Building Take-Overs

Class Disruptions

Campus Sit-Ins

Epithet Hurlings

Flaming Buildings

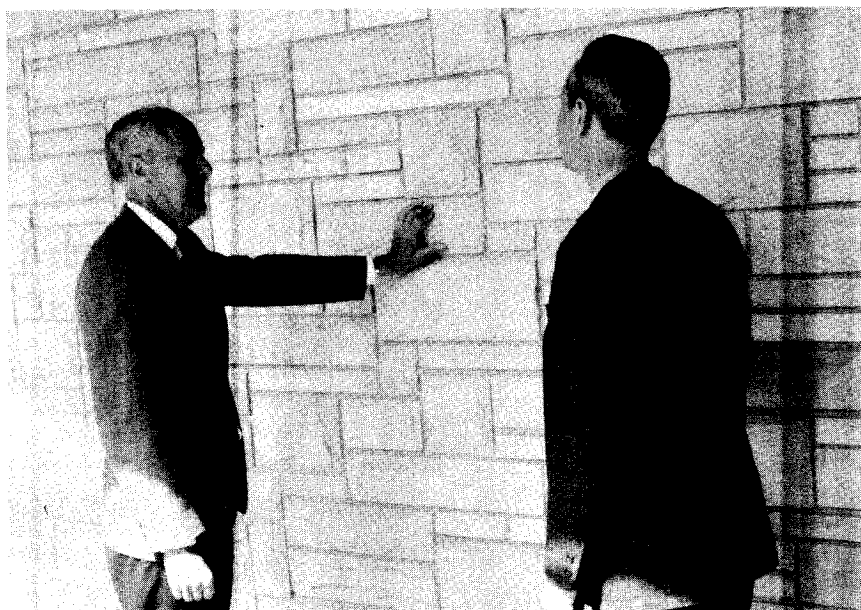

Are these the only campus happenings of interest to strife-torn America today? What is newsworthy?

The everyday happenings of a Christian college are more meaningful to the thoughtful observer than they are newsworthy to the casual reader. No newspaper headlines will be written about a peaceful campus. Nor will Time Magazine send a team to report on this kind of college.

At the same time, no one would be so presumptuous as to think that Atlantic Union College, or any college for that matter, has solved to complete satisfaction the problems and frustrations that can come from attempting to be relevant on the one hand, and on the other, holding firmly to the historic concepts of Adventist education.

So we boldly present on the next few pages news items from Atlantic Union College. Read them, Alumni, to see how the foundations of the past are contributing to the progress of the present. Prospective students, read them and note the multifaceted approach of a modern college as it helps a student select, prepare for, and enter his chosen field. Church members, read them and thank God that a college exists where the physical, mental, and spiritual still combine in harmony with the Divine plan for education.

Naturally, the total story cannot be told in these few pages. But you will find a sampling of Atlantic Union College as it is today.

Oscar Schmidt, librarian, describes the stonework on the front of the G. Eric Jones Library to Norman Roy. The stonework here, as throughout the new building, is Indiana limestone.

AUC Students - Activists for Christ

Jones Library On Schedule

Students will begin using the G. Eric Jones Library in January of next year, according to Oscar Schmidt, AUC's librarian. Mr. A. L. Sherman, construction superintendent, says that the building is continuing on schedule at this time, and unless something unforeseen happens to disrupt the schedule, it will be finished before Christmas.

The basement, or ground floor, will be ready by the time classes resume in September. This area will provide five classrooms, an audio-visual area, and new language laboratory facilities.

The main floor of the library is designated the service area. Mr. Schmidt pointed out that reference works, periodicals, the microreading area, the library technical services, and the Heritage Room will all be on the main floor. The Heritage Room is a special room which will house and display books and other material related to the Adventist New England heritage.

"Individual study carrels, the bulk of the stacks, several conference rooms, faculty study rooms, and some reading areas with multiple seating will be on the second floor," says Mr. Schmidt, who has worked closely with the architect and library consultant on the plans for the new building.

When the building opens in January, it will mark the completion of the first phase of a three-phase 15-year total completion schedule. In about ten years, the library will take over the ground floor, and at the end of fifteen years the library will have reached its capacity of 125,000 volumes. The building has been designed in such a way that physical expansion will be no problem.

"AUC students are activists for Christ," according to Elder A. V. Wallenkampf, chairman of the College Theology and Religion Department. "And it is not just the theology and religion majors who are active. Students in general seem to want to become involved in something which gives their life meaning. Our students are eager to be of service to men and thus serve Christ."

"Youth Impact" was one such faith-sharing activity. Under the sponsorship of the College MV Society, students joined forces with Pastor David Guldhammer of the Fitchburg, Massachusetts, church in a ten-night series beamed at the high school and college youth of the area, which includes Fitchburg State College. Ten theology majors were the featured speakers, with other college students providing music, ushering, and follow-up work.

The "Boston Project" is another such endeavor. The object of this project is to give AUC students the opportunity to meet other college students and witness to the love of God. Many of these students—from Northeastern University, Boston University, and other colleges in Boston's Back Bay area—have abandoned their faith in God. One outgrowth of these contacts is the development of a youth center in the Boston Temple. Don

Philpott, AUC's student leader for the project, looks at it this way: "It is a real thrill to join a small group of students and begin a religious discussion with them. Most want to talk about their beliefs, or lack of beliefs, and the experience is challenging and exciting."

