

All Things?

By L. E. SMART, Educational and MV Secretary
Atlantic Union Conference

The young man sat on the edge of his chair, obviously he was ill-at-ease. His voice faltered a bit as he said, "I've done my best, I've worked hard, I've studied and now this—I can't understand why." Carefully laid plans for an education and a place in the work of the church had long been his goal and his ambition. Now, suddenly a death in the family apparently made it imperative that he abandon all these plans and go home to assume the responsibilities of holding the home that he had recently left together. There were several younger children and it did not seem advisable to sell the farm and use everything for the present care of the children and leave his mother without resources.

The text came to mind: "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose" (Rom. 8:28).

Were you ever tempted to question this text? Have you ever found it hard to understand? Now I am not suggesting that you have actually questioned the Word of God or to really doubt—but—

Probably all Christians would probably agree that some things work for good, but when it comes to all things—that is not so easy to understand.

To actually fully believe this statement we must come to the place in life's experiences where we are willing to include all life's experiences—the bitter and the better. We must learn to leave it to God to make the selection of experiences in the measure and proportions that are for the best of all. Those things which when taken alone are so trying, when mixed in with "all things," will be found to make up a harmonious whole that will work eventually, not only for our own good but for the best good of all.

There is a commentary on this text that contains a very excellent illustration. J. Stauffer, in his expansion of this text states that "most people like angel food cake, but only a few know all the ingredients which are essential to make one. It is not essential for us to know how angel food cake is made to enjoy one. However, it is essential for the cook to know how, and that the proper ingredients in their proper amounts are included." Stauffer then lists the seven ingredients of making such a cake and states that, "if each of these ingredients had to be eaten separately, they would not taste good. Who would enjoy eating raw eggs? or cream of tartar? or baking powder? or dry white flour? These are not intended to be eaten separately nor all mixed together in an unbaked state. All ingredients mixed together and baked are good."

While this is a rather homely illustration, it is nevertheless a very good one. If we can think of the varied experiences in life as being the ingredients which are required by God's formula or recipe for the production of a perfect character. Always remember that if one element is lacking or if the different in-redients are not well beaten and baked at a temperature high enough, the product is a total failure, or at least of inferior quality. So, in life, we must trust the Master Chief to mix, beat, and bake, recognizing that life must be considered in its entirety. Calling to mind the happy experiences of life, reliving the victories, and trusting in God, will lighten the burden of many of the difficult times.

The difficulty with most of us is that we want only pleasant experiences in our lives. We feel that God's blessings must be pleasurable, forgetting the scriptural point that true love often brings chastising. Too many of us depend too much on our feelings, and not enough on faith and reason. Trials are not welcome, but remember, it is through trial and tribulation that we are to eventually enter heaven and receive the reward of the righteous.

Before a sculptor takes up his tools to work on the marble he has in mind what the rough block of stone should become. When his plan for the finished product is complete he begins his cutting, his chiseling, and polishing. It is a hard and wearing process, but the finished product stands forth to receive the admiration of all when the hewing process is over. There is one vast difference between a block of marble and a human being. The stone has no life and no choice. Human beings can leave the workshop whenever they wish. God has given us the power of choice.

When I was a lad on the farm we used to cut vast piles of wood for heating the drafty old farmhouse and for keeping the cook stove in action. It was often necessary to grind the ax. Grinding an ax was a hard and tedious process for the ax had to be held to the grindstone, it had a tendency to slip off. How difficult it is for us to keep in place during the grinding processes that make up life. Yet, if we place ourselves in the hand of God, and yield ourselves completely to his direction, we will progress toward gleaming perfection. Let us not yield to the temptation to remove ourselves from the controlling hand of God, even though the pressure is heavy and the grinding difficult. Remember, "God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way of escape, that ye may be able to bear it" (I Cor. 10:13).

Vic Hilbert, Jr., who served as Faith for Today's quartet bass wishes his successor, Don Siebenlist, well as he steps into the place he vacated.

The switch transpired at Andrews University in Berrien Springs, Michigan, where Siebenlist and Hilbert exchanged student and professional roles. Hilbert left the quartet after two years of service in order to complete his work toward a bachelor of music education degree.

Siebenlist, a seminary student, was a very active member of the Collegians, the touring choir, and the Collegianaires, the male quartet.

Looking on are quartet members, Stan Schleenbaker, first tenor; Larry Fillingham, second tenor; and Herb Hohensee, baritone; and W. A. Fagal, speaker, standing between Don and Vic.

