COVER

Color separations for this week's cover were provided by "Outdoor World" magazine.

Did You Know?

The warm spring sun awakens more than poplar tree buds and tulip blossoms. Nature's creatures also stir to new activity—birds busily construct new nesting places and squirrels collect ripened acorns long imbedded in the frozen ground. Spring is a great time to take a closer look at some of the fascinating wildlife in your back yard. You may find, however, that the more unusual and interesting animals are found in the wilderness areas and national parks, not in your back yard.

Take the awesome-looking grizzly bear, for instance. Did you know that grizzlies have an astounding memory, possess more reasoning power than any other wild animal (including the chimpanzee), and can run as fast as a racehorse? They are powerful animals and looked upon as ferocious and dangerous. Yet many grizzlies have been tamed, kept as pets, and taught to perform unusual stunts.

Unfortunately, these big animals are dwindling in number. Back in the early 1950's, the grizzly population in the lower 48 states numbered into the thousands. Of this great number, only an estimated 700 survive today. There are many reasons for this decrease; most of them can be attributed to man.

Discover more about the grizzly bear and other of nature's intrigues in the May-June issue of Outdoor World magazine. Subscriptions are available through your Book and Bible House.

ADVENTIST DRAFTEES AND THE MARINE CORPS

During recent months a number of Seventh-day Adventist men with I-A-O classification have been assigned to the Marine Corps at the time of induction. This has posed some serious problems not only for these men who are noncombatants, but for the Marines as well.

As the result of a quiet, yet firm and positive stand by several Adventist youth one year ago, the way has been prepared so that noncombatants will not be inducted into the Marine Corps against their wishes. Those who are selected for assignment to the Marine Corps will be given a choice of service. This new procedure has been spelled out by an army regulation (AR 601-270) controlling this aspect of induction of military personnel.

When the men appear at the Armed Forces Entrance and Examining Station (AFEES) at the time of induction "they will then be afforded the opportunity to declare whether or not occupational fields available in the Marine Corps are acceptable to them." These areas of service and the prior training are without weapons.

At this point there is an opportunity for a choice. Upon accepting, the individuals will enter the Marine Corps as noncombatants. If they decline the offer, they will be inducted into the army as noncombatants. When this choice is offered to our Seventh-day Adventist young men, we strongly urge them not to accept the assignment to the Marine Corps but go into the U.S. Army.

This counsel is given for several reasons, but mainly because of the problem of Sabbath observance. Men going into military service should give careful thought to avoiding Sabbath difficulties. This can best be done in the army, and more specifically in the army medical service. Each man must make his own decision in this matter.

Should there be further questions concerning this matter we suggest you contact your local MV secretary. He has more detailed information.

Airline Bars Passion Play Promotion

NEW YORK—The Israeli airline, El Al, has joined worldwide Jewish opposition to the Oberammergau Passion Play. The airline has withdrawn promotion for tours to the small West German village, charging that the Passion Play has anti-Semitic content. The play, produced once every 10 years for the past 300 years, will offer 98 performances between May 18 and September 30 this year.

BLIND SPOT

Battle Creek, Michigan, has been the home of many new things—corn flakes, hydrotherapy, and many phases of the Adventist church's activities. One of these is the work for the blind.

A. O. Wilson, a young blind convert, wanting some Sabbath reading in braille and not finding anything satisfactory, turned to braille his own materials. This was the start of the work for the blind in the church.

Evangelism to the blind has grown from this humble beginning to the international operation today of the Christian Record Braille Foundation. Serving the blind in 85 countries, the foundation, from its headquarters in Lincoln, Nebraska, is dedicated to giving the third angel's message to the blind, visually and physically handicapped.

Broadview Hosts Academy Representatives For Discussion of Temperance Plans

In our efforts at Broadview Academy to become useful instruments of society, we have become more and more interested in our Temperance Club. Though this is its first active year at B.V.A., there has been a great deal of student participation and a lot has been accomplished.

