Fire in the Stubble

"The Advent message to all the world in this generation." This has been the aim of our Missionary Volunteer Society since 1907. Still, the work is not done and therefore Jesus has not come. It seems evident, then, that a new and urgent objective must be accepted and that the entire church must engage in its accomplishment.

The new aim accepted by the church at the last Annual Council is "To place the vital truths of the three angels' messages in some form in every home on planet earth in the next five years."

This is indeed an ambitious aim, but it is not an impossible one. By the power of the Spirit manifested in the lives and ministry of more than two and a half million members, the message will go like fire in the stubble. The Lord gives us a picture of our people going from house to house with their Bibles under their arms and their faces shining with holy consecration. Their only ambition is to reveal the likeness of Christ's character and labor for the enlargement of His kingdom. The promise is that in response to such an endeavor thousands will be converted in a day and the scenes of Pentecost will be repeated and with greater demonstrations of power. When are we to see this? "The Lord will do this work in our day."

How thrilling is the possibility of being home soon. Soon we shall see Jesus. Soon sorrow, suffering, and death will be ended and God's people will be gathered from the ends of the earth and taken to their heavenly home.

But between now and then comes the completion of our task. How can the work of God in this earth be finished? "The work of God in this earth can never be finished until the men and women comprising our membership rally to the work and unite their labors with those of the ministers and church officers."

This is a call to all-out service for the Lord on all fronts. This is a call to full consecration and complete dedication of all of our talents, energies, and means to reach the lost with the last great message of mercy. It is a call to our boys and girls, our young people, and our entire membership to become instruments in the hands of the Lord. For the promise is that "He will do the work if we will furnish Him the instruments."

With more than 50,000 members in the Lake Union in love with Christ, full of the Holy Spirit, and possessed with a burden for souls, every home could be contacted either by a personal visit or by radio, television, or literature sent through the mail so that not a single family or person would fail to have the opportunity to hear the three angels' messages in the next five years.

May God help us all to rally to the work and seek by the grace of God and under the power of the Spirit to finish the work so that Jesus can come quickly.

LLU Heart Team Returns from Saudi Arabia

Members of the Loma Linda University Overseas Heart Surgery Team returned home to Loma Linda this month after spending six weeks in Saudi Arabia, according to Dr. Ellsworth E. Wareham, professor of surgery and co-director of the team.

While in Saudi Arabia, the team successfully performed the first open-heart surgery ever done in that Middle Eastern country on a 13-year-old Muslim girl, Nalwal Abdal Azziz Bakra, a daughter of a colonel in the Saudi Arabian Army.

In addition to operating on Nalwal, the Loma Linda team operated on 34 other patients—many of them children.

The trip to Saudi Arabia was the sixth that the team has taken abroad to perform open-heart surgery. This highly specialized group is unique in that they have performed more heart surgeries in more countries of the world than any similar organization.

Since 1963 when the heart team introduced open-heart surgery to the newly formed country of Pakistan, the Loma Linda University Overseas Heart Surgery Team has performed surgery in India, Thailand, Taiwan, Greece, and more recently, Vietnam.

Led by Dr. Wareham, and Dr. Joan Coggin, associate dean of the School of Medicine, the heart team worked at the 135-bed Khamis Mushayt hospital located on a military reservation in southern Saudi Arabia. Special arrangements were made with the Saudi Arabian Air Force to fly patients from various points around the country to the Ministry of Defense and Aviation hospital in Khamis Mushayt.

Part of the philosophy of the Loma Linda team is not just to go to a country, perform 35 to 40 surgeries, and leave. An integral part of the team's spirit is to teach their counterparts in that particular country to be able to carry on such work after the heart team leaves.

Using this method, each particular national specialist or technician observes and takes part in the work of his American counterpart. Thus they become familiar with the problems to be encountered and how they are cared for in their own hospital in their own country.

Such a program is now in progress in Athens. After the team returned to Greece for the second time in 1969, Drs. Coggin and Wareham searched for a Greek cardiac surgeon to head up a heart surgery program at the Evangelismos Hospital where the team had worked. They found such a person in American-trained Dr. George Tolis, whose team has now operated on nearly 1,000 patients since the team became operational in 1970.

Saudi Arabia will not be different.

