Columbia Union Secondary Teachers Meet

THE secondary-school teachers of the Columbia Union Conference met in the Takoma Academy auditorium at Takoma Park, Md., November 25 to 28, for their first educational council in four years.

Keynoting the three-day convention in his opening address, Elder E. A. Robertson, Columbia Union Conference Secretary of Education, challenged the educators with the subject, "Keeping Our Perspective Clear."

"Seventh-day Adventists know where they are going educationally," he said, "for we have the blueprint in the Spirit of prophecy. Our schools are Christian, but we must continue to appraise them by the guide that we have to be sure we are meeting our objectives."

Elder Robertson brought to the teachers many experiences from our pioneer educational work as a result of an interview with a lady in Takoma Park who, with her husband, had labored with Mrs. E. G. White both in Australia and the United States.

Teachers in attendance from our academies and intermediate schools from the eight conferences comprising the Columbia Union Conference numbered almost 150. They represented Mt. Vernon Academy in the Ohio Conference, Mt. Aetna Academy in the Chesapeake Conference, Blue Mountain Academy in the East Pennsylvania Conference, Pine Forge Institute in the Allegheny Conference, Plainfield Academy in the New Jersey Conference, and Takoma Academy and Shenandoah Valley Academy in the Potomac Conference. The intermediate schools were represented by forty-nine teachers.

Elder Taylor G. Bunch, pastor of the Sligo Church, gave very timely devotional sermons each morning at the convention. His wide experience as an educator, preacher, and author made his contributions on topics concerning Christian education extremely valuable to beginning as well as more experienced teachers.

Ideas were freely exchanged among the teachers each day. The committee that planned the convention provided sectional meetings which permitted opportunity for those with special interests to trade successful experiences that would be helpful to others. The sectional meetings were divided into the following seven groups: (1) administrative; (2) Bible and history; (3) deans; (4) English, languages, and library; (5) music; (6) office and commercial; and (7) science and mathematics.

Speakers who addressed the secondary teachers during the three-day convention were R. L. Hammill and G. H. Mathews of the General Conference Department of Education; Dr. W. H. Shephard, President of Washington Missionary College; Ethel Johnson, Columbia Union Conference Elementary Supervisor; R. R. Adams, principal of Blue Mountain Academy; and Elder W. A. Scharffenberg of the General Conference Temperance Department. Elder Scharffenberg's remarks were of special interest since he had recently returned from meeting Protestant and Catholic church groups in Moscow. He had the opportunity to meet with our Seventh-day Adventist believers on Sabbath in the Baptist church. "Our believers," he told the group, "have religious freedom in this great Russian city."

Are Adventist Servicemen Becoming "Forgotten Men"?

By George W. Chambers

Secretary, General Conference War Service Commission

DURING the late war attention was focused on our men in uniform. We wrote many letters to them. We prayed earnestly for them. We showered them with attention, encouragement, and gifts.

The results were gratifying. They rewarded us with heroic action on the physical and spiritual battlefields of earth. Men were saved from physical and spiritual death, and our courageous men returned home to a hero's welcome.

Now that the war is over, the urgency of former days has disappeared. The danger of physical death by literal weapons has been replaced by the more alluring and much more deadly appeal of popular sin. Man after man, seemingly forgotten and forsaken by his home church (which may be content to let the Conference War Service Commission Secretary care for men in uniform) yields to pressure and indulges in sin.

Overdrawn? Not for a minute! Just look over my shoulder and read a portion of a letter which came to me from one of our War Service Commission Secretaries overseas. He and a man in uniform were on the train going to a servicemen's retreat.

"En route we noticed a couple of G. I.'s ahead of us and the young man said he thought they were going to the retreat. When we came near to them we noticed they were smoking and he commented that he was certainly mistaken that time. However, when the boys registered, there were those two young men among them. I hope that they were helped by the retreat. Several men who had been slipping were helped. One told me that he didn't know why he had slipped, but because of the retreat he was determined to go back to camp and redeem himself before the worldly associates who had been his downfall. . . .

