OFFICIAL ORGAN OF THE LAKE UNION CONFERENCE OF SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTISTS

ADVENTISTS IN ACTION

Conversion Through a Muddy, Soggy Book

by GORDON ENGEN

Literature Evangelist Phil Hopkins, left, reminisces with Mrs. Geraldine Frazier the events leading to the baptism of Mrs. Frazier and her two sons. Mrs. Frazier displays a tattered "Bedtime Stories" similar to the one she found in a mud puddle. Pastor Wayne White, right, baptized her and her children early this year.

What group of Adventists could be more active than the literature evangelists?

In April of 1961 this story began. A mother sat by a window in her home near Benton Harbor, Mich., watching children leave a school bus. As one youngster hopped off the bus, he tossed a book into the muddy water beside the road.

Out of curiosity, this mother went out and retrieved the volume—a coverless copy of Bedtime Stories. She brought it into the house and cleaned and dried the pages. Having six children, she was especially interested in the stories.

After finishing the book she wanted to get more like it. Fortunately the title page was still attached, so she wrote to the publishers, the Review and Herald.

When her request came to the Review, they forwarded it to the Publishing Department at the conference office in Lansing. The Lansing office then passed it on to the colporteur working nearest to her home—Phillip Hopkins.

At his first opportunity, Phil visited this mother, Mrs. Geraldine Frazier. The sale of the Bedtime Story set was almost automatic. However, Phil did not pass up this opportunity to leave a doctrinal book as well, and he included the Triumph of God's Love (Great Controversy) in the sale.

Colporteur Hopkins had helped to plant seeds of truth which took root in the hearts of the members of this family. As Mrs. Frazier started reading Triumph of God's Love, she became so engrossed in its message that she could not put the book down. She would sit up until one and two o'clock in the morning reading it.

Mrs. Frazier had been searching for a church that would satisfy her spiritual needs. This book had the answers. She began to attend the Benton Harbor Seventh-day Adventist Church.

On Sabbath, Feb. 22, 1964, Mrs. Frazier and two of her sons were baptized by Pastor Wayne White.

Literature Evangelist Hopkins was perhaps even more thrilled with this chain of events than the Fraziers. "I am so thankful that I was the Lord's delivery boy for just the goods that this dear mother needed to guide her to the path to His kingdom," commented Phil.

"There are many all about us who are wistfully looking toward heaven just waiting for the invitation of some colporteur. Where there is now one there should be one hundred literature evangelists," he insists.

Do you agree—literature evangelists are truly Adventists in Action? Wouldn't you have been thrilled to have been the colporteur who received the notice from the conference concerning an inquiry like this?

You can be. Your Publishing Department leader will gladly show you how.

Vacation Bible School Awaits Your Help

"The soul of the little child that believes in Christ is as precious in His sight as are the angels about His throne."—Testimonies, vol. 4, p. 591.

If they are precious in our sight can we allow material interests and personal desire to outweigh our duty to give them gospel truths through

Vacation Bible School Evangelism?

CAN WE DO LESS?

Do you know how it feels to be miles from home, perhaps in a foreign land for months or years at a time? Add to this an environment totally strange from that of the old home town and influences on every side that tend to worldliness. It is at times like this that a letter from someone in the home church can mean the saving of a man.

How our young men in service long to hear from the home base! Are you doing your share in keeping up the contacts with the youth of your church who are now serving their country? And are you doing your share in helping to provide for them the valuable church periodicals so essential to their spiritual well being?

As long as the Servicemen's Literature fund holds out, every Adventist young man in service, whose name has been sent in to the conference, receives three Adventist periodicals, current Sabbath School Lesson Quarterlies, "For God and Country" bulletin, the Morning Watch devotional book, the missionary book of the year, and literature for missionary work.

To supply this material it takes $25 for each name on the active list between offerings which are taken every two years. There are presently more than 2,000 names on the list. Funds are now depleted.