Opposite page: Small villages dot the countryside of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. Most of the homes are made out of adobe. This page: Top left, Thirty-five surgeries were completed by the Loma Linda University Heart Surgery Team during their stay in Saudi Arabia. As many as 20 observers crowded into the operating suite at one time watching the open-heart surgery. Top right, Dr. Roy V. Jutzy and nurse Joyce Johnston examine a patient at a small clinic in Abha, the capital city of the province of Assir. Left, Many of the 35 patients operated on by the heart team were children. Patients came from all over the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia.

Just prior to leaving the country in late February, Drs. Coggin and Wareham visited with government officials in the capital city of Riyadh and negotiated a contract with the Saudi Arabian government that provides for the heart team to make a second visit to Saudi Arabia next August. The agreement calls for the team to stay eight weeks and perform 50 surgeries. In addition, the Saudi Arabian military will send eight to ten Saudi's to be trained at Loma Linda University for heart team technicians. Later next year, the heart team will make a third visit and build a continuing open-heart surgery program in Riyadh.

Many of the patients who were operated on by the team came from small villages and towns in Saudi Arabia in addition to the larger cities of Jeddah and Riyadh. Patients of several nationalities were operated on including Saudi Arabia, Aden, Jordan, Yemen, and Egypt.

A group of 19 specialists made up the Saudi Arabian heart team. "The concept practiced by the Loma Linda University heart team is that the best way to develop surgery in a country where it has not been done before is to take the complete group of specialists who compose the team," Dr. Wareham states. "This includes taking cardiologists, cardiac surgeons, nurses, laboratory technicians, respiratory therapists, and heart-lung machine technicians to that country. We operate under the restricted conditions which they have, and perform various types of intracardiac procedures."

ologists Dr. Bernard Brandstater, Dr. B. B. Rogerson, and Dr. Donald Anderson; blood bank technician Galen Smith; residents Dr. Frank Rogers and Dr. Berneva Adams; senior medical student Robert Pereyra; and heart-lung machine technician Judy White.

The team took with them all the supplies and instruments necessary to perform open-heart surgery. Most of the equipment used by the heart team was transported to Saudi Arabia several weeks in advance of their arrival. The most valuable piece of equipment shipped was the $18,000 heart-lung machine. However, many other instruments worth from $1,000 to $3,000 were included in the shipment.

Expenses for the Saudi Arabian trip were paid for by the Whittaker Corporation of Los Angeles. They operate three hospitals in Saudi Arabia for the Saudi Arabian government.

NEWS NOTES

● The Sunshine Group from West Central presented a sing-a-long at the Downers Grove Church, Sabbath, March 27. The group has sung at Adventist churches, camp meetings, evangelistic gatherings, and at nursing homes and hospitals.

● Eight persons were baptized at the close of the evangelistic meetings conducted by Evangelist Dan Schiffbauer in Kewanee. Another baptism is planned. Many members feel that one important thing God used in making these meetings a success was the prayer bands that were held just before each night's service and prior to the beginning of the series.

● The DeKalb Church recently held its first child dedication since its organization last July. Three children were presented to the Lord. They were Heather, daughter of Richard and Sheila Erd; Jacob, son of Robert and Judy Capello; and Christopher, son of David and Benita Chamberlain. Pastor Milton Erhart and local elders Chuck Morris and Gilbert Cooper took part in the services.

● On February 14 the Marion Church received an award. This certificate was presented by the Williamson County Care Council for recognition and appreciation of volunteer services rendered to Fountain Nursing Home. The Marion Church members devote an hour the second Sabbath of each month to singing and visiting with the patients at Fountain.

A.U. SINGERS PROVIDE BICENTENNIAL CONCERT

The Andrews University Singers, the touring choir of Andrews University, gave a special Bicentennial concert on Sabbath, March 6, at the Rockford Church. Under the direction of Dr. Franklin Lusk the talents of the group spilled over into nearly all of the departments of Sabbath School as well as church. Vickie Hyde and Steve McKenzie, student missionaries, told of their experiences in Sierra Leone, Africa, and Pakistan. Rockford is looking forward to a return visit from this outstanding Christian group.

Young people made up the majority of the audience at West Suburban's exhibit at Hillside Shopping Center.

