

President's Perspective

D. I. Douglas Devnich

IF ANYONE THINKS that today's economic recession will soon pass and that our global society will then return to "business as usual," he or she is dreaming.

Historically, North America has experienced many cyclical economic changes from recession to recovery. However, today the economists are telling us that we are in a unique time when dramatic cultural changes are taking place concurrently with a deep recession. The outcome predicted is a new economic cultural environment in the future. And, the experts tell us that it is the cultural environment that guides the economy.

My question is: How well prepared is the Seventh-day Adventist Church in Canada to deal constructively with the cultural environment to come?

Kenneth R. Hey, an international financial consultant has written in Inside Guide that, Because North Americans have changed how they live, the recession is not simply a temporary or cyclical economic downturn. It is the product of a significant cultural redirection that will make the business and political environment different after it is finished. ... In the 1980s, Americans associated spending and acquisitiveness with happiness. More recently, happiness for many Americans has involved security, simplicity and modesty, values that favour less flamboyant purchases and more basic expenditures.

Evidently North Americans have gone sour on supporting their wants, and have started to focus on their needs. Those needs must be met with quality goods and services. Hey suggests that to more and more people, happiness no longer depends upon material wealth. Conspicuous consumption has become a sign, not of success, but of a "spiritual vacuum"—and of greed, immorality, arrogance and antisocial behaviour. Learning has started to supplant buying as a hallmark of a life well lived. Our culture is changing.

Are you aware that hundreds of thousands of upper and middle-management people in North America in the last few years have plunged either into non-employment or into lower level jobs paying only a fraction of what they were accustomed to?

The March 23, 1992 issue of Business Week features an article about the downward mobility of the many once-secure managers and professionals in our society. Author Bruce Nussbaum et. al. writes:

Just as the last decade was defined by yuppies and their flamboyant material excesses, the 1990s may come to be the age of "dumpies"—downwardly mobile professionals. ... The downwardly mobile aren't just being temporarily cut loose in a recession. Since the mid-1980s, as corporations have responded to global competition and technological change by merging and consolidating, downsizing and delayering, some 2 million middle-management positions have been permanently eliminated.

I want you to know that I am not writing on this theme to pose as a kind of a "baptized and glorified social economist." Neither have I momentarily forgotten that the Church is a spiritual organization. I am writing so as to remind us that the Church must be prepared to face reality, not only for the sake of its economic survival but also for the sake of fulfilling its God-given mission in the world. And, I propose that it must either functionally change to respond pro-actively to the economic environment of today and tomorrow, or it will suffer great loss until outside forces cause it to change; perhaps against our will.

The lesson in the parable of the talents is instructive for the Church as well as for individuals. The servant who did not respond to the opportunity for improving the value of his resources was held accountable for his neglect. Jesus said, "To every one who has will more be given, and he will have abundance; but from him who has not, even what he has will be taken away (Matthew 25:29)." Let not the Church fail in accountability for not having responded to the opportunity for good management in our modern times.

This month's President's Perspective is the first of two parts. Herein, I have stated a problem. Next month I will propose a solution which I believe must be implemented in order for the Church to successfully come through the economic/cultural difficulties of our modern times.

The era of consumption is gone. Ahead of us is structural reform, not only in the business world but in the Church as well. A kind of North American perestroika has begun, not because leadership has decided it is for the best, but because constituents have had enough of the way things have been going. Responsible church members—laity and ministry, are calling for operational efficiency and stricter accountability of the employed personnel. Not only must the Church become more effective in pursuing its mission but it must be cost efficient.

This is a big order. How can we possibly respond?

Read this column next month because there is a Biblically based and reasonable solution.

You have heard about the Ukraine Sister Union project. Everyone is excited. We have reported on the native ministries project. Now comes the third project for the Church in Canada.

French-Canadian Ministries

The Province of Quebec has approximately 6.5 million French-speaking people scattered over a wide geographic area. Literally scores of towns and villages are unreached. Here is your opportunity to become involved in a new and exciting ministry to reach these people with the gospel.

Early Television Ministry in Quebec

In the early seventies, the French version of Il Est Ecrit known as "Il Est Ecrit" was first released in Quebec. At that time there were only three French-speaking pastors and about 50 French-speaking members who were born in Quebec.

Today in Quebec we have 550 French-speaking white Quebecois members worshipping in 18 churches and companies. We also have four French-speaking pastors native to Quebec. It is evident that the television program was, to a large degree, instrumental in expanding the evangelistic work in Quebec. But due to a reduction of financial support over the past 4 years, the television program had to be discontinued. Before going off the air, it had become necessary to use repeat broadcasts, and for several years there was no new material.

Quebec Conference Launches New Media Ministry

A team of three full-time workers is being assigned to the new ministry. It will include outreach through:

- Television ministry
- Radio ministry
- Bible Correspondence School
- Telephone evangelism
- Lay training
- Public evangelism

Doors of opportunity are open now, and the potential for outreach through media ministry is greater than ever before. The new "Il Est Ecrit" television program

Janitor seeks Supreme Court on claim discrimination cost him his job

The Canadian Press

It took seven years, but Larry Renaud sat in the Supreme Court of Canada on Tuesday as judges heard his claim that he lost his job because of religious discrimination. "I fought it all the way to the Supreme Court just because I want my job back, and also for the other people it might affect because I have been discriminated against," said Renaud, a member of the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Renaud, 36, of Kelowna, B.C., was fired as a school janitor in 1985 when he refused to work on his church's sabbath, from sundown

Spring Valley Elementary School. But he refused to work past sundown on Friday — the normal quitting time was 11 p.m. — because Seventh-day Adventists are not allowed to work on the sabbath except for humanitarian reasons such as saving lives.

The school board was willing to let Renaud work Sunday to Thursday. But his union, the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said that would violate their contract. The board refused to do anything without union approval.

A human rights tribunal ruled Renaud had been discriminated against and ordered that he get his job back as well as $14,000 from the board and union.

But the British Columbia Supreme Court ruled that work was part of the contract. Lawyers argued that the board nor union did not discriminate against Renaud. Renaud claims it offered him a job, but it would have to ask it to unilaterally change the contract. He says it would have been able to accommodate him without hurting other workers. He was forced to work eight shifts.

