For the Year Ending December 31, 1905

The Statistical Report for 1905

THE following pages contain the statistical report for 1905, in which is shown the standing of our work in the various fields in detail, by groups, and the grand total. A report of this nature can not be compiled without receiving accurate returns from every field; consequently the publication of this report has been delayed until all these returns are in hand. A few delinquent secretaries have made it impossible to issue this report earlier.

Accurate figures have been secured from the entire world, with the exception of the mission fields of China, Central America, and Cuba. Conservative estimates for these fields are given, so that the entire report is complete, and represents numerically the standing of our work in progress at the close of 1905.

This report shows a great increase in almost every feature, being the largest report ever published by the denomination. The figures indicating this growth will bear careful study by those wishing to become informed regarding the present standing of this cause.

The report is divided under two tables. Table No. 1 gives the same information that former reports have given, with the addition of some new items, to which reference is made in the foot-notes. The careful reader will observe that the greatest gains for the year have been in the amount of funds given for the support of the work. While it is true that figures can not always be taken as correctly representing the development of the work, yet in this case, the figures indicating the manner in which this cause is being sustained would seem to be a very true index of the way it is regarded by the believers in this message. Never before in the history of this cause has this people, throughout the entire world, exhibited greater loyalty than has been exemplified in the sacrifices made and the offerings given for the support of this work in its various phases. The total funds for 1905 are more than one-third greater than the amount given during 1904. This result will be very gratifying to every lover of this cause.

Table No. 2 shows, for each year, the principal items covered by the statistical reports from the time the General Conference was organized in 1863, to 1905. This table will help one to understand how this work has grown from a very small beginning, and one can not but note the ratio of increase in later years, as well as its present magnitude. As indicated in the table, it has been necessary in some cases, because of a failure to compile reports for certain years, to estimate, but this has always been done in a conservative manner.

In order that the leading features of the financial portion of Table No. 1 may be readily understood, there is given herewith a brief statement showing the total amounts contributed by the denomination for the entire world during 1905, compared with the amounts for 1904. This summary presents results of a very encouraging nature.

Foot-notes for Table No. 1

- The tithe per capita is based upon the total Sabbath-keepers, and not upon the church-membership, for the reason that the funds come not from the members of churches alone, but from members of companies and from isolated persons as well.
- A very true index of the growth of the work in each field is given in column 12, showing the per cent of gain in total Sabbath-keepers for 1905 compared with the standing for 1904. The decrease in each field is shown by an asterisk.
- By "total laborers" in column 20 is meant the number of persons employed in the conference or mission field, including not only the four classes named, but all other persons not specified.
- Former reports have given separate amounts received from annual offerings, First-day offerings, and miscellaneous offerings, to foreign missions. In this report all amounts received from these three sources are included in column 34, showing total offerings to missions, except the amount received from Sabbath-schools, which is reported separately in column 36.
- In column 37 are shown, for the first time in this report, the amounts contributed for special lines of home mission work, such as for orphanages, religious liberty work, work for certain classes (as the colored people in the Southern field), or for any special line of work where the funds are sent outside the local church, but not into a foreign mission field.
- Column 38, also a new column, in which is indicated the contributions for local church work, such as distribution of literature, assisting needy poor, church expenses, and all money collected in local churches and expended in local missionary work or enterprises. Like the preceding column, the returns, as will be noted from Table No. 1, are incomplete, and being reported here for the first time, the comparisons with 1904 are not given.

7. The division of territory between the South Russian Conference and the Middle Russian and North Russian missions, depends upon the language spoken, and not according to territorial lines.

8. Under General Conference are included those engaged in general labor, as well as the amount of tithes and offerings not accounted for elsewhere in this report. During 1905 the General Conference received on the $100,000 fund, $63,524.58, of which it is estimated that $50,000 was paid by individuals direct to the General Conference, and hence the latter amount is given here, because it is not reported by local conferences.

9. The four quarterly reports which the Sabbath-school Department has published for 1905 show $69,421.95 as total Sabbath-school contributions, and $48,972.42 as donations to missions. This annual report shows $68,613.71 and $49,894.97, respectively. The difference is partly because of a difference in the time of making out the reports. The annual report is intended to give only the amount received up to December 31. In making up the quarterly reports it frequently occurs that they are held for some time to include all that may be reported as belonging to that quarter. Another point which has a bearing on this apparent discrepancy is the fact that the quarterly reports which the Sabbath-school Department publishes, contain reports from foreign fields one quarter behind those in the United States; hence as the time of the two reports does not agree, the amounts can not be expected to agree.

Foot-notes for Table No. 2

- Estimated conservatively.
- By the term "mission" is meant a local field not yet organized into a conference, whether in the United States or elsewhere.
- In the column showing total laborers are included all persons specified in preceding columns, as well as all other laborers not thus specified.
- Beginning with 1900 the report shows the number of Sabbath-keepers, as well as the church-membership. The difference is made up of members of companies and isolated believers. From this point the tithe per capita is based on the Sabbath-keepers.
- From 1874 to 1888 the offerings to missions is estimated. It is believed that this is done on a conservative basis. The term "missions" here does not necessarily mean foreign missions, although 1874 is the year when such work was entered upon by the denomination. The figures in this column include money from all sources, aside from tithes, used for evangelistic work in mission fields.

If additional evidence were needed to show the wisdom of more thoroughly organizing the work throughout the world, as was counseled by the spirit of prophecy at the 1901 session of the General Conference, it is abundantly furnished in the foregoing report, which indicates that the progress of the work since 1901 has been at a very much more rapid and substantial rate than ever before in its history. Truly this cause is now moving forward with an impetus never before manifested, because the time has come to finish the work.