WEST SUBURBAN ANTI-POLLUTION EXHIBIT

Hillside, a large suburban shopping center, was the scene of a new attraction, February 22 to 24. Al Trace and his seventh and eighth grade students sponsored an exhibit entitled "Smoking, It's Your Choice." The brilliant posters made by the students, the lung-capacity testing machine, and the sincere and smiling faces of the young people attracted the attention of hundreds of shoppers.

The students were thrilled to be able to discuss the effects of smoking and drug abuse with interested people and to distribute many pieces of literature. They also received requests for more information on smoking and other health-related subjects.

The class felt it was a very valuable learning experience as well as a real community service activity.

The church in Delete, Ethiopia, was completed with the help of Broadview Academy teacher Eugene Witzel and students Rick Gardner and Floyd Harris.

CHURCH IN ETHIOPIA COMPLETED BY TEACHER AND STUDENTS

Two Broadview Academy students and their teacher spent the Christmas vacation completing a church in Ethiopia.

Rick Gardner, a senior from Downers Grove, Floyd Harris, a senior from Fairfield, and Eugene Witzel, instructor in industrial arts, left O'Hare Field, December 14, to spend three weeks completing the first permanent church at Delete in the West Ethiopia Field.

Witzel and his family returned in August from mission service in Ethiopia where he was the teacher-builder of Wollega Adventist Academy in western Ethiopia. He had helped with the planning and building of this church, but time prohibited the completion of the building before the Witzels had to leave the country. At Delete there are about 500 members now and the only structure they have had to worship in was a mud building which was far too small.

The men were able to complete the structure to the point that the members will be able to do the remaining minor jobs of finishing it.

CHURCHES MEET FOR SPECIAL DAY

The Centralia district churches of Mt. Vernon, Centralia, and Noble met together on February 14 for a special event in the Noble Church. Mrs. Alta Annis, who has been taking Bible studies from her husband, Charles, for the past two years, was baptized into the Noble Church. Bernard Cook, treasurer of the Illinois Conference, had the privilege of baptizing her.

At the close of the baptism, a call was made by Pastor Bob Reynolds, and six individuals indicated their desire to be baptized in the near future.

After the church services and baptism, members of the three churches stayed together for a fellowship dinner and an afternoon singspiration. One of the special treats of the afternoon was organ music played by Mrs. Barbara Lange, who was visiting the church that day. Pastor Reynolds has been giving her Bible studies and it is his prayer that she will soon indicate her desire to be baptized.

- Terre Haute Home and School leaders served a chili supper as the start of a fund-raising drive for a church school building. They have plans for many fund-raising activities in the near future. The need for a school building in this area is great and the members are looking forward to reaching this goal.

- A fabric sale was conducted during the first week of April by the Cicero Home and School Association. About 3,700 yards of material and trim were sold for $6,500. The profit will go toward soundproofing the school gym.

INVESTMENT IS FUN

The Marion Church has only 128 members, yet under the capable leadership of Eddie Packard, Investment soars year after year. This year the total for the church was more than $2,000. The members will tell you it is fun! The various Sabbath School divisions are involved each year. Mrs. Bernard Miller has had special projects for her cradle roll and kindergarten divisions. This year the projects ranged from a garage sale to selling puppies. They were able to give $405.30 for Investment.

The Indiana Pathfinders marched in to the church to begin the afternoon rally.

COLUMBUS HOSTS PATHFINDER-YOUTH RALLY

Since 1969 the conference youth department has held a Pathfinder-Youth Rally with the Kokomo Church and Pathfinder Club as hosts. However, on March 27 approximately 500 Pathfinders, youth, parents, and friends made their way to Columbus, Indiana, to the First United Methodist Church where the rally was held for the first time in the southern part of the state.

Sabbath School was directed by Dr. Ray Stidd with a number of Columbus Pathfinders assisting him on the program. Doug Teller, a student missionary from Andrews University, gave a pictorial report of his year's activities in Malawi, Africa. Al Keiser, associate pastor of the Indianapolis Glendale Church, taught the Sabbath School lesson.

Chester Dameron from Andrews University was the guest speaker for the rally.

Guest speaker Chester Dameron of Andrews University's Campus Ministry department gave a stirring message. For 15 years Elder Dameron served as a missionary in the Far Eastern Division. He challenged the Pathfinders and youth to give Jesus their hearts and let Him direct their lives.

Bill Hawkes, Columbus district pastor, gave a welcome to the visitors. He also gave a history of the city and told about distinctive examples of modern architecture that has made Columbus unique.