Board of School Trustees, School District No. 23 et al.
(British Columbia)

HEARING DATE: March 24, 1992

The Appellant was advised by the School Board that his employment as a custodian was terminated as a result of his refusal to complete his regular shift from 3:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. on Friday, June 14, 1985. As a member of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church, the Appellant must strictly observe the Sabbath, from Friday sundown until Saturday sundown. The Appellant filed a complaint pursuant to s. 9 of the British Columbia Human Rights Act against the Union. He also filed a complaint against the School Board pursuant to s. 8 of the Act. The Member Designate appointed by the British Columbia Council of Human Rights found that the requirement that a custodian be present for the 3:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. shift was related to the occupational requirement. She went on to find that the requirement was a bona fide occupational requirement, and that the School Board and the Union to accommodate the Appellant must pay him $6,250 as compensation for the loss of his position as a school custodian. The School Board and the Union brought the Member Designate's decision. The British Columbia Court of Appeal dismissed the Appellant's application and quashed the decision. The Appellant applied to the Supreme Court of Canada by leave.

The following are the issues raised in this case:

1. Whether regular attendance at work by the Appellant as a bona fide occupational requirement of the employer is a bona fide occupational requirement of the employer or the labour union where, for reasons of religious belief, the Appellant employee was unable to work part of a particular shift.
2. Whether the employer or the labour union has made a reasonable accommodation if he is to work part of a shift for religious reasons.

Supreme Court History

by Karnik Doukmetzian

MARCH 24, 1992 was an historic day in the annals of Canadian Adventist legal history as three Adventist lawyers appeared before the Canadian Supreme Court to advance the case of a church member and to present the views of the Church before the court.

The case arose out of the termination of Larry Steve Renaud of Kelowna B.C. who was discharged from his job as a result of his refusal to work during the Sabbath hours in June of 1985. It has taken Mr. Renaud seven years to reach the highest court in the land with this case in an attempt to secure the return of his job. Mr. Renaud was represented at the hearing by Adventist lawyer Karen Scott as well as local Ottawa counsel Henry Brown.

The Seventh-day Adventist Church which had been granted leave by the court to intervene and present argument on this case was represented by Adventist lawyers Karnik Doukmetzian and Gerry Chipeur. In addition, the Ontario Human Rights Commission and a disability rights group, The Disabled People For Employment Equity intervened and presented argument in support of the positions taken by Mr. Renaud and the Church.

The argument advanced by Mr. Renaud's lawyers was that Mr. Renaud held sincere religious beliefs which the employer and the labour union at his place of employment had to accommodate by making arrangements for him to secure the appropriate time off. Since neither the employer or the union made any efforts to accommodate him, the court has been asked to rule whether both had the obligation to accommodate Mr. Renaud.

Argument was heard by seven judges of the Supreme Court who listened as they were told by Karnik Doukmetzian on behalf of the church that Mr. Renaud takes his relationship with God seriously. For an individual who believes in the supremacy of God, religion is not something that can be abandoned without consequence. The court was also told that two of the cardinal beliefs of the Seventh-day Adventist Church are highlighted in its name. A belief in the sacredness of the seventh day of the week and a belief in the soon return of Jesus Christ. Seventh-day Adventists can no more abandon their belief in the Sabbath than a lame person can get up and walk. Seventh-day Adventists would rather die than betray their relationship with God.

The court was reminded that the former Chief Justice of Canada stated that "Attempts to compel belief or practice deny the reality of individual conscience and dishonour the God that planted it in His creatures. The values that underlie our political and philosophic traditions demand that every individual be free to hold and manifest whatever beliefs and opinions his or her conscience dictates provided that such manifestations do not injure his or her neighbours or their parallel rights to hold and manifest beliefs and opinions of their own."

Mr. Renaud could not help but manifest his

John Whalley 1914-1992

On February 27, the Conference office personnel were stunned when the news broke, "Pastor John Whalley has passed away." No one could believe it. Only a few days earlier Pastor Whalley was with us, full of life and energy although he was 78 years old.

Pastor E. English went to see him and found him asleep in Jesus and waiting for the Lord's return. He was still holding an open Bible, the last book he read before the cardiac arrest. Beside him was a Spirit of Prophecy book.

As he accompanied the Canadian troops in Italy, during the Second World War, John met Jesus and never parted from Him. I remember that he told me one day: "There are two things that I would not want to do: go door to door to witness and be a literature evangelist." But all those who were acquainted with John know that, for him, when God speaks he had to obey.

He raised his family by selling our books door to door. Later on he became an ordained minister. The thrill of his life was to train members to witness door to door for the Lord. He had only one goal: "Talk about Jesus and walk with Him." Quebec has lost one of their great men and the Church mourns his passing. Left to cherish his memory are his wife Lucille, his two sons Robert and John and their families.

At 2 p.m. on Sabbath, February 29, 1992, the funeral services were held in the Westmount Church. More than 1,200 family members, friends and admirers gathered to pay their last respects to this man of God.

John is gone, but "his works follow him." At the Lord's return he will rise to meet the One he loved so much and whom he served with zeal and perseverance.

Attention: All Senior Workers

By D.A. Delafield

The Eleventh Annual Convocation of Retired Workers convenes at Southern College, Collegedale, Tennessee, June 10-15, 1992. The opportunities for reunion and fellowship with old friends in the Lord's work will be legion. Hundreds have already registered but there is still room in the dormitories and plenty of goodies in the kitchen for hungry prime-timers, so we urge you to register at once. But first of all, just a little more information.

The prayer breakfast on Sabbath morning and the Sunday evening banquet will be highlights. There will be discussion groups, alumni reunions, the special day for recreation and good fun.

Opportunities for discussing health problems of the elderly will be on the agenda. The General Conference retirement professionals will be present to answer questions about retirement and medical benefits.

The spiritual menu includes some of the denomination's best and most enjoyable speakers. There will be prime-time music with Dr. Harold Lickey and Dr. Melvin West. The special feature will be the King's Heralds Quartet (vintage of 1962), Bob Edwards, Jerry Dill, Wayne Hooper and John Thurber. Oh, it's going to be a super convocation—the very best yet!

The theme will be snatched from the courageous words of Caleb to Joshua found in Joshua 14:12, "Give Me This Mountain." The eighty-five year old patriarch was still able to muster an army and drive out the giant Anakims. Like his mentor before him, the eighty year old Moses, Caleb was ready to move and do things for God.

