Pathfinder Fair Includes Community

More than 500 Pathfinders, leaders, and spectators arrived at the J. Lupton Simpson Middle School in Leesburg, Virginia, on April 24 for Potomac Conference's annual Pathfinder Fair.

Activities began at 10:00 a.m. as the fifteen Pathfinder Clubs assembled in uniform for the opening ceremonies. The five field events got under way soon after, and each Pathfinder was encouraged to enter at least three of these events in order to obtain the Certificate of Merit award. Events offered included an obstacle course, football-softball distance throw, target throw, 100-yard tire race, and the gunnysack-obstacle course race.

During the events judges evaluated the exhibits that were displayed inside the gymnasium. Categories in which Pathfinders submitted individual entries included models, baking, arts and crafts, and sewing. The first-place winner for models was Kenny trophy in sewing for her pantsuit. The first-place baking award went to Steffi Bryant for her decorated cake.

The judges were selected from the community of Leesburg. Following the selection of the trophy winners, judges sampled vegetarian cooking provided by the Pathfinder Club food booths.

Pathfinder Club display booths featured the theme "The American Family." The Wheaton booth was selected as the most original and creative.

After the events were completed, trophies were presented and opportunity provided to meet Mark Moseley, place kicker of the Washington Redskins. Mark spoke on team spirit and dedication to their organization, along with the need for hard work to achieve success.

K. I. Foss, pastor of the Leesburg church, his wife, and a number of ardent church supporters hosted this year's Pathfinder Fair—organizing and involving the community.

A. V. Pinkney and G. J. Bertochini gave a demonstration of what the smoking of cigarettes can do to a person's lungs. Both men are associate directors of the temperance department of the General Conference.

W. A. Cheatham Accepts Civil Rights Appointment

HEW Secretary Joseph Califano recently appointed Wilbert Augustus Cheatham as Deputy Director for Program Review of the Office for Civil Rights. The office is responsible for enforcing laws that prohibit schools and other federally funded institutions from discriminating against minorities, women, and the handicapped.

Cheatham will be responsible for coordinating new civil rights compliance programs by each HEW agency and for including civil rights objectives in every HEW grant, contract, and program.

A graduate of Pine Forge Academy and Columbia Union College, Cheatham is a local elder of the Dupont Park church in Washington, D.C. He is the son of Elder and Mrs. W. L. Cheatham, Sr., of Pine Forge, Pennsylvania. Elder Cheatham is a former president of Allegheny Conference.

Mr. Cheatham and his wife, Ida (Anderson), have three children. His son is on the right.

Temperance Session Shows Good Health's Value

Lennox Westney

The temperance department of the Allegheny East Conference recently held a conference-wide temperance workshop, which included a number of personalities who helped to make the program a success.

The conference medical director, Lennox Westney, who is also a professor at Howard University and a practicing physician in the Washington, D.C., area, led out Sabbath morning. With him was a panel made

The panel discussed what the value of good health should mean to a Christian and how that Christian person can share it.

M. A. Dopp, health director of the Potomac Conference, not only gave an excellent talk on heart attacks and their prevention, but provided a breathing device for those present to see what their lung capacity was. Calvin Lester, physical-education teacher at Pine Forge Academy, emphasized the proper use of our bodies, recognizing that they were made for the

Youth Congress Held at Pittsburgh Ethnan Temple

Youth from throughout Allegheny West crowded into the Ethnan Temple church and into Soldiers and Sailors Memorial Hall all day Sabbath during the 1977 Youth Congress held in Pittsburgh April 29 to May 1. Opening night they heard the Pine Forge Academy choir and band in sacred concert, and a short sermonette—"Being Free in Jesus"—by Dory Robinson.

The JMV choir from Ethnan Temple and the Charity Singers provided special music during Sabbath school.

An interesting news report, which included a pictorial presentation of the mission story, preceded the lesson study by the Lynchburg-Roanoke, Virginia, pastor, Lawrence Shepherd.

Greetings were extended to the youth by both union and local conference leaders during divine worship. Music by the Temple Emmanuel young adult choir, the Pine Forge Academy choir, and Brenda Sprogins paved the way for a most effective sermon by James Wray, pastor of the Hyde Park church in Chicago. The congress theme song was "Jesus Is the Answer."

The Sabbath afternoon session put the spotlight on the MV Federation, Rhythm rounds, games, instruments such as the guitar, auto harp, bells, xylophone, and visual aids were utilized.

The workshop was well attended by members from three churches in the Cleveland area.

Activities Noted at HVA, Hagerstown, Willow Brook

An old-fashioned midweek preaching service started on April 20 and will continue through July 6. This service convenes every Wednesday evening at 7:15 and runs concurrently in both the Hagerstown and Willow Brook churches.