On March 14 and 15 Broadview played host to students from five different academies in the Lake Union. The students exchanged ideas on how to make temperance programs more meaningful. B.V.A. students have been using mostly skits and temperance talks. These seem to have been well received at the high schools and junior high schools where they have been presented. Other schools have used films, marches against cigarette smoking, and demonstrations of Smoking Sue. Everyone enjoyed listening to the student guests from other academies, and many ideas were exchanged for future programs.

We want to be able to share our opportunity to live the healthful Christian life. The temperance program is one way to do it.

BOOK AND BIBLE HOUSE NOTES

This is the weekend for the traveling bookstand to be in the Moline area. Look for room 113 in the United Township High School in East Moline as you enjoy the inspiration of the annual Mississippi Valley Youth Rally on Sabbath, April 25.

The bookstand will open at the appropriate time and remain open all through the evening. This is your opportunity to see a capsule preview of the camp meeting bookstand on the Broadview Academy campus. There will be a roomful of books, Bibles, recordings, and games, at special prices and a bargain table as well.

Remember, it's room 113 at the youth rally, April 25.

Looking ahead: it is presently our plan to have much of our camp meeting preparation completed so that we will open the bookstand on the Broadview campus for graduation weekend, May 22 to 24. More information on this event will follow.

"See you at the bookstand!"

ONE-TO-ONE RALLY HELD IN HINSDALE

It was March 28, the closing day for Elder Andrew Fearing of the General Conference to appear before the people in the Hinsdale area. A three-week series of meetings was reaching its final moments. The church was packed. A baptism opened the afternoon session and was followed by a large One-to-One Evangelism Rally. Elder Paul M. Maticio, conference ministerial secretary, introduced the program.

After David Peterson, conference singing evangelist, sang, the Metropolitan Chorale, with Bob Hobbs playing the trumpet accompaniment, sang "Lift Up the Trumpet." Elder Fearing's message, "The Vision Splendor," followed. Then the Ambassador Quartet from Hinsdale sang, and Conference President W. A. Nelson talked about the challenge of Illinois evangelism.

Reports of personal evangelism were given: Joliet laymen worked hard to bring about the growth of a church from around 20 to over 100 members; North Shore laymen, directed by Bud Calvert, told of their efforts in Des Plaines for the hippie generation and the interest that has been aroused; because of Branch Sabbath School evangelism in Des Plaines, headed by Miss Willietta Weller, there is now a dedicated church company of almost 50; and a whole family was converted because of the "It Is Written" television series in Rockford.

Plans for the future field school evangelistic series in the North Shore church with Elder Steven Vitrano, a youth effort to be held in the West Central church, evangelism plans by our conference evangelistic team in the Beverly Hills church, and reports from departmental leaders stimulated intense interest in going back home and doing a mighty work for God.

Charles Allen from Andrews University sang, then Elder Fearing brought the service to a close by having those in attendance stand, making a commitment to the Lord in soul winning. The Metropolitan Chorale, accompanied by Bob Hobbs on the trumpet, sang "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

This Chicagoland rally will be duplicated in part in other areas around the state. It is the goal of conference leaders to reach 8,000 members this year.

At the close of Elder Andrew Fearing's three-week "Discovering New Dimensions in the Bible" series at Hinsdale, 11 candidates were baptized. Elders S. K. Lehnhoff, J. T. Krpalek, and W. C. Graves officiated at the baptismal service on March 28, the first baptism to be held in the new Hinsdale church. Another baptism was planned for April 18. Meeting with the new members are the Hinsdale pastors, M. W. Feldbush, left, and Elder S. K. Lehnhoff, right.

Neighborhood Bible Club Members Plan to Attend Junior Camp

Children of the Neighborhood Bible Club at Cairo met at the Seventh-day Adventist church on a recent Sunday for fellowship. Several of them are from homes where the parents are studying in preparation for joining the church.

CHICAGO FAMILY FINDS TRUTH IN SECONDHAND BOOK STORE

LeRoy Hall, an ardent reader, was a constant customer of one of Chicago's used book stores. He was a searcher. He wanted to know more about the different religions of the world.