Moses and his older brother

Aaron and his older sister Miriam were able at that senior age to lead the children of God in the miraculous exodus out of Egypt into the glories of the Promised Land.

Please take advantage of this spiritual privilege afforded to our retired workers by the General Conference. For a registration form and more information write to: D.A. Delafield, Coordinator Retirees' Affairs, General Conference of S.D.A., 12501 Old Columbia Pike, Silver Spring, MD 20904

He then moved to Newfoundland where he also served as secretary-treasurer of the Mission until May 31, 1984 until he received a call to the National Headquarters to serve as Assistant Treasurer.

Elder Coolen has served as Assistant Treasurer, Under Treasurer and most recently as Treasurer of the SDA Church in Canada.

We will miss Elder Coolen's cheerful spirit and his positive Christian leadership. We wish him God's blessings as he continues to serve Him.

Mwema from Zaire clutches one of her most precious toys, a tin can which ADRA daily fills with milk.

If 40,000 Canadian geese were dying daily, Canadians from coast to coast would be in an uproar. (Remember the two trapped whales in the Arctic a few months ago?)

Statistics paint a grim picture—40,000 children world wide die every day from malnutrition, preventable diseases and other calamities—and there isn't much clamor! We need to hear more.

Too many Canadians think the situation in the Developing World is hopeless. But the shock of what is possible is found in this brief report of ADRA's activities during 1991. What has been accomplished depended upon linking your hands—all across the country through ADRA—with the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) in Ottawa.

This past year has indicated that the world is not ready to abandon old habits. Brutal wars, starvation, lack of primary health care, food production and emergency relief still cry out for help.

But periods of change are also periods of opportunity. You and I move between two worlds: one that wastes food and the other where hunger and malnutrition are chronic.

The problem is not food shortages, it's inequality. Those who have the power also seem to have the food.

It is possible to end the crisis of poverty.

The Shock of the Possible

It is possible to end serious malnutrition.

It is possible to provide universal primary education, health care and safe water.

A 3% cut in annual military spending in the industrialized countries would be more than adequate to meet basic human needs.

We are not talking about charity, but an invitation to invest in developing human potential. The Developing World's greatest resource is its people—77% of whom earn 15% of the world's income. Let us remember that the Developing World has many astonishing achievements that have come in the face of overwhelming odds.

What can we all do to help shape the future?

1. Learn more about international cooperation.

2. Tell your elected representatives, your friends and neighbours that you support the investment in human resources in the Developing World.

3. Discuss international challenges with the youth and how those issues relate to their own lives.

4. Make your donation to ADRA Canada—give your own gift and then another in a friend's name.

The Annual ADRA Disaster and Famine Relief offering is May 9. Enjoy the shock of what is possible! A very special thank you for your fantastic support in 1991.

"Christian Education Because..."

Janice Saliba Director of Education Seventh-day Adventist Church in Canada

IN PREPARATION for the celebration of Education Day, this spring, there are two verses of Scripture that seem appropriate.

"Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven." Matt. 18:3

"...and a little child shall lead them." Isa 11:6

With those thoughts in mind, this feature article is written, and published unedited, by Alison Carby, a Grade 6 student.

Christian Education by Alison Carby

Christian education means a lot to me. Because when you are educated in a Christian environment everything is different. One reason is because the teachers are all Christians and know all about God and His commandments. Therefore there is no swearing or yelling from the teachers (or the kids).

Another reason is that you don't have to go to church to learn about God. You can learn about God in school everyday, and that is the way that it should be.

Another reason is that the children around you won't look at you and put you down or tell you that you are weird or funny, for they know that God says we are to love one another. When you are Christian educated you can talk freely to others about your religion, and you don't have to be timid to say the word "God" or "Jesus".

There are also advantages of being Christian educated. When you are Christian educated the teachers spend more time teaching you and helping you with your work, than yelling. So in other words the teachers are serious about teaching. In a Christian school you have good rules to protect you and keep you on the right track.

There are still many more things that I like about Christian education but they are too numerous to write.

Other students concur and say:

Heather Knight

Christian Education is alright. The best things about the school are that they're small and you know almost everyone in the whole school. We also get out of school on Fridays at noon.

Erin Weststrate

Four reasons I like being in a Christian school—

1. Half school on Fridays because we have to get ready for Sabbath.
2. Bible classes with our pastors.
3. We get most of the religious holidays.
4. Learn more about God.

Jason Woods

I like Christian education because you can get closer to God and the teachers care about you at your school. Christian education is a serious subject. Christian education is when you really deep down love

God and you have faith in Him. Christian school is fun. You talk about God every day and you can get more education than public school. You meet more friends that help you get to know God. That's why I like Christian education.

Melanie Tabigne

A Christian education is one of the best kinds of education there is. You learn things about the Bible and what happened to people long time ago.

We learn what things are right and what things are wrong. You also learn very good manners. You learn not to smoke, drink, and swear.

In my opinion I think that having a Christian education is very nice.

Alex Dell

I like going to a Christian school because I like talking about God. All the teachers are nice and they pay attention to each individual. The kids here are nice. If you ask if you can play with them they say, "sure" instead of "no".

Tiiu Burrell

I think that Christian Education is great. The Christian schools have great books for Bible classes which we have every morning. The Bible books help children to understand God more. The teachers help to bring non-Christian children to know about God.

Nicola Bujak

I enjoy attending an Adventist Academy because of the Christlike characters displayed by the students, the friendship and caring attitude of the students, and because I am taught the principles of the SDA church. I also appreciate not being exposed to worldly things.

Sanjana Patra

Christian education is or has been a terrific influence on me. I have attended public schools and find that Christian education offers more than education. Although the public education system has good points, Christian schools draw a person closer to God.

Rosalie O'Dell

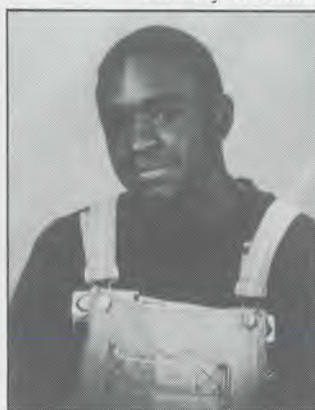

Adventist education means a lot to me. I feel I can trust people more and I'm not put down when I believe in God or when I talk about Him. I like it when we pray before tests and the teachers teach us a Christian perspective on the subjects we take. I like it when they're willing to help us in our Christian growth.