"In our discussion periods it was emphasized by some of the men and assented to by almost all the others that it seemed to them the folk back home don't care if they are loyal Seventh-day Adventists or not. Their mothers write them and one or two personal friends, but only three of the group had ever had a letter from their church people or pastors. Now I know the pastors are busy men with many things to attend to, but I think the War Service Commission should remind our pastors of their responsibilities to the men in uniform. Only one man had had a letter from his MV society. . . .

"Servicemen have gotten to be an old story, I fear. Only one boy ever got a weekly copy of his church bulletin, and he was the envy of the whole group. There are so many little things that the churches could do to tie these boys to them, and these ties will help keep them out of the bar rooms and away from some of the 'gilded' sin that meets them at every turn, and sometimes between the turns."

The young men are somebody's loved ones! Some fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, wives, or sweet-hearts are praying earnestly for them, ignorant of the fact that they are drifting. They are the responsibility of some pastors and should be the interest of some churches. What is being done for them? What can be done to help them?

Here are a few suggestions:

1. Send their names and full military addresses to the conference War Service Commission Secretary.
2. Write cheery letters and mail church bulletins to them. Tell them the home news.
3. Mail Christmas presents to them—soon! A few inexpensive gifts every now and then will help.
4. Pray for them, and tell them that you are counting on them to remain faithful.

Don't let the men from your church be "forgotten men"!

School in South Africa Needs Books

ABOUT thirty copies of the book, Physiology, the Human Body, How to Keep It in Health, by Dr. Belle Wood-Comstock, are needed by Helderberg College. The book is now out of print. It will be appreciated if any who have copies of this book which they are willing to donate to a good cause will wrap them and mail them to: Science Department, Helderberg College, Somerset West, Cape Province, South Africa.

day Adventist schools, service pins were awarded to them on Monday evening at the conclusion of a banquet in the College dining room. Beginning teachers who are just starting in the teaching profession also were recognized.

The teachers, at the conclusion of the profitable days of instruction and fellowship, passed several resolutions and recommendations that will greatly strengthen the position of Christian education throughout the Columbia Union Conference.

Especially appreciative of a place in the work of the Lord, the teachers pledged themselves to do their part faithfully in view of the nearness of the return of Jesus.

Evangelistic Meetings in Charleston

A GREAT blessing has come to our Charleston Church during the year 1956. For some time our church has been too small to house the members. In the spring of the year a wonderful location for a new church and evangelistic center was secured. For this we paid $36,500. The church members felt that the Lord was directing in this matter, for such properties in Charleston are very scarce. The purchase of this property has made a deep impression upon the citizens of Charleston.

Early in the summer the church launched a fund-raising campaign under the direction of counselors. This has proven a real blessing to our people. It united them in a common cause for the Lord. They raised nearly $180,000 for the new location, building, and evangelistic campaign.

As the church launched out in real sacrificial giving, many stories of Providential blessings have been related. The Lord has increased one man's business, since he made his pledge, to the extent that he is able to take care of his obligation every month through the increased business.

We know that God will honor faith in sacrificial giving, as well as He honors faith in our Christian life. The Lord has said: "If we have faith, mountains of difficulties can be removed." Although strength from the Lord is required to overcome mountains of difficulties and to be blessed financially, consecration on our part also is required. This has been demonstrated in the Charleston Church.

Early in the year the "Dial-a-Prayer" was instituted by Elder Mondics, the pastor. It made such a favorable impression upon the people and they were so eager to take advantage of this that the telephone lines were constantly overloaded and the telephone company asked that it be discontinued until such time as they could handle the extra burden. Our church and pastor were publicized on the front pages of the newspapers many times.

To secure the Municipal Auditorium for our meetings we had to speak far in advance for it. This was done early in the year and reservations were made for six months to have the auditorium every Sunday night. This was the longest period for which the auditorium had ever been engaged. The down payment was made and the Lord rewarded the faith of His people.

