"A Giant Has Fallen"

A. S. MAXWELL—Editor, Author, Dies in California

by Barbara Herrera
Public Relations Director, Pacific Press

Arthur S. Maxwell

"A giant has fallen!" said R. R. Bietz, General Conference vice-president, and the theme was reiterated again and again during funeral services November 16 for Arthur S. Maxwell.

Elder Maxwell, 74, author, editor, and for more than 55 years a "giant" of the Seventh-day Adventist Church, died November 13 in a Mountain View hospital. Three days later over five hundred Adventist leaders and laymen from throughout the country gathered in Mountain View, California, for services in memory of the beloved and respected Adventist statesman.

Elder Maxwell has been editor of Signs of the Times, the 96-year-old missionary magazine published by Pacific Press, for 34 years until his retirement in June.

Upon his retirement his son, Lawrence, was elected editor of the journal.

During a long and prolific career, Elder Maxwell authored 112 books. His multivolumed Uncle Arthur's Bedtime Stories and The Bible Story together sold over 43 million copies, making him one of the most widely read authors of all time. Thousands of children the world over knew Elder Maxwell as "Uncle Arthur."

His adult books include Your Bible and You, Man the World Needs Most, and Time Running Out.

Others participating in the funeral service in addition to Elder Bietz, who delivered the address, were T. R. Torkelson, associate editor of Signs of the Times, Morris L. Venden, pastor of the Mountain View church, R. F. Cottrell, associate book editor of Review and Herald, and L. F. Bohner, general manager of Pacific Press.

Three points brought out during the service impressed those who attended that Elder Maxwell had completed his task in a rewarding career. Only one week before his death he had completed volume 48 of Bedtime Stories. Before leaving on a European trip shortly after his retirement he had remarked to a friend, "Destiny shall preserve me until my work is done." For his final editorial for the December, 1970, Signs of the Times, he chose the title "Task Accomplished."

Elder Maxwell was born in 1896 in Balham, England, a community near London. As a young man he was ordained a minister in the Seventh-day Adventist Church and appointed manager-editor of the Stanborough Press in England.

In 1936 he came to the United States to become editor of Signs of the Times.

Shortly after his retirement in June, Elder Maxwell made an eight-week tour of Britain and Scandinavia, visiting religious publishing houses and children's hospitals. He also was received by the Minister of Education in Finland and by leading churchmen.

Elder Maxwell returned home October 15 in apparent good health, but was stricken with a terminal ailment three weeks later. It was the first time that he required hospitalization during a robust life.

The family of Elder Maxwell has indicated that those who wish to remember him in a personal way, may do so with a contribution in his name to the Signs World Ministry, c/o Pacific Press, Mountain View, California 94040, the fund that supplies Signs of the Times to missionaries for evangelistic purposes.

Elder Maxwell leaves six children: two daughters, Maureen Maxwell, associate dean and director of the graduate program, Loma Linda University, and Mrs. Jack (Deirdre) Woosley, a housewife and wife of an accountant in Sunnyvale, California; four sons, A. Graham, director of the division of religion, Loma Linda University, C. Mervyn, chairman of the department of church history, Andrews University, D. Malcolm, associate professor, department of religion, Walla Walla College, and Lawrence, editor of Signs of the Times; eight grandchildren; and a brother, Spencer, of Weymouth, England.

PAKISTAN AID VOTED

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Initial aid for East Pakistan in the amount of $20,000 cash has been voted by Seventh-day Adventist Welfare Services (SAWS) here.

SAWS took the action this week in response to a cable from O. W. Lange, president of the Pakistan Union Conference in Lahore. The cable stated that the Southern Asia Division was earmarking $5,000 for East Pakistan relief.

It stated that Division President R. S. Lowry was on the scene and that the first survey revealed that no lives of church members or mission workers had been lost. Crops and homes in the coastal areas, however, were a total loss, it said. One Adventist Church had been destroyed.

A cable from East Pakistan church leaders reports the church's Gopalganj Hospital in the delta area undamaged.

In addition to the hospital, the church operates a high school and an elementary school in East Pakistan. It has 19 churches in the country.

SAWS has earmarked further aid in the form of blankets and cloth for the stricken area. An offer of medical teams and antibiotics for cholera and plague immunization was declined by the East Pakistan embassy on the basis that they already had sufficient such aid in the country.

The denomination has appealed to its churches for additional disaster relief funds. All contributions in the next month will go to East Pakistan aid. The Northern European Division of the church has also offered assistance.

IMPORTANT DRAFT CHANGE ANNOUNCED

The director of the Selective Service System announced a change in draft deferment regulations October 26. Now those who would ordinarily be exposed to the draft, but have a deferment because of school, occupation, fatherhood, or hardship, may request that their deferment be dropped. This will be an advantage to them if their draft sequence number is so high that they would not normally be called even if they had no deferment. This year it has been widely stated that no one above 195 will be called.

Those exposed to the draft for a calendar year or any part of it, and not drafted, drop to a lower category in which their chances of being drafted are very low. Because of this fact, Dr. Curtis Tarr's announcement is an opportunity for many young men.