Eddie Hung

The right education includes many approaches. But I think if everyone can accept this type of education, it would help to make society become more at peace.

Rodney Redman

Christian education to me is very important. It teaches us Christian values and morals that you wouldn't find in public school. It helps us to go through our daily lives without breaking down. Christian education will help you to become a better person inside & out.

Allan Nieva

There are numerous reasons why I enjoy my Adventist Academy, but they all stem from one word—togetherness. I have received personal feedback from the teachers, formed close friendships with many of the students, and have been constantly motivated. The overall ambience has inspired me to strive for mental, social, and spiritual excellence.

Heather McKenzie

I like attending a Seventh-day Adventist school because I learn the same values I learn at home and at church. I also have a better choice of friends, and I feel that the education is at a high level.

The students have said it all. On April 25, celebrate our teachers and students in your churches and whisper a prayer for those of us who have chosen to work with our children.

EDUCATION
An Adventist Essential

Women's Ministry: Questions and Answers

by Jean Parchment, Director, Women's Ministry, S.D.A. Church in Canada

THE YEAR 1990 marked the beginning of Women's Ministry activities in Canada. Since then, over 1,462 women experienced spiritual enrichment and growth through weekend retreats and seminars. Many non Seventh-day Adventist visitors attended these events. Three people were influenced for baptism. Several have recommitted their lives to Christ, to the church, to their spouses and families.

However, because of the newness of Women's Ministry, there is a degree of ambiguity regarding the purpose, function and structure of this ministry. In an attempt to offer clarification some frequently asked questions are addressed as follows:

 Is this ministry necessary?

Women experience emotional and physical needs that are unique to them. Many women experience discomfort in expressing these needs in settings that incorporate both genders. Therefore,

Pastor Nancy Canwell of Walla Walla, Washington, ministering to Canadian women in a weekend retreat.

Women's Ministry provides the arena where spiritual needs can be expressed and addressed within the context of the Seventh-day Adventist church.

The SDA Church specializes in meeting specific needs. Pathfinder, family life, singles ministry, etc., are specialized programs designed to meet specialized needs. Individual groups such as these have not, over the years, fragmented the church but instead, have fostered spiritual and social harmony.

In much the same way Women's Ministry has been designed to meet the specialized needs of women who comprise more than half of the SDA Church membership. This ministry, in addition to those already in existence, will continue to build cohesiveness and enrichment in the church family.

 What is the goal of Women's Ministry?

The goal of women's ministry is to nurture women in Christ. Consequently, when a woman's spiritual needs are met she becomes more fulfilled spiritually, socially, and emotionally. In turn, her influence in the home, church and community becomes a positive one.

 Is Women's Ministry approved by the SDA Church?

On September 19, 1990 the North American Division voted to establish an office of Women's Ministry. On October 4, 1990 The General Conference Committee also voted to establish an office of Women's Ministry. Women's Ministry Directors have been appointed in each Union in the North American Division.

 Does the Bible and the Spirit of Prophecy support Women's Ministry?

Titus 2:3-5 refers to older women being teachers and role models to younger women. Luke 1:39-56 portrays Mary, the future mother of Jesus and Elizabeth, the expectant mother of John the Baptist ministering to each other during a very delicate phase of both of their lives.

Among many statements from the Spirit of Prophecy referring to Women ministering to women is Letter 54, 1899:

I have so longed for women who could be educated to help our sisters rise from their discouragement and feel that they could do a work for the Lord. This is bringing rays of sunshine into their own lives, which are reflected into the hearts of others. God will bless you and all who unite with you in this grand work.

Other sources supporting Women's Ministry are, Evangelism, p. 460, 464, 493. Welfare Ministry, p. 160, Medical Ministry, p. 140.

 Who benefits from Women's Ministry?

Women's Ministry is gender inclusive. It embraces women of all age groups, race, social, educational, economic, and marital status. Barriers dissolve as together, women seek spiritual renewal and growth in their Saviour and Friend.

 Is this ministry focused on women's liberation issues?

Women's Ministry is as the name implies, women ministering to others.

The focus of Women's Ministry is derived from Testimonies, vol. 4, p. 642.

Sisters, we may do a noble work for God if we will. Woman does not know her power. God did not intend that her capabilities should be all absorbed in questioning: What shall I eat? What shall I drink? and wherewithal shall I be clothed? There is a higher purpose for woman, a grander destiny. She should develop and cultivate her powers, for God can employ them in the great work of saving souls from eternal ruin.

 What is the structure of Women's Ministry?

The North American Division recommends that each Union appoint a woman to be the Director of Women's Ministry. Each Conference appoint a woman to be the Director of Women's Ministry. Each church appoint a woman to be the Women's Ministry Coordinator.

 Is there a Women's Ministry Director in your Conference?

Several Conferences in Canada have appointed Women's Ministry Directors. A call to your Conference Administrators will supply you with the necessary information regarding the person appointed to be the Women's Ministry Director for your Conference.

 Now that a Women's Ministry Director is appointed for the Conference, what is next?

The Women's Ministry Director for your conference will encourage each local church to appoint a Women's Ministry Coordinator. The Conference Women's Ministry Director serves as a resource person. Along with the Women's Ministry Coordinators from the local churches, she will help to plan and facilitate Conference wide programs.

 Is this ministry only for SDA Church members?

Programs are designed to reach individuals without and within the SDA church. One such example; the Welcome Baby Program, is a popular outreach program authored by Kay Kuzma.

This is a step by step program designed to attract young non-SDA parents to the fellowship of the SDA Church. Other programs such as prayer breakfasts, visitation, support groups, health related seminars, Bible study groups, weekend seminar/retreats also include non-SDA friends.

Health-Wise

by Raymond O. West, M.D.

Walk, Walk Around the Block

Perhaps a few of our Health-Wise readers can remember the song, "An Old-fashioned Walk." A line or two of the lyrics went something like this: "I know a girl who declined, couldn't make up her mind. She was wrapped up and sold, coming home from an old-fashioned walk." There's something definitely nostalgic, even romantic.

While old-fashioned romance might have taken a beating in these modern times of decaying values, it's hard to fault the value of a good walk around the block in any society, in any age.