Meetings are being held on Wednesday night, Sunday afternoon at 3:30, and Sunday night at 7:30. The two Sunday meetings are identical. The 3:30 meeting accommodates those who come from a long distance and cannot come at night. This afternoon meeting has attracted some ministers of the city, as well as those who like to go to their own church on Sunday night. In most cases the offerings have covered the expense of the auditorium, which is $150 a night.

The attendance has varied very little since the beginning of the meetings on September 23. About 400 attend the Wednesday-night meeting and on Sunday afternoon the attendance is a little larger. The Sunday-night attendance averages 600 to 700. This, we believe, is remarkable. Of the foregoing numbers we judge that about 100 to 150 are our own members. Just a few days ago Elder Mondics stated that sixty-four already had signed the Sabbath covenant, and others are coming to Sabbath meetings. This is only the beginning of the fruitage.

Those who are directly connected with the meetings are Elder and Mrs. Mondics; Mrs. Lippincott, Bible instructor; and Elder G. L. Stauffer, principal of the junior academy, who has charge of the music. However, this small group could not cope with the task were it not for the faithful support and cooperation of our members in the Charleston Church. They have demonstrated faith, loyalty, and cooperation every step of the way.

At the present time two of our district pastors are helping several days a week to visit those who are making important decisions and have special problems, but our laity are making the initial contacts in most cases and preparing the people for the ministers and the Bible instructor.

The interest in these meetings has gone far beyond Charleston and those who are attending the meetings. Nearly 200 people who have seen the advertisements in the newspapers concerning the lectures on prophecy and have not been able to attend have made application to the Twentieth-Century Bible School to study these truths.

We greatly rejoice over the success of the meetings. Only the Lord knows the final results. We know that God would like to demonstrate what He can do through any individual or church that is fully consecrated to Him.

Pray that God may richly bless our work there and that the church will truly become a great center in this capital city from which streams of light will go out to every county and village of this state.

Patuxent Church Dedicated

In 1949 Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Hohensee were the only Seventh-day Adventists in all of St. Mary's County, Maryland. That year marked the beginning of new things, however. It was then that Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Roper came to the county in the employ of the Hohensees.

Drawn by that peculiar kinship that kindles in the hearts of advent believers everywhere, they began to meet together on Sabbath mornings in the Hohensee's living room. Gradually others began to come and there was no longer room for the group. An expansible trailer at Spring Valley provided space as the branch Sabbath school enlarged. As others came and the fruits of missionary effort appeared, the growing company began to meet in the Lexington Park Community Building.

It was in the Community Building on January 19, 1951, that the Spring Valley Church was organized with fourteen charter members. With Brother Roper, local elder, guiding and advising, ever active in missionary work, attendance grew.

Talk of a church building merged into plans. Dollars found their way into a building fund. There were many children in the group and the need for a school was felt. Elbert Cobb offered the use of his living room as a schoolroom and his services as a teacher.

As these ideas were coming into focus the Conference met a long-felt need, and H. A. Schaefer was sent to be the first pastor. That fall (September, 1952) school was begun in the Cobb home, and before long work on a combination chapel and school was under way. Brother Hohensee donated the lot and initiated an intensive solicitation campaign.

Funds came in by donation from a few cents to two hundred dollars. Materials were donated by local firms, and contributors as far away as Pennsylvania, including cinder-blocks, plumbing, plywood, windows, heating equipment, and tile for floors and ceilings. An abandoned school building was torn down by the members for usable materials.

Everyone worked. Women and children puttied windows and laid tile. Scarcely a Sunday passed that did not find a group of busy men hammering, sawing, or laying blocks. Many an afternoon and evening were devoted to the task. When the time came men from the Conference—Elders Anderson, Olney, Wallace, and others—were on hand to help construct the roof.

