Arise and Shine

If even half of our believers would actively accept this call to "Arise, shine," (Isa. 60:1) I believe The Voice of Prophecy would soon be able to close its office doors for the last time. The great majority of letters that daily flood our desks contain petitions for spiritual help in one form or another. Everywhere people are in distress, and are crying out for something more tangible than what they have. Our Bible school workers—instructors, lesson checkers, letter writers, and typists—are working daily at top speed, to check lessons and to answer the many questions as promptly as possible. We can hardly over-emphasize the value of the Bible correspondence courses which adults, youth, or juniors are studying in the quiet of their homes. We quote briefly from a couple of recent letters:

"How I love to study your lessons. The more you send, the more I like them. I cannot tear myself away from them until I am through. I find you are right. Saturday is the seventh day of the week."

Another:

"After studying these Bible lessons, I felt that I must let you know what these studies mean to my life. They are so clear. They really got through to me when I needed them most. My whole life is now changed."

How we long for all our membership to arise, shine, and give many more people the opportunity to enjoy these Bible courses and radio messages. A listener writes:

"As I was sitting by my radio this morning listening to your broadcast, you spoke those words in such a way that they touched my heart

Does

Ingathering

Pay?

Though Ingathering is past for this year the blessings of the program are visible in tangible form. This happy group of seven, comprising the John Haines family of Detroit, had an active part in the caroling at the Van Dyke church. All of them worked faithfully and hard. Mr. Haines, though not a member, drove a sound car night after night as the others joined various bands for the caroling.

What were the results? "We quit figuring at $800," says Mrs. Haines. "They probably got in excess of $900," responds the happy pastor, Eld. S. G. Joyce. "Next year we'll get $1000," is the promise from Mrs. Haines.

These accomplishments are remarkable, but the half has only been told. The money raised this year becomes a minor item when it is disclosed that the Haineses are members because of an Ingathering contact.

During December, 1957, Mrs. Hattie Brown, a member of the Van Dyke church, called at the Haines home. The Haines had just moved to Detroit a month before. Mrs. Haines had attended the Adventist church while a young lady and knew of the beliefs of the denomination. The Ingathering call was the answer to a question she had raised a few days before, "I wonder where the nearest Adventist church is."

Does Ingathering pay? Another comment from the smiling son of Erin, Elder Joyce, settles this question. "We're proud to have people like this as members of our church."

Farewell

On February 1, 1950, Mrs. Campbell and I arrived from the Southwestern Union to take up residence at Berrien Springs and serve as Publishing Secretary of the Lake Union Conference. We have lived and worked here with much joy and satisfaction, until called by the General Conference and the Review & Herald Board to move to Washington and connect with the publishing house as circulation manager of the periodical department.

The call reached us on April 15 and we have always tried to be willing to serve wherever the Lord and the brethren have asked us to go.

We wish to take this opportunity to express our sincere and grateful appreciation to all our fellow-workers and church members who have so generously contributed to the success of the literature ministry during these more than nine years' stay in the Lake Union, and we solicit your most earnest prayers that as we assume larger responsibilities we may prove faithful to the trust.

We would like to appeal to every church member of the Lake Union to subscribe to our good old church paper the REVIEW & HERALD, also to make wide use of our other church papers such as YOUTH'S INSTRUCTOR, LIBERTY, LIFE & HEALTH, MINISTRY, JOURNAL OF CHRISTIAN EDUCATION, JUNIOR GUIDE, and GO Magazine for church officers.

Yours in the Master's service.

ELD. AND MRS. R. G. CAMPBELL

Send Your Boy to Camp Doss

One incident follows another on the international scene. Through our newspapers, magazines, radio, and TV we see the rapidity with which things happen today. One crisis flares up and then dies down as another takes its place. How much we here in America need to give thanks to God that the winds of strife are being held back here. It is during this time that we must prepare for the troublous times to come.

Parents of boys approaching draft age—sixteen or older—now is the time to send your boy to Camp Doss. Give him the preparation he needs for the military service he will have to give his country some day. That will be a time that is difficult enough. Prepare him for it now. The Seventh-day Adventist Medical Cadet Corps training for the past twenty-five years has made it easier for our young men to serve their country with honor while serving God conscientiously.

This camp will be held at Grand Ledge, Mich., June 2 to 16 this year. Leaflets of instruction including application blanks have been sent out to the churches. If you do not have one write directly to the Missionary Volunteer secretary of your Union Conference for immediate information. Be sure your boy has this preparation. Time is short so write today.