SPRAY continues to be one of the most popular efforts on campus. Gordon Pifher, last year's leader of the group, explains: "It started two years ago with the children from the Clinton low-rent housing project. Now we have about 60 children with counsellors for every two children. When we see their homes and the great need of these children to have someone really love them, we cannot help but respond. This means giving several hours every week to our children, but the rewards are worth the efforts. Last fall the people of Lancaster requested us to expand and begin SPRAY for their children. So now we have two separate organizations doing the same work, one for Clinton children and the other for Lancaster children."

According to Elder Wallenkampf, in nearly every case, it is the theology and religion majors who have organized and pushed these kinds of faith-sharing activities.

Fourth Nursing Class To Graduate

Atlantic Union College's Associate Degree Nursing Program began in the fall of 1964, with its first class graduating two years later. Ninety nurses have graduated in the three classes with another 29 to be graduated in August. The Division of Nursing does not have information on all its graduates' whereabouts, but AUC nurses are currently practicing in at least 11 states, and 16 are studying for their B.S. in nursing at six colleges.

AUC's Nursing Program was the first Seventh-day Adventist college Associate in Science Degree Program to be accredited with the National League of Nurses, and also one of the first in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to win this accreditation.

PROGRAM II: Not For Everyone

Program II, an alternative approach to the traditional core curriculum, will begin its third year in September. The core curriculum consists of courses which everyone takes—Freshman composition, a prescribed number of courses in history, religion, philosophy, and natural science.

Program II includes both conventional and unique interdisciplinary courses, but the big difference is in the way they are taught: each student is on his own to a greater degree, the courses are graded simply S or U since each student competes only with himself, and there is a greater emphasis on individual expression—both verbal and written.

Alan Davies, a freshman, has this to say about it: "Program II is a challenge and an opportunity for a learning experience. It brings together a chance for creativity as you begin to 'understand' from personal reading, and then to write, as you react and record. Discussions, that replace to some extent the old lecture method of teaching, give you a chance to express yourself freely and have your ideas criticized constructively. I'm thankful for the opportunity Program II has given me to work on my own, while learning with others in a perspective of valuable ideas."

"This kind of program is not for everyone," concedes Dr. John Christian, chairman of AUC's History Department and co-ordinator of Program II. "Its appeal is to the person who can push himself; who does not need the traditional competition to do his best. The reward for the student comes when he realizes that it can be exciting and stimulating to discover ideas and then pursue them for their own sake, rather than for a grade. It seems to us in Program II that this approach is nearer the ideal than traditional classroom lecture, assignment, quiz routine."

Thirty freshmen are admitted into Program II each year. Students must apply for Program II after they have been accepted into college. Usually the Program II class is filled during June and July.

Flight Training: Popular and Practical

David Greenlaw, a sophomore religion major from Maine, is congratulated by Lyle Kelstrom, a junior at AUC and one of the instructors in the Flying Club, after he has successfully soloed. Dave, like many student pilots, would like to eventually become a mission pilot.

Since the college Flying Club was organized in 1966, nearly 70 students have worked toward their private pilot license. Several have received their commercial licenses and Lyle, his instructor's rating.

Presently there are 35 members in the club, flying 1,000 hours per year in two aircraft, a Cessna 150 basic trainer and a Cessna 172, used for instrument and cross-country flying.

The college offers a ground school, taught by R. A. Pelley, which gives two hours college credit in flight theory. This course is valuable to anyone looking forward to taking the F.A.A. examination for the Private Pilot License.

AUC Sends Four Missionaries

Four students will be representing the college as student missionaries this summer. One of them will remain at his overseas post for a year. According to John Wood, Student Association president, this is the largest number that the Student Association has sent out and the first time that an AUC student missionary will work for an entire year.

John Lornitz is scheduled to work in the Antillian Union, assisting in MV Camps and evangelism. Milton Fish will become a crew member of the mission launch "Northern Light," as it plies the inland waterways between Vancouver, Canada, and points north in Alaska. Harold Camacho will teach English at the Pucallpa Mission School in South America. Kenneth Greenman will work for a year at Chuquicamata in the North Chile Mission, as a minister for the English-speaking people of that area. All four of these men are juniors majoring in theology or religion.

Student missionaries are chosen by a committee of students and faculty members, from a list of students who indicate that they would like to be appointed to overseas work for the summer. The program is self-supporting, with funds coming from the Student Association, from contributions by students and staff members, and from offerings by church members where the student missionaries have presented their programs.

Since its beginning in 1962, ten students have represented AUC in the mission fields. William Brannon was the first student missionary from AUC, working among the Navajo Indians in Utah and Arizona. Since then, Bradley Nelson, John Alfke, William Fagal, Jr., Mark Finley, Steve Farley, Elaine Nyirady-Kelley, Charles Eusey, Gordon Pifher, and Geneva Simons have worked in mission fields as close as Mexico and as far distant as Iran and Indonesia.