But the books piled up in his home. It seemed like his mind became as confused as the mass of books on his shelves. In this confused state of mind, Hall one day decided to get rid of all the books. Out they went, into a big bonfire—with the exception of the Moody Sermons, Great Controversy, Desire of Ages, Patriarchs and Prophets, and one or two more books by Ellen G. White. Hall did not know the author, but these books made sense to him. "This is the truth," he said. The books were read and reread, and for about 15 years Hall studied Adventism and Bible truth. Not once during these years did he visit any of the Adventist churches in the area. Not once did any Adventist believer knock on his door.

Last year as Hall opened up the newspaper one day he saw an invitation to some evangelistic meetings. He came the second evening. The following night his wife came with him, and the third evening the entire family came. What Hall heard corresponded with what he had read.

Today the Halls are members of the Joliet church. David, the oldest son, is in the service and is not yet baptized, but David believes, keeps the Sabbath, and is preparing himself for baptism.

Yes, these $1.00 books from the secondhand book store brought heaven to the Hall family.

Gunnar Sjoren, Pastor

The Hall family (left to right, Donna, Joe, Mrs. Ruby Hall, LeRoy Hall, and Mark) was baptized because of books—Mr. Hall found in a secondhand book store.

Where Else But in a Church School?

April 25 has been designated by the General Conference as Christian Education Day.

Where else but in a church school would you find boys and girls actively working to raise money for such worthy enterprises as Ingathering and Faith for Today?

Christian education is God's ordained means of keeping in proper perspective His plan of worthwhile service for every life.

Think ahead a few years. A proper perspective of life now will help keep your child in the proper pathway in the years to come.

How thankful we should be for the boys and girls who have the privilege of Christian training in our own schools!

KOKOMO CHURCH PLANS WORK BEE

For nearly six years John Moore, a member of the Kokomo church, has put in an average of 20 hours free labor a week in the erection of the new church building there. Since the beginning of this year he has been putting in full time, 8 hours or more a day, six days a week. "I've got to get this job done—six years is a long time to be building a church. Before the snow flies next fall, God willing, we will be worshipping Him in our new church," he declared.

He puts in long hours—many of them alone—while he performs his work of love on the Lord's house. A. L. Kidder, first elder of the Kokomo church, recently stated, "John is a perfectionist. Each job has to be just right before he will move on toward the next phase of development." This is true. The Kokomo church, when completed, will be one of the finest structures in Indiana. In fact, even though uncompleted, it is now very attractive.

Elder Adam Layman, the pastor, and John Moore are anxious for the long period of construction to be finished. A little help at the right time would complete the task. Elder Walter Howard, church development secretary for the conference, is now heading up a conferencewide endeavor to get skilled and semiskilled laborers from all over Indiana to come to Kokomo on Sunday, May 3, for a big push to help our fine members there complete their building. "We can use 200 workers," declares Mr. Moore. "Bring tools—wrenches, hammers, saws, rakes, brooms, and brushes—and we will furnish the food and refreshments."

You are invited to a work bee to help finish a church. Please come. You are all needed!

SHILOH HAS WEEK OF PRAYER

Young people sign a "prayer scroll" during the Week of Prayer at Shiloh.

Elder C. D. Joseph, pastor of the Meharry Boulevard church in Nashville, Tennessee, was the guest speaker.

OFFICE TALLIES "MESSAGE" SUBS

Elder R. W. Bates and his secretary, Miss Patricia Carr, tabulate the "Message" magazine subscriptions. The churches set April 18 as Victory Day for the campaign.

All pastors in North America are expected to report victory at a central meeting place on April 27.

Elder Bates reports that the response from the churches is encouraging.

Mrs. Alice Martin and Pastor Roy Bellinger receive a shipment of 200 pairs of shoes from Dale Jent, Evansville shoe merchant. The shoes will be distributed to needy families.

EVANSVILLE WELFARE SOCIETY RECEIVES LARGE STOCK OF NEW SHOES

"Over 1,000 pairs of shoes will be given away to charity groups at 'J' Shoe Store." That's what the six o'clock TV news commentator said.