Slides Available

Effective April 30, the Review and Herald is announcing through the Review and the Youth's Instructor a very special offer on beautiful, religious, nature, and text slides. This is the first time we have ever cut our prices so low and offered such substantial discounts to our people. The purpose of it is to make available to Seventh-day Adventist homes beautiful slides for private family entertainment in viewing, and to make more attractive in our homes the various aspects of our doctrinal teachings.

These slides are to be ordered through your Book and Bible House. Watch the pages of the Review and Herald and Instructor for prices and order coupon. Remember, 100 slides $15; 200 slides $30; 300 slides $45. We guarantee no duplications, but we do not guarantee any particular assortment of pictures. They are all first quality, No. 1 slides.

American Bible Society News

Secretary to Japan

The American Bible Society announces the appointment of Dr. John Harold McCombe as Fraternal Secretary to the Japan Bible Society with headquarters in Tokyo. Dr. McCombe has been pastor of the Asbury Methodist church in Tuckahoe, N.Y., since 1951, resigning his pastorate to accept the appointment to Japan.

Dr. McCombe holds the A.B. degree from Syracuse University, the B.D. degree from Union Theological Seminary and the Ph.D. degree from National University of Cuzco, Peru. He is married and has three children.

Dr. McCombe has had considerable overseas residency and travel. Both he and Mrs. McCombe have visited Japan. They have worked with a Japanese tutor and have an impressive command of the language.

Dr. and Mrs. McCombe will undergo a period of indoctrination in Bible Society practices and procedures at the American Bible Society's headquarters in New York City for a period of two to three months, before leaving for Japan.

Bible Reading Campaign in the Philippines

A special campaign of Scripture distribution through the churches has been launched by the American Bible Society's agency in the Philippine Islands. The Rev. Angel Taglucop, secretary there, is organizing the churches in neighborhood Bible reading campaigns. Every member is to invite some neighbor to his home for Bible reading each night for a week. The Gospel of John in the various dialects is being used. A helpful small bookmark to guide the people in their reading has been prepared.

Nutrition and Seventh-day Adventists

Protein—How Much and What Kind?

by HULDA CROOKS

Assistant in Nutrition, C.M.E.

The nineteenth century was waning when Carl von Voit, director of the Munich School of Physiology, interviewed 1,000 German laborers to learn what they ate and how much. His special interest was the amount of protein a man eats a day.

Back in his office with the records, it was a mere matter of arithmetic to find that, on an average, these men were consuming 118 grams of protein per man per day. This study was published in 1881 as an interesting statistical finding.

Unfortunately, this large amount of protein, consumed by a class of hard-working, heavy-eating men, was held up by some as a standard of protein intake for an average man.

It was not long until scientists from different schools in several countries, questioned the soundness of advocating so high a protein goal. As the arguments grew keener, the camp of the nutrition-minded was split into "high" and "low" protein advocates. Since those who held to the high-protein intake had the custom of the flesh-eating classes to back them, it fell to the lot of the low-protein advocates to prove that much less was sufficient. To this task physiologists, and later, chemists, addressed themselves. In one school after another, in several lands, carefully controlled experiments were begun. Men were fed weighed diets of known composition, and laboratory tests were carried out to determine the minimum protein requirement.

From Berlin, Stockholm, and Yale came experimental findings that a daily intake of 40 to 60 grams of protein a day was sufficient to maintain a man even under severe exercise. Voit himself added to this experimental data by reporting his study of a vegetarian paper hanger who lived in good health on less than 60 grams of protein a day.

During World War I, Mikkil Hindhede of Copenhagen was appointed by his government to conserve the nation's food supplies. He dieted himself and found he could maintain good health on 40 grams of protein a day derived mostly from potatoes. Promptly Denmark's hogs and excess stock were butchered and the "pigfeed"—the whole grains—was fed to the people to the betterment of the country's health.

In 1920, Henry C. Sherman, professor of food chemistry at Columbia University, reviewed 109 protein-feeding experiments and found an average of 44 grams of protein per man per day as an indicated minimum.

Recent research lowers even this figure. In 1946 outstanding men at Harvard and at the University of Illinois reported that 30 grams a day, whether all plant or part plant and part animal protein, was sufficient to meet the minimum needs of an adult man.

The U. S. National Research Council's Recommended Dietary Allowances of 1958 retains its earlier most generous basal recommendation of one gram of protein per kilogram of body weight for normal, healthy adults, which amounts to 70 grams for an average man and 58 grams for an average woman. In proportion of calories of protein to total calories of the diet, this is somewhat above that consumed by a nursing infant whose intake enables him to meet the demands for rapid growth.

