Obedience

By WAYNE N. ANDREWS, Assistant Professor of Speech
Atlantic Union College

Few words in the English language should have more delightful connotations than the two related words, "obedience" and "discipline." But as is true of so many of the good things in life, whether events, objects, or ideas, these words have become perverted down through the years. To many people today, the very mention of either one of them causes a shudder of either apprehension or disgust.

Discipline is the noun formed to denote, as an abstract idea, those qualities found in one who is recognized as the disciple of another. It would, of course, be impossible to find discipline as an object, pick it up, and pack it for shipment to a friend whom we feel might be sadly in need of it. How easy life would be if this could be done! But discipline is an abstraction as truly as is love or democracy, or any idea of which man has thought. But, be it an abstraction or an object, there are certain acts or events which man recognizes as comprehending what we think of as discipline.

A disciple is a different sort of thing. Here is an object, a person whose activities are such that we can point to him, and label him definitely, "disciple." He is one who follows another person, usually superior to himself in some respects at least. Most disciples have been followers of the great thinkers of mankind, and the superiority has normally been seen in matters of intellect or character, or both. This concept of "disciple" takes for granted the qualities of leadership found in the one followed. It would be difficult to have "fellowship" unless the followers had an adequate leader. Any effort to understand the implications of discipline must recognize this inherent assumption. A good disciple must have a good leader. Following a good leader is not difficult. As one follows this leader, it is axiomatic that he obeys. Therefore, obedience is the flowering of discipleship.

We have said that the true disciple obeys. Any difficulty noticed here must be looked for in delineating the true disciple. How can a person become a disciple? The first step must be found in an appreciation of the worth of the leader. In man's groping to find a path that will lead to the stars of his idealism—and who can take time to think about man and his place in this world and perhaps in the universe without forming ideals—first place must be given to an adequate leader. He must be one who is the embodiment of all of the highest ideals of which man can think, and who stretches beyond this to challenge man to exceeding his own ideals. In man's thinking of his "place in the sun," nothing can occupy a more central place than the worth of the leader he chooses to follow.

In the disciple's appreciation of the worth of his leader, there must also come a recognition of the values to be found in following the path taken by the leader. This path may be one of actual activities and events in life, or it may be that of forming a character like that of the leader. It would be difficult to draw a very distinct line between formation of character and the outward expression of that character in the activities of the life. The path marked out must obviously lead to the fulfillment of those ideals and character traits which first caught the attention. If the goal is to become like the leader, one can scarcely question the necessity and desirability of following the path marked out.

All that has been said finds its most meaningful expression in man's concept of God. Cumbered as man is with the weakness of humanity, his concept of God no doubt rests rather firmly in the person of Jesus Christ, who, incarnated in human flesh, became as one of us. In His matchless life, in the character which has been the inspiration of artist, musician and poet down through the centuries, man has found a worthy leader. No wonder Paul exhorted the Hebrews to look unto Jesus "the author and finisher" of faith. Another translation refers to Christ as the "pioneer and perfecter" of faith. He is worthy of our most ardent discipleship.

An acceptance of this concept of discipline and obedience will be an aid in resolving one of the chief complaints of those who have a perverted picture of these two so necessary abstractions. It must have been a recognition of this complaint that led John to assure the church that "His commandments are not grievous." The uninitiated, he who is thrown unprepared into a consideration of the requirements of the Christian life without first developing an appreciation of the leader, will no doubt feel that there are prohibitions and requirements that would be a most grievous burden. Here the danger of either presenting the requirements of God or accepting them from a purely legalistic viewpoint is likely to lead to disaster. This is a most practical problem for many people, and can be resolved only through the very first step in the worship of the true God—an appreciation of who and what He is.

The recognition of the values found in following the will of God, implicit faith in His commands as the road to the realization of the highest ideals to which the soul of man can aspire, can scarcely result in any other attitude than one of joy in being able to obey Him. The recognition of the art of following must include the yielding of the will to the leader. If any man can do what He wills to do, and it is practically impossible to do anything else, he will find happiness. Control of the will by Christ, then, results in a happy obedience. Therefore, as a first step in living an obedient Christian life, once the leader has been accepted, the surrender of the will is all-important.

