Let God Speak

The January issue of Time carried an item entitled, "Thou shalt not—and shall" which focused on the age-old debate between fundamental Christian belief and humanistic philosophy. The article announced that humanists are celebrating "responsible freedom after centuries of bondage to church and state....For the first time we realize that we own our own bodies....We need to adopt the doctrine that actualizing pleasures are the highest moral goods."

The alert Seventh-day Adventist must recognize the popular concept of humanism for what it really is—not only a sign of the end, but an old lie in new disguise. Again, our best defense is found in God's Word. "Do you not know that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit within you, which you have from God? You are not your own; you were bought with a price. So glorify God in your body." 1 Corinthians 6:19, RSV. (Italics supplied.)

True, the increasingly liberal attitude toward social mores does offer unprecedented enticements for the Christian and in an unguarded moment he may presume that God will overlook this or that. David thought this way at one time, but later upon sober reflection prayed, "Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins." Psalm 19:13. With such a clear example of what can happen, must we learn the lesson over and over again? Ellen White warns that by the presumptuous sin, Satan "obtains the victory nine times out of ten."—Testimonies, Vol. 4, p. 44. Pretty strong odds wouldn't you say?

Listen to the Word of the Lord! "By faith Moses, when he was grown up, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter, choosing rather to share ill-treatment with the people of God than to enjoy the fleeting pleasure of sin." Hebrews 11:24, 25, RSV.

Moses was wise to the temptations of the enemy and the saving power of the promised Saviour. Moses was a student of God's Word!

With this issue, Dr. Walter Specht starts a new series on "How to Read the Bible." May I urge you to read this counsel and let God speak to you every day through His Word? Only in this way can we expect to survive this generation.

To regard Ellen G. White as "mother" was one thing for a younger woman like Mrs. Van Horn who had lived in her home, but for hard-headed men to consider her to be God's "messenger," gifted with prophecy, was quite another. They wondered if her "testimonies" were distilled from mundane information, from mesmerism (ESP), or from what?

Some Sabbatarian Adventists, such as J. N. Loughborough in his first ministerial years, 1852-3, queried if this lady received her vision material from the inspired Source. Beginning with a vision in 1852, he began a study of Ellen White while in vision (and afterwards) that continued for many years.

He learned that when in vision Ellen was breathless but not bloodless, that is, she did not breathe, yet her countenance had fleshly color, as "florid as usual." Her movements were pleasing but not bizarre, that is, "there were graceful movements of the arms and hands." The visioner's face was arresting but not weird, that is, "her eyes were open, not with any ghastly or vacant stare." During these experiences the lady received knowledge that only Heaven could supply concerning people, places, and principles. Loughborough blinked when she revealed to him the workings of his own mind, "things I had never mentioned to any living being." (See RH, 3/4/84)

The acid test for Loughborough developed while the Whites and others were touring in Michigan in 1853. At Tyrone (May 29) this gifted lady received a vision of the groups of believers in the State, and when she met Loughborough, she asked him to copy the pencilwritten sketch for her. He kept the original (on purpose). An aspect of the vision focused particularly on a sanctimonious "Mrs. A." who lived somewhere in the wide area, kept company with two men, her husband and a younger man (her partner in immorality). If she met this woman, Ellen believed she should confront her with what she knew. At that point Mrs. A. should say only four words, "God-knows-my-heart," and sit down.

Only one person in Tyrone had ever met Mrs. A., namely, Evangelist M. E. Cornell, who told Loughborough he had not mentioned her to anyone. So with the vision in hand the two men waited. Here might develop the test.

The group left Jackson, visited Battle Creek and Bedford, arrived at Vergennes (near where Mrs. A. lived) on June 11. There was to be preaching in a neighborhood barn. The locality seemed "familiar" to Ellen, so to her husband she said: "James, we have gotten to the church where that woman lives."

Carriageloads of people were coming to the meeting. Of the first load she observed, None of them have any confidence in that woman's pretensions. Of the second load she affirmed, Those in the front seat distrust her, those in the back seat trust. Of the third load she remarked, All of them are under the woman's influence. Yet Ellen was puzzled—where was that young man? "He had a sandy complexion, with sandy hair and whiskers, and there was something peculiar about his eyes." Just then someone announced, "Brother Pearsall is coming." "Oh!" exclaimed Ellen, "That is the man; he has spectacles on, he is near-sighted."

