Pentecost Can Come Again

By Neal C. Wilson

President, Columbia Union Conference

In view of the importance of the coming General Conference Session in Detroit and its far-reaching influence, a call is being made by Elder Figuhr and denominational leaders to our people everywhere to unite in a special time of prayer, June 4 to 25. The great meeting in Detroit will succeed only as the direct blessing of heaven brings harmony, love, peace, and a spirit of unity to each one in attendance.

Much careful and detailed planning indicates that everything possible has been done to prepare for this crucial world convocation. In addition, a wonderful theme has been chosen: "Behold, He Cometh!" All of this is good and necessary, but physical preparation is not sufficient. We need the mighty visitation of the Holy Spirit's power.

We rejoice greatly in the leading of the Lord in the advent movement, but the Church is struggling against tremendous forces of opposition. A sense of urgency must grip our hearts. As a result of this General Conference Session there should be a renewed, complete, and world-wide commitment to the greatest soul-winning program ever witnessed. If the Church is ready, Pentecost could be repeated in Detroit!

Will you join me in making June 4 to 25 a period of heart-searching and intercessory prayer?

What others have said...

THE popularity of radio and television is not confined to America. Australia and Brazil each have about one and a half million television sets. India, with a population of 461,000,000, has only 750 sets, but Japan has 13 million. But radios are found everywhere. India has over two million radios in use. Pitcairn Island, one of the most isolated places on the globe, will soon have its own radio transmitter, an operation of the government. Tom Christian will be trained as chief operator and the station will reach South America and the islands of the South Pacific.—Cues.

The faith of a Cook Islander who prayed and led his companions in singing hymns while they drifted for 63 days across 2,200 miles of the Pacific Ocean has been recognized by the British Commonwealth. Teehu Makimare, one of three survivors of what is probably the longest ocean drift without provisions, accepted the Stanhope Gold Medal from the Royal Humane Society for his courageous leadership in the drift. Teehu, a devout Adventist, was one of four members of his church who, with three others, were caught by a tropical storm and blown miles away from their home in the Cook Islands. After 63 days of aimless drifting in their frail craft, they were tossed onto a coral reef of an island in the New Hebrides.—On the Air.

1350 Attend Largest CAMPOREE Ever Held on East Coast

THEY came from the metropolitan areas of New Jersey and from the mountains of Virginia. There were those present who live within sight of the nation's capitol and those who came from the rolling, fertile farmlands of Ohio.

These were the Pathfinders, leaders, and counselors from the Columbia Union Conference—1,350 in all—who had gathered for a Pathfinder camporee.

Maryland's extreme western panhandle was the destination and the Swallow Falls recreation area was the camping site. It had been five years since the last camporee and everyone looked forward to this one.

To sum it all up, it was a most successful camporee, and the largest one ever held on the east coast.

Weather played an important part in the success of the get-together. "I had really prayed for sunshine" was Elder Edmund Peterson's fervent comment as he surveyed the clear, blue skies on the opening day, Thursday, May 5. Heavy rains would have spelled disaster.

Through Saturday night clear skies prevailed. Light showers early Sunday morning forced cancellation of three hours of activity that had been scheduled for that morning.

Brisk winds on Friday made everyone aware of fire danger and care was exercised in camp. However, all was not well a few miles away. Wind-whipped forest fires threatened to lay waste acres of valuable forest and recreation lands. The National Guard at Oakland, five miles from the camporee site, was mobilized Friday evening. A dozen volunteers from the camporee, led by James Arrington of Hagerstown, helped fight the fire. Cessation of the winds brought an end to the danger and the fires were contained. The weary firefighters came back early Saturday morning to join the campers.

Someone, apparently without too much knowledge, has stated that "MV" means "mostly vacation." It may have been this to the Pathfinders, but to the leaders and counselors it was hard work. Each unit cooked their own meals and were self contained.

Guests added much to the success of the camporee. Elder John Hancock, a gifted accordionist, added much to the music of the camp. He was also the speaker for the Sabbath-morning worship services.

Another guest was Elder Lawrence Maxwell, Editor of Junior Guide. His practical messages will be remembered.

The strength of the Adventist Church is its youth. It was encouraging and inspiring to see the Columbia Union Conference youth participating in the recreational and spiritual aspects of the camporee.

Equally inspiring was the dedication of leaders and counselors. To lead in a Pathfinder program in a church is a major responsibility and the fine caliber of the men and women serving as leaders is a tribute to the youth work of the Adventist Church.

Constituency Meetings Held

CONSTITUENCY meetings have been completed for each of the conferences in the Columbia Union Conference and for Kettering Memorial Hospital. All incumbent officers and departmental secretaries were re-elected with some revisions in the conference committees being the general rule.