The series features guest speakers such as: Joe Crews, from Amazing Facts; Colin Standish, president, Columbia Union College; Columbia Union Conference president, W. B. Quigley; and from the General Conference, Ben Liebelt, John Hancock, N. R. Dower, E. E. Cleveland, and many more outstanding speakers.

The uniqueness of these meetings is that the laymen of the churches are participating in the majority of the activities. As many as 40 laymen from both churches are involved in this crusade. The minister's part is only to introduce the guest speaker. The laymen are in charge of greeting the people, conducting the song service, ushering, special music, and anything else that will make the program run smoothly.

After each meeting eight prayer bands meet. Each prayer band leader has asked six people to commit themselves to attend these special prayer groups and pray for the effectiveness of this crusade and any other special problem or request presented.

As this article is being typed, the news comes that to date ten people have taken their stand for Christ as a result of the midweek preaching service.

A comprehensive health series was presented by the Hagerstown church on May 13. This 5-Day Health Series, conducted by Janice Byrd, R.N., B.S., covered topics of interest to the community: "Who's Healthy?" "Hypertension—the Silent Killer," "Exercise and Your Heart," "Eat Less, Weigh Less," and "Cooking With Less Cholesterol."

Mrs. Byrd, an associate professor of nursing at Frederick Community College, presented the lectures and coordinated discussion groups. A blood pressure check and a buffet of meatless entrees and sandwich spreads were also planned. Films giving useful information on healthful living were scheduled each night.

At the end of the health series, a seven-week weight control program continued, with emphasis on better living.

A Five-Day Stop Smoking Plan was conducted at the Hagerstown church April 24-28. Of the 19 persons who registered, 11 finished the plan and gained victory over the smoking habit.

A plastic surgeon, an attorney, a park naturalist, a crane operator, and a cosmetic consultant were among those in attendance.

A tally was taken of the group, which revealed that a combined total of 503 cigarettes were smoked daily for 465 years.

Health, Cooking Classes Held at Federalsburg

In the Federalsburg church, Mrs. John Earnhardt conducted a series of health lectures and cooking demonstrations along with the midweek study of Counsels on Diet and Foods by John Earnhardt, pastor. Subjects covered were: vegetable proteins (how to make your own), sugar, breadmaking, and cooking without dairy products.

These classes were well attended and created much interest among the non-Adventists. One of the visitors, a member of the Jewish faith, remarked, "Vegetarian cooking classes should be held in every town. People don't realize what they are eating. It would help solve many of our food-shortage problems."

Camp Meeting to Feature Evangelism July 8-16

Nightly public evangelism will be a strong feature of the 1977 Chesapeake camp meeting July 8-16 at Highland View Academy. Through advertising and personal invitation, residents of the Hagerstown and Frederick areas will be urged to hear the message of God for these last days. Four different speakers will present the message during the nine-night series.

J. R. Spangler, editor of The Ministry, will have the opening sermon. The next three nights will feature J. Reynolds Hoffman, who is an evangelist with Faith for Today. Joe Crews of Amazing Facts will present one message, and Jere Webb, new pastor of the Collegedale, Tennessee, church will finish the series with four sermons. Each of these men is a successful, active evangelist and will add much to the overall camp meeting program.

Each day D. A. Delafield of the White Estate will have a special Bible study hour. He will also conduct two classes each afternoon on the Spirit of Prophecy.

The youth and children will enjoy special programs and events in which they may participate, according to Youth Director Jack Nail. Elder Nail has recently moved to Chesapeake and is planning a strong program for the youth during the camp meeting.

Again this year the Conference Association will be available for counseling with regard to the wills and trusts of members who wish to visit with them about the future of their possessions.

A special part of the morning devotional periods this year will be opportunity for group discussion and prayer. Don't miss the morning devotionals.

COME ALIVE! STAY ALIVE! Come to Chesapeake camp meeting.

Woodruff Replaces Follett As Conference President

George Woodruff

The Chesapeake Conference Committee met on May 24 and elected George Woodruff to be the president of the conference. Philip Follett has accepted a call to the Northern California Conference. Elder Woodruff has recently returned from overseas service, where he was president of the Sierra Leone Mission in West Africa for six years. During the several months since his return from Africa he has been serving as stewardship and development director of the Michigan Conference.

The Woodruff family is at home in this area. Mrs. Woodruff's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Dawson, are members of the Annapolis church, and Elder Woodruff's parents live in Luray, Virginia. They have a son, David, who lives with his family in Colorado, and three daughters—Nancy Cross, who lives in Colorado on a ranch with her husband and children, Mrs. Robert Forss, whose husband is a pastor in West Virginia, and Joanne, who is just completing a dental assistant's course at Loma Linda.

Prior to going overseas Woodruff pastored churches in New Jersey and Pennsylvania and became director of stewardship of the New Jersey Conference.