First programs featuring the new quartet will be released beginning, Sunday, April 8.

Sharing Our "Faith for Today"

A prime evangelistic target—metropolitan New York City, New Jersey, and the eastern section of upper New York State was spotlighted by conference leaders, ministers, and church missionary officers of the Greater New York and New Jersey conferences in a joint meeting held March 12 at the New York Center.

Meeting in the church's evangelistic center for New York City, the workers and laity reviewed with Faith for Today the initial stage of the project—a religious TV survey that involves religious radio as well. The survey will encompass 200,000 homes when completed. The poll will endeavor to ascertain the prevalence of the Bible in the average home in the areas surveyed. Questions will also point out the status of religious radio and television in the homes as well as the rating of specific religious programs. Another question on the data card will ascertain what spiritual resources people prefer as well as where they turn when distress and perplexity strikes.

Leading out in the triangular endeavor on the part of the two conferences and Faith for Today were K. Eckenroth, president of New Jersey Conference; H. E. Voorhees, home missionary secretary of Greater New York Conference; R. D. Steinke, home missionary secretary of New Jersey Conference; and L. C. Lee of Faith for Today. The entire organization of leaders, ministers, and laity dedicated themselves to this major evangelistic undertaking and earnestly sought divine direction.

Following the devotional given by Elder Lee of Faith for Today was a detailed outline of the religious survey which was slated to begin Sabbath, March 17, in all the churches of the two conferences. Due to a delay in getting the materials from the printers, it was necessary to defer the beginning of the home visitation until March 24. "Our objective is to reach the hearts of those who are searching for God's answers to the dilemmas of this climactic hour. At the same time the literature presented to those who are contacted will serve to also expand the viewing and listening audience of both Faith for Today and the Voice of Prophecy programs. Completion of the survey card by those contacted will result in enrollments in the Bible correspondence course and the provision of literature on the teachings of God's remnant church," stated Elder Eckenroth.

"The second major state of the evangelistic endeavor will be evangelistic efforts conducted by the ministers and church officers in all of the churches in both conferences," added Elder Voorhees, who also served as chairman of the meeting. All look forward to a rich harvest of precious souls among the great sea of humanity that is encompassed in these areas. A note of courage was sounded by R. D. Steinke who cited God's promise of success as dedicated effort is spent in giving His message to judgment-bound peoples.

The joint evangelistic planning session made a concerted plea for support by all of the members of the churches in the two conferences involved as well as an appeal that all might join in prayer to God for strength, divine direction and power.

Hempstead Church Library

Long Island, situated between Long Island Sound on the north and the Atlantic Ocean on the south, forms the 120-mile-long southeastern extremity of New York State. It is connected to the mainland by several bridges and tunnels across the East River. The island is subdivided into the four counties of Kings, Queens, Nassau, and Suffolk, the first two being part of New York City.

Nassau County with a population expected to reach 1,370,000 by the end of 1962 is a challenge to the Hempstead church to start a lending library to help spread the good news of the gospel to these people. We realize our need to meet God's requirement as found in II Timothy 2:15: "Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." We want our 170 members and friends to have access to the wealth of counsel given the church by its many gifted writers. We think of the mission field as being far away in foreign lands. But we are all in a mission field, for is there not a need for God's Word everywhere? We

Operation Fireside

This past fall the young people of the Spanish Brooklyn church organized themselves for the purpose of sharing their faith. The leaders of this group are Herminio Bruz, director, and Benjamin Ruiz, secretary. With the co-operation of Erving Santiago, MV leader for the church, the young people organized into groups of eighteen each and went to different homes. Six of these homes were those of Seventh-day Adventists and the other two homes were non-Adventist. The average attendance was approximately one hundred people during the period of visitation, with from thirty to thirty-five non-Adventists in attendance. Participants in Operation Fireside are pictured above. Leaders in the front are left, Herminio Cruz, director of the Operation Fireside, and Benjamin Ruiz, secretary.

Plans are being laid for follow-up work to continue the interest that was created from these studies. The Lord bless each of our young people for their participation in this project.

We talked about visiting Greece, our homeland. The lady told me that she had high hopes of going back. I didn't. I felt that my husband's job was not as good as her husband's, but the Lord would open the way if he wanted me to go. She still has not gone, but I did go. When I returned from Greece, she wanted to know how I was able to go. I told her that the Lord honors those who honor Him.