Major decisions highlighted the meetings of the Allegheny Conference and Kettering Memorial Hospital.

Kettering Memorial Hospital

Fifty-five delegates were present for the sixth annual constituency meeting of the Charles F. Kettering Memorial Hospital. Since elections are held every two years, the main business of the delegates was to hear reports of the last year and approve a change in the charter of the hospital.

Under the revision, the name of the institution will be the Kettering Medical Center. There will be three main divisions, including clinical, educational, and research. The clinical division will continue to be known as the Charles F. Kettering Memorial Hospital.

Other plans and proposals discussed by the delegates and by the board of trustees included the following:

- ✓ Development of a para-medical educational division covering 12 acres of health-care-related occupations.
- ✓ Approval of the purchase of a 36-unit apartment to be used as a residence for nurses and secretaries at the hospital.
- ✓ Plans for an open-heart and cardiac-surgery division, scheduled for the future.
- ✓ Approval of a pilot program with the National Cash Register Company for the development of hospital management through computer systems.

Kettering Memorial Hospital opened its doors to the public on March 3, 1965. The patient load has grown steadily through the months. During 1965 11,512 patients were admitted. The current year will be even better, since 3,671 patients were admitted during the first three months.

The hospital's obstetrical department has been busy, with 1,071 babies delivered in 1965. According to reports read to the delegates, there were no maternity or anesthetic deaths in the institution.

Allegheny Conference

Major discussions at the Allegheny constituency meeting held at Baltimore centered around the proposed division of the conference.

Voting by secret ballot, delegates to the Allegheny Constituency meeting voted 496-171 for the proposed division of the Conference. Checking over the tabulation of the ballots is Elder W. A. Thompson (left), Secretary-Treasurer of the Allegheny Conference, and Elder T. R. Gardner, Secretary-Treasurer of the Columbia Union Conference.

Ample time was given to the delegates to voice their opinions on the proposed change. At the close of the discussion the vote of the delegates was 496 for the division of the conference and 171 opposed.

To implement the action favoring division of the Conference, the delegates also voted the following:

- ✓ A commission of 25 was named, including delegates from the Allegheny membership, pastors, and officers and representatives from the Union Conference and the General Conference. The commission will study the proposed plans for the division.

✓ Two conferences will be formed from the existing Allegheny Conference.

✓ Two separate constituency meetings will be held this fall, probably the last of October. The present officers of the Allegheny Conference will continue in office until January 1, 1967, the time when the division of the Conference will take place.

THE REVIEWER

REGULAR readers of this column probably have concluded that we look upon literary expression as the world's most significant art form. At the suggestion of some of our more astute colleagues, however, we have decided that from time to time we shall include comments on some of the fine musical offerings available in religious and classical fields. All records mentioned in today's column are produced by Chapel Records, a division of Pacific Press Publishing Association, and are available in both monaural and stereo recording.

The word "guitar" probably inspires within the average listener a vision of long, wavy hair and thousands of females shrieking hysterically. However, the guitar also is being used quite dramatically in religious music, as Monty Jones has successfully shown in his new album, "I Know Who Holds Tomorrow."

Mr. Jones is a self-made musician who not only taught himself to play both the steel and Spanish guitars, but also built his own musical instruments. He began his career as a dance-band guitarist at the age of 13. He now works as a full-time singing evangelist in the Indiana Conference.

His versatility is perhaps most evident in his dual recordings, where he plays both the Spanish and steel guitars. The album contains such old favorites as "Farther Along," "The Old Rugged Cross," and "Just a Closer Walk With Thee." Rich organ backgrounds on all selections are provided by his wife, Donna.

Del Delker, Voice of Prophecy contralto soloist, is a musician of perpetual popularity. On her latest release, "Ten Thousand Angels," she and a large number of musicians have combined their talents to equal an impressive listening experience. Dorothy Remsen, harpist with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, provides the accompaniment for "Fairest Lord Jesus." The La Sierra College String Quartet is featured in "Saviour and Friend." Miss Delker also sings two duets with Maurita Phillips, and several solos with Brad Braley at the organ. Other groups included in the album are the King's Heralds quartet and the Hymnsingers.

World-Wide Evangelistic Advance

WORLD conditions present a favorable and auspicious background for the preaching of the third angel's message. Everywhere men are troubled and perplexed by the mounting social, economic and political problems plaguering the human race. Distraught leaders, as well as the man in the street, are concerned for the future and gladly welcome any ray of light pointing to a better day.

What a tremendous opportunity this disturbed generation presents to our evangelists, pastors, teachers, doctors, literature evangelists, and laymen. God has arranged affairs so that men are asking questions and He has given us the Scriptural answers. Surely the times demand that each Seventh-day Adventist arise and share his faith with his fellow men.