Elder Woodruff has assumed his duties as president of Chesapeake and says he looks forward to getting acquainted with the members at camp meeting and throughout the conference. He has met with the Conference Executive Committee and is actively sharing in plans for God's work in this challenging area.

Second MPH Class Held

Some of those who attended the last Master of Public Health class on the Columbia Union College campus May 2 through 5 are, left to right (top), Pierre Buch, new student; Mrs. Ann Gimbél, of Calgary, Alberta, Canada, nearest to completing the course; Dr. Curtis King, Loma Linda University instructor; Dr. and Mrs. Ken Lauren, West Virginia dark county workers; and John Kidby, dentist, Bandon, Oregon, who came the farthest. The new students (center), left to right, are Mrs. Roberta Howe, Mrs. Violet Jones, Mrs. Marjorie Corner, and Pierre Buch. Dr. Curtis King (bottom) reminds Richard Gister—a management man interested in the health evangelism approach—and Dr. Kenneth Lauren of the July 24 to 28 class at Kettering College of Medical Arts.

MPH Program Enters Third Session at Kettering

The third session of the Master's degree program opens in the teaching amphitheater at the Kettering Medical Center on July 24 at 7 p.m. These quarterly off-campus classes, which permit students from the Columbia Union to pursue the MPH degree on an in-service basis, are a joint effort of Loma Linda University and the Columbia Union Conference.

The July class, Introduction to Health Education, will be taught by Mrs. Corinne King. This will provide two quarter hours of academic credit and require 20 clock hours of lecture and class assignment. The class will attend the uniquely timed Cincinnati Health Evangelism Crusade one evening. Elder Reuben Hubbard and his assistant, Miss Kathy Hargrave, also will join Mrs. King during one of the regular class sessions. They will explore strengths and weaknesses, problems and adaptations of health evangelism tactics in practice.

Following the course in Health Education, a chemistry course will be offered for those students who do not have a science background. This course, Introduction to Nutritional Chemistry, will be taught by Kenneth I. Burke and begins Wednesday at 10:00 a.m. and will continue until Friday noon. Lodging for students attending both classes is being arranged by Mrs. Susan Sickler (phone: 513-433-0608). Meals will be at the Kettering Hospital cafeteria. New students wishing to enroll for the first time should contact the Health Department office at the Columbia Union Conference (phone: 301-270-6600) before calling Mrs. Sickler.

LLU to Study Diet And Growth of Girls

A five-year study of the relationship between diet and growth in girls, ages 9 and 15, is currently being conducted by the Department of Biostatistics and Epidemiology of the School of Health at Loma Linda University. "The study is important because of possible health effects in later life," says David G. Kissinger, Ph.D., principal investigator and associate professor of epidemiology. Aimed at determining whether classes of nutrients or specific foods have an effect on growth and development, the research will be conducted mainly at Seventh-day Adventist elementary schools and junior academies in Southern and Southeastern California, and at public schools near Loma Linda. Approximately 5,000 girls will be asked to enroll in the study. The growth of each girl will be monitored by changes in weight, height, and thickness of the skin fold on the back of the upper arm.

Takoma Park Honors 80+ Members

On May 15, a very special dinner party was given by the Takoma Park church, Maryland, to honor its 80+ club members. Coordinated by the Dorcas Society (Community Services), the dinner was one of the many ways in which the church shows how much it cares for its elderly members. L. W. Graham (seated second from left), who will be celebrating his one hundredth birthday on July 2, was given special recognition. The club is composed of church members who have reached the age of 80 or more years.

Practical Christianity Emphasized in Prayer Week

Bailey Gillespie, teacher in the Department of Theology at Loma Linda University, conducted a Week of Prayer at Shenandoah Valley Academy April 11 to 16. Studies on practical Christianity were presented. The week ended with a baptism conducted by Max Hill, pastor of the New Market, Virginia, church.

Special recognition goes to all the seventh- to tenth-graders, who worked long hours, and to their science teacher, Jack Cross. Jim Frazier is principal.

Physical Therapist Treats Saudi Arabian Princess

Mary Lou Sonee

Mary Lou Sonee, a member of Sligo church, Takoma Park, Maryland, has come back from England where she spent several weeks with Princess Abta Saud, daughter of the late King Faisal of Saudi Arabia.

Princess Abta came to the United States in early March for vacation and treatment for a sciatic nerve ailment of the right leg. After a few days, however, she decided to leave for England and requested a good physical therapist to accompany her.

Through the help of George Washington University Hospital, where the princess was receiving treatment, Sonee, physical therapy supervisor, Leland Memorial Hospital, was selected and presented the offer. "The first thing I told the princess," Sonee says, "was that I am a Seventh-day Adventist, keeping the Sabbath and following the health principles of our church."