The margin of safety has been made so liberal that all likely differences in protein efficiency and in individual requirements may be met. The Council estimates, however, that in a country whose national dietary proteins provide an adequate amino acid supply for good nutrition, 2/3 of the recommended amount, or 0.66 grams per kilogram of body weight is a "safe practical adult allowance." Where the choice of protein foods is so limited as to provide a much less adequate amino acid supply, the estimate is 0.84 grams per kilogram. In amount per day, this approximates 46 grams for a man in a well-fed country and 59 grams in an underprivileged area. Any reasonable diet, even if mainly of rice, will meet this estimate if sufficient food is available to maintain an acceptable weight. According to Dr. Stare of Harvard, "as long as this country has access to a plentiful supply of calories, and a variety of whole grain cereals and legumes, it is most unlikely that impairment of health from protein deficiency will ever occur." (Am. J. Pub. Health 33:1444, 1943)

It is also recommended that during the last half of pregnancy a woman's protein intake be increased by 20 grams above the recommendation for the average woman, and a nursing mother's by 40 grams. Under ordinary circumstances, where food is available, the increased appetite during this period of pregnancy, and during lactation, will increase the consumption to meet the need.

The recommended protein allowances for growing children are higher per kilogram of body weight than for adults, ranging from approximately three grams per kilogram for the young child to one and a half for the later teenager. Again, if suitable food is available, the need is met by the proportionably large food intake of the growing child.

In many tropical and subtropical countries, where populations are dense and food supplies low, a large incidence of malignant malnutrition occurs among children after weaning when they are put directly on adult foods. Such a diet frequently consists mainly of plantains, cassava, tubers, and corn grits gruels, a diet not suited to infant needs. It is very low not only in protein, but also in calories and other essential food constituents. With reference to this condition, a noted nutritionist suggests: "Perhaps the most important problem to solve relative to kwashiokor is not that of finding enough protein but simply of finding suitable food mixtures which infants can tolerate and which can be fed in sufficient quantity."

"The data suggest that the total calorie intake deserves more attention . . . and that the role of proteins may have been overemphasized." (M. Hegsted, J. Amer. Dietet. Assn. 33:225, 1957)

The need for protein quality—"complete" proteins—which has in the past plagued vegetarians, is readily met if a choice of food is available.

No one protein needs to be "complete." A mixed diet of reasonable choice provides proteins of different compositions. When these are broken down by the digestive processes they provide a pool of a "complete" assortment of amino acids to meet every body need.

Because proteins of different kinds, even when "incomplete," can supplement one another, Dr. Samson Wright, author of Applied Physiology, 1952, page 1055, states: "In any mixed diet, even if wholly of plant origin, the proteins are sure to be sufficiently varied to compensate for any individual inadequacy in amino acid content, if only the total amount of protein is sufficient."

Let us then accept with confidence the counsel given in 1890, long before science proved its truth, that:

"Fruits, grains, and vegetables, prepared in a simple way, free from grease and spice of all kinds, make, with milk or cream, the most healthful diet." (Counsels on Diet and Foods, p. 92)

"The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge."

Middaugh-Holderbaum Wedding

On Sunday afternoon, February 22, a very pretty wedding took place at the Gobles, Mich. church when Kathryn Middaugh became bride to Russell Lee Holderbaum. Two sisters and a brother of the bride, and two brothers of the groom, participated in the ceremony. The uncle to the bride performed the wedding ceremony.

The Holderbaums have established their residence at Niles, Mich. and a little later plan to locate at Indianapolis where he will take a course to become a chiropractor.

May the blessings of heaven rest upon this couple as they travel the road together that leads to life eternal.

Tecumseh Feels Impact of Evangelism

Evangelism in Michigan is not confined to the larger cities, nor are the participants always seasoned veterans.

Tecumseh, a thriving city of 5,000 in the southeast part of the state, is feeling the effects of the impact of a major evangelistic effort being conducted by James Wyckoff and Clarence Bracebridge, two ministerial interns. The effort which began Sunday night, April 5, will consist of 30 meetings continuing through May 24.

The Oddfellows Hall, the location of the campaign, was well filled with 132 people for the opening night. Music director, Clarence Bracebridge, pastor of the Adrian Church, led the congregation in singing, which was interspersed by special music by the Gospel Heralders, Elders William Brown, Charles J. Danforth, Tedford Rasmussen, and Robert Williams.