Collectively we can all have a part in a mighty world-wide evangelistic advance. On Sabbath, June 4, Adventists the world over will endeavor to raise one million dollars for evangelism. Our world-wide work will feel the impact of this mighty offering. We are counting upon each member to respond generously when the appeal is made in our churches.

Columbia Union "Visitor" Photographic Contest

PHOTOGRAPHS submitted to the VISITOR during 1966 will be eligible to receive the VISITOR Merit Award. This emblem designates pictures of quality suitable for final judging.

Prizes will be awarded to the top three pictures that have appeared in the VISITOR during 1966. Awards will be as follows: first place, $25; second place, $15; and third place, $10.

The winning photos will be submitted for competition in a tri-union contest, which includes the Southern, Lake, and Columbia Union Conferences. The first award in this contest will be $50; second award, $35; and the third award, $25.

Judging will be based on subject matter, originality, human interest, composition, and photographic quality. All pictures offered for publication must be accompanied with proper identification of the subject along with the name and address of the photographer. Pictures submitted by professional photographers are not eligible for the judging.

All pictures submitted to the VISITOR for publication will be retained, except those which are not published.

"Christ for Today" Meetings Close in Mt. Holly

For one month the Holley evangelistic team and Pastor Gordon T. Blandford worked together in a rewarding series of meetings held in the auditorium of Mount Holly Junior Academy where regular church services usually are held. On the opening night when those in attendance were counted, it was found that 200 had heard the message that night.

Each night all through the campaign an average of 45 non-believers attended. As the meetings progressed it was a thrilling experience to see lives change right before one's eyes as the Spirit of God brought conviction to the hearts of men and women.

As Elder Roger Holley and this writer visited from home to home, the true meaning of evangelism and the reason for the success that attended the efforts became very apparent. As we talked to the people of the wonderful love of Jesus and the Sabbath truth, hearts were melted by the Holy Spirit. Even though our visits were short, the spirit of love and concern and the earnest personal prayers that were offered in their homes are what really touched their hearts. As the Holy Spirit led them and impressed them to take their stand for God, they came under strong conviction and soon joined the remnant church.

After two weeks of meetings every night, we held our first baptism. Eight people publicly manifested their personal acceptance of Christ and their desire to be a member of the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Three of those who were baptized were from one family. The Theurer family had known about Seventh-day Adventists for quite a long time. Years ago one of our literature evangelists had sold them some Seventh-day Adventist literature. For the past seven years one of our members had been sending them These Times. After we visited with them for the first time in their home, they promised to come to the meetings. They came every night from then on.

Often we hear it said that neighbors around the church hardly know anything about us and our beliefs. The Harr family are the neighbors next door to the Mount Holly Church. It was a joyful sight to see Mrs. Harr and two of her sons, William and Donald, baptized together at our last baptism. Our neighbors not only know about us; they have become one of us.

I could go on relating many more experiences concerning how God brought 27 persons into His fold during this short campaign. He did a wonderful thing in Mount Holly.

Elder Holley and his team are dedicated to winning souls for Christ, and God gives them many every year. It was a thrilling and rewarding experience to work with them here in Mount Holly. I am sure that the members of this church will long remember this series of meetings. Blessings were truly poured out upon all who attended and especially upon those who took part.

Because of the wonderful results and the interests that were found, we are continuing with evangelistic meetings on Sunday and Wednesday nights. We have been encouraged to see the good attendance at these follow-up meetings. We are planning for another baptism in the near future. Truly the harvest is ripe, and it is high time that God's workers go into the field and reap the harvest.

Annual Youth Rally Held at Trenton

THE annual youth rally for the New Jersey Conference was held recently in the huge Trenton War Memorial Building. Approximately 1,000 people assembled for a program of inspiration, music, and enjoyment. A three-hour spiritual meeting was held in the afternoon, followed by a two-and-a-half-hour variety program in the evening.

The center of the afternoon activities was the message by Elder John Hancock, Associate MV Secretary of the General Conference. Elder Hancock had just returned from a two-and-a-half month trip to South America.

New Trenton-Mt. Holly School to Be Built

AFTER 20 years of hopeful expectation, ground was broken for the new consolidated Trenton-Mount Holly School, April 5. The Trenton Church has operated a church school for many years in the church building. For 20 years there has been a conviction that there should be a new school in a separate building located in a rural environment. A building fund has been set aside for many years for this purpose, but somehow obstacles arose and the plans were never launched.

Finally, however, under the leadership of Elder W. H. Barringham, pastor of the district, a consolidation was effected between Trenton and Mount Holly schools for the 1966-67 school year. A new building committee, under the leadership of Elder Sidney Young, Stewardship Secretary of the New Jersey Conference, was formed, plans were drawn and approved, land was purchased, and the great day of ground breaking took place.