Impressed by Sonee's witness, the princess asked for Sonee's services for at least three months, adding, "You are the right person! You might be able to help me with my bad health habits, too."

Farmville Group Becomes Potomac's 78th Church

Fifty-four people were in attendance on Sabbath, April 30, as 30 charter members signed the scroll and the Farmville company became the seventy-eighth church in the Potomac Conference.

Dan Matthews, executive secretary of the conference, officiated at the organization, which featured the first baptism conducted by the district pastor, Hans Varmer.

Three were baptized and one joined the church by profession of faith. Pastor Varmer reports that all four were assaulted by Satan with personal discouragement, family persecution, accident, and disease.

Mickey Warren's story goes back a year when his interest was reawakened in the message he once held dear. It took a literal blow to the head to turn him around. Assaulted by a fellow worker, he had to be hospitalized. That experience was the turning point for him.

Freida Moore made her decision for baptism, and then discovered that she was losing her vision. The Sabbath morning of her baptism she could not see at all. But as she realized that Satan was trying to hinder her, she became all the more determined to go through with her baptism.

Participating in the special Sabbath ceremonies were Fillmer Hevener, Jr., a member of the Potomac Conference committee, and J. J. Aitken, executive secretary of the Association of Privately Owned Seventh-day Adventist Services and Industries. Both men are charter members of the new church. The history of the church goes back to a company that met for several years 18 miles north at Cumberland, Virginia. The Farmville company was organized after a series of meetings held by Evangelist Bert Koch.

Mr. and Mrs. Mickey (Bernice) Warren were both baptized.

WASHINGTON ADVENTIST HOSPITAL

Health Screening Tests Mark Hospital Week

Several hundred suburban Maryland and Washington, D.C., residents participated in a week-long free community screening program, May 9 to 13, at Washington Adventist Hospital, while another large group met during that same week in Gaithersburg, Maryland, for a Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking. Both events were part of Washington Adventist Hospital's commemoration of National Hospital Week. The slogan chosen for the nationwide event was "We put the CARE in health care."

Screening events for the week included pulmonary (lung) tests for smokers, tuberculosis tests, diabetes screening, vision testing, glaucoma screening, and blood pressure checks. Volunteer physicians, nurses, and staff provided the tests.

The Five-Day Plan also included staff from WAH, and was sponsored by the Citizens Advisory Committee for the proposed Shady Grove Adventist Hospital now under development by WAH.

The program marked the fourth such stop-smoking program held in the region of the county to be served by the new hospital. Bimonthly programs are planned for 1977 and 1978 under the direction of A. C. Marple, and will be alternated among four communities in the upper portion of Montgomery County.

The pulmonary tests provided opportunities to discuss the stop-smoking programs, as well as adult breathing classes for those with chronic respiratory problems. Diabetes education classes, heart disease seminars, exercise and nutrition programs, and others were among the community education services highlighted during the week.

With his humorous style, Dr. William Oglesby had no trouble holding the attention of his audience at the retreat for Ohio pastors, physicians, and dentists held at the Kettering church.

Pastors and Medical Folk Explore Working Together

William Oglesby, professor of pastoral counseling at Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Virginia, brought the work of the pastor and that of the physician and the dentist close together. The occasion was the retreat for Ohio pastors, physicians, and dentists, held April 15 to 17 at the Kettering church and sponsored jointly by the physicians and the Ohio Conference.

Both the minister and the physician are engaged in the healing art, Oglesby said, and man is never fully healed unless he is healed in body, mind, and soul.

The group studied the problems and hindrances to the close interaction of the three professions, and recognized a dichotomy of attitudes. The dichotomy begins to develop between the theology and premed students in college, and social and economic differences continue to divide their interests.

However, this should be surmounted, it was urged, as pastors and physicians, working together, can complement each other's skills and both can become more effective as a result. Experiences illustrating this were related by Kenneth Lauren, of West Union, and Wesley Olson, of Sommersville, both in West Virginia.

Lauren opened his practice in a county where there are no Adventists, and no pastor, either. He employed a pastor with a Master's degree in public health to be a health educator in connection with his clinic. As a result, quite a few persons are attending Sabbath services, and prospects for starting a church in West Union are good.

Olson also went to a dark county to begin his practice. Dr. Olson, together with his partner, Jack Jacobson, have developed confidence in their patients to the extent that they are now able to talk of spiritual things. They too hope to start a new church in their area.

Harrison Evans, vice-president for Medical Affairs, Loma Linda University, discussed the mental health of professionals, pointing out that the suicide rate among dentists and physicians is high. He suggested that pastors should not overlook the spiritual needs of the professionals in their congregations. Being well-trained in a professional sense does not guarantee freedom from emotional and spiritual problems, he said.