Mrs. J. Bellinger, welfare secretary of the Second S.D.A. church, Evansville, Indiana, immediately phoned the store to confirm the news report. She explained the work of her society in trying to help alleviate some of the needs in the inner city of Evansville to Dale Jent, manager of "J" Shoes. Mr. Jent, whose store is located at 2309 Morgan Avenue, said the shoes would be given away at 3 p.m. the next day.

Mrs. Bellinger then phoned Mrs. Alice R. Martin, welfare leader, and told her the good news. The following day Pastor Roy Bellinger and Mrs. Martin went to the shoe store, where they received the shoes.

Mrs. Martin is proud that her society received about 200 pairs of new shoes, which will be distributed to low income and poverty stricken families.

Michigan Places New Emphasis on S.S. Work

A new emphasis on Sabbath School work is being felt throughout Michigan as the result of the recently opened Child Evangelism Center at Lansing.

The new center consists of three display rooms, plus billing and shipping areas in a separate building bordering the conference parking lot. It displays the many different visual aids and other items available for Sabbath Schools, Vacation Bible Schools, and church schools.

This is the first center of its kind to be established in the Lake Union, reports Elder Clyde Groomer, conference Sabbath School secretary. He added that there are currently only about seven or eight in operation within the North American Division, and most of these are on the West Coast.

Elder and Mrs. Groomer are among the leaders in promoting this form of evangelism. This was one of the reasons why they have been asked by the General Conference Sabbath School Department to set up a display of this needed material at the coming General Conference Session.

"Our concept of child evangelism," Elder Groomer declares, "calls for putting into the hands of teachers visual aid materials which will make the portrayal of Christ and Christian living easier." Using this material, Elder Groomer believes, can help to change the "church at study" to the "church in action." A greater interest in missionary activities develops, he has discovered, as church members find out that these aids strengthen the soul-winning efforts of children's story hours, Branch Sabbath Schools, and Vacation Bible Schools.

The conference Sabbath School leader believes that each teacher is the ideal person around which to build a corps of soul winners. He feels that each one, by virtue of his position, should be a spiritual leader and an active missionary worker. Groomer emphasizes their soul-winning potential and the improvement of this possibility through the use of proper "working tools."

Elder Clyde Groomer checks over some of the novelty items stocked at the new Child Evangelism Center.

The Child Evangelism Center at the conference office has nearly 600 different items on hand. An additional display is a permanent part of the new Book and Bible House branch at Berrien Springs.

While the center displays and stocks the supplies, it is Elder Groomer and his aides who promote their use around the field. At workshops, councils, teachers' conventions, and other places where religious training of children is part of the program, Elder Groomer and his assistants will most likely be there.

Recently, the ministerial association of Eaton County sponsored a Sunday School convention at Charlotte. Our local pastor in that area, Elder Bernard Mills, belongs to the association and indicated that Adventists had material which might be of interest. As a result, Elder Groomer was invited to set up his display.

Some attending the convention were surprised to see Adventist material there. Curiosity overcame their cautiousness, however, and they soon became acquainted with Elder Groomer and his supplies. Feelings changed as Sunday School teachers discovered the helpful attitude of Elder Groomer and found that Adventist items were potential material for their own work.

Representatives of Sunday School supply houses were also surprised at the quantity of material available. Typical was one who said, "We didn't realize that Adventists had such an ample supply of materials."

And the supplies certainly are ample. When space at a meeting allows it, 22 8-foot-long tables are needed to properly display the materials which are brought to the site by truck. Elder Groomer laughingly confesses that when he went into Sabbath School work he never thought he would end up seeing thousands of miles of highway as a truck driver, hauling loads of child evangelism supplies.

The work of the Sabbath School department came easy to Elder Groomer because of his wife's talents and interests in this work. She became active in it as a 14 year old, and by the time she married she was a veteran Sabbath School worker. Her interest in this area of evangelism was soon shared by her husband.

Mrs. Groomer has done more than assist her husband in his departmental work. Her influence and help has gone beyond conference boundaries, as she has written articles and books on the methods and benefits of child evangelism. She has specialized in the needs of the kindergarten level, but is now expanding her interests to the older groups.

She attends most Sabbath School workshops and other meetings with her husband to help promote child evangelism. Elder Groomer candidly admits that it is easier for a woman to work in the lower age groups of the Sabbath School, and thus he finds his wife a distinct help.