Participants at the service, in addition to Elder Barringham and Elder Young, included Elder A. B. Butler, President of the New Jersey Conference; Elder Cleon B. Green, Secretary-Treasurer; Elder Roger Dudley, Superintendent of Education; Pastor Gordon Blandford, Associate Pastor of the district; Warren Durham, Chairman of the School Board; Paul Dupper, new Principal of the school; and Henry Kijak, the builder.

The school will initially consist of four classrooms built on 18 acres of rural, rolling farmland. Ultimately, plans call for a gymnasium-auditorium and a junior high school wing. Construction will begin immediately with proposed occupancy set for September.

STUDENTS of Takoma Academy raised $17,403.83 for world Ingathering, according to an announcement by Principal J. P. Laurence. The sum exceeds past record-breaking totals of the Academy by several thousand dollars.

The intense commitment of many students produced equally unusual individual achievements. Jerry Nickerson won top soliciting honors with $325. Seven teen-agers surged over the $200 mark. Fifty-one obtained $100 or more.

Senior-class members outshone other school groups by garnering nearly $6,000. In all, 96 per cent of school enrollees contributed in some way.

The campaign spanned the five evenings of April 17-21. Solicitors dispersed over Montgomery and Prince George's counties for two and one-half hours each evening. Door-to-door canvassing netted high nightly figures. Thursday evening, April 21, saw students bring back $6,500. Takoma Academy students have solicited over $55,000 for world missions in the past four years.

Parents contributed immensely to the success of the missionary effort. Driving and route-finding duties in nearly all cars devolved upon parents, many of whom accompanied young people each night of the campaign.

Elder R. H. Brodersen, Potomac

Conference Home Missionary Secretary, provided spirited assistance throughout the drive as did Elder C. C. Weis, Secretary of the Union Conference Department of Lay Activities, during several evenings when his schedule permitted.

For the first time in memory, boys led girls in the contest for the highest soliciting levels. Four young men brought in more than $200. They were Jerry Nickerson, David Moorhead, Jerry Bokoles, and Greg Schneider. Three young women bettered the mark also: Sheri Savage, Roberta Bainum, and Donna Dickson.

Excellent weather made this year's campaign especially good. Despite thousands of contacts, ingatherers encountered only few and minor difficulties. One startled young lady experienced the greatest surprise of the week when a monkey leaped through a doorway into her protesting arms. She was rewarded for her loss of dignity by a dollar bill.

"Operation Total" Brings Enthusiastic Response

ALREADY letters are coming in to the conference office indicating enthusiasm for "Operation Total." From time to time we shall share with our readers paragraphs from letters from the field.

Silver Spring Architect Gets Professional Award

RONALD SENSEMAN, a member of the Silver Spring Church, has been honored by being elected to fellowship in the Institute of American Architects.

Election to the fellowship came from a recent decision of the Jury of Fellows and is a coveted award since only three per cent of architects in America reach this achievement.

A native of Collingwood, N. J., Mr. Senseman has made his home in the Washington area since 1930. He is married to the former Lois Hatt of Pittsburgh.

Mr. Senseman established his architectural office in the mid-thirties and has completed over 600 major projects in every field of endeavor.

Some of the major medical buildings designed by Mr. Senseman are Washington Sanitarium and Hospital; Leland Memorial Hospital; and the Wheaton, Hyattsville, and Magnolia Nursing Homes. He has designed buildings at Columbia Union College, Atlantic Union College, and Andrews University. He is also the designer of the Takoma Park Church.

New Market Pathfinders Visit New England

A GROUP of 17 New Market Pathfinders from the elementary school visited New England during Easter vacation. The trip was organized by Mrs. Kay Rizzo, teacher of grades 4-6, and Pathfinder leaders, Roland John, Art Loignon, and William Strickland. The young people raised money for the trip by selling candy and holding bake sales and a potluck supper.

Travel was in the Shenandoah Valley Academy bus. Several parents also made the trip, making the total number of participants 36. Boston was the destination. Points of interest visited were Freedom Trail, Old North Church, Paul Revere's House, site of the Boston Massacre, Old Ironsides, Plymouth, the House of the Seven Gables, Concord, New England Sanitarium, and Greater Boston and Pioneer Valley Academies.

...and a good time was had by all at Swallow Falls Camporee.

Evangelism in Telford, Orvilla Brings 20 Into Church

sponsored the Daily Voice of Prophecy broadcast over WBUX in Doylestown, Pa.

Pastor and Mrs. Fred K. Hyde and the members worked untiringly. Plans were laid for the V.O.P. Bible-marking program to synchronize with public evangelism in the Cloud Cathedral with Evangelist Robert Taylor. Richard Nash, one of the many faithful laymen, was in charge of the music, and laymen provided special numbers for every meeting.