Festival Features Guests and Collegians

The Festival of the Fine Arts this year included the Art, Music, and English departments in an expanded calendar of programs which included sculpture and drawing exhibits, guest lecturers, student recitals, The Elijah by Mendelssohn, programs by college vocal and instrumental ensembles, and two plays: Galileo and the Miracle

A New Major: Behavioral Science

To meet a growing demand for professional personnel in counselling, clinical psychology, student residence hall management and related fields of social work, Atlantic Union College has announced a new major in behavioral science.

"The major allows the student a choice of emphasis in psychology, sociology, or social work," according to Department Chairman A. W. Millard, "with adequate undergraduate preparation for those looking to an advanced degree program."

Plans are underway to provide direct field work to supplement the study program for those looking to a profession of social work, according to Millard.

Worker, both produced by the Student Association. The festival began April 17 and ended with a student art exhibit May 8-14.

Featured as part of the Art Department's contribution to the festival were the expressionistic works of Lloyd Lillie, a sculptor, and the abstract line drawings of Dr. Paul Rotterdam.

Mr. Lillie currently teaches art at Boston University while Dr. Rotterdam teaches three-dimensional design at the Carpenter Center for the Visual Arts at Harvard University. Both men presented lectures as part of the Fine Arts Festival.

Two outstanding features of the festival were The Elijah and a program featuring members of the New England Conservatory Orchestra directed by Masahiro Okubo, an alumnus of AUC.

The Elijah, written by Mendelssohn, was sung by the Community Chorus, an 80-voice choir directed by N. J. Roy, chairman of AUC's Music Department. Soloists were William Fagal, Jr., choral director from Pioneer Valley Academy; college students, Reynir Gudmundsson and Ralph Dawkins; Patricia Watts and Lourdes Morales instructors at AUC; and Sandra Roy, a student at South Lancaster Academy.

Choral Fantasy, by Beethoven, was part of a program given in Machlan Auditorium for a standing-room-only crowd. This program featured members of the New England Conservatory Orchestra, conducted by Masahiro Okubo, Georgeann Peterson, guest pianist, and the Aeolians and Lancastrian Chorale, choral groups of the college.

The plays, Galileo and the Miracle Worker, were produced by the Student Association and performed as part of the S.A.'s Encounter series and the festival. Dr. Otilie Stafford and Mr. Alvin McLean of the English Department assisted the students in the production of these plays.

Other features of the festival included recitals by Mr. David Worth, organ; Miss Patricia Watts, vocal; and Dr. Margarita Merriman, piano, of the Music Department staff. Art major David Post's senior exhibit featured paintings, drawings, photographs, ceramics, and sculpture, all of which had their basis in natural structures.

A unique feature of the festival was the worship service on Sabbath, April 26. In a setting which included abstract visual aids, speech choirs, the Aeolians, several narrators, and the congregation participating as a narrator, the creative nature of God and man was explored.

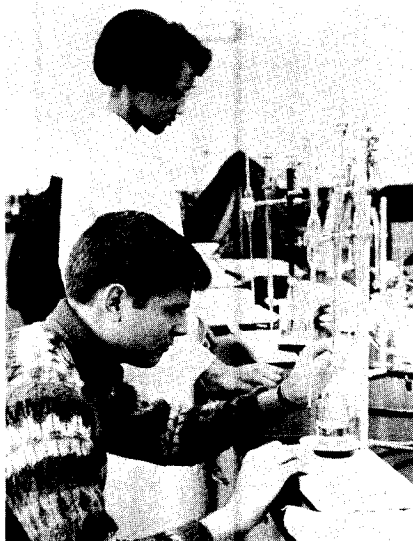

The Festival of the Fine Arts is a traditional springtime feature at Atlantic Union College.

Science Teaching Essential to Church

"The medical ministry is the right arm of the Seventh-day Adventist message that opens many doors," says Dr. Warren Murdoch, chairman of AUC's Division of Biology and Chemistry. "These doors are not opened to merely let the arm through, but to let the whole body through. And an armless body would have difficulty opening the door."

One of the basic reasons for developing first-class Science departments on an Adventist college campus is to help prepare undergraduates for medical, dental, and paramedical professions.

Recent word from the office of the dean of admissions at Loma Linda

University seems to indicate that AUC students are well prepared for their studies in medicine and dentistry. Three of the six AUC freshmen at Loma Linda, Douglas Bechard, Elber

Camacho, and John Cutts were near the top of their classes; and a fourth, Russell Clapp, was at the top when the first semester ended. No data on their second semester work is available at this time.

AUC's Science departments are dedicated to the continuation of this kind of preparation. "Since the Seventh-day Adventist church is committed to the gospel commission, the church needs students trained for this commitment," says Dr. Murdoch. "This commission is carried out principally by ministers, medical workers, teachers, and laymen. The service performed by medical workers is based upon professional training built upon the foundation of quality instruction in chemistry and biology. Since the medical work is based upon science instruction and since the medical work is such a vital and important part of the church, science instruction is a vital part of the activity of Atlantic Union College."

