On Alumni Homecoming Day

Morrison Hall to Be Dedicated May 6

THE dedication and open house of Morrison Hall, men's dormitory at Columbia Union College, will be held on Sunday, May 6, from 1:00 P.M. to 5:00 P.M. The College cordially invites community residents to visit the new building.

Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, Jr., State Superintendent of Schools for Maryland, will be the principal speaker at the dedication service in the Eric B. Jones Chapel at 4:00 P.M. Also taking part in the program will be George M. Miller, Mayor of Takoma Park. A student male chorus, conducted by Prof. Glenn W. Cole, will provide the music.

Tours through the building will include the first-floor rooms, the Dean's apartment, and offices and classrooms on the ground floor. Men of Delta Sigma Tau will be hosts throughout the afternoon, and ladies from Theta Alpha Beta will serve refreshments.

Morrison Hall is the first building to be completed in the College's current expansion program. Ground-breaking ceremonies were held in January, 1961, and the cornerstone was laid in November. The new dormitory houses all men living on the campus. Temporarily it is also used for some classes and department offices.

C.U.C.'s building program will continue with an addition to Halcyon Hall, the ladies' dormitory, to help meet the needs created by the influx of new students. Long-range plans include the replacement of Central, North, and South Halls by a campus center and an administration-classroom building.

Open house for Morrison Hall coincides with alumni homecoming,

The annual program will begin on Friday night, at 7:45 o'clock, in the Sligo Church. Sabbath School and worship services of the Sligo Church will be devoted to graduates of the College. The vesper service on Sabbath evening will feature alumni.

After a business meeting on Sunday morning the high light of the weekend program will be the annual banquet in Central Hall. The main speaker for the banquet will be Dr. Winton H. Beaven. His subject will be "Changing Forces in the Second Half of the Twentieth Century Which Affect Human Behavior and Values."

After the banquet the members of the Alumni Association are invited to attend the dedication rites for Morrison Hall.

The speaker for the Sabbath-morning worship services at 8:30 and 11:15 will be Elder Ben Leach, President of the Texas Conference.

"Fun With Food" Demonstration at Sligo

SUNDAY evening, March 18, I walked into the chapel of the Sligo Church at 7:00 o'clock, and to my amazement, I found that nearly all the seats were taken. I had been interested by the attractive announcement on the signboard in front of the church. In very unusual lettering it read: "Fun With Food! Sundays at 7. New Ideas for Lenten Meals."

The very first thing on the program was a dimming of lights in the auditorium. Spotlights were on the platform, the curtains opened, and there stood a young man with an excellent physique exercising with bar bells in each hand weighing 71 pounds. This served as an excellent attention getter. Elder William Loveless, who is the coordinator and director of this special health series, stepped out and said, "Welcome to 'Fun With Food.'" He then explained what was happening to this young man as he lifted these heavy weights and went on to show what the body needs to replace the muscle fatigue and the energy that was being expended. The subject for the night was "Body Building Blocks" and had to do with protein.

Dr. Siegfried Kotz is the medical and scientific consultant for this series of meetings, and he very ably answered a number of questions put to him by Elder Loveless in regard to protein, its sources, function, and amount needed. The scene on the stage kept moving, but everything was done in a relaxed and informal atmosphere. A number of the ideas were new and there was opportunity for group participation. One of the participants that night was Mrs. June Reifsnnyder demonstrating "June's Mushroom Roast." Samples were passed around, and during the program prizes were awarded to individuals for various reasons.

Elder Loveless reappeared with a chef's cap and apron and proceeded to lead out in other demonstrations, along with his wife and able assistants.

A number of non-Seventh-day Adventists were at this meeting and one of these men asked a question in regard to whether fish was considered meat in the context of the Bible and of science. Dr. Kotz gave a clear answer and then made it known that a number of today's top nutritionists and scientists believe that it is absolutely possible to get all the protein that one needs without flesh food. The questioner was still eager for further development of this matter of man's original diet, and it gave Elder Loveless a perfect opportunity to "find a Bible" and spend a few moments exploring this important topic.

