THE FRUITS OF FRIENDSHIP

ena told me to always check the rear door to her home if I ever saw the car in the driveway and there was no response to the doorbell. After many ringings of the front doorbell, I walked around the side of the house and went to the service porch entrance. There was her car in the driveway. It was time to try the back door.

I rang the back doorbell twice, then knocked once. Suddenly the door jerked open and a hand appeared, . . . holding a 38 caliber revolver! I saw that it was Lena behind the door and said, "This is the Pastor, Lena! Just put the gun down slowly." "Oh my God," she blurted, "I could have killed you! I'm so sorry!" I knew the Lord was with me, for I had gone there on His business. He had protected me, and that I knew right well!

We sat in her luxurious home and talked for hours. Viewing her surroundings, expensive furniture, pictures and draperies, I well knew that she could not take any of those things with her to her grave. Yet she tried so hard to evade spiritual questions when we'd have our long talks.

At just about noontime Mariellyn Hill of Norfolk, CT, took our cover photo with a Fujica 35mm camera using a zoom lens. It is so nearly lifelike that the observer can smell the fragrance of the roses. The photo received Honorable Mention in the 1987/88 Gleaner Cover Photo Contest. But God was working in His own way, in His own time.

Three weeks later, on another visit to her home, I found a tired woman who, in her day as a teacher and social worker, could hold her own with the best of thinkers. She had the writings of the great philosophers in her bookcases. We were trying to introduce her to the central person of the Scriptures, the Saviour of the world.

A serious mood prevailed in her family room as we talked. She was lying on her couch and her silver hair would glisten as she stared at me through her glasses. "Pastor, get that Bible behind you and read Isaiah, chapter 40, to me," she said, and she propped herself up with several pillows.

Tears began dropping on the pillows as she tried to control her emotions. I continued to read, looking up frequently to observe her. When the chapter was finished, I elaborated on the promises we had just heard. The tears continued to flow. "God is speaking directly to you today, Lena, and He wants all that you are . . . just as you are!" I said.

Her mood suddenly changed. She told me to turn around and look on her desk. There on the desk were keys, new keys... to her new Cadillac Coupe de Ville. It had three thousand miles on the odometer. Lena said to me, "You need a good car! Go, get out of here. Don't bother me any more. Just go!"

I told her that God didn't send me there for her car. "He wants your heart, not just a part, He wants all of your heart. All He wants is all, of you . . . all He wants is you!" The words to that song seemed to flow as I looked her straight in the eyes and quoted more Bible verses and promises.

She looked up at the ceiling, sighed, cried, shuddered, and finally . . . at last, Lena said, "All right. I'm tired of fighting and running. I want to join your church. Here's my hand!"

When the Bible says there is joy in heaven over one sinner that repents, I know there was great joy in the courts above that very afternoon. Lena, in her ripe years and a year before her demise, had forsaken the church of her friends and become one of God's own. There is power in love and friendship!

You too, my friends, can have the joy of being a friend to someone, rich or poor or middle class. The world is starving for the ministry of friendship. We are the CARING CHURCH. Let's become known as the FRIENDSHIP CHURCH, where people can feel loved and appreciated. There are still other sheep out there which are not of this fold. Let's get out there and bring them in!

IN HIS HANDS

ithin three to five years, Adventist education in the North American Division will face a crisis.

Why the Crisis?

The ratio of students in Adventist schools compared with church membership is down. The number of children and youth in traditional school ages is lessening. Adventist youth and parents are looking at a wide range of options for schooling, with Adventist schools being compared academically, economically, and socially with other schools. The cost of education is increasing.

These are only some of the reasons for the impending crisis. Everyone who studies trends knows that we face more critical times ahead. Not everyone agrees on what to do about it.

One thing is certain. Adventists agree that our educational system is important—even essential. And that all of our schools—from elementary through college/university—are invaluable to the church. We need our schools to transmit Adventist beliefs and ideals to our children, to train youth for denominational employment and lay leadership, and to provide a social environment where youth strengthen each other in Christian lifestyle and practices.