Counselling Center Keeps Doors Open

As of May 1, 1969, the Counselling and Testing Center has conducted 1,641 interviews with 663 students. More than half of the interviews have been related to occupational planning, with the remainder involving personal social problems, spiritual counselling, educational planning, and study habits. According to Clifford Mulvihill, director of the Center, its aims are to aid students to adopt a scripturally based Adventist philosophy as their mode of life, to assist students in making an appraisal of their abilities in relation to the academic program, to help them choose and begin preparation for their lifework, and to create a desirable self-image and develop a significant Christian personality. More than 40 per cent of the total counselees have been freshmen.

"As I look back over the year, I can see several good results of our counselling program: a reduction in the number of student dropouts, a general improvement in scholastic achievement, a number of more realistic vocational choices, and several decisions for Christ," says Mulvihill.

374 Teachers Qualified Since 1960

Dorothy Brower looks over the South Lancaster Academy class schedule with Elder J. M. Clemons, principal of the school. Dorothy, who graduated from Atlantic Union College on June 1, will teach modern languages at the academy next year. She is one of 34 seniors who are prepared to enter their chosen profession as either an elementary or high school teacher. According to Dr. S. E. Gascay, chairman of the Division of Education, nearly one third of AUC's student body is involved with the Education Department every year; taking courses which qualify them to teach on either the secondary or elementary level. Since 1960, 374 students have become qualified teachers at AUC and have taken their place in the world of professional teaching.

Students Assist College Administration

By John Wood
S. A. President 1968-69

The students of Atlantic Union College take an active part in the institution's government. The internal affairs of the college are overseen by a number of committees which divide their duties into several basic areas. For instance, one committee decides what course shall be required for all students for graduation, and what courses shall be required in specific areas, such as history. This is the curriculum committee. Another committee deals with specific exceptions to these rules, and acts on student requests—the academic policies committee. Yet another plans the various programs and functions of the school year, and another previews all films to be shown at the college to insure maintenance of Christian standards.

Each committee has several faculty members and administrative officers on it. Usually an appropriate administrator serves as the chairman. Since the various committees direct nearly every area of college life, their decisions are both important and far-reaching. This committee form of government has recently been instituted in several larger educational institutions, since it is the ideal way to explore both faculty and administrative opinion on important and decisive issues.

During the school year just ended, a third viewpoint, the student view, has been added by the addition of students as voting members on all major committees. It was felt by all three groups that this was a positive change. Faculty members and school leaders find that students often have valuable insights and suggestions on problems and objectives of the school. Students also benefit from the ability to share in decisions that will affect them throughout their student life. They also gain wide experience in meeting the difficult problems that confront the college.

Appropriately, some students are placed on committees through the Student Association Senate, while others are nominated by the Student-Faculty Council. The Senate is an entirely student group, while the Council members are students, teachers, and administrators. Any student whose grades and citizenship are acceptable is eligible for committee membership. Recently several members of the freshman class were placed on committees.

The college hopes to maintain unity and quality leadership through this innovation. Much of the turmoil in surrounding secular campuses has resulted from a failure of students, teachers, and leaders to communicate. This change marks another advantage to the school in effectively forestalling such a situation and reaching the distinctive goals of Atlantic Union College.

Book About Hymn Writers Now Available

Author Donald W. McKay completing book, "The People Behind Our Hymns," designed to help attain the blessing that comes from singing hymns with understanding. A free copy of the book may be obtained by writing to Faith for Today, Box 8, New York, New York 10008.

As a result of the tremendous demand for a book about hymn writers following the survey taken by Adventist churches in North America, Faith for Today has released to its sponsors a gift book, The People Behind Our Hymns, which was designed to help people attain the blessing that comes from singing hymns with understanding.

Author Donald W. McKay, who has had more than one thousand articles and poems published in many national and religious magazines, formerly was music director at several camp meetings and was song leader for the late evangelist, Charles T. Everson.

The book tells about some of the hymns which have come to us from dramatic experiences and severe trials. If we took time to study each hymn, we would find a special message there, an encouraging story, or a word to help.

If you want this book as a companion to your singing, become a sponsor of Faith for Today and receive it with three other gift books during the year. Or write to Faith for Today, Box 8, New York, New York 10008, requesting The People Behind Our Hymns. Those contributing one dollar or more a month qualify for the gift books and the monthly magazine, Tele-Notes.

Final World Youth Congress Notice

The opening meeting of the World Youth Congress convenes at 7:00 p.m., Tuesday, July 22, in the city of Zurich, Switzerland, in the Hallenstadion (auditorium). All persons planning to attend should arrive early on Tuesday so they can be registered, located, and still have time for the evening meal before the congress begins.

Please remember there will be 12,000 to feed on the opening night, and only 4,000 can be served at a time. The cafeteria will open at 4:30 p.m. We emphasize the need for early arrival, so those accepted in the attendance quotas will have ample time to register, obtain the admittance badge to the auditorium, and receive meal tickets to the cafeteria, which is limited to serving the 12,000 in the quotas.

This is also a final reminder that no one without a congress badge will be admitted to the auditorium. All seats are reserved and all seats have already been given out through quotas assigned to the world divisions. The only provision for those without the badge, who are not in a quota, is a 1,000-seat auditorium adjacent to the main arena where additional but not continuous programs will be scheduled. Admission is open to all in this auditorium on a first-come basis.