Many have requested counsel from this office as to whether this will apply equally to the I-A-O classification. Advice from the National Selective Service headquarters is that technically it does not apply. However, there is no reason why those seeking a I-A-O classification should not take advantage of the new regulation the same as others. In order to do this a registrant must temporarily be classified I-A. The procedure is as follows:

1. Make certain that you are among those eligible for the draft for the current year.
2. Make sure that your sequence number is beyond the number to be reached during the year.
3. Write your draft board and request that your deferment be dropped so that you will be vulnerable for the draft during this year.
4. IMPORTANT: After the year passes, write your draft board and request the I-A-O classification.

The National Selective Service System headquarters pointed out that if a man is certain, judging from the information given above, that he will not be called, then he is safe in following this procedure. However, if at some future time in a national emergency he might be drafted, then he should have the I-A-O classification for his protection.

ONETIME LEARY DISCIPLE SEES DRUGS AS SCARY PROPOSITION

DUBUQUE, IOWA—A former follower of Timothy Leary, who made drugs into a religion, has called the drug scene a scary proposition. Allen Cohen, an assistant professor of psychology at John F. Kennedy University in Nebraska, says drug abuse is no longer a minority problem. Statistics reveal that 15 percent of all men over 30 and 25 percent of all women over 30 use and abuse drugs. Professor Cohen told students at Loras College here that everybody figured L.S.D. was going to change the world, but it hasn't. Nor did it provide a panacea for those seeking higher forms of spiritual motivation, he said. The psychologist said that over the last eight years his study leads him to conclude that drugs are totally useless for spiritual advancement.

SUPREME COURT WILL STUDY MANY RELIGIOUS ISSUES

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The 1970-71 term of the U.S. Supreme Court has opened. During this session the Court faces several cases of religious significance. No fewer than 23 cases concerned with conscientious objections to military service on religious and nonreligious grounds await a final disposition by the Supreme Court. A case important to parents and taxpayers is one appealed from Pennsylvania. The court will have to decide whether states can or cannot constitutionally provide financial assistance to their hard-pressed parochial schools.

President Nixon expressed interest in this issue when he stated that the nation needs a strong parochial school system, not so much to aid any one religious faith as to promote diversity in education. Some observers feel the decision of Chief Justice Warren Burger and the eight associate justices could decide the future of the Catholic parochial school system. Catholics have by far the largest nonpublic elementary and secondary school system in this country. Knowledgeable sources say it is likely the high court will affirm the lower court ruling which approves of state aid to parochial schools.

Other cases with religious overtones involve obscenity in movies, abortion, tax exemption for unordained church employees, and refusal on religious grounds to work on Saturdays.

SMOG AND CIGARETTE SMOKE ARE HAZARDS TO UNBORN

LOMA LINDA, CALIFORNIA—The carbon monoxide a pregnant woman breathes in smoggy air, or that she inhales if she smokes cigarettes, may be injuring her unborn child. The report appeared in the latest Annals of the New York Academy of Sciences. The research was carried on by Dr. Lawrence Longo, professor at Loma Linda University School of Medicine. Dr. Longo learned that chronic exposure of the mother even to low levels of carbon monoxide could affect the mental and psychomotor development of her unborn child. Such damage could occur if the fetus fails to get enough oxygen from the mother.

Air over the sea has about two-hundredths part carbon monoxide per million. But in heavy-traffic areas in New York there may be 40 parts per million carbon monoxide. In some sections of Los Angeles, carbon monoxide levels get up to as high as 100 parts per million. The odorless, colorless gas is also a strong component of cigarette smoke.

Studies show that a woman who smokes two packages of cigarettes a day will have 8 percent carbon monoxide in her blood stream. This has the same bad effect as decreasing the baby's blood flow by 40 percent, because there is such a drastic cut in the amount of oxygen he is getting.

MISSIONARIES FROM NORTH AMERICA ARE DECREASING

MONROVIA, CALIFORNIA—The number of Protestant missionaries from North America has declined for the first time since the depression of the 1930s. But contributions to overseas ministries has reached a record high. The overseas directory for North American Protestant missionaries lists 33,289 missionaries for 1969—a decrease of 4 percent from the 1967 total of 34,700. But North American Protestants contributed a record $345 million to overseas ministries in 1969. This is a 9 percent increase over 1967.

ADVENTIST EDITOR SCORES ADULT INCONSISTENCY

WASHINGTON, D.C.—A Seventh-day Adventist editor has declared pot-smoking youngsters have a legitimate beef when they point to their drinking parents as an excuse for using marijuana. Kenneth H. Wood, editor of the Review and Herald, charged in an editorial that the time is here for adults to face the situation honestly. Wood claimed there is no essential difference between marijuana smoking, alcohol drinking, and tobacco using. These habits all interfere with optimum functioning of the brain, he said. When men numb their brains by using drugs, they become less human and more animal, the editor stated. Wood reminded his readers that alcohol is a drug. Under its influence men are less able to control actions and reactions. "Men are dictated to, not so much by the Spirit of God, as by toxic substances they have willfully taken into their bodies," the editor said. Wood concluded that pot smoking and alcohol drinking are not compatible with Christianity.