On May 7 the baptismal service was conducted in the Norristown Church. Nineteen new members were added and one was rebaptized. Several interests are being followed up in adjoining churches.

The scene of the Orvilla-Telford, Pa., evangelistic meetings.

Real victories over threats and adversities were experienced. On the opening night vandals slashed the Bubble. The second week a heater blasted flame into Elder Taylor's face, singeing his hair and eyebrows. On the last Friday one of the motors burned, and the fire department was called to extinguish the blaze. With the remaining fan and two auxiliary fans from the fire department the Bubble was reinflated and the meeting opened according to schedule. None of these adversities could stop the "March of Truth" meetings. In fact, "the wrath of man" brought attention to God's Word. Front-page stories in the newspapers helped to advertise.

Elder Robert Taylor "explains" to Richard Nash (center) and Pastor and Mrs. Fred K. Hyde, associated together in the "March of Truth," Orvilla-Telford, Pa., evangelistic crusade.

Public Relations by Way of Radio

It was late evening and Mrs. Thomas Bennett of the Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Church, couldn't sleep, so she tuned in a local radio station. A public-opinion program was in progress. Appeals were made for pledges of blood to be donated for use in Viet Nam.

The program took a strange turn when a woman called protesting the appeals for blood and giving her views opposing blood transfusions. Her conversation with the master of ceremonies was removed from the air and finished as a private conversation.

After this, a Catholic lady called in to tell the MC that he had treated the call unkindly. His answer was: "This woman wanted to engage in a religious argument, which is not allowed on this program." When asked who it was that protested the blood program, he answered: "She was a Seventh-day Adventist."

At this point Mrs. Bennett called on her husband for help. Being personally acquainted with the radio announcer, Mr. Bennett called the station and explained that Adventists do donate blood and use blood transfusions when necessary. He himself is a member of the "Gallon Club" and has donated almost two gallons of blood over a period of time. He was able to tell something about our medical work around the world in the course of the conversation. The announcer apologized profusely and, of course, this entire conversation was broadcast. Needless to say, Mr. Bennett was interested in following up this contact, and, since he had subscribed to Liberty magazine and These Times magazine to be sent to the announcer's home, he next made a personal call. He was very cordially received and had a very rewarding visit. It was then that he learned that the wife of the announcer was reading the book, Planet in Rebellion. She not only was reading it herself, but was taping it for a blind friend.

Because the announcer's wife manifested such an interest in astronomy and other Bible questions, Mr. Bennett has since provided them with Questions on Doctrines; A Century of Miracles; and Wonders of Creation. Next in the sequence of events was the enrolling of the blind friend in the Voice of Prophecy Braille Bible Course.

The Bennetts are sure that there will be another chapter in this story, because since then these people have accepted The Great Controversy as a further addition to their library.

Good public relations and missionary work are almost synonymous in most respects. Let us all be up and doing as opportunities occur.

"Voice of Youth" Series Held at Bradford

LARRY Shultz coordinated the young people of Bradford, Pa., in a "Voice of Youth" series. Posters were made and posted on the University campus and at other places where they would be seen by youth. Personal visitation and invitations were part of the groundwork. A local quartet provided most of the special music.

At the last meeting, when Richard Chamberlain made an altar call, nearly the entire congregation, including many non-Adventists, moved forward. This series of meetings has laid a foundation for another in the future, when a harvest is expected.

Why Not?

WHY not carry some Voice of Prophecy or Faith for Today enrollment cards with you? Then try to enroll your man at the service station, delivery men, friends, and neighbors. Tell them the value of the course. BE ENTHUSIASTIC. Then you will hear from them some day somewhere.

Congregation "Moves Upstairs" in New Church

A MOVE into the "upper room" was celebrated with great joy by the Cleveland Yugoslavian Church on May 7. The upper room is the sanctuary of their new church. They have been worshiping for some time in a basement hall of the building. The building is now almost completed, but its dedication will be held at a later date, according to Elder Stephen Manestar, pastor.

Present for the inauguration services were Elder Wesley Amundsen of Washington, D. C., Secretary of the North American Division Missions Committee; Elder F. W. Wernick and Elder C. R. Beeler, President and Public Relations Secretary, respectively, of the Ohio Conference; and Elder Joseph Spicer of Akron, Ohio, former pastor, now retired. Elder Amundsen spoke at the morning worship service and Elder Wernick spoke in the official opening program in the afternoon. Others participating in the afternoon service were Elder Jacob Z. Slezak of the Hungarian Church and Elder A. H. Schleicher of the German Church, both in Cleveland.

Music included selections by a 30-voice a cappella choir, an octet, and other vocal and instrumental presentations.