First Camp Meeting

R. R. Frame

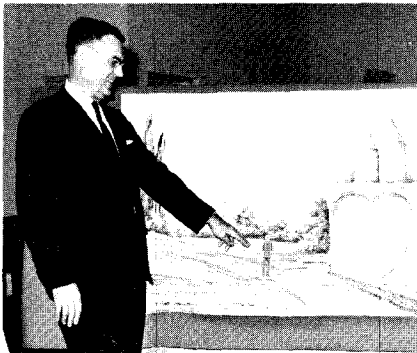

W. W. Fordham

For the first time in Bermuda history a camp meeting will be held in the islands of the sea. . . . Elder Walter Wraggs Fordham, associate secretary of the Regional Department of the General Conference, will be one of the featured speakers at the planned convocation to be held from June 4 through June 7.

"It was regrettable that last year's plans could not be carried out, but this year, God willing, everything is in order for a wonderful convention of our people and leaders," said Elder H. Carl Currie, president of the Bermuda Mission. "We will use the large, new tent which has a capacity seating for 650, and provision will be made for many more whom we are sure will attend."

Elder Robert R. Frame, associate secretary of the General Conference, and a number of Atlantic Union leaders will be featured at the first camp meeting. Large plans are being laid for this time of special spiritual emphasis.

Health, Welfare, Bible Study Series

In a ten-day series of meetings in Bermuda, Elder C. E. Guenther, associate lay activities director of the General Conference, presented an instructional interpretation of Adventist Health and Welfare services and also an inspirational insight to the study and teaching of the Holy Scriptures. The services, held in the various churches of the islands, were presented under the three general headings: "Adventist Men in Health and Welfare Services"; "Reaching the Soul Through Health and Welfare Ministry"; and "Adventist Men as Teachers of the Scriptures." All of the presentations were graphically illustrated on the flannel board and blackboard. It was the first time the Health and Welfare director had ever visited Bermuda, and many acclaimed his studies on the interpretation of Holy Scriptures to be the most revealing and personally helpful ever presented here.

R. J. Christian Visits New York Center

A recent visitor to the New York Center was Elder R. J. Christian of the Southern Publishing Association (left) who spoke to the Greater New York Conference workers. His primary mission was the circulation of "These Times" magazine, but his message proved to be an inspiration to all forms of evangelism and to the living of a better life in Christ. Youth Rally at Staten Island

"What are those young people doing over there on the Staten Island Ferry?" "Why, those are young people from the Congregation Hebrew church giving out literature as part of their Share-Your-Faith project." These young people are very active in seeking souls for Christ. In fact, at the present time they are giving nine Bible studies and they have a number of other families reading various Adventist publications. Wherever these young people go—they are busy sharing their faith!

ing song service led by Pastor Wayne Hancock. Pastor Hancock sparked the song service by bringing special musical numbers in between our congregational singing.

Then to begin the real purpose of our rally, Elder James Londis, from the Religion Department at Atlantic Union College, brought a twinkle to the eyes of the youth when he challenged them to "Do Your Own Thing." However, it wasn't too long before the message was clarified—"Do your own thing—as long as it's for God!"

Now the United Youth leaders focused the meeting on our real purpose for the day! These youth were to begin the groundwork in preparing Staten Island for the large evangelistic crusade to begin in September featuring Gordon Dalrymple of Faith for Today. The interest-catching leaflet, "Confused?" was given to our youth and they organized into teams to visit the homes and businesses of the immediate area around the Staten Island church.

Literature distribution need not be a "drag". . . and from the comments of the youth on their return—it can be fun! Rosemary Moffitt, one of the youth leaders from the Congregation Hebrew church, bounded back to the church all enthused about the fun she had that afternoon. Since this was a typical attitude of all who participated in the afternoon's activities, we turned the vesper period over to the young people and let them report on their interesting encounters. Each was thrilled with his part in bringing our church to the attention of the neighbors—and it is their prayer that through the coming crusade many souls will be won for the Master.

Following vespers and a short supper period, the youth were off for an exciting experience for some and just plain fun for others—they went on a hayride! Pastor Hancock led out in the activities and they had quite an evening of riding around the park, singing the old favorites, and just getting better acquainted with fellow Christian young people.

But most of all, the day brought us all closer to the thrilling fact that the youth of Greater New York are on fire for their God and they are willing to do their share in "Operation Go." If you are in doubt, just attend our next youth rally!

All-Day Rally at Staten Island

Literature evangelists of the Greater New York Conference gathered Sabbath, April 19, at the Staten Island church for an all-day rally. A large number turned out for the meetings in spite of the tremendous cloudburst that struck just prior to Sabbath school opening time.

The day's activities were under the direction of Chester Shumaker, conference publishing secretary, and the church pastor, Elder William Goranson. The speaker for the morning service was Elder Don Hawley, director of communications.

Following a fellowship lunch, participants joined in a special songfest. During the afternoon, literature evangelists shared some of their most recent and thrilling experiences as "shock troops" of the Lord's army.

It is hoped that the church will be erected by fall and will be ready for worship sometime during the winter season.

Work Progresses on Elmira School

Construction on the new Elmira Intermediate church school is continuing at a rapid pace. The work of construction is under the direction of Henry Colaw, a layman in the Elmira (New York) church. The fact that the construction is moving along so rapidly can be attributed to a series of miraculous happenings.