This is the year for the offering again. It will be taken in every church Sabbath, May 9. Won't you plan now to set aside a nice large gift in behalf of those who serve their country? And don't forget that personal letter of encouragement to the young man who would like right now to be back in his own home church. FRED BEAVON

"Heavenly Music" (LP 5074, ST 074). In answer to the frequent requests for hymns "just as they are in the hymn book," a new vocal group has been heard on the Voice of Prophecy for several months. The Hymnsingers are made up of the regular quartette members—Bob Edwards, John Thurber, Jack Veazey, and Jim McClintock—plus Del Delker and a newcomer to the group, Soprano Maurita Phillips. Maurita was formerly a soloist with the Robert Wagner Chorale.

The group, directed by Wayne Hooper and accompanied by Brad Braley, is featured in the recent Chapel release, "Heavenly Music."

The artistry of this group will be appreciated in the 12 numbers of the album, seven of which are songs and hymns from the early American heritage. Included on the disc are "How Sweet are the Tidings," "In Heavenly Love Abiding," "Jesu, Priceless Treasure," and "Father I Yield My Life to Thee."

"Heavenly Music" may be secured through your local Book and Bible House.

Letters To Stations Pay!

Letters to stations do pay! Just recently there came to the office of Faith for Today the following letter from a metropolitan TV station.

"During the year 1962 we carried a series of your program. Since that time we have received a number of requests to put the program back on the air. I'm not sure at this point whether we will be able to clear time for it, but I would like any information you might have on the series."

This letter is definite evidence of the value of our people writing to the stations. Sometimes we are unable to see the effectiveness of writing because we encourage our people to write while the program is still being carried. Often we have no way of knowing for sure whether the program has stayed on for a longer period as a result of the letters, but a letter such as the one above does tell us the worth of letters to stations.

Will you not write to your station to thank them if they are currently carrying Faith for Today, or, if not, to request that they reinstate the program. This is the time of year when stations are giving serious thought to their summer and fall programs and letters will now be most helpful in opening up new outlets for Faith for Today.

Times," and "Hope for These Times," had sold the grand total of 7,964,248 copies.

Coming in the June issue of These Times are two especially good articles. One is written by the well-known Seventh-day Adventist writer and poet, Adlai A. Esteb, editor for Go magazine. His story, "A Significant Moment in My Life," tells about a faith-strengthening experience he had with a car dealer in the early depression days shortly after he returned from China where he had been a missionary for seven years. The other article is a commencement address given by Dr. J. DeWitt Fox to the 1963 graduating class at Andrews University. Dr. Fox, besides being a contributing editor for These Times, is editor of Life and Health.

The book department, under the direction of Cecil Coffey, book editor of the Southern Publishing Association, reports a 50 per cent increase in the number of book titles for 1964, and that 15 new books will be ready for the 1964 North American camp meetings.

Beginners' Training School For Literature Evangelists

March 30 to April 2 over sixty new recruits and leaders from the Lake Union Conference attended a training school in the chapel of the Review and Herald. This meeting was under the direction of the Lake Union Conference Publishing Department.

These new recruits are one of the reasons that the Lake Union has been averaging a $25,000 increase in deliveries every month thus far this year.

The next training school will be in October, and we anticipate even a larger group at the October meeting.

By now these faithful workers are back in the field putting in full time in the cause of the great literature ministry

SPOTLIGHT

ON BOOKS

"Wow! that must be exciting, to climb high mountains and explore deep, foreboding caves, to scan the world's prairies and search out continents by threading trails and streams. My imagination has been kindled. Just think of beholding awkward giraffes or lithe leopards, to stalk wary antelope or confront a lordly lion. I surely wish I could explore the earth.

"Ho! Ho! Ho! You sure can if you want to. We do it each week and the excitement and thrill must be as great as though we were doing what you mentioned. You see, we are exploring the earth right here at home. If you will read the story of our adventures and explorations I am sure you will want to start, maybe at your doorstep and go with us into the fields and woods."

The author of our this week's "Spotlight" is Howard A. Munson. He has written the following poem which appears in the book:

I care not to walk with the pushing throng
Where all is trouble and worry,
Where greedy beings go rushing along
And the theme of the day is hurry.

My greatest joy is to walk in the wood;
It is there that my heart is stirred,
Impressed with the feeling that all is good,
And thrilled by the song of a bird.

Every clump of grass is a jungle home,
Every stream a giver of life.
Here's a joy of living and freedom to roam,
And little is known about strife.

Delighted am I to have known the fun
Of long treks through the woodland serene,
Campfire and rest after setting of sun,
And a bed by a rushing stream.