But Christianity has another attraction beyond the mere advantage of a perfect leader. Not only can man become a follower and offer obedience, but he is offered sonship. The prospect of following a leader who is willing to take him into the family is an enticement it would be difficult to resist. What a privilege to recognize with John that "now are we the sons of God." Let us therefore joyfully accept the place of a disciple, happy in the privilege of following and obeying Him.

Ingathering Pays Off

There came to my desk recently the following information from Carrol N. Cross of Taunton, Massachusetts. I will let him tell the story.

This past summer I had a strong conviction to solicit donations from business acquaintances and concerns from whom my company purchases.

Personal letters on the outside of envelopes containing our Ingathering magazines brought in nearly $500 as well as an electric water cooler for the church from distant Pennsylvania.

One donation for $200 from an Illinois business acquaintance of 30 years, was followed with a personal solicitation at a recent trade show. With no previous knowledge of our educational work, the Lord impressed this man to pledge $10,000 over four years, with two checks totaling $2,500 already paid. Pioneer Valley Academy will receive $2,500.

For many years this business man has seen our exhibit room, directly across from his, closed on Sabbaths. Surely the Lord can influence many other sizable donations if we will only mention the educational program to those we know who have confidence in what we stand for even though they may know little of our schools.

This ought to bring inspiration to every one who goes out Ingathering. We never know what will be accomplished in souls saved and funds received for the finishing of our work. Our congratulations to Mr. Cross for his willingness to follow up these contacts. If he had not made the original contacts, he would never have been inspired to follow through for the larger offering.

More and more, let us make Ingathering a follow-up program and accomplish more for the finishing of God's work. W. J. HACKETT, President Atlantic Union Conference

Cancer—Science and the Spirit of Prophecy

Medical science is coming closer and closer to the answer to the question—What causes cancer? At any moment a major discovery could speed us years ahead in conquering this dread scourge.

The most interesting part of this whole story, as it unfolds, is how it corroborates again and again the Spirit of Prophecy.

Note this statement—the first one on cancer that came from Mrs. Ellen G. White's pen. It is found in an article called "An Appeal to Mothers," page 18, written in the year 1864. Writing regarding the wrong habits of youth, particularly young ladies, she says, "Cancerous humor, which would lie dormant in the system their life-time, is inflamed, and commences its eating, destructive work."

Note especially the words "lie dormant in the system their life-time," and note the date, 1864.

Here is what Dr. W. M. Stanley, head of the virus laboratory at the University of California, says: "It is known that viruses can lurk in the human body for years, even a lifetime. . . . In some cases. . . the cancer viruses might become active, through circumstances such as aging, dietary indiscretions, hormonal imbalance, chemicals, radiation, or a combination of these stresses. . . ."

Note this—Dr. Stanley mentions lying dormant a lifetime. This is most significant since Dr. Stanley is a Nobel Prize winner.

Is it not wonderful to see great men of science confirming the sure word of prophecy before our very eyes! This new year let us read and study this heaven-sent counsel more!

Annual Meeting for Dietetic Association

The Seventh-day Adventist Dietetic Association's sixth annual meeting was held at Andrews University, October 13 - 16, 1960.

Twenty-four delegates from the four corners of the United States as well as Canada represented seventeen Adventist institutions.

The week-end meetings included inspirational talks, reports on work accomplished during the past year, and future plans.

One of the outstanding accomplishments of the past year was the publishing of the book, "Everyday Nutrition for your Family," containing 152 pages, and 24 chapters. It is full of common sense, practical advice for menu planning for all the family, and is being distributed by the association.

One of the projects for the coming year is the establishment of a cooks' and bakers' training course which will begin in 1961.