Dr. Marion Brown (standing) introduced Drs. Kenneth Lauren and Wesley Olson who are using their practices as evangelistic tools to open Adventist work in dark counties.

Others featured at the retreat were Winton H. Beaven, dean of Kettering College of Medical Arts; Don Bostian, pastor of the Kettering church, where the event was held; Marion Brown, director of the health department of the Columbia Union; and Marlowe Schaffner, president of Kettering Medical Center.

Spelling Bee Contestant Stands Firm for Sabbath

Fourteen-year-old Denise Small, an excited eighth grader at Spring Valley Academy, had won Spring Valley's spelling bee, the district spelling contest in Centerville, Ohio, and had a trophy and plaque to prove it. Now she would compete in the regional contest to be televised over WDTN in Dayton!

However, Denise, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. David Small of Kettering, had her hopes dampened when it was discovered the bee would begin during part of the Sabbath.

Evelyn Spuehler, vice-principal of the academy for the elementary level, called a director of the meet to tell them of Denise's plight. She was informed that it would not be possible to alter the time for one person when 30 participants from city and county districts would be affected by the change. Denise would have to relinquish her Centerville title and forfeit her trophy and plaque. When asked if she would participate on the Sabbath, her reply was, "I wouldn't think of it."

Later that same day a caller from the large metropolitan Dayton Daily News, sponsor of the bee, said the time would be changed so Denise could take part.

Denise did not win the regional competition but if you ask her if she was disappointed, she will tell you, "Not really, because I was grateful just to have the experience and to witness for my beliefs."

Ministerial Intern Joins Dayton Far Hills Staff

Fritz Krieger

A new ministerial intern has joined the pastoral staff of the Dayton, Ohio, Far Hills church. He is Fritz K. Krieger, who was graduated from Columbia Union College last April with a Bachelor of Arts degree in theology. A native of Ohio, he was born in Columbus, and his parents now reside at Jeffersonville, Ohio. Previous to finishing college, Krieger served in the United States Air Force for four years and was also a literature evangelist in the Potomac Conference.

Pataskala Names Tom Caw Outstanding Citizen

Tom Caw

On April 15, Tom Caw was named the Outstanding Citizen of 1976 in the Pataskala area. The award was presented by the Pataskala Chamber of Commerce.

Tom Caw is editor-publisher of the Pataskala Standard, a weekly newspaper. He is active in many civic organizations and leads out in various community activities such as the Bicentennial celebrations or the planning commission for the area.

During the presentation it was noted that Caw willingly and unselfishly backs and cooperates with every school, church, and civic organization in the area. As a newspaper editor he is always striving to present the true facts without taking sides. His goal is to do all for the betterment of the community in any way possible.

Those characteristics are also true in his relation to the church. Tom Caw is a charter member of the Reynoldsburg church. He willingly prints the weekly bulletins for both churches in the district, Reynoldsburg-Lancaster, and serves in many offices. Today Caw is an elder and church board chairman, among other offices. In Pataskala, Caw is known as an Adventist and is commended for always being honest and fair in his dealings.

O'Ffill Is New Pastor for Portsmouth-Jackson Area

Duane O'Ffill

The Portsmouth-Jackson district has welcomed a new pastor, Duane O'Ffill. A native of Nashville, Tennessee, O'Ffill is a second generation pastor whose father once pastored in Ohio in the 1950's. O'Ffill is a graduate of Columbia Union College and earned a Master of Divinity degree from Andrews University. Mrs. O'Ffill is the former Jeanette Rupright. They have one son, Mark, age two.

Make Your Application Now To Attend Camp Mohaven

This summer between July 10 and August 19, hundreds of boys and girls will be finding their way to beautiful Camp Mohaven alongside of the Mohican River in central Ohio. A special camp is provided for the 8- and 9-year-olds known as Cub Camp, July 10-17. This is a week especially designed for the first-timers.

Two Junior camps (July 17-24, July 24-31) provide a fun-packed week of adventure and learning. Horseback riding, campfires, hikes, rodeo with chuck wagon supper, good food, swimming, and ball games are just part of the fun.

Teen Outpost Camp (July 31-August 7) offers something new and exciting to those 13-16 years. Come to Camp Mohaven Sunday and then Monday begin the adventure of your choice, doing your favorite thing for three and one-half days. It could be the three-day canoe trip down the rivers of Ohio, or backpacking part of the Buckeye Trail in southeastern Ohio, or participating in Aquatics Camp with swimming, diving, life-saving, and a campout along a lake for water skiing, or Outdoor Living Camp at a real log cabin. This includes cooking, day hikes, orienteering, horseback riding, wild edible plants, and homemade bread, butter, and ice cream. This is a more advanced, challenging, and specialized camp just for teens. The weekend will be with all campers together, back at Mohaven.