The Good News Singers, a male chorus from Andrews University, were also an important part of the rally. The group includes both professors and students. Ralph Coupland, formerly a music instructor at Canadian Union College, is the director of the group. They gave a special concert in the Columbus Square Mall after dinner.

A large fellowship dinner, organized by Mrs. Lois Hawkes and other Columbus Church ladies, provided plenty of good food for everyone.

After dinner the Pathfinders went out on Sunshine Bands to cheer up the elderly at three nursing homes in the city.

The afternoon rally began with the guest Pathfinders marching in to the church behind the Columbus Pathfinder honor guard. The program provided a variety of interesting features mixed with a lot of good singing led by Pastor Al Keiser. Elder Dameron introduced Karen Snyder, John Noy, and Doug Teller, all student missionaries who gave thrilling reports of their endeavors. Elder Dameron reserved time for the youth and Pathfinders to ask questions about the student missionary program.

The rally concluded with a very inspirational sundown meditation brought by Phil and Cynthia Prime of the Indianapolis Glendale Pathfinder Club.

Several times during the day, Cliff Hoffman, conference youth director, paid tribute to Mrs. Jerre St. Claire, who had worked on the rally since October 1975. He also thanked many others in the Columbus Church who worked hard to make the day a success.

On Saturday night the Pathfinders, staff members, parents, and others enjoyed basketball, volley ball, and swimming at the Columbus Foundation for Youth.

At the end of a long day the Pathfinders, youth, and their leaders headed home with a host of beautiful blessings and memories to look back on till next year.

- On Sabbath, March 27, Gatha Williams, a registered dietitian and instructor of food science at Michigan State University in Lansing, gave a lecture on the basic four food groups at the Pontiac Southside MV meeting. Effie Seay is MV leader. Miss Williams is a recent member of the church and is actively involved in church activities.

- Oliver Fennison was guest speaker for Visitors' Day on March 20 at the Pontiac Southside Church. Mrs. Nancy Crawford, Sabbath School superintendent, had a well-planned program for the Sabbath School and coordinated a special program with W. C. Byrd, pastor, for the worship hour. Gifts of books were presented to all visitors and a fellowship dinner was held.

• The lay activities department, under the direction of Sammie Ford, is holding a Training Light Bearers class on Wednesday evenings during prayer meeting to encourage soul winning. A graduation is being planned upon the completion of the class.

• Temperance Day was celebrated at the Philadelphia Church in Niles, Michigan, on March 6. The theme for the day was "Good Mental Health: Your Most Vital Asset." Dr. Robert Williams of Andrews University was the speaker. His message was entitled, "The Christian's Extra Measure."

• Elder R. C. Brown, executive secretary and stewardship director for the Lake Region Conference, was guest speaker at the Capitol Avenue Church in Indianapolis, Indiana. His call for faithfulness and true commitment to the doctrine of self-sacrifice was particularly challenging to all. He gave the God-given solutions to all our problems as a church and as individuals.

Dr. C. B. Rock, left, Rev. Jesse Jackson, and President J. R. Wagner enjoyed the banquet on Saturday night.

JESSE JACKSON SPEAKS FOR LAKE REGION WEEKEND

Annually the regional conferences travel to Oakwood College to present the weekend program and show their respective students they appreciate their selecting Oakwood College as their school for higher learning.

Lake Region Weekend was March 6 and 7. Elder C. B. Rock, president, in expressing his gratitude to the Lake Region students, mentioned that they were second in enrollment. The South Atlantic Conference was first.

Friday vespers was the first program of the weekend. Pastor F. S. Hill, III, of Evansville, Indiana, was the speaker. Following his inspiring sermon, the Lake Region students presented an MV program coordinated by Clarissa Pennington and James Mosely, Jr.

Peggy Foster of Milwaukee, acting Sabbath School superintendent, along with several other students, was in charge of Sabbath School. Elder Randolph Stafford of the Capitol Avenue Church in Indianapolis delivered the worship sermon.

The Sabbath afternoon program was designated by President J. R. Wagner as "The Lake Region Sound." It is simply the musical sounds heard around the great Lake Region. This year the participants included Ed Robinson, accompanied by John Handy, of Chicago;

Leroy and Cloie Logan, Bible instructors, of Chicago; Brenda Spraggins, mezzo-soprano from Lansing, Michigan; and a 100-voice choir composed of some of the students in attendance at Oakwood this year directed by Leroy Logan.