For all-round fitness, there are few exercises that beat paddling a canoe or rowing a boat. While both these desirable pastimes provide excellent exercise for shoulders and arms as well as abdomen, pelvic girdle, and lower extremities, canoes, punts, and the water to put them in is not often accessible. While walking doesn't develop gladiator arms and shoulders, it's hard to beat for general body tone. And the surface of the earth is almost always available.

Walking burns calories—about 100 to the mile. While fat is being consumed by the body's metabolic furnaces, muscle mass is augmented.

There are plenty of other benefits to walking. For example, the bad kind of cholesterol (low density lipo-protein—LDL) is diminished. At the same time the desirable high density lipo-protein (good cholesterol—HDL) goes up.

We can, in many cases, walk our blood pressure from high to normal levels. Thus, we can reduce the risk of heart attacks—that scourge of modern American adults, that disease that sometimes dramatically, often agonizingly slow, takes more than three hundred thousand Americans (thirty thousand Canadians) every year.

Are you depressed? Take a brisk walk, and feel your spirits soar.

Are you filled with anxiety, or "stressed out"? Walk a mile and revel in your sense of well-being.

Walking may not be without some potential for injury—often injuries of "over-use." It is even possible to crack a bone in the foot, simply by walking. Too much, all at once, is not as good as just enough with gradual increase.

Your family physician will be delighted to counsel you concerning a walking program, fit for your age, body build, and gender. But a half hour, four to five times a week, is about right for most of us.

Your Health-Wise reporter does not denigrate the value of stationary bicycles, rowing machines, and the like. But he does believe in the great out-of-doors and the exalting experience of walking with the blue skies (and fluffy clouds) overhead, the song of birds, and the sense of freedom provided by sturdy muscles and well-oiled joints.

You know best the hazards of your own neighbourhood. You must, of course, give attention to walking safety with well-lighted paths.

Recall the advertisement that suggested walking a mile for a certain brand of cigarette? Some have found that walking is just the thing to diminish the craving for cigarettes and, indeed, most any vice of an addictive nature.

Let's put our best foot forward and walk our way to fitness.

religious belief that the seventh day of the week is holy. Such manifestations and the accommodations which might have been afforded him would not have injured his neighbours, his fellow employees. Mr. Renaud, was not offered any option by his employer. The employer argued that it tried but was frustrated at its attempts by the union. As such, since it was not required to render more than a minimum effort to the point of undue hardship to find an accommodation for Mr. Renaud, it had met that minimum effort in its attempts. The law is quite clear that employers must accommodate an individual's religious beliefs to the point of undue hardship on them. It was critical that the court understand that many employers make accommodations for someone who has a physical disability but when religion was involved, the genuineness of the request and the employer's trivial response come into play. Religious beliefs are not something that can be cast off capriciously. If they are sincerely held, accommodation must be made. As such, it is important that in our daily practice we live what we believe.

This idea of a minimum effort was commented on in an Ontario case involving a Seventh-day Adventist worker where the hearing officer stated that "the very term 'undue' hardship itself indicates that there is some hardship 'due', and it is only hardship which goes beyond this minimum that can be relied upon by a respondent as a defence." The court is being asked to rule whether the school board achieved the effort required to accommodate.

While the duty to accommodate is there, the significance of this case is that the court must decide how far employers and unions are required to go in order to accommodate workers who face religious discrimination.

The court was also told by counsel for the Church that Canadians are a tolerant people and benefit from having principled people like Mr. Renaud in their midst. Religious diversity is to everyone's benefit and so must be everyone's burden. The human rights legislation must be interpreted in a manner which allows Mr. Renaud and others to fully participate in our society without unnecessary burdens on their religious freedom.

Mr. Renaud, present in court for the hearing, was asked by the local media why he has continued with this case through seven years of hearings at various court levels. He stated that he persevered because he wants his job back, because he was discriminated against and because of the benefit a favourable decision in his case would have on others who are discriminated against. Asked how he has supported himself and his family through this ordeal, Mr. Renaud replied that "it has been very hard, but the Lord always gave us support."

The court is expected to render its verdict by early summer. In the meantime, both counsel and Mr. Renaud will continue to anxiously await the final act of this long drama. When this decision is released, it is anticipated that it will form the third corner of a triangle of the leading human rights cases dealing with employee accommodation and upon which all future decisions will be based. It is significant to know that the Seventh-day Adventist Church has played a prominent role in each of these three cases.

The Needs

New programs need to be produced. The greatest initial expense will be the production of 26 new television programs in September of 1992, to be aired in January of 1993. Your help is needed to produce these new programs. French Canadian Ministries is needing $35,000 from the members across Canada to make this project a reality.

May 30, 1992—Canada—Wide Offering

The Global Mission offering on May 30, is going to help fund the production of these new programs. An offering of $35,000 is needed. However, we know that the generous spirit of our members can provide even more. So please be generous and remember the needs of French Canadians. Global Mission means French Media Ministry.

Aerials Visit Ottawa

Friday evening, March 27, found the Aerials Gymnastic Team billeted in hospitable homes in Ottawa. After Sabbath services and a delicious potluck shared with church members, they toured the Ottawa-Hull area. Supper was also served at the church and then the Aerials performed at a local high school. Following the program, the Aerials were all invited to a team member's home to eat and see themselves on video.

Concert Band

The Concert Band spent their 11-day spring break tour performing sacred and secular concerts in North Bay, Sudbury, Thunder Bay, Chicago and Windsor. In Minnesota they attended a North Stars game. Tours in Chicago included Shedd Aquarium, The Sears Tower, the Chicago Symphony and lots of (window?) shopping. The students are thankful for the many homes that opened to them, and considered the tour an amazing success.

Symphonic Choir

The Choir's spring break tour took them from Florida to New York State, spreading the Word of God in many different churches through joyous song. Choir members also had a lot of fun at Busch Gardens and Wet 'n Wild. Even though they spent many long, tiring hours cramped on the bus, they believe they learned not to judge people by outward appearance but by personality.

The choir reports that the trip was a very good experience because it brought students and staff closer together and it strengthened their spiritual lives.

College Days

College Days are for students who have not yet attended Kingsway College. If you will be a high school student next year, come and visit the campus April 24 to 26. For transportation, contact your pastor or teacher or Kingsway's Recruiter, Mr. Gary Dooks.