BIBLE DISTRIBUTION HAS INCREASES IN EAST EUROPE

LONDON—The British and Foreign Bible Society reports that Bible distribution has increased significantly in Eastern Europe. In Czechoslovakia 40,000 Bibles were imported and distributed; in East Germany, about 70,000 complete Bibles plus 30,000 New Testaments and 50,000 Bible portions were distributed. The British Bible Society noted they face a need for an additional $240,000 for Eastern Europe over and above the amounts already budgeted for 1971.

Scholarship

Penny Purcell

Penny Purcell, a member of the Lincoln church, recently received a total of $500 in scholarship funds to help her gain a college education.

Miss Purcell received her financial aid from the Student Scholarship Fund of Illinois. Her grant was in the amount of $250, which Andrews University has promised to match on a dollar-for-dollar basis. She spent the summer working at the university, and is now beginning her freshman year as a nursing student.

TORCH LIT IN EASTERN ILLINOIS

For several months the cities of Chicago Heights and Kankakee in the central eastern part of Illinois lay virtually dead as far as the publishing program was concerned. There was no literature evangelist in the area and no immediate prospects for one. Then last spring, a literature evangelists training school was held. Russell Ullery along with his wife, felt impressed to attend. They did attend, and while there felt God speaking to their hearts.

Today, Mr. Ullery is lighting the Chicago Heights and Kankakee areas as a full-time literature evangelist, leaving in the homes of people hundreds of dollars worth of Seventh-day Adventist literature.

Russell lives with his wife Loree and 18-year-old daughter Sheryn in Lockport. They attend the Joliet church. Already in his first three months as a full-time literature evangelist, he has delivered over $3,000 worth of books.

Russell stepped out on faith, giving up an excellent job as an electric welder and gave all of himself, unreservedly, to God. When asked what one thing he felt about the literature work, he said, "This is the most rewarding work I have ever done." His wife plans to join him as a literature evangelist, working on the Dear Mother-To-Be program, and then together, they can go out as a team for God.

Yes, God is blessing. We thank Him for Russell Ullery and pray for more like him. Dedicated men and women are in demand today.

Perhaps God is calling you. There are many areas like Chicago Heights and Kankakee where there is no one to keep the city lit with our literature. If you could give 10, 20, or 40 hours a week to God, why not begin today to really get involved with this most important task of saving souls!

Write for an application blank today. Address your request to the Illinois Conference Publishing Secretary, P.O. Box 89, Brookfield, Illinois 60513.

TO COLLECT TIN

Many families will be assured of Thanksgiving dinner this year when food baskets prepared by members and youth of the Mattoon church are distributed.

Much of the 378 tinned items and $3.00 in cash was obtained Halloween in a special drive by 10 youth with four adults assisting.

DISTRICT LEADERSHIP CHANGES

There have been several changes in district leadership and pastoral assignments during the past weeks.

Elder H. H. White has moved from the Decatur District to the Beverly Hills church. Mrs. White is working in the conference office and is the secretary in the Missionary Volunteer Department.

Elder J. R. Carner, who was the leader in the Galesburg District, has moved to the Decatur District.

Pastor Richard G. Meier, who was the associate pastor in the Alton District, is now the leader of the Mattoon District.

Elder N. D. Kinney has moved from the Kewanee District to the Elgin District.

Elder Paul E. Thomas has transferred from the Mattoon District to the Kewanee District.

Martin W. Feldbush, who has been the associate pastor in Hinsdale the past two years, is the new leader of the Galesburg District.

David Roosenberg, who was the associate pastor in the Danville District, is the leader of the Rock Falls District.

A. E. Hanson, associate pastor in the Ottawa District, is now serving as the leader of that district.

John Monge, associate pastor of the Beverly Hills church, is now associate pastor in the Alton District and is located in the East St. Louis area.

We are pleased to welcome three young workers from the Seminary. They are located as follows:

T. C. Tessner is assisting in the Danville District. He and his family are living in Danville and devoting most of their time to the Danville and Paris churches.

John Martin is living in Canton and assisting in the Peoria District.

Fred C. Kasischke is assistant pastor in the Hinsdale church.

We appreciate the work that is being done and the leadership that is being given by all pastors. We invite all of our members to continue to pray for the ministry of this conference.

W. A. Nelson, President

TWENTY BAPTIZED IN JOLIET

Twenty people have been baptized thus far in response to the meetings held by the Illinois Conference evangelistic team of Roland Lehnhoff and David Peterson in Joliet. Another baptism is scheduled soon.

The success of these meetings is the result of the church as a whole working together with Pastor Gunnar Sjoren in a continuous program of personal and public evangelism.

Prior to and during the meetings there was much earnest and specific prayer that God's Spirit would work on behalf of those searching for truth. This along with personal involvement with those whom they were seeking to win for Christ produced the wonderful response.