In September, 1953, school was begun in the new building. With the new quarters a new name was born, and the church became known officially as the Patuxent Seventh-day Adventist Church. Progress continued as James A. Brown succeeded Pastor Schaefer and on March 5, 1955, the first church services were held in the chapel section of the building. More gifts of money, material, and labor made possible the completion of the finer details of interior and exterior finish, and the liquidation of the church debt.

With the unceasing effort of Pastor Brown, in cooperation with the church members, the present structure was finally completed, and it was dedicated on Sabbath afternoon, November 10, 1956. Elder D. A. Ochs, President of the Columbia Union Conference, gave the dedicatory message; Elder C. V. Anderson, President of the Chesapeake Conference, offered the dedicatory prayer; Elder A. B. Butler, Conference Treasurer, burned the mortgage; and Pastor Brown read the church history which had been written by Mrs. Elbert Cobb.

Farewell Message

SOME years ago, when I found myself being handicapped every summer by an allergy to ragweed pollen which refused to yield to treatment, I asked the brethren to try to arrange a transfer for me.

We had about decided that this could not be the Lord's will for us when the call finally came. Our new address is 97 Monterey Avenue, Box 577, Alamosa, Colo.

We are carrying with us many happy memories of the West Pennsylvania Conference, and shall earnestly pray for God's richest blessings to rest upon that field and all our many friends there.

Please pray that we may be successful with you in winning souls.

Week of Prayer at Cleveland Junior Academy

"WHAT if it were today?" was the question kept before the students of Cleveland Junior Academy during the recent Week of Prayer. Elder J. R. Johnson, pastor of the First Church, presented the question in his series of meetings based on prophecies which point to the second advent of Christ.

During the week Elder Johnson spoke of signs in five areas which gave assurance of the second coming. The five areas studied included: political signs, historical signs, economical signs, emotional upheavals, and signs in the religious world.

Twice during the prayer series the students rose to their feet to tell of their love for Jesus and their determination to permit Him to lead them.

To follow up the good work begun through the Week of Prayer Opal Winterfeld and the writer of this article, teachers at the school, are making preliminary preparations for a baptismal class.

Blue Mountain Academy Holds Oratorical Contest

THE second annual temperance oratorical contest was held at Blue Mountain Academy on November 17. Eight orators presented their views on the subject of total abstinence from alcohol to a crowd of 250 students, teachers, parents, and friends.

The first-prize winner was Alan Long, a sophomore at Blue Mountain Academy, from Washington, D. C. For his outstanding oration he received a check for twenty dollars.

Second prize of fifteen dollars went to Gene Krishinger and third prize of ten dollars went to Diane Karshneski. The remaining five received a consolation prize of $2.50 each.

All contestants performed exceptionally well. Seven judges seated in various places in the auditorium arrived at a unanimous decision in picking the winners. The judges were Mr. Cadmus, Director of the United Fund; the Rev. McLaughlin, a Baptist minister of Hamburg; Mrs. A. Jones, President of the W.C.T.U. of Berks County; Francis A. Soper, Associate Secretary of the American Temperance Society; V. A. Fenn, Secretary-Treasurer of the East Pennsylvania Conference; Howard Bankes, engaged in narcotic education; and T. H. Weis, Secretary of the A.T.S. of the East Pennsylvania Conference.

D. D. Baldwin, sponsor of the Academy chapter of A.T.S., presented a very fine, organized program for the evening which was greatly enjoyed by all.

This is the second year in the history of this new school and the first time 100-per-cent membership in the A.T.S. has been attained. The A.T.S. officers, the four class leaders, and Mr. Baldwin did a magnificent job in enlisting 173 members. In the picture of the class leaders, along with Edward Fox and Mr. Baldwin, you will see the goal device that was used. All bottles are turned upside down and emptied. These were full and were emptied as they reached their 100-per-cent membership goal.