All camps only $45 for the week. Fill in the application, below and mail now to Camp Mohaven, P.O. Box 831, Mount Vernon, Ohio 43050. Further information will be sent upon receipt of application and registration fee.

Tranquil Valley Crusaders Win Top Pathfinder Honors

Pathfinders in the New Jersey Conference awoke extra early on May 15 because the Pathfinder Fair was being held that day at Delaware Valley Junior Academy. Many clubs had arrived by 7 a.m. and were busy setting up their club booths in the school gymnasium.

Booths displayed the theme "Preserving Our Environment." The Tranquil Valley Crusaders Club gave away free samples of a cream of lily soup, made from the tubers and stalks of the wild lily plant. The handiwork of the Pathfinders was displayed through their hobbies, crafts, and interests.

The parade at 10 a.m. was followed by a drill demonstration by the clubs. Each drill was performed with precision and excellence.

During the afternoon the guest club, from north Philadelphia, directed by Dan McMannis, inspired each Pathfinder club to put a new march into the drill demonstration next year. Two activities in the afternoon were a knot-tying, log-relay contest and a first-aid field activity.

After these activities, the judges met with Herman Guy, conference youth director, to study the total points of the day for each club and combine them with the total points of the year. The Tranquil Valley Crusaders had the largest total, qualifying them for the yearly plaque. The club with the next-highest number of points was the Hackensack Hawks. Many clubs were within a few points of one another.

The Pathfinder Fair of 1977 went down as a mark of great success in the history of Pathfinding in the New Jersey Conference, thanks largely to Herman Guy. The judges were Jim Brighton, Danny Davis, Bob East, Jim Patton, and Gary Quackenbush.

Non-Adventist Pastors Attend Ministers' Seminar

On Monday, May 16, a seminar for ministers was held at the New Jersey Conference office in Trenton. For the past year The Ministry magazine has been sent to a list of about 1,600 non-Adventist ministers in New Jersey. These ministers were sent special invitations to attend the seminar and get acquainted with Adventist pastors and The Ministry magazine staff. Twenty-four ministers from 15 different denominations attended and shared in a vegetarian meal.

Presentations were made by Raoul F. Dederen, from Andrews University; Robert H. Brown, from the Geoscience Research Institute; and Stuart E. Nevins, from Christian Heritage College, in California. Samuel DeShay, from the General Conference Health Department, talked to the ministers about their health. A good discussion followed each presentation.

Present from the magazine staff were J. Robert Spangler, Orley M. Berg, Leo R. Van Dolson, and Dan Skoretz.

The response from the non-Adventist ministers was good, and many expressed appreciation for our efforts to become better acquainted. Our pastors are being encouraged to continue to cultivate the friendships that were created at the meeting.

Ingersoll Ordained and Called to Mission Service

Herbert Ingersoll, former leader of Beautiful Valley, has been ordained to the gospel ministry.

He graduated from Mount Vernon Academy in 1946. After attending Andrews University for one year he enrolled at Columbia Union College and obtained his B.A. degree in theology in 1953.

Elder Ingersoll's first assignment was teaching Bible at Adelphian Academy, where he served for 10 years.

In 1963, he and his family accepted a call to Africa. His nine years of mission service included managing the Malamulo press, teaching, and pastoral assignments.

Upon returning to this country and studying at Andrews University for a year, he joined the Mountain View Conference in 1972. Since then he has served as pastor of the Spencer church and leader of Beautiful Valley.

Ingersoll met Dorothy Ritter in the academy, and their friendship grew. While in college they decided to share their lives with each other and Christ. Their marriage has been blessed with three children. Their oldest daughter, Holly, has been teaching at Beautiful Valley. She and her brother and sister are returning with their parents to the mission field.

The choir from Beautiful Valley dedicated their song, "Make My Life a Picture of Jesus," to the Ingersolls. W. D. Frazee, director of Wildwood Institute, presented the sermon. D. W. Hilderbrandt, conference treasurer, offered the ordination prayer. The conference president, Tom Mosert, gave the charge, and Ken Stewart, educational director, then gave the address of welcome.

Perry Pedersen listens as members plan ways to reach their communities.

Community Service Group Plans Stronger Program

Featured speaker for the spring Southern Area Community Service Federation meeting was Perry Pedersen, lay activities director, Columbia Union Conference. Wanda Hayes of the Charleston church, president, led out in the one-day session.

Study was given to an intensification of the church's community-service program in the respective areas, with a survey of the work now being done.

Among the highlights of the day was a special feature by Pedersen, who exhorted all to be diligent and faithful in the many approaches to serving communities. An afternoon question-and-discussion hour with Herbert Morgan, Community Service director, Mountain View Conference, was appreciated, with all churches represented participating.