What I saw demonstrated was simple, interesting, informative, and nutritionally sound as far as the Bible and the Spirit of Prophecy are concerned. There was no part of the meeting which required high technical skill or training in the scientific area of nutrition, and it is a program that could be used to great benefit in many of our churches. Another thing which was encouraging were the number of teenagers and young couples present at this meeting. I noticed many of them taking careful heed to what was being said. Why not plan to conduct such a school of cookery and nutrition in your church as the opportunity presents itself?

The fact that this was held during the period of Lent, naturally attracted the attention of those who are not members of the church. This is an excellent means of evangelism and also a fine community service. Topics for other Sunday nights include "The Pause That Refreshes," "Getting Over That Tired Feeling," "Lunch to Go," etc. This is a suggestion worth your careful consideration, and, to be sure, it will further the work of the gospel in your church and your community.

These Times Wins Souls

A RECENT letter from a non-Adventist states: "Every family in the world needs a good religious magazine like These Times to guide them. Thank God, we have the best of all."

Yes, from every section of the field we receive marvelous reports of appreciation for These Times as a great evangelistic journal. For 1962 our aim is "Revealing the Christ through a Christ-centered, Christ-filled, and Christ-revealing These Times."

Another reader writes: "It is simply wonderful. I was introduced to These Times by our family doctor. God bless our doctor. Sincerely, Mrs. D. D., Portland, Ore." With this letter she sent a subscription for one year.

Perhaps you were the one who sent this subscription. As we enter our campaign for 1962, let us make it a marvelous evangelistic crusade through the printed page, reaching men and women where they live, giving them the blessed truth through this marvelous, inexpensive, high-quality, soul-winning journal.

Order through your church missionary secretary or Book and Bible House.

Parents and Children

By W. B. Ochs

Vice-President, North American Division

THERE was a time when I was more eager to write on this subject than I am now. That time was when I did not have children. It is then that one seems to know most what children should mean to their parents, and how they should be brought up. Most fathers need to take to heart the words of one who says, "Every father expects his boy to do all the things he wouldn't do when he was young." To these words we might add, "And not do all the things he did when he was young."

I am the proud father of a son and a daughter. The two were not alike, so in dealing with them a different approach had to be made. When the son had to be punished for misbehaving he looked at me in silent amazement and seemed to say, "Now, why should I be punished, I do not deserve this?" The daughter was very vocal in letting me know her disapproval.

My son, who is a dentist, has two boys and a girl. My daughter, who is a housewife, has two daughters and a son and is a piano teacher.

In bringing up these children I tried to be more than just a mere dad. I wanted them to know that I was their best friend. Sometimes others would wonder if the boy were my son or my brother. We had mutual interests. I wanted him, as well as the daughter, to know that I was not only his father but his best and closest friend, thus inviting him to bring his problems to me rather than to someone else. I delighted in talking over with them their future careers and let them know that I was proud of them and believed in them.

The daughter's love and respect for me was expressed when she was in college. I wrote her a letter one day and told her that maybe I had been a little hard on her at times and punished her more than she deserved, and asked her forgiveness. The answer I received did my heart good. She expressed surprise at the letter and said in essence: "You were never mean nor hard. I don't ever remember being punished unjustly." Thank God for such a sweet, forgetful memory!

Among the many Christmas presents she gave to me I cherish as much as any a little trophy with the words inscribed, "The World's Greatest Dad." Such tribute I do not deserve, but I was and am grateful for it.

We are glad we sent our children to our own schools. They are in the church today, and although I know that they are not perfect, I look upon them in the words of David who said, "Lo, children are an heritage of the Lord."

Children know whether we as parents are interested in them or not. Our relationship to them should be as closely as was that of Jacob and his son, Joseph. This intimate relationship is expressed so beautifully in the words uttered by Judah, "Now therefore when I come to thy servant my father, and the lad be not with us; seeing that his life is bound up in the lad's life . . . he will die" (Genesis 44:30, 31).