There is life and action in every tree;
There is joy in the songs I hear.
God put all these things on earth for me,
And I am sure that He is near.

Have you ever heard of dialing for your quotient? Two of B.V.A.'s senior boys, Gail McIntyre, left, and Warren Greer, have designed an electronic computer with digit dialing and are able to obtain their answers simply by dialing. This not only enables faster totals but is exciting as well.

Chicagoland Chorale

Have you longed to sing in a large choral group doing works of the world's great composers? Would you like to sing the "Elijah," the "Messiah," or the "Creation"? Do you enjoy music such as "Jesu, Priceless Treasure," or Brahms' "How Lovely Is Thy Dwelling Place"? If so, this is for you.

The organizing committee has selected James Mercer as musical director.

The success of this choir will demand 100 per cent support of serious singers. Talk to your vocalist friends in your church and bring a group to join us charter night.

The first rehearsal and charter night of the newly formed Chicagoland chorale will be on April 28, 1964, 7:30 p.m. at the West Central S.D.A. Church, 1154 Wisconsin Avenue, Oak Park.

The organizing committee has set these five goals for the new choir.

1. To help develop a love for good music.

2. To provide an opportunity for singers in the metropolitan area to combine their efforts in the singing of great choral literature.

3. To plan for two musical functions a year—one in conjunction with the music festival and one concert.

4. To encourage all those taking part to develop greater participation in the musical functions of their local church.

5. To provide a musical experience that will enrich and uplift all those who listen.

Evangelism In Richmond

Saturday evening, February 15, was the opening night for a series of meetings in Richmond, Ind., conducted by the conference evangelistic team. The pastor of the Richmond District, Elder Neil Hadley, and his faithful members had been working and praying in preparation for that day.

God richly blessed their faithful efforts. At the close of the meetings, 26 followed their Lord in baptism and united with the remnant church. The victories gained through the power of the gospel are always a thrilling thing to witness. With the apostle Paul we can say, "For I am not ashamed of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth."

On behalf of the evangelistic team, we thank all whose prayers ascended to the throne of God in behalf of these meetings. We express our sincere gratitude to Elder Hadley and the members of the Richmond District for their faithful labor and support. We assure them of our continued prayers that these "new born babes" in the truth "grow in grace, and in a knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ."

The great desire of our hearts is to meet each one of these dear people in God's eternal kingdom.

Sacred Band Concerts

Realizing that sacred music is a vital part of Christian living, and that instrumental music of the sacred type is just as worshipful as is vocal music, the Indiana Academy Band this year is devoting considerable time to the presentation of sacred as well as secular performances.

On Sabbath afternoon, March 21, the band presented a sacred concert in the Richmond Church. Since that time considerable interest has been expressed in the band's appearing during Sabbath hours in other parts of the state. Consequently, we are planning two appearances which we hope will enable many of our believers in central and southern Indiana to hear the band in the performance of sacred music.

The band's next appearance will be in the Cicero Church on Friday, evening, May 1. This will give opportunity for the churches in the home area to attend. The following day we will travel to the New Albany-Jeffersonville area for a sacred concert on Sabbath, May 2. That evening a secular concert will also be presented. The appearances in that area will be in conjunction with programs by the the Choralans and Keynotes, Indiana Academy's traveling vocalists, as well as with the seminar group. This latter occasion promises to be one of outstanding interest to those who reside in the southern part of the state. Details of the programs will be announced later.

Dormitory Life at I.A.

Dormitory life is a unique experience, one which will give a young person a rounding out on education that is different, yet is complementary to the classroom education. It is really an opportunity to put the classroom theory into actual practice.

In our boarding schools we as Adventists come the closest to stamping out a finished product which has developed in these three basic areas—the mind, body and soul—as is possible. Why do I believe this? For four reasons: One, they are subjected constantly to a consistent program; two, they are taken, to a large degree, out of the worldly environment; third, educated and trained staff members have the opportunity to really know these youth and with that knowledge the classes and other contacts are geared to the individuals instead of only the group; fourth is the filling of the basic need to "belong." In a public school, let's face it, most Seventh-day Adventist youth don't, and shouldn't, fit in and are usually not part of any group or activity.