Vesper services by Elder James Wray concluded the activities in Ashby Auditorium.

Saturday night's banquet was of special interest to students, faculty, and community. Jesse Jackson, leader of Operation PUSH, was the featured speaker. Rev. Jackson, often called the "country preacher," spoke to the standing-room-only crowd on the importance of getting an education, becoming a contributing member of society, and using what you have. He mentioned that we do not all have the same talents nor are we gifted to the same degree. Peter had neither silver nor gold when approached by the lame man, but he gave what he had (Acts 3).

Reflecting upon the weekend, the staff believed their presence had been a blessing to the students at Oakwood.

SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTIST HEAD OF STATE

Austin Bramble, chief minister of Monsterrat, one of the West Indian Islands, is the only Seventh-day Adventist head of state in the world today.

Chief Minister Bramble who came to the United States in October 1975 at the invitation of the State Department chose Andrews University as one of the places to visit because of the reports he had received about the school.

To a full and attentive audience at Andrews University, he related some of his experiences and gave some of his philosophies on Adventism and politics.

The Chief Minister was originally a member in his father's cabinet; however, over a period of time, his views conflicted so overwhelmingly with those of his father that he had to make the painful decision to form an opposition and challenge his father.

He asserted that the campaign was intensely rigorous but elegantly clean. He never resorted to "name calling" or "smear tactics." He defeated his father in the election and succeeded him as Chief Minister.

Mr. Bramble told his spellbound listeners that the decision to oppose his father evoked one of the most excruciating agonies he ever experienced, but he felt that principle dictated that he should do it. At one point it appeared as if there would be an irreconcilable estrangement between him and his father. However, he is grateful to God that the gulf has been bridged.

His parliament does not meet on Sabbath; he does not attend any government meeting on Sabbath at home or abroad. When a foreign dignitary is on an official visit to his country, he arranges all meetings to exclude Saturday.

He begins every government meeting with prayer, an example that is now followed even if he is not present.

The writer believes that Chief Minister Bramble has set a shining example that we all should strive to emulate. The Lord needs more honest, dedicated, and faithful individuals actively participating in the decision-making affairs of the nation.

Let us never forget that God calls some of us to be ministers, others to be teachers, missionaries, doctors, lawyers, business executives, and still others to be politicians. We must all join in the warfare regardless of the rank that we hold.

APPOINTED

W. M. Buckman

On March 8, Michigan's Governor Millikin officially appointed W. M. Buckman, conference lay activities director, to an indefinite term as a member of the state's Civil Defense Advisory Council.

In a personal letter to Buckman the governor said, "I have every confidence that you will derive personal satisfaction from this important position and that the State of Michigan will benefit from your experience."

Senate Majority Leader William B. Fitzgerald informed Buckman that "such appointments by the Governor are made with the advice and consent of the State Senate." They become effective 60 days after the appointment, or in this case on May 8.

Stewart Erhard poses with Elder Roy Lemon and a few of the graduates of the Five-Day Plan held at Manchester.

50TH FIVE-DAY PLAN BY ERHARD

The Manchester Church of Christ was the recent site of the 50th Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking to be conducted by Stewart Erhard, M.D., of Eaton Rapids.

Dr. Erhard's first Five-Day Plan was held in Escanaba in February 1963 with his brother, John, then the pastor of the local Adventist Church. His 51st smoking withdrawal clinic was completed in Orlando, Florida, March 21. His brother, who is now a chaplain at the Orlando Adventist Hospital, again assisted him. The two have served as a team conducting these clinics in cities throughout Michigan and in the Chicago area.

Only five of Dr. Erhard's plans have been held in Eaton Rapids, the last two in 1975 and 1976. On those occasions the local pastor, Ray Hamstra, assisted.

During the course of presenting these programs some unusual sites were used. These included the state prison at Jackson, the Reformed Church in America, Hope College at Holland, Michigan, several Catholic and Protestant churches, and a number of hospitals. The plan has also been conducted on television in Lansing. Erhard is now involved in the 3-C's Risk Evaluation program which points up risk factors of an individual toward cancer, heart problems, and strokes.