The speaker, James Wyckoff, assistant pastor of the Jackson Church, presented the topic for the evening, "Our Shattered World." Step by step he showed how each little world of influence is being shattered, then led to the thrilling climax of the second coming of Christ.

This campaign, is typical of many that are being held across the Michigan Conference. This spring will, under the blessing of God, result in a harvest of earnest individuals. These new members will help to establish a church in Tecumseh. At the present time a company with 17 members is organized and meets in the Benedict Memorial School.

Church School Children Help Capture Burglar

Children at the Holland church school, where Leona Selton is the teacher, helped to capture a burglar, which cleared up several robberies in the city, and two in the county. According to detectives, a resident of the city had been missing amounts of money from her home from time to time. Unable to watch the home at all times, detectives asked the school children and teacher in the Adventist school, which was just across the street, to watch the home for them and report all visitors.

One morning a man drove up to the home and went inside, knowing how to manipulate the lock on the door. The children watching, took his license number and called police. The suspect was picked up. The burglar admitted entering the home on several different occasions, and also confessed two break-ins at another home.

This no doubt was a thrilling experience for the children of the Holland church school, especially so when detectives made a special trip to the school to thank the children for their cooperation.

Blosser-Weise Wedding

Marriage vows of Clara Ann Blosser and Walter F. Weise were exchanged in the Pontiac SDA church Sunday March 22. After the reception in the church parlor, Mr. Weise surprised his wife with his wedding gift of new furniture and appliances for their home in Saginaw. We seek God's blessing upon this union.

JAMES CUNNINGTON

Niesen-Otis Wedding

On Sunday afternoon, March 1, two lives were joined in marriage, when Rose Marie Niesen of Manistee, Mich., and Harold Fred Otis, Jr., of Indianapolis, Ind., exchanged their wedding vows in the lovely methodist church at Manistee, Mich.

We wish this young couple the Lord's richest blessings as they endeavor to establish a Christian home together.

Michigan Notes Special Interest in Welfare Work

Top feature of the spring Dorcas Federation meetings in Michigan has been the showing of the new film, "Miracle at Middletown".

Produced by the Home Missionary Department of the General Conference, the 30 minute color film is a provocative study of a church in action through welfare ministry. The picture has been of special interest to Michiganders since the Conference mobile clothing depot and Elder and Mrs. Burbank take an important part in the film. The footage showing tornado disaster films was taken by Elder Burbank in Grand Rapids and Flint three years ago.

Typical of the seven federation meetings was the first of the series held at the Marquette Church for the Upper Peninsula. Representatives were present from 12 of the 15 churches and brought thrilling accounts of the welfare work carried on by the local societies.

News Notes

Baptisms

Our workers of the Lake Region Conference have reported a total of 66 baptisms thus far in 1959. The list of workers reporting baptisms is as follows:

Eld. E. S. Dillett, Chicago, Ill., baptized 22.

Eld. J. P. Winston, Detroit, Mich., baptized 22.

Eld. C. F. Warren, Detroit, Mich., baptized 11.

Eld. O. E. Gordon, Chicago, Ill., baptized 7.

Eld. W. G. Mills, Milwaukee, Wis., baptized 4.

Summer Efforts

The Lake Region Conference has received from the workers thus far requests for nine summer evangelistic tent efforts. Our present units of tent equipments can only supply six such efforts. We are asking our believers to make this a subject of prayer that the way may be opened for as many evangelistic efforts as possible to be held in the Conference this summer.

President of Uganda Missions to Join Lake Region Staff

Word has come that Eld. W. R. Robinson, president of the Uganda Missions, with headquarters in Kampala, Uganda, East Africa, has just returned to the States because of health complications caused by the African climate. We are inviting Elder Robinson and family to join the staff of workers in the Lake Region Conference as pastor-evangelist.

New Spelling Champion!

Sabbath, April 18, was a high day at the Mizpah church of Gary, Indiana. The day was dedicated to Christian education, and Eld. O. T. Shaw of EMC presented a challenging message to the audience. At the four o'clock hour, forty junior youth from the school were invested in various MV classes.

At 7:30 in the evening, ten students representing six schools of the conference competed in the spelling bee, reviving interest in one of the lost arts of education. Nearly 500 words were spelled before Gloria Campbell of the Berean school of Detroit, Mich., was the winner. Second place went to Linda Thompson, also of the Berean school, and third award was given to Ronald Small of the Mizpah school of Gary. Each participant was given a book by the education department of the conference.