Here are a few of the complementary subjects taught in the dormitory, not as a class or course, but still part of the core curriculum:

1. Decision making. What do I do next, who will my friends be? Do I really want to be a Christian? All the way? Where am I going? and many more. Of course wrong choices are made, that's where deans and teachers come in to guide and counsel, before and after the choice.

2. Getting along. I had one boy tell me after he had been rooming with a childhood friend, "I never knew he was like that." Of course he didn't. It's sort of like marriage, it takes living in the same house for a time to really know someone. This living experience really buffs off the rough places, especially when it's a group of peers. It's not just the only child that finds there's a lot of give and not much take to real Christian living. The big benefit is learning to evaluate human nature so they can choose good friends and see how to influence others for good.

3. Training in God's living standards.

Continually I have found men asking me why we are so strict here. When I'm home I can use the car, stay out most of the night with my girl friend, drink cokes, and eat whatever I want, they say. Let's face it! Where is the standard going to be held up if it isn't at the school and in the dormitory where we are training the whole person—to not only become part of decent society, but to become a worker for God if he so chooses and ultimately to be a citizen of heaven. There is no double standard in heaven, I'm sure, such as exists between the school and the home.

There are many other reasons why I believe in my dormitory with its problems (because the devil is hard at work) but these are the basics as I see them. I'm glad that I've had a chance to help mold the lives of many fellows in the past three years as dean at I.A.

On February 23, a fellowship social was held at the Shiloh Church in Chicago where the new and older members could get acquainted. Each one wore a badge with his name on it. An interesting musical program was arranged by Mrs. Loueva Longware. On this same occasion recognition was given to the many Jasper Wayne members. Crowns were placed on the heads of the following ladies who raised $200 or more: Mrs. Annie Gulley, Mrs. Lillian Baynes, and Mrs. Suzanne Taylor.

Since December, 1963, the Dorcas Welfare Society of the Shiloh Church, under the faithful leadership of Mrs. Hattie Scott and her equally faithful assistants, has operated the "Loan Closet Service of the American Cancer Society," serving patients of the Englewood and Park manor communities of Chicago with dressings and supplies.

This "Loan Closet" is open every Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. The total number of patients on the service list so far is 40.

Camp Desmond T. Doss

Young men, 30 years ago in 1934, the present-day military medical training for Seventh-day Adventist young men began at Union College under the direction of Dr. E. N. Dick.

Through the years this training program has served as an invaluable aid to our young men facing military service. This year the M.C.C. camp will be held right here in Michigan at Camp Desmond T. Doss, Grand Ledge, June 9 to 23.

As one who had M.C.C. training and active service I recommend this as a must to any young man who may be facing the draft within the next two years. Sabbath observance and a belief in noncombatancy bring some definite problems to Seventh-day Adventists when in the military forces, but these problems can be kept to a minimum with this training program.

Application blanks may be received through the local church or the MV Department. If we can be of any assistance please contact us at the office in Lansing.

Detroit Metropolitan News

The Donald K. Sullivan family, missionaries from Bolivia, highlighted the mission program at the Detroit Metropolitan Sabbath School on March 7, 1964. This family, consisting of father, Donald; mother, Dorothy; David, 12; Kim, 10; Mark, 3; and Jolene, 6; was colorful in their native costumes. Mr. Sullivan explained much about his work in Bolivia, and especially interesting was his vivid description of the floating islands and the Floating Island

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Sullivan and their four children

School which has been provided to help these people to know about Jesus.

Mr. Sullivan will obtain his M.A. degree at Andrews University and plans to return to Lima, Peru, where he will be connected with the Inca Union College.

Slides were shown in the afternoon MV program at Oakwood Boulevard Church, Melvindale, Mich.

Our best wishes to this dedicated family in their Christian service for others.

On March 28 the youth division of the Metropolitan Sabbath School was privileged to have as guest speaker Elder G. H. Minchin. He spoke to them about their relationship to God through Bible study.

A Letter From a Layman

During the spring of 1963 it was suggested at the Almond Church that members dedicate a special project to raise money for the Wisconsin Academy Administration Building.