Alumni Weekend

The Alumni Association is planning a big reunion for May 1-3. The Welcome Mat is out and you are invited. If you need more information, contact Greg Bussey, Alumni President, at Kingsway.

Dear Friends:

Kingsway College has appointed an Affordable Housing Committee to undertake a study to assess the need for the development of a non-profit seniors and family housing project in the Oshawa area.

The proposed project would contain a mix of tenants paying market rents and tenants paying rents geared to income. All units would be self-contained.

In order to qualify for rent-geared-to-income housing, tenants would need to meet the following criteria:

- *Be a non-homeowner or a homeowner willing to sell your home.
- *Be a senior citizen, or a family with one or more children.
- *Be a Canadian citizen, or a landed immigrant.
- *Be in relatively good health, that is, able to cope independently. (Includes handicapped persons)

Your assistance in determining whether there is a need for such a project would be greatly appreciated. The following questionnaire will help to determine how many people would be interested in living in the project, and how many people might require rental assistance.

Your reply will be kept in the strictest confidence.

The questionnaire is not an application for accommodation. Its purpose is solely to identify if there is a need for such a project. If the project goes ahead, you will be contacted and asked whether you wish to submit an application for accommodation.

ONLY BY COMPLETING A QUESTIONNAIRE CAN YOU HELP IDENTIFY THE NEED FOR THIS TYPE OF PROJECT.

Please return the questionnaire by April 30, 1992. Thank you very much for your help.

Yours sincerely,

Homecoming 1992

Bread in the oven, ice cream in the freezer, friends meeting friends, looking through old annuals—these all herald homecomings. And on this campus it's Homecoming 1992, June 12-14. Honoured guests this year include many former presidents who played a role in gaining degree-granting status from the Government of Alberta.

This spring the College will be honouring the classes of 1917, 1922, 1927, 1932, 1937, 1942, 1947, 1952, 1957, and 1962. Although the College is honouring those classes, all alumni and friends are invited to come and join the celebration.

Friday evening, June 12, the Alumni Association will be hosting a Celebration Banquet to honour the attainment of accreditation. Donations will be accepted at the door for the Banquet and all proceeds will be applied to our Annual Fund campaign. If our goal of $25,000 is reached, these funds will be matched by a $25,000 grant. Other special programs include the President's Reception, Class Reunions, Sacred Concert and Campus Tours.

All alumni and friends of the College are considered family here on the hilltop. We welcome you and your families to come and share this special weekend with us—Homecoming 1992.

Forty-five to Graduate

On May 2, 1992, thirty-one of this year's forty-five graduates will receive Baccalaureate degrees during commencement exercises at Canadian Union College. Fourteen of the forty-five are candidates for degrees at the summer convocation on July 30.

Twenty-three of the diplomas presented are from the Division of Education, fifteen from the Division of Science and seven from the Division of Arts. These degrees represent Business Administration, Behavioral Science, Religious Studies, Education, Biology, and Music. In addition, three will graduate with a two-year Associate of Science degree in Office Administration, one with a certificate in Word Processing and another in Native Ministries.

Graduation speakers include Dr. Dorothy Minchin-Comm, who is a Professor of English from La Sierra University, Dr. Neville O. Matthews, former CUC president who is currently President of Spicer Memorial College and Dr. Ottilie F. Stafford, who is the director of the Adult Degree Program at Atlantic Union College.

Skoretz Goes to Europe on Special Assignment

Two individuals from North America have been asked by the General Conference to spend April, May and June in what used to be the Soviet Union giving guidance to Union and Conference personnel in the areas of accounting and administration. Bernard Skoretz, Vice President for Financial Administration from Canadian Union College, and George Selivanoff, a professor from La Sierra University in California, were chosen for this assignment.

Skoretz and Selivanoff will also address denominational practices, policies, accounting procedures and assist with financial reports.

Included in their itinerary are the: Baltic Union Conference, Moldova Union Conference, Russian Union Conference, Southern Union Conference, and the Ukrainian Union Conference.

To visit this part of Europe has been a dream of Skoretz's for a long time. He expressed excitement over this trip, "particularly now that the church can operate in freedom." In addition to serving the church in this capacity, Skoretz admitted to a personal aspect. "I am looking forward to finding some more of my relatives."

Rudolph Skoretz, Bernard's brother, is currently holding a series of meetings in Chenivenski. Initially he was to hold one meeting a night. When the first meeting convened there were over 1,500 people waiting outside who could not attend because the room was filled. He is now holding four meetings per day with 1,500 in attendance at each meeting. Rudolph's wife, Estelle Gabrys, is a part of the evangelistic team. Both Rudolph and Estelle are alumni of Canadian Union College.

Just before the beginning of this venture, a special prayer of dedication for protection and a plea for the Lord's blessing was held in the College Heights Seventh-day Adventist Church at the worship time. You, as members of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in Canada, are invited to join CUC's faculty, staff and student body as they continue to remember Skoretz as he serves his church in Russia.

Ontario Conference Averts Layoffs

The Executive Committee of the Ontario Conference voted to avert any layoffs of personnel. The committee proposed in their January 26th meeting that program reductions and layoffs of staff were necessary in order to balance 1992's operating budget. However, the Committee meeting of February 23rd voted:

1. A 4.7% rollback in salary and allowances (This returns to August, 1990 levels; this would represent $150 to $190 US per month).

2. Attrition would be the means of staff reduction (Retirements and worker moves would be covered with existing staff).

3. "Program" expense in the conference would be reduced by $450,000.

4. The Executive Committee would carefully monitor finances to restore salaries and operations to normal as soon as possible.

Thunder Bay Baptism

Members of the Port Arthur Church in Thunder Bay rejoiced to witness the baptism of David Gilbert on Sabbath, January 25. David started attending church over a year ago and was a member of the pastor's Bible Class. His brother John is a pastor in the Maritimes and his two sisters are members of our church. When he was finished reading the book, Your Bible and You, which his sister, Sylvia Silvester gave to him he decided to be baptized.

Hamilton Mountain Baptisms

Six months have passed since Earl Cameron, conference evangelist, held an evangelistic series at Hamilton Mountain Church. The entire membership experienced a revival. Three baptisms have taken place since that time. The new members are pictured below.

Pastor Eric Juriansz performed the baptismal rite for Monica Terecik.

Richard Scott Ritchie was baptized November 23 by Pastor Jack Friesen, joining the Hamilton Mountain Church.