The Joliet church has grown from 30 members five years ago to nearly 140 members at the present. Thus far this year, 33 have united with the church through baptism. To God be the glory—great things He hath done!

CHURCH TREASURER SERVES 41 YEARS

Mrs. Cora Clark has served the Ingalls church as its treasurer for more than 41 years. In all kinds of weather and through many economic conditions she has performed her service of love.

"I enjoy meeting our members every week and visiting with them regularly in my work as their treasurer," she willingly testified. "In fact, I love bookkeeping."

Mrs. Clark is the widow of C. E. Clark. She has nine children, 21 grandchildren, and 28 great-grandchildren. She is fortunate to have two of her children as members of her home church, Mrs. Agnes Dodd and Mrs. Nancy Coridan.

The plaque presented to Mrs. Clark on Sabbath, October 31, by the Indiana Conference treasurer, L. L. Davis, reads:

*Mrs. Nora Clark, Treasurer, Ingalls Church
1929-1970*

In appreciation for your 41 years of loyal and dedicated service as treasurer of the Ingalls Seventh-day Adventist Church.

F.F.T. Evangelistic Rally Scheduled for South Bend

A Faith for Today evangelistic rally will be conducted at South Bend, Indiana, Friday evening, 7 p.m., and Sabbath morning, 11 a.m., December 11 and 12. Leading out will be Pastor Gordon F. Dalrymple of Faith for Today; and Pastors Robert Dale, president of the Indiana Conference; Donovan Oswald, conference ministerial secretary; and John Herr, pastor of the South Bend church.

Featured Friday evening will be the Andrews University Male Chorus. A Faith for Today color motion picture, "Mission Launch to Brazil," will be shown. It is a powerful depiction of the soul-winning mission launch program on the banks of the Sao Francisco River. Pastor Gordon F. Dalrymple will give a global evangelistic report, outline plans for the spring, 1971, Faith for Today evangelistic series, and show color slides regarding the Faith for Today telecast ministry. A commentary on Indiana Conference evangelism will be given by Pastors Robert Dale, Donovan Oswald, and John Herr.

"Bridging the Gulf"—an inspiring portrayal of trends toward ecumenical unity—will be presented by Pastor Dalrymple Sabbath morning at the 11 a.m. service. Assisting with the service will be Pastors Oswald, Dale, and Herr. The Andrews University Singers will present a musical program.

The weekend evangelistic rally is worth driving many miles to attend. Plan to be present. See the announcement on the Bulletin Board page of this Herald.

School Consolidation Aids Two Districts

Southeastern Junior Academy, while it has been functioning for several years in New Albany, has now merged with the Scottsburg District to the north and serves three churches: Scottsburg, Jeffersonville, and New Albany. Strengthening the educational program in all three churches, the junior academy provides a 10-grade, three-teacher school for 49 students. This is an increase of 14 students over last year.

The children are bussed from Scottsburg, 30 miles away, and from Jeffersonville, some ten miles away. The churches are finding that by uniting together they are better able to provide a higher quality of education for their children without increasing financial obligations.

The school year is nicely under way. Mrs. Boyd Hooper is school principal and teacher for grades one to four. Al Keiser teaches grades nine and ten, and Mrs. Richard Hughey, new from West Virginia this year, teaches grades five to eight.

We are very pleased with our youth, our teachers, and our school, because it is here that the Bible is made the foundation of education.

*Duane E. Longfellow, Pastor
New Albany District*

Carolyn Taylor, Indiana Academy student body treasurer, presents an "appreciation scroll" to Dr. D. L. Ford on the day of his departure from Indiana Academy. Among the well-wishers looking on are Theresa Brooks, Terry Cook, and Diana Spillman, who had added their names and greetings to the 15-foot document. Dr. Ford presented the Week of Prayer services from October 12 to 16.

WEEK OF PRAYER HELD AT I.A.

Indiana Academy students received many inspiring insights into Christian living during their Week of Prayer, October 12 to 16. Dr. D. L. Ford, chairman of the chemistry department of Andrews University, frankly and thoughtfully explored the realities of life as a Christian.

Our academy seeks to provide not only these high peaks of Christian direction, but peaks day by day as teachers and staff mingle with the students. The prime purpose for the academy's existence is to show that education not only fits one for this life, but leads to decisions for eternity.

Pastor J. M. Phipps welcomes Wannell Adams and her daughter Johnette into the church as Mrs. Lou A. Jones looks on.

DORCAS CONTACT BECOMES MEMBER

While sitting at my desk one day, I received a telephone call from a very anxious mother desiring clothing for her needy children. From the tone of her voice it seemed as if she were in immediate need and would not be content until help came from some quarter.

The caller had been told by Mrs. Luvenia Slay, a Seventh-day Adventist, that she would receive help at the Better Living Center. I immediately contacted the Dorcas leader of the Detroit Center church and gave her the address and phone number of the concerned mother.

Mrs. Lou A. Jones, Dorcas leader, then made an appointment with the caller, Mrs. Wannell Adams, and provided her with the necessary clothing. So grateful was she for the help she had received that she decided to help the people who had helped her and her children.