Organization of "Project Affirmation"

Since our schools are essential to the church, and since these schools face a crisis in the very near future, it follows that we must develop a plan to preserve-even improve-our educational system and its capacity to accomplish its mission. The North American Division has organized a major emphasis titled Project Affirmation to be the catalyst to renew the system, revitalize Adventist awareness of and support for our schools, and ensure that our educational institutions are truly accomplishing the mission for which they exist.

The Atlantic Union Conference Board of Education has established a commission to coordinate plans to involve parents, students, school board members, pastors, teachers, and other church members in our territory.

Within a few weeks, many of us will be invited to help improve our schools. Four of the main areas needing attention, according to groups which have already met, are: (1) how to improve and support high academic quality, (2) ways to increase school enrollment, (3) suggestions for encouraging and supporting students in their personal and spiritual growth, and (4) plans for increasing financial support for schools.

The future of our church is to a large degree in the hands of our schools. These schools are in our hands. But ultimately, we're all in God's hands. In that confidence, we are truly secure.

ADVENTIST EDUCATION IS AT THE CROSSROAD.

THE CARING MESSAGE OF 1888

here has been a great deal of confusion over the exact nature of the 1888 message. Some have held that the messages of Jones and Waggoner at the 1888 General Conference session emphasized distinctively Adventist approaches to righteousness by faith. A writer to the editor in the March 3, 1988, Adventist Review, for example, claims that he found "no 1888 message" in the Review's special issue commemorating the centennial of the Minneapolis meetings. "Where," he asks, "is the idea of justification by faith far in advance of current evangelical thinking? . . . Where is the idea that Jesus took upon His sinless nature our sinful nature? Where is the idea that sinless living is possible before glorification?"

Those are excellent and perceptive questions because they are based upon widespread Adventist understandings about the 1888 message. The answer to those questions, however, is quite simple. The surviving records do not indicate that such issues were concerns at Minneapolis. Writing near the close of the meetings, E. J. Waggoner noted that the subjects considered had been the ten kingdoms of Daniel 7, the Papacy and the proposed National Reform Government (with its Sunday laws), and "the law and the gospel in their various relations, coming under the general head of justification by faith" (ST, Nov. 2, 1888).

Basic Christianity

Ellen White's recollections agreed with those of Waggoner. Expanding upon the third point in his summary, she wrote: "This message (of Jones needed to have their eyes directed to His divine person, His merits, and His changeless love for the human family. . . . This is the message that God commanded to be given to the world. It is the third angel's message" (Testimonies to Ministers, pp. 91 & 92).

From Mrs. White's perspective the content of the 1888 message was basic Christianity—a Christianity that uplifted Jesus Christ as the central

"THE WORLD HAS NOT ENOUGH TRUE CHRISTIANS: THE CHURCH HAS NEED OF THEM; SOCIETY CANNOT SPARE THEM."

Testimonies, vol. 5, p. 334 and Waggoner) was to bring more prominently before the world the uplifted Saviour, the sacrifice for the sins of the whole world. It presented justification through faith in the Surety; it invited the people to receive the righteousness of Christ, which is made manifest in obedience to all the commandments of God. Many had lost sight of Jesus. They pillar of all Christian living and thinking, that proclaimed justification through faith (an evangelical belief that Adventists have not been able to improve upon), and that taught sanctification as reflected in obedience to God's law through the power of the Holy Spirit (a point at which nineteenth-century evangelicals often fell short). Persons holding that the human nature of Christ or sinless living were topics of emphasis or discussion at the 1888 meetings generally read subsequent developments in Jones and Waggoner's treatment of righteousness by faith back into the content of the 1888 meetings.

The fact that the 1888 message was basic Christianity should not blind us to the fact that Jones and Waggoner did manage to discuss basic issues within the unique prophetic framework of Revelation 14. We will have more to say on that important contribution in the next two installments in this series of articles.

Impact of 1888 Meetings on Writings of Ellen White

Jones and Waggoner's message in 1888 helped Ellen White see more clearly the poverty of old-line Adventist theology with its neglect of the centrality of Christ in salvation and its law-oriented righteousness. The next fifteen years would see her publish her great works on Christ and salvation-Steps to Christ, The Desire of Ages, Thoughts From the Mount of Blessing, and Christ's Object Lessons. The 1888 meetings had created a definite shift in her literary output. Her burden in the post-1888 period was to present Jesus, His loving character, and His righteousness to the Adventist people. Those books uplift basic Christianity at its finest.