I have helped her with her housework because she is a sick woman. I refused payment for this work because I told her it was missionary work. Last year she gave me $130 for Ingathering. This year she had said she was going to buy a wall oven. I told her I would like to buy one, too. However, she reminded me that I could not afford it, but once again the Lord helped me, and our family bought a wall oven. When she came to visit us, she was surprised to see that I had one. She told me that she still could not buy one for they cost $1,000 or more.

This year she gave me $230 for Ingathering even though she had many repairs on her house. I told her that the Lord would be more pleased if she gave her heart to Him. And I told her to pray to God for help. Please pray for her.

Changes at Parkview Memorial Hospital

It is said "the easiest way to get a job done is to do it yourself." However, if one has too many details to consider, something is likely to go undone; so the personnel committee, at the request of the administrator, studied the problem created by the expansion program.

In the first place, Harry Clough, the administrator, had also been credit manager, purchasing agent, and personnel director. In order for him to devote time to detail drawings, public relations, and supervision of construction, some change in personnel responsibilities had to be made. After study was given to the problem, a general uprating has come about.

Lee Gimbel has accepted the responsibilities of assistant administrator and will be in charge of purchasing and personnel, in addition to accounting. He is well qualified for this promotion because of his nine years of experience in hospital work and his studies in business administration in which subject he has a B.S. degree.

To assist Mr. Gimbel in the book-keeping and accounting, Miss Marjorie Hall, who has also served the hospital well since its opening, will be relieved of her secretarial work for the administrator. This then leaves an opportunity for Miss Margaret Wilson's advance into the field of secretarial work. Miss Wilson has been employed by the hospital for over a year as telephone operator and admitting secretary.

Another change is in the credit or patients' business management. Morley Thomas, head X-ray technician at Parkview since its opening, has accepted this important work and will be relieved of some of the details in the X-ray department by a recent newcomer at Parkview, Miss Lorraine Turner, who recently trained at Jackson Memorial Hospital in Florida. Miss Turner is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Turner of Bath.

Because of increased business, it recently became necessary to add Miss Turner as a full-time X-ray technician and also Mrs. Nancy Lyon, who is the second full-time laboratory technician. Mrs. Lyon moved here from Barre, Vermont, upon her marriage to Joseph A. Lyon last November. Mr. Lyon is a second-class petty officer at the Brunswick Naval Air Station.

Survival Trees

[This is the first in a series of articles to enlighten our people who have shown an interest in our survival training experiment at Camp Lawroweld last summer.

Our objective in this three-year program is to seek to prepare our youth to survive during the coming time of trouble, emergencies or disasters.

Since some of this same material will be covered again, this summer, we trust that many youth will come to Camp Lawroweld.—S. A. Renzi, MV Secretary.]

Not knowing how well God through nature provides for us in the woods can lead to tragedy. A hunter lost in a snowstorm in the woods died after vainly trying to ignite a small pile of wet green twigs. Not fifty feet away stood a large, dry pine stub, with enough kindling and firewood to last a week!

The survival value of trees is extremely important; they provide fire, shelter, food, tools, utensils, and rope.

Did you know that . . .

- The ash is one of our finest firewoods, burning readily even when green?

- The inner bark of the elm may be used for rope?

- The maple has been called "the woodsman's pet wood"?

- The alder produces a quick fire, hot enough to curl a stove lid?

- The beech tree has never been known to be hit by lightning; the oak is hit most frequently?

- The wood of the poplar is lightweight, very easy to chop and split, and burns well with a clean, almost smokeless flame?

- The bark of the white birch provides our best tinder; it is waterproof?

- The seasoned bark of almost any soft wood that is stump-dried is good tinder, except that of the tamarack, which is nearly fireproof?

- Because softwoods are so prone to give off many sparks, they are not as safe for camp fires as are the hardwoods?

- An effective candle may be improvised from the knot of a dead pine tree?

- The first six inches of the tip of the fir balsam bough is best for an improvised camp bed?

- Green spruce roots when split are used for sewing and lashings; as they dry, they grow tighter?

The youth were taught the different fire woods and fire-lays and how to light a fire without matches.

Camp Lawroweld dates:

Twenty-fifth Anniversary at Fuller Memorial

The Fuller Memorial Sanitarium at South Attleboro, Massachusetts, celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary with a dinner and special program in the institution's recreation hall on Sunday, March 4.