Paul Damazo, president of the association, reported that the shortage of trained personnel in the field is still acute and it would take nearly two hundred dietitians to meet the needs in the field. He also mentioned openings for fifteen dietitians overseas.

The association has considerable career guidance material which is available upon request, also information concerning nutrition education. Write to:

Soul Winner of the Sidewalks

From such heights as the top of the Empire State Building to such depths as a submarine, Pauline Goddard, literature evangelist, wins souls to the church in many cities of the United States selling Listen magazine and other literature on the sidewalks of our nation.

Standing atop the Empire State Building a short time ago, Pauline presented her magazines to a potential customer. The man shook his head. He spoke only Spanish. So Pauline presented her canvas for Espanol, and the man made a purchase. In Washington, D.C., she recently went aboard a docked submarine and sold her magazines to several of the underseas personnel.

My initial interview with Pauline was in Miami. We stood there on the sidewalk, Pauline telling about her work, then darting off to present her magazines to a passer-by. Watching her, I noted that whether or not she sold, she always managed to leave an invitation for the prospect to join a Bible correspondence course.

A little hazel-eyed brunette of thirty-one, who looks twenty-one, Pauline works afternoons and evenings, selling her magazines into the lonely hours of the night and sometimes early morning "to reap souls," she says. "Also I can contact many people on the streets who might not be reached in any other way," she explains.

Pauline's success is reflected, not only in her annual average of at least $6,000 in sales, but also in the many persons she has won to the church.

Recently, while selling in Key West, Florida, she met a serviceman who had a drinking problem. The young man's wife had divorced him because of his drinking. After talking with him, Pauline left a copy of Listen. The next time she saw him was on a bus she was taking to Youth Congress in Atlantic City. The serviceman told her that Listen had helped him to quit drinking.

I asked her, "Why do the fellows start drinking and smoking in the service?"

"Pressure from their buddies is a big factor," she answered.

I asked Pauline whether or not she gets lonely working on the streets late at night. (Her husband Bob is away much of the time traveling by ship for an oil firm.) "I have no time to get lonely," she said. "I'm busy working, writing up my experiences, and traveling, that at night when I get home I'm so tired I just fall into bed."

On a recent trip Pauline unsuccessfully presented her magazines to a young Navy serviceman. The young man told her he drank because he was lonely. Later when she was ready to quit, he came back to tell her he was going to stop drinking. She had prayer with him on the street and he thanked her for it. Pauline left him temperance literature and Steps to Christ, and enrolled him in a Bible correspondence course. Recently, at the young man's request, the local pastor visited him.

She tells of a reformed alcoholic who had recently purchased a copy of Listen. He asked, "Why isn't this wonderful journal circulated more?" He enrolled in a Bible correspondence course and donated an organ to one of our churches.

Pauline's work takes her to the stars. She has given literature to many cele-

Church Activities in Rochester

November 12 to 19 was a week of special prayer and Scripture study for the members of the Rochester churches as they participated in the annual Week of Prayer. Services were held at 7:30 p.m. on Monday and Friday nights at Browning church and on Wednesday and Sunday at Genesee Park church, with six district meetings at various homes of members in the Rochester district. Pastor Taylor, associate pastor Schermerhorn, and laymen led out each night in the different localities.

The Browning Memorial Seventh-day Adventist church held their final social Investment program of the year, November 12, with Galer Wright, Investment secretary, in charge. In addition to color slides taken by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Hurlbert and Mr. and Mrs. Gus Ulrich, the members enjoyed games and marches. At the close of the program a freewill offering was taken to swell the Investment offerings already received.

The ladies' Friendship Circle of the Rochester churches has been active in preparing and distributing Thanksgiving baskets for the needy.

A potluck and benefit program for the Culver school was held Saturday night, November 19. After the pupils presented a variety program a freewill offering was taken, the proceeds to be used for new desks.

Dedication of Saranac Lake Church

October 1, 1960, was a blessed day of rejoicing for the members of this little company in the heart of the Adirondack mountains, when their church was dedicated to the Lord free of debt.