CHIP Program Comes to Cornwall

Close to 1000 enrollees in the CHIP (Coronary Health Improvement Project with Dr. Hans Diehl) had their blood pressures checked, gave blood for triglyceride and cholesterol studies and answered dietary and stress questionnaires. They came day after day, week after week. The results showed blood pressures had come down and cholesterol levels had dropped, cutting the risk of heart disease in half. This was in the spring of 1990 in Ottawa.

As a S.D.A. registered nurse and health educator in Cornwall, 100 miles from Ottawa, I became very enthused about the health message. I could hardly believe what I heard. Could this also happen in Cornwall?

With the support of the S.D.A. Church (44 members) and the medical community in Cornwall, the CHIP team has now evolved with good leadership from our pastor with the Ottawa pastor as a consultant. The team members are networking with the people of Cornwall and surrounding towns. The entire community is astir with CHIP talk. The program begins in April, continuing into May. Let me tell you of some of the doors of opportunity which have opened the way for this program in our city.

- A major car dealership in Green Valley offered Dr. Hans Diehl a courtesy car for the entire eight-week educational effort.

- Farm Boy, one of Cornwall's big food stores, made their fresh produce available for the CHIP Applied Nutrition Workshops which are designed to attract 500 participants.

- An entire office suite, complete with photocopier, has been offered to the CHIP team. It is sponsored by the City Centre.

- Two newspapers, the Vankleek Hill Review and the Standard Freeholder are running a weekly health column featuring Dr. Diehl and Dr. Shah for one full year.

- The Lord has led a wonderful, Spirit-filled lady from Wisconsin, to come to Cornwall as a full-time volunteer CHIP secretary. She even brought her own computer.

A lot more has happened during these last nine months of preparation, and now as the doors of the Civic Complex Auditorium open, may the Master Teacher's strategies be duplicated. This assures success. "Christ's method alone will give true success in reaching the people. The Saviour mingled with men as one who desired their good. He showed His sympathy for them, ministered to their needs and won their confidence. Then He bade them, 'Follow Me'."

Ministry of Healing, p. 143.

Whitby-Kendalwood Baptisms

There was great rejoicing in the Whitby-Kendalwood church January 25, as six dear people were baptized into Christ and His remnant church. Among them were four members of the Nisperos family; Rodolfo, Esther, Rubierose, and Rodelyn, who testified of the peace of mind and family togetherness they enjoyed while studying the scriptures. Donald Macdonald testified: "Being baptized means everything to me. I praise Jesus every day and thank God." Michael Mathews kept the Sabbath for years, but now praises God "for heading me to the truth and to the church that is to preach the end-time gospel."

Previously, on January 3, two more souls, Sheila Johnson and Gordon O'Dell were accepted into church fellowship following Gordon's baptism at an impressive New Year's Eve program. Praise God for these precious souls!

Mayor Worships in Abbotsford Church

On February 15 George Ferguson, Mayor of Abbotsford, spoke to the congregation in the context of Religious Liberty. He commended the church for their involvement in community life, especially the community seminars for which the Abbotsford church has become known.

The mayor continued to mention the challenges elected officials face in serving the entire community, not just a few interest groups. He emphasized the importance of challenging young people to accept responsibilities.

Relating to the issues of crime, the mayor stated that morality cannot be legislated. People can only be taught and that is the challenge to the churches. "Only the teachings of the Lord in the heart of mankind will reverse crime and drug problems," he concluded.

Mayor George Ferguson addresses the Abbotsford congregation.

Baptism at Winnipegosis

The Winnipegosis and Dauphin churches ended 1991 with a Celebration of Dedication in the Winnipegosis church.

The Celebration included the dedication of a new Communion Table, offering plates, and candlesticks which were provided for the Winnipegosis church in memory of the late Mrs. Polly Pawluk. The money for these items was given by her children who were able to be present for the service.

The time of Celebration culminated in the baptism of Brent McKinnon as he dedicated his life to the Saviour Who gave His life for us all.

Brent McKinnon was baptized in the Winnipegosis church.

East Meets West in Alberta

Robert Schafer, former President of the Maritime Conference, has joined the Edmonton pastoral team as pastor of the Edmonton South Church. Edmonton is home for Bob. He was raised on a farm outside of the city and attended the old Edmonton Church until 1955.

Elder Schafer has been in church work for 31 years—as a teacher/principal, pastor, educational superintendent, and conference president.

His wife, Roberta (the former Roberta Coates) was raised in Saskatchewan. She loves people and deeply enjoys her role as partner in her husband's ministry.

The Schafers have three grown children. Shandra Dee is the wife of Pastor David Jamieson of Corner Brook, Newfoundland; sons Brent and Terrence are working in Vancouver, British Columbia. Bob and Roberta are the proud grandparents of two lovely granddaughters, Shantel and Stacia.

It is "homecoming" also for Pastor Dan Jackson, new senior pastor of the College Heights Church on the campus of Canadian Union College. Pastor Dan was born in Edmonton. His academy and college years were spent at Canadian Union College. He is also a 1974 graduate of Andrews University.

His wife, Donna, was born in Sidney, British Columbia, and is a graduate of Spicer Memorial College in India. She has recently been employed by the British Columbia Government Department of Social Services as a Financial Assistance worker.

Pastor Dan and Donna have three children. Their oldest daughter, Dena, is a graduate of PAA and is currently employed in Vancouver, BC. Daughter, Lara, is in her first year of a physical therapy program at Okanagan College in Kelowna, BC. Danny is enrolled at Parkview Adventist Academy.

The Jacksons have spent most of their pastoral ministry in British Columbia and Alberta.

The Alberta Conference warmly welcomes these two new families to their pastoral team.

Leduc Welcomes New Babies

The youth of the Leduc Seventh-day Adventist Church have for just over a year, been welcoming new babies (first-born children) to the Leduc area with a basket of goodies, a booklet on parenting, and a smile. The idea was gleaned from the Celebration magazine. The youth have met three times to fill and wrap baskets followed by food and fun. Church members have given their support by supplying items needed by newborns. Approximately 30 baskets have been delivered.

Ukrainian Minister Tours Alberta

Ukrainian Union singer/evangelist Ivan Kosowan, from the Western Ukraine, as of March 22 is touring Northern Alberta. For months, a committee chaired by Russell Phillips, has been planning the itinerary for Elder and Mrs. Kosowan.