This is not the only husband and wife team in the conference Sabbath School department promoting evangelism through visual aids. Mrs. Marjorie Snyder, the office secretary, is also making a rich contribution to Sabbath School work, and her minister-husband Stuart has developed an interest in this field. The two of them are using their talents by assisting at Sabbath School councils and other such meetings.

During this year's camp meeting, Elder Groomer and his associates will be conducting two hours of daily instruction in Sabbath School methods and the proper use of child evangelism material. Those who are interested in this field of soul-winning endeavor should plan on spending the entire week of July 27 to 31 at the annual camp meeting at Grand Ledge.

CHURCH DEDICATED AT ONAWAY

The Onaway church, first consecrated to the service of God in 1965, was dedicated on Sabbath, March 21. The dedicatory sermon was presented by Conference President Robert D. Moon; the act of dedication was by Elder James Papendick, a former pastor of Onaway; and the dedicatory prayer was presented by Elder Leonard Wartzok, conference treasurer.

Other former pastors who were in attendance and had part in the Sabbath School, morning worship, or special afternoon program included Jason Prest, Wayne Hyde, Stuart Snyder, and Donald B. Myers, the current pastor.

During the afternoon service Walter Leist, local elder, read the history of the church, a portion of which is printed below. After its reading a corsage was presented to Mrs. Clara Porter, who was only six months old when the first Adventist families moved into the area. The corsage was given to Mrs. Porter by Rouline Rieger, who is a great-great-great-granddaughter of one of the first families.

Next Came the Adventists

A newspaper clipping from the Onaway News dated July 1, 1949, carried a story regarding the early religions of this area. It mentions that the Quakers were the first religious group to come into Onaway. The next paragraph of the story continues thus: "Next to them came the Adventists." And so this church has as its roots some of the earliest pioneer stock of the community.

Back some time before the 1890's the United States government hired a John Van Horn to survey northern Michigan and what is now known as Allis Township. He found this virgin land very beautiful and ideally suited for homesteading.

On his trip home, he stopped in southern Michigan to visit his brother, Isaac Van Horn, the grandfather of Onaway church members Clara Porter and Earl Burgess. There he described the beauties of the land he had surveyed. Brother Isaac was impressed, and as a result, in the fall of 1889 he moved his family up to Allis Township.

Within the next four years all the Van Horns, the Warrens, the Burgesses, and the O'Reillys moved up to the northland to cut homes for themselves out of the wilderness. They were all good pioneer stock, but what was even more important, they were all good Adventist stock. Like Abraham of old, whom God called to another land, they brought their faith and religious convictions with them. It wasn't long before they set about establishing a Sabbath School and church.

At first (1890), church was held in the home of William Burgess. There each Sabbath, Sabbath School for the children was conducted using the Little Friend and the worship service consisted of a reading from the Review and Herald.

The company grew, and as the numbers increased a larger place of worship was necessary. For the next few years permission was granted them to meet in the log schoolhouse at Shaw's Corners. Later the Quaker congregation built a church building, and the Adventists used it for one winter. Finally, in 1895, plans were laid to build a church of their own.

Isaac Van Horn donated the land, and with much prayer and sacrifice on the part of these early members, construction began 75 years ago. Lumber was plentiful in this area then, but money was scarce. Any money involved had to be raised in various ways. Mrs. Clara Porter, then a 6-year-old child, sold cottage cheese balls from door to door at a penny each. All the pennies went into the sugar bowl, where the floor funds were kept. In about 1897 the church was completed, and with a membership of approximately 20 it was dedicated to the service of the Lord.

During the first years no regular pastor was available, but itinerant preachers came and went. Perhaps the most illustrious and better known of the early workers was Luther Warren, who spent some time working with the young people. Later he and Harry Fenner, another well-known name to Onaway Adventists, started the first Missionary Volunteer Society of our denomination at Juddville, Michigan.

These early Adventists also realized the value of Christian education and in 1899 started their first church school on an acre of land donated by Charles Burgess. Miss Nellie Clough was the teacher. Since this beginning, a school has been supported by the Onaway church most of the time.