First, the Spirit of the Lord moved upon the hearts of the church members to make this very timely decision to move ahead on the construction of the building.

Secondly, the timing coincided perfectly with the availability of Mr. Colaw to become building superintendent. Mr. Colaw, who works for a large construction company, was able to secure the use of much of the heavy construction equipment, as well as receive prices on the cement blocks and bricks at the lowest possible rate, and was also able to obtain the services of the bricklayers at the appropriate time.

Thirdly, the marvellous co-operation received from the men and women of the church. For the past four weeks, an average of eighteen men have given of their time each Sunday to help in the progress of the construction.

Thus, the rapid growth.

The school will have four large classrooms, a very adequate library, a principal's office, rest-room facilities, and a kitchen.

Gilbert Young, principal and ninth- and tenth-grade teacher, reports that there are sixty pupils attending school this year. The other teachers are Mr. and Mrs. William Kaiser and Mrs. Betty Chapin.

Present plans call for a gymnasium to be constructed soon which will adjoin the school and will have facilities for a seating capacity of approximately four hundred.

R. R. Bietz Coming to New York Camp Meeting

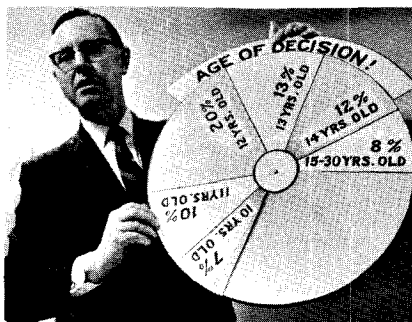

Elder R. R. Bietz, recently elected vice-president of the General Conference, will be at the New York Conference camp meeting. Elder Bietz, in addition to his responsibilities as one of the vice-presidents of the General Conference, is chairman of the board of Loma Linda University. He formerly served as president of the Pacific Union Conference for eight years and ten years as president of the Southern California Conference. Prior to these appointments, he served in various places as pastor, departmental leader, and conference president in North America.

Elder Bietz will have a series of studies during the last half of our camp meeting. He is a good Bible preacher. Plan to attend the New York Conference camp meeting from June 27 to July 5 to hear Elder Bietz and other excellent preachers who have been slated to be at our camp meeting.

Vacation Bible School Follow-Up

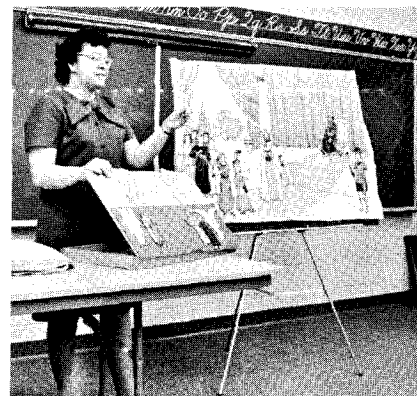

Elder Curtis Barger, of the General Conference Sabbath School Department, displays a diagram indicating the different ages when individuals make a decision for Christ. The peak age is twelve years old when 20 per cent are baptized.

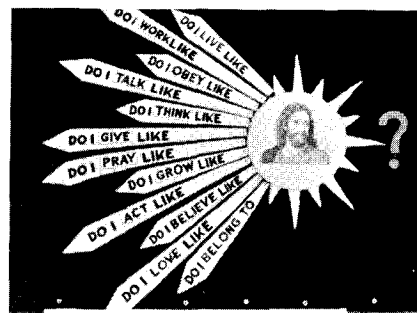

One of the weakest phases of the Vacation Bible School program is the "follow-up." The time has come when we must spend as much time planning for the follow-up as we do for the program itself. Often we hear of the wonderful attendance at Vacation Bible School, but it is unusual to hear that continual contact is being made with the pupils after the school has closed.

The least that could be done for the Vacation Bible School pupils is to enroll the juniors in the Pathfinder Club. Although your church may not have a Pathfinder Club, wouldn't this be an excellent time to start one?

Each Vacation Bible School pupil should be enrolled in the Junior Voice of Prophecy Bible Course. Junior enrollment cards may be secured free from the Voice of Prophecy Office, 1500 East Chevy Chase, Glendale, California 91206. All churches should have a supply of two hundred or more on hand at all times.

A number of ministers have had successful evangelistic campaigns that started on the closing night of the Vacation Bible School. The non-Adventist pupils and their parents were invited to attend. Many souls have been led to Christ with this method.

A Vacation Bible School is not truly successful unless there is a strong follow-up program.

MV Week of Prayer at South Brooklyn

The juniors of the South Brooklyn church responded to the call of Christ during the MV Week of Prayer, March 15-22. Approximately 60 junior and senior Missionary Volunteers attended each night. They enthusiastically brought their friends to the meetings. Prizes were given nightly to the one bringing the most visitors.

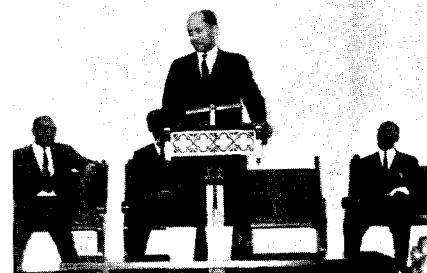

The initial sermon was delivered on Sabbath, March 15, by Elder Eustoce

Henry from Jamaica, British West Indies.