So much enthusiasm had been generated that sixteen had entered the oratorical contest, so on November 15 an elimination contest was conducted from which eight winners were chosen to participate in the final contest.

On November 8 sixteen students who handed in a copy of an acceptable oration, together with four other students, were taken on a field trip to Philadelphia by their sponsor, Mr. Baldwin. He stated:

"They first visited the Saul Clinic at St. Luke's and Children's Hospital where Dr. Kissen gave a lecture and conducted a question-and-answer period about the treatment of alcoholic patients in the clinic. Dr. Kissen then took the group across town to the Philadelphia General Hospital where he directs another clinic for alcoholics. An opportunity was given in both clinics to see the type of equipment used in dealing with these cases.

"The major point of interest in the afternoon was the Eastern State Penitentiary. The experience which impressed the group most was the police-escorted tour of the skid-row section of town. As the group visited one of the missions in the district, one poor man was carried out dead. The emotional impact portraying the end results of alcohol will remain effective for a long time."

Plans are under way for greater activity and programs to be presented to civic clubs and other organizations, as well as high schools, churches, and community projects. We know we can count on the B.M.A. temperance chapter for great things to come.

Fifteen Hundred MV's Attend Rally at Richmond

NOVEMBER 10 marked the fifth youth rally held by the Potomac Conference during the past six years in Richmond, Va. Nearly ideal weather did its best to cooperate with the day's activities. Representatives swarmed into the auditorium from about two-thirds of the churches of the Conference.

Wonderful musical talent presented by students from Washington Missionary College, Shenandoah Valley Academy, and Takoma Academy contributed to the inspiration of the day. Elders T. E. Lucas and A. J. Patzer were the featured speakers. President W. H. Shephard of Washington Missionary College presented the vesper thought.

Radio Station Adds Equipment, Enlarging Broadcast Range

THE Speech Department of Washington Missionary College announces that early in January the College radio station, WAFT, will go on FM, making it possible for campus broadcasts to be heard within a radius of five to ten miles.

This will vastly increase the station's listening audience, for it will then include much of metropolitan Washington in addition to the rapidly growing apartment-house and private-home areas northwest of the city. Heretofore the WAFT programs have been largely limited to on-campus radios.

The switch to more powerful beaming was made possible by the installation of a new FM transmitter, sponsored by the Students' Association of the College. The instrument itself weighs 163 pounds and is thirty-eight inches high—not quite as large as the old, more limited transmitter. Its power output is rated at ten watts (not to be confused with the diminutive ten-watt bulb, however). It is believed that the $1,295 investment in the new equipment will reap returns worth far more than community awareness and good will.

Seven students are preparing for their engineer's license under the guidance of Prof. S. S. Hiten, head of the Speech Department. These are Robert D. Franklin of Grove City, Ohio; W. Dennis Calkins of Escondido, Calif.; Robert R. Kerr of Youngsville, Pa.; W. Jerry Keith, Jr., of Dayton, Ohio; David E. Haines of Takoma Park, Md.; Ronald L. Rowe of Waynesboro, Pa.; and Charles O. Wolcott of Ashville, Ohio.

Special training is also being given in announcing, so that the programs will present as professional an air as possible. Studying this phase of broadcasting are the following: Carolyn C. Green of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Charles H. Green of Bolivar, N. Y.; Paula Maye Zoerb of Takoma Park, Md.; Harvey A. Kinkead of Columbus, Ohio; Lidia O. Sanchez of Payne, Ohio; Larry E. Roderick of Battle Creek, Mich.; Joanne L. Ausherman of Collegedale, Tenn.; and Herbert H. Broeckel of New Market, Va.

WAFT first went into operation in 1946 with a ground-circuit system of transmission. Its programs have included, besides newscasts, programs of recorded classical music with a few live broadcasts. With the opening of the wider broadcast field interest has swelled. The Speech Department anticipates an increase in the number of live programs.

Watch the VISITOR for announcement of future FM programs and dial instructions.