There was one Yugoslavian Adventist Church member in Cleveland in October, 1937, when Elder and Mrs. Joseph Spicer went there to establish a work among the people of that nationality. They began work with books from house to house, and soon they had a small Sabbath

School. In 1939 the church was organized and as it has grown it has moved from one meeting place to another until the launching of the present church building project.

The new building was begun on October 8, 1963. Elder Manestar, who had been a builder in Yugoslavia before becoming a minister, directed the labor, all of which was done by the members, except the plumbing and electrical installations. John Maretich, one of the main helpers, gave many days of work to the project. The building, valued at more than $50,000, was erected for an actual cash outlay of about $20,000.

It is located in the center of that part of the city inhabited largely by Yugoslavians. The church members feel that their securing of that location was providential. When they first inquired about it, the price was far beyond their means. They visited the owner, John Skoda, several times, asking for a better price, assuring him, "God will bless you." Mr. and Mrs. Skoda eventually agreed to sell it for $4,500, which the church felt they could pay. As the building proceeded, the Skodas became very interested in the project, and came to refer to it as "our church." They were present for the opening service, and were invited to the front to receive the appreciation, officially expressed, of the entire church.

Four young people were baptized just before the opening service on Sabbath afternoon.

Cleveland MV's Tour Radio Station

MISSIONARY Volunteers of the Cleveland First Church invited members to spend an unusual Sabbath afternoon with them as they toured the studios of Radio Station WCRF-FM, in Brecksville, Ohio, operated by the Moody Bible Institute.

John Parobek, a former missionary to India, whose home is just across from the station, was host to the group of 40 members for an hour before the appointed time for the tour.

The WCRF-FM announcer, Dave Gibbs, explained how the station got its start and gave details of its operation. Features included the tape and record library, teletype unit, the new transmitter, the control room with its three Ampex tape recorders, and a live record request program.

WCRF-FM (the CRF stands for Christian Radio Fellowship) covers a radius of approximately 100 miles and extends into Canada, Michigan, and Pennsylvania. The main antenna reaches a height of 475 feet. The station has an ERF (Effective Radiated Power) of 38,000 watts and can be reached at 103.3 megacycles within range.

Cincinnati School Visited By YWCA Group

WHEN Mrs. Huth of the Y.W.C.A. contacted Mrs. Jane Heeb, leader of the Cincinnati Dorcas Society, inquiring if a group of ladies could visit them to learn of the beliefs of Seventh-day Adventists, Mrs. Heeb extended an invitation for the group to have lunch at the Cincinnati Junior Academy cafeteria.

An attractive luncheon was served to 12 ladies who arrived at the school on the day designated.

Many questions were asked: What do you believe? What do you eat? How do you conduct your schools? Elder Clayton Jepson, the pastor, gave an interesting explanation of the beliefs and activities of the church.

The group was given a tour of the school and also the health-food shop where they were quite fascinated with all the health foods. Some made purchases.

Ground Broken for New Academy Gymnasium

ERIS KIER, Principal of Mt. Aetna Academy; Mrs. Blanche Dailey, 91-year-old member of the Hagerstown

Church; and C. H. Kelly, Academy board chairman, led in the act of ground breaking for a new gymnasium at Mt. Aetna school on May 9. President Cyril Miller commended the Hagerstown district for their vision and sacrifice in upgrading their school plant. The mayor of Hagerstown wished the Adventists Godspeed as they moved forward in their ever-growing work.

The new masonry gymnasium will be 55 by 125 feet in length and 'also will include four more classrooms at one end for teaching and a kitchen. This is the final part of a two-year building program to completely remodel and rebuild the old Mt. Aetna school. The cost of the project is now approaching $200,000, which has come miraculously from the Hagerstown and Mt. Aetna people.

The Mt. Aetna Church congregation is approaching the 200-membership mark and will move into the new gymnasium as a temporary church home.

Chesapeake Science Fair Held

The first annual Chesapeake Science Fair, held at Atholton Junior Academy, was a success. Over 300 seventh- and eighth-grade students viewed 45 exhibits and projects completed as part of a program to create greater interest in the area of science. The day's events included guest speakers from the Goddard Space-Flight Center of NASA, Bell Telephone Company, and Baltimore Gas and Electric Company; a successful rocket launching; and the awarding of prizes to outstanding exhibitors. For their study, "The Embryology of the Chicken," Karen Higgins and Carolyn Belknap of Sligo Elementary School were awarded first prize. Charles Freeman, Randy Tompkins, and Lester Harris, Jr., also from Sligo School, were awarded second prize and Kenneth Schneider of Atholton Junior Academy received third prize. David Zimmerman and Don Loveless are pictured explaining their rocket before blast off.—Don Loveless, Program Chairman.