This company dates back to July 4, 1886, when George Stevens was baptized by F. H. DeVinney and Harry Bristol who were holding evangelistic meetings in Saranac Lake. Two years later his wife, the former Emma Eells was baptized. In 1899 George Steven's mother, his two sisters, Minnie and Floy; his sister-in-law, Louise Stevens, and Flossie and Minnie Kelley were baptized.

On June 10, 1900, eleven more believers were baptized and on November 10, 1902, these nineteen members took their letters from the Keene, New York, church and the Saranac Lake church was organized.

Ministerial help was scarce in those early years when transportation was difficult, but new roads brought increased help and eventually the Adirondack district was organized. A number of pastors, well known in the Atlantic Union, directed the work in these churches, the last three under the leadership of the writer.

Alterations and repairs were made from time to time on the little church on Lake Flower Avenue until September, 1959, when this property was exchanged for a more suitable location in the church area of town.

During the past year more than $500 in cash, $300 worth of donated material and $800 worth of donated labor have been put into this property.

The present church has a neat auditorium with baptistry, classrooms for the Sabbath school, and an apartment for the new pastor and his family. God has truly worked a miracle as the members have faithfully sacrificed to make this church home possible.

R. W. Moore, conference president, led out in the dedicatory service, assisted by R. C. Mills, conference treasurer. The Union Springs Academy Watchman quartet brought the special music.

During the services Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gadway were brought into our fellowship through baptism, and little Sherie Gadway, daughter of Donald and Barbara Gadway, was dedicated.

Praise goes to a loving, heavenly Father for His rich blessings. The new pastor, W. E. Schlunt, and the members of the Saranac Lake, New York, church, solicit your prayers and invite you to visit them among the mountains of Saranac Lake. The address is:

Christmas Pageant

The Seventh-day Adventist New York Community Service Society will present the fifth benefit performance of the "Birth of a King," a musical-dramatic pageant at Hunter College Assembly Hall, 68th Street, between Park and Lexington Avenues.

Subscription rates are:

Adults $1.25 At the door $1.50
Children .50 At the door .75

I am sure that when you have read the following article by Alfred Holliday, Jr., director of the pageant, you will discover that this is one project during the Christmas season that you will want to attend and support.

In June of this year I was an associate delegate from the Northeastern Conference to the North American Youth Congress of Seventh-day Adventists held in Atlantic City, New Jersey. At this congress our young people were greatly moved by the words of our General Conference President, R. R. Figuhr, who explained to us our reason for attending the youth congress: "For inspiration, to catch a vision, and to dedicate ourselves to the vision which has come to us." I feel certain that thousands of delegates returned home highly inspired and with determination to fulfill the vision which had come to them.

The youth of the Ephesus church have also gained a vision, one of great magnitude, but one that cannot be fulfilled however without personal consecration, much prayer, and close supervision by those whom God has called to lead out among us in these perilous times, those who, just five months ago, brought to Seventh-day Adventist youth a theme that should live as long as the dying world exists—a theme that Christian youth should make every human effort to keep aflame—"More Valor for Christ!"

Our plans for sustaining the inspiration received at the youth congress consists of a threefold evangelistic crusade to be undertaken next year between the months of April and September. The first phase will be a two-month, city-wide, outdoor crusade—with sound-equipped vehicles, singing bands, lay-preachers, tract distribution, house-to-house visitation, etc. The second phase will be a two-month series of "cottage meetings" in our church basement—lectures, Bible studies, book distribution, health classes, etc. The third and final phase will be the conducting of a two-month laymen's tent effort somewhere in the heart of our community.

Obviously, a youth evangelistic crusade of this nature will require heavy financing. To meet our needs we have chosen this coming Christmas season, when most people are seeking a spiritual uplift, to present to the public a pageant depicting the nativity. The pageant is called "Birth of a King," presented four times previously in our community, but this year it will be given at Hunter College, 68th Street, between Park and Lexington Avenues, on Tuesday, December 20. It has a cast of almost one hundred, composed of the George Frederick Handel Philharmonic Orchestra, two choirs, a large number of dramatic players, and other competent musicians. The theme of the pageant is "More Valor for Christ."