As the town grew, the first church found itself on what had become the main street of town with a rather noisy atmosphere not conducive to worship. So the building was moved to the corner of Lynn Street, where it still stands. Here it served this congregation as a place of worship until the current church building was erected. The old church building still services the community as the Adventist Welfare Center.

A few years ago it seemed necessary either to do some extensive remodeling and enlarging of the old church building or to build a new one. In 1964, under Elder James Papendick, the church finally settled on the idea of a new building. As it was in the days of old, money was scarce, but again with much prayer and sacrifice, construction began in September of 1964. June 26, 1965, was the day of the first Sabbath service in the new church.

And now the debt is paid and the church is dedicated. It is with thankful hearts that Onaway members praise God that so long ago the Adventists came, that they stayed, and that they established a church and a school.

V.B.S. Workers Meet to Hear Elder Retzer

Elder Fernon Retzer of the General Conference Sabbath School Department and Elder A. W. Bauer of the Lake Union Conference joined Elder E. E. Wheeler in conducting Vacation Bible School institutes during the weekend of March 28 to 31.

Large groups of Vacation Bible School workers gathered in several different locations to hear the inspirational presentation by Elder Retzer and to exchange ideas on Vacation Bible School work. More than 24 churches have appointed Vacation Bible School leaders for this year, and enthusiasm runs high for a good Vacation Bible School session this year.

PROTECTING YOUR ESTATE

There are many ways that a Will can become outdated. A yes answer to any of these questions may be an indication that your Will needs to be revised promptly. If so, check with your Conference Association secretary.

Have any of your beneficiaries become, since your Will was drawn, more capable—or less capable—of managing their funds?

Have you moved from one state to another since your Will was drawn?

Does your Will make gifts of specific property that you no longer own, or which has changed in character?

Has the total value of your assets changed substantially since your Will was drawn?

International Food Fair

"It's a Small World After All" will be the theme of the International Food Fair to be held in the Alvin Johnson Auditorium at Andrews University April 26 from 4 to 8 p.m. Sponsored by the Graduate Guild, the fair will feature native foods from many foreign countries. The foods will be served by hostesses dressed in native costume from booths exhibiting the atmospheres of those countries.

In addition to the international "flavor" of the fair, student art will be exhibited in the auditorium, as will several large collections of dolls from foreign countries, such as the one shown above by collector Mary Jones, left, to Mrs. Tony Torres, special feature chairman for the food fair.

Proceeds from the event will be used to buy furniture for the graduate lounge in Seminary Hall and to support an Andrews University student missionary nurse in Haiti this summer.

CHRISTIAN ACTION AT ANDREWS

The Andrews Christian Youth Action (A.C.Y.A.), a function of the Student Association, goes a long way toward promoting a spiritual atmosphere and genuine Christian helpfulness. It consists of the silent majority of students on campus who are quietly working for Christian brotherhood, who are striving to show the gospel of Christ through action, not just lip service.

We hear of students who receive grants and personnel promotions, but not of the everyday work of Pete or George, Denise or John. These students and many more are active and "revolutionary" about presenting living Christianity to the community and to their fellow students. Several groups tutor children in the Benton Harbor area, help the migrant workers, and participate in beautifying the community by taking on projects that involve work and time. These students take time out of their busy schedules to help rehabilitate a brain-damaged person at a hospital, to pray with other students, prepare worship talks, to sit on committees discussing ways of how Christ can become more meaningful to college youth. They are active in the search for ways to become effective members of the church of the future.

You will find Andrews Christian Youth in action on Sabbath afternoons—some at the beach, evangelizing on a one-to-one basis; at the jails talking to juvenile delinquents; with other young people, conversing about the dilemma in this "turn on," "blow your mind" world. On Tuesday evenings, Youth for Christ varies the worship to bring fresh, new ideas and concepts that will draw collegians closer to Christ. Friday evenings after a regular vesper hour, discussion groups, sing-ins, and share your faith programs are in effect for spiritual growth.

There is plenty of Christian action at Andrews, and there are many students who take part in it.