Christ's caring character repeatedly shows through in Ellen White's post-1888 writings. Confiding to her diary in 1891, she noted that some feared that the church was "not dwelling enough on the law." Too many Adventist ministers and their messages were "destitute of the saving blood of Jesus Christ." "Of all professed Christians, Seventh-day Adventists should be foremost in uplifting Christ before the world." "Why, then," she queried, "is there manifested in the church so great a lack of love?" "It is because Christ is not constantly brought before the people. His attributes of character are not brought into practical life. . . .

"A correct theory of the truth may be presented, and yet there may not be manifested the warmth of affection that the God of truth requires. . . .

"The religion of many is very much like an icicle—freezingly cold. ... They cannot touch the hearts of others, because their own hearts are not surcharged with the blessed love that flows from the heart of Christ." Religion, she continued, is not a matter of "stern duty," but a life filled with the "sweet, melting love and tender compassion of Christ" (MS 21, 1891; for a more complete coverage on the message of 1888, see From 1888 to Apostasy, pp. 61-74).

The Caring Church in 1988

After seeing the bitterness engendered by theological controversy at Minneapolis, Ellen White was not nearly as concerned with doctrinal understanding as she was with Adventists becoming caring Christians who expressed the love of Christ in their daily lives. Thus, in essence, the message of 1888 is the message of the caring church. It is this caringness toward others that Christ is seeking to produce in our hearts as a witness to the universe that Christianity can indeed be lived in a world of sin. To become a caring church filled with truly loving Christians is the great imperative of 1888 to those of us who live in 1988.

he reaping campaign of the Providence, Rhode Island, Hispanic church in the Northeastern Conference was concluded on April 2, 1988. Elder Pedro Geli was the evangelist and Elder Evaristo Gomez, the district pastor, was coordinator.

A beautiful and impressive baptism of four precious souls concluded the meetings. Additionally, more than 20 persons responded to the invitation to make a commitment to Christ to join the church through baptism. The dedicated work of Elder Gomez and the warmth and friendship of the people made this outreach compaign a very inspirational experience.

In the Atlantic Union, evangelism is the No. One priority. Not only are we praying for power to return to the East, but also, under God's grace and power, we are doing something to hasten the outpouring of God's Elder Evaristo Gomez and Elder Geli during the baptism in which 20 adults made their decisions for Christ to join the church by preparing for the next baptism.

Holy Spirit and thus, the coming of Jesus. The time has come for us to think evangelism, talk evangelism, pray evangelism, and do evangelism.

Every administrator, pastor, teacher, colporteur, institutional worker and lay person must experience the joy of seeing souls come to the Lord. If you want to quicken your step, gladden your life and confirm your faith, share the Good News of salvation.

UNION FORMS CHEMICAL DEPENDENCY COMMISSION

he Atlantic Union's newest committee is the Chemical Dependency Commission, which met for the first time on March 14, 1988, in the worship room of the Union office. Pedro Geli, Jr., vice-president of the Atlantic Union and Director of the Health/Temperance Department, served as chairman for the nine-person committee.

This Commission reviewed the historical position of abstinence from drug abuse of the Seventh-day Adventist Church, and reviewed the minutes of the General Conference Commission on Chemical Dependency. Recognizing that there are individuals with drug abuse and alcohol problems within the church, this Commission will review, pilot test, interpret, adapt, and recommend ideas and concepts from the General Conference Commission. Acute focus will be given to our Union territory where studies will be made and help measures adapted.

Many specialists and institutions are now involved in the war against drug abuse and chemical dependency, such as Loma Linda University, Adventist Health System/US, Andrews University's Institute of Alcoholism and Drug Dependency, and the General Conference Department of Health and Temperance. Committees will be formed in the near future on the local conference level to get members involved and aware of the programs and opportunities to combat the problems in this area of life.

In the above picture at the right, Temperance Evangelist Ken Randall demonstrates several cases of habit-producing drinks and drugs which are affecting young people living in today's world. Randall lectures frequently in public schools and for service clubs, marketing Listen Magazine and informing students of the evils of drug abuse and alcohol usage.