Schools Show Improvement

For the past two weeks, Eld. W. A. Nelson and I have visited several schools of the Lake Region Conference and have graded the intermediate ones. It was most gratifying to note the improvements in these schools. Every school inspected showed great improvement over last year. The advancement in their library facilities was particularly gratifying. One school had increased its library facilities by spending more than $1200 for books, magazines, and other equipment. Two other schools spent well over $500 to meet the library standards set up for our schools.

News Notes

★ George Taggart and John Peterson spent Sabbath, April 18, at Raymond and Racine. Mr. Taggart had the morning service at the Raymond church and the afternoon MV service at the Racine church. On Saturday night, they had a very good book sale at Racine.

★ Eld. H. W. Jewkes spent the weekend at the college. He attended the Music Festival activities there.

★ Eld. A. W. Bauer was the speaker at the Oshkosh evangelistic meeting on Wednesday evening, April 15. He met with the Wautoma church on Sabbath. He reports that their Vacation Bible School Committee met together to make plans for the summer.

★ Arthur Harms has been helping Norman Rasmussen in his evangelistic meetings in Baraboo on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights. On Sabbath, April 25, he was the speaker during the eleven o'clock service at Wautoma. He reports that there was a very nice group there for the Sabbath services.

★ Eld. L. G. Wartzok attended the annual college board meeting at E. M. C. and stayed over on Sabbath for the Alumni activities.

★ Eld. A. W. Bauer had the morning service at the Moon church on Sabbath, April 25. He reports that they are planning to have a Vacation Bible School this summer.

★ Eld. H. J. Jewkes was at Green Bay Friday evening, April 24, for their Investiture service. He also was the speaker during the morning service on Sabbath. On Sabbath afternoon, he participated in the Investiture service at Wisconsin Academy. There were seventeen Master Guides invested and several others in the different MV classes. Elder and Mrs. Jewkes joined a group of ornithologists near Plainfield Saturday night. Early Sunday morning, they watched the activities of the prairie chickens.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Stinewal and four of their daughters, all invested in the MV Companion class at Lily.

Scenes From Wisconsin Investitures

What a Wonderful Reward!

God has been very good to us here at Wisconsin Academy. I wish to express my warm appreciation to the mothers, fathers, and friends of Wisconsin youth who have so eagerly co-operated thus far in giving to Wisconsin Academy's new administration building fund. I am confident that our continued giving to make this building project a reality, will surely illuminate the way for all young people who come into this region with a willingness and with a heartfelt desire to believe that you and I want them here at Wisconsin Academy.

Wisconsin Academy is anxious for a school that can aid its young people in preparing for life's greatest benefits, developments, and joys in service here, and thus develop a fitness for that wider service, the "higher course" open to every human being in the school of the hereafter.

With the rough winter behind us, progress on the building is now moving along at a more rapid pace. We will very soon see the steel structure being set into place.

What more wonderful reward could anyone want than to meet our own young people of Wisconsin face to face in the earth made new—this accomplishment a result of our daily toil and sacrifice for Wisconsin Academy.

Let us all share our blessings while the opportunity is ours.

W. A. News

On Saturday night, April 25, Wisconsin Academy witnessed its second Amateur Hour. John Berecz of Redgranite, Wis. was the grand-prize winner. He gave a reading and sang a solo.

On April 27, 142 eighth graders and high school students from the State of Wisconsin assembled at Wisconsin Academy for Academy Day. Many room reservations for next year were made.

Following registration and a tour of W.A. campus, chapel was held in the gymnasium during which time a quiz was held for all prospective students. Nicke Beaumonte of Milwaukee won the quiz by guessing the nearest number of pounds of potatoes that the school uses each year; he guessed 27,000 lb., and the actual amount used in a year amounts to 26,600 lbs.

In the afternoon two enjoyable ball games were played: prospective students vs. freshmen and ministers vs. seniors.

Before evening, the students left with many wonderful memories of a day spent at Wisconsin Academy.

Illinois 1959 Senior Camp

Summer schedules are often heavy. You will need some real relaxation before a busy summer. Come to Senior Camp!

Our Senior Camp at Little Grassy Lake June 7-14 is especially planned for you who are between the ages of 16 and 22. A week at camp after the close of school will give you just the lift you need.