It is always well and most fitting to talk to the children about their good traits. They do not get much inspiration from a recital of their mistakes, failures, and faults. If we as parents have no confidence in our children, how can we expect others to have?

My personal counsel, for what it is worth, as a father might well be summed up in the following words: Be kind, loving, trustworthy. Let the children know that their interests and problems are of great concern to you. Be sociable, be a pal. Don't let mother be the gospel and you the law. Combine grace with love in your treatment. Be closer to them and more intimate than those not of your household. Let them know that your greatest aim in life is to be able to say, when Jesus comes, "Behold I and the children which God hath given me" (Hebrews 2:13).

Special Training for Ambulance Corpsmen At Sanitarium

THE Washington Sanitarium and Hospital, located in Takoma Park, Md., has just completed its first training program for ambulance corpsmen of the local fire department in Montgomery and Prince George's Counties. Although the program has been in the thinking and wishing stage for two years, it was not until last October that it became a reality. Sixty-four men started this course and 52 of them graduated. Each man completed 50 hours of in-hospital training for the basic course and 70 hours for the advanced course. To be eligible for the course, the applicant must have completed the advanced Red Cross training course.

The purpose of this course is to improve the ability of the corpsman at the scene of the accident and enable him to provide additional care before the hospital is reached. The course included a series of 17 lectures of a minimum of two hours each, and each corpsman must attend a minimum of 12. In addition to attending these lectures, each must spend at least 50 hours in the emergency room of the hospital for the basic training. Arrangements had been made whereby two corpsmen at a time would work in the emergency room for periods of not less than two hours each time. They must spend at least 70 additional hours for the advanced course.

Heretofore the rescue worker and the physicians on the medical staff have worked independently of each other without much thought of the mutual help they could be to each other. Now they have joined forces and each has gained a new respect for the other. Because of this training, the rescue worker is better able to evaluate the situation and adopt a course of action that is most beneficial in each situation. Emergency care is now on a higher level because of the shared knowledge of the doctors. There are at least three cases on record where lives have been saved owing to the in-hospital training program.

We feel that public relations in the community have been greatly helped by this training program and it is our plan to offer this course, free of charge, at least once a year to those who are interested.

Why a Christian Education?

I HAVE been asked why I am going to send my son to a Christian school. I could cite numerous quotations from the writings of the Spirit of Prophecy, and they alone would be sufficient reason for any Seventh-day Adventist.

Before deciding, however, I asked myself the question, "What's wrong with secular schools?" They seem to have so much in their favor—prestige, beautiful buildings, excellent facilities and equipment, a broad curriculum, outstanding names among their faculty, proximity—it sounded so attractive, but then I realized that this was just a superficial picture, an outward appearance.

The most important ingredient was missing. Christ was not there. There was no place for Him, neither was He wanted. I know, for I have personally attended three secular universities myself. I know the attitudes, the moods, the sophistries that prevail, the misleading philosophies that pass under the guise of science. I also know how easily the minds of young people can be captivated, deceived, and led astray by the popular trends.

I have seen the disillusioned young people there, not satisfied with the way of the present world and trying to change it by trampling on convention. This has led to such movements as the "angry young men," "the beat generation," or just simply the spirit that in the spring and fall, leads to dormitory raids and campus riots.

Is this the atmosphere that I want my son exposed to at this late hour in earth's history? Should these constitute his future circle of friends or perhaps his life's partner?

No, friends, I want the best for my children. I believe in Solomon's words: "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom and the knowledge of the holy is understanding."

Only as God is included in my son's education will it be complete, only then will he be mentally and emotionally fitted to face the realities of life. Only as the precepts of Christ and His life permeate his education will my son learn that true living is to return more to life than he expects to get out of it. This is the reason I am going to send my son to a Christian school.

The young people have educa-

Classes are held in basketry, basic electricity, photography, and first aid. The long-range planning of the leaders makes possible maximum participation of the members of the group. A FOUR-MANUAL, 3,200-pipe organ, new to the Takoma Park Church, was dedicated in a formal program recently. The high light of the program was a concert by the well-known Adventist organist, Brad Braley, of the Voice of Prophecy.