The next Tuesday she began to attend the regular Dorcas meeting and prepared clothing to be given to others in need. She also began to attend church services and was soon baptized along with her oldest child, Johnette.

More recently the Ingathering campaign was launched at the Detroit Center church, and in less than a week the new convert had raised and turned in nearly two goals. She immediately began to solicit funds for other members who could not get out as easily as she could.

Today, she along with many others who have experienced similar conversions through the ministries of the Better Living Center is rejoicing in her newfound faith. She is also sharing it with others.

Mrs. Elaine Francis and Mrs. Loretta Thomas, kindergarten division leaders, and Mrs. Desiree Goodman, lay activities secretary, prepare for the largest Investment Offering in the Inkster (Michigan) Sharon church's history.

LAST CALL GIVEN FOR INVESTMENT

There is a strong indication that the Investment Offering this year will be the best yet. This partnership-with-God experience has enlivened the Sabbath School and has provided fresh impetus to the entire church program.

The highlight of the Sabbath School program of the Inkster (Michigan) Sharon church during the year is the Investment rally. Enthusiasm runs high and an atmosphere of spiritual competition among the divisions make you glad you're part of such a worthwhile missionary program. Not only is 100 percent participation the goal, but a 20 percent increase over the previous year's offering is also one of the strong objectives. So far the strong leadership of the Investment secretaries of the Sharon church has met the challenge.

Thrilling experiences from around the field give evidence to the fact that God is the silent partner in the personal projects of His people. A purse containing $25 was hopelessly lost. Out of this incident was born the idea of giving this offering to God for Investment, should it ever be found. It was found stored accidentally with the winter clothes. One member decided to give all the money he found for Investment. Over $128 in bills and coins have been reported. A barren peach tree in Indianapolis, Indiana, was fruitful this year as a result of the miracle-partnership. The bread-and-rolls project of a Chicago member turns out to be a miracle offering each year.

Remember, these last few weeks can be the most fruitful of all for Investment as you make those last calls. God has promised success "in proportion to the enthusiasm and perseverance with which the work is carried forward . . ."—Prophets and Kings, page 263.

The Sharon Investment program, under the direction of Mrs. Elaine Francis, promises to be the biggest ever. All Lake Region is making ready for this Last Call for Investment.

Improvements Made at Camp Au Sable

Numerous physical changes have been made at Camp Au Sable to meet state health and safety regulations. Most of these changes were completed during recent months, Jess Nephew, camp manager reports, without interrupting the busy schedule of church campouts, summer camps, retreats, workshops, and Bible camps.

Although the changes involved considerable cost, state regulations pressed the constituency to do what really should have been done anyway. Here are a few of the major changes that have taken place:

Oil and gas space heaters have been replaced with a completely new hot water heating system for the lodge and the medical and staff buildings. Cabins are now equipped with outside gas furnaces. Campers no longer have to freeze or worry about the dangers of the old stoves. This new system also leads to much cleaner and healthier accommodations.

Old dishwashing drain boards and sinks have been replaced by a dishwasher and a hot water heater which produces enough hot water for all kitchen needs. (Don't fear that the fun of dishwashing at camp has been destroyed. Dishes still need to be sprayed, arranged in trays, and replaced in cupboards. It's lots of fun!)

Counter tops in the kitchen are now covered with easy-to-clean Formica.

Two additional sinks eliminate washing kettles in the already crowded kitchen area.

Additional storeroom shelves aid in keeping stock neat and moving.

Eighteen additional bunk beds were purchased and 75 new mattresses were acquired to replace old, dilapidated, and unsanitary ones.

New roofing is currently being placed on all buildings.

Another cabin is now winterized to increase accommodations.

Many other minor changes have taken place, and equipment has been added to increase your comfort and enjoyment. Other areas still need improvement, the camp manager reports, as means and time allow. Your suggestions and help are welcome.

Pastor Nephew reminds Michigan Adventists that "God has blessed us as a people with this beautiful camp. It is a place to draw closer to Him and find spiritual food and rest through nature." The number of people who have enjoyed the blessings of this camp has grown over the years from about 300 to 7,000 people in a year. Were you one of the 7,000 this past year? Don't miss the opportunity to enjoy the privileges available at Au Sable.

AYARS GIVEN PANTRY SHOWER WELCOME

A pantry shower recently welcomed the James Ayars family to the Metropolitan church in Detroit.

Jim, a native of Grand Rapids, is a graduate of Andrews University. He will serve as assistant pastor with special emphasis on youth work. With him are his wife Judy (formerly Judy Snide of Cheboygan) and son Eric, almost 2 years old.

Welcoming remarks were given by Dr. E. D. Ryden, musical numbers by Elder H. C. Reading and Felix Lorenz, and a special poem in their honor by Mrs. Janet Morick. James Stephan served as master of ceremonies.

1920 Wedding Vows Still Cement Couples

Within six days two married couples celebrated their 50th wedding anniversaries at the Onaway church.