One member, Alfred Petersen, decided to dedicate a portion of the red clover seed that he might harvest. He promised to donate the excess over the two bushels that he would need for the next year's sowing. When the time came for harvest, the crop looked poor, but Mr. Petersen went forward in faith to harvest whatever there was. However, a spell of wet weather prevented him for some time. When he finally was able to combine the seed, he was pleasantly surprised to get a larger yield than usual.

He took samples of the seed to several local mills, told them of his plan to donate the proceeds to Wisconsin Academy, and asked them to bid on the seed. He received fairly good offers, but felt impressed to await further developments as one of the dealers promised to send a sample to a seed company for analysis.

A few nights later, Mr. Petersen dreamed that one of the mill owners, Mr. Sherman, came and bought the seed for a high price. The very next forenoon while he was at work, Mr. Sherman came and told how the seed had tested better than average, and therefore a higher price could be paid.

The seed was delivered, and on the following Sabbath a check for $319.12 was placed in the offering plate for Wisconsin Academy—a silent testimony to the blessing of God on a worthy project.

Others in the church are planning similar projects. One family agreed to give any federal income tax refund that might be forthcoming from a previous year. As a result the Milwaukee office refunded $84.14. The members of the Almond Church are cheered by such tangible evidence of the blessings of God, and are determined to do more towards this worthy project.

Surely there must be many others among our Wisconsin laity who would be willing to plan a definite project towards the academy, and thus give God a chance to show what he can and will do. The time is long past when we could justifiably excuse ourselves for not finishing the school plant by saying we were operating under emergency conditions.

With God's help, let us arise and finish the task we set out to do.

ALBERT W. KROHN

A Dream Come True . . . Almost

In the few weeks I have been in Wisconsin it has been my privilege to travel throughout a great portion of this wonderful state visiting schools and churches. This has been a happy and satisfying experience. However, there is one spot which my family and I have anticipated seeing more than any other. That, of course, is our beautiful new MV campsite.

A few days ago I found myself winding east on county road D from Chetek.

Progressively the scenery grew wilder and more beautiful; the forest holding out a promise of verdant greenery in the weeks and months to come.

"This is the beginning of our land," my companion said, and before I could fully adjust to the thrilling concept we had stopped in front of a new road slashed through the birch, aspen, and hardwoods. Maneuvering our Volkswagen cautiously at first over the large rocks which are part of the gravel base recently put on, we started in along the road so newly constructed. The evidence of hard and effective labor were all about us as we saw the trees and stumps lying on each side. The new power line was there and formed a discordant but necessary contrast to the undisturbed solitude of the North Woods.

After negotiating several hills and maintaining close contact with a number of rocks we finally arrived at one of the most beautiful settings I have been privileged to see. Dead Goose Lake is its traditional name; but to me our largest lake, even sheathed in ice and snow, is a little foretaste of what the new earth will be like. There, surrounded by wonderful birches and guarded by sentinel-like pines, is the spot where your young people will be drawn closer to their Creator. There, whether splashing in the crystal clear waters of the lake, making their way with wondering gaze along bush nature trails, learning the skills of the great outdoors, or listening with rapt attention as the flickering campfire light dances on their faces, your boys and girls will be growing, "in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man."

Overlooking the lake in a lofty and scenically strategic spot is the site for our kitchen and lodge. Flanking it on either side are the proposed locations for our boys' and girls' campsites. The suggested swimming area is a short distance away and is situated on a peninsula which guards a calm little bay ideal for canoeing. Water skiing and boating will take place farther up the lakeshore in a separate location. Still to be chosen are the natural spots for our outdoor church, campfire, and camp council gatherings.

As we made our way over the snowy trail past the lodgesite and deeper into the 280 acres we can call our own, we came to what looked to be a jewel from a queen's collection. A small and perfectly proportioned lake was there nestled cozily among the surrounding hills—an ideal spot for a full-fledged wilderness or outpost camp. A short distance from the trail is a twin to this lake adding still more to the variety and fascination of this haven for our young people.

The clock is an unbending taskmaster and our schedules would not permit us to prolong our stay. Soon we were bouncing back along our new road and I had turned for a final look at our new MV campsite. "Surely, this is a dream come true," I thought. "God has led those who are responsible to this place to help turn boys and girls into precious jewels for His crown."