One of the largest crowds ever to assemble in the Takoma Park Church attended the Sunday-night program. Extra chairs had to be placed in the back of the auditorium and in the aisles in order to accommodate the more-than-capacity crowd.

Directing the brief dedicatory rites was the Pastor, Elder W. J. Keith, assisted by Elder Curtis Quackenbush. The prayer of dedication was offered by the Conference President, Elder H. J. Capman, and the dedication reading was given by the chairman of the church organ committee, Elder C. J. Coon.

Come to Camp Meeting

THE 1962 camp meeting program is complete. The program will be the "best ever." The reservation blank is in this issue. Don't delay to reserve your accommodations.

Camp meeting—the yearly spiritual convocation—is planned for you, our people. Take advantage of the rich spiritual food prepared. Don't stay away. Arrange your summer program to include this extremely important gathering. Regarding camp meeting Ellen G. White wrote: "I am afraid that some will say, 'It is expensive to travel, and it would be better to save the money, and give it for the advancement of the work where it is so much needed: Do not reason in this way; for God calls upon you to take your place among the rank and file of His people. You are to be there in person, and to strengthen the meeting all you possibly can. . . . We know that the believers are scattered widely; but make no excuse that will keep you from gaining every spiritual advantage possible. Come to the meeting, and bring your families'" (Life Sketches, p. 345).

Please note some of the guest speakers who will be present:

Student Missionary Chosen At Columbia Union College

COLUMBIA UNION COLLEGE will send its own representative to Nigeria, West Africa, June 4.

Chosen from 38 applicants as the College's 1962 student missionary is Maria Moleta, 21, who will spend three months in villages and outposts in Nigeria assisting an American doctor. Miss Moleta of Guttenberg, N. J., is a second-year nursing student at Columbia Union College.

The idea originated four years ago when the first College student missionary, Marlin Mathiesen, was sent to South America. He is now a medical student planning to return to overseas mission work.

A $500 scholarship, given jointly by the College and the Sligo Church, will be awarded Miss Moleta upon her return to the campus next fall. With the honor also goes the presidency of the school's foreign mission club. An airline is providing cost-free transportation.

Columbia Union College, formerly Washington Missionary College, is a Seventh-day Adventist liberal arts school whose 880 students attend from more than 60 states and foreign countries, including Nigeria.

Two Institutes of Scientific Studies Scheduled

SPACE needles, life in the year 2,000, exploration of space—all of these factors highlight the 1962 summer sessions of the two U. S. Institutes of Scientific Studies for the Prevention of Alcoholism. Normally held at Loma Linda University, the Loma Linda institute this year is scheduled to be moved to Seattle Pacific College, Seattle, Wash., where the 13th annual session will convene from August 6-17 in connection with the Seattle World's Fair.

Prior to the General Conference Session, the seventh session of the Washington Institute of Scientific Studies is slated to take place on the campus of The American University, Washington, D. C., July 9-20. Special features available to Washington Institute enrollees include observation of court cases involving alcohol, and rehabilitation facilities in the District of Columbia.

Purpose of the institutes is to make available current information in the field of alcohol and alcohol problems as presented by national and international authorities. The institutes also provide scientific training in specific phases of the alcohol problem, emphasizing a program of education as a solution to the problems alcohol poses in today's society.

Temperance secretaries, pastors, and evangelists who have attended the institutes have returned to their fields of labor much better equipped to serve in this field. Evangelists have found that incorporating into their evangelistic series lectures dealing with alcohol and tobacco is an excellent means to attract large audiences. Many have been helped to break these vicious habits.

No doubt many who plan to attend the General Conference session will want to attend the institute at Seattle, along with the World's Fair. If you wish further information on either the Washington or the Loma Linda institute, write: U. S. National Committee for the Prevention of Alcoholism, 6830 Laurel Street, N.W., Washington 12, D.