We are planning on an enjoyable relaxed schedule including the following:

Boating, Youth forums, Hiking, Canoeing, Nature study, Good food, Sailing, Spiritual help, Campfires, Swimming, Singspirations, Relaxation, Handicrafts, Christian fellowship, Water skiing.

An MV Leadercraft course will be offered for those who desire to become Master Guides.

Comfortable train transportation will be provided at a very reasonable rate if we receive enough applications. Plan to come! Camp fee is $17.50. Write today to the MV Department, Box 7, Brookfield, Ill.

BVA Summer Work Program

Young men, and a few women, who will be in grades 9-12 next fall are invited to apply for summer work at Broadview Academy. The very heavy work program now under way on the farm, campus, maintenance, construction and Harris Pine Mills will continue through the summer months.

Since work opportunities are on a first come basis, we urge our youth to arrange to come immediately after their present school year closes and arrange vacation time during July or August rather than waiting until later in the summer to begin work.

Further details may be secured from: Principal, Broadview Academy, La Fox, Ill. Phone Geneva 8441. Principal's residence, Geneva 1067.

CORRECTION: Due to a typist's error in copy sent to the Lake Union Herald, the article on Little Grassy Lake Camp in the April 28 issue stated that the cost of leasing the camp was "a dollar per acre PER DAY." It should have read "a dollar per acre PER YEAR."

"These Times" Testimonials

"I want to tell you how I like your wonderful magazine. I am a boy eighteen and am planning to enter the ministry of the Lord Jesus Christ upon my graduation from high school. In this day and age when every time you read of a youth, it is in connection with juvenile delinquency, it gets quite disturbing. I am of the so-called 'new generation,' and my eyes are upon serving Christ. Your magazine is truly an inspiration to me.

"I hope that God will bless you and your staff for their wonderful work."

G. D., Sharon, Pa.

"I think your magazine is definitely outstanding—something which I, as an isolated Adventist, can always enjoy passing on to my friends and neighbors. I take great pride in the appearance of the magazine, the art work, and the markedly high standards of writing which appear between the covers. I have found articles which fill a definite need in my own life, and which have brought comfort and new hope in hours when it was sorely needed."

Mrs. T. P., Cuthbert, Texas

"A very lovely, sincere Christian started me reading your magazine. She sent my name in, and this booklet has been coming for some time now. The reason for this letter is, I want you to know how I sincerely enjoy and love this book. Everything in it is so beautiful and does bring one so much closer to God. This book contains many articles that speak the truth. If today people would only open up their Bibles and learn the truth! But it seems some souls are afraid of the truth, and the truth never hurts anyone.

"Again, I enjoy this magazine and thought you would like to learn this. God bless you, sir, and your staff or employees. Your work is beautiful and, I know, appreciated by true followers of Christ."

"Where Is Your Treasure?"

Every third Sabbath we are asked to give our offering for the new Broadview Academy. We have been told that at least $100,000 is needed from the church members to continue the building of our new fine institution. That is a lot of money. It may give rise to the statement that the church is always asking for more money. The answer is the story of an old farmer who was complaining to his neighbor; said he didn't know what he was going to do with his wife - seemed like every time he turned around she wanted money from him. Last month it was ten dollars, a few days later she wanted fifteen dollars, and yesterday she had nerve to ask for as much as twenty-five dollars! The neighbor listened to the complaint and said: "That's bad; tell me, what does she do with all that money?" And the farmer replied: "Don't know - haven't given her any yet."

All too often the same thing is true of those who complain about the church asking for money. Our Master says to us, "Don't pile up treasures on earth, where moth and rust can spoil them and thieves can break in and steal. But keep your treasure in Heaven where there is neither moth nor rust to spoil it and nobody can break in and steal. For wherever your treasure is, you may be certain that your heart will be there too!" J. B. Phillips version.

Do we appreciate the opportunity to give toward the education of our precious youth? Sometime ago I received a letter from the union president in a country behind the Iron Curtain, where many of our Adventist parents suffer hardships and some have had to pay heavy penalties due to the State requirements asking their children to do things which are against God's command. He writes: "How happy you should be in having Seventh-day Adventist schools. We would gladly give everything for the privilege to be able to send our boys and girls to our own institutions of education."

Do we really appreciate this privilege of living in a free country and having our youth, the most precious heritage, in Adventist schools where they are not forced to sing hymns praising mortal men as gods? Let us thank God daily for the system of Christian education, for schools where the young people learn the principles of true education and Christian character.