In the meeting Loughborough and Cornell saw the woman accosted and the unfolding drama just as Ellen had described days before. They noted the sides taken by the carriage riders, exactly as delineated. They heard the woman say, "God-knows-my-heart." And they marveled inasmuch as Mrs. White had not seen these folks with her natural eyes. A bit later, the woman admitted her immoralities. (See RH, 5/4/84)

THE HEART OF THE LAKE UNION . THE HEART OF THE LAKE UNION .

Thus the young Michigan churches were spared spurious influences, and Loughborough and Cornell were convinced that Ellen White's gift was indeed from out of this world.

"'How remarkable! What an amazing thing the Lord has done.'"

How to Read the Bible Part 1

by Walter F. Specht

Before we consider suggestions on how to read the Bible, it is wise to consider the question, "Why read the Bible?" It takes effort to form the habit of daily Bible reading, and no one will put forth that effort without a conviction that it is important for him to do so. So, why read the Bible?

For one thing, a knowledge of the Bible is an essential part of education. The Bible is a collection of literary masterpieces which no well-educated person can afford to ignore. More than this, the Bible is inextricably bound up with the history and culture of western civilization. Much of the finest in art, music, and literature cannot be fully understood without a knowledge of the Bible. The study of the Bible is also in itself an excellent intellectual discipline.

More than that, the Bible gives practical help in daily living. The Bible gives meaning and significance to life. What is life all about? Clarence Darrow, the famous criminal lawyer of a generation back, said that for him, "Life is an unpleasant interruption of nothingness." Is that all life is? What is really worthwhile in this modern world with all of its baffling problems? The Bible reader and believer is not haunted by any nightmare of despair. To him life is more than a discord or a dream. Man has a higher destiny than, as Tennyson put it, "to be blown about the desert dust or sealed within the iron ills." The meaning of life is unfolded in the pages of your Bible. It not only outlines worthy motives for living, and presents a glorious future for man, but it teaches by presenting the life stories of men and women whose lives became meaningful and significant. Here are examples which say to you and me: "Look what you can do with life if you face it with stamina and courage and consecration." Above all it presents the one perfect Man—the one ideal life—in our blessed Lord, Jesus Christ. No life in all the world has ever been subjected to such unrelenting scrutiny as His life. And yet, after 1,900 years, that life still rings true.

Much of the finest in art, music, and literature cannot be fully understood without a knowledge of the Bible.

Even more important than this is the moral and spiritual culture that one acquires from the Bible. Many cen-, turies ago the Psalmist asked: "How can a young man keep his way pure?" (Psalm 119:9, RSV) "How can a young man live a clean life?" (Norlie) Then he answers it this way: "By guarding it according to thy word," or, as the Berkeley Version puts it, "By living in agreement with thy word." The young person who patterns his life by the Scriptures will not mistake the path of duty or of safety. Integrity of character, truthfulness, and purity, are all taught in that volume.

But above all, the Bible introduces human beings to God. Because this is so, nothing is more important for a personal religious life than the study of the Bible and prayer. You speak to God in prayer. God speaks to you through His Word. To read and study the Scriptures is to have an audience with the Infinite One. The Bible is a channel of communication with God. "The Bible is God's voice speaking to us, just as surely as though we could hear it with our ears."—Testimonies, Vol. 6, p. 393. But if God is speaking to you and me in the Bible, how important it is for us to listen! God the speaker—We the listeners. Listening is indeed a serious responsibility.

The God who speaks to us in the Bible is a God of love and seeking grace. The story of the Bible is not the story of man's search for God. It is rather the story of God's search for human beings, and His relentless efforts to save them. He is a God "who desires all men to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth" (1 Tim. 2:4). He is a God who "gave his only Son, that whoever believes in him should not perish but have eternal life" (John 3:16). He is a God who proclaims the Gospel of redeeming grace: "Though your sins are scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they are red like crimson, they shall become like wool' (Isa. 1:18). Could any news be greater than that?

The story of the Bible is not the story of man's search for God. It is rather the story of God's search for human beings.