Mr. and Mrs. James Reeves were married at Flint, Michigan, October 23, 1920, and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Steele were married at Miles City, Montana, October 29, 1920.

Mr. and Mrs. James Reeves in their earlier days attended a school in Joelton, Tennessee, from 1910 to 1912. Then they were separated. Mr. Reeves spent 18 months in the army during World War I. After his release in 1919, a girl saw him in Flint, Michigan, and said, "Hello." He didn't recognize her at first, but it was the girl who had attended school with him in Joelton. A friendship ripened into a romance.

Reeves worked for the Buick company for 24 years in Flint. He was a "rebel" in the factory, promoting the interests of the union. Then, in 1943, he and his wife were baptized by Elder Daniel Venden. He lost his position in the factory and accepted a job with half the pay, but he earned the title of "Honest Jim" and the "Preacher."

Milton Steele courted his bride-to-be near Miles City, Montana. In order to visit her he would ford the Powder River on horseback or take a buggy if the river were low enough. Once he instructed a friend how to drive a buggy across the river. Instead of going against the current he drove with the current and the buggy upset. In spite of the mishap, Milton still got to see Louise that day.

They came to Onaway, Michigan, in 1927. Elders Summerville and Alcock were holding evangelistic meetings there at that time, and both the Steeles were baptized. Mr. Steele has spent his life working in the woods and farming.

The Onaway church members honored the two couples by having a supper for them, followed by a program for their golden anniversaries.

Bunker Hill Seventh-day Adventist Church

BUNKER HILL CHURCH DEDICATED

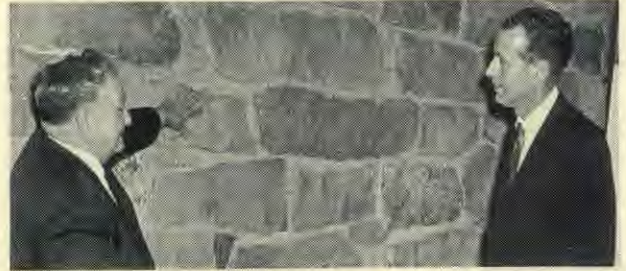

Sabbath, October 24, 1970, was a memorable day in the history of the Bunker Hill Seventh-day Adventist Church, located midway between Jackson and Lansing.

Nearly four years ago, January 7, 1967, the old Bunker Hill church burned to the ground, leaving only the basement walls standing. The following Wednesday night after prayer meeting, a church business meeting was called; it was voted to rebuild on the same site. They chose a building committee and began to work.

Exactly two years later, January 8, 1969, the Bunker Hill members held their first service in the new sanctuary. And then, before another two years passed, this church of 70 members dedicated their new building debt free.

Weekend dedication speakers included Elder Leonard Wartzok, treasurer of the Michigan Conference, who presented the worship hour sermon, and Elder John

The only part of the old church that could be salvaged was a portion of the stone foundation. Builders recut the stone and architect Davidson worked it into the platform background of the new church.

Here Dr. Earl Parker, first elder, and Pastor Steward Snyder reminisce about the old church.

Hayward, conference secretary, who delivered the dedicatory sermon in the afternoon.

The present church pastor, Elder Stewart Snyder, led in the Act of Dedication, as members of the congregation responded with "We dedicate this sanctuary to Thee, O God."

Other participating visitors were Elder H. D. Miller, district leader, Dr. Horace Shaw of Andrews University, and Elder Loy Foll, pastor of the Shelby church.

Bunker Hill church members are proud of their rich heritage in denominational history. This church was one of the first to celebrate a centennial in the denomination, and today members come from as far away as Lansing in the north, Jackson in the south, Pinckney in the east, and Onondaga in the west.

The name of Elder Joseph Bates is associated with the beginnings of the Bunker Hill church. Shortly before the

Following the Sabbath morning service, a potluck dinner was served in the church basement.

All available space in the church and the church foyer was occupied during the eleven o'clock service on dedication weekend.

The Communion table was donated by the father of one of the church members, Donald De Camp. Mr. De Camp is an experienced builder and saved the church a great deal of money in the construction of the new church.

Music at the dedication was presented by Andrews University students. Interns assigned to the Bunker Hill church are Harry Beaty and John Griswell. Left to right are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Beaty, Donna Farley, and Mr. and Mrs. John Griswell.

year 1864, people in Bunker Hill Center heard of Sabbathkeepers in New York State. They questioned their local pastor, and when he couldn't satisfy them, sent to New York State for someone to explain the Sabbath to them. Elder Joseph Bates responded and held meetings in the schoolhouse. Thus a company of Sabbathkeepers was formed and met each week in the homes of the believers.

In 1896 the first church was constructed. The furniture was secured from a Lansing church and hauled in wagons to the site while the floor covering was rag carpet made by the church ladies. The final cost of the edifice was $750.

During the early 1960s, the church was completely remodeled in time to celebrate its 100th anniversary. Then in 1967, came the devastating fire. The building committee found that the only salvageable portion of the old church was the stone foundation. These stones were carefully removed and recut—they now form the background to the platform area.