Other special guests were Evelyn Postelwait, State Federation president; Loma Montgomery, State Federation treasurer; and Ken Taylor, David Huber and William Kilgore, all pastors of the Mountain View Conference.

Eighty Attend First Junior High Bible Conference

April 14 marked the beginning of Pennsylvania's first junior high Bible conference. Representing churches from Erie to Stroudsburg, 80 students, grades 7-10, attended. They were joined by Jim Pleasants, associate youth director of the Potomac Conference, guest speaker for the weekend.

Combining music with the lovely woods setting of Laurel Lake Camp, David and Dennis Canther provided a beautiful atmosphere for the conference. David and Dennis, originally Michiganders, now from Southern Missionary College, have had much experience singing for youth groups at camp meetings and Bible conferences.

The weekend, centered around Elder Pleasants' theme of "Christ + You = Success," began on Thursday evening with an inspirational talk. Friday morning was spent studying various scriptures; the afternoon was for recreation. In the evening, a candlelight commitment service was held.

Activities resumed the next morning, with rotating Sabbath schools—each group progressed through the different areas, which were based on topics such as meditation, music, and nature. Sabbath afternoon a nature scavenger hunt took the students exploring through the woods and hills surrounding the camp. There was a music festival held by the Canther Brothers, involving all the delegates. The Sabbath closed with a special sundown worship. The evening was spent in group games.

Saturday night, Les Pitton, Pennsylvania Conference youth director, and Jim Pleasants concluded the weekend with a challenge to the students to discover for themselves that "it is only in serving Christ that you can find true excitement and joy."

Tracey Albright Named Pathfinder of the Year

Pennsylvania's annual Pathfinder Fair, held the first day of May at Blue Mountain Academy, began with a gala parade. Its theme, "Old Testament Events," was depicted by floats built by each Pathfinder club.

Fourteen of the clubs gave demonstrations of the skills they had learned during the year. These included tent pitching, tumbling, rocketry, wilderness direction finding, marching, and model-airplane flying. There was an arts and crafts show in the gym.

During the noon hour, each club operated its own food booth, where Bavarian waffles, pirogi and whoopie pies, ice cream, French fries, and Veja-links could be obtained.

Field events included the centipede race, based on the team members' ability to tie nine different knots. For the kite-flying event, the kites had to be made by the Pathfinders, and the contest was judged on steadiness of flying for ten minutes. The tug-of-war event called for full club participation.

The judges, led by Bob McAuliffe of Allentown, did an excellent job of organizing and decision-making. At the end of the afternoon, Pathfinder Fair ribbons, based on an accumulation of points for the day, were awarded. Eleven clubs rated first-place ribbons. Montrose and York came in first with 175 out of 180 possible points, followed by Hershey, Reading, Lancaster, Hillcrest, Blossburg, Valley Forge, Williamsport, Pocono Mountain, and Kingston.

Also given at this time was the Pathfinder of the Year award, won by Tracey Albright, of York. And there were awards for the clubs accumulating most points in 1976. The Montrose Farmers had the first Championship award, with 635 points, making them the Club of the Year. The Hillcrest Pandas, with 623 points, were also a Championship club. The Honor clubs were York County, with 560 points, and Pocono Mountain, with 531.

Ruth Gainer, Joni Pitton, and Melody Hopkins led the Pathfinders in the paper and trash cleanup, earning the Fair a letter of commendation from M. W. Shultz, principal of Blue Mountain Academy.

The most exciting event was the peanut drop. Richard Farley and John Heck flew a plane over the fairgrounds, dropping thousands of peanuts. Pathfinders scrambled after the peanuts that were painted colors and worth prizes, such as Laurel Lake Camp shirts and airplane rides. The multicolored grand-prize peanut won a free week at Laurel Lake Camp for Richard Seavey, of Delaware Valley.

Renovation of Kamp Keystone Is Under Way

On May 15 and 16 church members, pastors, and conference personnel joined forces to renovate Kamp Keystone, near Hamburg. Years ago, Keystone was the junior camp for the East Pennsylvania Conference, but following the merger with West Pennsylvania, this camp has been used mainly as a site for trailers during camp meeting and was beginning to show signs of old age. Two days of intensive work resulted in a new roof on the main lodge, the repainting of the window screens, the elimination of several truckloads of brush and trash, and a new look for the camp.

Further work within the next few weeks will make the facility a "new" day-camp site, retreat center for church groups, and camping area for Pathfinder groups.

Frank Kowalski and Robert Hoover, from the Kingston church, construct a new support system for the roof.

ANNUAL OFFERING JULY 9

PRESIDENT'S MEMO

Our Own College Is Your Best Choice

In recent months the Columbia Union College Board of Trustees and the Columbia Union Conference Executive Committee have again studied how our college can better serve the 4,000 college-age youth of our Columbia Union territory. Two wide areas of consideration emerge from such a study, each of which is crucial to the needs of our families and their higher education ideals: curriculum and environment.