Elder Owen A. Troy, youth director of Northeastern Conference, was the main speaker. He spoke Sunday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday nights. Rufus Brown from Colon, Panama, spoke Monday night, March 17, and Talbert Weeks from the Hanson Place church, spoke Friday night, March 21.

The Jacobs trio from the Ephesus church presented the special music.

Twenty-Three Baptized in Bronx Church

"How beautiful are those who accept the gospel of peace, and believe glad tidings of good things!" This paraphrase of Romans 10:15 might well describe the first baptismal service of 1969 held at the Bronx (New York) church, April 26, in which twenty-three candidates for heaven publicly died to the world and rose in newness of life.

"Only a beginning," Pastor T. X. Perry declared. "These are the first-fruits of our efforts this year. But they are just a preview or foretaste of the evangelistic thrust we plan for 1969.

"We expect to baptize more than one hundred people this year," the pastor continued, "as a result of an evangelistic tent effort this summer.

Pastor T. X. Perry questions candidates prior to baptism at the Bronx church on April 26.

We plan to establish a new church in the upper Bronx."

Behind every baptism is a story. "How did you find God?" or "How did the truth find you?" are always intriguing questions.

One whole family of four, the Watsons, were baptized together as the result of a colporteur contact made during Big Week of 1968 by Colporteur Dennis. The two children, Barbara and Michael, are budding colporteurs themselves. They brought fifteen other children to church the Sabbath of their baptism.

A husband and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Deal, were baptized together as a direct result of an Adventist lady who met their relatives in New Orleans, and wrote to Mary Holyfield, Bible instructor, concerning them.

A young woman, Jackie Grant, had returned to the Lord after being involved in an auto accident and having her prayer for deliverance answered.

Another lady, Anna Mae Barber, had turned on the radio just in time to hear Elder Vandeman's program, "It Is Written." She telephoned the station afterward, and was referred to Mary Holyfield, the Bible instructor for the Bronx church.

And so it went. From far and near they had come, by varied paths, but all seeking the same great Light, Christ Jesus, and finding Him.

Elder S. O. James, associate publishing secretary of the Northeastern Conference, performed the rite of baptism, assisted by Matthew Dennis and local elder Cummings. An overflow crowd, estimated at more than three hundred, witnessed the service.

Elder James closed the service by calling for a rededication of all present to the finishing of the gospel work in all the world.

Investiture Service for Ushers

On Sabbath, March 22, an Investiture service was held for the ushers of the Calvary church in Bridgeport. Pastor Lloyd H. Wilson, minister of the church, pointed out the many and varied duties of an usher, also the joy and rich reward of a job well done. During the service two new ushers were added to the group bringing the total to thirteen.

White Plains Church Sold

"We have been successful, our church has been sold!" were the words spoken by Harold Baptiste, the pastor of the First White Plains church at 277 Tarrytown Road, Fairview, New York, during the church's business meeting on April 12.

On Sabbath, April 26, the congregation heard Pastor Baptiste preach his last sermon in this edifice. The White Plains Seventh-day Adventists have been meeting in this church since they purchased it in 1945 when Norman McLeod was their pastor. The congregation has quadrupled in size until there was no other way for them to go but out.

Land has been purchased on Juniper Hill in Fairview, where they are planning to build.

The congregation will be meeting temporarily in the Community Baptist church at 142 Edgepark Road, Greenburgh. Services on Sabbaths will be held as always.

Hospital Auxiliary Thrift Shop

The Parkview Memorial Hospital Auxiliary Thrift Shop located at 58 Main Street, Freeport, Maine, reports excellent business. It is operated by volunteers from the Auxiliary with Mrs. Myrtle Weeks in charge.

The Auxiliary's contribution to Parkview Hospital includes furnishing the nursery, the solarium, and the formula room. They have contributed to improving the landscaping of the hospital and recently contributed $1,000 to purchase two coronary unit beds.

Mrs. Raydene Drexler and her son, Danny. Mrs. Myrtle Weeks who is in charge of the thrift shop is behind the counter.

Dorcas Societies Pack Clothing for Overseas

Mrs. Leona Kahkonen, Norway, Maine

Twenty-one of the Dorcas Health and Welfare societies of the Northern New England Conference packed 417 boxes of clothing, amounting to 11,000 pounds, for overseas shipment.

Although this was a smaller load than usual there were 33 boxes of new clothes that had been contributed by a merchant in New Hampshire. We appreciate our societies in Northern New England using regulation boxes for their shipments.

With the calls coming to SAWS for more materials all over the world, we are asking our societies to increase the number of boxes prepared for the fall shipment.

Besides the approximately 15 tons of clothing shipped each year from the

YOUTH IN ACTION

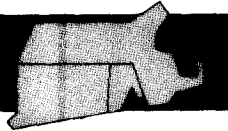

Ski Evangelism

A new and unique approach of witnessing for Christ, coined "Ski Evangelism" was used effectively by twelve students of Pioneer Valley Academy, New Braintree, Massachusetts.