The designer of the church was James Davidson, an Adventist architect with Sarvis Associates, an architectural firm in Battle Creek. Robert Redman of Gobles was the builder.

In the evening a social gathering, which included refreshments, a film of the Holy Land, and a march, was held.

- An Ingathering goal of $33,790 has been set for the 3,006 students in Michigan's 51 grade schools. The goals range from Burlington's $75 to Detroit Southfield's $3,200. Each year, church school children are faithful to their own Ingathering challenge and have consistently reached their goals.

Sessions will be held in 10 different parts of the conference beginning February 21 and closing May 1. Further word on these meetings will be announced through the pages of the Herald and in the local churches.

- Special dates of general interest to the field were recently set up by the conference committee. Among them are the annual workers meetings, January 18 to 21; Biennial Constituency Meeting, April 25; Upper Peninsula Camp Meeting, June 4 and 5; and regular camp meeting, July 22 to 31.

- Mike Chucta, a member of the Battle Creek Tabernacle, has been named to the Academies Industries Board, which is now complete. Chucta, an engineer for Clark Equipment Company, will be able to bring the benefits of his specialized training to a continuing and expanding sound business program for our various school industries. Other members of this recently formed board include the managers of our academy mills and the principals of those schools; conference officers and Assistant Conference Treasurer Gordon Carle; and the following Adventist businessmen: Arthur Haynor of Ludington, Leon Skikkers of Holland, and Leslie Iles of Battle Creek.

Merle E. Moore has accepted a call to become the new stewardship secretary of the Michigan Conference.

Stewardship Secretary Accepts Call

Elder Merle E. Moore, stewardship secretary of the Potomac Conference, has accepted a call to the same work in Michigan.

He replaces Elder Don A. Copsey who recently moved to the Lake Union office to organize and head up a similar department on the union level.

Elder Moore, a graduate of Adelphian Academy, obtained his degree in business administration from Andrews University. Additional studies brought him his M.A. degree in business education from George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, Tennessee.

He has been manager of a college press; principal of academies in North Carolina, Tennessee, New York, and Port-au-Prince, Haiti; public relations director for two local conferences; and stewardship secretary for the Greater New York and Potomac conferences.

His wife, Thelma Pauline Bell of Colorado, has been on the faculty and staff of a number of our academies. She was a Bible school instructor at Faith for Today, and has served as office secretary in a number of conference departments.

The Moores have two daughters living in Florida and Massachusetts, respectively, and a son in New York. Elder Moore's hobbies are photography and gardening, while his wife's leisure-time interests are flowers and music (piano and organ). The Moores will be arriving in Michigan by the end of November.

Michigan welcomes Elder and Mrs. Moore to the work of stewardship within the conference.

S.D.A. Press Secretary Has Regular Column

Ingathering by Sparta church members has been made easier and a former Adventist has had her interest rekindled because of a continual flow of Adventist news items appearing in local newspapers.

Jeanette Heiss, Sparta church press secretary, reports that a church member, while Ingathering, met an ex-Adventist who said she reads the news items every week. They have aroused her interest in the church again and she is now taking the Bible Speaks program.

Mrs. Heiss' husband also reported many people contacted in the Ingathering campaign have remarked that they, too, read and like the articles which press secretary Heiss has submitted. Much of her material forms a regular column of Adventist news under Mrs. Heiss' by-line.

In her regular monthly report to the conference Public Relations Department, this press secretary said she was "quite pleased" recently when the reporter from the Sparta Reminder called to ask if Mrs. Heiss wanted our church listed with others on the church page. The reporter thanked the press secretary for sending in "such interesting stories" every week. Mrs. Heiss thought the papers were doing the church a favor by printing her releases. Now she knows that an active local church press secretary is actually doing a favor for the newspaper.

Besides items in her local Sparta Reminder, her stories of Adventist activities are used by three other neighborhood papers. They are the Rockford Register, the Plainfield Pre-View, and the Cedar Springs Clipper.

Wisconsin Academy Holds Fall Temperance Week

Brilliant posters, program announcements, and Smoking Sam set the scene for an active week of temperance activities at Wisconsin Academy.

Glen Cunningham, known to millions as one of the greatest milers of all times, opened temperance week speaking against negative attitudes and harmful indulgence.

Holder of world Olympic records, Mr. Cunningham now races the world over to help youth through the American Temperance League, and is described by Reader's Digest as the "man of 8,000 miracles."

During the week, student body president Steve Hildebrand, and Grant Guth, faculty sponsor for the academy temperance chapter, led out in a program of student lectures, films, and temperance demonstrations.

To conclude temperance week at Wisconsin Academy, Elder Milo Sawvel from the General Conference Temperance Department and Elder Lester Rilea, Wisconsin Conference MV secretary, conducted a workshop on the campus for students and temperance lay activity workers from across Wisconsin to help teach them how to use the Youth for Better Living materials available.

There's no lack of activity as Elder W. M. Buckman, Michigan Conference lay activities secretary, tells Wisconsin officers how it's done across the lake in Michigan.