In the Bible, then, there is help and hope for us—help for our deepest needs, comfort for our shattered spirits, light and hope for our darkest hour. Here is a guidebook for life. Here is a lamp for our feet and a light for our path (Ps. 119:105).

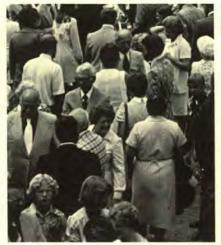

But suppose I want to use the Bible as a guidebook for my life, suppose I want to find practical help for my personal problems, how do I proceed to get it? Just how does one get help from the Bible, or read the Bible in a meaningful way? This is the question to which we shall direct our attention next week.

Walter Specht is the chairman of the New Testament department of the Andrews University Theological Seminary.

What is beautiful about your church? Look at yourself. Look at your church. Can you and the place in which you worship be identified as a gate which opens into heaven?

The Gate of Heaven

he most important place in your town is the Seventh-day Adventist Church. You know it: I know it: your fellow church members know it. But who, among the non-Adventist residents of your area, share this conviction? Your church, my church, is the very gate of heaven!

The gate of heaven? Does my church look like the gate of heaven? If, indeed, it is the gate of heaven, is it identified so everyone knows where it is located? Shouldn't the Seventh-day Adventist Church be the best-known spot in town?

Let's look at the church from another angle. We have set a goal of reaching every person on planet Earth with the message in the next five years. This goal is ambitious, but attainable, by God's grace. However, it is doubtful that our goal will be realized if we continue to operate with our "Seventh-day Adventist Church Anonymous" program.

Look at your church next Sabbath. As you look, try to put yourself in the place of the majority in your town who know little, or nothing, about Seventh-day Adventists. What impression would you get from the exterior of your church?

Before you go to church next Sabbath, look in your newspaper and in the telephone directory. Is your church listed? Ask the service station attendants near your home for directions to the Seventh-day Adventist Church. Don't be surprised, even if you live in a small town, if the attendants not know where the Adventist Church is.

Would a traveler on the highway see signs pointing the way to your church? We have all heard stories of travelers, in desperation, finding the Adventist Church through the public electric power company or from the local mortuary. Don't laugh! These stories are, unfortunately, true.

March 1976 has been named Church Identification/Beautification Month for the churches in the Illinois and Indiana conferences. The Michigan, Lake Region, and Wisconsin conferences have designated April for the month of special emphasis. An audiovisual presentation, "The Gate of Heaven," outlining ways you can correct or improve the identity and image of your church is available for showings and should be scheduled through your local conference communication department.

Additional help will be in the hands of your church board prior to Church Identification/Beautification Month. This will be a kit of materials including brochures on beautification, identification, safety, and building guides, plus a self-evaluation chart.

Of course, you, individually, are the most important identification and beautification component within your church. The community will be watching you to see if it makes any difference for you to be a member of such a church. No matter how well you identify your church or beautify the edifice, that beauty and identity will only be believable if your life and actions square with and meet the same high standards maintained at your church.

This is a special program for the Bicentennial year in the United States. but isn't this work equally important every year until our Lord returns?

ELDERS MEET AT INDIANA ACADEMY

A meeting of the church elders held January 25, was called by Elder G. W. Morgan, conference president, to study ways of advancing God's cause in Indiana for the new year.

Kurt McKinley, one of Indianapolis Glendale Church's elders, gave the devotional and shared some personal witnessing experiences he and his wife are having with their tennis club friends. He challenged pastors and laymen to unite to finish God's work in Indiana.

Elder R. R. Rouse, conference treasurer, gave a financial report for the year 1975. It was thrilling to note that more money was raised for evangelism than ever before in the history of the conference. A total of $114,000 was brought in for evangelism through the Adventure in Faith Offering, the camp meeting evangelism offering, and offerings taken at the evangelistic meetings held during the year.

A report on It Is Written was given by Elder Bill Woodruff, conference ministerial director. The program is presently being aired in the Gary and Fort Wayne areas. It is hoped that It Is Written can be aired on one of the Indianapolis stations in the next six or eight months. A contact has been made with several stations. Elder Woodruff asked the brethren to pray that a favorable time slot will open up.