Dr. L. A. Senseman, medical director, and 25-year veteran at the institution, acted as master of ceremonies. Allan Buller, vice-president of the Seventh-day Adventists Association of Self-Supporting Institutions, and general manager of Worthington Foods, Inc., Worthington, Ohio, was guest speaker.

Much progress was reported at the sanitarium over the past twenty-five years. The institution has developed from a 12-bed sanitarium with five employees and a $10,000 annual income to a 55-bed structure with eighty employees and an annual income in excess of $400,000.

Over the years, Dr. Senseman said that the sanitarium has treated 7,727 patients. The present medical staff is made up of five psychiatrists who are assisted in their work by local physicians.

Reports were presented by Dr. Edwin Dunlop, research director; George J. Gohde, administrator; Harold W. Wendell, auditor; Pauline A. Schell, superintendent of nurses, and Harold W. Knox, chaplain.

In the past two years, fourteen countries have been visited by Doctors Senseman and Dunlop as Fuller Memorial Sanitarium expands its horizons to a world-wide influence in the field of psychiatry.

Robert Walker, Mrs. Helen Place and Mrs. Betty Dunlop delighted the banquet guests with their musical selections and Russell Eva won the hearts of all with his moving poem "Fuller in Retrospect." The dinner was prepared in the kitchen of the sanitarium under the the direction of Chef Frank Howe.

Fifteen-year service pins were awarded to Dr. and Mrs. Oliver Lindberg and ten-year pins were given to Mrs. Ruth Walker and William Dunn, chief psychiatric social worker.

The employees turned the tables on Dr. Senseman when Administrator Gohde took over the program and presented an engraved silver serving dish to the director in appreciation of his inspiring leadership since the founding of Fuller Memorial Sanitarium.

Plans for expansion of the sanitarium are in the making. The Fuller Lodge which has provided a pleasant home for the elderly patients will soon be replaced by a 40-bed limited-care facility of modern construction.

As a conference we can be justly proud to have this self-supporting institution in our midst.

SLA Week of Prayer

The South Lancaster Academy spring Week of Prayer was held during the week of March 10-17. The academy was fortunate to have the King's Heralds Quartet and Del Delker conduct its chapel services.

In Monday's chapel Bob Edwards brought forth some pertinent thoughts on what hate will do to a person's life and how, through forgiveness, the wall that the bondage of hate built between God and his people may be torn down.

On Tuesday, John Thurber's talk on music and how he is looking forward to singing the Song of Moses and the Lamb with Christ as the heavenly choir director, was very inspirational.

Wednesday, Del Delker recounted to us the stirring story of her conversion. She expressed the hope that what she said would help the students to take their stand in God's true church and to experience the joys of winning souls to Christ as she has.

Thursday, Jerry Dill inspired the students with the importance of their responsibilities to those around them and to the church.

Wayne Hooper ended the academy chapel meetings on Friday afternoon. Using Philippians 1:6 as his key text, he compared the satisfaction of undertaking and finishing earthly projects to the glory that can be derived from beginning the heavenly.

On the week ends and in the evenings the academy joined with the college in their Week of Prayer meetings which were conducted by H. M. S. Richards. Both the students and the faculty members felt privileged and thankful for the blessings received from the members of the Voice of Prophecy.

New England Sanitarium
Health Education in Action

New England Sanitarium, regular programs have been given to teach the principals of our great health reform movement.

Among a series of health lectures given in 1958 was a panel discussion on "How to Stop Smoking." Whenever lectures were given, a nurse visited each patient explaining the type of program being given and invited each one to attend the lecture or to listen in on the public-address system.

In discussing this particular program, it was surprising to us to find the greater number of our patients were non-smokers and that many had decided to give it up entirely as a result of the smoking restrictions here. No doubt the lives of our non-smoking employees as well as the lectures were having greater influence in the community than we had realized.

This led us to make a study of the smoking habits of our patients to find how we might be more of a help to them and to determine the effect of the no-smoking restrictions on them while they were in the hospital.

The plan was to have personal interviews with as many patients as possible in all of the areas of the hospital. This included patients from the ages of 18 to 80 years.

We realized that this might be a delicate subject as most of those who smoke are held in the habit so firmly that they need our deepest sympathy rather than any condemnation. As it was customary for us to call on the patients regularly it was easy to make the usual call, discussing and helping them with any problem and casually bringing up the subject of smoking. Those who were smokers were asked how long they had smoked and to tell us frankly and truthfully how they were effected by our no-smoking restrictions. They were asked if at any time they had ever been advised by a physician to give up smoking, or if they themselves had ever made a real effort to discontinue the habit.