Lay activities leaders analyze carefully the principles Elder W. M. Buckman presents.

A double attraction of heat and food made the dining hall the most popular place.

Elder F. W. Wernick, president, Lake Union Conference, brought warmth to the hearts of officers in the unheated auditorium when he described the remedy for the Laodicean condition of the church.

1971 CHURCH OFFICERS COUNCIL

More than 600 newly elected 1971 church officers met at the Wisconsin campgrounds, September 25 to 27, to study ways to improve the efficiency and spiritual impact of the local churches.

Elders, head deacons, lay activities leaders and secretaries, treasurers, clerks, Pathfinder, MV, and Sabbath School leaders from most of Wisconsin's 81 churches attended the workshop before assuming their duties for the new year beginning October 1, 1970, running through September 30, 1971.

Elder N. R. Dower of the General Conference Ministerial Department brought the worship hour message entitled, "Where is the Lord God of Elijah?" in which he stated that sin and apathy in the church prevents God from displaying His loving power.

"Morality can be measured in inches!" Dower declared when encouraging our leaders to foster modesty by example and influence.

Group meetings for local officers in their separate areas of interest and responsibility were conducted by Elder R. Curtis Barger of the General Conference Sabbath School Department; Elder W. M. Buckman, Michigan Conference lay activities secretary; Elder J. D. Westfall, Lake Union civilian chaplain; and Wisconsin departmental secretaries and officers.

In the meeting for the elders and deacons, Dower indicated the church could not be blessed while it carried members on its books who disregarded God's standards. He told the deacons and elders that the wayward must be visited, encouraged, and if unrepentant, disciplined.

"No one is ready to make such a visit," Dower warned, "until he is ready to lay down his own life for that erring person's salvation."

"Until we love the world as Christ loved the world we are in no position to help them," Dower said. "When we love the world as He has loved it, then for us His mission is accomplished. We are fitted for heaven; for we have heaven in our hearts." Dower concluded by quoting Desire of Ages, page 641.

Comments from the officers indicated a deep desire to move forward with Christ in winning souls for the kingdom so that at the conclusion of their term of office they might see the church appreciably closer to the long-awaited goal of Christ's return.

Two Berrien Springs elementary school sixth graders learn the basics of tumbling under the guidance of Albert Townsend, senior biology major at Andrews University. Townsend, along with three other students enrolled in an education course, recently conducted a physical education workshop for 60 sixth graders from the Berrien Springs public elementary school.

The workshop enabled the university students to study reactions and abilities of a certain age group to physical education, while supplementing the youngsters' regular classes. Other students who conducted the workshop were Marise Henry, Steve Burke, and Jerry DeHart, all senior physical education majors. (Photo by Kurt Ebeling)

Archaeological Museum Acquires New Items

Recent acquisitions of the archaeological museum at Andrews University include 25 ancient Roman and Egyptian coins, a set of Roman nails from the time of Christ, including the type used for crucifixions, and pottery dating from before patriarchal times to the time of Christ. The items include recent gifts from individuals as well as items purchased by Dr. Siegfried Horn, curator, while he was in the Middle East this summer.

The collection of Roman coins was obtained by Robert Little, instructor in anthropology, with money provided by Mr. and Mrs. Ward Ehrhart, formerly of Indianapolis. Dr. Sidney Allen of the General Conference Bible Textbook Revision Committee presented the set of Roman nails.

The acquisitions are especially rich in pottery of the Divided Kingdom, according to Dr. Horn.

Other new items include a set of cymbals three inches in diameter and a small mirror of bronze overlaid with silver.

SINGERS TO PERFORM BACH "MAGNIFICAT"

Bach's Magnificat, a musical interpretation of the canticle of Mary in Luke 2, will be performed by the Andrews University Singers, under the direction of Dr. Rudolf Strukoff, assistant professor of music, on Friday, December 11, at 7:45 p.m. in the Pioneer Memorial church.

Accompanied by the A.U. orchestra, the program will be the annual Christmas vespers.

Composed in 1723 and considered to be one of Bach's most intricate compositions, the Magnificat consists of four solos, a duet, a ladies' trio, and six choruses. In addition to the string section of the orchestra, the accompaniment will use flutes, oboes, and three trumpets in D—high soprano trumpets which are "difficult to obtain and to play," according to Strukoff.

The 27-voice Singers will be supplemented for the concert by four soloists: Ruth Robertson, graduate music student, soprano; Donna Lee Strukoff, Eau Claire public schools music teacher, mezzo-soprano; James Hanson, director of the University Chorale, tenor; and Wayne Rowe, A.U. Academy music teacher, bass.

DEPARTMENT HOLDS OPEN HOUSE

The education department held an open house on November 8.

In addition to the counseling and testing center, the education building houses a reading center, a research laboratory, a professional library, an audiovisual center and administrative offices and classrooms.

The new department of education quarters are located in the remodeled west wing of the Andrews University Academy building. Construction was begun last February and is now being completed.