CRISIS-HOUR EVANGELISM

• FIFTEEN people responded to a call for decision by Elder Lyndon DeWitt at Forest Grove on a recent Sabbath. Many of these will be baptized shortly.

• The Schwindt-Hicks meeting in both Dundalk and Essex are steadily gaining momentum. Three were baptized recently and many others will be baptized by the time you read this. There will be regular baptismal services from now on throughout the meetings.

• The Parish-May series is now underway in Parkville. Elder Ulmer is holding a short series in the Glen Burnie Church. Crews-Wood-Everett meetings are fast drawing to a climax in Towson.

Elder Lindquist reports that five to 10 non-members are regularly attending his weekend series in Prince Frederick. This is very good for such a small place. This will be a great blessing to the 14 members there.

Stewardship to Be Subject for Fall Prayer Meetings

The book Counsels on Stewardship will be suggested for church prayer meetings this fall, according to an action by the Columbia Union Conference Executive Committee. Elder Alva Appel, Columbia Union Conference Association Secretary (right in the photograph above) has prepared a 10-lesson study guide that is being examined by Elder N. C. Wilson, Columbia Union Conference President. Plans call for the prayer-meeting studies to begin Wednesday night, September 7, and continue through November 9. The action of the committee, with all of the local presidents favoring the plan, called for a unified program in all of the churches in the Union Conference. The lesson guide, entitled "Eternal Values," is being printed and will be available for distribution soon. The purpose of the unified studies is to give each church member a better understanding of Christian stewardship. A certificate of achievement will be presented at the close of the course.

• Two husbands and wives and the husband of one of the members were baptized by Elder Otis Parish on Sabbath as the firstfruits from the short series conducted by Elder Cyril Miller in Wilna.

• Twenty persons took their stand for baptism in the first call at the Holley-Folkenberg-Holley series in Frederick. Others are deeply interested and a large number of additional decisions is anticipated on the closing weekend of the meetings.

• Things are really beginning to move in the Schwindt-Hicks series in both Dundalk and Essex. Ten already have been baptized and many others are deeply interested. A baptismal service is being scheduled every week for the next six or eight weeks. An outstanding harvest will take place as a result of these meetings.

• Eighteen were baptized in Dover on Sabbath, April 30; 15, by Elder Lyndon DeWitt and three, by Elder Robert East. Elder DeWitt already has 10 more ready for baptism on May 28.

• Fifteen decided for baptism in the May-Currie series in Chestertown. Elder Currie is now preparing the candidates for baptism.

Parsons Church Dedicated

THE dedication service for the new Parsons, W. Va., Seventh-day Adventist Church was held April 23 at 2:30 P.M. The dedicatory sermon was delivered by Elder Neal C. Wilson, President of the Columbia Union Conference. Following this inspiring message, the Pastor, E. L. Anderson, led in the act of dedication. Elder Roscoe W. Moore, President of the West Virginia Conference, offered the dedicatory prayer. Greetings from the town of Parsons were delivered by Mayor Forrest Armentrout.

Participants in the Parsons Church dedication included: Gary Deem, Assistant Pastor; Elder E. L. Anderson, Pastor; Mayor Forrest Armentrout; Elder Neal C. Wilson, President, Columbia Union Conference; Elder Roscoe W. Moore, President, West Virginia Conference; Elder J. F. Harold, former pastor; and Elder C. F. Brooks, Secretary-Treasurer, West Virginia Conference.

Ordination Held for Two Pastors

C. Norman Farley (right), Pastor of the Bluefield and Princeton Churches, and Maynard A. Wheeler, Pastor of the Huntington and Logan Churches, were ordained in solemn ceremonies preceding the biennial constituency meeting of the West Virginia Conference. The ordination sermon was given by Elder Neal C. Wilson, President of the Columbia Union Conference, and the ordination prayer was offered by Elder T. R. Gardner, Secretary-Treasurer of the Columbia Union Conference. Elder Duane S. Johnson, Associate Secretary of the General Conference, gave the charge to the newly ordained pastors and the welcome was extended by Elder Roscoe W. Moore, President of the West Virginia Conference.

Sabbath School and church services were held in the morning. Elder Roscoe Moore was the speaker for the 11:00 o'clock service. Many of our ministers and members from churches in the surrounding area were in attendance.

Seventh-day Adventists in the Parsons area first met as a group in 1955 in the home of Mrs. Cyrena Crawford. Five years ago the educational unit of the building (32' x 20') was completed under the leadership of Pastor Norman Meager. The church school began its operation three years ago with Mrs. J. F. Harold as the teacher. For the past two years Gary Deem has been the teacher and assisted the pastor. Twelve students are enrolled at the present time in the church school.