Because of the health education witness of Dr. Erhard, Seventh-day Adventists are better understood and appreciated in many cities, some in dark counties. Several former successful participants of the plans are now members of the Adventist church, and Erhard anticipates that others will join with a little more time.

Besides being an elder in the Eaton Rapids Church, Erhard has been active in civic affairs, including the Boy Scouts, the Eaton County Heart Society, and has served as president of the County Medical Society and the local Kiwanis Club. In 1973 his Kiwanis Club awarded him an "Outstanding President's Award." This was one of 17 awarded in Michigan that year out of about 500 clubs.

STUDENT CONDUCTS POLL ABOUT ADVENTISTS

Bill Ivey is a member of the Lansing Church and a student at the Lansing Community College. Contacts with other students made him curious about how much they knew about Seventh-day Adventists. To find the answer he conducted his own poll asking twenty different students: "What is a Seventh-day Adventist?" The answers obtained are revealing. Here they are with the exception of those who felt they had no comment to make.

- "A person who takes seven days to invent something which really has no purpose."
- "It must be a week of adventures by some person."
- "A religious group located throughout the Lansing area. They have a camp or some type of church in Grand Ledge. They have their Sabbath on Friday or Saturday, I forget. As you can see, I'm not too much on them."
- "My knowledge of that faith is very slim—my first impression has always been one of the stereotype holy-roller Baptist, and somewhat prejudiced. Since then I have met a girl who follows that faith, and the impression has changed to at least a willingness to listen. However, my understanding is still very limited."
- "It deals with the church—a special Sunday during the year."

• "A person or group of people belonging to a particular set of rules and beliefs."

• "They believe that their holy day is Saturday. They have camp meetings in Grand Ledge. They have very strict ideas on smoking and drinking."

• "All I know about the Seventh-day Adventist church is that they firmly believe we are able to serve God better through healthy bodies."

• "Member of an organized religion. They don't work from Friday sundown to Saturday sundown. Literal and fundamental interpretation of the Bible. Commonly identified with the Holy Rollers. Each member considers self and is considered by church to be a priest."

• "A group of individuals who are more or who have more than normal participation in a particular religion. Unlike other religions. They don't appear to recruit their followers."

• "A religious fanatic."

• "I don't know anything about this religion. I do know that there are people involved and not animals. I don't hear too much about them, and wouldn't mind finding out about this religion."

• "To be honest, I am not familiar with the Seventh-day Adventists. Your question has aroused my curiosity, and I will check into it."

• "It's a church that some people belong to."

• "A Protestant religion who, I think, are fundamentalists in Biblical interpretations."

Among the special music presentations were the songs sung by this male quartet composed of Randy Hieb, Nick Walmer, Mike Snelling, and Greg VanderWaal.

BIBLE CAMPS AT AU SABLE FOR ACADEMY YOUTH

As part of its spiritual outreach to the youth of the church, the Conference Department of Youth Activities sponsors Bible camps for each of the academies in Michigan and a special one for high school students.

Recently 75 students and faculty members of Battle Creek Academy attended their four-day retreat at Au Sable.

Guest speaker was Elder Wayne Shepperd, recently elected director of youth activities for the Lake Union, whose theme was "God's Love Affair with the Guilty."

Sabbath evening featured a vesper service of special music followed by a candlelight communion service. Before and after the Sabbath hours recreational activities were scheduled. This included downhill and cross-country skiing, snowmobiling, canoeing, and horseback riding.

On their return, students and teachers reported that the fellowship and spiritual blessings made for a good weekend.

L. C. COULSTON 1879-1976

L. C. Coulston

L. C. Coulston, 96, one of the original employees of the Battle Creek Sanitarium, died Friday, February 27, in the Sanitarium Hospital only a few hours after being admitted. He had worked at the famed health institution until 1972.

Coulston was born March 13, 1879, in Munith, a small town about 13 miles northeast of Jackson, and went to Battle Creek in 1903. He was first employed in the dining room at the San but the following year became the institution's transportation manager.

At the time he began his transportation and greeting duties, 10 to 12 trains stopped each day in Battle Creek with patients heading for the San. Coulston met each train with his wagon and team of black horses. Horses were used for transportation until 1916 when motorized taxis came into use. Coulston continued to drive for the next 40 years, and after that was in charge of reservations and greeting guests at the San.