During the afternoon session Al Singleton from the General Conference Insurance Service, explained insurance needs of the church. He answered questions helping the men to understand why some premiums have gone up and other aspects of their insurance needs.

It was a very profitable meeting for all the elders and pastors who came.

ROCK MUSICIAN AND WIFE BAPTIZED IN KOKOMO

Ralph Baxter handed a Seventh-day Adventist pamphlet to Jim Jones one day while they were working side by side. A real friendship began.

Ralph followed up his new found opportunity and soon he and his wife, Pat, took their Bibles and started a series of Bible studies with Jim and his wife, Barbara.

It was soon discovered that Jim had lived all his life in the shadow of the SDA Church on West Taylor Street in Kokomo. He and Barbara still live in the old homestead place where he grew up.

Jim reminisced that as a little lad he wondered about that church were the meetings were held on Saturday, never understanding why a church would have a school during the week as he perceived by observing the children playing outside during recess time.

Years passed and Jim entered the music world with his guitar, banjo, and piano. He became a rock musician.

When interviewed at the close of the baptismal service, Jim said, "It is a great feeling to find a church where people are willing to talk to you and help you study to find the real truth." Jim feels that many of today's young people see the "apostasy and hypocrisy in the churches of our time," and are looking for something better to base their lives upon.

Jim's first musical rendition in his new found church was the Twenty-Third Psalm. He accompanied himself on his guitar improvising as he went along.

Members of the Kokomo Church warmly welcomed Jim and Barbara into the family of Jesus Christ and into His sanctuary in Kokomo.

The Baxters are certainly accepting Elder Robert Pierson's challenge to all Seventh-day Adventists to become members of the "Seek and Save Lost Souls Brigade in 1976."

BETHEL CHILDREN GRADUATE

On January 3, the Bethel Church in East Chicago, Indiana, held a graduation exercise for eight of its Sabbath School members. There were children graduating from cradle roll through the earliteen divisions. James Pearce gave the graduation speech. Those graduating were: (front) Byron Moore, Paul Duncan, Jr., Emery Johnson, Hywell Davis; (back) Cardoves Clark, Edward Avinger, Tabitha Moore, and Jacqueline Johnson.

Trevor D. Barnes

Born on the sunny island of Jamaica, Trevor Barnes is the second child of a family with three boys and three girls.

After completing an associate degree in business administration at West Indies College, Mandeville, Jamaica, he immediately went to Andrews University where he received a B.S. in business administration in August 1972.

Trevor returned to Jamaica where he worked for one year with a bauxite company, the Alumina Partners of Jamaica, Ltd.

He wanted to go back to school, so he returned to Andrews University where he completed the MBA degree in June 1975.

He ardently believes that man's first duty should be service for God to his fellowman, to lift souls from the quicksand of sinfulness to the solid rock of righteousness.

It is with this conviction that Trevor joins the Lake Region Conference to do his part in rescuing the suffering from the snares of the evil one.

His major duty is that of accountant for the Family Health and Education Service and the Book and Bible House health store. He will also serve as auditor of the schools.

Trevor believes that his job demands as much dedication as that of the ministers out in the field. He is of the firm conviction that he was called by God to do this work. The Lake Region Conference family is happy to have Trevor as a member of its team.

NEWS NOTES

• Century 21 Institute, a series of programs dealing with physical and mental health, is being presented by the Urbandale Adventist Church. Dr. Wayne Griffith, of Battle Creek Sanitarium Hospital's Department of Preventive Care, and Elder Glenn Hill, local pastor, are directors of the program. Meetings began on February 6 and are being held Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. until March 26.