Publicity for the pageant has been circulated to radio stations, newspapers, Hunter College, Y.W.C.A., VA Hospital, SDA New York Center, Protestant churches, etc. For this reason we expect an overflow audience in the auditorium of Hunter College.

Tickets to this program are available at the Northeastern Conference MV Department. Please call AU 6-0233-4-5 for reservations.

Amsterdam News Home Service Show

The Northeastern Conference participated in the Amsterdam News Home Service Show for the first time this year and it proved to be quite successful. This Home Service Show is held annually in the Fifth Avenue Armory on 142nd Street. Over 100,000 persons were in attendance to this three-day affair. The conference sponsored three booths. One booth was occupied by the Book and Bible House, the second by Worthington and Battle Creek Foods, and the third by the American Temperance Society.

The Book and Bible House booth

In the Book and Bible House booth there was a beautiful display of the ten-volume set of the Bible Stories and there was a free drawing for a set of these. Approximately twenty-five hundred individuals signed for these books over the three days. Colporteurs have been following up these interests and they have been able to put truth-filled

New Workers in the Field

It is often said that workers coming and going just about make it clear that we belong to a movement. This is so.

To replace Harold E. Voorhees, the conference committee voted to call Marcus E. Payne of the Central California Conference to take over the home missionary, Sabbath school and ASI work in our conference. Elder and Mrs. Payne and their three children, Ruth, Philip, and Mark, are now located in Portland. Our brother has taken over his duties most enthusiastically and is giving good leadership.

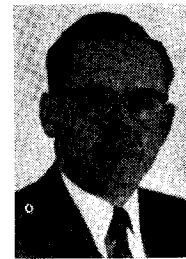

M. E. Payne

Elder Payne graduated from Shenandoah Valley Academy in 1942, and from Union College in 1946. He has served as pastor and evangelist in the Nebraska and Kansas conferences, and more recently at Porterville, California.

His good wife, the former Lenora Vonhof, is a graduate of Shenandoah Valley Academy and Washington Missionary College, also graduating from the Loma Linda School of Dietetics.

Wilford Burgess

To replace Arnold Swanson in the Norridgewock district, Wilford Burgess of Denver, Colorado, was invited to take up pastoral and evangelistic work. He and his good wife, the former Audrey Land, are already in the field. They have one son, Donald, age 13.

Elder Burgess graduated from the academy in Lincoln, Nebraska, also from Union College. He has labored in both Texico and Kentucky-Tennessee conferences as pastor-evangelist.

Mrs. Burgess is a product of Oak Park Academy, Iowa. She also took nurses' training, and graduated from the Porter Sanitarium, Colorado, with her R.N.

The conference is glad to have both families in our midst. We feel that they will do much to spread the message of truth, and to help finish the work in all the world.

How to Make Christmas Whorthwhile and Meaningful

Approximately five thousand dime banks have been distributed throughout our churches in the interest of PVA. If all of these could be filled with dimes, a total of $25,000 would be given as a Christmas gift for the building fund of our new school. These banks are only a suggestive amount. Many could give more than this but if we want to make Christmas meaningful and worthwhile we should give nothing less than $5.00 per member for Christ this Christmas for PVA. Of course, this amount should be in excess of what we have been giving. If there would be a curtailment of buying needless things and if each of us would have the real spirit of Christmas we will honor Christ first by bringing a gift to Him. What better gift could we give than to make a liberal contribution for the new academy on Sabbath, December 24.

The servant of the Lord, Mrs. E. G. White, in writing on the subject many years ago said:

Satan's suggestions are carried out in many, many things. Our birthday anniversaries and Christmas and Thanksgiving festivals are too often devoted to selfish gratification, when the mind should be directed to the mercy and loving-kindness of God. God is displeased that His goodness, His constant care, His unceasing love, are not brought to mind on these anniversary occasions.