GELI ASSUMES NEW POST

Elder Pedro Geli, Jr., vice-president of the Atlantic Union Conference, has accepted an invitation to serve as vice-president of the Adventist Media Center in Newbury Park, CA. He will be responsible for Field Services, including giving direction to the Bible school as well as coordinating the church's radio and television program ministries with field evangelistic and pastoral activities.

Elder Geli, his wife Vesta, and their teenage children, John and Janene, came to the Atlantic Union Conference in 1983 from Southern California Conference, where they were involved in pastoral ministry. Previously, they had served in South America, where Elder Geli was first a college religion teacher and later a mission president.

Elder Geli began his ministry as a pastor in the Central California Conference, where he served both English- and Spanish-speaking congregations. Later, he was responsible for developing and serving as speaker-director of Al Dia, a California-based Spanish evangelistic television program.

In the Atlantic Union Conference, Elder Geli has been coordinator for ethnic ministries, director of the union conference health and temperance department, and represented the union conference administration on a number of boards and committees. He has been personnel officer in the union conference office and has been in charge of planning and scheduling major meetings sponsored by the union conference.

Elder Geli's many friends wish him and his family God's blessings as they assume new responsibilities in California.

Students and Faculty Share in Awards Celebration

Thursday, April 14, was a high day at Atlantic Union College, a day to celebrate the accomplishments of students and faculty alike. It was also a day of firsts, with the inaugural presentation of the Zapara Excellence in Teaching Awards and the Staff Award for Quality Service.

At the annual Honors and Awards Recognition Chapel, scholarships and awards were presented to over 100 students by President Lawrence T. Geraty, Academic Dean Sakae Kubo, and departmental representatives. Fifty-six students received departmental scholarships or awards such as the Wall Street Journal Award (given to Craig Haritos, senior business major) that are presented through individual departments from outside sources. Twentyseven students received general scholarships, many of which are funded by alumni or are memorial scholarships, each with specific criteria (ranging from leadership ability to place of residence). Aaron Matthew Caulder, senior art/psychology major, was awarded the GSF scholarship for superior academic achievement and leadership. Thomas Wehtje, sophomore English/math major, received the Smart Scholarship for the student with the highest Grade Point Average (G.P.A., on 0-4 scale) who has completed at least three semesters, Wehtje having maintained a perfect 4.0. Samuel Jiao and Chun Hon Cheung (majoring in theology and business respectively) received Kwai Choi Lam Scholarships for academic achievement by Chinese students. The Harry S. Truman Award for a student considering public service was presented to Brent Geraty, sophomore history/business major and current Lancastrian editor.

Several groups of students were also recognized at the assembly. Thirty-one freshmen were recognized

The newly established Zapara Excellence in Teaching Awards were awarded for meritorius service in the areas of humanities and arts, social sciences, and science. Dr. Myron Wehtje, professor of history, Dr. Stacy Nelson, professor of physical education, and Mr. Clifford Pope, professor of math, were the first recipients of these awards (in the above areas, respectively). The $1,000 faculty awards were funded by Tom and Violet Zapara (founders of Zee Medical Supplies in California), who have set up a trust fund enabling each of the Adventist colleges in North America to annually recognize faculty members for the excellence of their teaching. Mary Lou Kidder received a standing ovation as she accepted the Staff Award for Quality Service, being recognized for years of dedication as Assistant to four different Academic Deans.

The awards and scholarships presented in chapel that day alone totalled over $27,000. These awards are part of nearly one million dollars in financial aid given to students every year, but are unique in their

Self-study Yields Favorable Results

Atlantic Union College has been the object of double scrutiny during the month of April. Site team visits by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges and the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventist Board of Regents have climaxed many months of preparation by the college.

Regis College President Sister Therese Higgins headed the NEASC team. She expressed the team's appreciation for the friendly warmth of their reception on campus and the meticulous editing and candid appraisal of the self-study document prepared under the direction of Dr. Ottilie Stafford. The committee was impressed with the clear understanding of AUC's mission and objectives shared by its faculty and students. The NEASC site team strongly encouraged AUC to pursue and expedite its program of master planning for the college. The once per decade process of evaluation will be complete next December when the official decision regarding reaccreditation will be made. The NEASC is an accrediting body which helps educational institutions maintain high standards based on each individual school's own goals and criteria, independent of any government involvement.

