees and controlling boards concerned shall set remuneration rates for certain categories of employees which do not exceed the modest average community rate for such categories, even though these rates are less than the maximums stated in the remuneration scale for these specific classifications.

Where organizations are affected by community patterns of remuneration, recognition should also be given to the retirement plan benefits for employees for which the denominational organization pays the entire cost.

REMUNERATION RATES

Categories: It is recognized that in certain localities it may be necessary to adjust the remuneration rate to compensate for the higher cost of living area. This additional remuneration shall be based on data provided by a reputable company with expertise in this area and shall use as the major components of the study the cost of housing, transportation and taxes. The amount for qualifying areas shall be established by NADCA in counsel with the field.

The categories shall be defined by dividing the cost of living areas in six sections. The lowest category shall not qualify for additional remuneration while the others will be authorized to receive up to the maximum stipulated for the category.

The cost of living study will be done under the leadership of NADCA and the assigning of areas to the various categories will be approved at the Annual Spring Meeting of NADCA.

HOSPITAL REMUNERATION SCALE

In an effort to unify the remuneration for administrative personnel in Seventh-day Adventist hospitals and union health care corporations in the North American Division so that all benefits except scholarship grants, health care assistance and retirement benefits can be expressed in one total remuneration figure, a formula has been voted by the Annual Council for the North American Division.

To obtain the remuneration rate of the administrator, the arithmetic mean of all nurses' salary rates in a given bospital on an annual basis is multiplied by 1.9 (190% of the mean). The arithmetic mean is computed by taking the remuneration rates of all full-time nurses in a given hospital--including RNs from floor duty to head nurse--adding their salary rates, and dividing the total by the number of nurses in the group.

Each hospital makes its own computation to determine the administrator's salary on the basis of the nurses' arithmetic mean. This computation is sent to the union health-care corporation and North Amerian Health Services Board for approval. However, because the nurses' remuneration rates are not always the most accurate indicator of the cost of living in a specific area, any hospital, if approved by its governing board, may place its administrator at a maximum of 90% of the highest denominational hospital administrator rate in the U.S. if the standard computation is less than this figure. The highest hospital administrator rate in the United States would be determined annually by the North American Health Services Board. It is further understood that the remuneration of the administrator would not be above the community rate of an administrator in a like-sized hospital in the immediate area.

The remuneration scale for other personnel in the employ of health care institutions will be determined by the respective governing boards, and rates will be set in a proper relationship to the administrator's rate and to the prevailing rates in the community.