Last summer construction of the new chapel area, which is 26 x 50 feet, was started. Wendell Slater of Lemon Grove, Calif., was the builder. He brought a crew of two carpenters with him and volunteer labor also was used. Plans for the chapel were drawn by Elder Anderson, who also led in the heating and electrical installation, as well as working with Mr. Slater in securing the building materials at substantial savings.

New Parsons, W. Va., Church.

The exterior of the church is of colonial style, finished in brick veneer. A fiberglass spire pointing heavenward nicely portrays the purpose of the building. The interior is more modernistic, with light colors prevailing. New pews of Appalachian oak and matching pulpit furniture have been installed. A mothers' room is located at the back of the chapel with lavatory and storage facilities. The rostrum and aisles are carpeted and a baptistry is included in the plan behind the pulpit area. There is also a small room off each side of the rostrum.

The church was built largely from funds left by the late Mrs. Jennie Shahan. The total cost of the educational wing, with recent improvements, and the new chapel with furnishings was approximately $20,000 with an estimated replacement value of $30,000.

CUC Offers New Degree, Two New Courses

A B.S. degree in Religious Education, the first in the denomination, is to be offered in September, according to Elder M. K. Eckenroth, chairman of the Department of Religion.

The new degree, which differs from the B.A. degree primarily in not requiring foreign-language courses, is designed for those interested in earning a college degree with an emphasis in special areas without pursuing a professional B.A. degree, such as theology, science, education, etc.

Young people not planning a professional program in theology, medicine, science, or the humanities, yet eager to serve in the cause of God, and help to meet the critical need for church workers, are invited to inquire of Columbia Union College for details.

The Secretarial Science Department at Columbia Union College will offer two new fields of study, beginning with the fall trimester. These are a two-year medical secretarial science course and a four-year curriculum in Medical Record Administration leading to a B.S. degree.

Those interested in medical records and librarianship will complete general B.S. requirements plus selected secretarial and business administration courses on C.U.C.'s campus to equal 96 semester hours. The fourth year can be spent at Loma Linda University or any other accredited school offering Medical Record Administration to complete degree requirements.

For additional information, contact the Director of Admissions, Columbia Union College, Takoma Park, Md.

Travel Booklet Offered

Are you a tourist who appreciates the help and information obtained only from an experienced travel guide? Do you find the dead facts of historical places coming alive because of such help?

If you will be traveling through Michigan this summer and plan to visit places of historical interest to Adventists, you will need a guide to help make these sites breathe the atmosphere of the past. Perhaps no one person is better able to take you into the inspiring eras of yesteryear than Elder Arthur L. White of the Ellen G. White Publications of the General Conference.

A grandson of Elder and Mrs. James White, he has, for many years, been working with the historical records of his grandparents and the church pioneers with whom they associated. Because of this, he is steeped in the fascinating lore of Adventist history.

In cooperation with the Michigan Conference, the General Conference has authorized Elder White to prepare a 16-page illustrated "Go-It-Yourself" booklet that will help you get the most out of your trip through Michigan.

The booklet contains well-defined directions on how to reach the place of interest and a brief paragraph as to its background and importance. To obtain your free copy of this travel necessity, write directly to Elder Arthur L. White, General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, 6840 Eastern Avenue, N.W., Washington, D. C. 20012; or to the Public Relations Department of the Michigan Conference, Box 900, Lansing, Mich. 48904. Copies also will be available at the White Estate booth in Cobo Hall during the General Conference Session this June.

I thought it could be done . . .

THE idea was intriguing—a radio program that would feature discussions on the Bible and its great truths.

But Zane Kirby was not a radio broadcaster. He had no experience. He had no financial help. This did not deter the Charlottesville, Va., layman. "I thought it could be done," was his decision.

So, on Sunday, August 22, 1965, "Adventures in the Bible" was launched on Radio Station WELK, Charlottesville. David Rice, a Columbia Union College student and member of the church, helped as the announcer.

Arrangements were worked out for financing. A broadcast committee was organized in the church. The church pays for two weekly broadcasts and gifts pay for the remaining two programs each month. Five friends, none of them Adventist members, give a few dollars a month and this plus other donations helps keep the program on the air.

The format of the program is simple. It opens with the musical theme, "Give Me the Bible," and announcements follow. Mr. Kirby has studied his topic and speaks extemporaneously. The program has met with a favorable response in the community and many are enrolled in Bible courses as the result of the program's promotion of the courses.

Mr. Kirby is an active layman in the Charlottesville Church. He is employed as an instrument maker in the Physiology Department of the University of Virginia Medical School. It is his job to maintain the electronic equipment used in the laboratory.

Recently two of the programs on "Adventures in the Bible" featured panel discussions on the "Death of God."

The way has not been easy for Zane Kirby, but his enthusiasm and determination have not waned. He still believes "it can be done."