He loved to recall his more than 40 years working with the late Dr. John Harvey Kellogg, and the many famous guests who visited the San.

He could discuss visits by William Howard Taft during his years as president; Sir Horace Plunkett of Ireland; J. J. Davis, former secretary of labor; Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, who visited while her husband was president; C. W. Barron, who then was editor of the Wall Street Journal; Sir Dorab and Lady Tata of India, who arrived with their servants and personal physician; Will Durant, the philosopher; and Eddie Cantor.

Coulston was responsible for all transportation and handling of luggage of San guests, which more than 50 years ago numbered as many as 1,700 at a time. At that time the San's nursing staff numbered 500, and there were cottages on the grounds and further housing in the annex, which is today's famed cobblestone building.

His first wife, Mabel Gage, died in the great flu epidemic of 1918. A year later he married May Mynderse Merriam who died in 1957. She, as well as Coulston, were active members of the Battle Creek Tabernacle where he served as head deacon for 45 years.

st. johns church dedication

Formal dedication services of the St. Johns $93,000 church building were held recently. An overflow crowd filled the 160-seat sanctuary and occupied folding chairs in the foyer and other parts of the 5,000-square-foot building.

Joining the 78-member congregation and their friends for the occasion were six former pastors, conference officials, and Elder Gordon M. Hyde of the General Conference Biblical Research Committee.

According to a history given by Carl Mosher, the current church is a "descendant" of two congregations—the original one in the township of Greenbush and another which started later in St. Johns.

The earliest records of Adventist meetings go back to about 1860 when "Advent" farmers met in various believers' homes in Greenbush, a small community about five miles northeast of St. Johns. Here it was that O. B. Sevy and his wife donated the use of one room of their farmhouse for a chapel. This was the Adventist "church" until construction began in 1899 on a small white frame building. Shortly after World War I the Greenbush congregation welcomed into the membership the growing St. Johns group of Adventists.

Around the turn of the century George A. Summer, a pioneer resident of St. Johns, directed the organization of about 12 citizens of that town into an Adventist congregation. Here again church members' homes served as the meeting places for services. As the group grew, members left the homes to worship in various second floor halls in the business district and later in churches of other denominations until their merger with the group at Greenbush.

About 1933, the combined congregation purchased a building in St. Johns and the church moved into town. This building, a former residence, was remodeled to serve as both a sanctuary and day school. Then in 1954 another move was made. This time to a small white frame chapel in which the group worshiped until the present new structure was built.

It was in 1936 that the faith of the small congregation made possible the purchase of property in another area of town where a day school building was completed in only a few months.

On November 18, 1973, a ground-breaking ceremony took place on land adjacent to the day school. By sacrificial giving the members had set aside $50,000 to begin the construction of a house of worship. By June of 1974 the congregation was able to celebrate its first Sabbath in the new church and by November of 1975 they had completed paying for the structure.

NEWS NOTES

• When severe ice and windstorms caused an 85 percent power outage in southwestern Wisconsin in early April, Mid-American's facility in Lancaster opened its doors without charge to elderly persons. Two persons were given a place to sleep, supper that evening, and a breakfast the next morning. "We were happy to serve the community in this way," said Harvey Rudisaile, Lancaster Nursing Home administrator. During and after the storm, the nursing home used its electrical generator for more than 30 hours so that care to residents could continue uninterrupted.

• The Prairie du Chien Convalescent Center hosted the local Kiwanis Club for dinner and a program about the nursing home on April 1. Administrator Fred Adams hosted the evening which included reports from various key personnel.

• Mid-American has filed a preliminary application for funds to build low-income and handicapped housing with the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development. The program is only for nonprofit corporations. If preliminary approval is received, Mid-American must then prove a need, formulate concrete plans, and get those approved before actual construction starts. Plans call for apartments to be built on land near to existing nursing homes in Bethel, Colby, Lancaster, Marshfield, Prairie du Chien, and Stevens Point.

• A new program for earning and using fringe benefits went into effect April 1 for all hourly wage employees of Mid-American Health Services, Inc. Termed the "hours accumulation" or "paid time off" system, it places all benefits such as sick time, vacations, and holidays into one pool. Each employee earns benefits as a ratio of his actual hours worked. For example, a beginning employee earns 3.6 minutes of benefit time for each hour worked. These benefit hours can then be taken off at any time without stating a specific reason. The program had been under development since early 1975.