- A "Parents Educating Parents" study club is scheduled to meet in the conference room of the Grand Rapids Central Church, Sunday afternoon, February 22, from 2 to 4 p.m. Many everyday problems of childraising are common to all parents, but no one parent has all the answers. Mothers, expectant mothers, or those planning motherhood are invited to attend. Twenty-nine different problem areas have been suggested as possible topics. Mirrian Streelman will initiate these once-amonth meetings.
- Plans for Michigan's two camp meetings are already being made, Elder Charles Keymer, conference president, reports. A recent letter from Daniel R. Guild, manager of the Voice of Prophecy, says that "it's been many years" since anyone from the broadcast has attended the Upper Peninsula camp meeting. Therefore, the VOP is making available Elder Norman J. Matiko, director of field services, and Brad and Olive Braley, musicians, to attend these meetings scheduled for June 11 to 13 at Escanaba. The camp meeting at Grand Ledge is scheduled for August 5 to 14 and guest speakers are being lined up for the ten-day spiritual feast, according to Keymer.
- The annual drive to collect labels from Campbell's food products netted the Vassar Church School greater returns than in their two previous campaigns. The 5,000 labels collected will be used to "purchase ear phones for the school's listening center," reports Keith Ellsworth, principal.
- Cedar Lake Church nears completion, reports Donald E. Eckenroth, pastor. "Barring any unforeseen delays" the new $450,000 church building should be completed by the end of March. The main auditorium will have a seating capacity of 875. The building, which took more than a year and a half to plan, also features a church office, pastor's study, treasurer's office, council room, fellowship hall, and education rooms.
- The Youth for Eternity Singers will be featured guests for the Sabbath morning service, February 28, at the Lawrence Church. The 26 singers have been together for the past five years traveling about 15,000 miles to present programs at churches, service clubs, nursing homes, and VA hospitals. The group, from the Battle Creek area, is directed by Mrs. Shari Gillett. Her husband, Ben, is the business manager. All are welcome to attend this special program.
- It was baby dedication day at Escanaba, Sabbath, January 31. Five parents brought their babies and two small children forward to dedicate them to Jesus the "children's friend." Older children who were already dedicated were invited to stand with their parents and new baby.

CRISIS INTERVENTION PROGRAM AIRED IN BATTLE CREEK

"On Line," an Adventist sponsored crisis intervention program, is now being broadcast in Battle Creek. It is being aired Sunday evenings from 11 to 12 p.m. over WKRN, a local radio station.

The program is "catching on," church leaders report and the station management has been "fantastic" in their cooperation. They have even purchased special equipment to make the phone-in format feasible and have expressed willingness to give as much time as is needed on a public service basis.

The live program is moderated by Pastors LaRue Cook and Don Williams of the Tabernacle pastoral staff. They are assisted by a selected group of church members with expertise in various personal problem areas.

The program is designed to be problem-oriented instead of opinionated, Cook said, and both he and Williams are identified at the opening of the broadcast as Adventist ministers. Callers need not identify themselves and the staff helps to talk out personal problems. The staff also directs individuals to local agencies which can give more specific information and aid. A telephone number at the Tabernacle office is also given for those who may be interested in a personal interview with a minister.

The broadcast format is based on a similar program that has been run successfully for a number of years in Rochester, New York. The Adventist pastor there has baptized more than 30 people as a result of an initial radio contact. It is hoped that in time the Battle Creek program will also become a soul-winning agency.

TWO ANDREWS JUNIOR ACADEMY STUDENTS WIN DAR CONTEST

Two Andrews University Junior Academy students, seventh grader Candy Madgwick, and eighth grader Chris Smoot, received bronze medals and certificates of acknowledgement from the Algonquin chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution for their essays in the annual contest for national history month.

This year's theme for the nationwide contest dealt with the Declaration of Independence or the signers of the Declaration. The theme winners from this area in the fifth, sixth, seventh, and eighth grade categories will be sent to the state competition, and the winner will proceed through the regional to the national contest.

Candy is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gordon Madgwick, of Berrien Springs, and Chris is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Smoot, also of Berrien Springs.

MUSTARD ASSISTS GREEN BAY IN EVANGELISTIC OUTREACH

Pastor Andrew Mustard and his wife, Alethea, recently arrived in Green Bay from Kingston, Ontario, to assist in developing an intensified follow-up program for It Is Written telecast interests.

The Mustards will remain in Green Bay for two years, terminating their service about the time the telecast completes its three-year run.

Pastor Mustard is putting together a program designed to reach each interest in such a way that continued contact will result in Bible studies, attendance at evangelistic meetings, and eventually church attendance and baptism.

Effort is being made to involve as many laymen as possible. A witnessing class conducted on Sabbath afternoons instructs trainees in the art of personal contact. They then go out by twos according to the New Testament witnessing practice.