The site visit team from the SDA Board of Regents headed by Pacific Union College President Malcolm Maxwell used the same self-study document as the NEASC team in addition to one focused especially on Adventist concerns. The objective of their visit was primarily to verify AUC's role as a distinctly Adventist college with high Christian standards in addition to its superior academic commitment. The team found much to commend, including the positive spirit on campus and the increased involvement of students in the student missionary program. They felt that a full-time Dean of Students and campus Learning Center are among AUC's greatest needs. The college is already planning for these with the Learning Center opening planned for next September. The Board of Regents' visit always immediately follows that of the NEASC since the two evaluations complement each other.

News Notes

*A student left an anonymous letter for President Geraty with $100 enclosed for the student or situation Dr. Geraty found most needy. After Dr. Geraty mentioned this instance of generosity in chapel, another student left $100 with Campus Ministries to support the student missionary having the most difficulty raising funds for their year of mission service. These are just two examples of the AUC spirit of sacrifice!

*Sunday morning of Alumni Weekend, April 15-17, a tree was planted in memory of distinguished AUC alumnus, Theodore Carcich, class of '34, to honor his many years of service to the church and college.

*Art Department Chairman Roger Preston recently showed his collection of works on the Holocaust at the Bartlett Gallery on the AUC campus, at the Hampden Gallery on the campus of the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, and at the Memorial for the Holocaust at the Leominster Synagogue.

*For the second year AUC's Nursing Department has received funds from the James M. Johnston Trust, administered by the Health and Temperance Department of the General Conference. Last year's $5,000 was used to buy a camcorder and VCR, a copy machine, and to subsidize one nursing faculty member in a study tour in Australia. This year's proposed projects for the $3,000 award include an interactive video machine and software program and a printer to complement the department's Apple II computer, according to department chairman, Dr. Marjorie Sczekan.

Chinatown Company Worshiping at New Location

Elder Samuel Young of the General Conference Secretariat, was the featured speaker for the Chinatown congregation Sabbath, February 13. The occasion marked the official inauguration of the group's new location at 90-31 Corona Avenue in Elmhurst, Queens.

The location was made available by Mrs. Lih Yuh Kuo, a fashion designer in the community. Renovations were also provided, so that the building could serve as a center in the Chinese community as well as for church use. Mrs. Kuo became interested in the Chinatown group when one of her employees received family counseling from Elder Robert Tseng, pastor of the group. Becoming aware of the desire of Adventists to serve the public, she offered the use of the building as an expression of her own interest in serving the community.

The first floor and basement of the storefront facility are already in active use for after-school classes as well as for church services. The weekday afternoon sessions offer help to Chinese students who have difficulty with homework as a result of language problems. The service is offered for a nominal fee, which covers costs of hiring college students from the Chinatown Company members to provide tutoring.

Classes in English are also offered for adults on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday mornings from 9:00 to 12:00.

Students come to the classes as a result of paid and word-of-mouth advertising. For information, call 718/699-5322.

New Pastor at Old Westbury Church

Elder Jerry Armstrong was recently called to serve as pastor of the Old Westbury-Massapequa district on Long Island. Elder Armstrong and his wife, Melva, came to Greater New York from ministry in the Ontario, California, church. Prior to preparing to do pastoral work, Pastor Armstrong held management positions in the automotive and petroleum industries.

Elder John Williamson, who formerly served in the Old Westbury district is the new Ministerial director for the Conference.

New Company Organized in Quincy

As a result of the dedicated labor of Pastor William Brace and several lay persons during a two-year period, a new company of believers was organized in Quincy, Massachusetts.

At the present time they are meeting in a rented church and they are letting their lights shine brightly to tens of thousands of people in several towns in the area.

Southern New England Conference now has 69 churches and nine companies making a total of 8.312 members

NEMH Radiologists Receive Accreditation

The radiologic practice of Northeast Radiology Associates of New England Memorial Hospital (NEMH), in Stoneham, has been awarded full accreditation for a period of three years as a result of a recent survey by the American College of Radiology (ACR).