Yes, it is a dream come true! . . . almost. Almost because we must construct a lodge and kitchen, we must drill a well, and we must make many more necessary improvements before this camp can properly be used. We must have more funds before much of this work can even begin. God has led us thus far and He will continue to lead for this is His project, but we must lend Him our means and our efforts.

The MV societies and church schools in our conference have been assigned goals. Many have reached these goals and some have exceeded them. Surely none will stop short of their goal.

A few weeks ago we had a conference-wide offering for our camp. We are thankful for the funds obtained, but perhaps many did not receive the blessing of giving sacrificially on that day. Some perhaps were not prepared and others were not fully informed. It is not too late to lend your support in a greater way to that offering. What a satisfaction to know that your contribution has made possible a part of the kitchen, lodge, well, tables, appliances, dishes, fireplace, craft oven, docks, or any other of a countless number of things. Perhaps your gift could be used specifically for an item you are particularly interested in.

Then there are the boys and girls who are so vitally interested in the speedy development of our camp. Perhaps there are young people who would like to go the extra mile. Someone has suggested "calves for camp." A calf could be raised for this project with the proceeds going to the camp fund. Some may wish to sell Life and Health magazines. Your conference Publishing Department would be glad to help in this venture. Others may save dimes or nickles or even pennies. Perhaps there are other ideas which fit your planning and situations. As we work together we will succeed.

Yes we have a dream come true . . . almost.

Pioneer Memorial Church

For example, one of the large centers of influence is the Health and Welfare Center in Berrien Springs that is operated jointly with the Berrien Springs Seventh-day Adventist Church. The welfare center, under the direction of Mrs. Dan Halvorsen and her associate leaders Mrs. Ben Schoun from Pioneer Memorial Church, and Mrs. Glen Hunt from the Berrien Springs Village Church, represents an initial investment of $13,000 made in 1959 when the center was begun at its present location. The over-all value of the physical building and materials now stands at about $20,000 with the recent addition of more reception, office, and work areas.

The Health and Welfare Center is recognized and approved by the National Red Cross and is an established agency of the government for local distribution of emergency clothing and aid in the event of a local disaster.

In a six-month period the Health and Welfare Center processed 3,500 articles of clothing, helped nearly 1,000 persons, and contributed $11,500 worth of food, clothing, and time to those in need. "We are doing three times as much today as we were able to do in 1959," said Pastor Rhoads. "Our thanks go to the dedicated efforts of the ladies who work at the center."

"The welfare center is a service institution," reminded Pastor Rhoads, "and its services are available to all in need, whether they be members of the Adventist church or not."

Associate Pastor Anthony Castebuono's main task at Pioneer Memorial is the direction of the 100-member Pathfinder Club, a scout-like program for youth between the ages of 10 and 15. The club meets in the Pathfinder Building on Sundays to work on various craft, nature, and recreational honor programs. Another group, the Adventurers, with activities planned for those between the ages of eight to ten is made up of about 60 members. This group also uses the Pathfinder Building for their activities.

Pioneer Memorial Church has about $30,000 invested in the Pathfinder program, with a $2,000 yearly operational budget. "The purpose of our Pathfinder program is to help fill the void created in an area that is college and university orientated in its activities," explained Pastor Rhoads. "We want to help the youth of the church grow spiritually, culturally, and socially so they can be better members of the church and society."

Pioneer Memorial Church is central in the activities of Andrews University, not because of its location, but because of the legend engraved in the gray stones over the main door proclaiming that Pioneer Memorial Church is "An House of Prayer for all People."

Accreditation Continued

At the recent meeting of the North Central Association of Colleges, an examining team of its Commission on Colleges and Universities rendered a favorable report on Andrews University, and the Commission voted to continue to accredit the University for granting bachelors' and masters' degrees.

The providing of adequate facilities for faculty and students is one of the main functions of the president of a university. The former James White Memorial Library has now been completely remodeled and is now the headquarters for the department of religion and department of modern languages. As announced earlier in the "Lake Union Herald," this building has been renamed Frederick Griggs Hall. Frederick Griggs served as the tenth president from 1918 to 1925. The above picture shows Dr. Richard Hammill, president; Dr. Wilber Alexander, chairman of the department of religion; and Dr. Daniel Augsburg, chairman of the department of modern languages; observing the new plaques which memorialize Frederick Griggs as one of the honored presidents of Andrews University.