In addition to the It Is Written endeavor, Pastor Mustard will be assisting with Five-Day Plans to Stop Smoking, cooking classes, and evangelism.

Before coming to Green Bay, Mustard pastored the Kingston, Ontario, Church. Prior to that he taught religion at Kingsway College from 1967 to 1975, having received his master of divinity degree from Andrews University in 1967. Upon completion of his work in Green Bay he will return to Andrews to study for the doctor of theology degree.

NEW GYM PROJECT GETS UNDER WAY AT W.A.

The roar of bulldozers will be heard at Wisconsin Academy as soon as spring arrives. For several years the members of the conference have been contributing to the Academy Development Project, and now it is time to begin to realize the first stages of that project.

The academy and conference administration has been working with the Don Kirkman Architectural Firm, and plans have been drawn and approved for construction of a gymnasium with adequate facilities for a contemporary physical education program.

There will be room for two full basketball courts, showers, and dressing rooms, all arranged so that a swimming pool can be added later. The building is also planned to provide for a new cafeteria facility.

The cost of this phase of the project will be approximately $350,000, one-half of which has already been raised through regular contributions from the churches. The other half will be borrowed, to be repaid as the contributions continue over the next several years. The members of the conference who have continued to support this development project will rejoice to see their plans coming to reality.

Newsline GUATEMALAN EARTHQUAKE RELIEF

More than $100,000 worth of emergency disaster relief has been shipped by Seventh-day Adventist World Service (SAWS) to aid the victims of the earthquake in Guatemala City.

Howard D. Burbank, executive director of SAWS, reports that three planeloads of supplies have been shipped—one from New York, one from Shreveport, Louisiana, and one from San Francisco. The supplies include more than 350 tents, as well as blankets, bandages, wire splints, kettles, and gas lanterns.

A team of 12 physicians, medical students, and nurses was flown from Loma Linda University in California to Guatemala City Sunday afternoon, February 8. The medical personnel will stay at least one week, performing emergency operations and giving medical care.

Robert Folkenberg, president of the Central American Union Mission, has been in daily contact with church officials in Washington and Loma Linda via amateur shortwave radio. He reported on Saturday, February 7, that five Seventh-day Adventist nationals have lost their lives so far in the devastation, and the toll may rise as reports come in from the countryside.

Adventists are feeding as many as 5,000 persons two meals a day in Guatemala City. They have had to cut up oil drums, boiling water in them to sterilize the containers, in order to serve the vast number of homeless and hungry.

Contributions are urgently needed to further this relief effort. Send checks (no clothing or supplies) to SAWS, Guatemalan Relief Fund, 6840 Eastern Avenue, N.W., Washington, DC 20012.

VICE PRESIDENT OF A.U. NAMED PRESIDENT OF WALLA WALLA COLLEGE

J. G. Smoot

Joseph Grady Smoot, vice president for academic administration at Andrews University, has been named president of Walla Walla College, College Place, Washington.

Smoot will assume the position in June 1976. He joined Andrews in 1968 as dean of the School of Graduate Studies. He was appointed as vice president for academic administration in 1969.

"Dr. Smoot has been an outstanding vice president and we regret to see him leave," said A.U. President Richard Hammill. "His leadership has brought many strengths to the institution.

"He has been particularly effective in dealing with accrediting associations and professional organizations. Dr. Smoot's leadership has led to full accreditation.

"During his incumbency he has had several invitations to college presidencies but has declined them in order to carry through to completion the goals he had set for himself here at Andrews University."

Major accomplishments during Smoot's administration have included faculty development, university accreditation, new programs initiated, and an organization of a long-range academic master plan.

Development of three doctoral programs in education, ministry, and theology and their preliminary accreditation has been of primary concern to Smoot during his administration.

The organization of a college of technology and the establishment of six chapters of national honors societies in various fields have materialized. He has also been active in the development of affiliation programs at the Adventist Seminary of West Africa in Nigeria and Helderberg College in South Africa.

Smoot is married to Irma Jean Kopitzke, who is presently assistant professor of secretarial studies at Andrews University. They have one child, Andrew Christopher.