If all the money that is used extravagantly, for needless things, were placed in the treasury of God, we should see men and women and youth giving themselves to Jesus, and doing their part to co-operate with Christ and angels. The richest blessing of God would come into our churches, and many souls would be converted to the truth.—Review and Herald, December 23, 1890.

What is Your Score?

Have you paid a faithful tithe to God during this year which is soon to pass into eternity? If not, will you not repent, make restitution, and seek pardon before the books of heaven are closed for the year.

What of your stewardship? Have you during the past year robbed God in tithes and offerings? Look to your well filled barns, at your cellars stored with the good things the Lord has given you and ask yourselves whether you have returned to the Giver that which belongs to Him. If you have robbed the Lord, make restitution, as far as possible make the past right and then ask the Saviour to pardon you. Will you not return to the Lord His own before this year with its burden of record has passed into eternity.—Review and Herald, December 23, 1902.

Have you withheld tithe because in your opinion you felt that the affairs of the church or conference had not been managed to your satisfaction? A good answer to this question is found in Testimonies to the Church, volume IX, page 249:

Some have been dissatisfied and have said, "I will no longer pay my tithe; for I have no confidence in the way things are managed at the heart of the work." But will you rob God because you think the management of the work is not right? Make your complaint, plainly and openly, in the right spirit, to the proper ones. Send in your petitions for things to be adjusted and set in order; but do not withdraw from the work of God, and prove unfaithful, because others are not doing right.

As you answered these penetrating questions, how did you score? A far more important question is: How do

Colporteur Booth at Exposition

The Colporteur booth at the Eastern States Exposition was attractive this year and was featured under the heading "National Home and Health Education." During the Exposition, September 17-25, more than ten thousand pieces of literature were distributed. A good follow-up interest continues. The booth displayed "Bible Stories," "Bedtime Stories," "Children's Hour," and the "Home Study Library."

Horace Fatcher and Frederick Miller were in charge of the booth. They are pictured above. Others who assisted were Miss Myrtle Snow, Mrs. Horace Fatcher, Walter Shirtcliff, John Levakis, and Gerald St. Marie.

More than 195 people enrolled in the Faith for Today Bible correspondence course. A door prize was given out each evening to one of these enrollees.

you rate in God's sight? What does your record show for the past year? If there is need of making amends will you not quickly do so before the mantle of death has been pulled over the old year and the books in heaven are closed for 1960. Let each of us examine carefully our financial relationship to God. If we find that our records are out of balance in the heavenly ledger, let us take immediate steps to see that they are rectified. Let all back tithe be paid and all church pledges for the year be met. Let us be sure that all things are made right with God. Only then may we face the new year with confidence, courage, and hope.

that area where the church is located.

● Encouraging reports are coming in from the children of our church schools concerning the response to the PVA Christmas offering. Many of the children have already raised and exceeded their personal goals. The total goal for our church schools is $1,500 and we believe if the enthusiasm and activity continues this goal will be exceeded.

● The basic grade work at PVA is now completed. This has involved the moving of 15,000 cubic feet of earth, the installation of manholes, catch basins, and concrete drainage pipe. After the thaw next spring, the second phase will be undertaken which calls for the graveling of the campus roads, regrading and seeding the area.

● The Providence church school has black topped their playground which is a great improvement for the school.

"A good report maketh the bones fat."—Prov. 15:30.

This Ingathering report surely is that kind of a report and we rejoice with you in that which has been accomplished thus far in this campaign.

We salute the Greater New York Conference for the largest week's report and continue our commendation of last week to New York on keeping their lead thus far. Surely the Lord has given us wonderful Ingathering weather for our solicitations.

If every one will do his part the end will come quickly.

Keep up the good work and more and more churches will join those in the Vanguard class.

May the Lord continue to bless each one who has a part in securing these funds that are so much needed to promote and maintain the great work yet to be done before Jesus comes.