Kosowan is a singing evangelist in the Ukrainian Union. Just before they left on March 9, they spent a week working with the campaign of Elder Rudolph Skoretz, where four sessions were being held each day to accommodate the crowds. Just after Christmas, in the southern city of Odessa, there was a baptism of 475. We are told now that the average number of baptisms in the major campaigns is around 300 or more!

The Kosowans are conducting concerts in the Beauvallon, Sherwood Park, St. Albert, Calgary Central, and College Heights churches. Other programs are being held in halls or other churches in the area. The purpose of the public meetings is to create a general awareness of the Seventh-day Adventist Church both here and in the Ukraine, and to draw attention to all Christian work in the Ukraine.

From generous donations previously given, the Kosowans will be starting to build a new church to seat 350 members in their home area in the Western Ukraine. This past summer they purchased over $15,000 worth of public address and recording equipment to be used for public meetings and their recording of religious music. This equipment has enabled them to have campaigns that can reach larger audiences.

All churches in North America are being asked to pair up with a comparable-sized church in the former USSR territory. The Canadian Union is being paired with the Ukrainian Union. The Alberta Conference churches are just receiving the names and details about the churches they are being paired with. The concept was just publicly introduced in the Beauvallon Church on March 22 at the Kosowans' program.

Being paired to a church in the Ukraine allows each church in Canada to personally contact the church they are paired with, find out their needs, then help them. In the Podolsk Conference, which the Alberta Conference is paired with, only about six of the approximately 45 church groups even have a church building of their own. The rest meet in homes or wherever they can. The Kosowans have found their church building costs are rising steadily so they must start immediately on their return.

There, with their difficult times, large crowds flock to the meetings. Just since last summer, there have been over 4,000 baptisms in the Ukraine and the largest of their six conferences only has around 5,000 members!

Bonnyville/Beauvallon

Lloydminster Baptism

Pastor Nick Kozachenko performed the baptismal rite for Donna LaBlanke at the Lloydminster Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Farewell to the Schafers

Martin Moores presents a gift to the Schafers at a farewell in their honour.

Elder Robert G. Schafer, president of the Maritime Conference for the last three plus years, and his wife, Roberta, are transferring to the Alberta Conference to take up their duties as pastor of the Edmonton South Church. The Schafers have endeared themselves to the hearts of the Maritime Conference membership and will be sorely missed. Elder Schafer has worked untiringly for the unity and spiritual strengthening of all the churches and groups. He has uncomplainingly worn many "hats" and carried his many and varied responsibilities with keen insight and vigour.

Roberta Schafer has capably led the Women's Ministries Department of the Maritime Conference. In addition to sponsoring the Shepherdess Club she has organized two spring Ladies' Retreats at the Maritime Conference Pugwash Campground. The ladies of our Conference will long remember her caring manner and the blessing she has been to them.

At the Board of Directors Committee on February 23, 1992, Bob and Roberta were given a farewell in their honour. Martin Moores, secretary-treasurer of the Maritime Conference, presented to them a gift of a schooner in appreciation for their faithful work and dedication. Many words of gratitude were spoken in their behalf by members of the committee.

May God's abundant blessings attend the Schafers as they leave our Conference, and may our Lord soon return where partings will be no more.

St. John Baptism

Kimberley Ann Arbeau was baptized by Pastor Jim Sharpe on January 18, 1992 and gladly received into the Saint John, New Brunswick, Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Ordination of Elder

Sabbath, January 25, 1992, was a special day in the Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, Church. Jane Smith became the first woman to be ordained as an elder in the Dartmouth Church. Dartmouth pastor, Alan Atkinson, officiated at this service.

Jane is a special lady who has time for everyone. She faithfully visits shut-ins, and is always willing to add another item to her prayer list. Her love for her Lord is very obvious. She is a Primary-Junior division leader, and is a member of the local school board. Jane has two children, Francesca and James. Her husband, Robert, is a deacon in the Dartmouth Church.

We were pleased to have her mother and other family members in attendance for the ordination service.

False Balances

by Clifford Goldstein

Clifford Goldstein

FALSE BALANCES

"The truth alone liberates, the sanctuary and great salvation."

The sanctuary is one of the most misunderstood of our doctrines. Was it developed as a cover for the Great Disappointment in 1844? Does it have any bearing at all on our salvation?

In his most significant book to date, Clifford Goldstein establishes the relevance of the sanctuary and the investigative judgment to our salvation, our knowledge of God, and to our purpose as a people.

Group Hosts Dinner for Montreal Destitutes

Panhandlers in Montreal's downtown area are in the increase and many carry "help me" signs or cute animals to grab attention. But such gimmicks are not necessary to attract Yvonne Mattocks and Louis Dacil. They will host a dinner for the destitutes on Easter Sunday, April 19th, at the Welcome Hall Mission on St. Antoine Street in Montreal.

Mattocks and Dacil are members of the Westmount S.D.A. Church. The members of the Adventist Drama Club (A.D.C.), mainly youth from all the English churches in Montreal, will assist them. The group will provide musical entertainment and a mini concert. The young people also plan to spend the entire day interacting with the homeless, sharing their warmth, and friendship, and words of encouragement.

Helping the poor is not a fad for Mattocks and Dacil. Since November, 1991, they have been visiting the homeless on St.

Catherine Street one night a week. They give them food, warm clothes and blankets. Despite the risk of danger, Mattocks and Dacil take time to talk with them, rub their cold hands, and even wake a few and feed them. The two caregivers say that they rely on God for safety. They meet with about 20 homeless people a night in a distance of approximately one kilometer. So far they have cared for over 500 destitutes. About 7 months ago some of the adult members of the drama club began operating a soup kitchen on Sundays at the S.D.A. Church in Pointe St-Charles.

Mattocks uses the proceeds from the drama club which she directs. She has also received donations from her colleagues at McGill University, friends, and the Quebec S.D.A. Conference. The group knows that providing the homeless with food and clothing is essential for their survival.

The Pharisee's Guide to Perfect Holiness reexamines what the Bible teaches about sin and salvation and puts the good news back into the gospel. Author George Knight grapples with what it really means to be "holy," how to be "like" Jesus, and what God does for us and in us. US$14.95/Cdn$17.95. Hardcover.