Someone said, "To give under constraint because one is expected to or even because one feels one ought to, is to miss the joy of true giving." One day the Lord Jesus had gone for a long time without food. When His disciples urged Him to eat He replied, "I have food to eat that you know nothing about." The disciples were perplexed, they looked at one another and at Him in bewilderment; so Jesus explained further, "My food is to do the will of Him that sent me and to finish His work." By helping Broadview Academy you are at the same time helping to finish the work of God on earth. God's work cannot be finished in the world, at home or abroad, without sacrificial service. It cannot go on without our gifts of time and money. They represent what we believe. They show where our treasure is.

So when you bring your offering next time make it a spontaneous gift. "Poor sowing means a poor harvest, and a generous sowing means a generous harvest. Let every one give as his heart tells him, neither grudgingly nor under compulsion, for God loves the man who gives cheerfully." 2 Cor. 9:5-7. J. B. Phillips version.

Operation Scholarship

Close to a hundred young people from our colleges and our academies will be invading the highways and the byways of the Illinois Conference this summer. They will be earning scholarships to the schools of their choice, introducing the Saviour of mankind to thousands of judgment-bound men and women, strengthening their own Christian experience in the Lord and receiving that education that is so important that comes from the ability of being able to talk to all classes of people in a manner that is pleasing and convincing.

These young people are among the finest young people in our churches. Ten of these young people come from foreign fields. In fact, from all sections of the world they are coming to Illinois this year to help you and me finish the work of God in this large needy conference. First, we would ask you, dear church members, to remember these young people in your daily devotions that God will give them courage and strength to press forward and to fight a good fight. Then we want to thank you who are opening up your homes to these young people this summer, for your friendliness, for your missionary spirit. Truly these young men and women will not only bring a joy into your church, but also a real blessing into your home.

We are still in need of about ten more homes to accommodate all our young folks. If you should know of anyone in your church, if you should have a room available, if you have not already planned for young people to come into your area, please write to your publishing department office. Some of us are convinced that this could be the last summer that we will have the liberties that we have this year. Why should we not enjoy them while we have them?

In closing, if there should be any young people in your church who have no way of going back to school, we would be happy to show them how they may also be scholarship winners for God. Write your conference office.

New Adventure in Soul Winning

On May 12 the Ottawa church will launch out on a new adventure of soul winning called the Branch Bible School. Plans call for starting with three branch Bible schools to be held for ten weeks. The first lesson is entitled "The End of The World." Those who attend will learn how to face it unafraid. They will also learn how it brings peace and prosperity to millions. Your earnest prayers are solicited in behalf of this new evangelism.

Camp Meeting Speakers Named

We are most fortunate in having the vice-president for the North American Division, Eld. W. B. Ochs, at our camp meeting. Elder Ochs is well known throughout North America. He will be with us June 17-20. Please take note of these dates and plan to attend.

W. B. Ochs

Elder Ochs' messages will thrill your heart. He is a man of wide experience and has been a leader in our work for many years. Do not miss hearing him.

Every week we will list a new speaker at camp meeting. So, please look for these notices and do plan to stay for the entire ten-day feast of good things, June 11-20.

Student Aid Fund Distributed

Yesterday our Finance Committee met at Indiana Academy to consider the worthy students and give financial aid to such as were worthy and in need. This past year has been a good year as far as the Student Aid fund was concerned. Many of you have responded to our appeal and have turned in funds throughout the year and because of this, we were able to dispense about one thousand dollars in help. This will prove a real blessing to some of our students who have been so worthy. We do hope that all of you who read these lines will continue to turn in funds regularly, even if it is only a small amount, through your church treasurer, marked for Student Aid.

Here is an incident that will show how much Student Aid is appreciated. A mother, who is a graduate from Indiana Academy, and who was a recipient of this aid has now offered to pay back every dollar that was ever given her. Even though she understands that Student Aid funds are distributed, not to be repaid, she appreciates so much what was done for her when she was in need that she wishes to put this amount back in the Student Aid fund in order to help others. This is a most commendable spirit.

It made our hearts rejoice to be able to pass on help and we trust that in another year we shall be in a position to do even more because you were able to give assistance in this matter. May the Lord bless all of you who have contributed toward this fund.

A New Principal for Indiana Academy

Virgil L. Bartlett

Since Eld. Dyre Dyresen has been elected registrar of Emmanuel Missionary College, it was necessary for the Board to give study to a successor.

We are delighted to inform you that Virgil L. Bartlett, now principal at Sheyenne River Academy in North Dakota, has accepted our invitation to become our new principal.