To those who had stopped smoking while in the hospital encouragement and help was given. Literature was given for other members of their family.

This study was carried on over a period of six months, from May to October, 1958.

Results was as follows:

- 449—Total patients interviewed.
- 180—Stated that they were smokers, 104 women (49 were maternity cases), 76 men.
- 24—Told us that they had given it up as a result of previous study at the hospital (11 women, 13 men).
- 243—Were non-smokers, 230 women (100 were maternity cases), 13 men. Only 38 of these were Seventh-day Adventists.

Report on 180 smokers interviewed:

- 32—Stated that the restrictions had been hard on them. Only one of these was upset over it and this was a case of myocardial deficiency.
- 41—Stated that they had made unsuccessful efforts to give up smoking previously.
- 40—Had been advised by physicians to discontinue smoking.
- 55—Stated a definite plan to discontinue smoking after leaving the hospital as a result of the start they made while here.

Several stated that they had been surprised at how much easier it had been to discontinue smoking while in the hospital than it had been at their homes. This was attributed to severe illness and to the lack of odor of tobacco. Non-smokers and smokers alike expressed their appreciation for the no-smoking restrictions. Many told of remarkable improvement of health that had come as a result of giving up smoking.

In the interviews we were told of other members of their families who had been able to discontinue smoking while at the New England Sanitarium and Hospital. One lady told us that her husband had been a patient for six weeks, eight years previously. He gave up his heavy-smoking habit. As a result seven members of their family did the same.

Does health education bring results? Multiply the results of this six-month study by the years of health education given at the New England Sanitarium and Hospital.

Recently a serviceman was called to do a repair job. While he was working it was noted that there was no odor of tobacco. Did he not smoke? He answered, "Madam, twenty-five years ago I came to your hospital for surgery. I had been a heavy smoker, even to smoking when I awakened in the night. I took my last smoke just before entering this hospital. I have not smoked since."

The Voice of Prophecy Conducts AUC Week of Prayer

The Atlantic Union College campus was recently blessed with the presence of H. M. S. Richards, the King's Heralds Quartet, Miss Del Delker, and Brad Braley. The Voice of Prophecy group conducted the annual spring Week of Prayer, March 9-17. Students and faculty looked forward with enthusiasm to morning and evening worship. Many of the village residents attended also and gained a rich blessing. Each meeting found Machlan Auditorium completely filled with students and visitors. Many parents and visitors were on campus both week ends and it was necessary to hold two church services each Sabbath to accommodate over 1,800 people.

Each meeting was opened with a song service led by Wayne Hooper. He gave a brief thumbnail sketch of the history of each song presented which helped all to have a better appreciation of our hymns. The song service was concluded with the singing of the theme song, "Christ Above All." The King's Heralds and Miss Delker, accompanied by Brad Braley on the organ, provided the special music before each talk.

Elder Richards' sermons were timely and interesting as well as most inspirational. He portrayed Christ and His love for us and the reality and joys of the dedicated Christian life. In his opening sermon, "Christ Is Wonderful," he told of Christ Himself, His birth, life, works, death, and second coming. His presentation of the love of God in all its fullness was the theme running through each talk. He presented the need of each one to cleanse the soul and appealed to all to make everything right with God for a growing Christian experience. Each heart thrilled anew with joy as the love of God was unfolded in each message brought through word and song. Drawing from his own personal experiences and wisdom, Elder Richards made the Christian way of life a very meaningful goal to strive for daily through Christ. As the week drew to a close, each individual present at the meetings felt the influence of the Holy Spirit speaking to each heart, and with renewed determination pledged a reconsecration of time and talent in service for Christ.

On Sabbath afternoon, March 17, the King's Heralds Quartet—composed of Bob Edwards, John Thurber, Wayne Hooper, and Jerry Dill — Miss Del Delker, and Brad Braley presented an all-request musical program to a very receptive, enthusiastic audience of well over a thousand people who filled not only Machlan Auditorium to capacity but also the student lounge where a loud speaker was placed to accommodate the overflow.

W. J. Hackett made an appeal to the audience to show their appreciation for this wonderful week in a tangible way, to which the people responded with a very generous offering for the wonderful work of the Voice of Prophecy group.