"The ACR accreditation means that the highest quality of radiologic services are being offered at New England Memorial Hospital," said Dr. Eli Etscovitz, NEMH Chief of Radiology. "It indicates to physicians that their patients at NEMH will benefit from state of the art radiology."

The members of the recently accredited practice are Eli Etscovitz, M.D., Fellow of the American College of Radiology; Robert De-Simone, M.D.; Dan Rich, M.D.; Richard Bakulski, M.D.; Eric Wilner, M.D.; Robert Leone, M.D.; Egle Pedini, M.D.; Mark Connaughton, M.D.; Richard Randazzo, M.D.; and Susanna Lee, M.D.

The College awards accreditation to a radiologic group for the achievement of high practice standards after a voluntary inspection of its practice. Surveys are conducted by radiologists who are members of the ACR. They access the quality of the work being performed as well as staff efficiency, physician performance and the adequacy of space and equipment available to the practice. The surveyors report their findings to the ACR's Committee on Accreditation which subsequently provides the practice with a comprehensive report.

The ACR Committee on Accreditation has evaluated and accredited hundreds of radiologic practices in hospitals and in private offices since it began conducting surveys in 1968.

Weight Control-It's More than Just a Diet!

As an adolescent, Julie Marcil had developed the "yo-yo" syndrome. In her efforts to lose weight, she would alternate between being a good dieter and a compulsive eater. When alone, she would binge on the food that her diet had eliminated.

"As I look back now, my attempts at dieting were futile, because of the 'yo-yo' syndrome," she said. "I would lose weight, then gain it back again. I soon had two sets of clothes—big and small."

Marcil made a variety of attempts to lose weight during her teen years. She would eat eggs, spinach and cottage cheese or have grapefuit to burn off the fat. Her diets were directed at counting calories without considering the quality of the food she ate.

Her weight control problems began when she was eight years old. "I was at a normal weight until the end of the first grade; then I blew up into a very chubby child," said Marcil. "The children in the neighborhood and in my school class called me 'Fatso.' They didn't like to have me on their teams, because I couldn't run as fast or climb a tree or fence. Even now, as an adult, it still hurts to think of how cruel the world can be when you don't fit the mold," she added.

Julie Marcil's personal struggle with weight management led to her decision to become a dietitian, specializing in the counseling of people with similar weight problems. A graduate of Framingham State College with a bachelor of science degree in nutrition, she later earned a master's degree in counseling and human development from St. Mary's College in Winona, Minnesota. Since college, Marcil has worked at an eating disorders clinic, conducted group and private counseling sessions and taught nutrition to students from grade school through college.

Julie Marcil

Working as the community health education coordinator in the New England Memorial Hospital (NEMH) Center for Health Promotion, she has been teaching the weight-control workshop there for the past four years.

"The number of participants in the workshop has grown to the point where NEMH now offers a complete range of nutrition and weight-control services," said Marcil. "There are two 10-week weight-control workshops, a maintenance program and a new class, called 'Shapedown,' designed specifically for teenagers."

"In addition to the group programs," she said, "individual counseling also is available by appointment. To complement the nutrition and weight-loss efforts, there is a variety of fitness programs and stress-management services available to the public."

The "Shapedown for Teens" program presents weight management directed at the unique needs and issues of adolescents. A parents' group also is offered.

For the future, Marcil envisions a 6:30 a.m. stretch class, followed by a low-fat, low-calorie breakfast and a visit with a dietitian or exercise physiologist. A lunchtime, lowimpact aerobics class followed by a light lunch is another possibility.

"My goal is to make coming to NEMH for weight management a part of the normal, daily routine, not just a place to come when you are ill or in need of a 'quick fix,' " said Marcil.

By the way, Marcil has maintained her desired weight level for 10 years. When it comes to weight-control management, she not only has the educational background and professional experience, but also has lived through the personal experience to show that weight control can be safely and successfully achieved.

Update

•Orchard Hill Athletic Club in Lancaster, MA, requested blood pressure screening from Southern New England Conference for their April 11 Health Fair. Trudy Carr, RN and Van Ministry volunteer, accepted the invitation. In 7½ hours she screened 100 persons. Ten were found to be hypertensive.

•The second Haitian Family Camp was held at Camp Winnekeag, Ashburnham, MA, April 15-17. Elder Nathanael Yrtil from Flordia Conference was the guest speaker. About 150 people attended Sabbath services.