The students, accompanied by four faculty members, spent the week end of February 1-2 at Mt. Snow, a well-known ski resort in Vermont.

The group first became acquainted with skiers at the lodge by inviting them to view two films on Saturday night. They were, "LSD—Insight or Insanity," and "Prescription for Doc," a film about Christian emphasis on a college campus. A large number joined

On Sunday the students endeavored to engage other skiers in conversation on the ski slopes, with the object of talking to them about spiritual values and the Christian life. A number of worthwhile contacts resulted.

Camp Meeting Speaker

Elder Neal C. Wilson, vice-president of the General Conference, will be one of our featured speakers at camp meeting this year, June 26-July 5.

Elder Wilson is in charge of the work of the church for the North American Division. He is a man of wide experience having served as a missionary in the Middle East, as well as in pastoral, evangelistic, and administrative posts.

This year we will be celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of camp meeting for this field and a number of special features are being planned. A special Centennial Pageant will be held in the main auditorium on Friday, July 4, at 7:30 p.m. Check the complete program schedule in this issue for a full line-up of camp meeting speakers.

Reservations for camp meeting are now being processed.

Camp Winnekeag Clean-Up

Eighty adults and numerous children converged on Camp Winnekeag, Ashburnham, Massachusetts, on Sunday, May 4, for a clean-up bee in preparation for summer activities.

Laymen joined their ministers to help swell the number of volunteers who worked with axes, saws, pruning shears, rakes, and shovels, to clear brush, trim trees, and generally clean up the camp. The above group worked to clean up the swimming pier and adjacent area. They are (left to right): A. F. Esposito and John Wagner, teachers at Pioneer Valley Academy; Bill Boyd, a junior at the academy; and Pastor Ronald Flowers, of the New Bedford-Cape Cod district. Many wives joined their husbands to help clean cabins and prepare the noon meal. Elder Malcolm D. Gordon, camp director, and Jerry Little, conference builder, who directed the clean-up, expressed their gratitude for the vast amount of work accomplished by these willing workers. Because of the success of the clean-up day and the enthusiasm of those who participated, many felt that we should have another clean-up day to make the job complete. Therefore, Sunday, June 8, has been designated as a conference-wide volunteer clean-up day. Work will begin at 9:00 a.m. Men and women are needed. Bring tools such as axes, saws, chain saws, rakes, and trucks. Pizza dinner will be provided.

Summer camp will be held this year during the month of August due to the World Youth Congress in Zurich, Switzerland.

speaker on the opening night, Dr. Harold S. Barrett, deputy director of the Connecticut Department of Health, stated: "This is the most effective, in fact the only successful program, to help people in a personal way to break the tobacco habit."

Over 50 per cent of those who attended the program returned on the following Sunday for a postgraduate session featuring nutrition and a lecture entitled, "Why Is It So Hard to Stop Smoking?"

On Sabbath morning, March 29, Pastor Mills and Dr. Thrash jointly presented the sermon, entitled, "How to Keep Well." Thirteen of the participants, comprising Catholics, Jews, and Protestants were in attendance at the service. Only one, a Jewish young man who had attended previously following a former Stop-Smoking clinic, had ever been to a Seventh-day Adventist service before. Among those in attendance was the former mayor of Hartford, who had followed the program with interest for several years.

Excellent coverage was given to the program on television and radio and in the newspapers. Even the Health Department of the state sent out newspaper releases to the various media concerning the program.

Dr. Thrash and Pastor Mills also presented health programs in fourteen different public high schools in Hartford, speaking to over five thousand youth and their teachers during the week. Pastor Mills has his program for the children scheduled in schools in the area up through the month of May.

Mrs. Rita Vital, Health and Welfare leader, worked several weeks preparing news media for the arrival of Dr. Thrash and the opening of the Stop-Smoking program. A booth in downtown Hartford, in the lobby of the Hartford National Bank, did much to build interest and attendance.

Nearly three thousand persons have participated in previous Stop-Smoking seminars held by the church in the last five years. As a result of the health program conducted in Hartford by the church, Seventh-day Adventists are now known as a people who are concerned with public service and who are knowledgeable in the field of health. Scores of inquirers are awaiting the next Five-Day Plan which begins September 21 in the Hartford Seventh-day Adventist school.

At Rest

BAROUDI—Bertha Cocab Baroudi was born in Syria. Married in her homeland, she came to the United States, a child bride of sixteen. Shortly after settling in this country she learned of the Advent message. She gave evidence to her faith by being baptized in 1913. She was then united with the church while living in Ticonderoga, New York.

Bertha Baroudi died in the Westmount Infirmary following an extended illness March 11, 1969, at the age of eighty-one.

She leaves to mourn her passing: three daughters: Mrs. Beatrice Jacobs, of North Creek, New York; Mrs. Josephine Oksenthold, of Great Falls, Montana; Mrs. Alice Baroudy, of Geneva, New York; five sons: Nicholas, North Creek, New York; Frederick and Moses, of Florida; Phillip, of North Creek, New York; Daniel, of Utica, New York; fourteen grandchildren; five great-grandchildren; and many other relatives. The writer conducted the funeral.