NEW CHURCH OPENS IN PORTAGE

Opening day services for the new Portage Church were held March 27.

Building was started about three years ago. The educational unit was completed a year ago. Church school and church services have been held in this unit until the present completion of the sanctuary. The sanctuary seats 300. This new educational and worship facility for Portage is valued at $200,000 and is completely free of any debt. Dedicatory services are planned for July 24.

Opening day services featured special prayer and anointing for retired Pastor O. A. Lyberg who is suffering from bone cancer; a child dedication; a baptism; a sermon by former Pastor Ted Green; a fellowship lunch; and an afternoon program of sacred music directed by Sidney Mills, principal of Madison Junior Academy.

Elder Dale addresses the crowd of onlookers as members of the Academy Board prepare to break ground for the new gymnasium.

GROUNDBREAKING AT WISCONSIN ACADEMY

On a frosty day, members of the Wisconsin Academy Board, faculty members, and students gathered on the campus to break ground for the new gymnasium that has been so greatly needed for many years. A bulldozer had pushed back the snow, and staff members with new shovels dug into the still frozen earth to launch the building program.

Dramatically as the first shovelfuls of dirt were turned, a V-shaped flock of honking geese flew over the campus with a message that spring is on the way.

The old gym is a quonset hut with a brick front. The new gymnasium will be a sturdy brick and block structure fully equipped to provide for all the varied activities of a lively bunch of students seeking to develop healthy bodies.

The new gym will be provided with facilities for adding a swimming pool on one side and a cafeteria on the other. This new addition to the facilities at Wisconsin Academy will bring it even closer to the ideal school that Wisconsin members have been proud of for so many years.

LAYMEN AT WORK IN RACINE

The laymen of Racine under the leadership of Mr. McMorris have launched their own layman's program to win souls and have counted three baptisms as a reward for their efforts. More are on the way.

The group started as a home Bible study group, meeting twice a week at the homes of the members. They used Elder Schuler's book, Helps to Bible Study, and marked their Bibles in preparation to going out to give the message.

Pastor Elmer Rasmussen met with them to help with important Bible subjects, and soon they were out among the people, studying the message with them. The program has revitalized the entire church.

The Five-Day Plan to Stop Smoking is a vital part of their approach and they have had good success using the Plan.

A youth group in the church is now planning a similar program and they are looking forward to getting out among the youth in Racine.

VICTORY TIDINGS

The office of the treasurer of the General Conference reports that the church had a gain of $161,529 over 1975 for Ingathering.

Kenneth H. Emmerson, treasurer, states, "It is almost unbelievable that in the latter part of 1975 and the beginning of 1976—days of anxiety, financial reverses, unemployment, and other economic instabilities—we should achieve the sum of $8 million as a total raised for Ingathering in North America."

The Lake Union Conference had a gain of $13,812.04 over last year. It also had two Silver Vanguard conferences—Illinois and Indiana with $219,744.05 and $153,010.77 respectively. Three local conferences, Indiana, Lake Region, and Wisconsin, exceeded last year's final figures.

Indiana had the second highest conference gain in North America—$17,412.26. Florida Conference was first with a gain of $18,794.63.

The Lake Union is fifth on the union conference per capita honor roll. Its per capita giving was $18.75 with the high being the Southwestern Union, $23.14, and the low being the Pacific Union, $11.41.

On the conference per capita honor roll Illinois ranks seventh with $27.05, Indiana is ninth with $26.20, Michigan is 35th with $19.04, and Wisconsin is 36th with $18.71. The high was Newfoundland Conference with a per capita of $34.92.

Elder Emmerson says, "Surely we should thank the Lord for His mercy to us as individual members in this church and for all that He did through the giving of His Son upon Calvary's cross so that we might take His example and thus sacrifice for the untold millions who have not heard this message."

Three female students in the College of Technology have been helping to build a house in order to meet their vocational requirements.

Colleen Mathews and Jackie Watkinson, architectural engineering students, and Mrs. Connie Warcholik, occupational carpentry student, have been working as apprentice carpenters this quarter. Laying down roof shingles, putting up plywood walls, and nailing in floor joints are some of the jobs they have been doing.

A male student of the occupational carpentry class said, "The girls are very feminine, but they are capable of doing much of a man's job in carpentry."