•The spring Community Services meeting on April 17 was held in Bailey Hall South Lancaster, MA. Fifty Community Services directors from the churches attended the meeting. Meetings were given on child care during disaster time and Blood Pressure Evangelism. New Federation officers were elected. Sister Regina Jackson from Canaan, CT, was elected president.

•Easter week evangelism was held in three churches—Bridgeport, Leominster, Hartford Hispanic churches conducted evangelistic meetings geared toward Easter week. Pastors and lay people took part in the services. "The Life was Christ" was presented by film and video each night.

•Home Revelation Seminars are being held in Stamford, Bridgeport Spanish, Shelburne Falls, Warren, and Northboro churches. Several persons are reported to be attending church also.

She was an active member of the Seventh-day Adventist Church since 1925, serving as church treasurer, Sabbath school teacher, and organist through the years. She had been a member of the Bath, ME, church since 1969.

Survivors: two daughters Donna Kuczma of Survivors: two daughters Donna Kuczma of Castalian Springs, TN, and Lois Ponte of Clinton, MA; eight grandchildren; and 15 great-grandchildren. Her husband Daniel Kelly Bettle of 65 years predeceased her in 1979 and also her son Dr. Ronald Bettle died July 8, 1975. Funeral services were in Bath, ME, church and burial in Riverside Cemetery, Brunswick, ME.

Ruth Bettle

BOHNER, Ruth S., born Oct. 15, 1901, in Rochester, NY, died Jan. 31, 1988, in Fontana, CA. She was a member of the Stanley, VA, Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Mrs. Bohner was a former church school teacher and a colporteur in New York Conference and a minister's wife for 43 years. She also graded lessons for the 20th Century Bible School.

Survivors: a son John; two grandsons John III and Mark; two great-grandchildren Caristen and Geoffrey; a stepson Leonard; one sister Marion Simmons; and nieces, nephews, and cousins.

DAVIES, Harvey R., born Mar. 14, 1908, in Brantford, Ontario, died Dec. 2, 1987, at Suffield, CT. Harvey's very life has been music—arranging, composing, teaching, singing, conducting, studying, performing. Hundreds of lives have been enriched not only from studying under Harvey's faithfulness to excellence in music, but also from his musical per-

Harvey received his theology degree in 1932 and Bachelor of Arts in History in 1934 from Atlantic Union College. While at AUC he was band director and composed the school song. He continued his music studies at the Graduate School at Boston University.

His first position after graduating from AUC was at Cedar Lake Academy in Michigan as music teacher. While teaching music at both Greater Boston Academy and South Lancaster Academy he wrote the school songs. He was now embarked on a fruitful, long career of teaching, conducting, composing, and performing music. He also was in charge of the music in tent efforts summers in Grand Belding, MI. The list is very long of his many involvements with music in numerous places and occasions.

Survivors: his wife Evelyn Norcliffe Davies; four children Douglas, a physician in Windham, ME, David, a District Attorney at Santa Clara, CA, Roger, a health environmentalist in CA, and Dottie Marais who works with her husband in cardiology; and nine grandchildren.

DORN, Adolph, born Feb. 21, 1885, in New York City, died Nov. 9, 1987, in Silver Spring, MD. He was baptized in 1917 by Elder J. C. Stevens joining the Seventh-day Adventist Church and shortly became a literature evangelist.

Through his ministry as literature evangelist, many people were brought into the church, especially in the Long Island area. Later he served the church for 20 years as Transportation and Purchasing Agent for the General Conference in New York City, arranging transportation into and out of New York for missionaries and General Conference personnel traveling to the mission fields and back. He also purchased materials and supplies needed in the mission field and shipped them around the world. He served in these capacities until WWII brought an end to ocean travel. He worked again as literature evangelist for a brief time before working for the Chrylser Corp.

Survivors: two daughters Ruth Jenkins and Mabel Lawson; one son Walter; nine grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren. His wife Anna predeceased him in 1975. Also one daughter and one son preceded him in death.

KINNEY, Esther (Osterblom), born June 1, 1895, in Burlington, CT, died Feb. 18, 1988, in Glendora, CA. Her husband, Elder C.