Elder Bartlett has had a wide experience in the educational field. He was connected with Southwestern Junior College. He was also at one time principal at Union Springs Academy. Following his stay in the New York Conference, he went to the Philippines for a number of years.

He headed up the new Mindanao College in the Philippines. Since his return he has been at Sheyenne River Academy.

Elder Bartlett has his M.A. and comes well qualified to head up our school and industries, not only because he has his degree but because of his wide practical experience. We feel fortunate in securing his services.

Elder Bartlett will come to our academy on July 1. We welcome him, his wife and two children to Indiana. He will appreciate your prayers and support.

Literature Evangelists Hold Rally at Fort Wayne

"We are almost home." Many of our literature evangelists believe this and that is why a large number of them met with the Fort Wayne church on Sabbath, April 25. They believe that Jesus meant what he said, "Come and follow me."

Marjorie Clizbe, office secretary, acted as superintendent of the Sabbath school. Everett Brown, one of our leading literature evangelists, led the singing, accompanied by the piano, organ and marimba played by Shirley Clear.

A moving picture showed some of the work being done in the mission fields, and presented the need for more funds. Our Sabbath school offerings are needed today as never before. Kenneth Oliver, who recently moved here from Illinois, gave the lesson study, "The Love of God", a subject well fitting our rally. When we have the love of God in our hearts as we must have, we will have twenty literature evangelists where there is now only one.

During the missionary period Forrest Skaggs, recently returned to Indiana from Ohio, told us stories of the mission field here at home.

We had an unusual after-service. Eld. Harold Otis had asked three of our outstanding literature evangelists, Jay Sloan, Homer Dobbins and John W. Jones, to take the hour. Each one, inspired by the Holy Spirit, showed us from the Scriptures how the Lord wants everyone to have a part in finishing the work. No one knows better than they how great the need is for more literature evangelists. There are 3,934,224 souls in Indiana, 5,113 Seventh-day Adventists, and only 34 full and part time literature evangelists.

Our hearts were touched as we listened to the pleading of these men and many felt the Holy Spirit speaking to them, for after a fine dinner in the basement of the church, served by the members, the church was filled for the afternoon symposium.

Everett Brown had charge of the several musical numbers, marimba, organ, saxophone, vocal solos, duets, trio, men's quartet and a number by the children of the literature evangelists. Those were interspersed between the good experiences related by the literature evangelists, led out by Eld.

Lyceum Explores Ocean Floor

"I Live on the Bottom of the Sea," is Max Nohl's topic for the Sanitarium Lyceum in David Paulson Auditorium at 8:30 P.M. on May 16. Ample seating is available in this new auditorium, located at 632 Ravine St. in Hinsdale.

This all-color motion picture will be personally presented by Max Nohl—one of the world's foremost pioneers and authorities on the great ocean floor. A veteran of thousands of hours underwater in 22 years of professional diving, he will share with the audience some of his most thrilling experiences. Exploring sunken ships, rubbing elbows with shark and octopus, and enjoying the fabulous beauties of tropical reefs are all on the agenda.

Max Nohl has been the holder of the world's deep sea diving record for eleven years, and is the inventor of the helium self-contained diving suit and numerous submarine cameras. His dramatic ability, sense of humor, and showmanship will combine to provide for our people in the Chicago area an evening long to be remembered. DONALD ANDERSON, Chaplain

Harold Otis and Paul Clear.

The time had now come to say good-bye to one of our leading literature evangelists, Glen Hixon, his wife and family. He has accepted a call to the Southern New England Conference to be the assistant publishing secretary. With regrets we said good-bye, but our prayers and good wishes go with them; may the Lord bless them in their new adventure. They will be greatly missed by the literature evangelist family in Indiana, but we are glad that we are able to contribute someone who will give strong leadership to this field that is in need.

This was the best literature evangelist rally we have attended. Don't you want to join the literature evangelists and take someone "home" with YOU?

Mrs. PAUL CLEAR

Prospects for employment both on and off campus are very bright this year. The college for many years has assumed the moral obligation to provide work for all able-bodied, single, residence hall students who make application for employment on or before June 1.

The old proverb says, "The early bird gets the worm." In this case "the early student gets a reward," and the reward is a JOB under ideal Christian working conditions. If your summer plans are uncertain, do not waste time looking or wishing for a job but plan to come to the EMC campus where steady employment awaits you. If finance is of any consequence to you, coming to the campus is the best way to assure yourself of being ready for school in September. About 300 will be employed.