Under the leadership of our present college administration, Dr. Colin Standish and Dr. Fred Hauck, much work has been done to tailor the courses offered to meet the liberal arts and professional degrees demanded of our youth in a changing world. The college now offers degrees in health-related fields such as medical technology and respiratory therapy, in addition to planning the inauguration of a two-year associate degree in nursing. This is in addition to the strong four-year academic degree program, which has been our college's tradition and pride. The college has always excelled in its theology and religion department, as well as other liberal arts studies.

The environment of our college has been under consideration for some time. Many feel the college should be moved to a strictly rural location. The cost of such a move, and whether sufficient support from our 64,000 members would be forthcoming, both in finances and student enrollment, are issues under study.

The great strength of this institution through the years has been to give to our church a stream of dedicated workers, which has been a blessing of great dimensions. Let us work together to keep CUC one of the very best and strongest colleges in the country. If you are now choosing a college, remember our own college could be your best choice.

W. B. Dwyer

President, Columbia Union Conference

HOUR OF PRAYER

ANSWERS TO PRAYER

☐ I wrote years ago, when my problems were so great. Praise God the problems have been solved, one by one!—Maryland

☐ Thank you for praying when a family member was having serious problems. The individual is progressing well.

PRAYER REQUESTS

District of Columbia

☐ I am laid up with a broken hip. Pray that it will heal so I can get back to work.

☐ Please pray concerning my relationship with a friend, that if it is God's will we will be married and work for Christ for life.

Maryland

☐ My husband and daughters need to realize their need of Christ. Our sons have problems with their tempers, and I have health problems.

☐ My family and I need to realize our need for Christ and accept Him. We also have health problems.

☐ My daughter has moved out of my home and is living with a cousin. I dread her associating with worldly-minded people and being drawn into sin.

☐ Please pray that God will convict and convert my husband.

New Jersey

☐ Thank you for praying. The Lord answered. Please continue to pray for my granddaughter. Also my son and me.

☐ Pray we may sell some property and that my son will be able to go to our schools.

☐ Pray that my sons will give their hearts to God and do right and that my husband and I will do God's will.

☐ My husband and I want to be good examples. Pray that our marriage will be a good one.

Ohio

☐ My son is having a difficult situation in his marriage. He needs to give his heart to God.

☐ Pray for my husband, that he will search the Scriptures more diligently, and that the Holy Spirit will impress his heart.

☐ A brother in our church had an accident at work that has left him almost a cripple. Please pray for him.

☐ Include my daughter in your prayers for a matter that concerns me very much.

☐ I need to overcome a problem that has me very nervous. Please pray for me, and also for my children.

☐ My request is for my two granddaughters, that the Lord will overrule in their lives and in the lives of their parents for their best interests and salvation.

☐ I have a burden on my heart for my husband and my children.

☐ My daughter and her husband are venturing out on a new job that is rather dangerous. Please pray for them.

Virginia

☐ Please pray that the Lord will help me work out a financial problem, that my family will soon have jobs, and for the conversion of unsaved family members.

West Virginia

☐ My husband has a drinking problem and needs your prayers to overcome.

☐ Continue to pray with me for my marriage and for my children who have not yet been baptized.

☐ God has abundantly answered prayers for the recovery of a loved one. Please pray that this will lead him to surrender his life to Christ.

☐ I took my husband back to the hospital for the fourth time in five months. Pray that he will be healed and that we all stay close to God and do His will.

☐ I have been quite ill the past four years. Now I have a serious heart problem. Please pray that God will heal my heart and that I will be better able to serve Him.

☐ I am ill with a nervous condition. Pray that I will be healed, that my family will be understanding, and that we will all be saved.

PRAYER PROMISE

"Call unto me, and I will answer thee, and shew thee great and mighty things, which thou knowest not" (Jer. 33:3).

Send us your prayer promises. Address all requests for prayer to:

Health Sciences Building Goes Up

Shipment of steel

Do you remember?

Up—Up—Up

A new second floor

Allied health areas are grabbing the youth of today. Because of the demand for respiratory therapy in the curriculum of Columbia Union College, the Board of Trustees voted $300,000 to build and equip a second story on the Health Sciences building. Medical technology is located on the first floor.

The close proximity of Washington Adventist Hospital, National Institutes of Health, and National Children's Hospital in the nation's capital enables students to receive top training in an undergraduate Adventist college.

If YOU are interested in the health sciences, which include medical technology, respiratory therapy, and health, be sure to contact the chairman, Dr. Dave Kimbrough, Columbia Union College, 7600 Flower Avenue, Takoma Park, Md. 20012. The department is almost filled. Call or write TODAY!
